Webster's New Dictionary of Synonyms

Thousands of synonyms defined, discriminated and illustrated with quotations. Plus antonyms, analogous words and contrasting words.

To help you use the right word in the right place.
Webster's New Dictionary of Synonyms

“A must for every writer's library.”—THE BOSTON GLOBE

“An easy-to-use aid to precise word use.”—THE WRITER

This 942-page volume shows you how to use the right word in the right place, quickly and clearly.

The alphabetical arrangement saves hunting through an index and its easy-to-use cross-reference system pinpoints related words.

Webster’s New Dictionary of Synonyms contains synonymies in which words of similar meaning are defined and discriminated and illustrated with thousands of pertinent quotations from both classic and contemporary writers, showing the language in actual precise use.

Antonyms, analogous words, and contrasted words provide additional information on word relationships.

And the introduction presents an informative and helpful survey of the history of synonomy.
FROM MERRIAM-WEBSTER

• THE UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY
Webster's Third New International—A masterpiece of modern defining—more than 460,000 entries, with 200,000 usage examples and 1,000 synonym articles. 3,000 terms illustrated. Simplified pronunciation key and clear, informative etymologies. The standard authority.

• DECK SIZE DICTIONARY
Webster's Ninth New Collegiate—The newest in the famous Collegiate series. Almost 160,000 entries and 200,000 definitions. Entries for words often misused and confused include a clear, authoritative guide to good usage. For an exclusive feature—entries are dated. How old is a word? When was it first used? The answer is here, but in no other American dictionary.

• GEOGRAPHY
Webster's New Geographical Dictionary—World facts at your finger tips! More than 47,000 entries and 217 maps provide basic information on the world's countries, regions, cities, and natural features. A convenient source of detailed information about the world you live in.

• BIOGRAPHY
Webster's New Biographical Dictionary—A unique one-volume reference work providing essential information on more than 30,000 men and women—of all eras, all parts of the world, and from all fields of endeavor. Pronunciation is given for each name and end-of-line division is clearly indicated.

• SPORTS
Webster's Sports Dictionary—The only book of its kind, it explains and defines the equipment, signals, and language used in over 100 sports—from airplane racing to yachting. Filled with actual quotations from athletes and sportwriters, original drawings, and diagrams.

• THE OFFICIAL CROSSWORD PUZZLE DICTIONARY
Webster's Official Crossword Puzzle Dictionary—Over 120 specialized lists that will bring the puzzle solver and the answer word together quickly and easily. Three column format.

Merriam-Webster Inc.
Springfield, MA 01102
These special features make Webster's New Dictionary of Synonyms easier to use, more precise and complete than any reference of its kind:

1. Each discrimination begins with a brief common definition.
2. Special applications and shades of meaning are given for each discriminated word in an article.
3. For quicker reference every discriminated word is listed in alphabetical order.
4. Antonyms and contrasted words are also listed.
5. Quotations from outstanding writers illustrate how a word is and has been used.
6. Convenient cross-reference system aids in locating related words.
7. Detailed discussions of each word in a group show how to use exactly the right word in the right place.
8. Analogous words with closely similar meaning are grouped together.

persevere

persevere, persist are both used in reference to persons in the sense of to continue in a given course in the face of difficulty or opposition. Persevere nearly always implies an admirable quality; it suggests both refusal to be discouraged by failure, doubts, or difficulties, and a steadfast or dogged pursuit of an end or an undertaking (I will persevere in my course of loyalty, though the conflict be sore between that and my blood—Shak.) (for, strength to persevere and to support, and energy to conquer and repel—the elements of virtue, that declare the native grandeur of the human soul—Wordsworth) (I do not intend to take that cowardly course, but, on the contrary, to stand to my post and persevere in accordance with my duty—Sir Winston Churchill). Persist (see also continue) may imply a virtue (this is the poetry within history, this is what causes mankind to persist beyond every defeat—J. S. Untermeyer) but it more often suggests a disagreeable or annoying quality, for it stresses stubbornness or obstinacy more than courage or patience and frequently implies opposition to advice, remonstrance, disapproval, or one's own conscience (persist in working when ill) (it is hard to see how they can have persisted so long in inflicting useless misery—Russell).

Ana *continue, abide, endure, last Con vary, *change, alter: waver, vacillate, falter, *hesitate persiflage *badinage, raillery Ana bantering or banter, chaffing or chaff (see BANTER): ridiculing or ridicule, twitting, deriding or derision (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE)

persist 1 *persevere
Ant desist—Con discontinue, cease, *stop, quit 2 *continue, last, endure, abide Ant desist—Con *stop, cease, discontinue

A Genuine MERRIAM-WEBSTER®
More people take our word for it.
Webster’s New Dictionary of Synonyms

A DICTIONARY OF DISCRIMINATED SYNONYMS WITH ANTONYMS AND ANALOGOUS AND CONTRASTED WORDS

MERRIAM-WEBSTER INC., Publishers
SPRINGFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS, U.S.A.
A GENUINE MERRIAM-WEBSTER

The name Webster alone is no guarantee of excellence. It is used by a number of publishers and may serve mainly to mislead an unwary buyer.

A Merriam-Webster® is the registered trademark you should look for when you consider the purchase of dictionaries or other fine reference books. It carries the reputation of a company that has been publishing since 1831 and is your assurance of quality and authority.

Copyright © 1984 by Merriam-Webster Inc.
Philippines Copyright 1984 by Merriam-Webster Inc.

ISBN 0-87779-241-0

Webster’s New Dictionary of Synonyms principal copyright 1968

All rights reserved. No part of this work covered by the copyrights hereon may be reproduced or copied in any form or by any means—graphic, electronic, or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, taping, or information storage and retrieval systems—without written permission of the publisher.

Made in the United States of America

24RMcN92
CONTENTS

Preface ........................................... 4a

Introductory Matter

- Survey of the History of English Synonymy ........................................... 5a
- Synonym: Analysis and Definition ..................................................... 23a
- Antonym: Analysis and Definition ..................................................... 26a
- Analogous and Contrasted Words ......................................................... 30a

Explanatory Notes ........................................... 32a

A Dictionary of Discriminated Synonyms ........................................... 1

Appendix: List of Authors Quoted ........................................... 887
WEBSTER'S NEW DICTIONARY OF SYNONYMS is newly edited and entirely reset but based upon Webster's Dictionary of Synonyms, which rapidly became a favorite book among readers and writers who wish to understand, appreciate, and make nice discriminations in English words that are similar in meaning. The earlier book filled a widespread need for a work devoted to synonymy with accessory material in the form of word lists of various kinds. The editors of this new and revised edition have rewritten and sharpened the discriminations, have increased the number of articles, and have more than doubled the number of authors quoted. Particular attention has been given to updating the quotations so that they accurately reflect today's English.

The core of this book is the discriminating articles. It is not its purpose to assemble mere word-finding lists for consultants with but a vague notion of the sort of word they seek, but rather to provide them with the means of making clear comparisons between words of a common denotation and to enable them to distinguish the differences in implications, connotations, and applications among such words and to choose for their purposes the precisely suitable words. (Compare the discussion of Roget's aims beginning on page 14a following.) In addition to the central core of discriminations this book provides auxiliary information of three types, in the form of analogous words, antonyms, and contrasted words. These three types are explained on pages 26a–31a.

Every word discussed in an article of synonymy is entered in its own alphabetical place and is followed by a list of its synonyms, with a reference (by means of an asterisk or a direction introduced by "see") to the entry where the discussion of these listed words is to be found. The words listed as analogous and those listed as contrasted are always displayed in groups, each group having a clear reference (asterisk or "see") to the term under which an article of synonymy is to be found.

The writing of the articles has been done chiefly by two associate editors of the Merriam-Webster editorial staff: Dr. Philip H. Goepp and Dr. Maire Weir Kay. Their principal assistants were Miss Ervina E. Foss, in charge of cross-referencing, and Mr. E. Ward Gilman, in charge of proofreading, both assistant editors. Mrs. Betty Meltzer was the principal editorial assistant. Some of the articles on scientific terms were written by Mr. Hubert P. Kelsey, associate editor. All of these editors took part in the editing of Webster's Third New International Dictionary. The historical survey and the introductory analysis of the problems and issues in the field of English synonymy are largely the work of the late Rose F. Egan, sometime assistant editor, and have been taken over from the first edition with only minor changes. To her clear analysis and understanding this book still owes much of its quality although all of her discriminations have been revised in varying degrees.

PHILIP B. GOVE
Editor in Chief
INTRODUCTORY MATTER

SURVEY OF THE HISTORY OF ENGLISH SYNONYMY

Consultation of a work on synonyms is made easier if the consultant has a reasonable background of the theory and of the technique that have developed since the first English synonymy was published. The following essay [first published in 1942] is, so far as we know, the first attempt to survey broadly the course of that development from its beginnings to the present. It is not intended to be exhaustive. Some good books have been published which have not been specifically discussed because they have played no essential part in this development or have advanced no new ideas which, by challenging attention or debate, have led to further clarification of the problems involved. The purpose of this article has been primarily not to praise or to denounce but to lead up to the exposition of principles which have dominated the writing of this book. These principles, we believe, are founded upon the practice of those who have seen and known clearly what could be accomplished by a book of synonyms: there are others who disagree, but we have tried to present their case fairly.

It was not until the second half of the eighteenth century that the first book on synonyms appeared in English. The Rev. John Trusler (1735–1820) was its author, The Difference between Words Esteemed Synonymous its title, and 1766 its date. Its source is definitely established. In 1718, the Abbé Gabriel Girard (1677–1748) had published in France La Justesse de la langue francoise ou les Différentes significations des mots qui passent pour être synonymes, a work which had great vogue not only in France but also abroad, especially in England. That Trusler's book was based upon it is evidenced not only by the likeness of the titles but also (in the first edition) by an English version of Girard's preface and by the admission in the author's preface that he had translated as much of the articles as was in keeping with the peculiar genius of the English language. The second edition of 1783, however, increases the divergence between the two books: the prefaces are consolidated and the result is given as the work of the author, although many passages from Girard are included without being quoted. There are, too, many new articles dealing with peculiarly British terms, such as those which concern the church and daily life in England; but these, although they represent an enrichment of vocabulary, add little to the originality of the work, which still remains an imitation. A clear-cut distinction which sharply reveals the meanings of synonymous French terms often becomes a forced distinction when applied to English. In fact, Trusler never knew whether it was his aim to point out the “delicate differences between words reputed synonymous” or to give the particular idea of each word “which constitutes its proper and particular character.” He claims both aims as one, not realizing that often they are divergent.

The next significant work was the British Synonymy of Hester Lynch Piozzi (1741–1821), better known as Mrs. Thrale, the close friend of Dr. Johnson. It first appeared in 1794 and was succeeded by at least two editions, the best known of which was published in Paris in 1804. That it was immediately popular is evident from the testimony of its 1804 editors, who asserted its merits on the ground of “the successive editions it has passed through being the best proof of the estimation in which it is held.” That it was not written without a knowledge of Girard's work we know on the authority of these same editors.

The editors imply, however, that Mrs. Piozzi's work is something better than had yet been given to the public. “But it was only in the year 1794,” they continue, in a tone that implies contempt for the “imitation,” “that Mrs. PIOZZI (formerly Mrs. THRALE) so well known in the literary world for her different publications, and her intimacy with the learned Dr. Johnson, brought out the work we have now the pleasure of presenting to our Readers, and which is totally grounded on the structure of the English language.” There is no reason to suppose, however, that she depended much on the influence of Dr. Johnson, who had died in 1784.

Mrs. Piozzi's book reveals an independence of spirit and a feminine disregard of advice. It is, in fact, never profound: it is full of errors or dubious assertions, and it is often absurdly naive. More than this, it frequently takes issue with Dr. Johnson or, in a sprightly manner, casts doubt on his judgments. There

---

1 Mrs. Piozzi in her own preface (p. vii) mentions Girard and says, “I should be too happy, could I imitate his delicacy of discrimination, and felicity of expression.”
Introduction

is the story of the milliner's apprentice who saved her chicken bones to feed a horse. Johnson contended that such an action showed that she was ignorant, but Mrs. Piozzi maintained that it proved her senseless. "I thought her an idiot [sic]" was, for her, the last word on the matter.

Great as was her respect for Dr. Johnson in his own field, she believed that she also had her field and that it was incumbent on her to remain within the limits she had set for herself. Her object is very clear. Like Girard and Trusler, she was distinguishing not synonyms (that is, words identical in meaning) but words so similar in meaning as to be "apparently synonymous." The subtitle of her book announces her aim and reveals a further limitation of purpose: "An attempt at regulating the choice of words in familiar conversation." Her preface to the 1794 edition develops these ideas:

If then to the selection of words in conversation and elegant colloquial language a book may give assistance, the Author . . . modestly offers her's; persuaded that, while men teach to write with propriety, a woman may at worst be qualified—through long practice—to direct the choice of phrases in familiar talk.

Her book, she modestly claimed, is "intended chiefly for a parlour window" and is "unworthy of a place upon a library shelf," but it may be of help to others "till a more complicated and valuable piece of workmanship be found to further their research." She wished in particular to help those who desired to converse elegantly and to save foreigners from ridiculous mistakes in speech. "If I can in the course of this little work dispel a doubt, or clear up a difficulty to foreigners . . . I shall have an honour to boast."

For this reason she could not see that her method of discrimination had much in common with that of the lexicographer and the logician. Theirs was to define: hers was to indicate propriety in the use of words. It was not her intent to establish differences in meaning but to indicate the fitness of words for use, often depending on "the place in which they should stand" but sometimes depending on their relative fineness, strength, force, or the like. She makes a distinction between the methods of the definer and the methods of the synonymist by giving, first, two definitions of the word fondness, one from "an eminent logician" and one from Dr. Johnson, and, secondly, by an ideal synonymy in which she reveals the same word's meaning by showing it in use along with similar words. This was not invariably her method, but it illustrates what in the main she was trying to achieve.

... I have before me the definition of fondness, given into my hands many years ago by a most eminent logician. . . .

"Fondness," says the Definer, "is the hasty and injudicious determination of the will towards promoting the present gratification of some particular object."

"Fondness," said Dr. Johnson, "is rather the hasty and injudicious attribution of excellence, somewhat beyond the power of attainment, to the object of our affection."

Both these definitions may possibly be included in fondness; my own idea of the whole may be found in the following example:

Amintor and Aspasia are models of true love: 'tis now seven years since their mutual passion was sanctified by marriage; and so little is the lady's affection diminished, that she sate up nine nights successively last winter by her husband's bedside, when he had on him a malignant fever that frightened relations, friends, servants, all away. Nor can any one allege that her tenderness is ill repaid, while we see him gaze upon her features with that fondness which is capable of creating charms for itself to admire, and listen to her talk with a fervour of admiration scarce due to the most brilliant genius.

For the rest, 'tis my opinion that men love for the most part with warmer passion than women do—at least than English women, and with more transitory fondness mingled with that passion. . . .

It was in her simpler versions of this method that she developed a formula that has been followed by many of her successors in the discriminated synonymy—not always felicitously. We will have opportunity to return to this method later when it becomes an object of attack and will call it for the sake of convenience the Piozzi method. At present let examples of her usage suffice:

TO ABANDON, FORSAKE, RELINQUISH, GIVE UP, DESERT, QUIT, LEAVE ... though at first sight apparently synonymous, conversing does certainly better shew the peculiar approbation, than books, however learned; for . . . familiar talk tells us in half an hour—That a man forsakes his mistress, abandons all hope of regaining her lost esteem, relinquishes his pretensions in favour of another. . . .

we say a lad of an active and diligent spirit, or else of an assiduous temper, or sedulous disposition. . . . we say that reports are confirmed, treaties ratified, and affairs settled.

a hard question puzzles a man, and a variety of choice perplexes him: one is confounded by a loud and sudden dissonance of sounds or voices in a still night; embarrassed by a weight of clothes or valuables, if making escape from fire, thieves, or pursuit.

The gentleman who discharges a gaming debt in preference to that of a tradesman, apparently prefers honour to another virtue, justice. . . .
Introduction

It seems a fair statement of her aim to say that she was attempting to indicate and establish idiomatic English. However, in determining such English, she had only two tests to apply: the drawing-room usage of her time and her own instinct. To literary use in general she was indifferent. Therefore her judgments are nearly always subjective and sometimes arbitrary. Moreover, she discounted the great help that discrimination of meanings is to the synonymist. "We must not meantime retard our own progress," she wrote in her preface, "with studied definitions of every quality coming under consideration...although the final cause of definition is to fix the true and adequate meaning of words or terms, without knowledge of which we stir not a step in logic; yet here we must not suffer ourselves to be so detained, as synonymy has more to do with elegance than truth..."

Her judgments are often limited or partial, for they represent her personal feelings or the predilections of her age. Yet, within those limits, she frequently hit upon an exact meaning of a word in a particular sense and gave it life and color. What she seldom saw was that a word might have more meanings than the one which was illustrated (as honor in her example of the tradesman) or that a good but narrow instance of use might be taken as idiomatic by her readers (as when by implication puzzle suggests a question or problem needing determination and perplex a variety of choices). The danger of her work is not in the falsity of the example, for it is usually true or just, but in its inadequacy in suggesting other instances of good use.

Yet in her refusal to accept her age's theory of definition and in her approach to a concept of good usage we must recognize an independent spirit. The time was not ripe for a fully developed conception of the differences between logic and lexicography, yet she was somewhat nearer the present conception than some later and cleverer persons, and she had at least a feeling of rightness in the use of language that suggested, even if it did not consciously approach, the later theory of good usage as a test of such rightness. Besides, her book has an engaging quality, often lacking in books of this character, which is not necessarily a sign of the levity with which critics have charged this book, but rather of a spirited challenge to the ideals of a hidebound age.

Mrs. Piozzi's book was followed by William Perry's Synonymous, Etymological, and Pronouncing English Dictionary, published in 1805. On its title page and in its preface the editor explicitly offers his work as derived from The Dictionary of Samuel Johnson. Perry was the compiler of the better known Royal Standard English Dictionary brought out in England in 1775 and in America in 1788.

The Synonymous Dictionary, as we will call the 1805 book, evidently did not achieve the fame or popularity of the Royal Standard. Chauncey Goodrich, Noah Webster's son-in-law, referred to it in 1847 in his preface to the royal octavo volume of Webster as "entirely out of print." There is no evidence to show that it passed beyond the first edition. On its title page it is described as "an attempt to Synonymise his [Johnson's] Folio Dictionary of the English Language." In its preface Perry claims that it contains "the only synonymous vocabulary ever offered to the public" and that "To the philological, critical, and other interesting observations of the above learned author [Dr. Johnson], we have superadded two exclusive advantages to our publication; the one—as a synonymous, the other—as a pronouncing nomenclature. The former is new and unique..."

The work, he informs us, was begun in 1797, three years, therefore, after the publication of the first edition of Mrs. Piozzi's British Synonymy. Yet there is no indication of knowledge of that work or of the work of Girard; in fact, Perry recognized no predecessor save Johnson. From Johnson, by explicit credit, he extracted his vocabulary and his explanations of meanings. Not so openly, however, did he extract the synonyms themselves: for example, his entry good is followed by Johnson's definition of sense 1, but the synonyms are taken from all of Johnson's succeeding twenty-nine senses. Nor does he provide many citations, and these are chiefly in entries at the end of the book; elsewhere, at the end of an entry or in parentheses, he cites the authors Johnson quoted but not the passages.

In addition he adopted an original method of presenting his material. There were two types of entries, one in lowercase and one in capitals. The latter, which he called "radicals," were followed by an exhaustive list; the former were succeeded by a much shorter list, but one word was printed in small capitals to indicate it was the radical. Thus "marches," a lowercase entry, has "borders, limits, confines, BOUNDARIES" as its synonyms: "BOUNDARY," an entry in capitals, has a much longer list which includes "limit, bound, bourn, term, mere, but, abuttal, border, barrier, marches, confines, precint, line of demarcation, utmost reach or verge of a territory; a landmark, a mere-stone." If, then, one wished all the synonyms of a lowercase entry such as marches or abbreviation, one must turn to BOUNDARY or ABRIDGMENT, the word entered as the radical.

There are two things to notice here that are important. Perry was not merely greatly extending the traditional definition of synonym (as one of two or more words of identical meaning or of apparently identical meaning) and broadening it to include a group of words which have resemblances in meaning, but was doing so in what seems to be a misunderstanding of Dr. Johnson's purposes in adding such words to his definitions and in ignorance of what he supplied as a corrective. The fact
The work is, as a whole, uneven, but a few articles in it are not only better than any others written up to this [i.e., the definition]."

I cannot hope to satisfy those, who are perhaps not inclined to be pleased, since I have not always been able to satisfy myself. To interpret a language by itself is very difficult; many words cannot be explained by synonyms, because the idea signified by them has not more than one appellation; nor by paraphrase, because simple ideas cannot be described.

That was the difficulty. Synonyms would not perfectly satisfy the need either when the word defined had many meanings or when the word defining had more significations than the one intended, for in either case one must be too broad and the other too narrow. Then, too, "simple ideas" (really those involved in simple words such as be, do, act) were beyond definition, as Johnson saw it.

The rigour of interpretative lexicography requires that the explanation, and the word explained, should be always reciprocal; this I have always endeavoured but could not always attain. Words are seldom exactly synonymous; a new term was not introduced, but because the former was thought inadequate: names, therefore, have often many ideas, but few ideas have many names. It was then necessary to use the proximate word, for the deficiency of single terms can very seldom be supplied by circumlocution.

So Johnson wrote and so Perry quotes in his preface. But instead of continuing Johnson's statement to its end, Perry broke off with "circumlocution," thereby giving the reader some reason to infer that Johnson thought the method of definition by synonym preferable to that of definition by paraphrase. He had failed to notice or possibly had deliberately ignored that this was not in any sense Johnson's meaning, that both methods were faulty, but that there was a remedy for the imperfections of each. Johnson's addition to this last sentence, "nor is the inconvenience great of such mutilated interpretations, because the sense may easily be collected entire from the examples," makes that point clear. Perry may have been obtuse rather than disingenuous when, for the most part, he omits the examples (citations) of Johnson and enters synonyms, which are not, in Johnson's language, "exactly synonymous" but only "proximate words." But he may have known what Dr. Johnson meant, though his explanation is by no means clear:

...we by no means contend, that the whole of the explanations collected under such initial words as...we call RADICALS, are all strictly synonymous; neither, on the other hand, can we agree with those who roundly assert, that there are not two words in the whole English language of precisely the same signification; but this we take upon us to say, that we have no less than Dr. Johnson's authority for their selection and disposition as explanatory of their meaning... .

Dr. Johnson's example, great as it was its authority and prestige at that time, was an unstable prop when his statements were misunderstood. Perry perhaps indirectly rendered a service by raising the issue as to whether the term "synonym" needed redefinition, since it was being broadened in its extension: he may also have done a service in showing to others the values implicit in word-finding lists. But he did not see that he had raised those issues, and what purports to be a dictionary succeeds chiefly in being a word finder.

Between 1805 and 1852 (the latter the date of publication of Roget's Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases) several works on synonyms appeared. Some were of the word-finding list type, and among these there was nothing of particular importance. On the other hand, there were as many as five works discriminating synonyms of which at least four stand out for one reason or another: English Synonymes Discriminated by William Taylor (1813), English Synonymes Explained by George Crabb (1816), English Synonyms Classified and Explained by George F. Graham (1846), and A Selection of English Synonyms by Miss Elizabeth Jane Whately (1851). Both Crabb's and Whately's books are still influential and have been reprinted in recent years.

William Taylor (1765–1836), the author of the first of these books, is better known as the translator of Burger's Lenore, Lessing's Nathan the Wise, and Goethe's Iphigenia in Tauris and as one of the leading promoters of knowledge of contemporary German literature during the romantic era. His English Synonymes Discriminated is the result of his studies in German, French, Italian, and other languages and of his conviction that no English work the equal of certain foreign treatises on synonyms had as yet been written. The work is, as a whole, uneven, but a few articles in it are not only better than any others written up to that time but the equal of any that were to be written for over ninety years. A favorite theory of his was that if one is thoroughly grounded in the original meaning of a term, one "can never be at a loss how to employ it in metaphor." Consequently, etymologies became for him an important means of showing this original meaning. They formed not an invariable part of his discrimination but a very useful part when they were needed. Usually, also, he knew when his etymology was grounded on fact and when it was merely hypothetical. His method at its best is exemplified in the article covering austere, severe, and rigid, which we give here in abridged form:
Austerity (says Blair²) relates to the manner of living: severity, of thinking, rigour, of punishing. To austerity is opposed effeminacy: to severity, relaxation: to rigour, clemency. A hermit is austere in his life; a casuist, severe in his decision; a judge, rigorous in his sentence.

In this discrimination there is little exactness. Austerity is applied not only to habit, but to doctrine, and to infliction. Solitary confinement is a severe form of life, and a severe punishment. Rigid observances, rigid opinions, are often spoken of than rigid sentences.

A hermit is austere, who lives harshly; is severe who lives solitarily; is rigid who lives unwaveringly. A casuist is austere who commands mortification, severe, who forbids conviviality, rigid, whose exactations are unqualified. A judge is austere, who punishes slight transgressions; severe, who punishes to the utmost; rigid, who punishes without respect of persons and circumstances.

Why this? Austerity is an idea of the palate; it means crabbedness.... These modes of life which are painful to the moral taste, are called austere.... Austerity is opposed to suavity.

Severity is not traced back to the sensible idea in which the word originates. Se and sicer, to bend down apart, are perhaps the component ideas. The lying prostrate apart is not only characteristic of the praying anchoret, and of public penance, but of cruel infliction: and to all these cases severity is accordingly applied...

To severity is opposed remissness.

Rigour is stiffness: rigid means frozen: stiff with cold.... To rigour is opposed pliancy.

Religious competition renders sects austere, priests severe, and establishments rigid.

With the exception of severe (the ultimate origin of which is still doubtful) the words, in the main, conform to their etymology. Austere does originally mean something like "bitter-tasting" and rigid means "stiff," though not necessarily "stiff with cold"; also, something that is austere is not sweet or suave, and something that is rigid is not pliant or flexible. He has caught the essential difference here, and the proper application follows. If Taylor had been able to maintain this method and the penetration it involved, he might have changed the course of synonymizing. But three years later English Synonymes Explained, by George Crabb (1778–1851), appeared and caught the public favor. For thirty-seven years Taylor's book remained unprinted: then between 1850 and 1876 there were three new editions. For a few years it attracted some attention and then disappeared from favor.

Crabb's book, while still highly regarded by some, meets much adverse criticism from others. In his own day it was thought of generally as the best work available, although Crabb complicated matters somewhat by frequent revisions which changed its character. In his introduction to the first edition he complained of the lack of a work on English synonymms in which the subject is treated "in a scientifick manner adequate to its importance." Englishmen though great in literature and philology had in this field fallen short of the French and Germans, who "have had several considerable works on the subject." He did not wish "to depreciate the labours of those who have preceded" him; rather he claimed to "have profited by every thing which has been written in any language upon the subject; and although I always pursued my own train of thought, yet whenever I met with any thing deserving of notice, I adopted it, and referred it to the author in a note."

Crabb's English Synonymes Explained is both the most laborious and the most ambitious work of its kind. In spirit and objective it is a far remove from Mrs. Piozzi's British Synonymy, few as are the years which intervened between their publication. For Mrs. Piozzi represented the old temper where sprightliness, elegance, and ease were paramount and Crabb the new temper in which the world had grown solemn and serious under the influence of many currents, such as the pressure of momentous events, the influence of Continental (especially German) thinkers, and the spread of all the new ideas spoken of collectively as romanticism. When the best philosophers and philosophic poets of the age were seeking to answer the questions what is beauty, what is poetry, what is art, what is genius and were discriminating the beautiful and the sublime, the naïve and the sentimental, imagination and fancy, the ugly and the grotesque, what synonymist could in conscience say that "synonymy has more to do with elegance than truth"?

Crabb was undoubtedly concerned with truth rather than elegance. He was stimulated by the thinking of his age and, like many persons of his time, responded with joy to the new philosophy that deepened and enriched the concepts of beauty, poetry, and truth. Although he was in no sense a philosopher, he had a smattering of philosophical knowledge, a small philosophical vocabulary, and a deep love of philosophical distinctions. He was also interested in philology as it was understood in his time. In the study of synonymms he found satisfaction of all these interests, all the more so since he had come to regard synonymms not as words of the same meaning but as "closely allied" words between which there are "nice shades of distinction." Discrimination not only gave him profound intellectual satisfaction: it also afforded him great opportunities. In his introduction he wrote:

My first object certainly has been to assist the philological inquirer in ascertaining the force and comprehension of the English language; yet I should have thought my work but half completed had I made it a ² Hugh Blair, rhetorician, 1718–1800.

gentleman. which the words named or to which they were applied was characteristically infixed. He could not, for un-anticipated objections he wrote, “a writer, whose business it was to mark the nice shades of distinction between words closely allied, could not do justice to his subject without entering into all the relations of society, and showing, from the acknowledged sense of many moral and religious terms, what has been the general sense of mankind on many of the most important questions which have agitated the world.”

It is not easy to find in Crabb proofs that he was discriminating historical meanings (the interpretation that may be given to his “acknowledged sense”), but one can readily discover evidence that often he was supporting an older conception he favored rather than a new conception he heartily disliked. A good example of this is found in his discrimination of SOUL and MIND.

There are minute philosophers, who. . . deny that we possess any thing more than what this poor composition of flesh and blood can give us; and yet, methinks, sound philosophy would teach us that we ought to prove the truth of one position, before we assert the falsehood of its opposite; and consequently that if we deny that we have any thing but what is material in us, we ought first to prove that the material is suficient to produce the reasoning faculty of man. . . . [He continued this line of argument through several sentences.]
But not to lose sight of the distinction drawn between the words soul and mind, I simply wish to show that the vulgar and the philosophical use of these terms altogether accord, and are both founded on the true nature of things.

Poets and philosophers speak of the soul in the same strain, as the active and living principle.3

Arguments of this character were mostly occasional with Crabb, but the method of discriminating things which the words named or to which they were applied was characteristically infixed. He could not, for instance, mark the distinctions between finical and foppish but between a finical gentleman and a foppish gentleman.

A finical gentleman clips his words and screws his body into as small a compass as possible to give himself the air of a delicate person. . . : a foppish gentleman seeks by extravagance in the cut of his clothes, and by the tawdriness in their ornaments, to render himself distinguished for finery.

He could not discriminate beautiful, fine, handsome without determining what is the beautiful, the fine, the handsome.

The beautiful is determined by fixed rules; it admits of no excess or defect; it comprehends regularity, proportion, and a due distribution of colour, and every particular which can engage the attention: the fine must be coupled with grandeur, majesty, and strength of figure; it is incompatible with that which is small;
a little woman can never be fine: the handsome is a general assemblage of what is agreeable; it is marked by no particular characteristic, but the absence of all deformity. . . .

Even simple words were so discriminated; each one had an abstract reference which was the test of its right use no matter how little cultivated writers and speakers respected that test.

The gift is an act of generosity or condescension; it contributes to the benefit of the receiver: the present is an act of kindness, courtesy, or respect; it contributes to the pleasure of the receiver.

What we abhor is repugnant to our moral feelings; what we detest contradicts our moral principle; what we abominate does equal violence to our religious and moral sentiments. . . . Inhumanity and cruelty are objects of abhorrence; crimes and injustice of detestation; impiety and profanity of abomination. . . .

Crabb’s habitual attitude to words as names of things, or for what he might have called “true concepts of things,” vitiates his entire work. It has made it of negligible value in our time when lexicography has become an independent science with clearly defined objectives and functions, the chief of which is to respect the meanings men have agreed to give words rather than the notions individuals have concerning the things named or described by those words. His concepts, however interesting, are still subjective and have not been tested to any extent by actual written or spoken language. There are many citations in his work, but the sensitive reader often finds little relevancy between the word as used there and the sense defined. For example, in illustrating the meaning of the “soul” as “the active and living principle” he cites Thomson:

“In bashful coyness or in maiden pride,
The soft return conceal’d, save when it stole
In side-long glances from her downcast eyes,
Or from her swelling soul in stifled sighs”

3 This paragraph did not appear in the first edition.
Introduction

But here soul as cited means simply and narrowly the rising emotions and not "the active and living principle."

His synonymies are, on the whole, hard reading because confused and inconsistent. As a rule they attempt too much yet do not fully apprehend the greatness of the task and leave the reader without any clear or definite impression or without any remembered distinctions. Also, they excite rebellion in a reader who can give any number of citations to show that Crabb's dogmatic assertions are not justified by usage. Despite these fundamental defects which, with the passage of time and changes in the basic conceptions, have come to be more and more striking, Crabb deserves recognition for some additions to the art of synonymizing. Even these, however, may not be entirely his contributions: a bit here and a bit there may have been done by others. Taylor, for example, gave etymologies when they served his purpose. Moreover, after Crabb the work of perfecting often remained to be done and many others are responsible for deeper insight into the possibilities of the method or the extent to which each possibility is serviceable. The chief contributions are three:

1. The addition of an etymology to the article. Much more, however, needed to be known before certain words could be correctly etymologized and before they could be related to the sense to be defined. In some cases Crabb's etymologies are "learned" additions to the article, in no way reflecting the words' semantic development.

2. The addition of a statement (usually introductory) as to how far the words are equivalent in meaning. There was an approach to this in the work of Mrs. Piozzi, but it was hardly of the same character. Crabb's method was not only clearer and firmer but was much less subject to idiosyncrasies. Since this was his most enduring contribution, a few examples may be given to illustrate his method.

`INGENUITY, WIT. . . . Both these terms imply acuteness of understanding, and differ mostly in the mode of displaying themselves. . . .

TO DISPARAGE, DETRACT, TRADUCE, DEPRECIATE, DEGRADE, DECRY. . . . The idea of lowering the value of an object is common to all these words, which differ in the circumstances and object of the action. . . .

DISCERNMENT, PENETRATION, DISCRIMINATION, JUDGMENT. . . . The first three of these terms do not express different powers, but different modes of the same power; namely the power of seeing intellectually, or exerting the intellectual sight. . . .`

In clearness of statement, in pointedness, in "hitting the nail on the head" nearly all of these introductions leave something to be desired. Nevertheless, they are historically important because they represent the first tentative formulation of what has proved to be an important and essential part of the discriminated synonymy at its best.

3. In the arrangement of his word lists Crabb claims to have moved from the most comprehensive to the less comprehensive. In such articles as those discussing form, ceremony, rite, observance; and short, brief, concise, succinct, summary the principle is clear, but in others, such as those for apparel, attire, array; and belief, credit, trust, faith; and execute, fulfill, perform, the procedure is not perfectly clear. In general, however, he seems to have had a plan and to have stuck to it when he could.

There are other devices used by Crabb which in later and defter hands proved valuable, but these three are the ones on which he has exerted his powers and with which he had greatest success. That the success was not complete is not entirely his fault. The English language is not a symmetrical language: it was never intended to be prodded into shape by the pen of the lexicographer or of the synonymist. No method is uniformly successful: every method must achieve a degree of fluidity before it can be turned to use. What was eminently true in Crabb's case is still eminently true, but some writers of today have learned to bow to necessity, a lesson which many early synonymists could not learn easily or gracefully.

His book continued to be held in high regard for many decades. In fact, a centennial edition in honor of the first (1816) was published in 1917 in the United States. Its editors' names are not given, but it contains an eloquent introduction by John H. Finley, then commissioner of education in New York state, which ends with the sentence: "Long life to Crabb and to that for which his name is as a synonym!"

By this time—that is, particularly between the first edition of Crabb's work and the first edition of Whatley's book—keen interest was being displayed in the use of synonyms in education. Several texts suitable for use in the schools were prepared. Not necessarily the best of these but the most thoughtful and suggestive was English Synonymes Classified and Explained with Practical Exercises Designed for School and Private Tuition by George F. Graham. The emphasis in the book is entirely upon discrimination. Since there is no attempt to supply as many synonyms as possible and every effort to make differences clear, two words only are given in each article. Although this has the effect of making the book seem purely pedagogical, it admits employment of a method of classification which would break down if more words were to be added. It is, therefore, only by courtesy that Graham's book can be called a synonymy.

The study of synonyms ought, according to Graham, to begin in the elementary schools. In the hope of making this possible, he divides all pairs of synonyms into five classes marking the relationships of these words. He calls his classes General and Specific, Active and Passive, Intensity, Positive and Negative, and Miscellaneous. The classification is obviously not clean-cut and the classes are not necessarily mutually exclusive. As illustrations of General and Specific relationships he compares answer and reply, bravery and courage; as instances of Active and Passive relationships he discriminates burden and load, and actual and real; and as examples of Intensity in relationships he considers agony and anguish, and intention and purpose.

It is needless to say that a rigid classification begets a rigid method of discrimination. Sometimes, it serves to bring out a real distinction between the words, but more often it serves to confuse them by bending them to suit a set purpose. It is the best example we have had so far of the futility of applying a rigid method to the direct study of anything so nonrigid and living as a language.

Crabb's supremacy as a synonymist seems not to have been seriously threatened by a slight book which appeared in 1851, won general praise, and has been listed in practically every bibliography since that time. This book, usually called "Whately's book on synonyms," has never, so far as we know, been properly esteemed for its own values, nor has its true author ever been adequately recognized. Credit for its authorship is often given to the famous logician Richard Whately (1877–1863), Anglican archbishop of Dublin; rightly, it belongs to his daughter, Elizabeth Jane Whately. A modern but undated edition (before 1928) from the Boston house of Lothrop, Lee, and Shepard confuses both details of title and authorship by calling it on the title page "English Synonyms Discriminated, by Richard Whately, D.D." It has two prefaces, one the editor's preface signed, in the characteristic fashion of Anglican bishops, "Richard Dublin"; the other the preface by the author, which is unsigned.

The editor's preface is very short and obscure but pregnant with meaning. The archbishop took occasion to say that "this little work has been carefully revised by me, throughout" and that though "far from presuming to call it perfect, it is, I am confident, very much the best that has appeared on the subject." Some of its readers will acknowledge its value in the "cultivation of correctness and precision in our expressions." There will be those, however, who are so blinded by their adoption of "the metaphysical theory of ideas" that they will regard words as of little importance in themselves, and the ideas named as of great significance. There are others, such as himself, who regard words as an indispensable instrument of thought, in all cases, where a process of reasoning takes place." Words are the symbols which men use in discourse. For the most part they do not name real things, for abstracts, such as the one called "beauty," or the generalized notion, such as the one called "tree," exist nowhere except in the mind and have not reality. Only in particular things can beauty be found: only particular objects which are classed together under the name "tree" exist. Therefore, if words are to serve as convenient instruments of discourse, they must often be regarded as signs not of real things but of notions of things and must have a fixed and generally accepted content. Otherwise human minds could never come together in discourse. Moreover, actual discourse is often futile because words are loosely or incorrectly used.

The preface by the author, though it avoids all references to philosophy, is in general based on the same premises. The author, as has been said, is the archbishop's daughter, and the proper title of the book is A Selection of Synonyms. To her, as well as to her father, words are, for the most part, the names for human ideas or concepts of things. There may be words which name approximately the same thing but which, because of differences in human points of view, are distinguishable by slight differences in meaning. Synonyms, or as she preferred to call them "pseudo-synonyms," have "sufficient resemblance of meaning to make them liable to be confounded together. And it is in the number and variety of these that... the richness of a language consists. To have two or more words with exactly the same sense, is no proof of copiousness, but simply an inconvenience." A language, in her estimation, should have no more words than it needs, just as a house should have no more chairs or tables than required for convenience.

Differences in meaning she found even in words which denote exactly the same object, act, process, quality, emotion, and the like. Such words often have different connotations. "Swine's flesh," she says, is prohibited by the Mosaic Law, for "it is plain that it presents to the mind a gross idea, which pork does not." Some words may denote the same thing but their different origins or their varying historical associations give them a distinct character which better fits one than the other for use in certain contexts. In polite phrases such as "May I take the liberty?" the Latin derivative liberty is more suitable than the Saxon freedom. A heathen or an atheist may be called just but not righteous because Biblical use of the latter word has narrowed its application. Much more acute is her observation that two words may name the same thing but differ because they regard that thing from opposite points of view. She instances inference and proof.

Whoever justly infers, proves; and whoever proves, infers; but the word 'inference' leads the mind from the premises which have been assumed, to the conclusion which follows from them: while the word 'proof' follows a reverse process, and leads the mind from the conclusion to the premises.

In a footnote she refers to Aristotle's admirable parallel between anger and hatred, but after summing up his distinctions, she adds significantly:

His [Aristotle's] example...has not been followed in this work...because, though the two passions may often be confounded together, and mistaken one for the other, the two words are not liable to be mistaken; and it is with words that we have now to do.

There, one is forced to comment, is the lexicographer speaking and not the would-be philosopher who would use definition or discrimination of words as an instrument for the expression of his own ideas.

Here and there in her preface and in her synonymies, without evident plan or intention, Miss Whately advanced ideas which when brought together indicate a conception of the synonymist's function and equipment far beyond any yet presented. Not only was she, in effect if not by design, distinguishing lexicography from philosophy but she was defining and enriching the concept of the ideal synonym and the ideal synonymist. And she did so by flying in the face of all Crabb's admirers and imitators.

Although she realized the importance per se of the "history of the derivation of words," she omitted etymologies "which are generally appended to every group of synonyms as an almost essential part of it." She questioned the value of "this procedure" because it tends "to confuse the subject it was intended to clear," for "in inquiring into the actual and present meaning of a word, the consideration of what it originally meant may frequently tend to lead us astray." Nevertheless, she made good use of her knowledge of etymology when it helped in the discrimination of words.

'Contentment' may be classed among those words in the English language which adhere strictly to their etymology. Its root was undoubtedly the verb 'to contain,' and the substantive and its adjective have not departed from this meaning. A contented person does not indulge in fruitless wishes for what is beyond his reach; his desires are limited by what he possesses.

'Satisfaction' implies more: this word has likewise retained the signification of its root, and means that we have obtained all we want; not that our desires are limited, but that they have been gratified. A poor and needy man may be 'contented,' but he cannot feel 'satisfaction' with his condition.

Her illustrations are many and reveal wide reading, a broad linguistic background, and a deep interest in developments of meaning, in differences in meaning between words of the same origin in different languages (e.g., between the English defend and the French défendre which means not only to defend but also to forbid), and in English words which have "corresponding origins" yet are "widely different in their significations," such as substance (printed as substantia in her book), understanding, and hypostasis. She was interested also in the notions which gave names to things, as "Heaven"...conveyed with it the idea of something heaved or lifted up..."Coelum"...referred to something hollowed out or vaulted."

All these variations of meaning...are valuable and curious; but though they may occasionally help us, they must not be allowed to influence our decisions with respect to the significations of words. Our question is, not what ought to be, or formerly was, the meaning of a word, but what it now is; nor can we be completely guided by quotations from Shakespeare or Milton, or even from Addison or Johnson. Language has undergone such changes, even within the last sixty or seventy years, that many words at that time considered pure, are now obsolete; while others...formerly slang, are now used by our best writers...The standard we shall refer to in the present work, is the sense in which a word is used by the purest writers and most correct speakers of our own days.

Although Miss Whately cannot be said to be the first to discriminate meanings of synonyms, she was, so far as we know, the first in England to make that the avowed aim of a book of synonyms and to realize clearly the distinction between the meaning of a word and the thing or idea for which it stood.

Unfortunately, Miss Whately was not so successful in finding a method of synonymizing as she was in expounding its principles. She had, in theory, thrown off the yoke of Crabb, but in practice she occasionally submitted to it. Nor had she, any more than Crabb, been able to discard completely or to transform to her own use what has been called the Piozzi method of illustration. Some of the difficulty arises from her use of other writers and from the reviser (her father) who, though sympathetic in principle, did not always agree with the exposition in detail and made many heavy-handed changes. But these sources of difficulty are superficial: the real but unassignable reason probably has its roots in something that lies in temper and lack of experience. Yet, in spite of everything, she made several significant advances not only in the theory but in the art of synonymizing. Summed up, they are:

1. The principle that knowledge of meanings and all the background that such knowledge implies (derivations, historical development of senses, usage of purest writers and speakers, especially of one's own period, the associations that affect connotations, etc.) are indispensable elements of the synonymist's equipment, to be used or discarded as the occasion warrants.

2. The principle that the synonymist goes beyond the definer, in a difference of purpose. It is the function of the one who would define a word to estimate truly the meanings men have agreed should be given to it: it is the function of the synonymist to point out the differences between words with meanings so nearly alike.
that he not only gives help in their correct use but promotes precision of expression so necessary to the thinker and writer.

3. A clearer conception of the ways in which synonyms differ:

(a) Because of differences in implications.

"Both obstinacy and stubbornness imply an excessive and vicious perseverance in pursuing our own judgment in opposition to that of others; but to be obstinate implies the doing what we ourselves chose. To be stubborn denotes rather, not to do what others advise or desire." (Quoted from Sir James Mackintosh.)

A trifling matter is one merely of small importance: a trivial matter is a small matter made too much of. The word 'trivial' implies contempt, which 'trifling' does not. By saying, 'He never neglects a trifling matter,' we are rather supposed to praise; but in blaming a person for frivolity, we often say, 'He is always engrossed with trivial concerns.'

(b) Because of differences in applications.

"Obstinacy is generally applied to the superior; stubbornness to the inferior...Obstinacy refers more to outward acts, and stubbornness to disposition." (Quoted from Sir James Mackintosh.)

Strictly speaking, 'expense' should be applied to the purchaser, and 'cost' to the thing purchased. . . . Many persons are tempted to buy articles . . . because they are not costly, forgetting that . . . these purchases may still be too expensive.

'Delightful' is applied both to the pleasures of the mind and those of the senses: 'delicious' only to those of the senses. An excursion, a social circle, a place of abode, may be 'delightful'; a perfume, or a fruit, 'delicious.'

(c) Because of differences in extension, or range of meaning.

'Timid' is applied both to the state of mind . . . in which a person may happen to be at the moment, and to the habitual disposition; 'timorous,' only to the disposition. 'Timid' is therefore, the more extensive term, and comprehends the meanings of 'timorous.' . . .

TO UNDERSTAND, TO COMPREHEND. The former of these verbs is used in a much more extended sense than the latter. Whatever we comprehend, we understand; but 'to understand' is used on many occasions in which to comprehend would be inadmissible. . . . It would be quite correct to say, 'I did not comprehend his exposition, or his arguments, although I understood the language, and the grammatical import of each sentence.'

(d) Because of differences in association or origin and, therefore, in connotations.

FATHERLY, PATERNAL; MOTHERLY, MATERNAL . . . are formed from corresponding roots in Latin and Saxon . . . the Latin word being the more polite and cold, the Saxon the more hearty and cordial . . . We speak of 'a paternal government'—'maternal duties'; but of 'a fatherly kindness of manner'—'a motherly tenderness.'

RIGHTeous, JUST . . . a Saxon and a Latin term, whose roots exactly correspond in meaning; but they have even more curiously diverged than many other pairs of words. 'Righteous' is now exclusively applied to rectitude of conduct drawn from religious principle, while 'just' is simply used for moral uprightness. A heathen or atheist may be called just, but not righteous.

(e) Because of the difference in the point of view from which the same thing is regarded.

'Anger' is more correctly applied to the inward feeling: 'wrath' to the outward manifestation . . . We should not speak of the 'anger,' but of the 'wrath' of the elements. We therefore speak of 'the wrath of God,' more correctly than of his anger. We cannot attribute to Him passions like those of men: we can only describe the external effects which in man would be produced by those passions.

In 1852, the year after Whately's Selection of Synonyms was published, appeared the first edition of the Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases, by Peter Mark Roget (1779–1869), a book that was to exert very great influence on the development of interest in synonyms and to provoke a new interest in opposite or contrasted terms. The modern consultant of the Thesaurus, accustomed to depend on the elaborate index (provided in 1879 by the compiler's son John L. Roget), has little knowledge of the original plan of the book, though it has in no way been disturbed by revisers of the Roget family. But this plan is obviously hard to use and few consultants of the Thesaurus, if any, now avail themselves of it. It depends upon a classification of all words into six main categories, those dealing with Abstract Relations, Space, Matter, Intellect, Volition, and Affections, each of which is divided into smaller and appropriate subdivisions until an appropriate heading, such as Interpretation or Lending, gives the clue for the left-hand column of nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs gathered under it and an appropriate heading, such as Misinterpretation or Borrowing, gives the clue for the right-hand column of nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs that are theoretically opposed or in contrast. But Roget did not call these word lists Synonyms and Antonyms (the latter word indeed had not yet been coined): his usual name was "Analogous Words" for those in the left-hand column and "Correlative Words" for those in the right-hand column. Despite this, other revisers than those of the Roget family have consistently misinterpreted this volume as a book of synonyms and antonyms and have rearranged it or alphabetized it in the hope of making this clear.
It is, therefore, merely because of its historical connections with the treatment of synonyms and antonyms that this book is of immediate significance to us. Only when it is clear that the book purports to be a supplier of words—technically, a “word finder”—and nothing else, are we able to estimate correctly the heresy that has arisen out of its misunderstanding. To reach this end we must know very clearly just what Roget tried to accomplish by this book and just what he ruled out as extraneous to his purpose.

As early as 1805 Roget realized that what he needed for his own writing was a classified list of words in which he might find not only the right words to express his ideas but words that would help him in clarifying or formulating confused or vague ideas. He found the lists he made so useful to himself that he came to believe that they would prove, if amplified, of great value to others. For nearly fifty years he had this project in mind, but only at the age of seventy, after his retirement in 1849 from his position as secretary of the Royal Society of London for the Advancement of Science, was he able to realize it.

He held from the start that what was needed was not a dictionary of synonyms. Roget had in mind a consultant who not only did not know a near word but could not even recall a word somewhat similar in meaning to the word desired or only vaguely apprehended an idea because of the want of the right word or words to help him in formulating it. For example, a geologist who has found a rock, probably hitherto undiscovered, because it fitted into no known classification might be at a loss for the exact terms to describe its peculiar texture. Such a person could hope to find in the section headed “Matter” the concrete adjective he needed (such as fissile, friable, splinter). No word, no phrase, was too narrow in its meaning to serve Roget’s purpose, or too archaic, or too slangy, or too erudite. Whether one was writing a technical treatise or a witty essay, a historical novel or a definition for a dictionary, one might hope to discover in this Thesaurus the expressions “which are best suited to his purpose, and which might not have occurred to him without such assistance.” For words, “like ‘spirits from the vastly deep’ . . . come not when we call”; “appropriate terms, needed (such as fissile, friable, splinter)”. No word, no phrase, was too narrow in its meaning to serve Roget’s purpose, or too archaic, or too slangy, or too erudite. Whether one was writing a technical treatise or a witty essay, a historical novel or a definition for a dictionary, one might hope to discover in this Thesaurus the expressions “which are best suited to his purpose, and which might not have occurred to him without such assistance.” For words, “like ‘spirits from the vastly deep’ . . . come not when we call”; “appropriate terms, needed (such as fissile, friable, splinter).”

More than this, Roget did not call the words he selected synonyms, when they were of the same part of speech and belonged in the same column. That he understood “synonyms” as denoting words of equivalent meaning is evident in his reference to the discrimination of “apparently synonymous” terms. There can be no question that he thought word-finding lists of synonyms and of “apparently synonymous” terms would be too meager to suit the purposes he had in mind.

As for the discrimination of synonyms, that was entirely foreign to the purpose of his book. He was very explicit about that:

The investigation of the distinctions to be drawn between words apparently synonymous, forms a separate branch of inquiry, which I have not presumed here to enter upon; for the subject has already occupied the attention of much abler critics than myself, and its complete exhaustion would require the devotion of a whole life. The purpose of this Work, it must be borne in mind, is not to explain the signification of words, but simply to classify and arrange them according to the sense in which they are now used, and which I presume to be already known to the reader. I enter into no inquiry into the changes of meaning they may have undergone in the course of time. I am content to accept them at the value of their present currency, and have no concern with their etymologies, or with the history of their transformations; far less do I venture to thread the mazes of the vast labyrinth into which I should be led by any attempt at a general discrimination of synonyms.

It is also important to notice that Roget believed himself without a precursor “in any language.” He may have known Perry and many others who worked in the word-finding field before 1852: like other cultivated men he probably knew Crabb and others working on the discrimination of synonyms; but he always thought of himself as doing something quite distinct from both. In fact, he gave his successors many reasons for refusing to believe that his two series of word-supplying lists were synonyms or antonyms or were capable of discrimination as synonyms or of opposition as antonyms.

Despite that, his purpose was misunderstood and his book misinterpreted. In 1867 appeared a small book called A Complete Collection of Synonyms and Antonyms, by the Rev. Charles J. Smith, which gave evidence that here and there men were quietly substituting their judgment of Roget’s work for his own. It is true that there is only one sentence in the preface of Smith’s book to support this inference, and that concerns the reason why its author has chosen the dictionary method of presenting his material, “from finding that the abstract classifications of words, under certain broad ideas, according to the plan of Dr. Roget, seems invalidated by the necessity, in his well-known Thesaurus, of numberless cross-divisions, and is practically disregarded in favor of the Alphabetical Index.” Yet, brief as is that statement, it reveals that he thought his work and Roget’s had a common purpose—to give synonyms and their opposites or, to use the word which he now coined, their “antonyms”—and that the difference between the two books was merely a matter of method.

There is no evidence that Smith realized that he was changing the time-honored definition of synonym. His chief object in phrasing his definition of synonym was to set that term in opposition to antonym, which he regarded as its antithesis. Nevertheless, in so doing, he introduced a subtle and important change in the definition. His statement reads as follows:

Words which agree in expressing one or more characteristic ideas in common [with the entry word] he [i.e., Smith himself] has regarded as Synonyms, those which negative one or more such ideas he has called Antonyms.

The inference that he changed the traditional definition of synonym is supported not only by this statement but also by his method of selecting synonyms. One example must suffice:

The important thing to notice about these lists is not their parallelism, nor even how good or bad the synonyms or antonyms are, but their selection according to a new principle. The synonyms are not all closely allied words differing only in minor ways or words which are essentially alike in meaning, but some, such as urge and promote, are words which come together only in some part of their meaning and that not necessarily their essential meaning. Nor are the antonyms necessarily opposed to the essential meaning of accelerate. It is quite possible that neither Smith nor anyone else at the time fully realized what a radical change in definition he had made. In his Synonyms Discriminated, the work with which four years later (1871) he followed his Synonyms and Antonyms, he adhered to the orthodox definition of synonym. The later work proved the more popular, and it is probable that the inconspicuousness of Synonyms and Antonyms helped to obscure its definition of synonym, buried as it was in the preface.

Moreover, in the same year as Synonyms Discriminated appeared another book of undiscriminated synonyms, Richard Soule's A Dictionary of English Synonymes and Synonymous or Parallel Expressions (1871), which attracted far more attention than had Smith's Synonyms and Antonyms. New editions appeared in rapid succession, and it was revised in 1891 by Professor George H. Howison and in 1937 by Professor Alfred D. Sheffield.

Although Soule acknowledged help from Roget's Thesaurus and a number of other works such as the dictionaries of Webster and Worcester and the books by Crabb, Whately, and others discriminating synonyms, he claims in no particular instance to have followed them strictly or to have been influenced by them in any way. If we judge from the words of Professor Howison, who, nearly twenty years after the first edition, undertook revision at the request of Soule's family, he "found little more to do than to carry out to a greater completeness the lines of Mr. Soule's original design." That Soule's original design was clear and definite and that he saw himself as doing something quite different from Roget, on the one hand, and from Crabb and Whately, on the other, is obvious from what Professor Howison has further to say:

A perfect manual of that sort is impossible within the compass of a single work of convenient size and arrangement. . . . A work on Synonymes may thus have for its purpose either an alphabetic list of all the more important words in the language, with their various meanings or shades of meaning set down under them, each followed by its appropriate synonymes; or a list of general notions, duly named and properly divided and subdivided, with the words and phrases that belong to the expression of each collected under them as fully as possible; or, again, the collocation of words allied in meaning with subjoined disquisitions on the shades of difference between them. The latter conception has been the prevailing one among English makers of synonymic dictionaries, and is represented by the well-known work of Crabb, as well as by any; the second is that of Roget's Thesaurus; while the first is that of Soule.

Consequently, we are not surprised to find that Soule's definition of synonym approaches the orthodox one. True, he gives us no detailed definition, but he does say enough to show that he does not mistake the relation between words of the same part of speech in the left-hand or the right-hand column of Roget (he is obviously not interested in their cross relation), and he does not show any knowledge—much less any interest—in Smith's definition of a synonym as a word which agrees in expressing one or more characteristic ideas in common with a given word. A synonym, he says, has "the same meaning as" the entry word under which it is listed "or a meaning very nearly the same." Within limits his lists of synonyms are about as good as is possible when they are not submitted to the test of discrimination.

Even though Soule's Dictionary of Synonyms has been the model for a great many works issued in imitation of it, some claiming to have improved upon it, it still remains, in both its original and its revised forms, the best dictionary of synonyms that does not provide discriminations. Like Roget's work, within its own limits it has not yet been bettered.

But beyond those limits, both in the realm of books providing discriminating synonymies and in the realm of books providing synonyms and antonyms without discriminations, there has arisen a state of affairs which makes us believe that we are at a point where a stand must be taken if we are to avert chaos in the field.
In the forefront of this battle are the American general dictionaries and certain manuals written by men who have been at one time or another members of their staffs.

The general dictionaries have so far been omitted from this survey. Not that they were inactive—for, almost from the start, they were not. A few ventures were merely tentative, such as that in James Barclay’s Complete and Universal Dictionary issued in England in 1774. This work Chauncey Goodrich (in his preface to Webster’s A Pronouncing and Defining Dictionary, 1856, an abridgment of the 1828 Webster) notices with the observation that discriminations of ‘synonymous words’ were “first introduced into a general dictionary by Barclay, though in a very imperfect manner.” Goodrich also calls attention to the fact that Noah Webster had often successfully used the method of discrimination as part of his definitions. But these attempts do not merit the honor of being the first discriminating synonymies in the general dictionary. No one in fact laid serious claim to their introduction before Joseph Worcester who, in 1855, issued his Pronouncing, Explanatory, and Synonymous Dictionary. The slight foundation for the claim is evident from the following typical examples:

DEFEND. . . Syn.—Defend the innocent; protect the weak; vindicate those who are unjustly accused; repel aggression.

FIGURE. . . Syn.—A fine figure; regular shape; circular form; a carved statue; a graven image.—A metaphor is a figure of speech; a lamb is an emblem of innocence; the paschal lamb was a type of Christ.

One year later (1856) William G. Webster and Chauncey A. Goodrich, the son and son-in-law of Noah Webster, brought out abridged editions of his American Dictionary for school, business, and family use. Short discriminating synonymies were introduced, all of them written by Chauncey Goodrich. A few typical illustrations will indicate how much better a title he had than had Worcester to the claim of having introduced such synonymies into a dictionary:

Things are adjacent when they lie near to each other without touching, as adjacent fields; adjoining when they meet or join at some point, as adjoining farms; contiguous when they are brought more continuously in contact, as contiguous buildings.

Liveliness is an habitual feeling of life and interest; gayety refers more to a temporary excitement of the animal spirits; animation implies a warmth of emotion and a corresponding vividness of expressing it; vivacity is a feeling between liveliness and animation, having the permanency of the one, and, to some extent, the warmth of the other.

The first serious attempt in a general dictionary at discriminating synonymies on a par with those published by Piozzi, Crabb, Whately, and others, came in 1859 with the publication by G. & C. Merriam Co. of a “provisional edition” 4 of Webster as a preparation for the first complete revision (issued in 1864) of the American Dictionary. These also were written by Chauncey A. Goodrich (1790–1860), whose articles in the smaller dictionaries of 1856 had been, according to the publishers’ preface of 1859, “so highly appreciated by distinguished scholars” that they had prevailed upon him in his capacity as editor of the 1859 edition to add a treatment of synonyms to this book. For some years Goodrich had been engaged on “a distinct work on this subject” and it was the material gathered for this project that was developed and presented in the table of synonyms as part of the “front matter” of the 1859 edition.

These synonymies, with slight changes in phrasing and many additions, served for the two ensuing complete revisions of Merriam-Webster dictionaries, Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary of 1864 and Webster’s International Dictionary of 1890, both under the editorship of Noah Porter. In these books the articles on synonymy, instead of being grouped in the front matter, were distributed through the main vocabulary. In the publishers’ statement in the 1859 edition of the American Dictionary, note was made of the great advance in Goodrich’s synonymies over those of preceding writers:

This is only an application on a broad scale of one mode adopted by Dr. Webster, for giving clearness and precision to his definitions. It is also peculiarly appropriate in a work like this, which aims at great exactness as a defining dictionary; since it affords an opportunity of giving in connection with the leading terms of our language, those nicer discriminations and shades of thought which it is impossible to reach in the way of ordinary definitions. . . Unless the distinctive meaning of the several words is previously given, little or no aid is afforded as to their proper use and application, by aducing such passages. This will be seen by turning to such a work as Platt’s Dictionary of English Synonyms, 5 which is framed chiefly upon this plan. On the first page, we find under the words abandon, desert, leave &c., such examples as these: “Men are abandoned by their friends; we desert a post or station; leave the country,” &c. But these words may be

---

4 As stated in the preface to Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary (1864).
5 A small work for use in schools, published 1825.
equally well interchanged. Men may be deserted by their friends; we may abandon a post or station, &c. Such examples, therefore, afford no light or guidance as to the proper use of these words. So, if the phrase be given "the officer abandoned his post," the question may arise whether he really abandoned, or deserted, or surrendered, or left it. He may have abandoned it on the approach of an enemy, or as no longer important to maintain; he may have deserted it unworthily or treacherously; he may have surrendered it to a superior force; he may have left it temporarily.

The criticism clearly shows that the chief defect of the current discriminating synonymy was a defect in method: it was not a defect in the definition of synonym or in the selection of synonyms. But in the thirty years following there were signs that Perry's vague conceptions of a synonym, and Smith's freer definition were beginning to enter the minds of synonymists. Neither Perry nor Smith was largely responsible for this change in definition. Roget, because of the enormous popularity of his work, or rather those who misinterpreted Roget's aim, must be considered as originating the trend and be blamed for it. By 1889 the first evidence of its more general acceptance had made its appearance.

In that year was published the first edition of the Century Dictionary, and in 1894 followed Funk and Wagnalls' Standard Dictionary. Both were new ventures in dictionary making and had the advantage of being in the limelight. Both followed the initiative of the Merriam-Webster dictionaries and introduced discriminating synonyms as an essential part of their contribution. But neither followed Webster in its adhesion to the traditional definition of synonym.

Although the Century Dictionary attempted many new things in the way of dictionary making, such as an encyclopedic character and a format of several volumes, it placed little stress on its treatment of synonyms. The writer of these articles, Henry Mitchell Whitney, was the brother of the editor in chief, William Dwight Whitney (1827–1894): his work was given only a four-line notice in the editorial preface:

> Discussions of synonyms treating of about 7000 words... will be found convenient as bringing together statements made in the definitions in various parts of the dictionary, and also as touching in a free way upon many literary aspects of words.

It was probably because of the division of the Century Dictionary into several volumes that its editors could entertain the idea that the function of a discriminating synonymy is to assemble definitions of comparable terms from various parts of the dictionary, but such a function, because of its accidental character, has no inherent value. As a matter of fact, the synonymist of the Century often depended on cross reference to definitions for support or amplification of his statements and, therefore, invalidated the description (quoted above) by William Dwight Whitney in the editorial preface. Nor do his synonyms "touch in a free way upon many literary aspects of words." In the first place, it is not quite clear what is meant by that statement, and, in the second, there is no consistent proof of anything like it in the articles themselves. As a general rule, with the possible exception of Whately, synonymists had not yet felt strongly any difference between the literary and colloquial use of words.

There is not only the lack of a clearly defined policy in the preface, but there is also the lack of one in the synonymies themselves. Yet Henry M. Whitney seems to have had in him the makings of a good synonymist but to have been suffering from conditions over which he had no control. It may be that his job was too big for one man or for the time set for its completion and that he had little leisure to think through its problems: it may be that what he considered a good synonymy was not in accord with the opinion of the editor in chief. At any rate, his synonymies vary greatly in method, aim, and accomplishment. The most that can be said is that he was experimenting with different methods and aims and that he never reached definite conclusions as to the superiority of one over the other.

The most vital problem which concerned him was the selection of synonyms. Sometimes he provides a very limited selection, as at the noun adept, where he gives only expert, leaving out such words as master, proficient, and specialist, which might well have been treated as synonyms. In other places he gives a much longer and more heterogeneous list, as at ample: ample, copious, plenteous, spacious, roomy, extensive, extended, wide, capacious, abundant, sufficient, full, enough, unrestricted, plenary, unstinted. Only the italicized words are discriminated, it is true, but the others are given as synonyms. The average reader may doubt the justification of many of these words as synonyms, though he will readily find a relationship in meaning.

There was good reason for H. M. Whitney's uncertainty, in that around the eighteen-seventies and eighties synonymists were confronted with a problem that had not particularly concerned their predecessors. The demand then was not only for discriminating synonymies but for word-finding lists more or less in the manner of Roget and Soule. Crabb's work was still influential, but was not satisfying those who wanted more words synonymized and more synonyms for each word. Roget was immensely popular but extremely difficult to use, not only because of his classificatory method but because he supplied no definitions. In 1879 a "new and elaborate Index, much more complete than that which was appended to the previous editions" had been added by Roget’s son, in the belief that “almost every one who uses the book finds it more convenient to have recourse to the Index first.” In this way the major difficulty, the classificatory system which the elder Roget had pertinaciously believed in, became no longer an obstacle. The other difficulty, the lack of discrimination, was not touched and, in view of Roget’s primary purpose, was not likely to be.

As a result there followed an attempt to provide synonymies which would combine the virtues and value of the discriminative synonymies and yet would deal with word lists that approached in number and variety those of Roget. Henry M. Whitney more or less played with the problem, but James C. Fernald (1838–1918), the editor of synonymies for Funk and Wagnalls’ Standard Dictionary (1894) and author of a manual, English Synonyms and Antonyms (1896), attacked it with vigor and offered what seemed to him a solution. Fernald and the editors of the Standard Dictionary set out to increase markedly the number of synonymies and antonyms at each entry. Hitherto, from two to eight words represented the norm in each of these lists: in the Standard Dictionary the average number lies between ten and twenty. First of all, they believed that they were justified in extending the definition of synonym to include both words of identical or closely allied meaning (the time-honored definition) and words which agree in some part of their meaning. The definition of synonym in the 1894 edition of the Standard Dictionary (slightly changed in later editions) reads:

A word having the same or almost the same meaning as some other; oftener, one of a number of words that have one or more meanings in common, but that differ either in the range of application of those meanings or in having other senses not held in common; opposed to antonym. . . . Words of this class may often be used interchangeably, but discrimination in their choice is one of the most important characteristics of a good writer.

The discriminating synonymy given at the entry of synonymous in the main vocabulary reads:

Synonyms: alike, correspondent, corresponding, equivalent, identical, interchangeable, like, same, similar, synonynmic. In the strictest sense, synonymous words scarcely exist; rarely, if ever, are any two words in any language equivalent or identical in meaning; where a difference in meaning can not easily be shown, a difference in usage commonly exists, so that the words are not interchangeable. By synonymous words we usually understand words that coincide or nearly coincide in some part of their meaning, and may hence within certain limits be used interchangeably, while outside of those limits they may differ very greatly in meaning and use. It is the office of a work on synonyms to point out these correspondences and differences, that language may have the flexibility that comes from freedom of selection within the common limits, with the perspicuity and precision that result from exact choice of the fittest word to express each shade of meaning outside of the common limits. To consider synonymous words identical is fatal to accuracy; to forget that they are similar, to some extent equivalent, and sometimes interchangeable, is destructive of freedom and variety.

It is possible that definition and synonymy were designed to avoid provoking criticism from those who adhered to the commonly accepted definition of synonym yet at the same time to extend the sense to accord with what was believed to be Roget’s practice and to satisfy the demands of those who urged more words. It may be granted that this is a legitimate practice, provided it does not force the issue, but represents a genuine change in conception among a large or even a small class of those who use the term synonym. That the growing demand was for more synonyms cannot be questioned but that a change in the conception of synonym had occurred, from the one that had been in vogue since Crabb’s time, may justly be disputed. At any rate, let us see how it affected the Standard Dictionary’s choice of synonyms. Two lists will illustrate its practice:

| Adequate | able, adapted, capable, commensurate, competent, equal, fit, fitted, fitting, qualified, satisfactory, sufficient, suitable. |
| Harmony | accord, accordance, agreement, amity, concord, concurrence, conformity, congruity, consent, consistency, consonance, symmetry, unanimity, uniformity, union, unison, unity. |

The Standard Dictionary’s definition justifies the selection of such lists of “synonyms.” Each is a word which has one or more meanings in common with the introductory word (adequate or harmony). But if adequate means exactly commensurate with the requirements, only sufficient and competent (in one of its senses) with the addition of enough approach it in content. A person may be adequate if he is able, capable, competent (in another sense), or qualified; a person or thing may be adequate if he or it is adapted, fitted, or suitable; a thing may be adequate if it is equal to the requirement by being fit or satisfactory: but in all these cases, he or it may also be more than adequate or less than adequate, in some way, or the question of adequacy may never arise. Harmony in its musical sense may be related to accord, concord, consonance, in its aesthetic sense to symmetry and other terms not in this list; but what relation there is between it and amity, uniformity, unanimity, agreement, concurrence, congruity, etc., except as a cause or result or concomitant, needs to be proved. A word-finding list may consist of terms which, by agreeing in some implications and connotations, overlap, for those lists serve their purpose in helping the user to locate his word. But when the object is discrimination, only those words serve the purpose whose basic likeness can be proved by showing that they have a common denotation as well as not readily discerned differences.

It is true that Fernald found no difficulty here. His clearest expression of the method of discrimination is found in the preface to his English Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions:

The great source of vagueness, error, and perplexity in many discussions of synonyms is, that the writer merely associates stray ideas loosely connected with the different words, sliding from synonym to synonym with no definite point of departure or return, so that a smooth and at first sight pleasing statement really gives the mind no definite resting-place and no sure conclusion. A true discussion of synonyms is definition by comparison, and for this there must be something definite with which to compare. When the standard is settled, approximation or differentiation can be determined with clearness and certainty.

What type of synonymy Fernald was criticizing is not clear. It was probably what may be called "the chain-formula type." When a synonymist had made so poor a selection of synonyms that there could be no common ground and his list presented an array of associated rather than synonymous terms, he often fell into the habit of giving a series of definitions with a factitious relation. A repetition of a previous word was usually enough to make a connection. This was the defect of certain synonymies into which all writers of articles, good as well as bad, fell at one time or another and is probably the type to which Fernald referred when he described the "easy sliding from synonym to synonym." Yet it is not always bad: when one word carries a general meaning which serves as a substitute for the common denotation, it is possible to use it with good effect. A short example from The New Century Dictionary (1927) must suffice for the good use:

BANTER is good-humored jesting. . . .RAILLERY is often sharp, sarcastic banter; PLEASANTRY, delicate and pleasant banter; BADINAGE, diverting and purposeless banter; PERSIFLAGE, light, frivolous, or flippant banter.

With lists such as Fernald's own it would be impossible to avoid this formula, unchanged. It was necessary for him to find some way of varying "the chain formula" so that he could secure the desired qualities, "unity of the group" and "some point of departure and return." Therefore, he devised the method whereby one word would be selected as the key word and all the other words should be compared or contrasted with it. A good example is afforded by his article at money:

money. SYN.: bills, bullion, capital, cash, coin, currency, funds, gold, notes, property, silver, specie. Money is the authorized medium of exchange; coined money is called coin or specie. What are termed in England bank-notes are in the United States commonly called bills; as, five-dollar bill. The notes of responsible men are readily transferable in commercial circles, but they are not money; as, the stock was sold for $500 in money and the balance in merchantable paper. Cash is specie or money in hand, or paid in hand; as, the cash account; the cash price. In the legal sense, property is not money, and money is not property; for property is that which has inherent value, while money, as such, has but representative value, and may or may not have intrinsic value. Bullion is either gold or silver uncoined, or the coined metal considered without reference to its coinage, but simply as merchandise, when its value as bullion may be very different from its value as money. The word capital is used chiefly of accumulated property or money invested in productive enterprises or available for such investment. Compare property; wealth.

Nothing could be clearer than that these words are not synonyms in the generally accepted sense. They include names of kinds of money (coin, specie, bills), names of material used for money or, in figurative language, meaning money or wealth (gold, silver), and words denoting things that have some intimate association with money (bullion, property, capital). The article keeps more or less consistently before the reader the relation of these to the key word money. The reader is bound to see and understand the distinctions and carry away a unified impression. There can be no quarrel with such articles on the ground of their not giving useful information. It may even be argued that a discrimination of terms that coincide in some part of their meaning may be in itself a valuable thing. But neither justification touches the issue raised by the Fernald synonymies. The ground of valid objection to them is that they offer as synonyms many words which even by the loosest of definitions cannot be accepted as such. The point of absurdity is reached at spontaneous, where the key word is so important that voluntary and involuntary, free and instinctive, automatic and impulsive are included.

By 1909, the date of publication of the next complete revision of the Merriam-Webster® dictionaries (the first edition of Webster's New International Dictionary), there had been time for consideration of these matters and for a more sober judgment. The Goodrich synonymies clearly needed revision on account of the growth of the language and, partly, because the synonym lists could be enriched. The work was entrusted to John Livingston Lowes (1867–1945; then at Washington University, St. Louis, but later at Harvard University) under the advisory supervision of George Lyman Kittredge (1860–1941) of Harvard. They were to deal only with general senses, but a few technical articles written by specialists were to be submitted to them, so as to insure uniformity in manner and method. The articles thus prepared were included in Certain points of agreement were established by Lowes and Kittredge early in the course of their partnership. Very early in the writing of these articles Lowes called Kittredge's attention to the Fernald list at adequate and the Century list, adequate, sufficient, enough. "Is not the Century's list adequate?" he wrote. "I did not notice the test my question affords, but none of the other words in the Standard's list can be substituted for 'adequate.' Are they not better distributed among other articles? The longer I study the material, the more strongly I feel that more articles, each discriminating fewer words, are advisable. The longer articles are, as a matter of fact, confusing, and seem to have led often to strained attempts to find a single common factor for words which fall more naturally into several groups." Kittredge agreed fully. Thus, the Webster tradition of discriminating synonyms that are synonyms in the accepted sense was followed. Looser synonyms or closely related words were still given in the word-finding lists, and these also were revised by Lowes, whose interests, however, were concentrated on the articles discriminating synonyms.

By temperament and training Professor Lowes was especially fitted for the task assigned him. He excels all his predecessors in philosophic grasp and powers of analysis, yet he never confuses synonymizing with philosophizing or moralizing; he outstrips them all in the range of his knowledge of literature and of his contacts with language as the medium of expressing ideas and emotions; great scholar though he was, his work is utterly free of the pedantry, dogmatism, and heaviness that so often mar the work of lesser men. Though not a lexicographer by training or experience, he almost perfectly adapted the art of synonymizing to the methods of lexicography, so that whatever can contribute in either to the advantage of the other was brought out in his articles.

It is in the clarification of the differences between terms that are to a large extent equivalent in denotation that Lowes made the greatest advances in the art of synonymizing. Practically every synonymist before him had inklings of the kinds of differences that he saw clearly; many of them, such as Miss Whately, had used the language adopted by him, but no one so fully realized its possibilities. Rambling, persistent missing of the real differences and constant confusion of the content of the word itself with the concept for which that word stood were characteristic and prevalent faults of many earlier writers of synonymies. With Lowes, direct attack at each problem became possible and, with it, swift, sure shafts that rarely fail to make the desired cleavage.

It may be said that as a rule he was careful in his synonymies to state the ground of agreement; but sometimes he neglected to do so when the likeness was obvious. But in regard to differences he was extremely particular and rarely departed from the aim he held before him. His most frequently used method may be illustrated by an excerpt from the article on foretell in Webster's New International Dictionary (1909):

FORETELL (Saxon) and predict (Latin) are frequently interchangeable; but predict is now commonly used when inference from facts (rather than occult processes) is involved; as, "Some sorcerer. . .had foretold, dying, that none of all our blood should know the shadow from the substance" (Tennyson); "Mr. Brooke's conclusions were as difficult to predict as the weather" (G. Eliot); an astronomer predicts the return of a comet. PROPHESY connotes inspired or mysterious knowledge, or great assurance of prediction; as, "ancestral voices prophesying war" (Coleridge); "Wrinkled benchers often talked of him approvingly, and prophesied his rise" (Tennyson). FORECAST connotes conjecture rather than inference; PREPARE implies shrewd forecast, sometimes presentiment or warning; as, "Who shall so forecast the years?" (Tennyson); "I presage, unless the country make an alarm, the cause is lost" (Scott). . .FOREBODE. . .implies obscure prescience or premonition (esp. of evil); PORTEND. . .threatening or ominous foretokening; as, "His heart forebodes a mystery" (Tennyson); "My father put on the countenance which always portends a gathering storm" (Richardson).

If we supply the common denotation of all these words—"to indicate what will happen"—the difference lies in other ideas involved in their meaning. In each case this difference forms part of the word's definition, the other part of which will be the common denotation. Indeed, although the dictionary definition may be presented from another point of view, a good and fair definition may be made according to this method. The synonymist, however, should find it the best method when his job is merely to show how far words agree and then to point out their individual differences. Other methods are conceivable, indeed some are necessary in special cases, but as yet no better method has been devised for the general run of synonyms. Miss Whately is largely responsible for it, but Lowes has greatly improved it.

It was (and is), however, impossible always to be equally exact, clear, and direct. This is especially true when the differences are less a matter of meaning than of coloring, as by historical and literary associations, or a matter of idiomatic usage. The difference in coloring or, in other terms, the difference in connotations—is especially difficult, requiring not only great knowledge but fine perceptions, imagination, and taste. Few would dare to attempt to distinguish connotations, but Lowes, whose feeling for these differences is not equaled by any synonymist, is especially successful in their handling. Many of these could not be incorporated in a dictionary definition, but they must be felt if the word is to be used with the accumulated power that has been stored in it. A particularly effective synonym of this type is to be found at idiot.

---

6 From manuscript notes in the editorial files of G. & C. Merriam Company.

_IDIOT, IMBECILE, FOOL, SIMPLETON_ are here compared esp. in their connotations; for technical distinctions, see defs. IDIOT (a learned word become popular) implies absence, commonly congenital, of intellectual or reasoning powers; it is often less strictly used to characterize one who is felt to have acted with utter stupiditry; IMBECILE (less common as a popular term) implies great mental feebleness or (in its looser derogatory sense) entire fatuity; FOOL, the more vigorous word, is wholly popular, and frequently suggests lack of sense or wisdom rather than of brains; from its Biblical use, it still connotes, in elevated style, grave, pitying, or scathing condemnation; in colloquial usage, as a term of contempt, it is strongly offensive; SIMPLETON (also wholly popular) implies silliness or (sometimes) unsophisticatedness; it is often used lightly as a term of indulgent contempt; as, "He said you were...a senseless, drivelng idiot" (Wycherley); "What an idiot am I, to wait here for a fellow who probably takes a delight in mortifying me" (Goldsmith); "custom's idiot sway" (Cowper); cf. an idiotic grin; "The petty passions, the imbecile desires...daily moving her contempt" (G. Eliot); "She's a fool to stay behind her father" (Shak.); "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread" (Pope); "They look upon persons employing their time in making verses...as simpletons easily to be deceived" (V. Knox); poor, innocent little simpleton! 'The 'Great simpleton!'. . .of Mr. Newman, and the 'Thou fool!' of the Bible, are something alike; but 'Thou fool!' is very grand, and 'Great simpleton!' is an atrocity. So too...Shakespeare's 'Poor venomous fool, be angry and dispatch!' is in the grand style" (M. Arnold). . . .

Differences in idiomatic usage are oftentimes not a matter that can easily be presented by definition. Many terms in a dictionary are defined almost in the same words, though written by various editors, the only clue to difference consisting in the illustrations. The consultant is often at a loss, because he does not see that these examples may constitute the only uses of the term, or a few such uses, and are not representative of a large number of uses. It was in such cases that the method which we have called the Piozzi method was first used, but without a full understanding of its dangers and limitations. Lowes avoided this method except where he was dealing with fixed idioms. Then he safeguarded his statement with a parenthetical elimination such as "one ascends (not mounts) a mountain; one mounts (not ascends) a horse." The sparing use of this method did not, however, lead to his ignoring the problem presented by such synonyms as are definable in almost identical terms yet are incapable of discrimination in implications and connotations. To get at his method let us examine parts of certain synonyms where his effectiveness is most apparent:

One EXCUSES (either as a superior or as an equal) small faults, minor omissions, or neglects, esp. in social or conventional obligations; one PARDONS (as a superior, or by act of mercy or generosity) serious faults, crimes, or grave offenses, esp. against laws or morals; as, to excuse an unintentional oversight, an absence from a required exercise; "Excuse my glove" (Sheridan); to pardon a thief; to pardon a theft; "Apollo, pardon my great profaneness 'gainst thine oracle" (Shak.).

_STOP. . .applies primarily to action, or to that which is thought of as moving; CEASE applies also to states and conditions, or to that which is thought of as being; as, a train stops, but does not cease; the noise it makes both stops and ceases; one's love may cease, but scarcely stop.

_Fast and rapid_ are often used without distinction; but FAST frequently applies to the moving object, whereas RAPID is apt to characterize or suggest the movement itself; as, a fast horse, a fast train, boat; a rapid current, a rapid gait, rapid progress.

_Hateful and odious_ are sometimes used with little distinction. But HATEFUL more frequently applies to that which excites actual hatred, ODIOUS, to that which is excessively disagreeable, or which awakens repugnance; as, "Why shouldn't we hate what is hateful in people, and scorn what is mean?" (Thackeray). . . ."There was something more odious to him in her friendship than her hatred" (Thackeray).

In these discriminations the original contribution of Lowes is the generalization regarding usage or application. An occasional synonymist before him had experimented with it, but no one before him succeeded. He knows how to guard the expression, never claims too much, and yet, in spite of all the difficulties involved, makes statements that are just and therefore convincing. There seems to have been no inclination on his part to overstate the case. If there must be inexactness, he preferred it on the side of understatement. "This is as much as it is safe to say" was a not infrequent comment of his.7 Much more could be said about the interesting technique developed by Lowes. Much more could be said also about other excellences and some defects which characterize his work. But when all is said and done there still remains his superiority as a discriminator, as manifested in his selection of methods according to his material. Whether his synonyms differed in implications, in connotations, or in applications or, more probably, some in one way, some in another, he was seldom at a loss.

---

7 In manuscript notes in the editorial files of G. & C. Merriam Company.
Just a word about antonyms. There is no evidence at hand to prove that Lowes was ever asked to enter antonyms in Webster's New International Dictionary. He did, however, incorporate a few (though not by that name) in his articles under the general formula of "opposed to..." when the difference between synonyms (usually very general ones) could be apprehended more easily by knowing the term which was the direct opposite of each. He does this several times, as at base, where base is "opposed to high-minded," vile is "opposed to pure, noble," and mean is "opposed to generous, magnanimous." It is possible to guess his definition of antonym, but no more. The antonyms in Webster's New International Dictionary, Second Edition (1934) were added by an office editor.

There is no need to go further in the history of synonymy. Further synonymists there have been, some very good, some not quite so good, and some very bad; but they have all taken sides, either with those who support the traditional definition of synonym as one of two or more words having the same essential meaning or with those who favor its extension to one of two or more words which coincide in some part of their meaning. There has been no compromise: it might even be said that the break has scarcely been noticed. Nevertheless, it is apparent that, unless there be some clarification in definitions, especially of synonym and antonym, the prevailing popular misunderstanding will increase—with what results no one can estimate. This clarification we propose to undertake in the essays that follow.

It is because we firmly believe in the values implicit in the study of synonyms, antonyms, and word-finding lists (in this book divided into analogous words and contrasted words) that this dictionary has been written. We hope, therefore, that it not only carries some steps forward the admirable work accomplished by Goodrich and Lowes but also removes some sources of confusion or perplexity which have arisen outside of their work. The old defect inherent in synonymies, the overuse of illustration without a sufficient background in differences of implications (which we have called the Piozzi method), has not entirely disappeared from more recent writing, but, at least, the snake was scotched by the publishers' preface of the 1859 edition of Webster's Dictionary. In its place has come an uncertainty in the definitions of synonym and antonym which is even more insidious. In the three essays that follow we, therefore, make clear our own position. In the first of these essays we define synonym briefly, in order to show what effect that definition has had on our choice of words to be discriminated and on the technique of discrimination. In the second we define antonym at length, for the reason that this term has never been clearly examined and that the definitions in the major dictionaries are all at variance with Smith's tentative definition and with the selections of many of his successors. In the third we explain our aims and practices with respect to the word-finding lists.

SYNONYM: ANALYSIS AND DEFINITION

The chief reason for including in this introduction an article on synonyms is not to phrase a new definition of that term. It is rather to make a protest as to the loosening of the definition within the last fifty or sixty years and to restate very clearly what we believe to be the true and generally accepted meaning. In addition we will show briefly the effect of this definition upon our method.

For approximately one hundred years in the history of English synonymy there was very little real difference of opinion as to what a synonym is or as to what words should be the material of discrimination. It is true that John Trusler discriminated "words esteemed synonymous," Mrs. Piozzi "words apparently synonymous," and Miss Whately "pseudo-synonyms." Roget, who held that discrimination was foreign to his purpose, claimed that "the investigation of the distinctions to be drawn between words apparently synonymous forms a separate branch of inquiry." Nevertheless, all four made a distinction between true or actual synonyms (that is, words identical in meaning) and the terms which they discriminated or, in the case of Roget, which were discriminable (that is, terms that are so nearly alike that they appear to be synonyms). For all practical purposes, however, the words which were discriminated were not at all different from the "words closely allied" in meaning between which, according to Crabb, it is the business of the synonymist "to mark the nice shades of distinction"; nor is there any clash with Soule's simple definition.

of a synonym as that which has “the same meaning as” the entry word under which it is listed “or a meaning very nearly the same.”

It is also true that these synonymists did not always agree in their choice of synonyms. In part this was due to some confusion as to the limits of their scope, but mostly it is the result of conditions which still, to a degree, prevail. Some advances have been made in precision, but the truth was and is that there are too many factors entering into the selection of synonyms to make for absolute certainty or perfect accuracy in their choice. But these synonymists were not so far wrong as William Perry, who accepted Johnson’s “proximate words” as synonyms and made no distinction between them in reference to sense. The failure of his Synonymous... Dictionary may be ascribed to this cause.

The error Perry made has renewed itself, though with slightly more justification. This renewal, also, is initially the result of the misinterpretation of a highly popular work, Roget’s Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases, and of a belief that Roget presented two lists of terms, those that were alike (synonyms) and those that were opposed. It was to give voice to this interpretation that Charles J. Smith coined the word antonym for the opposed terms and gave to the world in 1867 his small book A Complete Collection of Synonyms and Antonyms. But because he was not following Roget in the arrangement of his material, choosing the dictionary (alphabetical) method rather than the classificatory method, he defined synonym (and antonym) in such a way that it would apply to Roget’s lists (so far as they were of the same part of speech) and to his own. Synonyms are, in Smith’s definition, “words which agree in expressing one or more characteristic ideas in common” (with the entered word). It is possible that he believed he was more careful in his selection than Roget. In line with his definition he gives lists of synonyms, such as that at accelerate, which are, it is true, less diverse than Roget’s but which are still susceptible of criticism as synonyms. There are, for example, some that are not questionable, such as speed, quicken, and hasten, but there are others, such as promote, urge, expedite, facilitate, and dispatch, that are open to question. Accelerate means to make go faster; so do speed, hasten, and quicken. But promote, for example, stresses aid given in attaining an end and only occasionally implies to make go faster; urge throws the emphasis upon the force that impels rather than upon the result, which usually, but not always, is to make go faster; expedite stresses the removal of impediments so that a progress or process is not delayed longer than is necessary or normal and therefore usually means to make go faster than it might. But in all these three cases a making go faster may or may not be implied; if implied, this notion is subordinate to the main implication of the word. Agreement “in one or more ideas” is a poor basis for the selection of synonyms, for these may or may not form a part of the essential meaning.

As the demand grew for a large number of synonyms, even agreement in one or more characteristic ideas tended to break down. Twenty-five and more years later certain synonymists of repute were offering groups of words as synonyms of one word rather than of one another and were not restricting those words to one sense of their key term. For instance, one synonymist of this period gave as the synonyms of stain blot, color, discolor, disgrace, dishonor, dye, soil, spot, sully, tarnish, tinge, tint. It is true that not all are discriminated, blot, disgrace, dishonor, soil, spot, sully, tarnish, and tint being omitted, but even so, they are all given in alphabetical order as synonyms and without explanation. In the list as it stands some words are synonyms of stain in the sense of to discolor, some in the sense of to impart color to or suffuse with color, and some in the sense of to bring reproach upon; but others have only a slight idea in common with stain in one of its senses. Such lists are far from rare in the very late nineteenth century or the early twentieth century: to the consultant who seeks another and closer word for the one which occurs to him, they must be hopelessly confusing. They have no value in teaching the precise use of language: their only merit is to indicate some of the words which may be used when one feels the need of a word like stain in any of its senses.

It is against a definition so loose as that favored by Smith or implied by others who went even further that this book makes a protest. In line with the tradition of the Merriam-Webster® dictionaries we believe that such a definition is destructive of all the values that have come to be recognized in synonyms. We hold that only by a clear return to something like the time-honored definition can we conserve these values and recognize a synonym when we see it. To emphasize this aim we propose in this dictionary to restate that definition fully and unequivocally so that none of the loopholes may be left through which some synonymists have escaped and to tighten the method of discrimination so that it will be very clear at points where even the best of synonymists have, in the past, unconsciously permitted vagueness.

A synonym, in this dictionary, will always mean one of two or more words in the English language which have the same or very nearly the same essential meaning. This is not a matter of mere likeness in meaning, for words may have some implications (ideas involved in their meaning) in common and yet not be synonymous. It is rather a likeness in denotation, which may be inadequately defined as the meaning which includes all the important implications but which is more strictly defined as the meaning or signification of a term as expressed in its definition. The denotation must include more than a summary of implications: it must indicate the part of speech and the relations of the ideas involved in a term’s meaning.
Synonyms, therefore, are only such words as may be defined wholly, or almost wholly, in the same terms. Usually they are distinguished from one another by an added implication or connotation, or they may differ in their idiomatic use or in their application. They may be and usually are interchangeable within limits, but interchangeability is not the final test, since idiomatic usage is often a preventive of that. The only satisfactory test of synonyms is their agreement in denotation. This agreement is seldom so perfect as to make the words absolutely identical in meaning, but it is always so clear that the two or more words which are synonyms can be defined in the same terms up to a certain point.

Consequently, the statement of this common denotation is of the greatest importance. In the discriminating articles in this dictionary it is, as a general rule, presented in the first sentence, but sometimes when there is need of a preliminary statement it is put in the second sentence. For example, at nice, the common denotation of the words to be discriminated (nice, dainty, fastidious, finicky, finicking, finical, particular, fussy, squeamish, persnickety, pernickety) is given as “exacting or displaying exacting standards (as in selection, judgment, or workmanship)”; at object (where object, protest, remonstrate, expostulate, kick are discriminated) it is “to oppose something (as a course, a procedure, a policy, or a project), especially by making known one’s arguments against it”; at delusion (where delusion, illusion, hallucination, mirage are discriminated) it is “something which is believed to be or is accepted as being true or real but which is actually false or unreal.” Each of these sentences is so worded that the part of speech of the words discriminated is made clear. For example, the wording is in the form of a definition of an adjective where the words discriminated are adjectives, in the form of a definition of a verb where the words discriminated are verbs. Some of these synonyms have other senses than the one here given, but in each such meaning the word has other synonyms and another common denotation. A distinct attempt, it may be said here, has been made to select synonyms according to their range of meaning. It has not always been possible to do so, since, occasionally, the more general word has no synonyms except more specific words (compare let in the list: let, allow, permit, suffer, leave). As a rule, however, a division between words of wide range and words of narrow range of meaning has been made, because it permits a more definite denotation for the narrower terms and makes for closer agreement and fewer differences. It is for this reason that we have separated the general terms for a political or legal agreement (agreement, accord, understanding) from those that are very explicit (contract, bargain, compact, pact, treaty, etc.), and have separated the general terms large, big, great from terms which specify unusual size (huge, vast, immense, enormous, etc.) and from terms which imply size and impressiveness (grand, magnificent, imposing, stately, etc.). But the difference between groups of synonyms is not always dependent on generality: it often implies a different emphasis or a different combination of implications. There have been many times when it was a serious question whether to add a word as a synonym to one group or to another, the arguments on both sides being of equal cogency. In such cases (for example, hellish and fiendish) the decision has usually depended on many factors, such as basic rather than derived meaning and the fact that, if certain words were treated separately, terms which are synonyms of one but not of the other could be added. Occasionally when a shared meaning makes a word a logical candidate for two synonymy groups but usage, connotation, or implication set the two aspects distinctly apart it has been included in two groups. For many reasons the problem of selecting synonyms has not been an easy one, but we have always tried to base our judgment upon evidence that was not affected by any personal prejudices or predilections.

Not all the words discriminated in this dictionary are synonyms. A few articles discuss a group of words that are sometimes wrongly taken as synonyms because they are confused or their actual meanings are misunderstood or because they once had one or more meanings which made them synonymous. In articles discussing such words the reason for their not being synonyms, whatever it may be, is stated clearly and unambiguously in the first or second sentence of the article. We have added these groups not merely because we believe them useful but because we believe that they come rightly within the province of the discriminator.

The method of discrimination is not invariably, for every set of synonyms presents its own problems. But, in general, the points of distinction are in: (1) implications—here, mostly minor ideas involved in the meaning of the word; (2) connotations—the ideas which color the word’s meaning and are the product of various influences, such as etymology, language of origin, and historical and literary association; (3) applications—the restrictions in a word’s use as prescribed by idiom or in accordance with the nature of the other words with which it may be associated, as when an adverb may be used to modify only certain kinds of verbs or when a verb may take only certain kinds of nouns as its subject or its object. Not all of the words discriminated in a single article differ in only one of these ways, however; some may differ in implications, some in connotations, some in applications, and some in more than one way. For no method adopted by the discriminator should be so artificial as to foster merely theoretical distinctions. The distinctions drawn should be real distinctions based on the evidence of recorded use—and it is such evidence, we cannot too strongly emphasize, that has guided the editors of this dictionary and has determined the distinctions set forth in its discriminating articles.
ANTONYM: ANALYSIS AND DEFINITION

There are probably few words more generally used with less understanding of their meaning than the word antonym. True, all the dictionaries define it, but often in such terms that the definition may be interpreted to include radically different conceptions. Is an antonym theoretically only one word or, at the most, one of two or three words which can be opposed to another word in a definite sense or is it any one of several words which may be opposed to it or to a group of synonymous terms? Probably because the latter conception is the easier one it has gained widespread acceptance, but still the dictionary definitions incline to back up the opinion of those who think of an antonym in the abstract as something more specialized and nearer to the former conception.

No one will dispute the right of a person to coin a term that fills a definite need or to give to that term the meaning he desires, though one may question whether the meaning assigned accords with the term’s etymology, as in the case of antonym. For C. J. Smith who, in his . . . Synonyms and Antonyms (1867), introduced this term (which, in his own phrasing, “he has ventured, not to coin, but to reissue”) adopted it primarily because of its analogy to synonym and knew that only by considerable stretching could the meaning he proposed for it be made to approach the meaning of what he thought of as its Greek original. Despite his recognition of this fact, the term seemed to Smith preferable to counterterm, though he acknowledged that some persons might still prefer the latter. As for definition, he related synonym and antonym. “Words,” he wrote, “which agree in expressing one or more characteristic ideas in common [that is, with a given term] he has regarded as Synonyms, those which negative one or more such ideas he has called Antonyms.”

Therefore, no one is likely to dispute the right of a later investigator to examine anew the meaning of a coined word questionably grounded and vaguely defined that has become established in the language. In fact, there is not only the right but a duty on the part of such an investigator when, as in the case of antonym, he finds that there is a great difference between the theory, as manifested in the definition, and the practice, as manifested in selection. There will always be strict constructionists and loose constructionists but, in this case at least, the difference is more apparent than real, for many of the latter have been forced into this position by the practical difficulties confronting them in the selection of antonyms, rather than by in-difference to the concept involved.

What we propose to do here, then, is to examine the word antonym, to determine the concept it involves, and to state its definition in as clear terms as possible. When we find a term like this used frequently with such qualifying words as exact and true (the “exact antonym” of this word; the “true antonym”), we must suspect an attempt on the part of men to approximate an ideal.

Modern unabridged dictionaries, without exception, define antonym with comparative strictness. It is “a word of opposite meaning” (Webster’s New International Dictionary, Second Edition9), “a term which is the opposite or antithesis of another, a counter-term” (Oxford English Dictionary), “a word directly opposed to another in meaning; a counterterm: the opposite of synonym” (Funk and Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary), “a counterterm; an opposite; an antithetical word: the opposite of synonym” (Century Dictionary), and “a word that is an opposite in meaning of a particular word” (New Century Dictionary). In all of these definitions, the burden is on the word opposite or opposed; and, it should be added, all differences of opinion as to the criteria for determining antonyms are due to uncertainty as to what is meant by opposite or opposed. The physical connotations of these words always stand in the way of a strict definition of their abstract senses. How complex is the concept of opposition may be seen from the following analysis of its physical connotations.

Opposition is a relation involved when two things are so placed that: (1) they may be connected by a straight line (straightness as distinguished from obliquity being determined by external conditions such as the lines of a room) drawn from one to another (as, opposite windows); (2) they lie at either end of an axis, diameter, or the like (as, opposite points on the earth’s surface); (3) they are contiguous but reversed in position (as, the opposite halves of the globe); (4) they face each other, the distance apart being of no consequence (as, partners stand opposite); (5) they depart or diverge from each other (as, to go their opposite ways); (6) they work against each other (as, opposite forces); (7) they cannot exist together, because they reverse or undo each other (as, the opposite processes of growth and decay); (8) they represent the obverse and the reverse (as, the opposite faces of a coin).

What this relation is both materially and immaterially and in all instances is, frankly, hard to determine. It is not invariably the confrontation of one with another, for “persons who go their opposite ways” and the opposite processes of growth and decay, for example, do not respond to this test; it is hardly complete divergence or difference, for “the opposite halves of the globe” and the opposite faces of a coin represent difference only in one or more particulars, otherwise remaining fundamentally alike; it is still less antagonism or irreconcilability, for there is no hint of either in the opposite position of partners in a dance or in opposite windows. Although some of these ideas exist as implications distinguishing meanings of the word opposite, they do not yield any fundamental meaning which is involved in every sense. One can go no further than to say that opposite represents a setting of one thing against another so as to sharpen their differences or to reveal their divergencies.

9 Same in Webster’s Third New International.

It will be necessary, therefore, to get at what is meant by "opposite meaning" in another way. First, let us take the words listed as antonyms in the dictionaries and manuals of synonyms and antonyms and see into what classifications they fall. When possible, we will offer a classification known to logic, but when not possible, we will form our own, naming it in unambiguous terms.

A large number of words listed as antonyms fall into two well-known logical categories, those of contradictory terms (or contradictories) and contrary terms (or contraries).

(1) Contradictory terms are so opposed to each other that they are mutually exclusive and admit no possibility between them. If either is true, the other must be false; if either is false, the other must be true. Examples:—A thing is either perfect or imperfect: no matter how slight or how extensive the imperfection, the fact remains that the thing cannot be called perfect if any flaw, blemish, or defect exists. If a person is asked for his opinion, he may agree with that of others, or he may disagree, or differ: it is unimportant whether the disagreement is radical or superficial or the difference concerns a major or a very minor point; he cannot be said to agree.

(2) Contrary terms are so opposed in meaning that the language admits no greater divergence. They are the true "diametrical opposites." But they must be of or must apply to things of the same genus or fundamental kind. Thus, white and black represent the extremes in color, the former, as popularly understood, implying the absorption of all colors and the latter implying the privation of every vestige of color. Prodigal and parsimonious represent extremes in expenditure (chiefly of money), but prodigal implies excessive extravagance and parsimonious excessive frugality. Superiority and inferiority represent extremes judged by a standard of what is good. Between these extremes represented by each of these pairs of examples, there are many words which may more truly describe or designate the person or thing in question.

Other classes are the following:

(3) Many words are listed as antonyms that normally appear in pairs. Some are what the logician calls relative terms, pairs of words which indicate such a relationship that one of them cannot be used without suggesting the other; as, parent and child, husband and wife, predecessor and successor, employee and employer. Others are complementary terms involving, usually, a reciprocal relation or the incompleteness of one unless the other follows; as, question and answer, attack and defend, stimulus and response.

(4) An important class of words sometimes listed in antimonies may be called for want of a better name reverse terms: these comprise adjectives or adverbs which signify a quality or verbs or nouns which signify an act or state that reverse or undo the quality, act, or state of the other. Although they are neither contradictory nor contrary terms, they present a clear opposition. Their addition is usually justified in this way: if the antonym of admit is reject, what shall we do with eject which implies not the negative but the reverse of admit? if the antonym of destructive is harmless, must we ignore constructive, which goes further and implies either the reverse or the undoing of destructive? Many words of the reverse type are often equal in value; sometimes they are even stronger than the first.

(5) There is still a class of words listed as antonyms, which are neither contradictionary nor contraries nor reverse terms, which do, however, present a sharp contrast—for example, such pairs as rich and destitute, dry and moist, and keep and abandon. This is one of the most perplexing of classes and one that appears very frequently in antonym lists. Such words may be designated contrasted terms. We shall return to them later.

(6) The last class of so-called antonyms is very inclusive. Words in this class might be called "loosely contrasted terms," since, when they are presented side by side with the word of which they are given as antonyms, they never fully clash but show a difference in only a small part of their meaning (as, abstruse and superficial, frank and hypocritical, vigilant and careless). For the sake of uniformity, however, we will call them incompatibles, for they usually cannot both at the same time be said of or applied to the same person or thing. Frank means open and free in one's talk and uninhibited by any restraints, such as fear, whereas hypocritical means presenting an appearance of being other and usually better than one is; abstruse means so remote from the range of ordinary human experience that there is difficulty in comprehension, while superficial, in this limited sense, means not penetrating below the surface or exterior so as to unveil what lies behind. So put, there is not the slightest sign of a clash in meaning, yet the difference which confuses, though slight, is there, for the person who is called frank gives the appearance of sincerity and the person who is called hypocritical is adjudged insincere. Similarly, a work that is spoken of as abstruse differs from a work that is spoken of as superficial in that the one is profound, the other shallow. It is sincere and insincere (not frank and hypocritical), and profound and shallow (not abstruse and superficial) which clash. in meaning. Since this class is based upon a mistake in analysis, it will be eliminated from the discussion.

If, then, we were to make a definition of antonym according to the type of word which dictionaries and manuals select as such, it would be phrased something like this: "An antonym is a word that so differs from another word that it represents its contradictory, its contrary, its relative (or counterpart), its complement, its reverse, its contrasted term, or its incompatible in some way or degree." That this is too inclusive a definition is obvious. No one, it seems fair to state, would define in terms as broad as this the word antonym as it is understood in concept; yet everyone who has made it his business to select antonyms is aware of the dangers involved and of the difficulty in avoiding the questionable types. An easygoing attitude is not chiefly responsible for this wide diversity. The English language was clearly not made to measure: it was not devised to show likenesses or differences. The discovery both of words which are closely alike and of words which are sharply different is, for the most part, the product of the need for expressing ideas or of understanding expressed ideas. No mechanical shaping power sets words right before men begin to use them.

It must be remembered that the task of selecting antonyms is imposed upon a living structure, in a desire to know its resources and so far as possible bend it to our needs. The selection not only of antonyms but also of synonyms is similar, at least in aim, to the scientist's classification of animals into orders, families, genera, and species. Both help us in the understanding and mastery of the material involved. When an old system breaks down in its study of the animal world, a new one must arise. None is perfect, but each is a help in bringing within the range of human understanding something that would otherwise be too vast for study and beyond the range of experience of any one man. So we proceed to study synonyms, words which closely resemble each other not in particular ways but in the very heart of their meaning, that we may know them better and use them more wisely, more precisely, and more effectively.

We should like to do the same thing with antonyms. It is good, we feel, to know the exact antonym of a word, for not only will it give us a firmer grasp of the meaning of the word to which it is opposed but inversely, of itself. Is there any test that will help us in discovering such words, that we may be enabled not only to speak and to write more expressively but to have a richer understanding of the pages of men who have known how to express themselves? There is a word in Smith's definition of antonym which may give us the clue, "those [words] which negative one or more such ideas he has called Antonyms." In fact, even today, some persons argue that an antonym is "the exact negative" of a word. It is not clear just what this is intended to mean. Taken quite literally and expressed in the phraseology of logic an "exact negative" is a word's contradictory term. But this is too narrow, as even those who vigorously support this definition must agree. By the terms of its definition, a word's contradictory must be the equivalent in meaning of its not-compound. Otherwise the two terms (a word and its contradictory) could not be mutually exclusive. Let us see this in tabular form.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>word</th>
<th>not-compound</th>
<th>contradictory</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>colored</td>
<td>not-colored</td>
<td>colorless</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>perfect</td>
<td>not-perfect</td>
<td>imperfect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>agree</td>
<td>not-agree</td>
<td>disagree or differ</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

So put, it is obvious that there is no disagreement between the not-term and contradictory: in this case the negative and the opposite agree. The trouble comes, however, with the naming of the antonym. As a matter of practical policy, if we accept the "exact negative" as the antonym, we must restrict ourselves to the very few contradictories which have an independent form, and to the very few in-, un-, dis- and similar compounds which are obviously contradictory terms. But if we wish completeness, we must supply antonyms for the vast majority of English words by constructing a not-form. That might do in logic, but it would not do when greater knowledge of the English language exists as our clear aim. Moreover, we feel the lack of the clash that gives so much savor to the antonym.

On the other hand, it is clear that the other terms listed as antonyms do not equal the "exact negative." The logical contradictory of white (not-white) may include any chromatic color or any other achromatic color, yet the contrary, or diametrical opposite, is only black: the logical contradictory of parsimonious (not-parsimonious) may include many terms, such as liberal, extravagant, prodigal, yet the contrary, or diametrical opposite, is prodigal; not-liking may include both indifference and aversion, but no one will question that aversion is the contrary of liking. Even more obvious is the difference between the logical contradictory and the relative or the complementary term, for in this case they neither represent nor include the same thing. Not-attack, for example, does not equal defend; not-husband is not the equivalent of wife; and not-stimulus does not in any way approach response.

More important than relative and complementary terms (most of which may be doubted, with good reason, to be the antonyms of each other) are the terms which take a reverse as the opposite. While the not-term in these cases often equals or includes a word that is called the term’s antonym, it is never equivalent with what may be called the “reverse antonym.” For instance, not-admit equals reject, but it does not cover the reverse of admit, which may be either eject or expel; not-abandon may include keep, but it cannot be interpreted to cover the reverse of abandon, which is reclaim.

One class of words listed as antonyms remains for our consideration, contrasted terms. As has been said, this class covers a large number of words the listing of which as antonyms puzzles rather than enlightens the reader. It is easy to prove that they cannot be “exact negatives.” For example, keep, which is often given as the antonym of abandon, is not its contradictory, for the logical contradictory (not-keep) also includes sell, lose, give away, and many other words; rich is not the contradictory of destitute, for the logical contrary not-rich includes needy, indigent, poor, comfortable, and many other terms as well as destitute. But this does not get at the heart of the matter and display what is wrong with these terms. Obviously also, they are not contraries, for they do not represent extremes of divergence as do parsimonious and prodigal or white and black. What is the matter with them? In answering this question, we will find the clue to the solution of our problem.

Superficially viewed, these contrasted terms differ sharply in some part, but not in all parts, of their meaning. They do not clash full force. One term covers more ground than the other, or one term is more explicit in its implications than the other. The logician would say that they equal each other neither in extension nor in intension. Put more simply, they differ (1) in their range of application or applicability, one being general, the other specific, or one being more inclusive or less inclusive than the other, and (2) in their depth of meaning—that is, in the number and quality of implications contained in the terms. It is clear that keep is more general than abandon and that to equal it in generality and at the same time to negate (or, much better, to negate) its implications, relinquish would be a better choice: it is clear that abandon has more specific implications than are found in keep, such as surrender of possession or control and relegation to the mercy of others, and that a word which exactly equates these implications in number and quality yet, at the same time, negates them must be the true antonym. There seems to be no term that fills these demands except a “reverse term,” one that undoes what has been accomplished by the act of abandoning. That term is reclaim in its definite sense of regaining control or possession of something and giving it full care and attention. Rich is too broad and general to pair with the very explicit destitute. There are many implications in the latter which have no clear parallel in rich. Only poor could be opposed to rich in breadth of extension and in vagueness of intension, because rich suggests more possessions than one needs, and poor suggests fewer possessions than one requires and so negates in full the meaning of the other. On the other hand, opulent could be opposed to destitute in narrowness of extension and in explicitness of intension, for destitute suggests the miserable condition where one is deprived of all that is needed for bare existence and opulent the felicitous condition where everything that is desired is possessed in abundance. Though rich and poor come close together (the dividing line being marked by such a word as comfortable) and destitute and opulent are very far apart, being in fact “diametrical opposites,” each represents the negation of the other.

In this way wet, because it equals dry in range of meaning and negates dry in number and quality of implications, is the antonym of dry, whereas damp and moist are merely contrasted terms to dry; alleviate for the same reasons is the antonym of aggravate, and mitigate, assuage, and allay are nothing more than contrasted terms; elevation in the sense of promotion is the antonym of degradation in the sense of demotion, for it contains implications not found in preferment or advancement.

In selecting antonyms, therefore, one should be on guard to match in range of meaning the word from which one starts and to negate every one of its implications so that the opposition is complete. Otherwise the opposing words do not clash full force, one word covering more or less ground than the other or exhibiting differences not apparent in the other. It is for this reason that in this dictionary we have preferred to give contrasted words as distinct from antonyms, not denying or ignoring the value of the former in word study but emphasizing the unique, disciplinary value of the latter.

It is for a similar reason that we have ruled out relative and complementary terms as antonyms of each other. Pairs of words of this class are, it is true, usually matched in extension, but one of the pair seldom negates the intension of the other. Rather they suggest union, convergence, or completion when taken together. Husband and wife, employer and employee are different elements in a combination, which we may call opposites not in the sense of negating each other but of fulfilling each other. The same is true of stimulus and response, of question and answer. Without the former the latter could not be: without the latter the former remains incomplete. An occasional instance, however, remains, such as attack and defend. Since these come as close to reverse terms as they do to complementary terms, they may be treated as the former.

The foregoing analysis would seem to leave us with three classes as possible antonyms: contradictory, contrary, and reverse terms. It is true that, in general, all antonyms may be fitted into each of these classes. But, as the first two classes are the creation of logicians, who are dealing with symbols rather than with words, they are somewhat too rigid or too artificial for our use. Whether good and bad, right and wrong, true and false are contradictionary or contraries might be disputed: it is wiser, for our purposes, not to raise this issue. They still remain antonyms according to our tests. So do a large number of more specific terms, which are equated in range of meaning and are negated in their specific implications, such as extol and decry, aboveboard and underhand, constant and fitful (as applied to things), adulation and abuse. The designation "reverse term" may also be dropped now that its purpose in exposition has been served. There are only three tests which should be applied to a word selected as the antonym of another word, and these are stated in the following definition:

An antonym is a word so opposed in meaning to another word, its equal in breadth or range of application, that it negates or nullifies every single one of its implications.

It is this definition that has guided the selection of antonyms in this dictionary. Not every entry, of course, exhibits an antonym, for there are many words that have no antonym. In some few cases, moreover, we have been unable to supply any word that meets the three tests of the above definition or have been obliged to resort to an approximation. In such cases, we always welcome intelligent criticism that may enable us to supply these gaps. But, for the most part, where an antonym is listed, the editors rely upon its self-justification to the consultant who will apply these tests.

THE TREATMENT OF ANTONYMS

A few words should be added to clarify the practice of this dictionary in regard to antonyms. They form an important part of its makeup; but, as they do not require much space, their significance may be overlooked. It must be emphasized that each antonym is directly related to its entry word in the special sense in which that word is discriminated. It bears not a loose relation but a very close one to that word, and even though it may also be the antonym of some other word (especially of a synonym of the entry word) it must be judged only by the relation it bears to the entry word with which it is associated. Sometimes, however, the antonym fits that word only when it is used in a narrowed sense or in a narrow application. This limitation is indicated in a parenthetical phrase with words in italics. Thus, at abet, we have as antonym "deter (with a personal subject)" and at actuate, "deter (with a motive or fear as the subject)." A simpler instance is the antonym at brilliant, in the sense of bright, which reads "subdued (of light, color)." At other times, the entry word is so inclusive that it takes more than one antonym to cover it. Then some indication is given of the differing collocations in which each antonym appears. Thus, check, as a synonym of restrain, has for its antonyms "accelerate (of speed); advance (of movements, plans, hopes); release (of feelings, energies)." A cross reference (introduced by "see") following an antonym is merely an indication of the sense in which it is used. Thus, close, as a synonym of silent and reticent, takes open as its antonym, but the sense in which open is used here is made clear by the cross reference to frank, where the word open is discriminated.

ANALOGOUS AND CONTRASTED WORDS

The essential part of this dictionary consists of the synonyms and their discriminations and of the antonyms of the words thus discriminated. With these, judged from the point of view of one who is interested in the clarification of the differences in meaning between synonyms and in finding their direct opposites, it is a complete work. Yet for those who use this book as a word finder or as a vocabulary builder, there might be something lacking if it went no further. It is in view of the needs of such consultants that we have added lists of analogous words and of contrasted words.

Some of the analogous words or terms closely related in meaning merit the name of "near synonyms," so close are they to the vocabulary entry: some contain much the same implications as the entry word, but the implication that they emphasize is not the same as that expressed in the common denotation of the discriminated group of which the entry word forms a part. Some are more general than the entry word, some more specific; some come together in only a part of their meaning. But in some important particulars they are all like the word under which they are listed.

So, too, with contrasted words, or terms sharply differing in meaning from the entry word. Some are close synonyms of its antonym, but many are opposed to it only in part of their meaning. Through these lists the consultant who is seeking a word may find exactly the one he needs or the student may discover a useful means of extending his vocabulary.

These aims are made practical and easy of attainment by an additional aid which no work on synonyms has hitherto given the consultant. Terms listed as analogous words and contrasted words are arranged in groups, all of which are discriminated in this book. Most of the words are themselves directly discriminated, cross reference to the entry where the article is given being made by means of an asterisk or a reference introduced by "see": a few that are not themselves directly discriminated are closely dependent on words that are, as by being their derivatives or inflected forms, or by being their negatives, and are thereby covered by the article to which a clear cross reference is made. Thus, at amenity (in the sense of courtesy) the list of analogous words contains: (1) civility, politeness, courteousness, plus a cross reference to the article at civil, where civil, polite, courteous are discriminated; (2) graciousness, affability, cordiality, geniality, sociability plus a cross reference to gracious, where gracious, affable, cordial, genial, sociable are discriminated. Similarly, among the contrasted words at banal are stimulating or stimulative, provoking or provocative, exciting, piquing, which, though not discriminated themselves, are fully covered by the article at provoke, where their corresponding verbs are treated. Through the cross reference, then the consultant can find the meaning of every term in the word lists, and can sharpen his sense of their differences.

It is perhaps unnecessary to point out that the selection of words in each of these lists is not determined by the group of synonyms but by the one word at whose entry the list appears. As a result, each vocabulary entry is complete in itself: it has not only its synonyms and antonym or antonyms, but also analogous words which are closely related to it and contrasted words which are sharply opposed to it. It is thus treated as a unit, and all essential information is gathered about it.
The left-hand column below consists of entries or, usually, parts of entries selected from the main vocabulary to illustrate the principal devices used in this dictionary. The right-hand column provides explanations of these devices.

| acustomed | wonted, customary, habitual, usual |
| acoustic, acoustical | auditory |
| adamant, adamantine | obdurate, inexorable, inflexible |
| adept | expert, wizard, artiste, artist, virtuoso |
| adept | proficient, skilled, skillful, expert, masterly |
| affection | feeling, emotion, passion, sentiment |
| affection | disease, disorder, condition, ailment, malady, complaint, distemper, syndrome |
| aggravate | 1. heighten, intensify, enhance |
| aggravate | 2. exasperate, irritate, provoke, rile, peeve, nettle |
| alarm | 1. (Alarm, tocsin, alert) agree in meaning a signal that serves as a call to action or to be on guard especially in a time of imminent danger. (Alarm) is used of any signal that arouses to activity not only troops, but emergency workers (as firemen, policemen); it suggests a sound such as a cry, a pealing of a bell, a beating of drums, or a siren; sound a fire alarm. (Tocsin) may be either an alarm sounded by bells usually from the belfry of a church or, more often, the bells sounding an alarm. (Tocsin tolled their last alarm—Campbell) but is used figuratively for any sort of warning of danger. (Alert) a military term for a signal to be on guard and ready for expected enemy action, is often used for any warning of danger. (Sirens sounded an air-raid alert) (the Weather Bureau issued a tornado alert in early afternoon . . . . The alert was cancelled after 5 P.M.—Springfield Union) |
| ardor | fervor, enthusiasm, zeal, passion |
| articulation | 1. integration, concatenation (see under INTEGRATE vb) |
| aspiration | reflection, animadversion, stricture |
| aspiration | (Anal) libel, lampoon, pasquade, squib, skit abuse, vituperation, infective, obloquy; *detraction, backbiting, calumny, slander, scandal |
| aspiration | (Con) praise, laudation, extolling, eulogizing or eulogy |
| assortment | see corresponding adjective assorted at MISCELLANEOUS |
| assurance | alleviate, relieve, mitigate, lighten, allay |
| assurance | exacerbate, intensify |
| austere | severe, stern, ascetic |
| austere | luscious (of fruits); warm, ardent (of persons); feelings); exuberant (of style, quality) |

---

The place where this article is to be found is indicated by an asterisk prefixed to one of the words in the list or by a reference introduced by the word “see.”

Each vocabulary entry is provided (where the facts require or permit) with “finding lists” of two kinds: Analogous Words introduced by the label Ana and Contrasted Words introduced by Con.

Words given in these finding lists are divided into groups. Each group consists of words discriminated (or related to those discriminated) in a single article. The groups are separated from one another by boldface colons. Words within each group are separated by commas. The place of entry of the article discussing each group is indicated by an asterisk or a “see” reference (see §7).

In the lists of Antonyms italic notations in parentheses indicate the limited use or application in which the preceding word is to be taken.
A DICTIONARY OF DISCRIMINATED SYNONYMS
WITH ANTONYMS AND ANALOGOUS AND CONTRASTED WORDS

abaft
abaft, aft, astern are nautical terms meaning behind or to or at the rear of. Abaft and aft are applied to objects or their positions in a ship. Abaft (opposed to afore) commonly suggests position relatively nearer the stern or rear part of the ship 〈his station is abaft the foremost〉 〈the wave struck her abaft the beam〉 Aft (opposed to forward) suggests position actually in that part of the ship to the rear of the midship section 〈they went aft to hoist the main-sail〉 〈a cabin aft of the lounge〉 Astern (opposed to ahead) chiefly implies position outside and to the rear of a ship 〈the wake astern of a ship〉 〈a brisk breeze astern〉

Ana after, rear, back, *posterior, hind, hinder
Ant afore —Con ahead, forward, *before
Abandon vb 1 Abandon, desert, forsake mean to quit absolutely. Abandon implies surrender of control or possession often with the implication that the thing abandoned is left to the mercy of someone or something else 〈the ghost of grandeur that lingers between the walls of abandoned haciendas in New Mexico—Mary Austin〉 〈in the frantic rush to escape the insane had usually been forgotten and abandoned to horrible deaths—Heiser〉 Abandoned, forsaken, deserted, forsaken, and abandoned suggest position relatively nearer the stern or rear part of a ship 〈the wake astern of a ship〉 〈a brisk breeze astern〉

Ana after, rear, back, *posterior, hind, hinder
Abandoned: forsaken, deserted, abandoned

Ant before —Con ahead, forward, *before abase

abase, abase, demean, debase, degrade, humble, humiliate are synonymous when they denote to lower in one's own estimation or in that of others. Abase suggests loss of dignity or prestige without necessarily implying permanency in that loss. When used reflexively it connotes *keep, retain: treasure, prize (see APPRECIATE): *maintain, assert, defend: inhibit, bridle, curb (see RESTRAIN)

Ana license, *freedom, liberty: relaxation, laxity or laxness, looseness (see LOOSE)
Ant self-restraint —Con repression, suppression (see SUPPRESS): self-possession, aplomb (see CONFIDENCE): poise (see BALANCE, TACT)

Abandoned, reprobate, profligate, dissolute fundamentally mean utterly depraved. Abandoned and reprobate were originally applied to sinners and to their acts. One who is abandoned by his complete surrender to a life of sin seems spiritually lost or morally irreclaimable 〈I disdain . . . to paint her as she is, cruel, abandoned, glorying in her shame!—Cowper〉 One who is reprobate is abandoned and therefore rejected by God or by his fellows; reprobate implies ostracism by or exclusion from a social group for a serious offense against its code 〈don't count on my appearing your friend too openly . . . remember always that I'm a reprobate old clergyman—Hugh Walpole〉

Profligate and dissolute convey little if any suggestion of divine or social condemnation but both imply complete moral breakdown and self-indulgence to such an extent that all standards of morality and prudence are disregarded. One who is profligate openly and shamelessly flouts all the decencies and wastes his substance in dissipation 〈rescue the Empire from being gambled away by incapable or profligate aristocrats—Froude〉 One who is dissolute has completely thrown off all moral and prudential restraints on the indulgence of his appetites 〈see them spend—Shaw〉

Ana depraved, debauched, perverted, debased (see under DEBASE); degenerate, corrupt (see VICIOUS): wanton, lewd, lascivious, libidinous, lecherous (see LICENTIOUS)
Ant redeemed, regenerate —Con saved, rescued, reclaimed, delivered (see RESCUE)

Abase, demean, debase, degrade, humble, humiliate are synonymous when they denote to lower in one's own estimation or in that of others. Abase suggests loss of dignity or prestige without necessarily implying permanency in that loss. When used reflexively it connotes humbly, abjection, or a sense of one's inferiority; in this reflexive use humble is often used interchangeably <whosoever exalted himself shall be abased (DV and RV humbled); and he that humbled himself shall be exalted —Lk 14:11> Demean implies less humility than abase but is stronger in its implications of loss of dignity or social standing <it was . . . Mrs. Sedley's opinion that her son would demean himself by a marriage with an artist's daughter—Thackeray> Debase emphasizes deprecation in value or quality; it is more often used of things <debase the currency> but when used of persons it commonly connotes weakening of moral standards or of the moral character <officeholders debase themselves by accepting bribes> <struggle with Hannibal had debased the Roman temper—Buchan> Degrade stresses a lowering in plane rather than in rank and often conveys a strong implication of the shameful condition of the to which someone or something has been reduced <that she and Charlotte, two spent old women, should be . . . talking to each other of hatred, seemed unimaginably hideous and degrading—Wharton> Often (especially in degradation) it connotes actual degeneracy or corruption <it was by that unscrupulous person's liquor her husband had been degraded—Hardy> Humble is frequently used in place of degrade in the sense of demote when the ignominy of the reduction in rank is emphasized <we are pleased . . . to see him taken down and humbled—Spectator> When it is employed without any implication of demotion, it often suggests a salutary increase of humility or the realization of one's own littleness or impotence <it was one of those illnesses from which we turn away our eyes, shuddering and humbled—Deland> Occasionally it implies a lowering in station <in such a man . . . a race illustrious for heroic deeds, humbled, but not degraded, may expire—Wordsworth> Humiliate, once a close synonym of humble, now comes closer to mortify, for it stresses chagrin and shame <when we ask to be humbled, we must not recoil from being humiliated—Rossetti> Anna cringe, truckle, cower, *fawn, toady: grovel (see WALLOW): abash, discomfit, disconcert, *embarrass; mortify (see corresponding adjective at ASHAMED) Anna extol: exalt (especially oneself) —Con magnify, aggravandise (see EXALT): elevate, *lift, raise: laud, acclaim, *praise abash discomfit, *embarrass, disconcert, faze, rattle Anna fluster, flurry, *discompose, perturb, disturb, agitate; chagrin, mortify (see corresponding adjectives at ASHAMED) Abound: confound, dumbfound, nonplus (see PUZZLE) Abate 1 *abolish, extinguish, annhilate Ann end, terminate (see CLOSE): *annul, void, abrogate: cancel, obliterare (see ERASE): *nullify, invalidate Ant perpetuate —Con *continue, last, persist, abide 2 reduce, diminish, *decrease, lessen Anna retard, slow, slacken, *delay: *moderate, temper: mitigate, lighten, alleviate (see RELIEVE) Ant augment: accelerate (pace, speed): intensify (hopes, fears, a fever) —Con *increase, multiply, enlarge: aggravate, heighten, enhance (see INTENSIFY): *speed, quicken, hurry 3 abate, subside, wane, ebb all mean to die down in force or intensity; all imply previous approach to a high point and present movement or decline towards a vanishing point. Abate, however, stresses the idea of progressive diminution in intensity while subside suggests falling to a low level and cessation of turbulence or agitation <the wind is abating: the waves are subsiding> The revolutionary spirit has abated—Grandgent> The child's quick temper subsided into listlessness under the fierce Italian heat—Replier> Wane adds to abate the implications of fading or weakening; it tends, therefore, to be used of things that have value or excellence as well as force and intensity <after the first flush of excitement, the interest of doctors, nurses, and patients all began to wane—Heiser> Ebb adds to abate the suggestion of recession or of gradual loss; it is idiomatically associated with things subject to fluctuation <ebbng vitality is often a warning of illness> <there were many, many stages in the ebbing of her love for him, but it was always ebbing—D. H. Lawrence> Anna dwindle, diminish, *decrease Ant rise: revive —Con *increase, augment: *expand, swell, dilate: mount, soar, tower, surge (see RISE) Abatement *deduction, rebate, discount Ant addition —Con increment, accretion, accession (see ADDITION): increase, augmentation, enlargement (see corresponding verbs at INCREASE) Abbeviate *shorten, abridge, curtail Anna reduce, *decrease, lessen, *contract, compress, shrink, condense: attenuate, extenuate (see THIN) Ant elongate, lengthen —Con *extend, prolong, protract: enlarge, *increase; *expand, amplify, dilate abdicate, renounce, resign are synonymous when they are used in the sense of to give up formally or definitely a position of trust, honor, or glory, or its concomitant authority or prerogatives. Abdicate is the precise word to use when that which is relinquished involves sovereign or inherent power; it is applied specifically to the act of a monarch who gives up his throne, but in extended use it may also be applied to any act involving surrender of an inherent dignity or claim to preeminence (the father image of the chancellor casts a long and overpowering shadow over a people which has in the past abdicated its political thinking and social sovereignty to the paternalistic leader—Handler) Renounce is often used in place of abdicate <the king renounced his throne> especially when sacrifice for a greater end is intentionally implied. So strong is this implication and also that of finality in renounce (see also ABJURE) that it and its derivative renunciation often connote self-denial or surrender for the sake of moral or spiritual discipline. Consequently one renounces not only a right, a title, an inheritance, but also some desired or desirable possession <she remains . . . the sort of woman who has renounced all happiness for herself and who lives only for a principle—T. S. Eliot> Resign is used in reference chiefly to positions held on tenure and formally relinquished; ordinarily it implies asking permission to leave a position or office before the expiration of a term. Anna *relinquish, surrender, abandon, leave Ant assume: usurp —Con *arrogate, appropriate, confiscate Abdomen, belly, stomach, paunch, gut are synonyms when naming the front part of the human trunk below the chest <crawl on his stomach> <crawl on his belly> <an appendectomy scar on his abdomen> In technical usage abdomen more specifically denotes the cavity below the diaphragm (and sometimes above the brim of the pelvis) together with the structures in that cavity and the walls (often the front wall) enclosing it  <the risks inherent in all surgery on the abdomen> Stomach in non-technical use is interchangeable with abdomen but technically it is restricted to the saccular abdominal organ in which the earlier processes of digestion take place  <the digesting mass or chyme in the stomach> is continually churned . . . by muscular activity of the walls—Potter> Belly and paunch are decidedly informal terms that, when used in place of abdomen, suggest roundness and protuberance <fell flat on his belly in the abduct, *kidnap are sometimes employed without distinction as denoting to carry off (a person) surreptitiously for an illegal purpose. In general use, *kidnap is the more specific term because it connotes seizure and detention for ransom. In law, however, the reverse is true, for the verbs acquire their meanings from the rigid technical definitions of *kidnapping and *abduction. *Kidnapping is the legal term of wider application, implying that a person has been seized by violence or fraud and detained against his will or that of his legal guardian. *Abduction is the carrying off of a girl (usually one below the legal age of consent), either against her will or with her consent, for marriage or seduction. Consequently in law *kidnapping and *abduction can be used interchangeably only when the person carried off is a girl below a fixed age, or when seizure and detention are against her will and the motive is marriage or rape. *Ana *seduce, entice, *lure, inveigle *Con *rescue, ransom, redeem, deliver *Aberrant atypical, *abnormal *Ana divergent, *different, disparate: *irregular, anomalous, unnatural: *exceptional: singular, peculiär, odd, *strange, eccentric *Ant true (to a type) —*Con *usual, wonted, customary: normal, *regular, typical, natural *Aberration 1 *deviation, deflection *Ana abnormality, aberrancy (see *ABNORMAL): *error, blunder, mistake, slip, lapse: *fault, failing: abnormality (see PARADOX) *Ant conformity: regularity —*Con normality (see REGULAR): norm, *average, mean: agreement, correspondence, accord (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) 2 *Aberration, *Derangement, *Alienation, as here compared, denote mental disorder. *Aberration while usable to designate any form of mental unsoundness typically denotes a minor or transitory disorder insufficient to constitute insanity. *Derangement applies to any functional mental disturbance whether permanent or not. *Alienation implies an estrangement from a normal or usual mental or emotional state (I had been two or three nights without sleep, and I had fallen into the state of alienation that fatigue brings on—Webber) and in forensic use specifically denotes a state <I had been two or three nights without sleep, and I had fallen into the state of alienation that fatigue brings on—Webber) and in forensic use specifically denotes a state of mind (see ABNORMAL) that is abnormal, divergent, different, disparate: irregular, anomalous, unnatural: exceptional: singular, peculiar, odd, strange, eccentric.

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

*Ana *abnormality, aberrancy (see ABNORMAL): *error, blunder, mistake, slip, lapse: *fault, failing: abnormality (see PARADOX) *Ant conformity: regularity —*Con normality (see REGULAR): norm, *average, mean: agreement, correspondence, accord (see corresponding verbs at AGREE) 2 *Aberration, *Derangement, *Alienation, as here compared, denote mental disorder. *Aberration while usable to designate any form of mental unsoundness typically denotes a minor or transitory disorder insufficient to constitute insanity. *Derangement applies to any functional mental disturbance whether permanent or not. *Alienation implies an estrangement from a normal or usual mental or emotional state (I had been two or three nights without sleep, and I had fallen into the state of alienation that fatigue brings on—Webber) and in forensic use specifically denotes a becoming or being insane. *Ana *insanity, lunacy, mania, dementia: *delusion, hallucination, illusion: *mania, delirium, hysteria, frenzy *Ant soundness (of mind) *Abet *incite, foment, instigate *Ana *aid, assist, *help: back, *support, uphold: cooperate, concur (see UNITE): forward, further, promote (see ADVANCE) *Ant deter (with a personal subject) —*Con *frustrate, thwart, foil, balk, circumvent *Abettor accessory, accomplice, *confederate, conspirator *Abeyant dormant, quiescent, *latent, potential *Ana deferred, suspended, postponed, stayed, intermitted (see DEFER): suppressed, repressed (see SUPPRESS) *Ant operative: active: revived —*Con live, dynamic (see ACTIVE): *living, alive: renewed, restored, refreshed (see RENEW) *Ana *abhor, abominate, loathe, detest, *hate *Ana *despise, contempt, scorn: shun, avoid, eschew (see ESCAPE) *Ant admire (persons, their qualities, acts): enjoy (things which are a matter of taste) —*Con *like, love, relish, dote: cherish, treasure, prize, value (see APPRECIATE): court, woo, solicit (see INVITE): esteem, respect, regard (see REGARD) *Abhorrence detestation, loathing, abomination, hatred, hate (see under HATE vb) *Ana *distaste, repugnance, repellency (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT): horror, dismay (see FEAR) *Ant admiration: enjoyment —*Con esteem, *regard, respect: liking, relish (see LIKE vb): love, affection, attachment *Abhorrent 1 abominable, *hateful, detestable, odious *Ana *contemptible, despicable, scurrvy: execrable, damnable *Ant admirable: enjoyable —*Con grateful, agreeable, *pleasant, pleasing, gratifying, welcome: *delightful, delectable 2 *repugnant, repellent, obnoxious, distasteful, invidious *Ana *antipathetic: uncongenial, unsympathetic (see INCONSONANT): foreign, alien (see EXTRINSIC) *Ant congenial —*Con attractive, alluring, captivating (see under ATTRACT): tempting, enticing, seductive (see corresponding verbs at LURE) *Abide 1 *stay, wait, remain, tarry, linger *Ana *dwell, *reside, live, sojourn, lodge: *stick, cleave, cling, adhere *Ant depart —*Con go, leave, quit: *move, remove, shift 2 endure, last, persist, *continue *Ana *stay, remain, linger; subsist, exist, live (see BE) *Ant pass vi —*Con *flee, fly, *escape: *frit 3 endure, *bear, suffer, tolerate, stand, brook *Ana submit, *yield, bow, defer: acquiesce, accede, consent (see ASSENT): accept, *receive, take *Con withstand, oppose, combat, *resist: *decline, refuse, spurn: shun, avoid, evade, elude (see ESCAPE) *Ability, capacity, capability are often confused in use. *Ability primarily denotes the quality or character of being able (as to do or perform) and is applied chiefly to human beings. *Capacity in its corresponding sense means the power or more especially the potentiality of receiving, holding, absorbing, or accomplishing something expressed or understood and is said of persons or things. Thus one may speak of a child's ability to learn but not of the hall's ability to seat 2000 persons; on the other hand, a child's mental capacity and the hall has a seating capacity of 2000 are both acceptable. In general, ability suggests actual power, whether native or acquired, whether exercised or not (once more he had shown his ability to handle a delicate situation to the credit of his government and himself—W. C. Ford) Capacity on the other hand stresses receptiveness, or in reference to man's intellectual, moral, or spiritual nature, more explicitly, responsiveness, susceptibility, or aptitude. *Capacity therefore suggests potential, as distinguished from actual or, especially, manifest power. Thus, ability to weep, the ability to work, the ability to pay, are not respectively identical in meaning with the capacity for tears, the capacity for work, the capacity for payment. The phrases of the first group mean that one can weep (because his tear glands are normal), one can work (because strong or trained), one can pay (because he has the money): those of the second group indicate, in the first case, a special sensitiveness to what is pathetic; in the second case, a readiness to work as hard as is necessary on any or every occasion: in the third case, the qualities of mind and character that promise earning power and imply a recognition of one's obligations (if Peter had a capacity for friendship, these speechless years had made it dumb—Deland) we do not acquire the ability to do new deeds, but a new capacity for all deeds. My recent growth does not appear in any visible new talent—Thoreau.

The capacity of American idealism to survive a major disillusionment—MacLeish Capability is the character in a person (less often, a thing) arising from the possession of the qualities or qualifications necessary to the performance of a certain kind of work or the achievement of a given end (testing the capability of the ear to distinguish pitches) (no applicant will be considered who does not offer proof of capability). As applied exclusively to persons, capability may mean competence, often special competence. This connotation is usually supplied or enforced by the context.

Ana *power, strength, might, force, energy: proficiency, skill, adeptness (see corresponding adjectives at proficient): aptitude, talent, genius, faculty (see gift); competence, qualification (see corresponding adjectives at able).

Ant inability, incapacity —Con impotence, powerless-ness (see corresponding adjectives at powerless): incompetence, incapability (see corresponding adjectives at incapable).

abject *mean, ignoble, sordid

Ana servile, slavish, menial (see subservient): miserable, wretched: cringing, truckling, cowering (see fawn); groveling (see wallow): abased, demeaned, humbled, humiliated (see abase).

Ant exalted (in rank, state, condition, mood, behavior): imperious (in manner speech, attitude) —Con arrogant, lordly, overbearing, supercilious (see proud); domineering, *masterful: aristocratic, patrician (see corresponding nouns at gentleman).

abjure, renounce, forswear, recant, retract are synonyms when they mean to abandon irrevocably and, usually, with solemnity or publicity. Except in the extended senses of abjure, renounce, and forswear they all imply the recall of one's word. Abjure and renounce are scarcely distinguishable when they imply solemn repudiation as of an oath or vow (he shall, before he is admitted to citizenship, declare on oath in open court that he shall in all honor and conscience do him service and, that he shall, before he is admitted to citizenship, declare on oath in open court that he... and that no other person shall ever be...). In their extended senses, however, abjure distinctively suggests deliberate rejection or avoidance while renounce specifically connotes disclaiming or disowning (abjure force, renounce one's principles) (if a man is content to abjure wealth and to forego marriage, to live simply without luxuries, he may spend a very dignified gentle life here—Benson) (be he was later to renounce impressionism and to quarrel with most of the impressionists—Read) (forswear often adds to abjure (especially in the reflexive use of the verb or in the participial adjective forswn) the suggestion of perjury or of culpable violation of a solemn engagement (I have sworn to obey the laws, and I cannot forswear myself—Blackie) It often means little more than to swear off (Mr. Dulles grants by implication that the Peking regime is the government of China. He insists that it forswear the use of force in advancing its ambitions—New Republic). Recant and retract stress the withdrawal of something professed or declared; recant always and retract often imply admission of error. One recants, however, something that one has openly professed or taught, as religious or scientific doctrines; one retracts something one has written or spoken, as a charge, a promise, an order (if Christians recanted they were to be spared, but... if they persisted in their faith they were to be executed—Latourrette) (a word informs your brother I retract this morning's offer—Browning).

Ant pledge (allegiance, a vow): elect (a way of life, a means to an end, an end) —Con plight, engage (see promise): *choose, select, opt: own, avow, *acknowledge.

able, capable, competent, qualified are close synonyms when they denote having marked power or fitness for work and are used attributively. Placed after the noun, able (followed by to and infinitive) and capable (followed by of) suggest mere possession of ability or capacity without any clear indication of its extent or quality (they must be capable of living the life of the spirit... they must be able to cope intelligently with weighty problems of public policy—Grandgent). In general competent and qualified in predicative use suggest mere fitness in the one case and sufficient training in the other (a servant competent to take full charge) (headmasters and education authorities want to be able to distinguish between those who are qualified to teach... and those who are not—Huxley). On the other hand all four words are manifestly richer in implications when (especially in attributive use) they are thought of as characterizing persons or their activities. Able then suggests ability markedly above the average; it often connotes power of mastery; it does not exclude the connotation of promise even when the emphasis is on performance (able boys and girls will... submit willingly to severe discipline in order to acquire some coveted knowledge or skill—Russell). Capable stresses possession of qualities such as adaptability, resourcefulness, versatility, industry, or efficiency and seldom indicates, apart from its context, the specific ability involved (pretty and charming, but stupid... because she believes men prefer women to be useless and extravgant; if left to herself she would be a domestic and capable person—Millay). Competent and qualified are used especially to characterize a person or his activities in relation to a specific calling (a competent housekeeper) (a qualified accountant). Competent implies the ability to satisfy capably all the special demands or requirements of a particular situation, craft, or profession, but it does not necessarily imply, as qualified usually does, compliance with set standards such as special training and the testing of one's competence at the end of such training (a qualified engineer) (a competent portraitist knows how to imply the profile in the full face—Huxley).

Ant inept (by nature, training): unable —Con *incapable, incompetent, unqualified: inefficient, *ineffective: mediocre, fair, indifferent (see medium): maladroit (see awkward).

abnegate sacrifice, *forgo, eschew, forbear.

Ant indulge (in) —Con gratify, delight, regale, rejoice, gladden, *please: *satisfy, content.

Ana forgoing, forbearance, eschewal (see corresponding verbs at forgo): abstinence, abstemiousness, continence, *temperance: restraining, curbing, bridling (see restrain).

Ant indulgence, self-indulgence —Con intemperance, incontinence (see affirmative nouns at temperance).

abnormal, atypical, aberrant mean deviating markedly from the rule or standard of its kind. All are used in the sciences, as in biology and psychology, to express non-abolish, annihilate, extinguish, abate share the meaning detestable, hateful, odious, abhorrent

abode
dwelling, residence, domicile, habitation, home, Ana

usual atypical

abolish adjectives at USUAL): monstrous, prodigious

Abnormal frequently connotes strange-abnormal

Ant

Abnormal

abnormal...
abrate, *excoriate, chafe, fret, gall mean to affect the surface rubbing or scraping by something hard or harsh: when the surface rubbed or scraped is soft, injury results, but when it approaches the other in hardness, a smoothing or polishing (as by grinding) may be achieved (the palms of his hands abraded by gravel) the ship's side was abraded in the collision (loose sand grains . . . may be hurled against projecting masses of rock with such force as to abrade . . . their surfaces by a natural sandblast—Scientific Monthly) an abrasive is a substance used in abrading steel Excoriate which literally implies a stripping or wearing away of the skin or hide usually suggests a peculiarly painful effect on something soft or tender made by something (as an abrasive or abrasion or a corrosive substance) that removes or destroys a protective layer such as the skin or mucous membrane (the ends of his fingers were excoriated by acid) my lips . . . were excoriated as with vinegar and gall—Bronte Chafe suggests a slight but persistent and painful or injurious rubbing of one thing upon another (objected to wearing wool which she said chafed her skin) (the hawsers were so chafed by rubbing against the wharf that they required replacement) Fret suggests an eating into or wearing away (the river frets away the rocks along its banks—T. H. Huxley) dripping water fretted a channel through the stone Gall is used especially with reference to animals and, less often, to persons: it implies a superficial injury such as an abrasion or blister made by friction (an ill-fitting saddle galled the horse's back)

All have extended usage with an implication of irritating or wearing. Abrade and chafe usually suggest a persistent cause (took refuge in a subdued blubbering, which soon abraded the teacher's nerves—Perelman) a theater that is so physically uncomfortable as to chafe the playgoer's disposition even before the curtain rises—N. Y. Times Excoriate is used rather specifically of a censuring so severe as to cause real distress or mental anguish (when his programs fail, the implementation, not the directive will be excoriated; the subordinates and volunteers, not the dictator will suffer—Straight) (excoriated the morality of the Gilded Age and yet was fascinated by some of its surface trappings—J. D. Hart) Fret and gall typically imply a causing of emotional wear and tear (the galling frictions are in the world today—Benedict) (that hidden bond which at other moments galled and fretted him so as to mingle irritation with the very sunshine—George Eliot) Ana *scrape, scratch, grate, grind, rasp: injure, damage, impair, mar: irritate, exasperate abridge *shorten, curtail, abbreviate, retrench Ana condense, *contract, compress, shrink: cut, slash: limit, restrict, reduce, diminish, decrease Ant expand: extend —Con amplify, swell, distend (see expand): lengthen, elongate, prolong, protract (see extend): enlarge, augment, increase abridgment, abstract, epitome, brief, synopsis, conspectus mean a condensation of a larger work or treatment, usually one already in circulation. Abridgment implies reduction in compass with the retention of relative completeness (the current acting versions of many of Shakespeare's plays are abridgments) an abridgment of a dictionary Abstract implies condensation of a lengthy treatise or of a proposed lengthy treatment and stresses concentration of substance (abstracts of state papers) an abstract of a lecture Epitome implies concentration of the essence or pith of something (as a long poem, essay, or treatise) into the briefest possible statement usually so as to acquire a value of its own (the Paternoster, Christ's prayer, which is . . . [an epitome] . . . of all the psalms and prayers written in the whole scripture—Hooper) Both abstract and epitome are used also in extended senses in reference to persons or things, the former stressing one or other (of the persons or things referred to) as a summary, the latter as a type representing a whole (a man who is the abstract of abscess, boil, furuncle, carbuncle, pimple, pustule

of all faults that all men follow—Shak.> (a man so various that he seemed to be not one, but all mankind's epitome—Dryden> Brief is usually narrowly applied in legal use to a concise statement of a client's case made out for the instruction of counsel in a trial (called specifically trial brief) or to a statement of the heads or points of a legal argument submitted to the court (brief of argument).

Synopsis and conspectus imply the giving of the salient points of a treatise or subject so that it may be quickly comprehended. Synopsis, however, often suggests an outline or series of headings and conspectus a coherent account that gives a bird's-eye view (provide in advance a synopsis of the lectures) (the book will serve as a conspectus of Chinese history)

Ana digest, précis, *compendium, sketch, syllabus Ant expansion —Con paraphrase (see TRANSLATION):
*development
abrogate 1 *annul, vacate, quash, void
Ana *abolish, extinguish, abate
Ant institute (by enacting, decreeing) —Con *ratify, confirm; establish, *found 2 *nullify, annul, negate, invalidate
Ana *abolish, annihilate, extinguish: *destroy, demolish: *ruin, wreck; cancel, obliterate, blot out (see ERASE)
Ant establish, fix (a right, a character, a quality, a custom) —Con settle (see SET): uphold, *support abrupt 1 *steep, precipitous, sheer Ana perpendicular, *vertical, plumb
Ant sloping —Con *level, flat, plain, plane, even, smooth: slanting, inclined (see SLANT vb)
2 sudden, *precipitate, headlong, impetuous, hasty
Ana quick, speedy (see FAST): hurried, hastened (see ANIMA)
Ant establish, fix (a right, a character, a quality, a custom) —Con settle (see SET): uphold, *support abscess, boil, furuncle, carbuncle, pimple, pustule all denote a localized swollen area of infection containing pus. Abscess is the most general term, applying to a collection of pus surrounded by inflammation whether in the skin or in the substance of a part or organ and whether discharging through an opening or fistula or being gradually reabsorbed (an abscess at the root of a tooth) (a line of small abscesses where his belt had chafed him) Boil and furuncle both mean a swollen painful nodule in the skin caused by bacteria that enter skin glands or hair follicles and set up a purulent infection which terminates by rupture of the skin and discharge of a core of pus and broken-down tissue cells. Though boil is commoner in general use, furuncle is often preferred in medical communication. A carbuncle is a large and severe boil that occurs especially on the back of the neck, is often accompanied by fever, and ultimately discharges through several openings. A pimple or pustule is a small superficial pus-containing elevation of the skin that usually subsides without rupturing: more specifically pimple is used of the typical lesions characterizing acne while pustule implies no specific syndrome.
abscond decamp, flee, fly, *escape
Ana depart, leave, quit, *go Ant give (oneself) up —Con stay, wait, remain, abide: confess, *acknowledge absence *lack, want, dearth, defect, privation
Ana *need, necessity, exigency: deficiency (see corresponding adjective at DEFICIENT); destitution (see corresponding adjective at DEVOID); void, vacuum (see HOLE)
Ant presence —Con abundance, copiousness, plenty (see corresponding adjectives at PLENTIFUL) absent adj preoccupied, *abstracted, absentminded, distraught
Ana engrossed, absorbed, *intent, rapt: heedless, inadvertent (see CARELESS); oblivious, unfurnished, *forgettable Ant attentive —Con *thoughtful, considerate: attending, listening, hearkening (see ATTEND) absentminded absent, *abstracted, preoccupied, distraught Ana inattentive, thoughtless, inconsiderate (see affirmative adjectives at THOUGHTFUL): heedless, inadvertent (see CARELESS); unobserving, unseen, unperceiving, unnoticing (see affirmative verbs at SEE) Ant wide-awake —Con *watchful, alert, vigilant: attentive (see THOUGHTFUL) absolute *pure, simple, sheer Ana *perfect, whole, entire: *real, true: *abstract, ideal: *consummate, finished Ant mixed, qualified —Con incomplete (see affirmative adjective at FULL): imperfect, unentire, unintact (see affirmative adjectives at PERFECT)
2 Absolute, autocratic, arbitrary, despotic, tyrannical, Tyrannous mean exercising power or authority without external restraint. Absolute does not of itself add any further implication to this general denotation. It is restricted in application chiefly to words for authority or for one in authority (an absolute monarch) (absolute control) (they held their subjects with an absolute hand as all communist leaders do—F. M. Brown> Autocratic implies assumption or exercise of absolute power or authority: though it is not necessarily opprobrious, it often connotes egotistical consciousness of power and haughty imposition of one's own will (let the Emperor turn his nominal sovereignty into a real central and autocratic power—Belloc> Arbitrary implies the exercise and usually the abuse of power in accord with one's opinion of the moment, free of such reasoned guides as constitution and laws which make for consistent and reasonably predictable action (all the constitutional safeguards of English freedom were swept away. Arbitrary taxation, arbitrary legislation, arbitrary imprisonment were powers claimed without dispute and unsparring used by the Crown—J. R. Green> Despot and tyrannical are stronger than autocratic, despotic implying the arbitrary and imperious exercise of absolute power or control and tyrannical the abuse of such power or control frequently through harshness, oppression, or severity (the most despotic system of government that history has ever known, Bolshevism, parades as the very incarnation of the principles of equality and liberty of all men—Von Mises> proofs . . . that the people, when they have been unchecked, have been as unjust, tyrannical, brutal, barbarous, and cruel as any king . . . possessed of uncontrollable power—Adams> how could I have borne to become the slave of her tyrannical humors?—Burney> Tyrannous is more frequently used of things than of persons (a . . . skeptical smile, of all expressions the most tyrannous over a susceptible mind—George Eliot)
Ana *totalitarian, authoritarian: *dictatorial, magisterial: domineering, imperious, *masterful Ant restrained: limited —Con circumscribed, restricted (see LIMIT vb): irresponsible, unanswerable, unenamable (see affirmative adjectives at RESPONSIBLE)
3 *ultimate, categorical
Ana ideal, transcendent, transcendental (see ABSTRACT): independent, autonomous, *free, sovereign: *infinite, eternal, boundless Ant conditioned —Con relative, *dependent, conditional: circumscribed, limited, restricted (see LIMIT vb)

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1 absolution  *pardon, amnesty

	*condemnation —Con  censure, reprobation, reprobation (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) absolve  exonerate, acquit, *exculpate, vindicate

	*pardoning, amnesty

absorb  1 Absorb, imbibe, assimilate can all mean to take (something) in so as to become imbued with it or to make it a part of one's being. The original meaning of absorb, to swallow up (both literally and figuratively), has been retained in spite of the development of a later and more common sense, to soak up (both literally and figuratively). When the former idea is stressed, absorb implies the loss of identity of that taken in {the trust absorbed three small corporations} {in England. . . the aristocracy are subordinate to the middle class, which is gradually absorbing and destroying them—T. S. Eliot} When soaking up is implied, absorb often suggests enrichment of the recipient {the roots of plants absorb moisture} {an adult reader with trained habits of attention and concentration will absorb the contents of a book with . . . speed and retentiveness—Eliot} In its literal sense imbibe usually implies drinking or inhaling {imbibe intoxicating liquors} {we did not imbibe an undiluted air—N. E. Nelson} However imbibe, like absorb, often connotes soaking up {the ground imbibles (or absorbs) moisture} In its figurative sense imbibe, like absorb, implies a process of learning, but it often carries the suggestions that the process has been unconscious and that the effect has been noticeable or profound {the pupils imbibe no respect for intellectual values at home, and find none among their schoolfellows—Inge} {twelve years he wandered, imbibing wisdom from every source, sitting at every shrine, tasting every creed—Durant} Assimilate implies not only absorption but also the conversion of what is absorbed into the substance of the assimilating body. In its narrow sense it applies especially to physiological processes {the body assimilates digested food into its protoplasm} In its figurative use it often suggests lasting enrichment without loss of integrity or unity {poets . . . who assimilate a number of influences and construct an original speech from them—Day Lewis} Sometimes it stresses the process of fusion and consequent loss of identity {faces incapable of assimilation}

Ant  *absorb, like, take in, contain, take up, incorporate, embody (see IDENTIFY) ant  *exclude, expel: *throw, cast

ant  *forswear, eschew

ant  *hold (to a promise, an obligation): charge (with a sin, the blame, the responsibility) —Con  blame (see CRITICIZE)

ant  *abstain, *restrain, forbear

ant  *forgo, eschew, abnegate: *decline, refuse, spurn, reject: desist (see STOP) ant  *pamper (see INDULGE): *satisfy, satiate, sate, surfeit, cloy, gorge, glut: gratify, regale (see PLEASE) abstract

Kant's philosophy, are transcendental ideas.

Ana *universal, general, generic: specific (see SPECIAL): *ultimate, absolute, categorical

Ant concrete —Con practical (see PRACTICAL): *material, physical, corporeal, objective, phenomenal

abstract n brief, synopsis, epitome, *abridgment, con-spectus

Ana sketch, précis, aperçu, *compendium, digest

Ant amplification —Con expansion, dilation (see corresponding verbs at EXPAND): enlargement (see corresponding verb at INCREASE)

abstract vb *detach, disengage

Ana separate, part, divorce, divide: purloin, filch, *steal

Ant insert, introduce —Con interpolate, insinuate, interpose (see INTRODUCE): *replace abstracted, preoccupied, absent, absentminded, distraught are comparable when they mean inattention to what presently claims or demands consideration. Abstracted implies absorption of the mind in something other than one's surroundings, and often suggests reflection on weighty matters <then he sat and thought . . . in the concentrated, abstracted way he has . . . almost forgetting my presence—Rose Macaulay> Preoccupied implies unreadiness for any new demands on one's attention because one is already busy with other thoughts or occupations <Edna was so preoccupied with misgivings as to whether he wanted to marry her that she had never faced squarely the more important problem of whether she wanted to marry him—Barnes> Absent stresses inability to fix the mind on present concerns; it often connotes mental wandering rather than concentration on other things <Sir Joshua . . . was quite absent all the day, not knowing a word that was said to him—Burney> Absentminded implies that the mind is fixed elsewhere; it suggests abstractedness or preoccupation more than absentness <she would make some absentminded, irrelevant remark, as if she had not heard him—Röliga> It often implies a mental habit rather than a present mood <absentminded professor> Distraught suggests inability to concentrate and also implies an agitated state of mind caused by worry or perplexity <oh, if I wake, shall I not be distraught, environed with all these hideous fears?—Shak.> (distraught with grief for the dead queen—Millay)

Ana *intent, engrossed: oblivious, unmindful (see FORGETFUL): ignoring, overlooking, disregarding (see NEGLECT vb)

Ant alert —Con wide-awake, vigilant, *watchful: attentive, *thoughtful, considerate: observant, noting, noticing, seeing (see corresponding verbs at SEE)

abstruse *recondite, occult, esoteric

Ana *complex, complicated, intricate, knotty: *abstract, ideal: enigmatic, cryptic, dark, obscure

Ant obvious, plain —Con evident, manifest, clear, palpable: *easy, simple, facile: *clear, perspicuous, lucid absurd silly, preposterous, *foolish

Ana humorous, ridiculous, *laughable, droll, funny, comic: *irrational, unreasonable: asinine, silly, fatuous, *simple

Ant rational, sensible —Con reasonable (see RATIO-NAL): *wise, sane, judicious, prudent: *logical abundant copious, ample, *plentiful, plenteous

Ana bounding, teeming, overflowing (see TEEM): *produse, lavish, luxuriant, lush, exuberant

Ant scarce —Con infrequent, rare, uncommon: *meager, scant, scantly, skimpy, exiguous, sparse: *deficient abuse vb Abuse, misuse, mistreat, maltreat, ill-treat, outrage all denote to use or treat a person or thing improperly or wrongfully. Abuse and misuse are capable of wider use than the others, for they do not invariably imply either deliberateness or wantonness <I can't abuse your generosity to that extent. You're doing more than enough for me already—Mackenzie> (it turns a man's stomach to hear the Scripture misused in that way—George Eliot> Abuse, however, commonly suggests perverseness of the ends for which something was intended <the constitution leaves them [the states] this right in the confidence that they will not abuse it—John Marshall> Sometimes it implies excess in use that injures or impairs <abuse one's strength> Misuse, by contrast with abuse, emphasizes the actual mistreatment or misapplication rather than its results (the intent of this regulation is highly commendable, namely to keep the Indians from being misused—Hitchock) Mistreat, maltreat, and ill-treat usually imply a fault or an evil motive in the agent, such as meanness, culpable ignorance, or spitefulness <many more patients die from being mistreated for consumption than from consumption itself—Lyton> (the meter, though a well-known English critic has maltreated it of late, is a very fine one—Saintsbury> (have small compunction in ill-treating animals, because they have no souls—Reppier> Outrage implies abuse so violent or extreme as to exceed all bounds

Ana hurt, *injure, harm, damage, impair, mar, spoil: *wrong, persecute, oppress: pervert, corrupt, *debase, debauch, vitiate

Ant respect, honor —Con esteem (see corresponding noun at REGARD): *revere, venerate, reverence: commend, applaud, compliment: cherish, treasure, prize (see APPRECIATE)

abuse n Abuse, vituperation, invective, obloquy, scurrility, billingsgate can all denote vehemently expressed condemnation or disapproval. Abuse, the most general term, implies the anger of the speaker and stresses the offensiveness of the language (the extended vocabulary of barrack-room abuse—Kipling) (those thunderous combinations, that jeering and abuse which make Milton's prose such lively reading—Huxley> It may, however, imply hardly more than expression of personal disapproval or displeasure (a vague term of abuse for any style that is bad—T. S. Eliot> Vituperation suggests the overwhelming of someone or something with a torrent of abuse <presidents were nagged beyond endurance, and senators, and congressmen: no one could escape the vials of her vituperation—Pattie> Invective implies vehemence and bitterness in attack or denunciation and, often in distinction from abuse, connotes a command of language and skill in making one's points. It is the precise term when the attack is public and made in a good cause (John Bull stopped at nothing in the way of insult; but its blazing audacity of invective never degenerated into dull abuse—Reppier> Obloquy suggests defamation and consequent disgrace (those who . . . stood by me in the teeth of obloquy, attack and open sneer—Wilde> Scurrility stresses coarseness or indecency of language and emphasizes the quality of the abuse rather than the attack in itself (he was . . . interrupted in his defense by ribaldry and scurrility from the judgment seat—Macaulay> Billingsgate stresses more strongly than any of the other words the offensiveness, often foul or obscene, of the language of an attack <the more I humbled myself the more he stormed . . . provoking me with scandalous names that I could not put up with; so that I . . . returned his billingsgate—Smollett>

Ana aspersion, reflection, stricture, *animadversion: reviling, railing, rating, berating (see SCOLD vb): vilification, malignation (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN)
abusive, opprobrious, vituperative, contumelious, scurrilous

apply chiefly to language or utterances and to persons as they employ such language: the words agree in meaning coarse, insulting, and contemptuous in character or utterance. Abusive means little more than this <abusive language> <an abusive master> <abusive satire> All the other terms carry specific and distinctive implications.

Opprobrious suggests the imputation of disgraceful actions or of shameful conduct: it implies not only abusiveness but also severe, often unjust, condemnation <they desecrate the shrine . . . in every conceivable way . . . and level the most opprobrious language at the goddess herself—Frazer> Vituperative implies indulgence in a stream of insulting language especially in attacking an opponent <the vituperative controversialists of the seventeenth century> <to restrain this employment of vituperative language—J. S. Mill> Contumelious adds to opprobrious the implications of insolence and extreme disrespect and usually connotes the bitter humiliation of its victim <with scoffs and scorns and contumelious taunts—Shak.> {I . . . expose a chain of causes and effects that Roosevelt himself, if he were alive, would denounce as grossly contumelious to his native purity of spirit—and perhaps in all honesty—Mencken> Scurrilous often approaches vituperative in suggesting attack and abuse but it always implies gross, vulgar, often obscenely ribald language <they never fail to attack the passengers with all kinds of scurrilous, abusive, and indecent terms—Fielding> may plaster his clean name with scurrilous rhymes!—Tennyson

A complimentary: respectful —Con flattering (see corresponding noun at COMPLIMENT) panegyrical, eulogistic (see corresponding nouns at ENCOMIUM) praising, lauding, extolling, acclaiming (see PRAISE vb)

abusive adj

1 *quality, character, attribute, property impede, obstruct, block, *hinder: *hamper, clog accident n

1 stress, accentuation, *emphasis

Ant beat, pulse, throb, pulsation (see under PULSATE): *rhythm, cadence, meter

2 intonation, *inflection

Ant pronunciation, enunciation, articulation (see corresponding verbs at ARTICULATE)

accentuation accent, stress, *emphasis

Ant *rhythm, cadence, meter: pronunciation, enunciation, articulation (see corresponding verbs at ARTICULATE)

Ant inaccentuation —Con evenness, steadiness, uniformity (see corresponding adjectives at STEADY) accept *receive, admit, take

Ant adopt, embrace, espouse: acquiesce, *assent, agree, subscribe

Ant reject —Con *decline, refuse, repudiate, spurn: *disavow, disown, disacknowledge (see affirmative verbs at ACKNOWLEDGE): *deny, contradict, negative: ignore, disregard (see NEGLECT) acceptance, acceptance have both at one time or another carried the meanings: the act or fact of accepting or the state of being accepted. Present usage, however, restricts their denotations. Acceptance only is used to denote the act of accepting (a blind acceptance of authority—Inge) or the state of one who accepts something, especially something inevitable or inescapable (all settled back into a sad sort of acceptance of the situation—Deland) Both acceptance and acceptance may be used to denote the state of being accepted or especially of being approved or believed (metrical forms are conventional, and therefore rest . . . on acceptance—Lowes) Acceptation tends, however, to confine itself to denoting the sense in which a word or expression is generally received (not . . . a cultivated man in the ordinary acceptance of the words—Elliot acceptation 1 *meaning, sense, signification, significance, import

2 *acceptance

access n

1 ingress, *entrance, entrée, entry

Ant approaching or approach, nearing (see approach vb): *admittance, admission: *way, route, passage: *door, portal, gate, gateway

Ant outlet —Con departure, withdrawal, retirement (see corresponding verbs at go): retreat, recession (see corresponding verbs at RECEDE)

2 accession, attack, *fit, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion

Ant onset, onslaught, assault (see ATTACK): seizure, clutch, taking (see corresponding verbs at TAKE): twinge, *pain, twitch, pang, throe

accession 1 *addition, accretion, increment

Ant discard

2 access, attack, *fit, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion

Ant see those at ACCESS 2

accessory n

1 appurtenance, adjunct, *appendage

Ant concomitant, *accompaniment: *addition, accretion, increment

2 accomplice, abettor, *confederate, conspirator

Ant principal

accessory adj

1 contributory, *auxiliary, subsidiary, adjuvant, ancillary, subservient

Ant secondary, collateral, tributary, *subordinate: concomitant, concurrent, coincident (see CONTEMPORARY): incidental, adventitious (see ACCIDENTAL)

Ant constituent, integral: principal (in law) —Con *inherent, intrinsic, constitutional, ingrained: essential, indispensable, requisite, *needful, necessary: fundamental, vital, cardinal (see ESSENTIAL) accident 1 *quality, character, attribute, property accidental

Ana mark, *sign, note, badge, token, symptom: characteristic, peculiarity (see corresponding adjectives at CHARACTERISTIC)

Ant substance (in philosophy)

2 *chance, hazard, luck, fortune, hap

Ana contingency, fortuity, adventitiousness (see corresponding adjectives at ACCIDENTAL)

Ant design, intent — Con calculation, circumspection (see under CAUTIOUS): *plan, plot, project, scheme: *intention, purpose

3 Accidental, casualty, mishap are synonyms when they designate chance or a chance event bringing injury or loss. Accidental is broadest in its application, being used of events that involve persons or things, or injuries or losses, serious or slight (he was crippled by the accident). A railway accident (owing to an accident to the machines one department was closed down) Casualty commonly implies destruction, especially of life, and is chiefly applied to an individual whose death, serious injury, or even desertion constitutes a loss to a military (or similar) force engaged in hazardous activities (the regiment suffered heavy casualties) As applied to insurance accidental and casualty are usually distinguished: accidental insurance is a provision against injury to oneself through accident; casualty insurance is a provision for indemnification for loss from accident (as fire or burglary) and especially for damages incurred through one's liability for injury or loss to others. Mishap as a rule is applied only to slight accidents, especially those involving disappointment or frustration (a day seldom passes without one mishap or another)

Ana *disaster, catastrophe: mishance, *misfortune, mishap

accidental, casual, fortuitous, contingent, incidental, adventitious

The last five of these words are synonyms of accidental but not always of one another. Accidental denotes simply either happening by chance (an accidental meeting) or not of the real or essential nature of a thing (the essential and the accidental values of a college education) Casual, fortuitous, and contingent come into comparison with accidental in the first of these senses; incidental and adventitious chiefly in the second sense. Casual so strongly stresses absence of prearrangement or premeditation that it tends to obscure the implication of chance (a casual discovery) (it was no casual encounter. He had been enticed into the place . . . with some sinister and perhaps deadly purpose — Froude) As applied to persons, their actions, their clothes, it often implies heedlessness or indifference (this strange landscape, which seemed so dull to the casual view — Routke) (the rector] had been very casual about visiting his parishioners — MacKenzie) Sometimes it is the appearance of carelessness or nonchalance and not the reality that is suggested (this sense of an audience made him deliberately casual in his bearing — H. G. Wells) Fortuitous so strongly implies chance that it sometimes connotes the absence, or seeming absence, of a cause (the good frame of the universe was not the product of chance or fortuitous concourse of particles of matter — Hale) Contingent implies both possibility and uncertainty, the former because that which is so described may come about, the latter because the outcome is unpredictable owing to the possible operation of chance, of unseen causes, or of the possible influence of unforeseen events. Contingent is therefore always applied to what may come (the contingent advantages of a new law are to be distinguished from those that are immediate and certain) men are inclined . . . to resist a truth which discloses the contingent character of their existence — Niebuhr (such arguments yield a provisional and contingent justification of moral beliefs — Sat. Review) Incidental may or may not imply chance; it typically suggests a real and often a designed relationship, but one which is secondary and nonessential. An incidental advantage or gain is one that may have been foreseen or sought after but not regarded as of first importance; incidental expenses are those that must be provided for in a budget because they are normal contingencies though they cannot be enumerated under any of the usual headings (the Irish question is only incidental to the larger question — J. R. Lowell) (although a great deal is heard about consumer and real estate credit controls, they are incidental to the control of overall bank credit — Eccles) Incidental sometimes implies contingency that amounts to a strong probability (ills incidental to old age) (labor problems incidental to rapidly expanding factories — Amer. Guide Series: Mass.) Adventitious conveys no necessary suggestion of chance but it does imply a lack of essential relationship. Something adventitious does not belong to the original and intrinsic nature of a thing but has been added (in works of imagination and sentiment . . . meter is but adventitious to composition — Wordsworth)

Ana haphazard, *random, hit-or-miss, chance: unintended, undesigned, unpurposed (see affirmative verbs at INTEND): contingent, *dependent, conditional

Ant planned: essential — Con intended, designed, purposed (see INTEND): plotted, projected, schemed (see corresponding verbs under PLAN n): *inherent, constitutional, intrinsic, ingrained: *innate, inborn

acclaim vb extol, laud, *praise, eulogize

Ana *applaud, cheer, root: *exalt, magnify: glorify, honor (see corresponding nouns at FAME)

Ant vituperate — Con revile, berate, rate (see SCOLD): *execrate, objure, damn: denounced, censure, reprobrate (see CRITICIZE)

acclaim n acclamation, *applause, plaudits

Ana homage, *honor, reverence: renown, glory, éclat (see FAME): cheer (see corresponding verb at APPLAUD)

Ant vituperation — Con obloquy, *abuse, inveotive: condemnation, denunciation, reprobation, censure (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE)

acclamation acclaim, *applause, plaudits

Ana, Ant, Con see those at ACCLAIM n

acclimatize acclimatize, *harden, season

Ana accustom, *habituate: *adapt, adjust, conform

Ant accommodate 1 adjust, *adapt, conform, reconcile

Ana *yield, submit, bow, defer: modify, *change, alter, vary: temper, *moderate, qualify

Ant constrain — Con *strange, alienate

2 *oblige, favor

Ana *help, aid, assist: gratify, gladden, *please: *indulge, humor

Ant incommode — Con *inconvenience, discommode, trouble: annoy, harass, harry, *worry: vex, irk (see ANNOY)

3 hold, *contain

Ana lodge, house, board, shelter, *harbor, entertain: take (in), *receive, admit accompaniment, concomitant denote in common something attendant upon or found in association with another thing. Both may imply addition, but they vary chiefly in the kind of relationship connoted between the principal and the attendant things. Accompaniment often suggests enhancement by the addition of something appropriate (the piano accompaniment for a violin solo) (the usual accompaniments of a turkey dinner) (fame is not always the accom-accomplish — mean to go or be together with; they differ chiefly in their implications as to the nature or purpose of the association.

Accompany implies companionship and often, with a personal subject, equality of status (accompanied a friend). Used of things, it stresses closeness of association (train accompanied by wind). The lightheadedness which accompanied his pail—Kipling. Attend commonly implies the subordinate or inferior status of the accompanying person or thing (the prince was attended (rather than accompanied) by an equerry, a secretary, and a courier).

Sometimes it suggests a service or courtesy (the General attended her himself to the door—Austen). Sometimes it connotes following or coming in the wake of someone or something (a train of mourning friends attended his pail—Gray). The Nemesis that attends upon human pride—Dickinson. Conduct usually retains an implication of guidance even when the subject is impersonal (conduct a blind man across the street). Occasionally the emphasis is not on guidance but on conveyance or transmission (metals that conduct heat). Escort and convoy add to accompany the implication of protection. Both words and their corresponding nouns often suggest the use of an armed force as a guard, but there is a tendency to prefer escort when persons and convoy when things are protected. Also, escort is more often used for journeys on land and convoy for journeys by sea (for sea journeys).

A version or story is a version or report of events in their order and extended account or report of events in their order of occurrence (for 'tis a version of the state of the nation—Bryce). A chronicle is a detailed account of the conference) A chronicle is a detailed account or report of events in their order and extended account or report of events in their order of occurrence (for 'tis a chronicle of day by day, not a relation for a breakfast—Shak.). A version or story is a statement of purported facts. Version always and story often imply contrast with another statement of the same events and, usually, difference in details. But whereas version commonly implies difference of detail or of interpretation owing to limitations in each point of view, story often implies actual or suspected falsification (the Democratic and the Republican version of the state of the nation) (the witness had been primed to tell a different story) (he returned after a week’s absence with a story of having been held captive by kidnapers).

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
accountable *responsible, answerable, amenable, liable Ant unaccountable —Con *absolute, autocratic, despotic, tyrannical, arbitrary: irresponsible, inamenable, unanswerable (see affirmative adjectives at RESPONSIBLE) accountant auditor, *bookkeeper accouter equip, arm, outfit, *furnish, appoint Ana array, attire, *clothe, dress: deck, *adorn, embellish, decorate
Con *strip, divest, dismantle accredit 1 certify, *approve, endorse, sanction
Ana recommend, *commend: vouch, attest, *certify Ant reject, repudiate (see DECLINE): *disapprove, depreciate
2 commission, *authorize, license
Ana adjunct, *appendage: adhesion, cohesion (see cor-Ana attach, *fasten: connect, link, associate (see JOIN) cumulative Cumulative, summative, additive
*correct, exact, precise, nice, right accurate
Ana array, attire, *clothe, dress: deck, *adorn, embellish, decorate Con *strip, divest, dismantle accretion *addition, increment, accession Ana adjunct, *appendage: adhesion, cohesion (see corre-corresponding verbs at STICK): increase, augmentation, enlargement (see corresponding verbs at INCREASE) accrue accumulate, amass, hoard imply in both literal and figuativa usage a bringing together so as to make a store or great quantity. Accumulate implies a piling up by a series of increases rather than by a single complete act; it is applicable to almost anything that may increase in amount <unsold books accumulate dust; he will ever be gathering knowledge, accumulating experience, as he can—Gerould> <true poetry, however simple it may appear on the surface, accumulates meaning every time it is read—Day Lewis> Amass refers usually but not always to things that are regarded as valuable, such as money or treasures <amass a fortune> It frequently implies more imposing results than accumulate <scientific knowledge, painstakingly amassed by many devotees over an extended period of human history—Geldard> Hoard always implies storing up and frequently concealment of what is stored <squirrels hoard nuts for the winter months> Frequently hoard implies greed and, when used of money, avarice  <hoarding money is not a safe way of saving—Shaw>
Ana *gather, collect: *heap, pile, stack Ant dissipate —Con *scatter, disperse, dispel: diminish, lessen, *decrease: *dispire, dispense, deal, dole accumulative *cumulative, summative, additive Ana aggregative, conglomerative (see corresponding nouns at AGGREGATE): multiplicative, augmentative (see corresponding verbs at INCREASE) Con dissipating, dispersing, scattering (see SCATTER: disintegrating, crumbling, decomposing (see DECAY vb)
accurate *correct, exact, precise, nice, right Ana true, veracious (see corresponding nouns at TRUTH): *impeccable, errorless, flawless, faultless: punctilious, meticulous, *careful Ant inaccurate —Con *careless, heedless, inadvertent: *slipshod, slovenly: fallacious (see under FALLACY)
accursed damnable, cursed, *exegeable
Ana abominable, odious, *hateful, abhorrent, detestable: revolting, repulsive, loathsome, *offensive, repugnant Ant blessed —Con admirable, estimable (see corresponding nouns at REGARD): *holy, sacred, divine: *honorable, honorary accuse, charge, incriminate, indict, impeach, arraign denote in common to declare a person guilty of a fault or offense. Accuse is typically immediate and personal and often suggests directness or sharpness of imputation or censure; charge frequently connotes seriousness in the offense and formality in the declaration; one may accuse a bystander of trying to pick one's pocket (an accusation which may become a formal charge before a magistrate); one accuses a man of cheating (an offense which one personally resents); one charges a man with cheating (an infraction of the rules of a game). Incriminate may mean to charge with crime or serious offense <your friend thinks he can clear Ken by incriminating poor Wayne—G. V. Williams> <careful study . . . has failed to show that any of the cultivable bacteria can be incriminated as the cause of colds—Andrewes> but in current use it more often means to involve or incriminate in crime <incriminating evidence> <the answer need not reveal a crime in order to be incriminating. It is enough if it . . . leads to proof of an illegal act—Gressman> Indict adds to charge in legal context the im-lications of a formal consideration of the evidence by a grand jury or in general use by someone acting in the role of jury and of a decision that the accused person should be called to trial or to an accounting <the jury refused to indit the men accused of arson> <I indict those citizens whose easy consciences condone such wrongdoings—Roosevelt> Impeach implies legally a charge of malfae-sance in office formally brought against a public officer by a branch of the government constitutionally authorized to bring such charges <the House of Representatives impeached President Andrew Johnson of high crimes and misdemeanors> In nontechnical language impeach or its noun impeachment implies a direct charge which demands an answer <any intelligent and noble-minded American can with reason take that side . . . without having either his reason or his integrity impeached—Kenneth Roberts> <"You buy your loves." . . . he did not plead verbally against the impeachment—Meredith> To arraign is to call or bring a prisoner-before a court to answer to the charge of an indictment <I was carried down to the Sessions house, where I was arraigned—Defoe> Figuratively it means to call a person or thing to public account for something done or omitted <arraign the monks for teaching grammar rather than things spiritual—H. O. Taylor> A despairing soliloquy . . . in which he arraigned the United States policy in relation to China—Times Lit. Sup.>
Ana denounce, blame, reprobate, censure, *criticize Ant exculpate —Con exonerate, vindicate, acquit, absolve (see EXCULPATE) accustom *habituate, addict, inure
Ana *adapt, accommodate, adjust: *harden, season, ac-Ant disaccustom —Con alienate, wean, *estrange accustomed accustomed
Ana natural, normal, *regular, typical: *common, or-Ant unaccustomed —Con *strange, singular, peculiar, odd, queer, erratic: *infrequent, uncommon, rare, occasional acerbity *acrimony, asperity
Ana sourness, acidity, tartness (see corresponding adjectives at SOUR): crabbedness, surliness, dourness, sat-
Ana denounce, blame, reprobate, censure, *criticize
Ana natural, normal, *regular, typical: *common, or-Ant unaccustomed —Con *strange, singular, peculiar, odd, queer, erratic: *infrequent, uncommon, rare, occasional
acerbity *acrimony, asperity
Ana sourness, acidity, tartness (see corresponding adjectives at SOUR): crabbiness, surliness, dourness, saturninity (see corresponding adjectives at SULLEN): bitterness, acridity (see corresponding adjectives at BITTER): harshness, roughness (see corresponding adjectives at ROUGH) Ant mellowness —Con gentleness, mildness, bland-ness, smoothness (see corresponding adjectives at SOFT): amiability, good nature, complaisance (see corresponding adjectives at AMIABLE)
ache n *pain, pang, throng, twinge, stitch
Ana *distress, suffering, agony, misery: anguish, heart-
Ant mellowness —Con gentleness, mildness, bland-ness, smoothness (see corresponding adjectives at SOFT): amiability, good nature, complaisance (see corresponding adjectives at AMIABLE)
ache n *pain, pang, throng, twinge, stitch
Ana *distress, suffering, agony, misery: anguish, heartache, heartbreak (see SORROW): hurt, *injury: torment, torture, rack (see corresponding verbs at AFFLICT) achieve 1 accomplish, effect, *perform, fulfill, execute, discharge

Anachronism

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
acquire obtain, *get, gain, win, secure, procure
Ant forfeit —Con alienate, *transfer, convey: *relin- quish, surrender, abandon, yield

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>acq</th>
<th>uirement, acquisition, attainment, accomplishment</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| acq| uirement, acquisition, attainment, accomplishment de- note in common a power or skill that is the fruit of exertion or effort; in this sense they are often used in the plural.
Acq| uirement implies achievement as a result of continued endeavor and self-cultivation rather than of natural gifts or talent
| Acq| uirement may add to acq| uirement the implications that the thing acquired is an addition or gain and that the endeavor to acquire has been characterized by avidity and stress <perhaps it was a mistake to force her into the rigid groove of classical learning . . . from it she got very unusual acq| uirements, but overstimulation broke her health—Parrington>
| Acq| uirement is therefore used largely in interrogative sentences
| Acquisition may be defined as the act by which an individual acquires a property or right, such as ownership, possession, or enjoyment. It refers to the process of obtaining or acquiring something.
As applied to an acquired power or skill, acquisition usually stresses the inherent value of that power or skill <absolute disinterestedness is a rare acq| uirement, even in historians>
| Acquisitive grasing, avaricious, greedy, *covetous avar| i| s| qua| dius| are| sive, owning, enjoying <corresponding verbs at HAVE>
| Acquit 1 absolve, exonerate, vindicate, *exculpate
Ana discharge, *free, release, liberate: *excuse, pardon, forgive, remit
Ant convict —Con condemn, *sentence, doom, pro- scribe, damn: denounce, blame (see CRITICIZE)
Ant ac| cid 1 *bitter
Ana pungent, piquant;biting <see INCISIVE>; *offensive, repugnant, loathsome
| Acronymy, acer| bity, asp| erity agree in denoting temper or language marked by irritation or some degree of anger or resentment. Acronymy implies bitterness or ill will and also greater stinging or blistering power in what is said than the others <the controversial writings of the seventeenth century are notorious for their acr| omy—Quiller-Couch>
Acer| bity implies sourness as well as bitterness, sometimes as shown in words or mood, but more often as manifested in a morose, embittered nature <the judge’s smile seemed to operate on her acer| bity of heart like sunshine upon vinegar, making it ten times sourer—Hawthorne>
Asper| ity retains implications of harshness and roughness chiefly in reference to style <the elderly ladies in his audience had been shocked by the asp| er| ities of the new style in music—Copland>
In general use asp| erity stresses quickness of temper or sharpness of resentment but it rarely suggests bitterness <told him with some asp| erity to mind his own business>
Ana bitterness <see corresponding adjective at bitter>; ill will, malignity, malignancy, spite, spleen, *malice, malevolence: rancor, animus, animosity, antipathy (see ENMITY)>
Ant suavity —Con urbanity, diplomacy <corresponding adjectives at SUAVE>; courtesy, civility, politeness <see corresponding adjectives at CIVIL> | Across, crosswise, crossways, athwart are synonymous when they mean so as to intersect the length of something.
Across and athwart may be used as prepositions as well as adverbs but carry the same implications in either part of speech. Across usually implies extension or passage from one side to the other <this board will not go across>
<he could not get across the river that night> Crosswise and crossways stress intersection at right angles and usually suggest a horizontal direction <the stripes run acrosswise>
<the defect lies crossways to the grain of the wood>
| Act 1 *action, deed
Ana performance, accomplishment, achievement <see corresponding verbs at PERFORM>; *feat, exploit
| Act 2 statute, law, *bill
Ant vb. 1 *Act, behave, work, operate, function, react are comparable when used with reference to the way in which a person or thing does what is expected or responds to external influences or circumstances. Act is not only the most general word of this group but also the most general of all English intransitive verbs except those (as be, exist, belong) which assert being, a state of being, or relation. Act is therefore used largely in interrogative sentences when knowledge of the specific nature of the action is sought or in declarative sentences with a qualifying adverb, adverbial element, or adjective complement (how did the child act when you called him?) (he acted as if he were about to cry) (he acted frightened) (how should this powder act when mixed with water?) (this medicine acts as a poison to some persons) Behave is widely applied chiefly to persons and their conduct with reference to a standard of what is right or proper or decorous (one must keep one's contracts, and behave as persons of honor and breeding should behave—Rose Macaulay) However, in or parallel to technical use behave often approaches act in generality (study how steel behaves under stress) (how the thyroid gland behaves during emotional excitement) (two men may behave like a crowd . . . ) when their emotions are engaged—Conrady Work, operate, function agree in meaning to act in the way that is natural or intended (the Swiss clock had long since ceased to work—Bennett) (but she had not thought. Her brain would not operate—Bennett) (they have functioned as observers rather than participants—J. M. Brown) In distinction from one another work may, especially when qualified, suggest success or effectiveness (the fact that a theory has actually worked is a better recommendation for its soundness than any amount of ingenious dialectic—Huxley); operate stresses efficient activity rather than achievement except when followed by on or upon (the revolutionary spirit, ceasing to operate in politics—Macaulay); function implies activity with reference to the accomplishment of the end or office for which a thing exists or is designed (consciousness ceases altogether at death, when the brain no longer functions—Grant Allen) (rules of the game which must be observed, if society is to function at all—Galsworthy) React, a word of rapidly shifting implications, is often used as though it were a close synonym of the preceding words, especially of act or behave (at this threat the civil service reacted in the way which is always open to any civil service, under any regime—C. P. Fitzgerald) In discriminating use it always suggests recoil or rebound; often more narrowly, but still consistently, it implies reciprocal or counteractive influence or a reverse effect (home and the school react (act reciprocally) on each other) (whilst most people’s minds succumb to inculation and environment, a few react vigorously: honestly and decent people coming from thievish slums, and skeptics and realists from country parsonages—Shaw) As a result of use in chemistry and psychology, react now often implies a favorable or desired response (children react (respond favorably) to kind treatment) 2 Act, play, impersonate are synonyms when they mean to assume the appearance or role of another person or character. Act usually and play frequently imply feigning for theatrical representation (act Hamlet) (play the melancholy Dane) Even the idiom “to play one’s part” has a theatrical origin and still connotes performance and a contribution to an ensemble. Whether impersonate implies simulation for the sake of theatrical representation or for deception can be gathered only from the context (an actor who impersonates women) (he was arrested for impersonating an officer) acting adj temporary, supply, ad interim, provisional action 1 Action, act, deed agree in designating something done or effected. Action refers primarily to the process of acting; act and deed to the result, the thing done. An action is usually regarded as occupying some time and involving more than one step; an act is more frequently thought of as momentary or instantaneous and as individual (the rescue of a shipwrecked crew is a heroic action; the launching of the lifeboat, a brave act) (a course of action) (the springs of action) (an act of vengeance) A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk () indicates place of treatment of each group.
actor, player, performer, mummer, mime, mimic, thespian, impersonator, trouper denote in common one who, for the entertainment or edification of an audience, takes part in an exhibition simulating happenings in real life. An actor makes a profession of taking part in such exhibitions (as in the theater or on television) (an ambition to be an actor) A player acts in a stage play either as a professional or as an amateur (all the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players—Shak.) Performer is a wider term than the others of this group. It emphasizes actual participation in an exhibition before an audience and may denote not only an actor or player but any public entertainer (as a dancer or musician) (in theatrical speaking, if the performer is not exactly proper and graceful, he is utterly ridiculous—Steele) Mummer, mime, and mimic may all denote a performer who projects a character by means of body movements, expression, and gesture usually without the use of speech. Mummer is used more particularly of comic and amateurish performers or maskers, usually at some festival or holiday celebration (here and there the beat of drums . . . the antics and grimaces of mummers held the crowd [for a moment before some fantastic festival car—A. M. Bacon] When used of the professional actor its connotation is often derogatory (dubbing, that mummer's trick with the mouth which has . . . been responsible for an endless succession of vaudeville acts—Rogow) Mime is used of both the performer and the performance (mime and mimicry are confused in the public mind . . . Chaplin is a mime, but those who imitate him are mimics. A mime does not copy . . . but invents characters who have their own life . . . quite apart from their creator—Enters) and is especially applicable to the stylized gestural language of narrative dance (as ballet) (was a great mime and did not follow the then traditional ballet-mime (pantomime), but . . . in ballet gave first-class dramatic performances—Nicolaeva-Legat) Mimic more particularly stresses imitation and often comic exaggeration of qualities (had accents so grotesque that not even Molly, an able mimic, could copy them—Stafford) (mimic . . . Entertain by presenting exaggerated imitations—Dict. of Occupational Titles) Thespian is equivalent in meaning to actor but in connotation is often mock-heroic (the gossip columns, where a well-known Silk might yet be observed in solemn conclude with a distinguished Thespian—Wills) An impersonator is a performer who assumes the character of another (as a public figure, a class of persons, an animal) whom he imitates by makeup and in speech and action (a female impersonator) (a noted impersonator of Abraham Lincoln—A) A trouper is a member of a group and especially a traveling group of actors staging a play or repertory of plays. The term often connotes the seasoning or the sense of obligation to audience and the sense of characterizations of an experienced actor (no real trouper while conscious will ever confess himself too sick to go on—Ferber) actual (see special)

Ant

acute *sharp, keen

Ana *material, physical, phenomenal, objective: particular (see special)

Ant *abstract, transcendent: spiritual, divine (see Holy): theoretical, speculative, academic: fabulous, fictitious, mythical actuality *existence, being

Ana realization, actualization, materialization, externalization, incarnation (see corresponding verbs at realize): attainment, achievement (see corresponding verbs at reach)

Ant potentiality, possibility (see abstraction, ideality, transcendence (see corresponding adjectives at abstract)

actualize *realize, embody, incarnate, externalize, objectify, materialize, hyponatize, reify actuate 1 *move, drive, impel

Ana stimulate, provoke, excite, galvanize, quicken: stir,rouse, arouse: energize, activate, *vitalize

2 *activate, motivate

Ana influence, affect, sway: incline, dispose, predispose: induce, prevail

Ant deter (with a motive or fear as the subject) —Con hinder, impede, bar: restrain, inhibit, curb, check acumen penetration, *discernment, insight, perception, discrimination

Ana shrewdness, sagacity, perspicacity, astuteness (see corresponding adjectives at shrewd): sharpness, keenness, acuteness (see corresponding adjectives at sharp)

Ant obtuseness —Con dullness, stupidity, slowness, denseness (see corresponding adjectives at stupid): blindness, purblindness (see corresponding adjectives at blind)

acute 1 *sharp, keen

Ana *incisive, trenchant, cutting: penetrating, piercing (see enter)

Ant obtuse —Con *dull, blunt: *stupid, slow, dull, crass, dense

2 Acute, critical, crucial. Acute most commonly indicates intensity, sometimes rapid, of a situation demanding notice and showing signs of some definite resolution (intimately associated with Indian affairs was the pressing question of defense . . . Pontiac's rebellion made the issue acute—Morison & Commager) when the food shortage became acute in New Haven, the junior class of Yale College was moved to Glastonbury—Amer, Guide Series: Conn. Critical may describe an approach to a crisis or turning point and may imply an imminent outcome or resolution (the war has reached a new critical phase . . . we have moved into active and continuing battle—Roosevelt) (the critical lack of rubber in the last war was finally beaten by the development of synthetic rubber plants capable of turning out 1,000,000 tons a year—Collier's Yr. Bk.) Crucial applies to an actual crisis situadapt

1 Adapt, adjust, accommodate, conform, reconcile

Adamant, adamantine obdurate, inexorable, inflexible

Adage

Ant

Adaptable pliant, ductile, plastic, pliable, malleable

Adapt tractable, amenable (see obedient): supple, flexible, resilient, elastic

Ant inadequate, unadaptable—Con intractable, refractory (see unrruly), unconforming, nonconforming, irrefragible (see affirmative verbs at adapt)

Add 1 Add, sum, total, tot, cast, figure, foot share the meaning to find or represent the amount reached by putting together arithmetically a series of numbers or quantities, and are commonly followed by up. Add is both the common and the technical word; it commonly implies strict adherence to the traditional arithmetical operation. Even in figurative use it implies a similar operation (taken as a whole the vignettes and the stories add up to a single effect—Aldridge) (the whole undertaking trend adds up to a major consideration for business men and employees—Lack) Sum stresses the result attained rather than the method followed. In figurative use sum up implies a gathering and consolidation into a new whole, especially for the production of a single telling effect (a lawyer in summing up summarizes in brief and logical form the evidence favorable to his case or client that has been given) (I summed up all the systems in a phrase and all existence in an epigram—Wilde) (values they can sum up in a few simple formulas—Croll) Total tends to replace sum up in literal use (determined the cost by totaling all expenditures) It may also mean to reach the sum or number of (absences due to colds totaled 253 last week) Tot, cast, figure, and foot are used especially of commercial matters (as accounts and bookkeeping devices). Tot and cast often imply facility in reckoning (the waiter quickly totted the bill) (if you tot up all the items that we owed against all the items that foreigners owed us—Hutton) (cast up an account) Figure usually suggests the task or burden involved in reckoning (figure the costs of operating an automobile) Foot connotes bookkeeping and totals at the bottom of each column of figures (his debts will foot up to more than he can ever pay)

Add 2 Add, append, annex, subjoin, superadd. Add, the most general of these words, means to join one thing to another thing or to a group, series, or combination of other things so as to increase the original unit in numbers, size, amount (added ten books to the library) (a little gossip adds spice to the conversation) (police action would add nothing to the protection that victims of aggression have enjoyed under the old system—Wolters) One appends when one adds something that is supplemental and accessory and does not form an integral part of the principal thing (append notes to a book) (the final summary of his views which he enjoyed appending to his long-winded discourses—I. V. Morris) One annexes when one adds something that becomes part of the original whole yet bears usually a subordinate or subsidiary relation to it or suffers loss of identity in the merging (annex a codicil to a will) (annex conquered territory to the kingdom) One subjoins when one adds something under another thing or especially to what has already been said or written (subjoin a postscript to a letter) (subjoin additional matter in an appendix) One superadds when one adds something to what is complete in itself or already at its maximum (the phrase "to paint the lily" means to superadd decoration to that which in itself is highly decorative) (the horrors of pestilence superadded to the horrors of war)

Ana *fasten, attach, affix: augment, enlarge, *increase

Ant subtract, deduct—Con lessen, *decrease, dimin-

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
addendum, 19

addendum: abstract, *detach

addendum: supplement, *appendix addict: *habituate, accustom, inure

Anna: *incline, dispose, predispose, bias: devote, apply, address, *direct

Ant: wean —Con alienate, *estrange: *detach, disengage: disline, indispose (see affirmative verbs at INCLINE) addict: Addict, votary, devotee, habitué designate a person who by habit and strong inclination indulges in something or the pursuit of something. Addict implies excessive, continuous, and often compulsive indulgence typically in harmful but sometimes in harmless things (a drug addict) a detective-story addict. Votary and devotee retain some of the implications of their religious senses such as enthusiasm, often amounting to fanaticism, and zeal. They rarely suggest attachment to that which is degrading or debasing but they do not invariably imply attachment to that which is uplifting (a votary of science) a devotee of vegetarianism) any worthy object of study, pursued disinterestedly does not permit its votary to be very seriously narrowed by his zeal —Inge Habitue implies frequent attendance at a place but it connotes habitual indulgence in a pleasure (a habitue of the theater is a devotee of the drama) (a habitue of a gambling house is a gambling addict) addition, accretion, increment, accession agree in denoting a thing that serves to increase another in size, amount, or content. Addition implies union with something already existing as a whole or as a unit (the built an addition to his house last year) (the office boy, a recent addition to the staff, was busy with the copying press —Archibald Marshall) Sometimes improvement rather than increase is stressed (the paintings were an addition to the room) Accretion implies attachment from the outside; it may be used of the process as well as of the thing added (a rolled snowball grows by accretion) It often suggests additions made to an original body over a considerable period of time (the professional historian, whose aim is exact truth, should brush aside the glittering accretions of fiction that have encrusted it —Grandgent) Nearly always it implies the addition of unessential or alien matter (all progress in literary style lies in the heroic resolve to cast aside accretions and exuberances —Ellis) Increment usually implies addition bit by bit in consecutive or serial order (the salaries are raised by annual increments) one move in the endless ebb and flow of action and reaction, the infinitesimal increments of which we call Progress —Lowes Sometimes it signifies increase in value (benefited from an unearned increment in the value of his land resulting from growth of the city) Accession denotes something acquired that constitutes an addition to contents, holdings, or possessions (recent accessions to a library) (the greatest accession of positive knowledge has come in our own time —Inge)

additive: summative, *cumulative, accumulative

Anna: aggregative, conglomerative, agglomerative (see corresponding nouns at AGGREGATE): constituent, component, elemental (see corresponding nouns at ELEMENT)

addle: muddle, *confuse, fuddle, befuddle

Anna: confound, dumbfound, nonplus, bewilder (see PUZZLE) amaze, astonish, astound (see SURPRISE) fluster, flurry, agitate, upset (see DISCOMPOSE)

Ant: refresh (mentally) —Con *quicken, enliven, vivify, vivat.

address: vh 1 *direct, devote, apply

Anna: bend (see CURVE): appeal, pray, sue, plead (see under PRAYER): aim, point, level (see DIRECT)

2 Address, accost, greet, salute, hail mean to speak to or less often to write or make a sign to a person in recognition or in order to obtain recognition. Address usually implies formality and definite purpose; it also frequently suggests length of speech or communication (address a petition to Congress) (how does one address a governor?) (it was Franklin, the thick chief mate, who was addressing him —Conrad) Accost adds to address the idea of speaking first or without being introduced; it implies absence of formality and often suggests boldness or sometimes evil intent (he accosted a passerby and asked for money) (the women. . . were accosted by two men who wanted to walk with them —Anderson) Greet usually implies friendliness, goodwill, or cordiality; it is the precise word when welcoming is to be suggested (the whole town appeared at the station to greet them) (my lord, the Mayor of London comes to greet you —Shak.) Salute commonly stresses ceremoniousness or observance of courtesies demanded by custom (the wife of his brother . . . must be saluted every day; but his paternal and maternal kinswomen need only be greeted on his return from a journey —William Jones) (then I salute you with this kingly title: long live Richard, England’s royal king —Shak.) Specifically salute applies to formal or prescribed acts of recognition (the soldier saluted his superior officer) (the president was saluted with 21 guns) Hail implies heartiness, joyousness, and often noisiness (the smiled and saluted and saluted to those who hailed him —Masefield) It often stresses the idea of calling out especially from a distance (hail a cab)

Anna: *speak, talk, converse: court, woo (see INVITE)

address: n 1 *tact, savoir faire, poise

Anna: dexterity, facility, ease, *readiness: adroitness, cleverness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEVER): graciousness, affability (see corresponding adjectives at GRACIOUS): suavity, urbanity, diplomacy (see corresponding adjectives at SUAVE)

Ant: maladroitness, gaucherie —Con awkwardness, clumsiness, ineptness (see corresponding adjectives at AWFULL): boorishness, churlishness (see corresponding adjectives under BOOR)

2 *speech, oration, harangue, lecture, talk, sermon, homily adduce, advance, allege, cite may be used interchangeably in the meaning to bring forward by way of explanation, proof, illustration, or demonstration; however, they usually are clearly distinguishable in their implications and in their idiomatic associations. One adduces facts, evidence, instances, passages, reasons, arguments when one presents these in support of a contention (at the close of the chapter Aquinas solves an objection adduced as damaging evidence against his position —Clark) (in the light of the parallels which I have adduced the hypothesis appears legitimate —Fraser) One advances something (as a theory, a proposal, a claim, an argument) that is in itself contentious when one presents it for acceptance or consideration (once or twice psychoanalysts have advanced that idea to me as a theoretical possibility —De Voio) (if such a proposal was not seriously meant, why was it advanced at all? —Hartmann) (half a century later when the Bourbon claim to the Spanish succession is advanced —Bello) Allege may indicate a bringing forward or stating as if needing no proof (younger scholars nevertheless can allege a very strong point on their side —H. M. Jones) It may on the other hand stress doubt about an assertion or convey a warning about or a disclaimer of responsibility for the truth of matter under discussion (those whose senses are alleged to be subject to supernatural impressions —Le Fanu) Its participial adjective alleged, especially, often serves as a disclaimer of responsibility for the assertion an alleged miracle —the adherent

ad interim
*temporary, provisional, acting, supply adhesion
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adj
adjust

\textbf{adherent} (the presence, real or alleged, of some hostile group—Dewey) One cites only something concrete and specific (as a passage from a book or a definite instance) when one adduces it in support of a contention; one cites by quoting a passage to give an authority; one cites an instance that serves as a precedent or illustration; one cites definite facts in support of something (as a claim or proposal) advanced \(\langle\) the very real difficulties of modern physical science originate, in large degree, in the facts just cited—Jeans\rangle

\textbf{Ana} *exemplify, illustrate: *remark, comment, commentate, animadvert

\textbf{adept} \textbf{n} *expert, wizard, artiste, artist, virtuoso

\textbf{Ant} bungler —\textbf{Con} dabbler, tyro, *amateur, dilettante: *apprentice, *novice, probationer

\textbf{addept} \textbf{adj} *proficient, skilled, skillful, expert, masterly

\textbf{Ana} *conversant, versed: efficient, effective: *dexterous, adroit, deft: competent, *able, capable, qualified

\textbf{Ant} inadvert, inept: bungling —\textbf{Con} amateurious, dabbling, dilettantist (see corresponding nouns at AMATEUR): *awkward, clumsy, maladroitr

\textbf{adhere} *stick, cohere, cling, cleave

\textbf{Ana} *fasten, attach, affix: unite, link, combine, *join

\textbf{Con} *separate, part, sever, divide: *detach, disengage: disunite, disjoin (see affirmative verbs at JOIN)

\textbf{adherence, adhesion} are usually distinguished in current use. In spite of exceptions the tendency prevails to use adherence when mental or moral attachment and adhesion when physical attachment is implied \(\langle\) they gave their adherence to the cause of reform \rangle (the adhesion of lung tissues to the pleura) Sometimes, however, adhesion is used in place of adherence when the writer feels that the physical connotations of the former will add emphasis \(\langle\) the iron force of adhesion to the old routine—Arnold\rangle

\textbf{Ant} inadherence, nonadhesion

\textbf{adherent} *follower, disciple, partisan, satellite, henchman, sectary

\textbf{Ana} supporter, upholder, backer, champion (see corresponding verbs at SUPPORT)

\textbf{Ant} renegade —\textbf{Con} apostate, recreant (see RENEGADE): deserter, forsaker (see corresponding verbs at ABANDON): adversary, *opponent, antagonist

\textbf{adhesion} *adherence

\textbf{Ant} nonadhesion, inadhesion

\textbf{adjoin} \textbf{n} *appendage, appurtenance, accessory

\textbf{Ana} *addition, accretion: appanage (see RIGHT): attach, *grant: *allot, assign

\textbf{adjudicate} *judge, arbitrate

\textbf{Ant} joined, connected (see JOIN vb): attached (see FASTEN)

\textbf{Ant} detached, disjoined —\textbf{Con} removed, *distant, remote, far

\textbf{adjudge} adjudicate, *judge, arbitrate

\textbf{Ant} rule, *decide, determine, settle: award, accord, *grant: *allot, assign

\textbf{adjunct} *appendage, appurtenance, accessory

\textbf{Ana} *addition, accretion: appanage (see RIGHT): attachment, affix, fixture (see corresponding verbs at FASTEN)

\textbf{adjudication}

\textbf{Ant} entertain, *beg, beseech, implore, impounce, supplicate

\textbf{Ana} pray, plead, appeal (see under PRAYER): request, *ask: bid, enjoin, charge, *command

\textbf{adjust}

\textbf{Ant} 1 Adjust, regulate, fix share the meaning to set right or to rights. Adjust implies modification to meet a need. To adjust a thing one brings it by some change into its exact or proper position or condition or into its right relationship with other things. One adjusts a telescope when one changes the distance between its eyepiece and its object glass so as to bring it into focus; one adjusts the temperature of a house when one changes the setting of a thermostat. Often adjust implies rectification or correction \(\langle\) adjust an error in an account \rangle (adjust a loose screw in a machine) \(\langle\) adjust spectacles that are not properly centered \rangle; frequently it suggests straightening out or settling \(\langle\) adjust a difficulty with a neighbor \rangle (adjust a claim for insurance) \textbf{Regulate}, on the other hand, usually implies the maintenance of something in a desired condition. To regulate something (as a mechanism, a device, an organ) one uses or serves as the means of making it work or operate regularly, uniformly, or accurately; thus, one regulates a clock when one adjusts its mechanism so that it will keep accurate time \(\langle\) some drugs regulate the beat of the heart by slowing it up, others by hastening it, until its rate of speed is normal \rangle One also regulates something that is produced or effected by a mechanism or a bodily organ when one uses the means to keep it at a fixed or uniform rate or degree \(\langle\) regulate the temperature of the house by setting the thermostat at the desired mark and keeping it there \rangle Fix is an informal and imprecise equivalent to these words. It is often used where adjust or regulate would be more explicit and effective \(\langle\) the optician will...
adjuvant

fix her glasses <please fix the clock > (he will fix up matters for us>) In distinctive use it implies restoration to good order or a state of repair <these shoes are not worth fixing > (fixed the leak in the roof)

Ana rectify, *correct: trim, steady, *stabilize, balance: *order, arrange: align, *line, line up, range

Ant derange —Con disarrange, *disorder, disturb: up-set, *discompose

2 *adapt, accommodate, conform, reconcile

Ana *harmonize, attune: correspond, conform, accord, square (see AGREE) adjuvant adj *auxiliary, contributory, ancillary, accessory, subsidiary, subservient

Ana aiding, helping, assisting (see HELP vb): supporting, upholding, backing (see SUPPORT vb): *effective, efficient, efficacious, effectual administer, dispense come into comparison because they are used in certain idiomatic phrases, similar in wording but not always equivalent in meaning, such as administer justice or dispense justice; administer a medicine or dispense medicines when he compounds them; dispenses when he gives the prescribed dose directly to the patient; one dispenses medicines when he compounds them according to the prescription of the physician. Similarly, one administers a blow or a rebuke when he deals it out directly to the individual. Dis pense, in comparable phrases, retains its implication of distribution; one dispenses advice when he metes it out to those who in his opinion need it; one dispenses alms when he manages their distribution.

Ant counteractive —Con neutralizing, negativing (see neutralize): obstructing, hindering, impeding (see hinder vb)

admiration 1 *wonder, wonderment, amazement

Ana astonishment, surprise (see corresponding verbs at surprise): awe, fear, *reverence: rapture, transport, ecstasy

Con indifference, unconcern, aloofness (see corresponding adjectives at indifferent): boredom, *ledium, ennui

2 esteem, respect, *regard

Ana appreciation (see corresponding verb at appreciate): liking, loving, enjoying (see like): adoration, veneration, reverence, worship (see under REVERE)

Ant abhorrence —Con loathing, detestation, hate, hatred (see under hate vb)

admire esteem, respect, regard (see under regard n)

Ana *appreciate, value, prize, cherish: *revere, reverence, venerate, adore, worship

Ant abhor —Con *hate, loathe, abominate, detest: *despise, contemn, scorn, disdain admittance 1 *admittance

admire 1 *receive, accept, take

Ana allow, permit, suffer (see let): *habor, entertain, shelter, lodge, house

Ant eject, expel —Con *exclude, debar, shut out: bar, obstruct, block, *hinder

2 *acknowledge, own, confess, avow

Ana concede, *grant, allow: *assert, acquiesce, agree, subscribe: divulge, disclose, *reveal

Ant gainsay: disdain —Con *deny, contradict, negative

3 enter, introduce

Ana induct, *initiate, install: *introduce, insert, interject, interpose

Ant exclude —Con debar, shut out (see exclude): expel, *ject, oust admittance, admission. Admittance is mostly confined to the literal sense of allowing one to enter a locality or building (no admittance without a pass) <admittance to the grounds> Admission has acquired the figurative sense of admitting to rights, privileges, standing, membership <his admission to the club> <admission of new words into the language> When entrance into a building or a locality carries with it certain privileges, admission rather than admittance is used <admission to a theater> <the admission of aliens into a country>

admixture 1 *mixture, composite, blend, compound, amalgam

2 Admixture, alloy, adulterant are comparable when they denote an added ingredient that destroys the purity or genuineness of a substance. Admixture suggests the addition of the foreign or the nonessential <pure Indian without admixture of white blood> <love with admixture of selfishness> <comic verses with an occasional admixture of mild bawdry—Cowie> Alloy derives its figurative implication of an addition that detracts from the value or perfection of a thing from an old literal application to a base metal added to a precious metal to give it hardness <there's no fortune so good, but it has its alloy—Bacon> (he had his alloy, like other people, of ambition and selfishness—Rose Macaulay) Adulterant, both literally and figuratively, implies the addition of something that debases or impairs a thing without markedly affecting its appearance. Consequently it usually implies the intent to deceive <interests . . . trying to upgrade consumer thinking on wool by classifying the new textile fibers as adulterants—F. A. Adams> <pity without any adulterant of hypocrisy>

Ana *addition, accretion: *touch, suggestion, streak, dash, spice, tinge, smack, shade: infusion, suffusion, leaven (see corresponding verbs at infuse)

admonish chide, *reprove, reproach, rebuke, reprimand

Ana *warn, forewarn, caution: counsel, advise (see under ADVISE n): *criticize, reprehend, rebuke

Ant commend —Con *approve: applaud, compliment (see commend)

ado fuss, pother, flurry, bustle, *stir

Ana trouble, pains, exertion, *effort

Con quietness, stillness, silence (see corresponding adjectives at still): calm, serenity, tranquillity (see corresponding adjectives at calm)

adolescence *youth, puberty, pubescence

Ant senescence

adopt, embrace, espouse mean in common to make one's own what in some fashion one owes to another. One adopts something of which one is not the begetter, inventor, or author or which is not one's own naturally <adopt the style of Swinburne> <adopt the British pronunciation of a word> (the Ralstons gave up old custom reluctantly,

Ana analogous words  Ant antonyms  Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
but once they had adopted a new one they found it impossible to understand why everyone else did not immediately do likewise—Wharton> Embrace implies willingness to accept or it may suggest eager or joyful acceptance <embrace an opportunity> <embrace Christianity> (she embraced with ardor the fantastic ideal of the cleaning up of England—Rose Macaulay) One espouses that to which one attaches oneself as closely as to a wife, giving it support or sharing the same fortunes and participating in the same experiences <espouse a friend’s quarrel> (the spirit of uncompromising individualism that would eventually espouse the principle of democracy in church and state—Parrington)

Ana appropriate, *arrogate, usurp; *assume, affect Ant repudiate: discard —Con reject, spurn (see DECLINE): renounce, forswear, *abjure adoration worship, veneration, reverence (see under REVERE)

Ana *honor, homage, obeisance: praise, laud, extolling (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE)
Ant blasphemy —Con execration, cursing (see corresponding verbs at EXECRATE): profanation, desecration, sacrilege

*adore worship, venerate, *revere, reverence

Ana laud, *praise—extol: *exalt, magnify
Ant blaspheme —Con execrate, curse

2 Adore, worship, idolize in their nonreligious senses mean to love or admire excessively. Adore commonly implies emotional surrender to the charms or attractions of an object of love or admiration; it often connotes extreme adulation if the object of love is a person (this inability ... to project his personality is a serious weakness in a country which likes to adore its leaders—Dorothy) With other objects it may connote no more than a hearty liking <like gourmet and yellow flies, sows adore eating truffles—Lauber> Worship usually implies more extravagant adoration or more servile attentions than adore; it also commonly connotes an awareness of one’s own inferiority or of one’s distance from the object of one’s love (he worships his wife) <small boys who worship astronauts>

Idolize often implies absurdly excessive adoration or doting love <Idolizing money in life and poetry—New School Bulletin> Sometimes, however, it comes very close to adore (a spoiled child is one that has been idolized by his parents)

Ana love, dote (see LIKE): admire, esteem (see under REGARD n)

Ant detest —Con *hate, loathe, abhor, abominate: *despise, scorn, contemn, disdain

adorn, decorate, ornament, embellish, beautify, deck, bedeck, garnish mean to add something unessential in order to enhance the appearance. These words and especially the first five are often used interchangeably; certain distinctions, however, are apparent in precise use especially when the subject of the verb is the thing that enhances rather than the agent or enhancer. An element that adorns not only serves to heighten the beauty of its background or setting but also is beautiful in itself <few nobler poems than those wherein the simple joys of rising morning are celebrated—Lyon> (bedecking a broiled salmon with lemon slices and chopped parsley)

Adorn, decorate, ornament imply adding something unessential in order to enhance or beautify a thing. When the subject of the verb is the thing that enhances rather than the agent or enhancer, or is the source or origin of the enhancing or beautifying, the verb enhance or beautify is used. Enhance often emphasizes something already attractive while beautify often emphasizes something in need of improvement (the effect of a thing. One who embellishes modifies his material, especially by adding adventitious or sometimes gaudy or fictitious ornament for the sake of effect <embellishes his style with imagery> (feats of virtuosity ... with which she embellished the usual routine of the role—Sargent>) Embellish often suggests disregard for truth <that theme is then expertly embellished by the Communists to prove that Wall Street is on the warpath against the Kremlin—Fischer> One that beautifies either enhances the beauty of something or counterbalances its plainness or ugliness <an embellment swathed and beautified by clambering roses> (the eternal orbs that beautify the night—Shelley) One that decks or bedecks contributes to the gaiety, splendor, or, especially in the case of deck, showiness of appearance <deck oneself with jewels> <decking with liquid pearl the bladed grass—Shak> (he likes to deck out his little person in splendor and fine colors—Thackeray)

Ana enhance, heighten, *intensify Ant diminish, *deface: mar, spoil, impair, *injure: deform, distort, contort adroit 1 *dexterous, deft, handy

Ana *agile, nimble: expert, masterly, adept, skilled, *proficient: effortless, smooth, facile, *easy
Ant maladroit —Con clumsy, *awkward, inept

2 *clever, cunning, ingenious

Ana *shrewd, astute, perspicacious: *intelligent, quick-witted, smart: artful, crafty (see SLY)

Ant stolid —Con *impassive, apathetic, phlegmatic: *stupid, slow, dull, dense adulation flattery, *compliment

Ana praise, laud (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE): *applause, acclaim: fulsome, unctuousness (see corresponding adjectives at FULSOME)
Ant abuse —Con obloquy, vituperation (see ABUSE): censure, condemnation, reprobation, criticism (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE)

adult adj *mature, grown-up, matured, ripe, mellow Ana developed, ripened, aged (see MATURE vb)
Ant juvenile: puerile —Con *youthful, boyish, virgin, virginal, maiden: adolescent, pubescent (see corresponding nouns at YOUTH)

adulterant n *admixture, alloy adulterate, sophisticate, load, weight, doctor mean to alter fraudulently especially for profit. Adulterate, the usual and technical term, especially when used with reference to foodstuffs and drugs, implies either the admixture of ingredients of similar appearance to increase the bulk or of a harmful substance as a preservative or as a restorer or improver of appearance <adulterate maple syrup with beet-sugar syrup> (line juice adulterated with five percent sulfuric acid, jellies with formaldehyde, peas with copper—Heiser>) In its extended use adulterate implies spuriousness or loss of purity: such implications come out strongly in unadulterated, which is the equivalent of pure and sheer in their hyperbolic senses <that book is unadulterated trash> In meaning sophisticate is essentially identical with adulterate but its use is restricted almost entirely to raw drug and essential oil trade <rose oil is sophisticate with geraniol—Shreve> Load implies the admixture of something to add weight whether as an adulterant or in the normal course of manufacture <numerous adulterants have been used to load tea to increase its weight—Uker> (most kinds of paper are loaded in some way or other) The process ... was first practiced ... to save pulp...but it was found that restricted quantities of loadings improved the paper—Jennett. Weight is used interchangeably with load but is applied more especially to textiles—(silk weighted with salts of tin)—Doctor implies tampering sometimes by adulteration but more often by alterations or falsifications which give an illusion of genuineness, of superior quality, or of great value—doctoring.

Doctoring poor wine with essences and brandy—doctored his accounts to hide his thefts—Ana.

*debase, vitiate, corrupt: pollute, defile, taint (see CONTAMINATE)

Ant. *improve, better

adultery, fornication, incest designate forms of illicit sexual intercourse which are clearly distinguished in legal use, both civil and ecclesiastical. Adultery implies unfaithfulness to one's spouse, and therefore can be applied only to sexual intercourse on the part of a married man with a woman other than his wife, or of a married woman with a man other than her husband. Fornication designates sexual intercourse on the part of an unmarried person; when occurring between a married and an unmarried person, the former is involved in adultery and the latter in fornication. Incest designates sexual intercourse between persons so closely related that their marriage is prohibited by church or state and usually by both.

Ana. unfaithfulness, inconstancy, untruthfulness (see affirmative adjectives at FAITHFUL); infidelity, disloyalty (see affirmative nouns at FIDELITY)

adumbrate—suggest, shadow

Ana. symbolize, typify, emblematize (see corresponding nouns at SYMBOL); signify, denote, mean (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST)

Ant. revelation—Con. disclosure, revealing, divulging, discovering (see corresponding verbs at REVEAL) advance vb 1 Advance, promote, forward, further all mean to move or put ahead, but they come into comparison chiefly when they imply help in moving or putting (something) ahead. Advance usually implies effective assistance, as in hastening a process (the warm rains greatly advanced the spring crops) or in bringing about a desired end (the pact should advance peace among nations) or in exalting or elevating a person, especially in rank or in power—Ahasuerus...advanced him...above all the princes—Esth 3:1. The implication of moving ahead is dominant in promote when the word means to advance in grade or rank, especially in a predetermined order (promote a pupil to the next grade in school) (promote a member of a college faculty from associate professor to full professor). When the dominant implication is assistance, promote may suggest open backing or support (the objects for which a corporation is created are universally such as the government wishes to promote—John Marshall). It may, especially when the subject names a person, his influence, or his acts, imply actual advance by encouraging or fostering (a sound forest economy promotes the prosperity of agriculture and rural life—Gustafson).

It may, when said of a thing such as a practice, a policy, a habit, imply subservience to an end that may not be intended (the habit of regarding the language of poetry as something dissociated from personal emotion...was promoted by the writing of Greek and Latin verse in school—Babbitt). In one or two collocations forward implies not assistance but effective carrying out (forward a shipment by express) (please forward all letters during my absence). In its more common sense forward is often not clearly distinguishable from advance, except that it is seldom if ever used with reference to persons—(Marie de Médecis had advanced Marillac by marrying him to one of her maids of honor...yet...she only forwarded the marriage because she wanted to do the girl a favor—Bello). Further, less than any other word in this group, implies movement ahead and, perhaps more than any other, emphasizes the assistance given, especially in the removing of obstacles, either to a person in an undertaking or to the project he undertakes (her sole object...was to further him, not as an artist but as a popular success—Brooks). Bodies like the French Academy have such power for promoting it [genius], that the general advance of the human spirit is perhaps, on the whole, rather furthered than impeded by their existence—Arnold.

Ana. *help, aid, assist: hasten, accelerate, quicken, spur: elevate, raise, lift

Ant. retard: check—Con. *hinder, impede: restrain, curb: *arrest: *delay, slow

2 Advance, progress both as intransitive verbs and as nouns share the meaning to move (or movement) forward in space, in time, or in approach to a material or ideal object. They are often employed interchangeably; however there are instances in which one is preferable to the other. Advance only may be used when a concrete instance is signified; though one may say that at a given time science made no advance (or progress), one must say that there were no advances (not progresses) in science at that time. Advance is preferable to progress when the context implies movement ahead such as that of an army marching to its objective, the distance traveled, or the rate of traveling (bullish sentiment regained fervor...and stock prices advanced sharply—N. Y. Times) (there are some...who picture to themselves religion as retreating...before the victorious advance of science—Inge) (boll weevil...may have existed in Mexico...for centuries...it advanced north and east at the rate of about 100 miles per year—Harlow). Progress usually carries implications derived from earlier meanings of a process, a circuit, or a cycle, and so is preferable to advance when the movement forward involves these implications, as by suggesting a normal course, growth, or development (the trial is progressing) (moon...begins...her rosy progress—Milton) (summer) oft, delighted, stops to trace the progress of the spiky blade—Burns). Sometimes the word without losing these implications carries additional connotations and often stresses development through a series of steps or stages, each marking a definite change (it would be...a dull world that developed without break of continuity; it would surely be a mad world that progressed by leaps alone—Lowes) (the progress of an artist is a continual self-sacrifice, a continual extinction of personality—T. S. Eliot). Progress is the preferable word when development with improvement is implied (there was a general belief in inevitable and universal progress—Berger).

Ana. develop, *mature: *intensify, heighten

Ant. recede—Con. retreat, retrograde (see RECEDE); retire, withdraw (see go)

3 *advocate, allege, cite

Ana. *offer, present, proffer: propose (see corresponding noun at PROPOSAL); broach, *express, air advance n 1 progress (see under ADVANCE vb 2) (development, evolution: improvement, betterment (see corresponding verbs at IMPROVE)

Ant. recession, retrogression—Con. retrograding, re-treating (see RECEDE)

2 *overture, approach, tender, bid

Ana. *proposal, proposition: offer, proffer (see corresponding verbs at OFFER)

Ana. analogous words

Ant. antonyms

Con. contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1.
advanced 1 forward, precocious, *premature, untimely Ant backward — Con retrogressive, retrograde, regressive (see backward)
2 radical, *liberal, progressive Ana daring, venturesome, *adventurous Ant conservative advancement, preferment, promotion, elevation designate the act of raising a person in grade, rank, or dignity, or the honor that comes to one who is so raised. Advancement is the general term of widest application <lose all hope of advancement> Preferment especially in older use often comes close to advancement <tis the curse of service, preferment goes by letter and affection, and not by old gradation, where each second stood heir to the first—Shak.> It now more often implies choice, especially from a series of candidates or possibilities  <obedience spelled preferment in the civil service—Schumpler> Promotion, usually but not invariably, implies gradation or raising according to a fixed plan, often involving the passing of tests or the meeting of qualifications. It is the specific word in education to designate the end-of-the-term advance of pupils to a higher grade or in any field where members of a force or staff are given positions of higher rank with increased remuneration. Elevation is applicable only when the advance is marked in honor or dignity <the prime minister’s elevation to the peerage> <the bishop’s elevation to the cardinalate> The many men of talent who owed their elevation to Wolsey—Froude>

Ant degradation: reduction (in rank or status)

advantage 1 Advantage, handicap, allowance, odds, edge denote a factor or set of factors in a competition or rivalry giving one person or side a position of superiority over the other. Advantage is the general term, and implies superiority of any kind <the adult, with trained powers, has an immense advantage over the child in the acquisition of information—Elliot> A handicap is something, typically an artificial advantage, designed to equalize competition; thus, in golf, the handicap assigned a player is the difference between the average of a certain number of his best scores and par for the course; for instance, if the player’s best-score average is 75 and par is 72, his handicap is 3, and when he plays in a handicap match the player is allowed to deduct three strokes from his total score. An allowance is an advantageous handicap stated as a deduction of some sort. In horse racing an allowance is a deduction from the weight that the rules require a horse to carry, granted to a horse considered to be at a disadvantage. Odds usually implies a material advantage as in strength, numbers, or resources. It is often used of such an advantage possessed by the opposite side <managed to beat the odds against him—O’Leary> The peculiarly British quality . . . of sticking out against odds—Contemporary Review> Advantage is often stated as a difference, odds as a ratio <one boxer has an advantage of ten pounds in weight> <one army has odds of two to one over the other> Odds may also denote an equalizing concession made to an inferior competitor; it then differs from handicap and allowance in that the concession is made by the superior competitor and not assigned by a third party <each side feels that it cannot allow any odds to the other—Bryce> Edge may be an equivalent of advantage or odds but usually implies a slight but decisive superiority <here we have the edge on our rivals, not only because of our superior location, but also because we are reputedly reckless about reducing prices—Publishers’ Weekly>

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
adversary

adversary *opponent, antagonist

adverse 1 Adverse, antagonistic, counter, counteractive

Ant

adventurous: cautious

adversary *opponent, antagonist

Ana audacious, bold, intrepid, doughty (see BRAVE): aspiring, panting (see AIM vb): ambitious, emulous

Ant unadventurous: cautious adverse

adversity *misfortune, mischance, mishap

Ana *trial, tribulation, affliction: *distress, misery, suffering: *poverty, privation, indigence, destitution

Ant prosperity — Con felicity, *happiness, bliss: ease, comfort (see REST): wealth, affluence, opulence, richness (see corresponding adjectives at RICH)

advert 1 Advert, revert are sometimes confused because of a similar basic meaning when they are used in reference to discourse or contemplation. Advert denotes to turn from the point, topic, or incident under consideration in order to take up another. It sometimes suggests an unconscious or an illogical break in the chain of thought, but in highly discriminating use may still retain its primary implication of heading or taking notice (We are but too apt to consider things in the state in which we find them, without sufficiently adverting to the causes by which they have been produced—Burke) (the distinction . . . will be rendered more apparent by adverting to that provision in the second section . . . of the constitution—John Marshall) Revert adds to advert the implication of return either consciously or unconsciously to a point or topic already discussed or previously in one's mind (he now drops this idea, and reverts to his reasoning on death—Goldsmith)

2 *refer, allude

Ana remark, notice, note, observe (see SEE)

Con ignore, disregard, overlook, *neglect advertise publish, announce, proclaim, broadcast, promulgate, *declare

Ana report, recount, *relate: *communicate, impart

Con *suppress, repress: conceal, *hide, bury advertisement publication, announcement, broadcasting, proclamation, promulgation, declaration (see under DECLARE)

Ana *publicity, ballyhoo, promotion, propaganda

advice 1 Advice, counsel and their corresponding verbs advise, counsel denote recommendation or to make a recommendation as to a decision or a course of conduct. Advice and advise imply real or pretend knowledge or experience, often professional or technical, on the part of the one who advises and may apply to any of the affairs of life (advice regarding the choice of books) (the extension specialist assists and advises the farmers) (legal advice) Counsel often stresses the fruit of wisdom or deliberation, and presupposes weightier occasions than advice or more authority or a closer personal relationship in the one who counsels (I do in friendship counsel you to leave this place—Shak.) (seek counsel in affairs of state) The noun sometimes suggests instruction or advice of a lofty or ideal character (the Christian counsel of perfection)

Ana admonition (see corresponding verb at REPROVE): warning, forewarning, cautioning (see Warn): instruc-tion, teaching (see corresponding verbs at TEACH)

2 intelligence, *news, tidings

advisable *expedient, politic

Ana prudent, *wise, sensible: *beneficial, advantageous, profitable: practical, *practicable advise 26

advise 1 counsel (see under advice 1)

An

Admonish (see reprove): warn, forewarn, caution:
induce, persuade

Con

consult, confer, advise

2 consult, confer, commune, parley, treat, negotiate

Ana

discuss, debate, argue: converse, talk (see speak): deliberate (see think)

Con

counsel (see under advice 1)

3 notify, inform, apprise, acquaint

Advised

deliberate, considered, premeditated, designed, studied

Advocate

n
lawyer, counselor, barrister, counsel, attorney, solicitor

advocate

vb
support, uphold, champion, back

Ana

defend, justify, vindicate, *maintain: espouse (see adopt): promote, forward, advance

Ant

impugn — Con

assail, *attack: combat, oppose, fight (see resist)

Aeon

age, era, epoch, period

aeronautics, advocate

vb
deliberate, considered, premeditated, designed, studied

aerate

ventilate, oxygenate, carbonate. Aerate is the general term and interchangeable in certain phrases with any of the others; the last three are specific terms which are not freely interchangeable with each other. Aerate means to supply or impregnate with air or to expose to the action of air. It frequently implies a mechanical process (aerate soil by plowing). Aerate sewage by agitation in fresh air. It sometimes, however, implies a natural process (the blood is aerated in the lungs) Ventilate is commonly used when exposure to air especially in large quantities with the object of purifying, freshening, or cooling is implied (ventilate a room by opening windows) (ventilate an engine by means of holes in its covering) (the patient is unable adequately to ventilate himself with air because air cannot be easily drawn through the air passages, the caliber of which has been diminished by the disease—Science) It may be indistinguishable from aerate when applied to the blood but usually suggests rather the exposure to air and aerate the resulting gaseous exchange. More exact than either in this relation is oxygenate since it is the oxygen in the air that is required by the blood. Technically aerate and carbonate are not synonyms, for the latter means to impregnate with carbon dioxide but they may overlap when aerate is used broadly with the meaning to impregnate with a gas; hence, aerate or especially aerated is used in certain designations (as aerated water or aerated bread) where carbonated would correctly describe the process.

Aerial

adj
airy, ethereal

Ana

immaterial, incorporeal (see material: impalpable, imperceptible, imponderable

Aeronautics, aviation to have to do with the operation of aircraft. Aeronautics is primarily a science dealing with the operation of any kind of aircraft (engineers specializing in aeronautics) Aviation is an art, science, or practice concerned with the operation of heavier-than-air aircraft (skill in aviation develops only when theoretical knowledge is supplemented by practical experience) Unlike aeronautics it has extended use in which it may denote aircraft or their manufacture, development, and design (his aviation had sunk or damaged 52...vessels—Newsweek) (recent advances in American aviation)

Aesthete, dilettante, connoisseur

designate a person conspicuous for his enjoyment and appreciation of the beautiful, the exquisite, or the choice. Aesthete implies highly developed sensibilities, with acute delight in beauty of color, line, sound, and texture, and violent distaste for the ugly, shapeless, and discordant (no woman could walk down the street without risk of having her hat torn off...by some aesthete who happened to think it unbecoming—Shaw) (that mystical synthetic sense, of which the modern aesthete dreams,—the sense that sees, hears, tastes, smells, touches, all in one—Babbit) It often carries derogatory connotations of absurdity, extravagance, decadence, or effeminacy (it was perhaps natural for a man who had had to fight his way...to a recognized position in scholarly literature to be irritated by the poses of comfortable aesthetes—Renwick) Dilettante stresses the attitude of the lover of art as distinguished from that of the creative artist. Though its application to amateurs who were neither thoroughly familiar with the technique of their particular form of art nor seriously seeking for mastery, it acquired connotations of desultoriness, dabbling, and superficiality (he is a mere dilettante) However, it may apply to one who pursues an art or studies it merely for his own delight (he would always be by nature a contemplative and a dilettante; but he had had high things to contemplate, great things to delight in—Wharton) (a generalization with which I find myself (with all the difference of an unknown dilettante) disagreeing—Huxley) Connoisseur (of dilettante) implies high appreciation of the beautiful in art; unlike it, it implies scholarly knowledge and trained taste. Because of the latter implication connoisseur is applied not only to one who knows a work of art when he sees it but also to one who recognizes superiority in other things governed by taste (as foods, wine, or gems). In this relation the word often comes close to epicure in its meaning. It is also applied to collectors of beautiful things (supposing also that the material of his Apologia was...defunct...) who but a few discerning connoisseurs of style would ever read that book now or a century hence?—T.S. Eliot (he has found time to make himself a connoisseur of porcelains, one of the most esoteric of collectors' hobbies—Heiser)

Aesthetic

artistic

Ant

unesthetic

Affable

gracious, cordial, genial, sociable

Ana

courteous, polite (see civil): open, candid, frank: amiable, obliging, compliant: talkative, loquacious: suave, urbane

Ant

reserved — Con

uncommunicative, taciturn, reticent, *silent: curt, brusque (see bluff): surly, glum, crabbed (see sullen)

Affair

1 Affair, business, concern, matter, thing come into comparison only when they are little more than vague or general terms meaning something done or dealt with. Some or rarely all are used interchangeably in certain similar collocations such as his own affair, business, concern: public and private affairs, concerns, matters, business: a sorry affair, business, matter, thing; affairs, matters, things are in good condition. However, a degree of precision is possible, for each word carries distinctive implications which are not always obscured. Affair suggests action or performance; it may imply a process, an operation, a proceeding, an undertaking, a transaction (seeing a book through the press is a laborious and time-wasting affair—T.H. Huxley) In the plural it often denotes transactions of great importance such as those involved in the management of finances or in the carrying on of diplomatic negotiations (men of affairs) (he had married a rich woman and administered her affairs. He was not supposed to have any affairs of his own—Mary Austin) Business usually stresses duty or office; sometimes it suggests an imposed task (because a Thing is every Body's Business, it is no Body's Business—Steele) (the flight of his imagination is very swift: the following of it often a breath—Heiser) affect

less business—Day Lewis

differs from the latter word in implying both the pressure or control of some force that is either not resistant or is in itself irresistible, and resulting change or fluctuation in character, opinions, or decisions of the person concerned

Affect suggests personal or direct relationship: it often implies an important bearing on one's welfare, success, or interests; thus, something is not one's concern because it has no bearing on one's interests, welfare, or success

Sometimes concern is preferred to affair when that which requires attention involves a degree of anxiety or solicitude

affection

Austen) 3 Affect, effect are often a source of difficulty because both verbs imply the production of an effect and take as their corresponding noun the same word, effect. Affect, the verb (see AFFECT 1), distinctively implies the action or operation of an agent rather than of an agent; it therefore means to influence (moisture affects steel) (high prices affect our pocketbooks) (the climate has affected his health) Effect, the verb (see PERFORM), implies the achievement of an end in view, and requires as its subject an intelligent agent or the means he uses to attain his end: it therefore means to bring about (the prisoners effected their escape) (the new system of accounting will effect a reduction in costs) Since the noun effect may be applied to any result whether brought about unconsciously or consciously, it serves equally well whether it names a result of the influence of one thing upon another or of directed effort.

affinity

Analogous words: affinity — related, like, similar

Affinity 1

affectionate

affectionate

3 Affect, effect are often a source of difficulty because both verbs imply the production of an effect and take as their corresponding noun the same word, effect. Affect, the verb (see AFFECT 1), distinctively implies the action or operation of an agent rather than of an agent; it therefore means to influence (moisture affects steel) (high prices affect our pocketbooks) (the climate has affected his health) Effect, the verb (see PERFORM), implies the achievement of an end in view, and requires as its subject an intelligent agent or the means he uses to attain his end: it therefore means to bring about (the prisoners effected their escape) (the new system of accounting will effect a reduction in costs) Since the noun effect may be applied to any result whether brought about unconsciously or consciously, it serves equally well whether it names a result of the influence of one thing upon another or of directed effort.

Affect suggests personal or direct relationship: it often implies an important bearing on one's welfare, success, or interests; thus, something is not one's concern because it has no bearing on one's interests, welfare, or success

Sometimes concern is preferred to affair when that which requires attention involves a degree of anxiety or solicitude

Affect, the verb (see Affect 1), distinctively implies the action or operation of an agent rather than of an agent; it therefore means to influence (moisture affects steel) (high prices affect our pocketbooks) (the climate has affected his health) Effect, the verb (see PERFORM), implies the achievement of an end in view, and requires as its subject an intelligent agent or the means he uses to attain his end: it therefore means to bring about (the prisoners effected their escape) (the new system of accounting will effect a reduction in costs) Since the noun effect may be applied to any result whether brought about unconsciously or consciously, it serves equally well whether it names a result of the influence of one thing upon another or of directed effort.
affirm

profess, aver, avow, protest, avouch, declare, *assert, warrant, predicate

afflict, try, torment, torture, rack mean to inflict upon a person something which he finds hard to bear. Something or someone that causes pain, disability, suffering, acute annoyance, irritation, or embarrassment may be said to affect a person. A person who feels pain, disability, or suffering may be said to be affected by something. Affect is a verb that means to influence when he affects something; or to feel strong feelings about something. An affect is a designed and usually an open mark of disrespect. An affront is a designed and usually an open mark of disrespect. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outrage upon one's personal dignity. An affront is an outraged who, I beseech you, would be pleased to give me a share of the comfort, advice, and assistance which you so much need.
afraid, brazen (Shameless)

Ant gratification — Con deference, honor, homage; adulation, compliment, flattery

afraid fearful, apprehensive

Analogous words

- effect (result, consequence, up-effect, after-effect, aftermath)
- behind (after, behind)
- afar (behind)
- fearful (apprehensive)

After, before

- before (ahead, forward)
- after (behind, rear, posterior, hind)

Prepositions, and Adjectives

- behind (prep, adj, adv)
- aft (behind)
- abstaining (behind)
- after (behind)
- ahead (behind)

Antonyms

- before (ahead, forward)
- after (behind)

Analogous words

- fearful (apprehensive)

Usage

- behind (prep, adj, adv)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)

Age

- n (behind)

Antonyms

- before (ahead, forward)

Usage

- behind (in time, place or order)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)

Aging

- n (behind)

Antonyms

- before (ahead, forward)

Usage

- behind (in time, place or order)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)

Ageing

- n (behind)

Antonyms

- before (ahead, forward)

Usage

- behind (in time, place or order)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)

Aget

- n (behind)

Antonyms

- after (behind)

Usage

- behind (in time, place or order)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)

Agent

- n (behind)

Antonyms

- after (behind)

Usage

- behind (in time, place or order)

Example

- behind (in time, place or order)
it connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint Deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomeration connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomeration connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomeration connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomeration connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomerate composed of irregularly shaped fragments scattered by volcanic explosions as distinguished from conglomerate, an aggregate composed of rounded, waterworn stones.

Ana union, unity, integrity: unification, consolidation (see corresponding verbs at COMPACT): complex, system, organism, network

Ant constituent

Aggregation *aggregate, conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomeration and aggregation in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomeration and aggregation connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal

Agglomerate, agglomeration conglomerate, conglomeration, aggregate, aggregation

Agglomerate and agglomeration in general use seldom imply coherence of parts; they suggest either a huddling together of things that do not move but are invigorating or exhilarating. Agglomerate and agglomeration imply the formation of a whole by parts or particles that are not merged into each other.

Agglomerate and agglomeration connotes responsibility to the person whose powers are deputed, rather than to the organization from which these powers ultimately derive. The governor-general of Canada may appoint deputies to exercise his powers or functions locally or temporarily. A vicar-general is a deputy of a bishop. Proxy implies a substitution of persons when a promise or pledge is solemnly made or a vote, as at a stockholders' meeting, is to be cast. In a marriage service a proxy for the bride or groom or in the baptismal service a proxy for a godparent merely utters the promises in the name of the absent person, the latter assuming the obligation of fulfilling them.

Ant principal
brisk air—George Eliot

Spry stresses alacrity arising from vigor or health; however it is frequently applied to those from whom alacrity or briskness of movement is not to be expected (the old lady is as spry as a cricket)

〈she is down one day, and up and spry the next〉

Ana *dexterous, adroit, deft: quick, fleet, speedy (see FAST): limber, lissome, *supple: *lively, sprightly

Ant torpid —Con *lethargic, sluggish, comatose: inert,

*inactive, passive, supine agitate 1 *shake, rock, convulse

Ana *stir, rouse, arouse: *move, actuate, drive, impel

Ant quiet, hush, still

2 perturb, *discompose, upset, fluster, flurry, disturb, disquiet

Ana *irritate, provoke, rile, exasperate, peeve: *worry, harass, plague: *annoy, vex, irk, bother

Ant calm, tranquilize —Con *pacify, placate, appease, mollify

3 argue, dispute, debate, *discuss

Ana controvert (see DISPROVE): assail, *attack: *consider: air, ventilate, broach (see EXPRESS)

agitation *commotion, tumult, turmoil, turbulence, confusion, convulsion, upheaval

Ana *motion, movement: *stir, bustle, ado: disturbance, perturbation, disquiet (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE)

Ant tranquility

agnostie n *atheist, deist, freethinker, unbeliever, infidel agog *eager, keen, anxious, avid, athirst

Ana excited, galvanized, stimulated (see PROVOKE): roused, aroused, stirred (see STIR vb): impatient, restive

Ant aloof —Con *indifferent, unconcerned, incurious, detached, uninterested, disinterested

agonize *write, squirm

Ana suffer, endure, *bear: torment, rack, torture, *afflict agonizing *excruciating, racking

Ana torturing, tormenting, racking (see AFFLICTION): *intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent

Con *comfortable, easy, restful: comforting, solacing, consoling (see COMFORT)

agony suffering, passion, *distress, misery, dolor

Ana pang, throe, ache, *pain, twinge: *trial, tribulation, affliction, visitation

Con *rest, repose, ease, comfort: solace, consolation (see corresponding verbs at COMFORT): relief, assuagement, mitigation (see corresponding verbs at RELIEVE) agrarian, agricultural are sometimes confused because they carry common implications and are used to qualify like terms (as an agrarian or an agricultural society, an agrarian or an agricultural crisis, an agrarian or an agricultural policy). Both terms have reference to land, the conditions under which it is held, and its profitable use.

Agrarian usually stresses the economic or political issues involved in the ownership of land, in the conditions of tenancy, and in the right of the individual to the profits of his labor on the land (agrarian crises were frequent in Ireland in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries when the issue of tenant rights became acute) Agricultural stresses rather the successful and profitable use of land for the production of crops and the breeding of animals (agrarian crises are likely to occur when overproduction and a restriction of markets coincide) When, however, agricultural interests are at stake and political action is held to be necessary, a party formed to promote these ends may be called an agrarian rather than an agricultural party, and a measure advocated as an agrarian rather than an agricultural measure.

agree 1 *assent, accede, consent, acquiesce, subscribe

Ana *grant, concede, allow: accept, *receive: admit,

*acknowledge

Ant protest (against): differ (with) —Con *object, kick, expostulate, remonstrate: *demur, balk, jib: oppose, *resist, withstand

2 Agree, concur, coincide are comparable when they mean to come into or to be in harmony regarding a matter of opinion or a policy. Agree implies unison in thought or a complete accord: even if the context suggests previous discussion, the word usually indicates that argument is ended (this is a point upon which all persons agree) (agree upon a price) Concur usually implies reference to a specific or definite agreement or suggests a thinking, acting, or functioning cooperatively or harmoniously toward a given end or for a particular purpose (for the creation of a masterpiece literature two powers must concur, the power of the man and the power of the moment—Arnold) Coincide implies an agreement amounting to complete identity of opinion. Only occasionally is it used of persons; more frequently opinions, judgments, wishes, or interests coincide (I had hoped that our sentiments coincided—Austen) (private groups whose interests did not coincide with national defense—T. W. Arnold) Often coincide implies an agreement in time of occurrence (less often an agreement in place occupied) and therefore frequently stresses synchrononousness of events (the fall of Granada and the discovery of America coincided) (see coincident under CONTEMPORARY)

Ana *unite, cooperate

Ant differ: disagree —Con *contend, fight, battle: dispute, argue, debate (see DISCUSS): quarrel, wrangle, squabble, bicker (see under QUARREL n)

3 Agree, square, conform, accord, harmonize, correspond, tally, jibe mean to exist or go together without conflict or incongruity. One thing agrees with another when their comparison or association reveals no discrepancy, no inequality, or no untoward effects (the conclusion agrees with the evidence) (the two accounts agree in every particular) (pronouns must agree with their antecedents in person, number, and gender) One thing squares with another when there is exact, almost mathematically exact, agreement between the two (force facts to square with a theory) (the corporation must, if it is to survive, square itself with the basic beliefs of the American people—Lindeman) One thing conforms to or with another when there is likeness or agreement in form, in nature, or in essential character (since theology was philosophy’s queen, medieval philosophy conformed to that system which Augustine employed in his theology—H. O. Taylor) (my views of conduct . . . conform with what seem to me the implications of my beliefs—T. S. Eliot) One thing accords with another when there is perfect fitness in the relation or association as in character, spirit, quality, or tone (the speaker’s remarks did not accord with the sentiments of those who listened to him) (the common doctrine of liberty accorded with the passions released by the Revolution—Parrington) One thing harmonizes with another when, in spite of their real and often marked differences, their combination or juxtaposition produces an agreeable or aesthetic effect (from the waves, sound . . . broke forth harmonizing with solitude—Shelley) (the need for the United States to harmonize its practices in foreign affairs must closely resemble than in the past with its professed ideals—Dean) One thing corresponds to or with another when, however far apart or however close the two things may be, they belong together because they match each other, complement each other, or answer to each other. Sometimes correspond implies agreement (fulfillment seldom corresponds to anticipation) (I should never correspond to your pattern of a lady—George Eliot) Sometimes it implies an analogous relation of the bird's wing corresponds to the human arm.

Sometimes it implies commensurateness (incomes do not always correspond with the efforts or skill that appear to be involved—Hobson) One thing tallies with another when the correspondence is so close that they either complement each other or agree with each other (pain and pleasure no more tally in our sense than red and green—Brownings) jibe is sometimes equivalent to agree, sometimes to harmonize, and sometimes to accord (his actions do not jibe with his words) (this looks jibed with the stage driver's description of him—Luke Short) Ant differ (from) —Con negative, counteract, neutralize: negate, nullify agreeable  grateful, pleasing, pleasant, gratifying, agreeable

Ant repugnant, repellent, obnoxious, disagreeable —Con repugnant, repulsive, unpleasant, disagreeable

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
airy, aerial, ethereal can all mean as light and insubstantial—Woof

Airfield is used of an open area of land with one or more runways and limited or no facilities for shelter or maintenance of planes. However, in strict usage, airfield is applied only to the part of an airport on land where planes land and take off. An airstrip is a specially prepared usually hard-surfaced strip of land with few or no facilities for sheltering or maintenance of planes and is often located in an advanced military position or in a remote area for occasional or emergency use. Landing strip in one of its meanings is synonymous with airstrip and in the other meaning with runway. A flying field is an airport or military airdrome, but the term is sometimes applied especially to a small airfield for privately owned planes or to a temporary airfield. A landing field is a land area clear and cleared of tall trees and other obstructions for flying operations.

airy, aerial, ethereal can mean as light and insubstantial as air. Airy seldom suggests a transcendent quality; in its widest sense it implies little more than immateriality (the poet's pen . . . gives to airy nothing a local habitation and a name—Shak.) When applied to persons, their words, or their manners, it may imply an affectation of grandeur or putting on airs (replied with airy condescension) mere affectation of nonchalance (airy refusal to take good advice) When used of motion or movements, it suggests lightness and buoyancy (the slight harebell raised its head, elastic from her airy tread—Scott) Aerial in figurative use is found chiefly in poetry where it usually connotes impalpability, extraordinary delicacy, or elusiveness, and is applied to things rather than to persons (mountains . . . fair of aspect, with aerial softness clad—Wordsworth) (the aerial hue of fountain-gazing roses—Shelley) (divine and aerial distinctions—Milman) Ethereal implies not the atmosphere surrounding the earth but the rarefied air once believed to fill the heavenly regions and so imputes a celestial or supramundane character to the person or thing it qualifies. Sometimes it suggests an unearthly translucency (fire . . . without heat, flickering a red gold flame . . . ethereal and insubstantial—Woof) (so . . . ethereal in appearance with its cloud colors, that . . . even . . . the most beautiful golden shades . . . seemed heavy and dull and dead-looking by comparison—Hudson) Sometimes, especially when referred to persons, their words, or their thoughts, it suggests disembodied spirit or aparness from material interests (the ethereal quality of Shelley's poetry) (at times he tends to fall into excessive subtlety, to be too vaporous and ethereal—Babbitt) ana (a superheated atmosphere) Ether usually suggests a medium more rarefied than air or one far more delicate or subtle formerly held to fill the upper regions or interstellar space. In technical use it also denotes a hypothetical medium for the transmission of transverse waves which is characterized by continuity and extreme tenuity and which permeates all space. Strictly, ozone is a triatomic form of oxygen that is a faintly blue pungent irritating gas found especially in the upper levels of the air and used commercially chiefly in disinfection, in oxidation, and in bleaching. In general use it denotes air that is notably pure and refreshing (the fresh crisp ozone of morning—Halsey)

Alarum n 1 Alarm, tocsin, alert agree in meaning a signal that serves as a call to action or to be on guard especially in a time of imminent danger. Alarm is used of any signal that arouses to activity not only troops, but emergency workers (as firemen, policemen); it suggests a sound such as a cry, a pealing of a bell, a beating of drums, or a siren (sound a fire alarm) (the dog's barking gave the alarm) Tocsin may be either an alarm sounded by bells usually from the belfry of a church or, more often, the bells sounding an alarm (the loud tocsin tolled their last alarm—Campbell) but is used figuratively for any sort of warning of danger. Alert, a military term for a signal to be on guard and ready for expected enemy action, is often used for any warning of danger (sirens sounded an air-raid alert) (the Weather Bureau issued a tornado alert in the early afternoon . . . . The alert was cancelled after 5 p.m.—Springfield Union) It may also denote the state of readiness called for by the signal or warning or the period during which this is maintained (an abandon-ship alert was signaled. Warning for that . . . was to be four blasts of the ships whistle—Lowell Bennett) (a peacetime round-the-clock alert against surprise aerial attack—N. Y. Times)

2 fright, *fear, panic, terror, horror, dismay, dread, consternation, trepidation

Alarming vb *alarm, frighten, fright, scare, startle, terrify, affright, terrorize, alarm

Alchemy n Magic, thaumaturgy, wizardry, sorcery, witch-alcoholic

ery, witchcraft

alcoholic n *drunkard, inebriate, dipsomaniac, sot, soak, toper, tosspot, tippler

alert 1 *watchful, wide-awake, vigilant

Ana *agile, nimble, brisk: wary, circumspect, *cautious

Con *heedless, *careless: unconcerned, aloof, detached, *indifferent

2 clever, *intelligent, smart, bright, quick-witted, brilliant, knowing

Ana *sharp, keen, acute: *quick, ready, prompt, apt: *shrewd, perspicacious

Con *languid, lackadaisical, listless: *lethargic, sluggish: *stupid, slow, dull, dense

alert n *alarm, tocsin

alias n *pseudonym, nom de guerre, incognito, nom de plume, pen name alibi n *

pseudonym, nom de guerre, incognito, nom de plume, pen name alibi n *pseudonym, nom de guerre, incognito, nom de plume, pen name

alien adj *foreign, extraneous, *extrinsic

Ana *external, exterior, outside (see corresponding adjectives at OUTER): adventitious, incidental, *accidental: *repugnant, repellent, abhorrent: incompatible, incompatgroous, *inconsonant

Ant akin: assimilable —Con *relevant, material, pertinent, germane: compatible, *consonant, congruous, con- genial: kindred, cognate, *related alien n *foreigner, *stranger, outlawer, outsider, immigrant, émigré

Ant citizen —Con subject, national (see CITIZEN)

alienate 1 *transfer, convey, deed

2 *strange, disagree, unacquainted

Ana convert, proselyte or proselytize (see corresponding verbs at CONVERT): *separate, part, sever, sunder, dis- volve

Ant unite: reunite —Con reconcile, conform, accommodate, adjust, *adapt: associate, link, *join alienation 1 derangement, *aberration

Ana *insanity, lunacy, mania, dementia: imbecility, idiocy, moronity (see base words at FOOL)

2 *solitude, isolation, seclusion

alienist psychiatrist, psychopathologist, *neurol- ogist, psychotherapist, psychoanalyst alight vb 1 *descend, dismount

Con mount, *ascend, scale, climb

2 *alight, light, land, perch, roost share the meaning to come to rest after or as if after a flight, a descent, or a fall. Alight suggests previous controlled or gentle movement through the air or open space (as of a flying bird or a float- ing snowflake) <skylarks *alight on the ground> Light, sometimes the equivalent of alight, more often presupposes a falling or jumping than flying or floating, and some- times merely a wandering or roving <he sprang from the roof and lighted on his feet> <we came smack down on the animal tent; when we lit the tent began to tear— Sandburg> Land applies to a boat coming to land or an airplane grounding. Though often used interchangeably with light, it may connote arrival at a destination and some- times driving force or power <the airplane landed in a swamp> <he fell headlong and landed on his face> <his blow landed in the spot he aimed at> <he has landed where he hoped, in an executive position> Perch and roost basically imply alighting of birds, but perch suggests settling on something elevated to which the claws may cling (as to a pole, bar, or twig) and roost, the settling for rest or sleep, especially by domestic fowl, on the perches and in the shelters prepared for them. So perch often implies elevation of position and tenuousness of grasp or hold <twenty or more [rooks] perched aloft, cawing and con- versing comfortably—Jefferies>  Roost, when used of persons, often suggests a position like that of roosting fowls <boys roosting on the rail of a fence>

Con *rise, arise, soar, ascend, rocket align *line, line up, range, array

Ana *order, arrange, marshal: regulate, fix, *adjust

Con *disorder, disarrange, derange, unsettle

alike like, similar, analogous, comparable, akin, parallel, uniform, identical

Ana *same, selfsame, equivalent, identical

Ant different —Con *distinct, separate: *different, divergent, diverse, disparate, various

aliment *food, pabulum, nutriment, nourishment, sustenance, pap

Con *poison, venom, bane

alive 1 *living, animated, animal, vital

Ana *active, dynamic, live, operative: *lively, vivacious, sprightly: being, existing (see BE)

Ant dead, defunct —Con *lifeless, inanimate, deceased (see DEAD): inert, *inactive: torpid, comatose (see LETHARGIC)

2 *aware, awake, sensible, cognizant, conscious

Ana alert, wide-awake, vigilant, *watchful: *intelligent, knowing, quick-witted

Ant blind (to): anesthetic (to) —Con *indifferent, unconcerned, aloof; insensitive, *insensible, impassible alkaline basic are closely related and in many aspects of their use synonymous terms. Both are opposites or correlatives of the adjective acid and denote some aspect of relationship to bases (alkalies). Distinctively, alkaline suggests the properties (as neutralizing acids, turning litmus paper blue) of bases <alkaline taste> <alkaline solution> <alkaline earth>

Basic relates more directly to the bases themselves, es- pecially in implying derivation from or capacity to react as a base  <basic dye>

all adj 1 *whole, entire, total, gross

Ana complete, plenary, *full

2 All, every, each, when applied to the individuals of a group, imply inclusion of the entire membership with no excep- tions. All is applied to the aggregate of individuals and implies consideration of it as a unit without regard to the individuals as distinct persons or things (all men are mortal) <all books are written to be read> Every is applied to any of the individuals comprising the group, regarded not as a concrete person or thing but as the type or representative of the entire membership (every man is mortal) <every book published should be worth reading>

Each is applied to any or every individual of the group, but unlike every it implies reference to him or to it as a distinct, recognizable, and therefore concrete person or thing <he knows the weaknesses of each batter on the team> <each book on this shelf is worth reading> <each person in this club must pay his share of the expense>

Ant no

all-around *versatile, many-sided

Ana complete, *full: apt, ready, *quick allay *relieve, alleviate, lighten, assuage, mitigate

Ana abate, lessen, *decrease, diminish: mollify, *pacify, appease: *moderate, temper

Ant intensify —Con *provoke, excite, stimulate: *stir, rouse, arouse: aggravate, enhance (see INTENSIFY) allege *adjudice, cite, advance

Ana affirm, assert, declare, profess, avouch, avow: re- cite, recount, rehearse, state (see RELATE)

Ant contravene: (in law) traverse —Con *deny, con- tradict, gainsay, negative, impugn: *disprove, refute, allegiance

fealty, loyalty, *fidelity, devotion, piety

Analogous words

faithfulness, steadfastness, constancy, staunchness (see corresponding adjectives at FIDELITY): obeisance, deference, homage, *honor: obedience (see corresponding adjective OBEDIENT): *obligation, duty

Ant

treachery: treason —Con traitorousness, perfidy, faithlessness, disloyalty, *fidelity, devotion, piety

Analogous words

deference, homage, *honor: obedience (see corresponding adjective OBEDIENT): *obligation, duty

Ant

treachery: treason —Con traitorousness, perfidy, faithlessness, disloyalty (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHLESS): disaffection, alienation

see also explanation notes facing page 1

allot

mean to give as one's share, portion, role, or place. Allot implies more or less arbitrary or haphazard selection and in itself conveys no suggestion of a fair or equal distribution (this original and modest suggestion of a fair or equal distribution is brought about by the wider meaning of the word allot in its broad sense). Allot stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Assign stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Allocates stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment

Analogous words

mean to give as one's share, portion, role, or place. Allot implies more or less arbitrary or haphazard selection and in itself conveys no suggestion of a fair or equal distribution (this original and modest suggestion of a fair or equal distribution is brought about by the wider meaning of the word allot in its broad sense). Allot stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Assign stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Allocates stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment

Ant

unallied —Con alien, foreign, extraneous (see EXTRINSIC): *different, divergent, diverse, various, disparate

Analogous words

mean to give as one's share, portion, role, or place. Allot implies more or less arbitrary or haphazard selection and in itself conveys no suggestion of a fair or equal distribution (this original and modest suggestion of a fair or equal distribution is brought about by the wider meaning of the word allot in its broad sense). Allot stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Assign stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment; Allocates stresses authoritative and usually fixed allotment

Ant

withhold, detain, retain, hold, hold back, *keep allow 36

Marshallly (to each month there has been assigned by tradition a birthstone considered appropriate to that month—Nurnberg & Rosenblum) Apportion, on the other hand, implies a principle of fair division, sometimes of equivalence in sharing, but more often of a proportionate distribution (after each decennial census Congress apportions the number of representatives to be elected by each state) (his guardians had apportioned to him an allowance . . . adequate to his position—Disraeli) Allocate is used chiefly in reference to money, property, territory, or powers, and suggests definite appropriation to a particular person or group or dedication to a particular use (allocate a sum of money for the construction of a bridge) (districts of Czechoslovakia allocated to Germany by the Munich Agreement) (the Marine Corps would be allocated primary responsibility for amphibious development and doctrine pertaining to landing forces—Collier’s Yr. Bk.)

Ana divide, dispense, *distribute, deal, dole: *give, bestow

Con *keep, retain, withhold, hold back: confiscate, appropriate, *arrogate

Allow 1 permit, suffer, *let, leave

Ana tolerate, endure, stand, brook (see bear): accede, acquiesce (see assent); *yield, submit, defer

Ant inhibit —Con *forbid, prohibit, enjoin: *prevent, admit, *acknowledge, confess: acquiesce, accede, admit, *agree, consent, concede: *grant, *appropriation, subsidy

Allowance 1 *ration, dole, pittance

Ana allotment, apportionment, assignment (see correspondence verbs at allot): share (see corresponding verb share): grant, *appropriation, subsidy

2 Allowance, concession both signify a change made by way of compromise or adjustment. Allowance usually implies a modification or variation of a requirement or a standard made for a good reason (as probable contingencies or mitigating circumstances) (make allowance for the current in steering toward the opposite bank) (make allowance for his inexperience) (make allowance for wear through friction in designing the parts of a machine) (if business imposes its restraints and its silences and impediments, Mr. Darnay as a young gentleman of generosity knows how to make allowance for that circumstance—Dickens) Concession implies that the change has been made reluctantly and usually as a favor or indulgence (they would make no concession to a candidate’s youth and inexperience) (the sole concession to leisure allowed me out of the year was one month on a farm—Heiser) (any concession to fashion was, they felt, unre光明 to their age—Sackville-West)

Ana adjustment, accommodation, adaptation (see corresponding verbs at adapt): modification, variation (see under change vb)

3 *advantage, handicap, odds, edge

Alloy *admixture, adulterant

Allude *refer, advert

Ana *suggest, imply, hint, intimate

Allure *attractive, charming, fascinating, bewitching, enchanting, captivating (see under attract vb)

Ant repel —Con *offensive, loathsome, repugnant, revolt: repellent, abhorrent, distasteful, obnoxious (see repugnant)

ally colleague, *partner, copartner, confederate

Ana *associate, comrade, companion: supporter, upholder, backer (see corresponding verbs at support): cooperator (see corresponding verb at unite)

Ant adversary —Con *enemy, foe: competitor, rival (see corresponding verbs at rival): *opponent, antagonist

almost *nearly, approximately, well-nigh

Alms benefaction, contribution, *donation

Ana *charity, philanthropy: dole, pittance, allowance, *ration alone adj 1 Alone, solitary, lonely, lonesome, lone, lorn, forlorn, desolate may all refer to situations of being apart from others or emotions experienced while apart. Alone stresses the fact of physical isolation and also may connote feelings of isolation from others (the captain of a ship at sea is a remote, inaccessible creature, something like a prince of a fairy tale, alone of his kind—Conrad) Solitary may indicate a state of being apart that is desired and sought for (Netta loved these solitary interludes . . . She could dream things there and tell herself stories there, untroubled—Powys) It often connotes sadness at the loss or lack of usual or close connections or consciousness of isolation or remoteness (being solitary he could only address himself to the waiter—Wood) (an only child, he was left solitary by the early death of his mother . . . whose loss he felt severely—Fulton) Lonely may simply indicate the fact of being alone but more often suggests isolation accompanied by a longing for company (he was lonely, but not in an unhappy sense . . . it was no hardship for him to be alone—Canby) (his grim look, his pride, his silence, his wild outbursts of passion, left William lonely even in his court—J. R. Green) (he felt more lonely and forsaken than at any time since his father’s death—Archibald Marshall) Lonesome, often more poignant, suggests sadness after a separation or bereavement (you must keep up your spirits, mother, and not be lonesome because I’m not at home—Dickens) (her flight . . . yet smote my lonesome heart more than all misery—Shelley) Lone especially in poetic use may replace either lonely or lonesome (in his lone course the shepherd oft will pause—Wordsworth) (the mother’s death and I reckon it’s got no father; it’s a lone thing—George Eliot) Lorn suggests recent separation or bereavement (when lorn lovers sit and drop—Praed) Forlorn indicates dejection, woeful, and listlessness at separation from someone dear (as forlorn and stupefied as I was when my husband’s spirit flew away—Hardy) (as forlorn as King Lear at the end of his days—G. W. Johnson) Desolate is most extreme in suggesting incon solable grief at loss or bereavement (you have made no concession to a candidate’s youth and inexperience) (the sole concession to leisure allowed me out of the year was one month on a farm—Heiser) (any concession to fashion was, they felt, unbecoming to their age—Sackville-West)

Ana adjustment, accommodation, adaptation (see corresponding verbs at adapt): modification, variation (see under change vb)

3 *advantage, handicap, odds, edge

Alloy *admixture, adulterant

Allude *refer, advert

Ana *suggest, imply, hint, intimate

Allure *attractive, charming, fascinating, bewitching, enchanting, captivating (see under attract vb)

Ant repel —Con *offensive, loathsome, repugnant, revolting: repellent, abhorrent, distasteful, obnoxious (see repugnant)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
aloof} Lonesome has much the same suggestion as related to a lonesome road doth walk in fear and dread—Coleridge) Desert indicates either that a place is abandoned by people or that it is so barren and wild as never to have attracted them as if nothing had life by, in that lifeless desolate spot—Trollope

Ana *single, sole, lone, unique: deserted, abandoned, forsaken (see ABANDON): isolated, secluded (see corresponding nouns at SOLITUDE)

Ant accompanied —Con attended, escorted, convoyed, chaperoned (see ACCOMPANY): aided, assisted, helped (see HELP vb)

2 Alone adj & adv *only alooft *indifferent, detached, uninterested, disinterested, unconcerned, incurious

Ant familiar, close —Con friendly, neighborly (see AMICABLE): intimate, confidential, chummy (see FAMILIAR)

also, too, likewise, besides, moreover, furthermore denote in addition and are used when joining (not necessarily in the same sentence) one proposition or consideration to another. Also adds to a statement something that may be affirmed equally with what precedes (that where I am, there ye may be also—In 14:3) Every simile ought not only to be well adapted to the subject, but also to include every excellence of description—Goldsmith Too is less formal than also, and adds with a lighter touch (like Twilight's, too, her dusky hair—Wordsworth) I can like now, and admire you too, sir—Thackeray Likewise is more formal and slightly more explicit than also; it sometimes implies specific likeness or connection between the ideas which it unites (I have not seen—you likewise may have seen—Wordsworth) <Greek, was your ambition>

Moreover is more emphatic than besides, and often serves as a transitional word between sentences: it often implies that the stronger of two considerations is yet to be presented (the mountain was steep and rugged; moreover, its sides were coated with ice) Furthermore is sometimes the most formal of these words; its chief use, however, is in a chain of additions where besides or moreover has already been used (he is well-liked; moreover, he is absolutely dependable; furthermore, there is no one who can take his place)

alter 1 *change, vary, modify Ana adjust, accommodate, *adapt: qualify, temper (see MODERATE); transform, metamorphose, convert

Ant fix —Con *set, settle, establish: preserve, conserve (see SAVE): *continue, last, endure, abide, persist

2 *sterilize, castrate, spay, emasculate, mutilate, geld, capone

alteration change, variation, modification (see under CHANGE vb)
Ana adjustment, adaptation, accommodation (see corresponding verbs at ADAPT): transformation, metamorphosis, conversion (see under TRANSFORM)

Ant fixation: fixity —Con permanence, stability, perdurability (see corresponding adjectives at LASTING): continuation, endurance, persistence (see corresponding verbs at CONTINUE)

altercate vb quarrel, wrangle, squabble, bicker, spat, tiff (see under QUARREL n)

Ana fight, *contend, battle, war: dispute, debate, agitate (see DISCUSS)

Ant concur —Con *agree, coincide: conform, reconcile, accommodate, *adapt altercation *quarrel, wrangle, squabble, bicker, spat, tiff

Ant concurrence: accord —Con agreement, coincidence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): *harmony, concord, consonance alternate adj *intermittent, recurrent, periodic Ana alternating, rotating (see ROTATE): *reciprocal, corresponding, complementary

Ant consecutive —Con successive, sequential (see CONSECUTIVE) alterate vb *rotate Ana recur, *return, revert: oscillate, fluctuate, sway, waver (see SWING)

Con *follow, succeed

alternative n *substitute, supply, understudy, double, stand-in, pinch hitter, locum tenens

 alteration vicissitude, *change, mutation, permutation Ana rotation (see corresponding verb ROTATE): oscillation, fluctuation, wavering (see corresponding verbs at SWING): turning, revolving, rotating, wheeling (see TURN vb): recurrence, return, reverision (see under RETURN vb)

alternative option, *choice, preference, selection, election although *though, albeit altitude *height, elevation
Ana highness, tallness, loftiness (see corresponding adjectives at HIGH): *summit, peak, apex

Con depth, profundity (see corresponding adjectives at DEEP) altruistic benevolent, *charitable, humanitarian, philanthropic, eleemosynary

Ana self-abnegating, self-denying (see corresponding nouns at RENUNCIATION): generous, bountiful, bounteous, openhanded, *liberal

Ant egoistic —Con egotistic, self-loving, self-esteeming, conceited (see corresponding nouns at CONCEIT): self-indulging, self-pampering (see base words at INDULGE) amalgam *mixture, admixture, compound, blend, composite amalgamate blend, commingle, merge, coalesce, fuse, *mix, mingle

Ana combine, unite, link, associate, *join: consolidate, unify, *compact

Con disintegrate, crumble, decompose (see DECAY): disperse, dissipate, *scatter: *separate, part, divide amalgamation *consolidation, merger

amass *accumulate, hoard

Ana collect, *gather, assemble: *heap, pile, mass, stack Ant distribute —Con dissipate, *scatter, disperse: dispersion, divide, deal, dole (see DISTIBUTE) amateur, dilettante, dabbler, tyro denote a person who follows a pursuit without attaining proficiency or a professional status. Amateur may denote one who has a taste or liking for something rather than an expert knowledge of it; in this sense it is distinguished from connoisseur an amateur of cameos | affected the pose of the gentleman amateur of the arts—F. H. Ellis} Amatur is also applied to a person whose participation in an activity requiring skill is due, to a personal rather than a professional interest. It usually but not invariably implies a lack of mastery. This latter implication is not often found in sports, where a technical distinction between an amateur
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>amative</th>
<th>ambiguous</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>amorous, amatory, *erotic</td>
<td>equivocal, cryptic, enigmatic, vague, *obscure, dark</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatory *erotic, aphrodisiac, amative, amorous</td>
<td>Ana dubious, *doubtful, questionable</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amative 38 ambiguous</td>
<td>Ant explicit  — *clear: express, definite, specific, categorical (see EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatory * erotic, aphrodisiac, amative, amorous</td>
<td>Ant explicit  — *clear: express, definite, specific, categorical (see EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove *novice, apprentice, probationer</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove 38 ambiguous</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amatove</td>
<td>Ant lucidity: explicitness — Con  clarity, perspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR): definiteness, specificity, expressiveness (see corresponding adjectives at EXPLICIT)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
ambition, aspiration, pretension mean strong desire for advancement. Ambition has personal advancement or presumption as its end; it may be praiseworthy but is sometimes inordinate (ambition for fame) (ambition to hold office) (ambition to acquire wealth) (vailing ambition, which o’erleaps itself—Shak.) Aspiration implies as its object something felt to be above one, the striving after which is uplifting or ennobling (aspiration after knowledge) (that spirit of his in aspiration lifts him from the earth—Shak.) Aspiration, however, is sometimes used especially in the plural in a derogatory sense of ambition which is felt to be unwarranted or presumptuous (his aspirations must be nipped in the bud) Pretension (see also CLAIM, PRETENSE) may be preferred to aspiration in this latter sense, for it carries a hint of presumptuousness and, therefore, of lack of real claim to the powers which fulfillment of the ambition or aspiration requires (they are always looked upon, either as neglected, or discontented because their pretensions have failed—Montagu) More often pretension implies less driving power than ambition or aspiration and suggests the guidance of mere desire rather than the possession of the necessary gifts (it was the undergraduate literary club, whose membership included all nice boys with literary pretensions—Marquand) Amanda urge, lust, desire: eagerness, avidity, keenness, anxiety (see corresponding adjectives at EAGER): spur, goad, incentive, motive Con contentment, satisfaction (see corresponding verbs at SATISFY): resignation, patience: indolence, fainency, sloth (see corresponding adjectives at LAZY) ambitious 1 Ambitious, emulous both mean extremely desirous of something that will give one power, fame, success, or riches. Ambitious often implies inordinate, sometimes presumptuous, eagerness to advance oneself or to attain something beyond one’s present reach; it may, in addition, connote aggressiveness in the pursuit of one’s ends (the noble Brutus hath told you Caesar was ambitious: if it were so, it was a grievous fault—Shak.) Emulous stresses the desire to equal or surpass others; it can suggest covetous rivalry or merely the spirit of competition (men of pedigree . . . emulous always of the nearest place to any throne, except the throne of grace—Cowper) Ana *eager, avid, anxious, keen: aspiring, panting, aiming (see AIM vb): daring, venturesome, *adventurous Ambitious, pretentious, Utopian are comparable when they are applied to such matters as plans, designs, programs, or policies and mean straining or exceeding the capacity of their authors or executants. Something is ambitious which is either so far beyond what can with certainty be accomplished that its realization or execution is doubtful or which, if realized, is accomplished only by excessive effort or by testing one’s powers to the utmost (the philosopher has the ambitious aim of unifying, or harmonizing, these points of view—Inge) (his last novel was his most ambitious and possibly his best) Something is pretentious which so far exceeds one’s powers or resources that any attempt to carry it out reveals one’s inadequacy, inexperience, or lack of sufficient skill; in this sense it often but not necessarily implies ostentation (the program was too pretentious for so young a violinist) (see ambitious which is utterly impracticable or unattainable under present or sometimes, any conditions. Utopian, if it does not suggest an idealistic approach, invariably implies indifference to actualities (the reformers started out with an ambitious program which its critics called utopian; time has shown that it was too pretentious) Ana audacious, bold (see BRAVE): daring (see ADVENTUR-ous): ostentatious, *showy Ana modest —Con lowly, *humble: *moderate, temperate Amble vb *saunter, stroll Ana loiter, dawdle (see DELAY): meander, ramble, roam (see WANDER) Ambulant ambulatory, peripatetic, *itinerant, nomadic, vagrant Ana bedridden (of patients) Ambulancy adj ambulant, peripatetic, *itinerant, nomadic, vagrant Ambulatory n *passage, passageway, aisle, gallery, cloister, arcade, hall, hallway Ambuscade *ambush Ambush vb *surprise, waylay Ana *attack, assault, assail: trap, entrap, snare, ensnare, capture, *catch Ambush n Ambuscade, ambush mean a device to entrap an enemy by lying in wait under cover for an opportune moment to make a surprise attack. Ambush, however, is also used to designate an act of lying in wait or in concealment (as for spying, frightening, or obtaining an advantage); when used of nonmilitary activity it sometimes connotes unfairness or cowardliness (ambushes of cutthroats—Thackeray) (when he was a boy he had . . . spied on the Pecos men . . . He had lain in ambush for two nights on the mountain—Cather) Ambuscade usually implies the legitimate strategic disposition of troops in concealment, but in military use is more often applied to the body of troops or to their position than to the trap (the knights and gentlemen volunteered for an ambuscade to cut off the convoy—Froude) (feared in every wavering brake an ambuscade—Tennyson) Ana trap, snare, * lure: *attack, onset, onslaught, assault Ameliorate *improve, better, help Ana amend, remedy, reform, rectify, *correct: mitigate, alleviate, *relieve, lighten Ant worsen: deteriorate v —Con *injure, harm, hurt, damage, impair, mar, spoil: *intensify, aggravate Amenable 1 answerable, liable, accountable, *responsible Ana open, subject, *liable: *subordinate, dependent, subject Ant independent (of): autonomous —Con autocratic, arbitrary, *absolute: *free, autarchic 2 tractable, *obedient, docile, biddable Ana pliant, adaptable, pliable (see PLASTIC): responsive (see TENDER): sensitive, open (see LIABLE): submissive, *tame, subduced Ant recalcitrant, refractory —Con intractable, *unruly, ungovernable, headstrong: *fierce: *obstinate, stubborn, mulish Amend reform, *correct, rectify, revise, emend, remedy, redress Ana *improve, better, ameliorate: *mend, repair: elevate, raise, *lift Ant debase: impair —Con corrupt, vitiate, deprave, debauch, pervert (see DEBASE): *injure, mar, spoil, damage, harm, hurt Amends redress, *reparation, indemnity, restitution Ana compensation, recompense (see corresponding verbs at PAY): atonement, expiation (see under EXPiate) amenity 1 Amenity, luxury both denote something (as an object, a feature, a quality, or an experience) that gives refined or exquisite pleasure or is exceedingly pleasing to the mind or senses. Amenity typically implies a delightful mildness, gentleness, or softness, especially in contrast to an uncomfortable or distressing harshness, roughness, or crudeness (many English go to the Riviera in the winter because of the amenity of its climate) It may imply no

Amenity, luxury both denote something (as an object, a feature, a quality, or an experience) that gives refined or exquisite pleasure or is exceedingly pleasing to the mind or senses. Amenity typically implies a delightful mildness, gentleness, or softness, especially in contrast to an uncomfortable or distressing harshness, roughness, or crudeness (many English go to the Riviera in the winter because of the amenity of its climate) It may imply no more than a vague conducing to physical or material comfort or convenience (every amenity... including... showers, central heating, and first-class cuisine—H. G. Smith) Luxury stresses keen, often voluptuous, enjoyment and unalloyed gratification of the mind or senses, usually without a special suggestion of opulence in the thing enjoyed or sensuality in the pleasure (and learn the luxury of doing good—Goldsmith) (Mark decided to walk back by the road... instead of indulging himself in the luxury of once more rejoicing in the solitude of the green lanes—Mackenzie) (a dressing room with a marble bath that made cleanliness a luxury instead of one of the sternest of the virtues—Shaw)

Ana *pleasure, delight, joy, enjoyment: ease, comfort, relaxation (see REST): mildness, softness, blandness, lenity or leniency, gentleness (see corresponding adjectives at SOFT)

Ant rigor—Con harshness, roughness, ruggedness (see corresponding adjectives at ROUGH): disagreeableness, unpleasantness (see affirmative adjectives at PLEASANT): harshness, difficulty, vicissitude

2 *courtesy, attention, gallantry

Ana civility, politeness, courteousness (see corresponding adjectives in SOCIAL): graciousness, affability, cordiality, geniality, sociability (see corresponding adjectives at GRACIOUS): *form, convention, convenance: ceremony, formality (see FORM)

Ant acerbity, asperity: rudeness—Con clumsiness, moroseness, crabbedness, surliness (see corresponding adjectives at SULLEN): *acrimony: *affront, insult, indignity: discourtesy, incivility, impoliteness (see corresponding adjectives at RUDE)

amerce fine, mulct, *penalize

amercement fine (see under PENALIZE)

amiable, good-natured, obliging, complaisant mean having or manifesting the desire or disposition to please. All may refer either to moods or to temperaments. Amiable usually implies friendliness, affability, or kindliness, qualities that inspire liking (from what he said of Miss Darcy, I was thoroughly prepared to see a proud, reserved, disagreeable girl. Yet he... must know that she was amiable and unpretending as we have found her—Austen) Often, however, the word suggests little more than a sweet temper (preferred an amiable softness to a tragic intensity—Glasgow) Occasionally it additionally connotes lack of firmness or strength (she suddenly married a poor, good-for-nothing, amiable fellow—Deland) Good-natured implies a disposition not only to please but to be pleased; consequently it often connotes undue compliance or indifference to imposition (he was too good-natured a man to behave harshly—Macaulay) *horsey and practical jokes... at weddings... require good-natured toleration—Sumner) Obliging stresses a readiness to be helpful, or to accommodate to the wishes of others (Keepell had a sweet and obliging temper—Macaulay) (he always had the courtesy to answer me, for he was a most obliging fellow—Keith) Complaisant implies a courteous or sometimes a weakly amiable desire to please or to be agreeable (her importunity prevailed with me and I am extremely glad I was so complaisant—Montagu)

Ana *gracious, cordial, affable, genial: warmhearted, warm, responsive, *tender: kindly, *kind, benign, benign, benevolent

Ant unamiable: surly—Con ungracious, *rude, ill- mannered, discourteous, impolite: sullen, glum, morose, crabbed, dour amicable, neighborly, friendly are applied to the attitudes and actions of persons, communities, and states that have intercourse with each other and mean marked by or exhibiting a colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk () indicates place of treatment of each group.

Liaison implies duration but not necessarily permanence in the attachment; it is commonly used to designate the relation between a man and his mistress. Intrigue emphasizes the clandestine element in the relation and is often closer to amour than to liaison in its other implications. Affair is the least specific term and often suggests equivocal rather than definitely illicit relations or may be used without imputation of impropriety.

amour propre self-esteem, self-love, egoism, egotism, *conceit

Ana *pride, vanity, vainglory: complacency, self-complacency, smugness, self-satisfaction (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT)

ample 1 spacious, capacious, commodious

Ana expanded, distended, swelled or swollen, inflated (see EXPAND): *large, big, great

Ant meager: circumscribed —Con limited, restricted, confined (see LIMIT vb): contracted, compressed, condensed, shrunked (see CONTRACT vb): scant, skimpy, exiguous, spare (see MEAGER)

2 abundant, *plentiful, plenteous, copious

Ana *liberal, generous, handsome, bountiful, bounteous: *profuse, lavish, prodigal

Ant scant, meager —Con *skimpy, scrumpy (see MEAGER): stingy, niggardly

amplify *expand, swell, distend, dilate, inflate

Ana develop (see MATURE): enlarge, augment (see INCREASE)

Ant abridge, condense —Con *shorten, abbreviate: *contract, compress

amplitude *expanse, spread, stretch

Ana largeness, bigness, greatness (see corresponding adjectives at LARGE): spaciousness, commodiousness, capaciousness (see corresponding adjectives at SPACIOUS): magnitude, extent, *size: *bulk, mass, volume

Ant straitness: limitation —Con restriction, circumscription (see corresponding verbs at LIMIT)

amulet charm, talisman, *fetish

amuse divert, entertain, recreate mean to cause or enable one to pass one's time in pleasant or agreeable occupations. Their corresponding nouns amusement, diversion, entertainment, recreation are also synonyms denoting such an occupation or its effect. Although these words are used more or less interchangeably, they have fundamentally different implications. Amuse and amusement stress the engagement of one's attention, especially during hours of leisure, in the source of interest or engagement. They do not necessarily imply play or sport; nevertheless they often suggest light, purposeless, trivial, or laughter-provoking pastimes (what he wanted was to be amused, to get through the twenty-four hours pleasantly, without sitting down to dry business—Macaulay) I don't write because I've got things to say . . . I write because it amuses me—Rose Macaulay may speculate, for amusement, whether it would not have been beneficial . . . to Britain in particular, to have had a more continuous religious history—T. S. Eliot Divert and diversion, on the other hand, stress the distraction of the attention from something (as routine interests or worry) which is occupying it and its capture by something different, especially by something that enlivens or promotes gaiety (after the novelty of their surroundings had ceased to attract and divert the lepers, they often became homesick—Heiser) only men of leisure have the need for beautiful women to divert them—Buck I believe that the drama has something else to do except to divert us—T. S. Eliot there is a place for farce and diversion in experience—Dewey Entertain and entertainment imply the activities of others to provide amusement or diversion. The words therefore suggest more or less formal expedients or more or less formal circumstances, which are usually implied in the context Mrs. Brown will entertain the Burton's over the weekend (a church entertainment) entertainment is what schoolboys are now led to expect . . . they are disappointed if the school is not a hall of unbroken amusement—Grandgent Recreate and the far more common recreation usually imply a change of occupation or an indulgence in diversions for the sake of relaxation or refreshment of body or mind (The Lord Chancellor was recreating himself, after a long stretch of arduous business, with a journey in Scotland—Maritaine) just to sit in the sun, to bask like an animal in its heat—this is one of my country recreations—L. P. Smith *entertainment, absorption (see corresponding verbs at MONOPOLIZE): play, sport, fun, jest: dispersing, frolicking, rollicking, romping (see PLAY vb): jollity, *mirth

Ant bored —Con tired, weary, fatigued: *depress, oppress: irk, vex, *annoy

amusement diversion, entertainment, recreation (see under AMUSE vb)

Ana engrossment, absorption (see corresponding verbs at MONOPOLIZE): play, sport, fun, jest: dispersing, frolicking, rollicking, romping (see PLAY vb): jollity, *mirth

Ant boredom —Con *tedium, ennui: languidness, listlessness, spiritlessness (see corresponding adjectives at Languid): languor, *lethargy

anachronism, solecism are occasionally used interchangeably to mean something that does not properly belong to the setting or background in which it is placed and that is incongruous with it. More specifically, anachronism implies a mistake in associating things which do not belong to the same time or age (an automobile in a story of American Civil War times would be an anachronism) (an eighteenth-century Chippendale chair is an anachronism in a seventeenth-century Jacobean room) When applied to something that does exist at the time under consideration, anachronism implies that the thing is behind the times or antiquated and useless (born a thousand years . . . too late and an anachronism in this culminating century of civilization—London) Solecism, on the other hand, implies lack of concord or consonance through an association of things that does not accord with some standard (as of decency, propriety, or logic). One who in affectation introduces foreign words into English speech commits a solecism in language (I feel certain that a solecism of this kind—the introduction into a particular rite of features not sanctioned by the texts—would have seemed a shocking thing to . . . so accurate a scholar—L. P. Smith) it is a solecism in Belize to describe people by their color . . . the colony prides itself . . . on absolute freedom from any taint of racial prejudice—Norman Lewis

anagogic *mystical, mystic, cabalistic

Ana allegorical, symbolical (see corresponding nouns at ALLEGORY): occult, esoteric, *recondite

anaglogia anesthesia, anodynia (see under ANODYNE 1)

Ana anodyne, anesthetic

Ant irritated

analogous *like, alike, similar, comparable, akin, parallel, uniform, identical

Ana corresponding, convertible (see RECIPROCAL): kindred, *related, allied, cognate

analogues counterpart, *parallel, correlate

analogy 1 *likeness, similitude, resemblance, similarity, affinity

2 Analogy, simile, metaphor designate a comparison between things essentially or generically different but strikingly alike in one or more pertinent aspects. Analogy is the general term since the simile and the metaphor are kinds of analogies: it is, however, usually restricted in its application to a comparison which brings out the analogy (for this sense see likeness) between two things for the sake of elucidating something hard to understand. (God cannot be described except by analogy) (the supreme example of analogy in English is Pilgrim's Progress). This overwhelms us with direct analogy, that is to say, the personification of allegory.—Stevens

A simile is an imaginative analog used largely for the sake of literary effect by carrying over the emotion aroused by one image or idea to the other with which it is compared. A simile (for example, "fishing is at best almost as unpredictable as New England weather," "blue were her eyes as the fairy-flax, her cheeks like the dawn of day," "a job full of more headaches than a case of bourbon") is often brief but it characteristically indicates (as by the use of like, as, so) that comparison is intended of the simile, we say that two essentially unlike things are explicitly compared . . . and we are to understand that, though some likeness is suggested between the two, the likeness is not literally intended—Margolis

A metaphor differs from a simile in not stating explicitly that it is an analogy: it therefore imaginatively identifies one object with another (as in "a heart of stone," "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet," "the moon was a ghostly galleon") and ascribes to the first one or more of the qualities of the second or invests the former with emotional or imaginative associations attached to the latter (though by metaphor we point to objects and convey emotions, what we chiefly do is to convey knowledge by forging new symbols that are themselves patterns of meaning—Waggoner analysis resolution, dissection, breakdown (see under ANALYZE)

Anal separation, division (see corresponding verbs at SEPARATE): disintegration, decomposition (see corresponding verbs at DECAY)

Ant synthesis —Con uniting or union, combining or combination (see corresponding verbs at JOIN); integration, concatenation (see under INTEGRATE)

analytical subtle, *logical

Ana acute, keen, *sharp: profound, *deep: penetrating, piercing (see ENTER): organizing, ordering, marshaling (see ORDER vb)

Ant creative, inventive, constructive analyze, resolve, dissect, break down mean to divide a complex whole or unit into its component parts or constituent elements. When their corresponding nouns (analyze, resolution, dissection, breakdown) denote such a division, they are similarly applied and are distinguishable by the same implications. Analyze and analysis presuppose a personal agent and stress division for the sake of determining a thing's true nature or the inner relationship of its parts (analyze a sentence) (analyze the plot of a novel) (Liebig, by analyzing foodstuffs of every kind, came to the conclusion that the principal elements of food are proteins, fats, and carbohydrates) (he would take a place or a fork or a bell, set it to ringing by a blow, and analyze the combination of musical notes which it emitted—Darrow) (analysis of material objects into electrons and protons—Inge) Sometimes these words specifically suggest an intent to discover or uncover qualities, causes, effects, motives, or possibilities often as a basis for action or for a judgment (analyze the condition of a business before investing in it) (analyze the potential market for cotton) (I could not then so far analyze all that is roughly lumped together as "religion" I could not then so far analyze all that is roughly lumped together as "religion"

Anarchic anarchistic, anarchist (see under ANARCHY 1)

Anarchism *anarchy

Anarchist anarchic, anarchistic (see under ANARCHY 1)

Anarchistic anarchic, anarchist (see under ANARCHY 1)

Ant authoritarian

Anarchy 1 Anarchy, anarchism overlap in their implications but are not synonyms because of differing denotations. Anarchy may denote a state or condition of society where there is no law or imposed order because social evolution has rendered these unnecessary (first the proletarian revolution . . . then the dictatorship of the proletariat; and lastly, the classless society: that is the Marxian order of advance towards communism and anarchy, towards justice, equality and perfect freedom—Plamenatz) It may, on the other hand, denote one of complete disorder resulting from the breakdown of normal controls (for our people liberty so often means only license and anarchy—Sulzberger) Anarchism denotes a theory that government is an evil because it imposes limitations upon the freedom of the individual ( nihilism is a form of anarchism) The same distinctions extend to their respective adjectives anarchic and anarchistic (anarchic disorder) (anarchic conditions) (anarchistic influences) (anarchistic doctrines) Anarchist when used adjectively is often ambiguous since it is related to both anarchism and anarchy (an anarchist plot to assassinate the prime minister)

2 Anarchy, chaos, lawlessness denote in common absence, suspension, breakdown, or widespread defiance of government, law, and order. Anarchy is the total absence or suspension of government (by the adoption of the Constitution our country passed from weakness to strength, from anarchy to order, from death to life—Muzzey)
Chaos is the utter negation of order (a process calculated to reduce the orderly life of our complicated societies to chaos—Huxley) Lawlessness signifies a prevalent or habitual disregard of law and order rather than their absence or suspension (the traditional lawlessness of the frontier community) When anarchy and lawlessness (or their adjectives) are used of actions rather than of a state of things, there is often little distinction of meaning (the hydrogen atom was not conforming to the canons of the classical music of physics, and yet it was not anarchic in the least, for . . . it was flawlessly obeying the laws of a different music—Darrow) (illusion is not lawless: It is a world apart, if you please, but within it are its own necessities, which exact inexorable adherence to their mandates—Loves)

*anathema 1 *abomination, bête noire, bugbear

2 *curse, malediction, imprecation

* ana denunciation, condemnation, reprobation, censure (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE)

* anathematize curse, damn, *excoriate, objurgate

* anatomy *structure, skeleton, framework

* ancestor, progenitor, forefather, forebear mean a person from whom one is descended. Ancestor, especially in genealogical and in historical use, implies lineal descent through one's father or mother (he had three ancestors who were judges) but it is seldom applied to a grandparent. In more general use, ancestor (especially in the plural) may imply kinship through collaterals or through race (the gentleman will please remember that when his half-civilized ancestors were hunting the wild boar in Silesia, mine were princes of the earth—Benjamin) Ancestor often suggests knowledge of identities and family pride in them as persons (ancestor worship) (they had plenty of money, but apparently no ancestors) Progenitor differs from ancestor chiefly in its connotations rather than in its implications. It does not exclude parents or grandparents; it usually carries no hint of family or racial feeling, and it often suggests a reference to heredity or the transmission of characters (do as your great progenitors have done, and, by their virtues, prove yourself their son—Dryden) (men resemble their contemporaries even more than their progenitors—Emerson) Whenever an evolution is suggested, ancestor and progenitor may be used of living things or of nonliving things (as races, social castes, or literary or artistic forms) that are subject to development; they then often denote one or a kind to group from which a later or a presently existing kind or group has been derived (the wild ancestors of our domestic animals) (Fielding was . . . the progenitor of the modern realistic novel—New Yorker) Progenitor, even more than ancestor, names the ultimate source or root (he sang of the nuptials of Janus and Comesena, progenitors of the Italian people—Quiller-Couch) Forefather is used less often than ancestor in historical writing but is probably more common in poetic and in general use, especially when simplicity of life, strength of family feeling, or persistence of a family in one locality is connoted (each in his narrow cell forever7 laid, the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep—Gray) (think of your forefathers! Think of your posternity!—J. Q. Adams) Forebear is not only less rich in its implications than forefather, but it is also less connotative of sentiment (the land had been owned by his forebears for generations) (his forebears emigrated from Scotland around 1800) * ancestry, lineage, pedigree mean either one's progenitors collectively or their quality or character as a whole. The words, however, are clearly distinguishable. Ancestry in its most restricted use evokes the image of a family tree with its ramifications by geometrical progression of branches or roots the further it is traced forward or backward (only by the fusion of two parent cells can an off-spring cell enjoy the advantages of joint heredity and pass on the traits of both ancestries—La Barre) In broader use ancestry often suggests one's progenitors in general, known or unknown, a cause of pride often, but sometimes of indifference or of shame (no one is responsible for his ancestry, but his ancestry is to a certain extent responsible for his qualities) Lineage stresses descent in a line; it evokes therefore the image of a list of the persons who in order of generation are descended from a single ancestor (the evangelist Matthew traced the lineage of Jesus by each step from Abraham down) (lineage is reckoned through the mother; the Zuñi are matrilineal—Kardiner) For this reason lineage is often used as the equivalent of race (though of a lineage once abhorred—Wordsworth) Pedigree is even more definite in its suggestions, for it implies a known and recorded ancestry that is typically distinguished or notable (who proud of pedigree, is poor of purse—Pope) (the deference due to a man of pedigree—Gilbert) The term is applied to the ancestry of persons, and to that of animals and plants propagated under controlled conditions.

* ancestor descendant: posterity

* anchor vb moor, *secure, rivet

* anachronism *historical error

* anchorite hermit, eremite, *recluse, cenobite

* anatomic *analgeasia, anodynia (see under anodyne 1)

* anemia bloodless, *pale

* ancillary *auxiliary, contributory, subsidiary, adjuvant, subservient, accessory

* ancillary *a story, tale, yarn, narrative

* anemia *an incident, episode, event, *occurrence: narration, relation, recital (see corresponding verbs at relate)

* anamnesis *bloodless, *pale

* anastomosis *full-blooded: florid

* anesthesia *anaesthesia, anaodynia (see under anodyne 1)

* anesthetic *adj insensitive, *insensible, impassible

* anemic *insensible, impassible

* anger *dull, obtuse: *impassive, apathetic, stolid: insensitive

* ant *alive —

* anesthetic *full-blooded: florid

* ant *dull, obtuse: *impassive, apathetic, stolid: insensitive

* anesthetic *n *anaodynia, analgesic

* anger *alive —

* anesthetic *stimulant

* anesthésie *backer, *sponsor, patron, surety, guarantor

* anger *backer, *sponsor, patron, surety, guarantor

* anesthésie *anger, ire, rage, fury, indignation, wrath denote emotional excitement induced by intense displeasure.

* anger *backer, *sponsor, patron, surety, guarantor

* anesthésie *anger, ire, rage, fury, indignation, wrath denote emotional excitement induced by intense displeasure.

* anger *backer, *sponsor, patron, surety, guarantor

* anesthésie *anger, ire, rage, fury, indignation, wrath denote emotional excitement induced by intense displeasure.
anger

a display of that feeling in looks, acts, or words (Belinda burns with more than mortal ire—Pope) (Then, my lad, ye've come to tell me a lie!) Farmer Blaize looked straight at the boy, undismayed by the dark flush of ire he had kindled—Meredith. Rage adds to anger the implications of lost self-control and of violent boiling over of feeling: it often connotes variously a sense of frustration, a temporary derangement of the mind, or a determination to get revenge (terrible and impotent rage—Wilde) (his first hot anger against the beast had changed into a cold rage at all costs he must get it—Cloete). Fury is overriding destructive rage verging on madness (what fury drove us into saying the stupid, intolerant, denunciatory things we said?—L. P. Smith) (the war against physical evil, like every other war, must not be conducted with such fury as to render men incapable of the arts of peace—Russell). Indignation implies depth and intensity of anger, often righteous or generous anger, aroused by something one considers mean, shameful, or otherwise unworthy of a man or men (whose souls no honest indignation ever urged to elevated daring—Shelley) (the question now placed before society . . . is this: Is man an ape or an angel? I, my lord, I am on the side of the angels. I repudiate with indignation and abhorrence those newfangled theories—Disraeli). Wrath may imply either rage or indignation as its emotional basis, but more strongly than either of these it suggests existence of a grievance and a desire or intent to avenge or punish or to get revenge (the wrath of God) (let not the sun go down upon your wrath—Eph 4:26) (nursing her wrath to keep it warm—Burns).

Anger, incense, enrage, infuriate, madden. All these verbs carry in common with anger, their general term, the denotation to make angry or to rouse to anger (laugh then at any, but at fools or foes: these you but anger, and you mend not those—Pope) (angered by his son's repeated disobedience). Incense implies hotness of anger, especially as provoked by something excessively irritating and offensive (Mr. Critchlow, aged and unaccustomed to interference, had to render accounts of his trusteeship to this young man, and was incensed—Bennett) (magistrates and populace were incensed at a refusal of customary marks of courtesy and respect for the laws—Inge). Enrage suggests a violent display of wrath or fury (I pray you, speak not . . . question enrages him—Shak). Infuriate may imply a sense of being outraged or sometimes no more than of being thoroughly irritated or exasperated (how it infuriates a bigot, when he is forced to drag into the light his dark convictions!—L. P. Smith) (his colleagues and his subordinates had been alternately delighted and infuriated by his assumed reluctance to deal with any practical question—Sackville-West). Madden is often not distinguishable from infuriate (can it be fancied that Deity ever vindictively made in his image a mannikin merely to madden it?—Poe) (like the former it may imply merely excessive annoyance or vexation (maddening delays)).

Poe please, gratify: pacify (Con placate, mollify, appease, propitiate (see pacify): rejoice, delight, gladden, tickle (see please)).

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
remark or statement that is an adverse criticism. Animad-version (compare animadvert at Remark) implies as its motive deep-seated prejudice or ill will or a tendency to carp or cavil (given to animadversions on the clergy) Matt's animadversions hurt me more. In part they appeared to me unjust, and in part ill-natured—Cowper Stricture implies censure, which may be either ill-natured or judicious (foreign strictures on the dress, looks, and behavior of the English abroad—Arnold) the lash of the merciless Genius... whose strictures are founded in argument, enriched with learning, and enlivened with Lucy Gibbon) Aspersion imputes a slanderous character to the criticism (who by aspersions throw a stone at the head of others, hit their own—Herbert) (at Cambridge they tell me) while you speak very well, you write less expressly... you will not set the aspersion down to me—Quiller-Couch) Reflection often implies indirect aspersion or a defamatory imputation which may be inferred from what has been said (he cannot restrain himself from reflections on kings and priests when he is most contending for them—Hallam) (the reflections on certain named persons' chastity and honest—Geographical Jour.) Anna criticism, reprehension, censure (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE): observation, comment, *remark:
captiousness, faultfinding, caviling, carping, censoriousness (see corresponding adjectives at CRITICAL) Ant commendation —Con praise, laudation, extolla-tion, acclaim (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE): *approbation, approval
animadvert comment, commentate, *remark
Anna *criticize, reprehend, censure, reprobate: deprecate, *disapprove: deprecate, disparage, *decry Con ignore, disregard, overlook (see NEGLECT): *commend, applaud, compliment animal adj *carnal, fleshly, sensual
Anna physical, corporeal, *bodily: bestial, *brutal Ant rational —Con intellectual, *mental, psychic: spiritual (see HOLY) animalism *animality Anna sensualism, voluptuousness (see corresponding adjectives at SENSUOUS): lustfulness, lasciviousness, lecher-ousness (see corresponding adjectives at LICENTIOUS) animalism, animalism are not always clearly distinguished when they are used to denote animal nature, character, or springs of action in a man or in men. Animalism is often preferred when it is desired to suggest likenesses between men and animals rather than differences, and animalism when one wishes to convey in addition all the derogatory implications of sensuality or sensualism he disliked union with a woman whom he had never seen;
and, when he begat his first child in mere captiousness, faultfinding, caviling, carping, censoriousness (see corresponding adjectives at LICENTIOUS) animalism was a natural and necessary revolt. . .. against that naturalism which threatened to end in sheer animalism—Kingsley Anna virility, maleness, masculinity (see corresponding adjectives at MALE) animate adj *living, alive, animated, vital Anna physical, corporeal, *bodily: animal, *carnal, fleshly Ant inanimate —Con lifeless, *dead animate vB *quicken, vivify, enliven Anna *vitalize, activate, energize
2 *inform, inspire, fire
Anna motivate, actuate, *activate: *move, drive, impel, actuate: *stir, rouse, arouse Ant inhibit —Con *restrain, curb, check: *frustrate, thwart animated 1 alive, *living, animate, vital

Anna active, live, dynamic: vitalized, energized, activated
(see VITALIZE)
Ant inert —Con *inactive, passive: lifeless, inanimate, *dead
2 *lively, vivacious, sprightly, gay
Anna buoyant, volatile, effervescent (see ELASTIC): *agile,
brisk, spry, nimble: *spirited, high-spirited
Ant depressed, dejected —Con *languid, listless, spirit-less, enervated: *lethargic, torpid, comatose
animosity animus, rancor, *enmity, hostility, antipathy,
antagonism
Anna hatred, hate, detestation, abhorrence (see under HATE vb): vindictiveness, revengefulness, vengefulness (see corresponding adjectives at VINDICTIVE): *malice,
ill will, malevolence, spite
Ant goodwill —Con *friendship, amity, comity: friendliness, neighborliness, amicableness (see corresponding adjectives at AMICABLE)
animus animosity, rancor, *enmity, hostility, antipathy, animosity
Anna ill will, spite, spleen, grudge (see MALICE): prejudice, bias (see PRECEDITION)
Ant favor —Con *predilection, partiality: *sympathy, annals chronicle, *history
annex vB *add, append, subjoin, superadd
Anna *join, unite, connect, link, associate: attach, affix, *fasten Con *detach, disengage, abstract: divorce, *separate, part annex n Annex, extension, wing, ell designate an addition to a main (and, often, the original) building. An annex may be attached to the main building or it may even not be adjacent to it. When used of an addition to a hotel, an office building, or a commercial or educational establishment it usually implies a provision for expanded activity. An extension is attached to a main or central building; when it projects from the central building and is connected with it at only one point it is called a wing: when it extends at right angles from one end of the building it is called an ell.
Anna *addition, increment, accretion annihilate extinguish, *abolish, abate Anna obliterate, efface, expunge, blot out, cancel, *erase:
extinguish, *abolish, abate
Ant create, *invent, discover: *make, form, fashion, forge, shape: *renew, restore annotate, gloss and their corresponding nouns annotation, gloss mean, as verbs, to add or append comment, or as nouns, an added or appended comment intended to be helpful in interpreting a passage or text. One annotates a text (as of a literary work) when one furnishes it with critical, historical, or explanatory notes (as footnotes, marginal notes, or notes in an appendix) (annotate the works of Milton) (an annotated edition of Shakespeare's sonnets) The subject of an annotation may be any word, passage, or detail which is capable of being explained to the advantage of the reader or student. One glosses a word or phrase which is obscure in meaning because foreign,
obsolete, rare, or technical by providing its definition (as under the advantage of the reader or student. One glosses a word or phrase which is obscure in meaning because foreign,
obsolete, rare, or technical by providing its definition (as under HATE vb): vindictiveness, revengefulness, vengefulness (see corresponding adjectives at VINDICTIVE): *malice,
ill will, malevolence, spite
Ant goodwill —Con *friendship, amity, comity: friendliness, neighborliness, amicableness (see corresponding adjectives at AMICABLE)
Anna active, live, dynamic: vitalized, energized, activated
(see VITALIZE)
Ant inert —Con *inactive, passive: lifeless, inanimate, *dead
2 *lively, vivacious, sprightly, gay
Anna buoyant, volatile, effervescent (see ELASTIC): *agile,
brisk, spry, nimble: *spirited, high-spirited
Ant depressed, dejected —Con *languid, listless, spirit-
less, enervated: *lethargic, torpid, comatose
animosity animus, rancor, *enmity, hostility, antipathy,
antagonism
Anna hatred, hate, detestation, abhorrence (see under HATE vb): vindictiveness, revengefulness, vengefulness
(see corresponding adjectives at VINDICTIVE): *malice,
ill will, malevolence, spite
Ant goodwill —Con *friendship, amity, comity: friendliness, neighborliness, amicableness (see corresponding adjectives at AMICABLE)
animus animosity, rancor, *enmity, hostility, antipathy, animaus
The perfidy of the transaction would have been universally acknowledged—John Marshall. To abrogate is the act of one having force and authority, and often legal jurisdiction. A ruler or an arbiter as well as a court may abrogate something (as a law, a treaty, or a convention) previously effective and in effect or in intent abolish it. We are not . . . called upon to abrogate the standards of values that are fixed, not by you and not by me, but by . . . time—Lowes. Void in legal context retains much of its basic meaning, to make empty or null. It is often interchangeable with annul (the state supreme bench . . . voided the referendum—Aswell & Michelson). Unlike the latter it need not imply the action of a legally competent authority (it is the insanity of the testator that voids his will, not the act of a court). Only competent legal authority can vacate or make ineffectual or invalid something that previously was effective or valid (vacate proceedings after the discovery of fraud). (vacate a grant of crown property) Quash is a strictly legal term applied chiefly to indictments thrown out of court as defective.

anodyne 1. Anodyne, analgesic, anesthetic all denote something used to relieve or prevent pain, all are freely used both substantively and adjectivally, and all have a related noun, anodynia, analgesia, anesthesia, denoting the corresponding state. Anodyne is the oldest and most inclusive of these terms; it may be applied to any agent used primarily to relieve pain whether by dulling perception of pain or by altering the pain-causing situation (as by local stimulation of blood flow), often has a literary or popular rather than medical connotation, and is the only one of these terms given broad figurative use (see ANODYNE 2). Analgesic is narrower in scope; it is applied especially to a medicinal substance or preparation used locally or systematically to dull the perception of pain (as by action on the nervous system) usually without other major disturbance of consciousness. An anesthetic is a medicinal agent that produces insensibility both to pain and to all other sensations either of a particular part or area (local anesthe sia) or of the whole body (general anesthesia); anesthetic is the one term to use of an agent designed to prevent anticipated pain (as from surgery) as distinct from one designed to assuage existent pain; thus, one is administered an anesthetic before a tooth is pulled and given an analgesic to relieve pain after the anesthesia has worn off. 2. Anodyne, opiate, narcotic, nepenthe mean something used to dull or deaden one’s senses or one’s sensibility and are often used adjectivally. Anodyne is frequently used as the opposite of stimulant (had . . . made anodyne translations from Homer and Sophocles in “rhymic” and sleepy prose—Santayana). It usually suggests something that allays excitement or mitigates mental distress often by inducing forgetfulness or oblivion (this kind of religion cannot be anything better than an anodyne; but an anodyne is unfortunately just what many people want from their religion—Inge). (mutiny among the crews of Columbus was too much of a menace for the comforting daily sight of drifting vegetation not to be a very real mental anodyne—Beebe). Opiate usually is applied to something that induces a dream state and a delusion of happiness; it also commonly suggests indifference to actual evils and a false sense of security or well-being with consequent stilling of all disturbance—T. W. Arnold. Opiate means anything that induces a dream state or a delusion of happiness; it also commonly suggests indifference to actual evils and a false sense of security or well-being with consequent stilling of all disturbance.
the arts find in music, poetry, painting, and the novel escapes, as narcotic as they are delightful, from the pressures and exigencies in which we are involved—Edman> (the promise that religion offers of a larger reward is less likely to serve as a moral stimulant than as a moral narcotic—Garvin) Nepenthe, the designation of a legendary drug or potion of the ancient Greeks, said to allay pain and sorrow, is used in modern English with the implication of something sweet and pleasurable substituted for something painful (after the fiery stimulants, compounded of brimstone and bigotry, offered by the polemic theologians, the gentle sedative of Montaigne's conversation comes like a draft of nepenthe—Preserved Smith) It is also freely used to denote the state of placid peace resulting from the use of a nepenthe (only . . . in idle chatter and consoling gossip and scandal, and in the more unendurable cases in drink, can they find nepenthe—Nathan) Ant stimulant: irritant anodynia analogia, anesthesia (see under ANODYNE 1) anoint *oil, cream, grease, lubricate anomalous *irregular, unnatural Ana *abnormal, aberrant, atypical: *monstrous, prodigious: singular, unique, peculiar, *strange Con normal, natural, *regular, typical: *usual, wonted, accustomed, customary anomaly *paradox, antimony answer n reply, response, rejoinder, retort (see under ANSWER vb 1) Ana defense, vindication, justification (see corresponding verbs at MAINTAIN): refutation, rebuttal (see corresponding verbs at DISPROVE) Con question, query, inquiry, interrogation (see corresponding verbs at ASK): summoning or summons, call (see corresponding verbs at SUMMON) answer vb 1 Answer, respond, reply, rejoin, retort (and their corresponding nouns answer, response, reply, rejoiner, retort) mean to say or write or sometimes to do something (or something that is said, written, or done) in return (as to a question, a call, a request, or a charge). One answers or makes an answer to a question, call, or appeal, or to the person or thing questioning, calling, or appealing, when one gives the attention or service demanded by one's situation or office or required by courtesy (answer a question) answer the telephone <answer the doorbell) In specific collocations the words carry more definite implications; thus, in answering an accusation one gives a detailed and sometimes, by suggestion, a successful defense; in having the answers to all the problems one has their correct solutions (he could talk; he could assert; produce opinions and information, but he couldn't meet or answer arguments—Rose Macaulay) One responds or makes a response to a person to whom endeavors to elicit an answer or to a thing which serves as a stimulus when one reacts, often spontaneously and usually without resistance, to the influence (respond immediately to an appeal for help) (an unsatisfactory response to a call for recruits) (when she smiled, even strangers responded) (is it true that antiquated legal ideas prevent government criticism, or attack when one responds with an answer that is in effect a retaliation, or a counter charge, criticism, or attack (it amused me . . . to read the interview and learn that I had . . . uttered a number of trenchant sayings upon female novelist. But the amusement changed to dismay when the ladies began to retort—Quiller-Couch) Ana *acknowledge, recognize: *disprove, refute, rebut: defend, justify, vindicate, *maintain Con question, *ask, interrogatory, query, inquire, quiz: *summon, call 2 meet, *satisfy, fulfill answerable *responsible, accountable, amenable, liable Ana obliged, constrained, compelled (see FORCE vb): subject, *subordinate antagonism antipathy, *enmity, hostility, animosity, rancor, animus Ana opposition or opposing, resistance, withstanding, contesting, fighting, combating, conflict or conflicting (see corresponding verbs at RESIST): strife, conflict, difference, variance, dissension, contention, *discord Ant accord: comity —Con *agreement, understanding: concord, *harmony, consonance antagonist *opponent, adversary Ana foe, *enemy: rival, competitor (see corresponding verbs at RIVAL): assailant, attacker (see corresponding verbs at ATTACK) Ant supporter —Con ally, *partner, colleague antagonistic counteractive, counter, *adverse Ana opposing, resisting, withstanding, contesting, fighting, combat, conflicting (see corresponding verbs at RESIST) Ant resist, withstand, contesting, fighting, combating, conflict or conflicting (see RESIST): incompatible, discordant, *inconsonant: hostile (see corresponding noun at ENMITY): *antipathetic, averse Ant favoring, favorable —Con propitious, auspicious, benign (see FAVORABLE): advantageous, *beneficial antagonize *resist, withstand, contest, oppose, fight, combat, conflict Ana *attack, assail, assault: *offend, outrage, affront, insult: *incite, foment, instigate Ant conciliate —Con *pacify, placate, propitiate, mollify, appease antje stake, pot, *bet, wager antecedent n *cause, determinant, reason, occasion Ana precursor, *forerunner: progenitor, forebear (see ANCESTOR) Ant consequence —Con *effect, result, issue, sequel, Anthropology, ethnology, archaeology are clearly distinguishable sciences, but they are often confused by laymen because the investigations of scholars in these fields are largely concerned with ancient or primitive races. Anthropology is a general term covering many sciences which deal with the physical and cultural evolution of the human species from prehistoric times to the present. One branch of anthropology is ethnology, which is concerned with ancient or primitive cultures and civilizations and a study of their material remains (as artifacts, monuments, and traces of agriculture).

Anthropomorphous

Antecedent adj *preceding, precedent, fore-going, previous, prior, former, anterior

Ant subsequent: consequent

Antediluvian ancient, antiquated, obsolete, antique, venerable, archaic, *old

Ana primordial, primeval, primal, pristine (see PRIMARY): *early

Anterior adj *preceding, precedent, previous, prior, foregoing, antecedent, former

Ant posterior —Con rear, hind, back, hinder, after (see POSTERIOR)

Anthropoid, anthropomorphic, anthropomorphous all mean resembling man. Anthropoid in its basic meaning is used primarily of certain apes (as the chimpanzee and gorilla) and certain prehuman primate fossils that approach modern man in structure (the anthropoid apes of the Miocene) In extended use the reference to manlike apes rather than man predominates; thus, an anthropoid pelvis is a human pelvis that in shape and proportions resembles that of an anthropoid ape (the revolutionary thug who has the fine art of bursting Razumov's eardrums . . . is an anthropoid forerunner of thousands who have gone one better than that in the police states—Pritchett)

Anthropomorphic and the less common anthropomorphous are used interchangeably when implying a physical resemblance to man (the anthropomorphic deities of primitive peoples) (an anthropomorphous carving) and both may replace anthropoid in its basic meaning especially when it is desired to avoid taxonomic implications (anthropomorphous apes—Darwin) (Darwin himself carefully described men and apes as having evolved separately from some common "ancient . . . anthropomorphic sub-group"—High School Biology) Anthropomorphic is the preferable term to modify a noun denoting something immaterial or to attribute human personality or quality as distinct from human physique (expectancy is too anthropomorphic a concept . . . its use leads the reader to attribute to animals what in fact only occurs at the level of human beings equipped with language—Charles Morris) (the categories of cause, force, law, are anthropomorphic in origin and were thus originally metaphors—Cohen)

Anthropology, ethnology, archaeology are clearly distinguishable sciences, but they are often confused by laymen because the investigations of scholars in these fields are largely concerned with ancient or primitive races. Anthropology is a general term covering many sciences which deal with the physical and cultural evolution of the human species from prehistoric times to the present. One branch of anthropology is ethnology, which is concerned with ancient or primitive cultures and civilizations and a study of their material remains (as artifacts, monuments, and traces of agriculture).

Anthropomorphous, anthropomorphous

Antic n monkeyshine, caper, *prank, dodo

Ana *trick, wile, artifice: *caprice, freak, vagary, whim: gambol, frolic, romp (see under PLAY vb)

Antic adj grotesque, bizarre, *fantastic

Ana preposterous, absurd, *foolish: ludicrous, ridiculous, comic, comical, farcical, *laughable

Con *serious, solemn, somber, grave, sedate: sensible, prudent, *wise: conventional, formal (see CEREMONIAL)

Anticipate 1 forestall, *prevent

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

Averse

Antipathy

Antediluvian

Antecedent

Ant

Anterior

Anthropoid

Anthropomorphic

Anthropomorphous

Antic

Ana

Antic

Ant
pathy: *predilection, partiality, prepossession: *attachment, love

2 Antipathy, aversion are closer synonyms than their corresponding adjectives when they denote the state of mind created by what is antipathetic to one. Antipathy distinctly implies an emotional state, often a settled emotion, which prevents reconciliation or contact or which more often definitely implies hostility (see enmity). Aversion on the other hand suggests a predisposition or an unwillingness to meet, encounter, or entertain, which shows itself in avoidance or rejection rather than in hatred; thus, one has an antipathy to cats who is violently repelled by them and drives them from his presence; one has an aversion to cats who merely avoids contact with them.

Ana, Ant, Con see those at antipathy 1 antipodal, antidean antithetical, contrary, *opposite, contradictory, antonymous antipode antithesis, contrary, opposite, contradictory, antonym (see under opposite adj) antiquated archaic, obsolete, antediluvian, antique, *old, ancient, venerable Ana superannuated, *aged Ant modernistic: modish —Con modern, new-fashioned, novel, newfangled, *new: *stylish, fashionable, smart antique ancient, *old, venerable, antiquated, antediluvian, obsolete, archaic Ant modern: current antiseptic adj germicidal, bactericidal, disinfectant (see under antiseptic n) antiseptic n Antiseptic, germicide, bactericide, disinfectant all denote an agent that interferes with the growth and activity of microorganisms. An antiseptic is an agent that prevents or arrests the growth and activity of microorganisms, especially disease germs, without necessarily killing them. The word is used especially of substances mild enough to be used on living tissue. Germicide is used of an agent that kills microorganisms and especially disease germs. It is commonly applied to strong chemicals which cannot safely be used on living tissues. A bactericide is a germicide that destroys all kinds of bacteria (but does not necessarily kill bacterial spores). A disinfectant is an agent that frees from infection and especially a chemical germicide used to kill disease germs and other harmful microorganisms in sources of infection (as drains, sickrooms, clothing, bedding, laboratories, and stables). Disinfectant may be used of substances (as chloride of lime) which destroy disagreeable odors by interfering with the activity of the bacteria causing putrefaction. The same distinctions hold for the corresponding adjectives antiseptic, germicidal, bactericidal, disinfectant.
antisocial asocial, *unsocial, nonsocial
Ana anarchic, anarchistic, anarchist (see under anarchy): misanthropic, pessimistic, *cynical Ant social antithesis 1 contrast, *comparison, parallel, collation 2 opposite, antipode, contradictory, contrary, antonym (see under opposite adj) antithetical *opposite, contrary, contradictory, antonymous, antipodal, antipodean antonym opposite, contradictory, contrary, antithesis, antipode (see under opposite adj) antonymous *opposite, contradictory, contrary, antithetical, antipodal, antipodean anxiety worry, *care, concern, solicitude
Ana *distress, suffering, misery: *fear, dread, alarm, panic: *apprehension, foreboding, misgiving: doubt: *uncertainty, mistrust Ant security —Con *certainty, assurance, certitude:

*confidence, self-possession, aplomb: composure, *equanimity, sangfroid anxious 1 worried, concerned, solicitous, careful (see under care n) Ana *fearful, apprehensive, afraid: uneasy, jittery, *impatient: perturbed, agitated, upset (see discompose)
Ant composed —Con *cool, unruffled, imperturbable, unflappable, collected: *confident, assured, sanguine, sure 2 *eager, keen, agog, avid
Ana desiring or desirous, wishing or wishful, craving (see corresponding verbs at desire): yearning, longing, pining (see long vb)
Ant loath —Con reluctant, hesitant, *disinclined, indisposed, averse apartment *room, chamber apathetic phlegmatic, stolid, *impassive, stoic Ant alert (sense 1): aghast —Con stirred, roused, aroused, awakened (see stir vb); vigilant, *watchful, wide-awake apathy phlegm, stolidity, impassivity, impassiveness, stoicism (see under impassive)
Ana inertness, inactivity, passiveness, supineness (see corresponding adjectives at inactive): indifference, unconcern, aloofness, detachment (see corresponding adjectives at indifferent): *lethargy, torpidity, torpor Ant zeal: enthusiasm —Con ardor, fervor, *passion: anxiety, concern, solicitude (see care n) apve vb *copy, imitate, mimic, mock Ana caricature, burlesque (see under caricature n): emulate, *rival apercu sketch, précis, survey, digest, pandect, *compendium, syllabus Ana epitome, brief, abstract, *abridgment aperitif *appetizer
aperture, interstice, orifice denote an opening allowing passage through or in and out. Aperture is applied especially to any opening in a thing that otherwise presents a solid or closed surface or structure; it may be applied both to an opening that is a flaw (as a crack or cleft) or to one that is structurally essential <daylight filtered through small apertures in the dungeon's outside wall> <windows are apertures to admit light and air> <the aperture of a camera> <pores are minute apertures in the skin that are the openings of skin glands> Interstice is applied to any unfilled space or gap or interval especially in a fabric (in its widest sense) or in a mass. It is especially applicable to any of the openings in something that is loose in texture, coarse-grained, layered, or piled up <the interstices between the stones of the wall were not filled with mortar>  Interstice is also used of time in the sense of an empty interval <what... do they do... in all the mysterious interstices of their lives—L. P. Smith> Orifice is applied to any opening that serves chiefly as a mouth or as a vent <the orifice of the bladder> <the orifice of a chimney> <the orifice of a wound> <horror... when Mongibello belches forth from all its orifices its sulphurous fires—Borrow> Ana perforation, puncture, bore, prick (see corresponding verbs at perforate): *hole, hollow, cavity: slit, slash, cut (see corresponding verbs at cut) apex 1 Apex, vertex are so often used interchangeably with reference to the tip or top point of a cone, a pyramid, or a conic section that a fundamental difference in implications is often ignored. Apex has particular reference to the sharpness or angularity of the point or tip; it may or may not in its literal application to things imply that this is the highest point (the apex of the heart is its lower and pointed end) (the apex of a lung is its upper cone-shaped end) Apex may also refer to the converging point of two lines whether they extend in a vertical plane or not (apex of a leaf) (apex of a vein in a mine) Apex as a rule, and apart from some technical senses in mathematics, implies a base (real or assumed) and therefore a top or highest point. This implication is retained when the word is applied to concrete things; thus, the vertex of the head or of the skull is the highest point or the upper end of its axis; vertex in astronomy is the zenith either with reference to the observer or to the particular body under observation. 2 peak, *summit, culmination, pinnacle, climax, acme, meridian, zenith, apogee aphorism apothegm, epigram, *saying, saw, maxim, adage, proverb, motto aphrodisiac *erotic, amatory, amorous Ant anaphrodisiac apiece *each, severally, individually, respectively aplomb assurance, self-assurance, self-possession, *confidence, self-confidence Ana coolness, collectedness, nonchalance, imperturbability (see corresponding adjectives at COOL): *equanimity, composure, sangfroid: poise, savoir faire (see tact) Ana shyness —Con embarrassment, discomfiture (see corresponding verbs at EMBARRASS): confusion, befuddlement (see corresponding verbs at CONFUSE): perplexity, bewilderment, distraction (see corresponding verbs at PUZZLE) apocryphal appareil apparition, apparition (see corresponding verbs at APPAREIL); apparition implies that one has been, at least apparently, in something (as an act, a policy, or a view). In general use apparition implies that one has been, at least apparently, in something (as an act, a policy, or a view). In general use apparent 1 Apparent, illusory, seeming, ostensible mean not really or actually being what it appears to be. Something is apparent apparently as well as he was —Con as well as he was: —Con as well as he was (Shak.) In its older sense, still found in very discriminating use, it implies no admission of guilt or error but a desire to make clear the grounds for some course, belief, or position that appears wrong to others (capologies for various ... doctrines of the faith—Newman) Apologia is often used in place of apologetics in this latter sense (Basil de Selincourt's apologia for Ruskin in the Contemporary Review—The Nation) (Viscount Grey of Falldon ... the other day delivered an apologia for democracy—N. Y. Times) Excuse implies an intent to remove or avoid blame (as for a neglect of duty, a failure to accomplish an end, or a violation of a rule, law, or custom) ("Achilles will not to the field tomorrow"—"What's his excuse?"—Shak.) real, our apparent worldliness—Mackenzie} Something is illusory that is the result of a false impression and acquires a character or appearance other than that found in the real thing or that seems to exist when it is actually nonexistent. The deception may be the result of one’s sense limitations (as in an optical illusion), of a misleading appearance assumed by certain natural phenomena (as a mirage or will o’ the wisp), of one’s own state of mind which colors or alters the objective reality, or of the strong stimulation of the imagination (as by a work of art) that causes one to accept as real something purely imaginary (lengthwise stripes give an illusory height to the figure) (illusory pools of water on a highway) (a lover often attributes an illusory beauty to his beloved) (the beautiful is in a certain sense illusory, or rather contains an element of illusion—Alexander). Something is seeming that is so like the reality in appearance that it may be mistaken for it. Seeing usually implies a character in the thing observed rather than, as with the two preceding words, a defect of observation. Often it suggests an intent to deceive or delude (Miss Wilmot’s reception [of him] was mixed with seeming neglect, and yet I could perceive she acted a studied part—Goldsmith) (the whole of Burn’s song has an air of straight dealing . . . but these seeming simplicities are craftily charged . . . with secondary purposes, ulterior intimations—Montague) Something (as an aim or motive) is ostensible that is explicitly declared, professed, or avowed or that has the outward marks of the character ascribed to it yet has in fact another hidden aim, motive, or character; thus, to say that the ostensible purpose of a naval review is the celebration of a national holiday may imply the presence of another, deeper, and more significant purpose not revealed (as mobilization for war) (natives from independent and feudatory courts whose ostensible business was the repair of broken necklaces . . . but whose real end seemed to be to raise money for angry Maharanees or young Rajahs—Kipling)

Ant real—Con actual, true (see REAL): intrinsic, *inherent, essential

apparition, phantasm, phantom, wraith, ghost, spirit, specter, shade, revenant mean a visible but immaterial appearance of a person or thing, especially a likeness of a dead person or of a person or thing that is not physically present. Apparition, phantasm, and phantom all stress the illusory character of what appears to the sight. Apparition often connotes suddenness or unexpectedness of coming (enter the ghost of Caesar . . . I think it is the weakness of mine eyes that shapes this monstrous apparition—Shak.) while phantasm often suggests the workings of a disordered or overexcited imagination (horrible forms, what and who are ye? never yet there came phantasms so foul through monster-teeming Hell—Shelley) and phantom a dreamlike character and form without substance or shape without body or mass (so live and laugh, nor be dismayed as one by one the phantoms go—E.A. Robinson) Wraith specifically denotes an apparition of a living person that appears to a friend or relative and portends the former’s death but is also used of an apparition of a dead person (she was uncertain if it were the gypsy or her wraith—Scott). In extended use it stresses the insubstantial and evanescent character of the apparition (O hollow wraith of dying fame, fade wholly, while the soul exults—Tennyson) The remaining words in their literal senses all denote an apparition of a dead person. Ghost and spirit are the familiar and general terms for a disembodied soul; specter (not necessarily human) connotes more of the mysterious or terrifying (ghosts, wandering here and there, troop home to churchyards—Shak.) (I am thy father’s spirit, doomed for a certain term to walk the night—Shak.) (grisly specters, which the Fiend had raised—Milton) (lo! when the service was ended, a form appeared on the threshold . . . why does the bridegroom start and stare at the strange apparition . . . ? Is it a phantom of air . . . ? Is it a ghost from the grave . . . ?—Longfellow) Shade usually connotes impalpability but it stresses personality rather than mode of appearance (mighty heroes’ more majestic shades—Dryden) (followed . . . by the shade of their dead relative—Frazer) Revenant, when it denotes a ghost, carries none of the implications of the other terms for a disembodied spirit except the return from the grave; it is therefore used often in straight prose or where a term without emotional connotations is desirable (thus, our revenant from a hundred years ago would find us occupied yet with measuring intensities of force—Darow) (I felt for a queer moment of hallucination more of a ghost than the ghost I had come to visit—a revenant out of a rowdy present into the more stately epoch—L.P. Smith)

An illusion, *delusion, hallucination

appeal n plea, *prayer, petition, suit
Ant entreaty or entreaty, beseeching, supplicating or supplication, imploring (see corresponding verbs at BEG): soliciting or solicitation, requesting or request, asking (see corresponding verbs at ASK) Con demanding or demand, exacting or exactation, claim (see corresponding verbs at DEMAND): protesting or protest, objecting or objection, kicking (see corresponding verbs at OBJECT) appeal vb plead, pray, sue, petition (see under PRAYER)
Ant implore, *beg, beseech, entreat, supplicate: solicit, request, *ask Con *demand, exact, claim: protest, kick, *object appear 1 Appear, loom, emerge mean to come out into view. In use, however, they are only rarely interchangeable. Appear is weakest in its implication of a definite physical background or a source; consequently it sometimes means merely to become visible or to become apparent (see EVIDENT) (one by one the stars appeared in the sky) (nothing appears in the testimony to cause doubt of the defendant’s guilt) Sometimes it means to present oneself in public in a particular capacity or to be presented or given out to the public (Clarence Darrow appeared as counsel for the defendant) (Booth appeared nightly as Hamlet for the last two weeks of his run) (the new biography of Lincoln will appear next month) (weeklies usually appear on Thursday or Friday) Loom means appearing as through a mist or haze (a smear of . . . lead-colored paint had been laid on to obliterate Henchard’s name, though its letters dimly loomed through like ships in a fog—Hardy) (between the bed and the ottoman . . . the cot loomed in the shadows—Bennett) Because things seen in a fog are often magnified by their indistinct outlines, loom, especially when followed in figurative use by large or immense to fancy low or when followed by up, suggest apparitions and sometimes appalling magnitude (some mornings it [a mesa] would loom up above the dark river like a blazing volcanic mountain—Cather) (that which loomed immense to fancy low before my reason lies—Browning) Emerge definitely implies a coming out into the open from something that envelopes: the word therefore presupposes a period or condition of concealment, obscurity, gestation, or insignificance (the sun emerged from the clouds) (after a long hunt for him, we saw him emerging from the crowd) (that part of northern Ohio where the Bentley farms lay had begun to emerge from pioneer life—Anderson) (Lord Sligo emerges from this account as an able and conscientious administrator—Times Lit. Sup.)

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
appearance

*come, arrive: issue, emanate, rise, arise, *spring Ant disappear: vanish — Con depart, retire, withdraw, *go, leave 2 *seem, look appearance, look, aspect, semblance denote the outward show presented by a person or thing. Appearance often carries no additional implications (<jude not according to the appearance—Jn 7:24> <in drawing, represent the appearances of things, never what you know the things to be—Ruskin>). The word, however, frequently implies an apparent as opposed to an actual or genuine character and therefore often connotes hypocrisy, dissembling, or pretense when used of persons or their actions (<to be able to tyrannize effectively they needed the title and appearance of constitutional authority—Huxley> <they spent their lives trying to keep up appearances, and to make his salary do more than it could—Cather>). Look is often indistinguishable from appearance except that it more often occurs in the plural <never judge a thing merely by its looks> They are not interchangeable, however, in all instances. When a personal impression or a judgment is implied, appearance is the precise word (<Aristotle, while admitting that Plato’s scheme has a plausible appearance of philanthropy, maintains that it is inapplicable to the facts of human nature—Dickinson> <when the emphasis is upon concrete details (as of color, shape, or expression) observable to everybody, look is a better choice—He had the look of a man who works indoors and takes little exercise> <I choose my friends for their good looks, my acquaintances for their good characters, and my enemies for their good intellects—Wilde>). Specifically look is often applied to a person’s expression as manifest in his face or posture (<she had a look about her that I wish I could forget—the look of a scared thing sitting in a net!—Millay> Aspect, like look, stresses the features of a person or thing but when applied to persons, it usually distinctively suggests the characteristic or habitual appearance and expression, especially facial expression (not risking a landing because of the fierce aspect of the natives—Heiser> <he was a very handsome man, of a commanding aspect—Austen>). Aspect often specifically implies reference to a facet or to the features that give something (as a place, an age, or a situation) its peculiar or distinctive character (<the aspect of affairs was very alarming—Dickens> <fifty years from now, it may be, the olive tree will almost have disappeared from southern France, and Provence will wear another aspect—Huxley> <democracy . . . has different aspects in different lands—Sulzberger>). Semblance basically implies outward seeming without necessarily suggesting the characteristic or habitual appearance and expression, especially facial expression (not risking a landing because of the fierce aspect of the natives—Heiser> <he was a very handsome man, of a commanding aspect—Austen>). Aspect often specifically implies reference to a facet or to the features that give something (as a place, an age, or a situation) its peculiar or distinctive character (<the aspect of affairs was very alarming—Dickens> <fifty years from now, it may be, the olive tree will almost have disappeared from southern France, and Provence will wear another aspect—Huxley> <democracy . . . has different aspects in different lands—Sulzberger>). Semblance basically implies outward seeming without necessarily suggesting the characteristic or habitual appearance and expression, especially facial expression (not risking a landing because of the fierce aspect of the natives—Heiser> <he was a very handsome man, of a commanding aspect—Austen>). Aspect often specifically implies reference to a facet or to the features that give something (as a place, an age, or a situation) its peculiar or distinctive character (<the aspect of affairs was very alarming—Dickens> <fifty years from now, it may be, the olive tree will almost have disappeared from southern France, and Provence will wear another aspect—Huxley> <democracy . . . has different aspects in different lands—Sulzberger>).

appease *pacify, placate, mollify, propitiate, conciliate appellation *name, title, designation, denomination, style append *add, subjoin, annex, superadd Ant affix, attach, *fasten applaud 1 Applaud, cheer, root mean to demonstrate one’s feeling, especially one’s approbation or joy, audibly and enthusiastically. Applaud specifically and usually implies hand clapping (<it is not the custom to applaud preachers> <the audiences at grand opera are asked to applaud only at...> applause, acclamation, acclaim, plaudits denote public expression of approbation. Applause usually suggests loudness or liveliness of demonstration and often carries its literal implication of clapping hands (she waited until the applause died down) (round after round of applause greeted him). However, it may be used to designate any other noisy or emphatic expression of approval (as stamping of feet, cheering, or waving of flags) (applause rang out from a hundred thousand throats—Froude) Acclamation adds to applause the implications of eagerness, enthusiasm, and often unanimity of assent: it often retains its basic implication of crying out (he was nominated to the office by acclamation without a ballot, and with emphatically voiced approval) (his speech was received with acclamation) Acclaim is more poetic than applause, though often interchanged with the latter; it sometimes carries implications of loftier deeds and more enduring esteem than acclamation (the heroes were hailed with acclaim) (his poetry met with universal acclaim) Plaudits, though literally equal to applause, may suggest polite or gracious rather than demonstrative expressions of approval (the colonel bowed and smiled with very pleasant good nature at our plaudits—Thackeray) Acclaim is more poetic than applause, though often interchanged with the latter; it sometimes carries implications of loftier deeds and more enduring esteem than acclamation (the heroes were hailed with acclaim) (his poetry met with universal acclaim) Plaudits, though literally equal to applause, may suggest polite or gracious rather than demonstrative expressions of approval (the colonel bowed and smiled with very pleasant good nature at our plaudits—Thackeray) Acclaim is more poetic than applause, though often interchanged with the latter; it sometimes carries implications of loftier deeds and more enduring esteem than acclamation (the heroes were hailed with acclaim) (his poetry met with universal acclaim) Plaudits, though literally equal to applause, may suggest polite or gracious rather than demonstrative expressions of approval (the colonel bowed and smiled with very pleasant good nature at our plaudits—Thackeray) Acclaim is more poetic than applause, though often interchanged with the latter; it sometimes carries implications of loftier deeds and more enduring esteem than acclamation (the heroes were hailed with acclaim) (his poetry met with universal acclaim) appraise 54

apprehend 1 arrest, detain, attach Ana seize, *take: capture, *catch Con release, discharge, liberate, *free

2 Apprehend, comprehend mean to lay hold of something with the mind so as to know it but together with their derivative nouns apprehend and comprehension are clearly distinguished in psychological use. Apprehend and apprehension do not imply attainment of full knowledge or of complete understanding but only a glimpsing of the nature, meaning, or significance of the object of thought; comprehend (see also understand) and comprehension imply an understanding of the object of thought in its entire compass and extent. Apprehend may suggest a single act of the mind and comprehend a complex and laborious process, but this distinction is not so essential as that between imperfect and perfect understanding; thus, one apprehends many things (as infinity or beauty) which one can never comprehend; one apprehends many things as a child (as mother love) which one does not comprehend until late in life (who shall say how quickly the babe apprehends the relation between the causative howl and its effect, the demanded ministration—Grandgent) the thirteen century which cared little to comprehend anything except the incomprehensible—Henry Adams

Ana understand, appreciate: grasp (see take 1): perceive, observe, notice, note (see see)
3 divine, anticipate, foresee, foreknow Ana fear, dread (see corresponding nouns at fear): forecast, predict, forebode, *foretell apprehension 1 arrest, detention, attachment (see under arrest vb)

Ana seizing or seizing, taking (see corresponding verbs at take): capturing or capture, catching (see corresponding verbs at catch)
Con releasing or release, discharging or discharge, liberation (see corresponding verbs at free)
2 comprehension (see under comprehend 2)
Ana understanding, appreciation (see corresponding verbs at understand): perceiving or perception, observing or observation, noticing or notice, noting (see corresponding verbs at see)

3 Apprehension, foreboding, misgiving, presentiment denote fear (or an instance of it) that something is going wrong or will go wrong. Apprehension usually implies fear that obsesses the mind and keeps one anxious and worried (be under apprehension concerning a child's health) (peasants who have survived a famine will be perpetually haunted by memory and apprehension—Russell) Foreboding particularly designates oppressive anticipatory fear or superstitious, unreasonable, or inadequately defined fear; thus, one may relieve a person's apprehensions yet find it hard to dispel his forebodings (there was a sadness and constraint about all persons that day, which filled Mr. Esmond with gloomy forebodings—Thackeray) Misgiving suggests uneasiness and mistrust rather than anxiety or dread; it is often applied to sudden fears (as a suspicion that one is making a mistake, a doubt of one's capacity to accomplish what one has undertaken, or a disturbing loss of courage) (in the midst of my anecdote a sudden misgiving chilled me—had I told them about this goat before?—L. P. Smith) this self-confidence had given place to a misgiving that he had been making a fool of himself—Shaw Presentiment implies a vague feeling or a dim, almost mystical, perception of something (not necessarily unpleasant) that seems bound to happen; however, because it frequently suggests an element of anticipatory fear and, in many cases, of foreboding, it comes into comparison with the other words of this group (the delicious repose of the soul...had been shaken...and alarmed with dim presentiment—George Eliot

Ana *fear, dread, alarm, panic: worry, anxiety, *care
Ant confidence —Con *trust, faith: assurance, self-

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
apprehensive anxious, worried, solicitous (see under CARE n): nervous, uneasy, jittery (see IMPATIENT)

ant confident —con assured, sanguine, sure (see CONFIDENT): *unruffled, imperturbable, unfappable, composed, cool, nonchalant

apprentice novice, noviceit, probationer, postulant, neophyte

ana beginner, starter (see corresponding verbs at BEGIN): *tyro, *amateur

apprise *inform, advise, notify, acquaint apprehensive *fearful, afraid

approximate *novice,附近, approximate mean to come near, approach approach vb 1 Approach, near, approximate mean to come or draw close (to). Approach is by far the widest in its range of application. Very often it implies a coming close in space (he left the group and approached us) (the storm was approaching). Often also it suggests a drawing close in time (it was approaching three o'clock) (the day of the wedding approached). Sometimes a closeness in order of thought or in an intellectual relation (as likeness or identification) is implied (her interest in others sometimes approaches intrusiveness) (students are expected to approach the standard set for them by their teachers) (many words of distinctly different origin gradually approach each other in meaning). Though the word retains its implication of coming close, often it also implies actual or imminent contact; to approach a man with a proposal is actually to make advances to him; to approach a topic is actually to enter upon a discussion of it. Hence, approach often stresses the manner or method of beginning, especially one calculated to evoke the response or effect desired (he did not know how to approach the subject) (every problem in science, every problem in physics he approached) (many words of distinctly different origin gradually approach each other in meaning).

appropriate vb *preempt, *arrogate, confiscate, usurp

appropriation *grant, subvention, subsidy mean money or property given or set apart by an authorized body for a predetermined use by others. Appropriation is the comprehensive term used in government, business, or an institution controlling large sums of money for the amount formally and officially allotted to any one of its departments, projects, services, or beneficiaries in advance of the expenditure of that money (every department must keep within its appropriation) (since the bill just signed carries no appropriation for the new bridge, it is obvious that construction will not begin this year). Grant usually applies to a gift made by a government or by a corporation (as an educational or charitable foundation) to a beneficiary on the condition that certain terms be accepted or certain engagements fulfilled. The beneficiary may be a specific institution, a corporation, or even an individual; the gift may be a sum of money, but when the government is the benefactor, it is often a tract of land or a valuable franchise (grants of land from the federal government were made to various railroads building new lines and to various colleges and universities providing agricultural and industrial courses in the mid-nineteenth century) (foundations that make grants to institutions engaged in health and medical research). Subvention is more restricted than grant since it always implies pecuniary aid especially to a person or institution in straits; it more often applies to a grant-in-aid to an artistic, literary, or scientific undertaking than a commercial one (opera in many places is possible only because of a subvention)

Subvention applies to a grant made to an individual or a company to enable him (or it) to carry on some work regarded as advantageous to the public but not for one reason or another self-supporting. Subvention is often preferred when the grant is made by an educational or charitable foundation or similar agency; subsidy, when it is made by the government (the Carnegie Corporation makes subventions to libraries and educational institutions) (the British government provides subsidies for mail-carrying vessels)

approval *approbation

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

Ana commending or commendation, applauding or applause, compliment (see corresponding verbs at COMMEND): endorsing or endorsement, sanction (see corresponding verbs at APPROVE)

Ant disapprove —Con criticizing or criticism, reproof, censure (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE): disapprovem, depreciation, derogation (see corresponding verbs at DECRY)

approve, endorse, sanction, accredit, certify mean to have or to express a favorable opinion of. Approve often means no more than this (daring them . . . to approve her conduct —Conrad) Sometimes, however, it suggests esteem or admiration (Jane secretly approved his discernment —Rose Macaulay) Endorse adds to approve the implication of backing or supporting (as by an explicit statement): it is therefore used chiefly in reference to things requiring promotion or publicity (endorse a person’s candidacy) (endorse the platform of a new political party) (endorse a brand of cigarette) Sanction not only implies approval but also authorization (the school dances were sanctioned by the board of education) The one that sanctions may be not only a person or group but something that provides a standard by which something can be approved and authorized or disapproved and discountenanced (proposed laws not sanctioned by public opinion) (some churches permit divorce, but do not sanction remarriage) (these statements are sanctioned by common sense—Joseph Gilbert) (the court has also sanctioned recently some federal efforts to protect Negroes in the South from violence—Barth) Accredit and certify usually imply official endorsement and conformity with certain standards. Their selection is dependent on idiom rather than on distinctions in meaning (an accredited herd of dairy cattle) (certified milk) (an accredited school) (a certified teacher) (a certified public accountant) (labels by which brain merit is advertised and certified—medals, honors, degrees—Wolf) Accredit, however, is sometimes used generally as implying public approval or general acceptance (if any . . . break away from accredited custom—Inge) (sages so fully accredited as Mr. Bertrand Russell—Montague)

Ana *commend, applaud, compliment: *ratify, confirm

Ant disapprove —Con reject, refuse, repudiate, spurn (see decline): condemn, reprehend, *criticize approximate vb *approach, near approximately *nearly, almost, well-nigh

Ant precisely, exactly aptitude bent, turn, talent, faculty, *gift, knack, genius

Ana *taste, gusto, zest: propensity, *leaning, penchant, flair

Ant inaptitude

aquatic, lacustrine, fluvial, fluviatile, marine, oceanic, thalassic, neritic, pelagic, abyssal all refer to water and especially to a body of water but all except aquatic are highly specific in their applications and all are more or less technical terms in the geographical and biological sciences and in geology. Aquatic may imply a habitat in water, but as applied to animals and plants it often means living in water (but not necessarily submerged) or on the water or around a body of water. It is specifically applicable to any plant (as the water hyacinth and the water lily) that has its roots in or below water. It is also applicable to any animal that frequents the water, especially to a swimming bird or mammal (as a gull or an otter). A frog is more often described as an amphibious animal but as compared to a toad its habits may be said to be aquatic. Lacustrine relates only to a lake; it is used in biology (lacustrine shells) (lacustrine fauna and flora), in geology (lacustrine deposits), and in archaeology.
aqueduct

〈the lacustrine period, a prehistoric period when dwellings were erected over lakes〉 Fluvial and fluviatile are used interchangeably to suggest the action, operation, or influence of flowing water though geologists perhaps somewhat prefer fluviatile and biologists distinctly prefer fluviatile (a fluviatile plain) fluviatile communities generally have a smaller standing crop of phytoplankters—

Park When denoting a specific relationship to a particular stream or a relation to streams as such as distinct from their action or effects fluviatile is the term of choice international fluviatile law coastal and fluviatile shipping Welles sketched a geographical interpretation of the history of civilization through three stages: the fluviatile, the thalassic, and the oceanic—Sat. Review (London)

In reference to salt water marine (see also marine) marine is the comprehensive term, applicable not only to things that pertain to the open ocean but to those that pertain to contiguous salt or brackish waters (as bays, harbors, salt marshes, or salt ponds) marine shells marine vegetation marine deposits When specific reference to the open ocean or to mid ocean is intended, oceanic is the preferred word oceanic fauna oceanic currents oceanic storms When reference is to seas or gulfs, as distinguished from the ocean, thalassic is often the term preferred especially by historians thalassic empire These terms, however, are neither so definitely restricted nor so precise as the succeeding terms, which usually name definite zones of the ocean. Neritic refers only to the belt of shallow water surrounding a landmass. Pelagic, which in general use implies definitely the open sea or the high seas pelagic sealing, in its stricter technical application has reference in its extent only to the realm of the open ocean and in its depth only to so much of the water covering that expanse as is penetrable by light. Below the pelagic zone in the deeper parts of the ocean lies the abyssal zone, where no plant life exists and animals are carnivorous and are usually blind or luminous.

aqueduct channel, canal, conduit, duct

Arab Arabian adj, Arabic, *Arabian Arabic Arab, Arabian, Arab are not freely applicable to the same things and are, consequently, often a source of confusion. Arabian is used chiefly with reference to a place, the large peninsula in southwestern Asia which includes the modern kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Thus, one speaks of the Arabian peninsula, desert, kingdoms, flora, fauna, history, intending in each case to convey a consciousness of geographic relationship. Arab is used chiefly with reference to a people who still dwell in Arabia or their descendants who are common in northern, eastern, and central Africa, in Madagascar, India, and the Malay Archipelago, and in some parts of Syria and Persia. The word, therefore, often implies characteristics or habits associated with Arabs (as a nomadic life, equestrian skill, or Muslim practices) Arab customs Arab descent Arab harem Distinctively, an Arabian horse is a particular horse bred in or imported from Arabia whereas the Arab horse is the kind of horse bred and used by Arabs; an Arabian caravan travels in Arabia, an Arab caravans is made up of Arabs. Arabic refers usually to a language, originally the language of the Arabs, but now used in several countries whose inhabitants are not exclusively Arab in origin (as Palestine, Syria, Iraq, Egypt, and northern Africa) the Arabic language Arabic is also applicable to a culture associated with the use of the Arabic language or to any manifestations of that culture Arabic architecture Arabic numerals Distinctively, Arabic literature is the literature of Arabs whereas Arabian literature is produced specifically in Arabia and Arabic literature is written in Arabic.

Arabian adj Arabian, Arab, Arabic are not freely applicable to the same things and are, consequently, often a source of confusion. Arabian is used chiefly with reference to a place, the large peninsula in southwestern Asia which includes the modern kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Thus, one speaks of the Arabian peninsula, desert, kingdoms, flora, fauna, history, intending in each case to convey a consciousness of geographic relationship. Arab is used chiefly with reference to a people who still dwell in Arabia or their descendants who are common in northern, eastern, and central Africa, in Madagascar, India, and the Malay Archipelago, and in some parts of Syria and Persia. The word, therefore, often implies characteristics or habits associated with Arabs (as a nomadic life, equestrian skill, or Muslim practices) Arab customs Arab descent Arab harem Distinctively, an Arabian horse is a particular horse bred in or imported from Arabia whereas the Arab horse is the kind of horse bred and used by Arabs; an Arabian caravan travels in Arabia, an Arab caravans is made up of Arabs. Arabic refers usually to a language, originally the language of the Arabs, but now used in several countries whose inhabitants are not exclusively Arab in origin (as Palestine, Syria, Iraq, Egypt, and northern Africa) the Arabic language Arabic is also applicable to a culture associated with the use of the Arabic language or to any manifestations of that culture Arabic architecture Arabic numerals Distinctively, Arabic literature is the literature of Arabs whereas Arabian literature is produced specifically in Arabia and Arabic literature is written in Arabic.

Analyst *judge, arbiter, umpire, referee arbitrary autocratic, *absolute, despotic, tyrannical, tyrannous Ana *dictatorial, authoritarian, magisterial, oracular: domineering, *masterful, imperious, peremptory, imperceptive Ant legitimate —Con *lawful, legal, licit arbitrate adjudicate, adjudge, *judge Ana mediate, intervene (see INTERPOSE) *decide, determine, settle; conciliate, placate, appease (see PACIFY) arbitror *judge, referee, arbiter, umpire arc *curve, arch, bow arcade 1 arcature, *colonnade, portico, peristyle 2 gallery, cloister, ambulatory, *passage, passageway arcane *mysterious, inscrutable Ana occult, esoteric, *recondite: cabalistic, anagogic, mystic, *mystical arcature arcade, *colonnade arc n *curve, bow, arc arch adj *saucy, pert Ana roguish, waggish, impish, mischievous, *playful mocking, deriding or derisive, twitting (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) archaeology *anthropology, ethnology archaic obsolete, antiquated, antique, *old, ancient, antediluvian, venerable Ant up-to-date —Con fresh, novel, *new, newfangled, new-fashioned, modern, modernistic: fashionable, modish (see STYLISH) architect *artist, artificer, artisan architectonic adj architectural (see under ARCHITECTURE) architectonics n *architecture architectural architectonic (see under ARCHITECTURE) architecture, architectonics and their corresponding adjectives architectural and architectonic are often indistinguishable, but they tend to diverge in emphasis. The nouns mean the science of planning and building structures (as churches, houses, bridges, and ships) that involve problems of artistic design, engineering, and adaptation to the ends in view. In general use architecture and hence architectural often suggest that artistry or beauty in design is the end and goal of the architect; in technical use they stress design as the result of attention to practical as well as artistic ends and imply that the profession is both a science and an art. Architectonics and its corresponding adjective architectonic place the emphasis on constructive skill; they suggest attention to the framework, skeleton, or supporting structure, sometimes without reference to the details necessary for the completion or elaboration of the structure; when one speaks of Chartres Cathedral as a triumph of architecture, he calls attention to its beauty of design and ornamentation; but when one speaks of it as a triumph of architectonics, he calls attention to it as a great work of engineering where the supporting parts of pillars, props, and ribs are united so as to form a single skeleton capable of carrying the enormous weight of stone roof and high towers yet permitting many windows in its enclosing walls. Architectonics and its adjective are far more common in extended use than architecture and architectural, for the latter seldom escape their suggestions of building with stone, wood, or steel. Architectonics and more especially architectonic, on the other hand, often are referable to a system of ideas or philosophy or to a work of art and especially to an epic or a poetic drama where there is not only perfect articulation of parts but their combination into an integral or organic whole *creative energy ... is . . . architectonic, and it imposes upon the lyric impulse an ordered sequence and an organic unity—arctic frigid, freezing, frosty, icy, gelid, glacial, *cold, chilly, cool

Ant torrid

ardent passionate, fervid, per fervid, fervent, *impassioned

Ana *intense, fierce: enthusiastic, zealous (see corresponding nouns at PAssion): *eager, avid, keen; glowing, flaming (see BLAZE vb)

Ant cool —Con *cold, frigid: composed, imperturbable, nonchalant (see COOL); dispassionate, impartial (see FAIR); apathetic, *impassive, phlegmatic

ardor fervor, enthusiasm, zeal, *passion

Ana excitement, stimulation, quickening, galvanizing (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE): eagerness, avidity (see corresponding adjectives at EAGER): zest, gusto (see TASTE)

Ant coolness: indifference —Con unconcernedness or unconcern, aloofness, detachment, uninterestedness, disinterestedness (see corresponding adjectives at INDifferent): listlessness, languidness or languor, lackadisicality (see corresponding adjectives at LANGUId)

arduous *hard, difficult

Ana laborious, toilsome (see corresponding nouns at WORK): exhausting, wearying or wearisome, tiring, fatiguing (see corresponding verbs at TIRE): *onerous, exacting, oppressive

Ant light, facile —Con *easy, simple, effortless, smooth area 1 Area, tract, region, zone, belt mean an extent of space especially of ground or surface that is distinguishable from its surroundings in appearance or in certain distinctive features. Area still carries its original implication of clearly marked bounds, but it may be used with reference to a space defined on a map or chart as well as to one the limits of which are actually visible (an oasis is a green or fertile area in a desert) (there are vast uncultivated areas even in the most populous of the states) (two colors—apricot and green, not intermingled but lying in solid areas of light and dark)—Cather

Tract, on the other hand, stresses extent rather than limits; it is therefore preferred to area in designating a space that might otherwise be described as an expanse or is thought of as widespread or far stretching and uniform in character (beyond the area of small farms lay larger tracts that were immensely productive—Anderson) (a tract of grass, furze and rushes, stretching away to the western horizon—Shaw) Tract is often used in an extended sense in reference to anything that has extent or duration (wide tracts of life—Day Lewis) (a large tract of unwritten history—T. S. Eliot)

Region suggests reference to some definite place or locality (as on the earth’s surface, in the atmosphere, or in the human body) distinguished from other localities by certain features or by being subject to a particular condition or influence (the upper region of the air) (the Finger Lakes region of central New York State) (what region of the brain is the seat of consciousness?)

Zone denotes an area or region that suggests a girdle or an encircling band especially on a map or chart (the torrid, arctic, and temperate zones) (parcel post zones) (the pelagic zone of the ocean) In broader use it is often applied to an area that forms a band or strip and is distinctly set off from its environs by some peculiarity of feature (the firing zone of a battlefield) (the business zones of a city) (that milky way which nightly as a circling zone thou seest powdered with stars—Milton)

Basically belt is a synonym of zone: distinctively, it implies an area characterized by the presence of some distinguishing natural feature (as a particular flora or mineral) (the corn belt of the U.S.) (a coal belt) In strict technical usage belt is applied to an area less extensive than a zone (a belt of conifers extending into the northern mixed forest zone)

Ana *locality, district: *expanses, stretch

2 extent, *size, dimensions, magnitude, volume

argot cant, jargon, slang, *dialect, lingo, vernacular, patois argue 1 debate, dispute, agitate, *discuss

Ana *prove, demonstrate: *disprove, refute, rebut, controvert: expostulate, protest, *object, demonstrate

2 bespeak, prove, attest, betoken, *indicate

Ana *show, manifest, evidence, demonstrate, evince: imply, *suggest, intimate argument 1 proof, *reason, ground

Ana proving, demonstrating or demonstration (see corresponding verbs at PROVE): disproving or disproof, refuting or refutation, rebutting or rebuttal (see corresponding verbs at DISPROVE)

2 Argument, dispute, controversy mean a vigorous and often heated discussion of a moot question. Argument usually stresses the appeal to the mind and the use of evidence and reasoning to support one’s claims; it implies the hope of each side to prove its case and to convince its opponents (if Winthrop had not by force of argument... obtained the lifting of duties from goods sent to England... the Boston colony would have been bankrupt—Replier) In informal use it may be indistinguishable from dispute (obeying orders without argument) Dispute fundamentally implies the contradiction of something maintained by another and therefore a challenge to argument (the decrees of a dictator are not subject to dispute) When applied to a verbal contention, dispute suggests not only a challenger and one challenged but an effort on the part of each to get the upper hand. Hence it often implies more or less anger or disturbance of the peace (a dispute begun in jest... is continued by the desire of conquest, till vanity kindles into rage, and opposition rankles into enmity—Johnson) (“You dislike an argument, and want to silence this,” “Perhaps I do. Arguments are too much like disputes”—Austen)

Controversy emphasizes a profound difference of opinion not so often between persons as between parties; the term is applied chiefly to debates over issues of importance or of widespread interest involving two or more religions, governments, schools of thought, or political parties and carried on mainly by writings addressed to the public or by speeches on public platforms (the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy) (when a thing ceases to be a subject of controversy, it ceases to be a subject of interest—Hazlitt)

Ana *argumentation, disputation, debate: controverting, refuting, rebutting (see DISPROVE): contention, dissonance (see DISCORD)

3 theme, *subject, matter, subject matter, topic, text, motive, motif, leitmotiv one's opponent and by defending one's own from his attacks. Disputation, however, is more often applied to a formal exercise common in medieval universities and still found in some modern universities in which a thesis is tested by the ability of its proponent or defender to sustain it in the face of severe critical attack; debate, to a two-sided contest between persons or teams which is governed by strict rules of procedure and in which the victory goes to the person or team regarded by the appointed judges as manifesting the greater ability. Forensic in its academic use is applied to an argumentative exercise intended to convince its readers or hearers; the word suggests emphasis on the qualities of successful legal argument such as the ability to marshal evidence, to make telling points, to persuade as well as to convince. Dialectic is a term more common among philosophers than in general or academic use. It is usually applied to a method of reasoning especially by weighing and resolving contradictory or juxtaposed arguments, the aim of which is to reach the truth by the correct application of the rules of logic, but is sometimes applied to argument or argumentation that merely observes what its writer believes to be the laws of reasoning (Newman's masterly English, and his competent, if not supreme, dialectic—Saintsbury)

Aristocracy

Aristocracy often refers to an ideally superior caste in rank just below the nobility but often having in its membership persons of equally high birth or breeding. County, however, carries a suggestion of an association of the family with the county or section and usually of ownership of an estate in the country (the gentry and the nobility were on friendliest terms) (the newcomers were slow in being accepted by the county) (the advantage claimed for this plan is that it provides us with a gentility that is, with a class of rich people able to cultivate themselves by an expensive education—Shaw) Elite is referable not to a social rank but to those members of any group or class who stand out as its flower or the ones most frequently sought after (the elite of the nobility) (few others of the mathematical elite—Darrow) When used without qualification elite usually means the group regarded as the highest, especially as judged by social or cultural standards (it is the business of the college to produce an elite—superior men—North American Review) Society is applied to that portion of a community which marks itself apart as a leisure class much given to formal entertainments, fashionable sports, and other pursuits characteristic of an active social life (society is now one polished horde, formed of two mighty tribes, the Bores and Bored—Byron) (there are only about four hundred people in New York Society—McAllister)

Aristocrat

Aristocrat, nobility, gentry, county, elite, society denote a body of persons who constitute a socially superior caste. Aristocracy often refers to an ideally superior caste and therefore does not invariably apply to a fixed or definite group of persons (there is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds of this are virtue and talents—Jefferson) Usually the term connotes superiority in birth, breeding, and social station and is applicable to all those persons generally recognized as first in family and in personal importance (he comes of the Brahmin caste of New England. This is the harmless, inoffensive, untitled aristocracy—Holmes) However, in countries where there is a privileged and titled class, the nobility, aristocracy is often used to designate the same group with this difference in implication: that nobility stresses rank inferior to that of royalty but superior to that of all other classes, and aristocracy stresses the possession of power over the people through ownership of land and through long-established and generally acknowledged superiority (the word cousin in the mouth or from the pen of a royalty signified a recognition of rank superior to nobility—Bellou) (the distinguishing characteristic of an aristocracy is the enjoyment of privileges which are not communicable to other citizens simply by anything they can themselves do to obtain them—Hallam) However, nobility in British use does not include titled commoners (as baronets and knights). These latter are thought of as members of the aristocracy. Gentry and a close synonym of ordnance in this latter sense, but it suggests actual warfare and therefore implies group service in the management of mounted firearms. It sometimes, like the broader sense of ordnance, comprehends also the mounts, ammunition, and other items essential to the work of the branch of an army dealing with the operation of heavy guns (called also the artillery). Ammunition, though once used as a general term nearly equal to munitions, is now restricted in its application to the projectiles used in warfare (as bullets, shells, grenades, or bombs) and their necessary propellants, detonators, fuses, and primers.

Armed

Arrive
- arrive
- arrive
- arrive

Army
- army
- army
- army
- army

Arson
- arson
- arson
- arson
- arson

Arrest
- arrest
- arrest
- arrest
- arrest

Arson
- arson
- arson
- arson
- arson

Arrangement
- arrangement
- arrangement
- arrangement
- arrangement

Armament
- armament
- armament
- armament
- armament

Arms
- arms
- arms
- arms
- arms

Armistice
- armistice
- armistice
- armistice
- armistice

Arrive
- arrive
- arrive
- arrive
- arrive
arrest

Ana seize, *take: *catch, capture: *imprison, incarcerate, jail

Con discharge, release, liberate, *free arrest n apprehension, detention, attachment (see under arrest vb)

Ana seizing or seizure, taking (see corresponding verbs at TAKE: capturing or capture, catching (see corresponding verbs at CATCH)

Con liberation, discharging or discharge, releasing or release (see corresponding verbs at FREE)

arresting striking, remarkable, *noticeable, outstanding, salient, signal, prominent, conspicuous

Ana impressive, *moving, touching, affecting, poignant: fascinating, attractive, enchanting (see under ATTRACT)

Con *common, ordinary, familiar: hackneyed, stereotyped, *trite arrival, advent denote in common the reaching of a destination. Arrival implies precedent travel or movement (<the arrival and departure of trains> <the morning of my arrival> Advent is sometimes applied to an important or even momentous arrival (look forward to the advent of the Messiah) Except when it connotes birth, it usually stresses appearance on the scene more than the coming or reaching of the end of a journey (life . . . with the advent of an attractive young woman took on acknowledged connotations of interest—Mary Austin)

Ana coming (see COME: appearing or appearance, emerging or emergence (see corresponding verbs at APPEAR)

Ant departure —Con going, leaving, withdrawing or withdrawal (see corresponding verbs at GO)

arrive *come

Ant depart —Con *go, leave, withdraw, retire

arrogant *proud, haughty, lordly, insolent, overbearing, supercilious, disdainful

Ana imperious, domineering, *masterful, peremptory, imperative: pretentious, ostentatious (see SHOWY)

Ant meek: unassuming —Con *humble, modest, lowly: yielding, submitting or submissive, deferring or deferential (see corresponding verbs at YIELD)

arrogate vB Arrogate, usurp, preempt, appropriate, confiscate mean to seize or assume something by more or less high-handed methods. Arrogate (commonly followed by to and a reflexive pronoun) implies an unwarranted and usually an insolent or presumptuous claim to something assumed, frequently to the exclusion of others (by arrogating to himself too much, he was in danger of losing that degree of estimation to which he was entitled—Johnson) (be arrogated to himself the right of deciding dogmatically what was orthodox doctrine—Macaulay) (the exploitation of the tourists was a monopoly which the most active of the children had arrogated by force and cunning to themselves—Huxley) Usurp stresses unlawful or wrongful intrusion of oneself into the place held by another (as through law, custom, or natural right) and the seizure for oneself of the territory, power, authority, prerogatives, or rights pertaining to such place (<usurp a throne> <the dictator usurped the powers not only of the king but of the parliament> <literature, or culture, tended with Arnold to usurp the place of religion—T. S. Eliot> Preempt implies beforehandness in taking something desired by others and keeping it in one's own possession. Historically it implies the right to purchase or acquire (as land or property) before others and often on more favorable terms: this implication is now sometimes found in discriminating figurative use (<prose has preempted a lion's share of the territory once held, either in sovereignty or on equal terms, by poetry—Lowes>) In current use it more often suggests arrogation or usurpation than lawful methods such as purchase (<when the townspeople arrived they found that the visitors had preempted all the parking places> <the best of the slogans suggested had already been preempted by a rival manufacturer> <in the game of bridge, to preempt is to make a bid aimed at shutting out shifts by the partner or bids by the opponents> Appropriate more often suggests conversion to one's own use than a setting apart for a particular or peculiar use. However, the latter implication is often retained (<congress appropriated three billion dollars for flood control>) It usually suggests an acquiring for oneself or an annexing sometimes by lawful but often by unscrupulous or even by unlawful means (<growing plants appropriate whatever elements they need from the soil and the air>  <if we could by any means appropriate to our use some of the extraordinarily digestive power that a boa constrictor has—Meredith>) Confiscate implies seizure (as of others' property or goods) through an exercício of authority; it does not, like appropriate, suggest conversion to the use of the one exercising authority; thus, one might note that the sheriff appropriated the liquor confiscated when the still was raided, if he took for his own use without authority what had been taken from another in a proper exercise of authority (<the teacher confiscated all packages of chewing gum> <if miners, or any other sort of workers, find that the local authorities will confiscate the incomes of the ratepayers to feed them when they are idle, their incentive to pay their way by their labor will be . . . perceptibly slackened—Shaw>)

Ana seize, *take, grab

Ant renounce: yield —Con *relinquish, surrender, cede, resign

arsenal *armory, magazine

art n 1 Art, skill, cunning, artifice, craft can mean the faculty of performing or executing expertly what is planned or devised. Art is not actually a comprehensive term but is so variable in its implications that it is interchangeable with any one of the others and capable of carrying its specific implications; hence the last four words are synonyms of art, but they are not always closely synonymous with each other and may even at times be used in distinction from each other. The earliest and still common implications of art are those which are now associated specifically with skill: technical knowledge, and proficiency or expertise in its exercise or practical application (<true ease in writing comes from art, not chance, as those move easiest who have learned to dance—Pope> <'tis hard to say, if greater want of skill appear in writing or in judging ill—Pope>) Both words are also used concretely with these implications (<there's a great art in doing these things properly. I have often had to carry off a man of fourteen stone, resting him all the time...> <able boys and girls will...> <successful ability, skill—Rusell>) Art also at times comes close to cunning where it adds to skill such implications as great or recondite knowledge, inventive or creative power, and capacity for perfection in execution. This sense prevails especially in the phrase "a work of art." Sometimes either word may be substituted for the other without change of meaning (<high ribbed vault... with perfect cunning framed—Wordsworth>) (<praised be the art whose subtle power could stay yon cloud, and fix it in that glorious shape—Wordsworth>) Art may be used interchangeably also with artifice (see also TRICK) when the latter stresses skill and intelligence in contriving, devising, or constructing, and suggests lack of creative power. In this sense both art and artifice in their emphasis

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
3 Art, science designate a branch of learning. Art as it is found in the phrases the liberal arts, bachelor of arts, master of arts refers to one of the fundamental branches of learning regarded as necessary to every educated person and serving as an instrument for his advancement in knowledge not only generally but specifically in his professional studies. In the Middle Ages the liberal arts were grammar, logic, rhetoric, arithmetic, geometry, music, and astronomy; with these as a foundation, a student was ready to proceed with his studies in philosophy, theology, law, or medicine. In modern times the liberal arts, as interpreted by various colleges giving arts degrees, may be the disciplinary or instrumental branches of learning as distinguished from those that are technical or professional in their character or may comprise the cultural arts, as distinguished from the vocational studies. Science was also used in the late Middle Ages and the Renaissance of a branch of learning. It had obvious relation to the palate, at the place where the tongue has, more specifically by the adjustment of the tongue with relation to the palate, at the place where the tongue has, for that sound, its maximum elevation <many foreigners use a / by the tip of the tongue against the GRATE)>

During the classical Latin period it was for Rome both an science and a science. It was not identical with a branch of learning as to a pursuit for which one is prepared by the study of an art or science; thus, questions arise as to whether architecture is an art or a science, that is (1) whether its essential demands of the architect are inventiveness, taste, and technical skill, or a knowledge of the principles of physics, engineering, and related sciences; (2) whether the end to be served is to give aesthetic pleasure or to produce something useful <rhetoric was for Rome both an art and a science. . . . It had obvious utilitarian value, and its materials were not only exact logical concepts, but the sonorous words and the noble rhythms which were the glory of their tongue—Buchan>

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
organized, systematized, methodized, ordered (see ORDER vb)

Con dissected, resolved, analyzed (see ANALYZE): separate, distinct, discrete

articulation 1 integration, concatenation (see under INTEGRATE vb)

Ana organization, systematizing, methodizing (see corresponding verbs at ORDER): system, organism, economy, scheme, complex

2 *joint, suture

artifact product, *work, production, opus

artifice 1 *art, cunning, craft, skill

Ana ingenuity or ingenuity, cleverness, adroitness (see corresponding adjectives at CLEVER): adeptness, proficiency, expertise (see corresponding adjectives at PROFICIENT)

2 *trick, ruse, wile, stratagem, maneuver, gambit, ploy, feint

Ana *deception, chicanery, chicane, trickery: *deceit, guile, duplicity, dissimulation

Con *mean, instrument, instrumentation, vehicle, channel: *device, contrivance: expedient, shift, makeshift (see RESOURCE)

artificer artisan, *artist, architect

Ana craftsman, handicraftsman, mechanic, workman (see WORKER)

artificial, factitious, synthetic, ersatz mean not brought into being by nature but by human art or effort or by some process of manufacture. They are not often interchangeable because of differences in some of their implications and in their range of application. Artificial is far more extensive in scope than the others. It may be applied to anything that is not produced by natural conditions but is in some sense a human creation (most of the inequalities in the existing world are artificial—Russell) (the family is a natural society, the state is an artificial society) in law a corporation or an institution that may be the subject of rights or duties is called an artificial person in distinction from a human being, who is a natural person. Artificial is also applicable to something produced by human effort that has its counterpart in nature (civilization may be said to have begun when the artificial heat and light of burning fuel were first used to supplement the natural heat and light of the sun) Artificial is applied also to things which imitate and sometimes serve the same purposes as something found in nature but which are of quite different origin and constitution and usually of inferior worth (artificial flowers of wax) (artificial jewels made from colored glass) Artificial is also applicable to persons or to their acts, utterances, and behavior; it then implies lack of naturalness or spontaneity and often connotes affectation, conventionality, or formalism (set him to write poetry, he is limited, artificial, and impotent; set him to write prose, he is free, natural, and effective—Arnold) (the strained artificial romanticism of Kotzebue's lugubrious dramas—Kruta) Factitious is applied largely to such intangible things as emotions, states of mind, situations, relations, reasons, which are not naturally caused or are not the product of real circumstances but are invented or worked up for one's own ends or purposes (create a factitious demand for shares of a stock) (the vogue was short-lived because factitious) (his trick of doing nothing with an air, his salon manners and society smile, were but skin-deep, factitious—Watson) (they stood for Parliament and played the game of politics upon factitious issues—H. G. Wells) Synthetic is applicable to an end product so far removed from its ultimate natural source that it has become a wholly different thing (synthetic perfumes originally dug from the ground as coal)

It is preferred to artificial when the noun modified denotes a class to which the thing in question actually belongs and it is free from the implication of inferiority that commonly clings to artificial; thus, artificial silk is not silk since it is woven from synthetic fibers which are fibers man-made from substances that are not themselves fibrous. To some degree differences in usage are purely idiomatic; thus, one ordinarily refers to synthetic rubber but artificial food coloring, synthetic fabrics but artificial flavoring. Ersatz is frequently used as a synonym of artificial or synthetic always, however, with the implication of use as a substitute; it is used chiefly with the name of a natural product (ersatz coffee) (ersatz butter) (ersatz wool) thereby implying imitation and inferiority and, often, suggesting a cheap or disagreeable origin (the search for ersatz... materials was unceasing. Sugar from sawdust; flour from potato meal; gasoline from wood and coal—Gunter)

Ana fabricated, manufactured, fashioned (see MAKE vb); simulated, feigned, counterfeited or counterfeit (see corresponding verbs at ASSUME)

Ant natural —Con genuine, veritable, bona fide, *authentic: *real, true, actual artillery ordnance, *armament, matériel, munitions, arms, ammunition artisan 1 artificer, *artist, architect

2 mechanic, workman, workingman, *worker, operative, craftsman, handicraftsman, hand, laborer, roustabout artist 1 *artist, *artificer, artisan, architect mean one who makes something beautiful or useful or both. In their wider senses the words are often confused. The earliest and the continuing implication of artist is skill or proficiency (see artist under EXPERT); it was formerly applied to anyone who made or did things requiring learning and skill; thus, a teacher, a philosopher, a physician, a scientist, an alchemist, or a craftsman was called an artist (the wise and fool, the artist and unread—Shak) (/I will give you more directions concerning fishing; for I would fain make you an artist—Walton) Gradually, however, the word has come to be associated with those whose aim is to produce something which gives aesthetic pleasure, first with musicians, dancers, actors, and later with poets, painters, and sculptors. The two ideas of skill and the aim to give pleasure were combined, so that since the early nineteenth century artist (when it does not mean specifically a painter) is usually applied to a gifted person who works in the fine arts and especially to one who reveals his skill, taste, and power to create beautiful things (of the faults of Scott as an artist it is not very necessary to speak—Chesteron) (the counsels of Marcus Aurelius... are more fit for a moralist than for an artist—Conrad) Artificer still retains its earliest meaning of one who makes something by means of art and skill. Originally it was applied especially to mechanics. In current use it suggests craftsmanship and is applied especially to those who work in some plastic material which responds to the exercise of skill, taste, and ingenuity in contrivance (a fine cook and artificer of strange English dishes—Bennett) (the teacher has been only one of the artificers in the making of this changing personality—H. Suzzallo) Artisan was formerly and is still sometimes applied to the practitioner of any art and especially an industrial art chiefly in distinction from an artist (the Germans... are better artisans than artists; better at handicrafts than at head craft—Cotgrave) This difference between artisan and artist widened as artist came to imply the power to create or produce beautiful things and became restricted in its application to a worker in the fine arts. In current use artisan is a general term almost equal to workman and names one engaged in a craft, a handicraft, or a trade; it comprehends in its range

Ana analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
all the skills often subsumed as skilled labor. In extended use it is still often contrasted with *artist, the latter now implying imaginative power and a passion for perfection, the former mere mechanical industry (free verse is not yet out of the experimental stage, and the artists who practice it have still the *artists in their own craft to reckon with —Lowes) Architect has never lost its basic implication of a master builder, though it has come to stress more the designing of something to be built than actual participation in its erection. Specifically it designates a person whose profession it is to plan buildings or structures in detail and to exercise supervision over their construction in order to see that the design is executed in every particular. In extended use the word usually implies the power to conceive a thing as a whole and in detail in advance of its coming into being as well as to control its execution. It is often applied specifically to God as the Creator. Although it comes close to *artist in its implications of imaginative power and constructive ability, it differs from the former in its greater emphasis upon design than upon execution <the poet is an artificer by profession, an architect experimenting with a variety of materials, concerned with ... new designs—Day Lewis> *artiste craftsman, workman (see WORKER): creator, *maker: *writer, composer, author

2 *artiste, virtuoso, *expert, adept, wizard

*artistic, aesthetic are often understood as equivalent terms, especially when used in such colloquations as the *artistic or aesthetic temperament; *artistic or aesthetic satisfaction; *artistic or aesthetic standards or values; for *artistic or aesthetic reasons. But *artistic may stress the point of view of the artist or of one who actually produces a work of art, who thinks in terms of technique, of the relationship of details to the design of the whole, or of the effects to be gained and who therefore regards beauty as a thing that results from his attention to these matters and that is his creation. By extension *artistic may imply also the point of view of one who studies or judges art objectively from the artist's angle. On the other hand aesthetic stresses the point of view of one who contemplates a finished work of art or beauty that exists and who thinks in terms of the effect it has upon him and especially of the sensations it stimulates and the feelings it excites. Strictly, the *artistic temperament shows itself in an urge to fashion or to express and to create out of materials, words, or sounds the beautiful thing that the artist designs or conceives: the aesthetic temperament shows itself in responsiveness to beauty wherever it is found, and by contrast, in aversion to that which is ugly. *Artistic satisfaction is the gratification that comes to one who can look at a work of art (his own or another's) and call it good: aesthetic satisfaction is the content that accompanies the enjoyment of beauty for its own sake and independently of all other considerations. For aesthetic, largely because of its connection with aesthetics, the branch of philosophy dealing with beauty, usually implies a distinction between that which is beautiful and that which is moral or useful or merely pleasing. *Artistic standards are therefore the tests of perfection in a work of art which artists and critics have accepted: aesthetic standards are the usually subjective criteria which have been set up by aestheticians or by the individual to enable him to distinguish the beautiful from the merely pleasing or gratifying. *artless natural, simple, ingenuous, naive, unsophisticated, unaffected

*An spontaneous, impulsive: candid, open, plain, *frank: straightforward, aboveboard, forthright

*Ant artful: affected —*Con *sly, cunning, wily, insidious: designing (see INTEND) as since, *because, for, inasmuch as

*ascend 1 *rise, arise, mount, soar, tower, rocket, levitate, surge

*Ana elevate, raise, rear, *lift: *advance, progress

*Ant descend

2 *Ascend, mount, climb, scale mean to move upward to or toward a summit. Ascend is the most colorless of these terms, for it implies little more than progressive upward movement <ascend a mountain> <the car rapidly ascended the steep grade> It may be specifically used of movement along a river in the direction of its source <the Amazon can be ascended by seagoing ships 2300 miles> Mount usually implies getting up on something above the level of the ground and is therefore preferred to *ascend in some collocations; thus, one *mounts or less commonly *ascends a platform or a scaffold but one may *ascend or *mount a throne while one invariably *mounts a horse. Climb usually suggests effort and ascent by the use of various means (as the hands and feet or gears or extra power) <climb a tree> <climb the social ladder> <to climb steep hills requires slow pace at first—Shak.> Scale adds to climb not only the suggestion of progression by steps but that of great difficulty; it is referable therefore to feats of climbing <scale a wall> (a ladder quaintly made of cords ... would serve to scale another Hero's tower—Shak.)

*Ant descend

*ascendancy *supremacy

*AnA dominance, predominance (see corresponding adjectives at DOMINANT): command, sway, domination, control, *power, authority: sovereignty (see under FREE adj)

*ascension, ascent denote the act of moving upward or the movement upward. Ascension may occur where there is no implication of effort or difficulty in rising, and where there is usually the suggestion of movement activated by some property in the thing which ascends (a balloon ascent) In religious use ascension refers specifically to the translation of the risen Jesus into heaven. *Ascent, on the other hand, is preferred when there is any implication of effort or of a human agent or operator (during their ascent of the mountain) (the scientists effected an ascent to the stratosphere) (her rapid ascent in the social scale) (make an ascent of three miles in an airplane)

*ascend *ascension

*ascertain determine, *discover, unearth, learn

*AnA inquire, query, interrogate, *ask: study, contemplate, weigh, *consider: observe, survey (see SEE)

*Con *conjecture, surmise, guess: presume, assume (see PRESUPPOSE)

*ascetic adj austere, *severe, stern

*AnA disciplined, trained, schooled (see TEACH): self-denying, self-abnegating (see corresponding nouns at RENUNCIATION): abstaining or abstinent, forbearing (see corresponding verbs at REFRAIN): abstemious (see corresponding noun at TEMPERANCE)

*Ant luxurious, voluptuous (see SENSUOUS) —*Con *sensuous, sensual, epicurean, sybaritic: dissolve, *abandoned

*ascetic n Asetic, mystic and their derivative nouns asceticism, mysticism though not true synonyms are not always clearly distinguished, partly because of overlapping implications but largely because the first two are often applicable to the same person. Historically many of the great mystics have been ascetics. But ascetic suggests an austere mode of life in which everything that does not contribute to or may interfere with the end in view (usually spiritual or sometimes intellectual perfection) is sacrificed, and certain acts (as fasting and mortification) are practiced not for their own sake but for their disciplinary effect especially in strengthening one's powers of contemplation. Mystic, on the other hand, suggests the possession of a power (as a high capacity for contemplation) or of an inner revelation, by means of which one overpasses the limits of human reason and by spiritual insight comes to a knowledge of that which is divine or supernatural. Ascetic and mystic, therefore, when applied to the same person, regard him from different points of view; the former implies that he practices austerities believed favorable to spiritual contemplation; the latter, that he has had the mystical experiences that are the end of contemplation. But the two terms do not necessarily imply each other; ascetic, even when applied to those who aim at spiritual perfection, does not connote attainment of mystical knowledge: mystic, on the other hand, does not in itself imply a connection with an ascetic life. Although asceticism and mysticism may denote doctrines or practices, their chief differences are apparent when they denote the theory upon which such doctrines and practices are based. Asceticism often designates the theory that abstinence from otherwise lawful acts or pleasures and the practice of austerities are conducive to spiritual and intellectual perfection; mysticism, the theory that immediate knowledge of God or ultimate reality is attainable through a faculty that transcends the reason and makes no use of ordinary human perceptive or ratiocinative powers (one is sometimes tempted to think that to approve mysticism is to preach asceticism. Certainly many mystics have been ascetic. But that has been the accident of their philosophy and not the essence of their religion—Ellis)

Ana anchorite, hermit, eremite, cenobite (see RECLUSE); monk, friar, nun, *religious

Ant bon vivant —Con *epicure, gourmet, gourmand, glutton: sensualist, voluptuary, sybarite (see corresponding adjectives at SENSUOUS)

asceticism mysticism (see under ASCETIC n)

ascribe, attribute, impute, assign, refer, credit, accredit, charge mean to lay something (creditable, discreditable, or neutral) to the account of a person or thing. The first four of these words are often used interchangeably without marked loss in precision, but they have distinctions in discriminating use. One ascribes to a person or thing something which is not outwardly apparent but which may be inferred or conjectured (as a motive, a feeling, an opinion, or a value) (whatever else might be in her head, it was ... neither love, nor romance, nor any of the emotions usually ascribed to the young—Sackville-West) Also, one ascribes something whose origin is unknown or disputed to its conjectured source, cause, or author (a poem formerly ascribed to Chaucer) (that conceit always ascribed to a lack of intelligence—Brownell) One attributes to a person or thing something (as a quality, a character, or a value) believed, usually on good grounds, to belong to it or to be appropriate to it, or something for which that person or thing is judged to be responsible or accountable (if he did anything virtuous it should only attributed to him; he should only accentuate his embarrassment—Mackenzie) (a combination ... might have attributed to it ... the character of a monopoly merely by virtue of its size—Justice Holmes) (the French had then given up their conventional trick of attributing Eleanor's acts to her want of morals—Henry Adams) One imputes when one so definitely ascribes something to a person or, less often, a thing that the ascription is impressed on that person or thing. For this reason impute commonly but not invariably implies accusation and, often, its resulting stigma (how dare you, sir, impute such monstrous intentions to me?—Shaw) One assigns something to a person or thing when one deliberately and often as a result of critical study places it in a class (as of values, things, or occurrences) (more than one rejoinder declared that the importance I here assigned to criticism was excessive—Arnold) (the temple of Baal Lebanon, which is assigned to the eleventh century B.C.—Clodd) Also, one assigns a reason for something when one definitely fixes or states the ground, excuse, or motive for that thing (it is impossible to assign any reason for his failure) Sometimes assign suggests allegation, but this connotation is usually derived from the context (whatever reason of discontent the farmers may assign, the true cause is this—Coleridge) One refers a thing or rarely a person to the class to which it belongs or to its origin when, after tracing it back, one assigns it to its proper category or to its ultimate cause or source (the aurora borealis is commonly referred to the class of electric phenomena) (I am convinced that at least one half of their bad manners may be referred to their education—Quiller-Couch) One credits someone with something or someone who ascribes the thing to some person or thing as its author, its agent, its source, or its explanation (people credited Moriaty's queerness of manner and Woody ways to the solitude—Kipling) (I am sure both parties credited them with too much idealism and too little plain horse sense—Rose Macaulay)

Sometimes credit suggests unwarranted belief (Aunty Rosa had credited him in the past with petty cunning and stratagem that had never entered into his head—Kipling) One accredits a person (rarely, a thing) with something (as a statement, an accomplishment, or a quality) or accredits something to a person when one accepts him as author, agent, or possessor (when a person stimulates us ... we accredit him with an attractive personality—Weaver) (savings accumulated in good times ... must doubtless be accrued with some expectation of future ... dividends—Hobson) (several Bangor houses have been credited to Bulfinch—Amer. Guide Series: Me.) Like credit, accredit is typically used of favorable attributions. One charges something on or upon a person or thing when one fixes the responsibility for a fault, crime, or evil on him or it (crimes as base as any treated on me?—Cowper) (the tyrannies ... charged upon the New England oligarchy—Parrington)

Ana attach, *fasten, affix: *conjecture, surmise, guess: allege, advance, *adduce, cite

ash, cinders, clinkers, embers mean the remains of combustible material after it has been destroyed by fire. Ash, especially as the plural ashes, implies perfect combustion and a powdery residue consisting only of incombustible and thoroughly disintegrated mineral or earthy substances (devices used to trap fly ash) (wood ashes are used as a fertilizer) (the house and its furnishings were reduced to ashes) Sometimes the singular ash suggests a solid mass, not yet disintegrated (the ash of a cigar) Cinders carries the implication of either incomplete combustion or incombusibility and is applied to a residue, usually of a coal fire, consisting of coarse particles which, if the combustion is incomplete, are capable of further burning (sift the ashes from the cinders) or which are the remains of incombusible impurities in the fuel and may also be called clinkers. Strictly, a cinder is a fused or vitrified stony mass such as is formed in burning impure coal or in smelting metals containing impurities, or is ejected from a volcano; thus, cinders composed mainly of small clinkers are often used for surfacing paths, driveways, and tracks for foottraces. Embers is applied to the still glowing or still smoldering remains of a fire just before it is reduced to ashes or cinders.

ashamed, mortified, chagrined mean acutely or manifestly ashamed, mortified, chagrined

|||
sometimes with a sense of guilt and always with the awareness of being discredited or disgraced by one's own or vicariously another's shameful or indecorous act, behavior, or situation (he sees that he has nothing to be ashamed of in you—rather everything to be proud of—Meredith) (suddenly Joe began to cry. He was ashamed and did not want his wife to see—Anderson) One is also ashamed who by anticipating such feelings is reluctant or unwilling to do something that seems shameful (what shall I do? for my lord takeeth away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed—Lk 16:3) One is mortified whose embarrassment and humiliation are mixed with a strong sense of being put in a false or disagreeable light and who suffers more because of loss of esteem or a hurt to his own pride than because of the shameful or indecorous character of the act, behavior, or situation; thus, one might say that the boy was not ashamed of his conduct (because he did not consider it wrong) but he was mortified when he was suspended from the team (because others viewed his conduct in a light that resulted in injury to his pride and position) (“Don’t spare him; let the university expel him! . . . Let Robert be ashamed, if you would save his soul alive!” . . . Robert was sullen and mortified, but, alas, not ashamed—Delany) One is chagrined whose embarrassment and humiliation are accompanied by vexation or annoyance (Tony, somewhat chagrined at his mistake, said he should like to see the other pictures—Archibald Marshall) (I was as much chagrined as they were flabbergasted by this involuntary outbreak—L. P. Smith)

Ana embarrassed, discomfited, abashed (see EMBARRASS); humiliated, humbled, abased (see ABASE); abject, *mean: *intelligent, clever, knowing, smart: *rational, reasonable

Ant proud —— Con vain, vainglorious (see under PRIDE); arrogant, overbearing (see PROUD)

ashen ashy, livid, pallid, wan, *pale

Ana ghastly, grim, macabre: blanched, bleached, decolonized (see WHITEN)

ashy ashen, livid, pallid, wan, *pale

Ana (see those at ASHEN)

asinine *simple, fatuous, silly, foolish

Ana stupid, crass, dumb, dense, dull, slow: puerile (see YOUTHFUL); irrational, unreasonable

Ant sensible, judicious — Con wise, sane, prudent, sapient, sage: intelligent, clever, knowing, smart: *rational, reasonable

ask 1 Ask, question, interrogate, query, inquire, catechize, quiz, examine mean to address a person in an attempt to elicit information. Ask is the general or colorless term for putting a question (ask and you will find) (ask the price of an article) (ask your brother if he will join us) (none of them understood how to ask the question which they were trying to answer—Ellis) Question usually suggests asking one question after another as in teaching or in searching out the ramifications of a topic (questions a suspect) (Socrates, interrogating his disciples to lecturing them) Interrogate stresses formal or systematic questioning (they examined many witnesses ... whom they interrogated, not only upon the express words of the statute, but upon all . . . collateral or presumptive circumstances—Burnet) Query usually strongly implies a desire for authoritative information or the resolution of a doubt (should not one query whether he had not those proofs in his hands antecedent to the cabinet?—Walpole) It is specifically so used by proofreaders (do not query a misspelled word in ordinary text . . . Never query style to the author—Manual of Style) Inquire has for its fundamental implication a search for the facts or the truth; only when it distinctly implies in addition to such an intention the asking of a question or questions does it come into comparison with the other words of this group (inquire the best route to New York City) (inquire when the public library would be open) (it was soon evident that this was the rudderless who had inquired for her—Hardy) Catechize adds to interrogate the suggestion of an aim to elicit a certain kind of answer. Often the answers expected are definite statements of doctrine already phrased in a catechism (a book supplying questions and answers concerning the doctrines of a church) Quiz implies an informal but often thoroughgoing interrogation (as of a class) to determine how well a series of lectures has been understood or (as of a murder suspect) to determine the facts of the case. Examine implies interrogation or catechizing for the purpose of drawing answers that indicate how much or how little a person knows (as from students when their fitness for promotion is to be decided, from candidates for a position when it is necessary to determine the extent of their preparation and the adequacy of their training, from those giving testimony in a trial, or when the lawyers on each side try to elicit information of value to their clients) (the students in this course are examined at the end of the year) (no candidate for a civil service position is considered until he has been examined with all other candidates and given a satisfactory rating) (it took the whole day to examine and to cross-examine the principal witness)

Con reply, *answer, respond, rejoi, retort

2 Ask, request, solicit mean to seek to obtain by making one's wants or desires known. Ask implies expectation of a response, often an affirmative response (I am going to ask a favor of you) (he asked the close attention of all his audience) (ask the citizens for their full cooperation) Request carries a suggestion of greater courtesy and formality in the manner of asking and is preferable to ask when one feels that what one wants may not be granted, whether for lack of power or means or from lack of interest on the other side or when one wishes to be exceedingly polite or ingratiating (request a loan) (request the presence of a person at a reception) (requesting an opportunity to present their opinions) Solicit (compare BEG) seldom implies earnest entreaty or urging; its most common suggestion is that of calling attention to one's wants and desires in the hope of having them satisfied; (a merchant solicitis trade by means of letters, or handbills, or advertisements in journals) (a magazine solicitis subscriptions when it sends an agent to interview possible subscribers)

Ana appeal, petition, plead, pray, sue (see under PRAYER): *address, accost

Con *get, obtain, acquire, secure: *decline, refuse, spurn: *deny, gainsay

Askance askew, *awry

Ana mistrustfully, distrustfully (see corresponding verbs at DISTRUST): enviously, jealously (see corresponding adjectives at ENVIOUS)

Ant straightforwardly, directly

Askew *awry, askance

Ana crookedly, obliquely (see corresponding adjectives at CROOKED)

Ant straight

Asocial *unsocial, antisocial, nonsocial

Ant social

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
aspect 1 look, appearance, semblance

Ant *face, countenance, visage: *bearing, mien, port, presence

1 *phase, side, facet, angle

Ant *angle, slant, point of view, viewpoint, standpoint

asperity *acrimony, acerbity

Ant sharpness, keenness (see corresponding adjectives at SHARP): causticity, mordancy (see corresponding adjectives at CAUSTIC): snappishness, waspishness, irritability (see corresponding adjectives at IRRITABLE)

Ant amenity —Con *courtesy, gallantry: suavity, urbanity, blandness (see corresponding adjectives at SUAVE)

asperse vb vilify, *malign, traduce, calumniate, slander, vb

Ant disparage, deprecate, derogate, detract, *decry: revile, vituperate (see SCOLD): defile (see CONTAMINATE)

Con *praise, extol, laud, acclaim, eulogize: *commend, applaud, compliment

aspersion reflection, *animadversion, stricture

Ant *libel, lampoon, pasquinade, squib, skit: *abuse, vituperation, invective, obloquy: *detraction, backbiting, calumny, slander, scandal

aspirate vb aim, goal, objective (see INTENTION): *desire, passion, lust

Ant crave, covet, *desire: *long, yearn, hunger, thirst, pine

Con *stoop, condescend, deign: grovel, *wallow asassin, cutthroat, gunman, bravo designate a murderer or one who can be hired to murder in cold blood. Assassin stresses secrecy and treachery in operation (like assassins, these destructive animals do their work in the dark). It is chiefly applied to murderers of important personages (tyrants always live in dread of assassins) (revolutions breed assassins) Cutthroat and gunman usually designate professional hired murderers. Cutthroat is chiefly literary or merely figurative because daggers and knives are no longer the weapons usually employed by such criminals, but the word still commonly suggests brutal methods of murder (I am a soldier, sir, and not a cutthroat —Froude). Gunman is used somewhat more broadly than the foregoing terms since it may denote not only one who murders with a firearm but one (as a gangster) who goes armed and is prepared to shoot to prevent interference with his criminal activities or at the orders of a leader or employer. Basically a bravo is a blustering unscrupulous ruffian or desperado (a few halfhearted callculls from young bravos of the opposing party—Barker). The word is especially applicable in an historical situation and commonly implies a venality sufficient to perform murder for hire (unfolds all of seventeenth-century Italy and its dramas—its predatory noblemen, its murderous bravos —Rolo) (the hired bravos who defend the tyrant's throne —Shelley)

Ant murderer, slayer, killer (see corresponding verbs at KILL) assassinate murder, *kill, slay, dispatch, execute assault n attack, onslaught, onset

Ant analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1

Ana assaying, bombarding or bombardment, storming or storm (see corresponding verbs at ATTACK): *invasion, incursion, raid

assault vb storm, *attack, bombard, assail

Ant smite, slug, *strike: *beat, pound, buffet, pummel

Con *resist, withstand, oppose, combat: *defend, protect, shield, guard

assay vb assess, evaluate, *estimate, appraise, value, rate

Ant *analyze, resolve: *calculate, compute, reckon: *prove, test, try, demonstrate assembly 1 assembly, collection, congregation, gathering (see under GATHER)

Ant *aggregate, aggregation: *crowd, throng, horde, crush, press

2 Assembly, assembly are not always interchangeable in concrete use. Assembly may be used freely in reference either to persons or to things (an assembly of farmers from every section of the state) (an assembly of the city's manufactured products for exhibition). It may imply a unit that is a collection of individuals of the same general kind or one that is a whole formed by the union of miscellaneous things (an assembly of logs) (an automobile is an assembly of various distinct parts). It may be applied to something that can be seen as a unit or whole or that can be conceived as such (we have just been picturing nature as an assembly of particles set in a framework of space and time—Jeans) Assembly, on the other hand, was until recently restricted in its application to a group of persons who gather together in a given place usually for the purpose of acting as a unit or of social enjoyment or, in a more specific sense, in order to serve as a deliberative or legislative body (the mayor decided to call an assembly of the citizens) (the New York State Assembly) There is a tendency to use assembly instead of assembly of a structure or machine and especially of part of a machine that is formed by the union of different parts (a hub assembly)

Ana (see those at ASSEMBLAGE 1)

assemble congregate, collect, *gather

Ant convene, convoke, muster (see SUMMON): combine, associate, unite (see JOIN)

Ant disperse —Con *scatter, dissipate, dispel: *distribute, dispense, divide, deal, dole assembly 1 assembly, congregation, gathering, collection (see under GATHER)

Ant *company, party, troop, band: *crowd, throng, crush, press

2 *assembly

Ana (see those at ASSEMBLAGE 1)

assent vb Assent, consent, accede, acquiesce, agree, subscribe and their corresponding nouns express in common the idea of concurrence with what someone else has stated or proposed. Assent implies primarily an act of the understanding and applies to opinions or propositions (one was convinced and believed and assented—Webster). Whatever is expressed with art—whether it be a lover's despair or a metaphysical theory—pierces the mind and compels assent and acceptance—Huxley) Consent involves the will or the feelings and indicates compliance with what is requested or desired; thus, a lady may assent to a gentleman's opinion on the weather, but if he makes a proposal of marriage she must either consent to or reject his offer (if a thing has been practiced for two hundred years by common consent, it will need a strong case for the Fourteenth Amendment to affect it—Justice Holmes) Neither assent nor consent necessarily implies approval (a parent may assent against his better judgment) Accede implies a yielding either of one's adherence (as to a cause) or of one's assent (as to a statement or proposal) (even if Americans once worked a revolution of which they are proud, we need not feel so bound by this fact that we demurely accede to every other revolution, regardless of its methods, purposes, and consequences—Yale Review> (Mr. Bennet could have no hesitation in acceding to the proposal before him—Austen) Acquiesce implies tacit acceptance or forbearance of opposition (no organism acquiesces in its own destruction—Mencken) Agree may or may not imply previous difference of opinion, but it very often carries an implication of this and also of previous discussion, negotiation, or attempts at persuasion (he reluctantly agreed that his son be allowed to choose his own college)—Post, my lord, to France; agree to any covenants—Shak.) Subscribe denotes assent but it implies in addition hearty approval; it seldom implies actually signing one’s name in token of assent, but it does connote a willingness to go on record (no one would subscribe at present to the Kantian doctrine, that mathematics derive their validity from their applicability to sensible experience—Alexander) assert 1 Assert, declare, profess, affirm, aver, protest, avouch, avow, predicate, warrant agree in meaning to state positively usually either in anticipation of denial or objection or in the face of it. Assert implies absence of doubt or assurance of the grounds for his statement or such confidence in his opinions as to make him indifferent to evidence (that rigid sect which asserts that all real science is precise measurement—Ellis) (Hobart . . . could talk; he could assert . . . but he couldn’t meet or answer arguments—Rose Macaulay) Declare and profess add to assert the implication of open or public statement and are often interchangeable. In precise usage declare is somewhat more formal and impersonal than profess which is especially suitable for conveying a personal or emotional involvement in what is under discussion; thus, a government declares war while a citizen professes complete trust in his government; a jury declares a man guilty but his mother professes continued belief in his innocence (they do not, for the most part . . . declare . . . that no war can ever be right—Inge) (he talked well, professed good opinions—Austen) Profess but not declare may carry a suggestion of insincerity (our princes of darkness . . . have become what they profess to scorn—angels of light—Sullivan) Affirm implies conviction of truth and willingness to stand by one’s statement because it is supported by evidence or one’s experience or faith (yet, with the evidence before us . . . we cannot affirm that this is the later play—T. S. Eliot) (politicians more often affirm their desire for retirement than show that they really mean it—Times Lit. Sup.) Aver suggests complete confidence and certainty of truth (for all averred, I had killed the bird—Coleridge) Protest stresses emphasis in affirmation, especially in the face of doubt or contradiction (I here protest, in sight of heaven . . . I am clear—Shak.) (he protested that, except Lady Catherine and her daughter, he had never seen a more elegant woman—Austen) Avouch usually imputes authority or personal knowledge to the maker of a positive statement (his own deposition) and Cardinal Wolsey averred that he had made it before them—Yonge) Avow implies open and emphatic declaration and personal responsibility for the statement (we affirm and avow that the very meanest translation of the Bible in English . . . containeth the word of God—Bible: Preface to A. V., 1611) Predicate, though occasionally used as a close synonym of the preceding words, usually implies the affirmation of something as a quality, a property, or a concomitant of something (logic works by predicating of the single instance what is true of all its kind—James) (to predicate of diabolic agencies, which are gifted with angelic intellects, the highly ridiculous activities which are so characteristic of poltergeist visitations—J. McCarthy) Warrant (see also justify) 3 carries a strong implication of assurance or positiveness, sometimes suggesting little or no fear that one will be doubted or contradicted, and at other times connoting one’s personal guarantee (I warrant that’s just what will happen) (I’ll warrant he’s as good a gentleman as any—Buchan) (as smooth as silk, I warrant ye—L’Estrange) (cheap-jacks who sell at dockyard gates a pill warranted to cure measles, toothache and rupture—Montague)

Ant deny: controvert —Con gainsay, contradict, negative, traverse, contravene (see Deny) * disprove, refute, rebut, confute

2 vindicate, justify, *maintain, defend

Ant proclaim, *declare, publish, advertise: express, voice, utter

assertive self-assertive, *aggressive, pushing, pushy, militant

2 positive, *affirmative: blatant, clamorous, Vociferous: cocksure, certain, *sure, positive: *confident, assured, sanguine, presumptuous

Ant retiring: acquiescent —Con *shy, bashful, diffident, modest; docile, *obedient, amenable, biddable

assess assay, appraise, value, evaluate, *estimate, rate

Ant calculate, compute, reckon

asset 1 (in plural form assets) *resources, means, *possessions, effects, belongings

Ant liabilities

2 *credit

Ant handicap

assiduous sedulous, diligent, industrious, *busy

Ant *indefatigable, tireless, untiring, unwearied

Ant desultory —Con *random, haphazard, casual, hit-or-miss, happy-go-lucky: *lazy, slothful, indolent, faineant: remiss, lax, slack (see neglect)

assign 1 *allot, allocate, apportion

Ant fix, *set, establish, settle: distribute, deal, dole, dispense

2 refer, *ascrIBE, attribute, impute, credit, accredited, charge

Ant attach, *fasten, affix: relate, link, associate (see Join): pigeonhole, classify (see assign)

3 *prescribe, define

Ant determine, settle, *decide: consign, relegate, *commit, entrust

assignment rendezvous, tryst, date, *engagement, appointment

assignment *task, duty, job, stint, chore

assimilate 1 *identify, incorporate, embody

Ant *change, alter, modify, vary: transform, metamorphose, transmute: blend, fuse, mingle, commingle, *mix

2 *absorb, imbibe

Ant engross, absorb, *monopolize: adopt, embrace, espouse: *infuse, imbue, ingrain, impute, inculcate, leaven

assistance *help, aid

Ant support, uphold, back, champion: profit, avail, *benefit: attend, *accompany, escort: cooperate, concur (see unit)

Ant hamper: impede —Con *hinder, obstruct, block: trammel, clog, fetter (see hamper): *prevent, forestall assistance help, aid (see under help vb) assistant

*Assistant, helper, coadjutor, aid, aide, aide-de-camp all denote persons who take over part of the duties of another, especially in a subordinate capacity. Assistant is applicable to a person who meets this description, regardless of the status of his work (a baker's assistant) (a bishop's assistant) (a superintendent's assistant) Helper often implies apprenticeship in a trade or the status of an unskilled laborer (a bricklayer's helper) (a mother's helper often performs the duties of a nursemaid). Coadjutor usually implies equivalence except in authority; it may be used either of a co-worker or a volunteer assistant (in working so complex a mechanism as the government of the empire he must have willing coadjutors—Buchan) (at St. James I met with a kind and cordial coadjutor in my biblical labors in the bookseller of the place—Borrow) (decided to share the government of the Roman world with a coadjutor—R. M. French) In a specific use it names or is applied to a bishop who serves as an assistant to the bishop having jurisdiction over a diocese. Especially in Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal use it implies the right of succession. Aid and aide are often interchangeable synonyms of assistant (a laboratory aid) (aides and orderlies . . . assist the professional nurses—Nursing World) Aide frequently but aid rarely denotes a special and often highly qualified assistant able to act as an adviser to his principal (questioned the use of presidial aides in foreign affairs) (with their chief aides they will discuss the problems of the interregnum—N. Y. Times) Aide and aide-de-camp designate a military or naval officer who personally attends a general or a sovereign, a president or a governor, often as an escort but sometimes with definitely prescribed duties.

associate

*Associate, companion, comrade, crony mean a person frequently found in the company of another. Associate is the general term, referable to anyone whose company one enjoys or tolerates more or less regularly and usually on terms of equality because of a business, social, fraternal, or similar connection or because of a community of interest or aims (a person is known by his associates) (his associates included all the prominent young men of the town) (he became a leader of fashion. Then, to the visible embarrassment of his young associates, he suddenly tired of it all—Day Lewis) Companion refers to a person who actually accompanies or attends one; a person who walks along the street with one or who sits with one at a restaurant table may be called a companion for the time being even if one has never seen him before and never sees him afterwards. However, the word often implies more habitual association and closer personal relationship than associate (his wife was his lifelong companion) (he no longer stood alone; the companions of his youth had become in the full sense his coadjutors—Buchan) (she was her darling brother, her beloved companion in adventure—Rose Macaulay). Sometimes the association is not the result of friendship or of relationship but of a business arrangement (the old lady sought a competent paid companion) Comrade implies association in a common calling or pursuit, and more or less familiarity in companionship (comrades in arms) (school comrades) Commonly it connotes more sentiment than either associate or companion, even though that sentiment is sometimes no more than a sense of shared fortunes or experiences, or a consciousness of having worked or played together (return to her . . . ? no, rather I abjure all roofs, and choose . . . to be a comrade with the wolf and owl—Shak) (which weep the comrade of my choice . . . the human-hearted man I loved—Tennyson) Crony is seldom used of a young person, though often applied to an older person who was an intimate friend in school days or with whom one has been on intimate terms for a very long time (an old crony of his turned up after a long absence from England) (the two old ladies are great cronies—Ana) *partner, colleague, ally, confederate: accomplice, abettor, accessory (see confederate): assistant, helper, coadjutor, aide.

assort

Antonyms: near antonyms are analogous words. See also explanatory notes facing page 1
the latter would seem too literary or too technical. Frequent, especially with out, sort implies culling or selection even more than arrangement. Re-sort and re-sorted his cargo, always finding a more necessary article for which a less necessary had to be discarded. Classify is more often used of things that fall into intellectual categories than of those which can be physically grouped. It usually implies a division into kinds or types and an arrangement for convenience in dealing with material that cannot be assembled or that is not before one. Pigeonhole suggests an arrangement of small compartments in a writing desk or of boxes in a post-office, each compartment being a receptacle for one group of letters or papers that are sorted or classified; it implies the ability to put each of a number of things in its right class or category. He pigeonholes the wild flowers he meets on a day's walk by assigning each to its proper classification or by being able to give it its proper specific or generic name. He pigeonholes every bit of information that comes to him by filing it away in his memory properly labeled and in its right place with relation to the rest of his knowledge.

Assorted miscellaneous, heterogeneous, motley, promiscuous

Assorted diverse, different, various, disparate, divergent: selected, picked, chosen, preferred (see Choose): mixed, mingled (see mix)

Assortment see corresponding adjective assorted at Miscellaneous

Assussage alleviate, relieve, mitigate, lighten, allay

Assumed affect, pretend, simulate, feign, counterfeit, sham meant to put on a false or deceptive appearance. Assume often implies a pardonable motive rather than an intent to deceive (it sometimes happens that by assuming an air of cheerfulness we become cheerful in reality—Cowper). To affect is to make a show of possessing or using something, usually for effect, but sometimes because of one's liking for it (accept plainness of speech). To affect a gesture, an opinion, a phrase, because it is the rage with a large number of persons—Hazlitt.

Assurance 1 certitude, certainty, conviction, assurance 2 self-assurance, confidence, self-confidence, self-possession, aplomb

Assured 1 assure, insure, ensure, secure 2 assure, insurance, insured 3 sure, sureness, assurance, assuredness

Assumed 1 assume, affect, pretend, simulate, feign, counterfeit, sham meant to put on a false or deceptive appearance

Astern abaft, aft

Astigmat after, hind, rear, back (see Posterior)

Astonish surprise, astound, amaze, flabbergast

Astound astonish, astound, amaze, flabbergast

Astray amiss

Astray amiss

At at

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
library> meet a friend at the library> sit on my right> (the town lies on the east coast)> he appointed regular meetings of the States of England twice a year in London> (an English king was crowned at Paris> Macaulay)> In is commonly employed before the names of countries or districts and at before names of institutions, public offices, or business houses> (in America> in the South)> Milton was educated at Christ’s College> (at the customhouse)> (at the jeweler’s)> With names of towns and cities the choice between in or at usually depends upon whether the place designated is felt respectively (1) as an including area or scene, especially with an implication of destination or permanence of occupancy, or (2) of having familiar associations for the speaker or (2) merely as a point (as along a journey or course) on a map or in space or at a remove from the speaker> (on our way to visit in Troy we lunched at Albany)> (after a stopover at Chicago, we arrived in Sioux Falls on Friday)> (a man born here in Zenith is consul at Hong Kong)> In giving a town address we say at 141 Wood Street in Springfield.> In giving the street without the number, in is preferred in Great Britain, in the United States.

2 At, in, on are clearly distinguishable when used to introduce a phrase giving the time of an action. When reference is to time by the clock or to a point of time registered by a clock, at is commonly used> (at two o’clock)> (promptly at the hour appointed)> (at three minutes to six)> When the reference is not to a point but to a period in the course of which an action occurs, in is the usual preposition> (at two o’clock in the afternoon)> (September 1st in the year 1939)> (in the month of May)> When the reference is to a particular day in the course of which something occurs, on is used> (on July fourth there will be a celebration)> (it happened on a Sunday)> On is sometimes used also with reference to a point of time with which there is, or should be, coincidence> (be here on the hour)> (he is always on the dot)

atavism *reversion, throwback atavistic reversionary (see under REVERSION)

atheist, agnostic, deist, freethinker, unbeliever, infidel designate a person who rejects some or all of the essential doctrines of religion and particularly the existence of God. An atheist is one who denies the existence of God; an agnostic is one who withholds belief (though he may not deny the possible existence of a supreme being) because he does not know and is unwilling to accept as proof the evidence of revelation and spiritual experience; a deist is one who rejects the conception of a supreme being as ruler and guide of men and the universe, but still believes in a god who is the creator and the final judge of men. Since deism implies a denial of revelation and supernaturalism, deist has often been used as though it were the equivalent of atheist. Freethinker suggests loss of faith and the rejection of any or all of the tenets of revealed religion in favor of what seems rational or credible. Unbeliever is more negative than freethinker, because it carries no implication of a substitute for faith. Infidel denotes one who is not a Christian or who opposes Christianity; it is used by Christians especially to designate monotheists (as Muslim) who do not subscribe to the Judeo-Christian concept of God and in such usage is distinguishable from heathen and pagan. From the Mohammedan point of view, especially as presented in English fiction and poetry, infidel often means a Christian.

ant theist

athirst avid, eager, keen, anxious, agog ana thirsting, hungering, pining, yearning, longing (see LONG vb); craving, coveting or covetous, desiring or desirous (see corresponding verbs at DESIRE) athwart crosswise, crossways, *across atmosphere 1 *air, ether, ozone

2 Atmosphere, feeling, feel, aura denote an intangible and usually unanalyzable quality or aggregate of qualities which gives something an individual and distinctly recognizable character. Atmosphere is used chiefly in reference to places, to groups of persons, or to periods of time that have a definite identity. It frequently denotes a character that accrues to something or that pervades it as a whole and determines the impression it produces on those who come within the range of its influence; thus, a place that has no atmosphere is by implication a place that leaves no clear impression of its difference from other places of the same type or kind; a poet who re-creates the atmosphere of the Middle Ages is one who by implication gives a true and vivid impression of the life of that time. Atmosphere may also denote an environment (regarded as a sum total of physical, social, intellectual, and spiritual conditions) that not only produces a distinct impression but exacts a definite influence (as on the state of mind, habits of work, or views) of those who are encompassed by it (genius can only breathe freely in an atmosphere of freedom—J. S. Milly) (any judge who has sat with juries knows that... they are extremely likely to be impregnated by the environing atmosphere—Justice Holmes) Feeling (see also FEELING, SENSATION) may refer either to the character one ascribes to something when one has a clear and unified impression of its distinctive qualities or atmosphere, or to the aesthetic effect of a work of art which not only represents a thing but re-creates its atmosphere or conveys the impression the artist seeks to produce (a collection of scenic wallpapers that... have a slight Japanese feeling—New Yorker) (they bring the notion of the thing described to the mind, they do not bring the feeling of it to the imagination—Arnold) Feel may be used interchangeably with feeling and also with atmosphere, especially when the quality of a thing is known through frequent experience or intimate knowledge (the factory had a homely feel—D. H. Lawrence) (the sensitive reader may discover in them, also, something of the quality and feel of Shakespeare's own poetry—Day Lewis) Aura is used chiefly in reference to persons who seem to be enveloped by an ethereal spirit which is an emanation of their inner life or of their secret thoughts; it is also used of things that are invested with a mysterious quality or character (in their company, he was always conscious of an aura of disapproval) (there was about her the aura, the glow, the roseate exhalation that surrounds the woman in love—Ferber) (throughout the Middle Ages the Taunus and the Harz had about them an aura of the uncanny as the last haunt of the primeval gods—Buchan)

Ana *quality, character, property: peculiarity, individuality, characteristic (see corresponding adjectives at CHARACTERISTIC): impression, impress atom 1 *particle, molecule, corpuscle 2 *particle, bit, mite, smidgen, jot, tittle, iota, wit

Ana smack, spice, dash, suspicion, soupçon, touch, suggestion, tincture,inge, shade atom expiate. Ana compensate, *pay: propitiate, conciliate, appease (see PACIFY) atonement expiation (see under EXPIATE)

Ana compensating or compensation, offsetting (see corresponding verbs at COMPENSATE): conciliation, propitiation, appeasement (see corresponding verbs at PACIFY): repARATION, amends

atrabilious hypochondriac, *melancholic, melancholy

Ana morose, glum, saturnine, crabbed, *sullen: *deponent, hopeless, forlorn: depressed, dejected, gloomy (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS)

Ant blithe —Con *merry, jocund, jovial, jolly: *glad, happy, cheerful, lighthearted, joyful, joyous atrocious heinous, monstrous, *outrageous

Ana *flagrant, gross, rank, glaring: nefarious, flagitious, infamous, iniquitous, *vicious: barbaric, savage, barbarous, *barbarian

Ant humane: noble (see MORAL) —Con righteous, virtuous (see MORAL) attachment 1 arrest, apprehend, detain

Ana seize, *take, grab: capture, *catch

Con release, discharge, deliver, *free

2 *fasten, affix, fix

Ana *join, link, unite, connect: annex, *add, append: *tie, bind

Ant detach —Con disengage (see DETACH): disencumber, disentangle, disembarrass (see EXTRICATE): sever, Sunder, divorce, part, *separate

attachment vb 1 arrest, apprehension, detention (see under ARREST vb)

2 Attachment, affection, love denote the feeling which animates a person who is genuinely fond of someone or something. Attachment and affection differ in that affection usually has for its object a sentient being, whereas that of attachment may be even an inanimate thing (an attachment to his profession) (feels a strong attachment to the house in which he lived) Attachment implies strong liking, devotion, or loyalty; affection, rather warmth and tenderness of sentiment (a profound attachment to the King as—Bello) (it cannot show lack of attachment to the principles of the Constitution that she thinks it can be improved—Justice Holmes) (widespread American affection for France—George) Affection and love differ in that affection implies a feeling more settled and regulated, less intense or ardent, than love, which alone of the three may connote passion. Thus to one's friends any one of the three terms may be applicable; to the members of one's own family, love or affection, but usually not attachment; to God, love (in the sense of reverent devotion), but not affection or attachment; to one's country, love, especially if ardent patriotism is implied, affection, if the emphasis is upon genuine but not blind devotion, attachment, if allegiance and loyalty are definitely connoted.

Ana fondness, devotedness (see corresponding adjectives at LOVING): devotion, piety, fealty, *fidelity, allegiance

Ant aversion —Con *antipathy: estrangement, alienation, disaffection (see corresponding verbs at ESTRANGE)

attack vb Attack, assail, bombard, storm are comparable not only in their military but also in their extended senses. All carry as their basic meaning to make a more or less violent onset upon. Attack originally connoted a fastening upon something as a beast of prey fastens upon its victim. It now implies aggression or aggressiveness in all its senses and usually the initiative in entering into an engagement or struggle (as with a person or thing that is assailed) (assail the enemy at dawn) (attached the position of his opponents in a debate) (attack a problem in engineering) (they lack the courage to attack their other studies with the requisite to success—Grandgent) (it had become increasingly apparent that the logical method of eradicating disease was to attack it at its source—Heiser) Assail suggests the action of one who would conquer by force of repeated blows rather than by brute strength. Its chief distinction from attack is in this suggestion of repetition of means (as blows, stokes, shots, or thrusts) of breaking down resistance (assail an enemy with shells) (assail with reproaches) (assailed by temptations) (property interests... assailed by attempts to put industry upon a more reasonable and more equitable footing—Hobson—(old pains keep on gnawing at your heart, old desires . . . old dreams, assailing you—Conrad) Attack implies close contact or a direct confrontation; in contrast with assail, it suggests the use of brute strength and an attempt to overpower by suddenness and violence of onslaught <assail a person with a club> <assail a stronghold on all sides> <while other aircraft assailed supply buildings—N. Y. Times>  Bombard literally means to assail continuously and devastatingly with bombs or shells <the advancing German army in 1914 expected to bombard Paris and bring a quick end to the war> It is, in its stronger implication of importunity or of continuous pester, distinguishable from assail <he bombarded Cicero with letters asking for advice—Buchan> <the reporters bombarded the district attorney with questions> Storm means to assault with the violence, rush, and effectiveness of a sudden and devastating storm or wind; it connotes an attempt to sweep from its path every obstacle to a victory <several of their bravest officers were shot down in the act of storming the fortress—Irving> <who think to storm the world by dint of merit—Burns>
Ana fight, *contend, battle, war: beset, overrun (see INFEST): *surprise, waylay, ambush Con *defend, shield, guard, protect: *resist, withstand, oppose, combat

attack

n 1 Attack, assault, onslaught, onset denote an attempt made on another or on others to injure, destroy, or defame. An attack may be upon the physical person or it may be upon the character, the reputation, or the writings of a person or persons; it often suggests animosity or definite enmity as its cause, but it may imply motives as various as wanton cruelty, partisan feeling, or a critical intention <the victim of a cowardly attack by hoodlums> <the speech was a severe attack upon the fairness of the administration> <the book was the object of attacks from all sides> <an unprovoked attack upon the fairness of the court>
Assault implies more violence, more malign or viciousness, and often the infliction of greater damage or less reparable damage than attack. However, an assault upon the person is legally an apparently violent attack or a willful offer with force or violence to injure or hurt that person physically. When the hurt has been inflicted, the precise legal term for the act is assault and battery. Rape is sometimes specifically called an assault. In military language an assault is sometimes distinguished from an attack upon the enemy, the former term being applied only to the last phase of an attack or offensive movement, when the aggressors close upon their opponents and the issue is determined. Usually assault and attack are not clearly distinguishable except in emphasis; thus, an assault upon a person’s character suggests violent emotion (as hatred or vindictiveness); an attack upon a person’s character need not imply strong feeling as its motive <the passage . . . shows how alarmed a Hegelian may be by an assault upon the authority of science—Inge>
Onslaught suggests a vigorous and destructive method of attack; it usually implies an attempt to overwhelm by force of momentum or of numbers or by the fury of the assault <the defenders, taken by surprise, were unable to repel the onslaught> <no play can withstand such an onslaught from the critics> <he sees I am no man to take rebuff. . . . quick to the onslaught, out sword, cut and thrust!—Brownie>
Sett is applicable chiefly to an attack which involves invasion or encroachment of provocation and a desire for conquest or domination. Aggression, which also implies initiation of hostile action, stresses rather a lack of provocation and a desire for conquest or domination. Attack is applicable to any movement or action in a series of operations; aggression is applied chiefly to a war or to a type of fighting that involves invasion or encroachment on another’s territory and usually further connotes a determination to maintain the advantage of the attacking side <pledged never to fight in a war of aggression> <the business of government is to check aggression only—Smith> <an aggressive war, as distinguished from mere plundering inroads—Freeman> Offense and offensive characterize the position or the methods of the attacking side. The noun is interchangeable with attack only when the latter word does not refer to a concrete action; thus, one may speak of methods of attack (or of offense) as contrasted with methods of defense but one would use “a war of offense” (rather than of attack) and “readiness for an attack” (rather than for an offense). Both words are distinguishable from aggression and aggressive, which in many ways they closely resemble, by their absence of suggestion of any motive or aim other than that of a desire for supremacy. Offensive implies vigorously aggressive action especially in war; thus, when taking the offensive one carries on offensive operations. Offensive may also denote a particular campaign or episode marked by such action <an economic offensive can often prevent the necessity for a more costly military defense—Draper> <to be offensive means to carry the war to the enemy. And this as well is the most effective sort of defense—Agelet>

3 *fit, access, accession, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion

attacking adj aggressive, offensive (see under ATTACK n)

attain vb accomplish, effect (see PERFORM)

attainment accomplishment, *acquirement, acquisition attaint vb taint, pollute, defile, *contaminate attempt vb Attempt, try, endeavor, essay, strive, struggle as verbs mean to make an effort to do something that may or may not be successful and as nouns (the single exception in form being striving) mean the effort made to accomplish such an end. Attempt implies an actual beginning of or venturing upon something that one hopes to accomplish or carry through and often suggests failure <formed a plan and yet made no attempt to execute it> <the troops were driven back when they attempted to break through the enemy’s line> <after many attempts to construct a flying machine the Wright brothers succeeded> <nothing

Ana analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
attempt, nothing gained. (here Shakespeare tackled a problem which proved too much for him. Why he attempted it at all is an insoluble puzzle—T. S. Eliot)

Try is often thought of as a simpler equivalent of attempt; in discriminating use, however, the two terms are distinguishable by subtle differences in meaning. Try seldom loses the implication of effort or experiment directed toward the end of ascertaining a fact or of testing or proving a thing. This implication is especially apparent in some idiomatic phrases; thus, one tries a window by attempting to open it so as to find out if it is fastened; one tries one's hand at something by attempting to do something new to test one's ability or aptitude; one tries one's luck with the horses by betting on horse races in the hope of proving one's luck. Try is the word of choice when effort or experiment or testing are stressed rather than a venturing upon or undertaking (try to find which of two methods is the better) make a try at solving the problem; succeed at the first try; freedom in thought, the liberty to try and err, the right to be his own man—Mencken Endeavor heightens the implication of exertion and should be avoided as too strong when likelihood of success is implied. It often connotes a striving to fulfill a duty or obey a sense of fitness (she walked up and down the room endeavoring to compose herself—Austen) The Good, which is the goal of all moral endeavor—Inge (in Arnold's phrase the first step for every aspirant to culture is to endeavor to see things as they are). to "learn short, the will of God—Eliot) we all endeavor, as Spinoza says, to persist in our own being; and that endeavor is, he adds, the very essence of our existence—L. P. Smith) Essay implies that the thing to be accomplished is especially difficult; otherwise it combines the foremost implications of attempt (that is, making a beginning) by suggesting a tentative effort and of try (that is, experiment) by suggesting the testing of a thing's feasibility sculpture which attempted to unite repose and action, the "far off" and the familiar, in a way which Phidias and Donatello were too prudent to essay—Brownell) conventions frequently take their rise . . . from the faulty essays of an early and as yet undeveloped technique—Lowes) The last terms of this group, strive and struggle, not only carry heightened implications of difficulty and of correspondingly greater exertion, but also connotes greater opposition to be overcome. Strive and struggling suggest persistent endeavor to surmount obstacles created by one's weaknesses, one's lack of experience, the height of one's ambitions, or the power of resisting forces (to strive to overcome a bad habit) to strive to reach the top of his class) to strive to come out of the filth, the flies, the poverty—Anderson) to lack, to care of oneself and toiled of vainly striving—James) (the bitter, desperate striving unto death of the oppressed race—Rose Macaulay) Struggle literally and figuratively implies straining or stretching that suggests a tussle, a wrestling, or an effort to extricate oneself from what impedes or fetters (struggled to free himself from his attackers) to struggle to reach the shore) So strong at times is this implication that the word loses or nearly loses its implication of endeavor (the clambered over half-visible rocks, fell over prostrate trees, sank into deep holes and struggled out—Catholic) to struggle between two strong-willed women to control one weak-willed man is the usual motive of the French drama in the nineteenth century—Henry Adams}

Ana begin, commence, start, initiate, inaugurate
Ant succeed —Con accomplish, achieve, effect, fulfill, execute, *perform: attain, compass, *reach, gain attempt n endeavor, essay, try, striving, struggle (see under attempt vb)

Attest 1 witness, *certify, vouch

Attend 1 *tend, mind, watch

Ante nurse, foster, nurture, cherish: supervise, oversee (see corresponding nouns at oversight)

Attention 1 Attention, study, concentration, application can mean the direct focusing of the mind on something, especially on something to be learned, worked out, or dealt with. Attention is applicable to the faculty or power as well as to the act *noises that distract one's attention) if we had to think about breathing or digesting . . . we should have no attention to spare for anything else—Shaw) every awareness is the simple form of attention—Alexander Since the word carries no inherent implications about the power or the act or of the length of the latter's duration, it usually requires qualifying words or phrases *close attention) trained habits of attention) a few moments' attention) Study stresses continuity and closeness of attention; it usually also implies an aim such as the acquisition of knowledge, or the analysis of something that is complex or confusing, or the working out of a plan (as for action) or of a design (as for a book) the president said that he would not comment upon the proposal until he had given it further study) (of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh—Eccles 12:12) Concentration emphasizes the centering of the attention on one thing to the exclusion of everything else *amazing powers of concentration) the learning to read poetry takes as much patience and concentration as the learning to write it—Day Lewis) Application usually implies persistence in fixing one's attention, and diligence and assiduity in the performance of all that is required; it suggests therefore a virtue won by effort and sheer force of will rather than (as with concentration) a power that has its origin in one's temperament or is the result of profound interest to application for ever so short a time kills me—Lamb) her application to her studies in school—Anderson
Ana diligence, assiduity, seduluousness, industriousness (see corresponding adjectives at busy)
Ant inattentive —Con preoccupation, abstraction, absence-mindedness (see corresponding adjectives at abstracted)

2 *courtesy, gallantry, amenity

Ana courting or court, wooing (see corresponding verbs at invite): deference, homage, *honor, reverence: solicitude (see care)

Con neglect, *negligence: indifference, aloofness, unconcernedness or unconcern (see corresponding adjectives at indifferent) rudeness, discourtesy or discourtesy, impoliteness (see corresponding adjectives at rude)
_attentive *thoughtful, considerate

Ana courteous, polite, gallant, chivalrous, *civil: solicitous, concerned (see under care) n)

Ant inattentive: neglectful —Con indifferent, unconcerned, aloof: *negligent, remiss: heedless, thoughtless, *careless

Attenuate vb *thin, rarely, dilute, extenuate

Ana *weaken, sap: reduce, lessen (see decrease): dissipate (see scatter): contract, shrink, constrict, deflate

Ant enlarge: dilate: enrich—Con expand, amplify, swell, distend, inflate: *increase, augment

Attest 1 witness, *certify, vouch

Ana *confirm, corroborate, substantiate, verify

Con *disprove, controvert, refute, confute: deny, con-attract, charm, fascinate, enchant, allure, vb
*posture, pose
*agent, deputy, proxy, factor attire, vb
*clothe, apparel, array, dress, robe *clothes, clothing, apparel, raiment, dress attitude 1 *posture, pose Ana *mien, *bearing, port, presence, demeanor
2 *position, stand
Ana *point of view, angle, slant, viewpoint, standpoint:
bias, prepossession, prejudice, *predilection attorney 1 *agent, deputy, proxy, factor Ana *substitute, supply, alternate 2 *lawyer, solicitor, counselor, barrister, counsel, advocate attract vb Attract, allure, charm, fascinate, bewitch, enchant, captivate mean to draw another by exerting an irresistible or compelling influence over him. The same distinctions in implications and connotations are observable in the adjectival forms of these words, attractive, alluring, charming, fascinating, bewitching, enchanting, captivating. Attract always implies a drawing of one thing to another either because of qualities or properties in the agent or because of an affinity in the one attracted for which it draws it or a susceptibility to its influence  <positive electricity attracts negative>   When used in reference to persons of different sexes, it suggests the arousing of strong admiration or the awakening of love or desire in the person attracted <talking, in that beautiful voice which made everything she said sound like a caress, to Papa, who had been to attract rather against his will—Woolf> Allure implies not only attraction but enticement by something that is fair, pleasing, or seductive. It may, like lure, suggest enticement into evil or danger <ancient fables of men allured by beautiful forms and melodious voices to destruction—Hudson> More often the stress is on the overcoming of resistance or indifference by the use of winning methods (as delicate flattery or the enhancement of feminine appeal) or by the bait of a pleasant prospect <an alluring advertisement of a summer resort> <she did not naturally attract men, but she became accomplished in alluring them> <the prospect of an interesting, vivid life allures many young women to the big cities> <young children should rather be allured to learning by gentleness and love, than compelled to learning by beating and fear—Ascham> Charm implies a power in the agent to cast a spell over and so dominate the person or thing affected <only his daughter had the power of charming this black brooding from his mind—Dickens> In its commonest use charm implies a power to evoke or attract admiration, but it usually heightens that implication by retaining the suggestion of casting a spell over the senses or over the mind <there was a grace about him which charmed, and a hint of latent power which impressed—Buchan> <Cyril, having taken a fancy to his brilliant aunt, had tried to charm her as he seldom or never tried to charm his mother—Bennett> Fascinate, like charm, implies the casting of a spell, but it usually suggests the ineffectiveness of resistance or helplessness to escape from the one that fascinates <the younger and weaker man was fascinated and helpless before the creeping approach of so monstrous a wrath—G. D. Brown> <personality . . . so fascinating that . . . it would absorb my whole nature, my whole soul, my very art itself—Wilde> Bewitch and enchant likewise imply the exertion of a magical influence; the former, in its literal sense, suggesting witchcraft, and the latter, sorcery but these implications are often either exceedingly weak or actually lost. Bewitch, in its commonest sense, implies the exertion of a power of fascination that causes another to succumb to one's charms or allurements and to be under one's domination. Enchant, on the other hand, usually suggests a power to evoke joy or rapture or ecstatic admiration in the person fascinated <enchanted by the girl's beauty> <bewitched by her charms> <heavens grant that Warwick's words bewitch him not—Shak> <Sophia enjoyed the intimacy with Constance. As for Constance, she was enchanted—Bennett> Captivate is the weakest of these words in its suggestion of an irresistible influence or attraction. It implies a captivating of the fancy or feelings and a holding them in thrall for the time being, but it carries no suggestion of prolonged influence or of enslavement <the child captivates everyone with his sunny smile> <just the hero to captivate a romantic girl—Irving> Ana *invite, solicit, court: entice, *lure, tempt, seduce: *catch, capture Ant repel —Con *offend, affront, outrage, insult attraction, affinity, sympathy are comparable when they denote the relationship between persons or things that are involuntarily or naturally drawn together and exert, to some degree, an influence over each other. Attraction implies the possession by one person or thing of qualities with the power to draw another person or thing so that the latter moves toward the former or, in the case of things, is brought into contact with it or clings to it. Attraction also implies the existence in the thing attracted of susceptibility to the influence of what attracts; in the case of persons it may be a natural inclination for, a predisposition to, or an innate liking of what attracts or, in the case of things, a tendency to unite or combine with the attractant. This natural or constitutional susceptibility is called affinity. Therefore affinity is the complement of attraction and not its synonym; thus, attraction is a force whereby a magnet draws iron to it, but iron is one of the few metals that have an affinity for the magnet; chemistry has a powerful attraction for minds that have an affinity for it <the too yearns as they do for something unattained by him. What an affinity for Christianity had this persecutor of the Christians!—Arnold> The words are interchangeable only when used of persons and things that are mutually attracted or have a reciprocal affinity for each other; even in these cases, however, the fundamental distinction in meaning prevails; thus, two persons may have an attraction (or an affinity) for each other; atoms remain in combination in a substance because of their affinity or attraction for each other. It is not by chance that in physics, the science concerned with energy, attraction is the word used in reference to atomic cohesion and that in chemistry, the science concerned with the composition of substances, affinity is the technical term. Sympathy stresses not so much the drawing together of persons or things as their reciprocal influence or their susceptibility to the same influences. When used in reference to things, it commonly implies interaction <the tides rise and fall in sympathy with the moon> <there is close sympathy between the heart and the lungs> When used in reference to persons, sympathy usually connotes spiritual affinity, or compatibility in tastes, interests, or aims <union of hearts, not hands, does marriage make, and sympathy of mind keeps love awake—Hill> attractive alluring, charming, fascinating, bewitching, enchanting, captivating (see under attract)
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
sovereign

authortary autarchy, autonomy, independence, freedom, sovereignty (see under FREE adj)

authentic, genuine, veritable, bona fide denote being exactly what the thing in question is said to be or professes to be. The prevailing sense of authentic is authoritative or trustworthy with the implication of actuality or accordance with fact (confirmed both by legend and authentic record—Froude) (an authentic description of the Great Fire of London). The prevailing sense of genuine is real or true (see real) often with the implication of descent without admixture from an original stock or of correspondence without adulteration to the natural or original product called by that name (a genuine maple syrup) (a genuine Russian wolfhound) (this is real merino, the genuine article). Often the stress is on sincerity or lack of factitiousness (genuine piety) (true simplicity and genuine pathos—Wordsworth) Both terms are used—true, *real, actual

authoritarian, oracular (see DICTATORIAL): •reliant, despotic, autocratic, arbitrary, tyrannical, tyrannic

authorize, commission, accredit, license denote in common to invest with power or the right to act. One authorizes a person to act for oneself when he is given the necessary legal right or power with or without instructions of a specific character. Often discretionary powers are implied (authorize a friend to make an answer to an attack on one's character) (our clerks are authorized to receive contributions for the Red Cross). One commissions a person when one not only authorizes but instructs him to perform a definite duty or office (I am commissioned to make you an offer which I have told him . . . you would not accept—Gray). Commission may imply appointment as one's business agent (as in buying, selling, or supplying goods) or it may suggest an order to do a certain kind of work, especially work of a professional or artistic nature (commissioned an artist to paint his children's portraits). One accredits a person when one sends him, invested with authority and possessed of the proper credentials, as a representative, delegate, or ambassador (John Hay was accredited to the Court of St. James's) (the sovereign to whom I am accredited—Motley). One licenses a person or a business, a trade, or a craft when one grants formal legal permission to act in a certain capacity or to carry on a particular business, trade, or craft (license a teacher) (license medical school graduates to practice medicine) (a licensed dental laboratory). License sometimes stresses permission so strongly that the implication of authorization is obscured and that of regulation substituted (license beggars) (license a restaurant to sell liquor)

ana empower, *enable: permit, allow, *let

con enjoin, *forbid, prohibit, interdict

autobiography memoir, life, *biography, confessions

authochtonous indigenous, *native, aboriginal, endemic

ant naturalized

con foreign, alien, extraneous, *extrinsic

autocratic arbitrary, *absolute, despotic, tyrannical, tyrannous

ana *dictatorial, magisterial: authoritarian, *totalitarian: *masterful, domineering, imperious: overbearing, arrogant (see PROUD)

con yielding, deferring, submitting, capitulating (see YIELD vb): tolerant, lenient, * forbearing, indulgent

automatic adj 1 Automatic, spontaneous are not close synonyms but they agree in meaning brought into being or action by an internal as opposed to an external agency. Automatic was originally used to describe a thing that was self-acting or self-activated because it contained the principle of motion within itself (in the universe, nothing can be said to be automatic—Davy). Now it is applied more often to machines and mechanical contrivances which, after certain conditions have been fulfilled, continue to operate indefinitely without human supervision or until the conditions have materially changed; thus, an automatic firearm is so constructed that after the first round is exploded the force of the recoil or gas pressure loads and fires round after round until the ammunition is exhausted or the trigger is released; a thermostat is an automatic device which maintains the temperature of artificially heated rooms by operating the appropriate part of a furnace when the temperature exceeds or falls below the point at which it is set. Spontaneous (see also spontaneous) applies not so much to objective things as to processes, particularly natural processes, thought of as originating without external agency or without human agency; thus, spontaneous generation implies origin of living directly from nonliving matter; spontaneous combustion implies a generation of heat through chemical changes in matter causing it to burn; a spontaneous growth
...
average

performances by this total. Such an average may be expressed as a percentage or a permillage and gives a fair estimate of a player's performance and a basis for comparison with others; thus, a baseball first baseman who handles a total of 1114 chances and makes 6 errors has a fielding average of .9946 (that is, 1108/1114); a baseball batter who is credited with 605 appearances at bat and has made 201 hits has a batting average of .332 (that is, 201/605). A similar method is used in estimating probabilities (as the chances of death for a person between given ages and the length of the period between recurrences of an unpredictable phenomenon); thus, the average of mortality for persons of a given age is computed from statistics of deaths at that age and of the population group consisting of persons of that age. Average also may be applied to a concept of what is the typical or ordinary person or thing of its kind (see also average, under medium) <the boy is above the average for his age and background> <the play is below the season's average in dramatic interest> Mean originally and still in certain idioms named a condition, quality, intensity, or rate that is midway between two extremes (observe a happy mean between abjectness and arrogance or between effusiveness and reserve) <he that holds fast the golden mean, and lives contentedly between the little and the great—Cowper> In its mathematical use mean is more general than average (for which another name is arithmetical mean); it covers also the geometric mean, that is, the square root of the product of two numbers or quantities (or the nth root of the product of n quantities); thus, 10 is the arithmetical mean or average of 4, 16; while 8 is the geometric mean of 4, 16. Median refers to a midway point in position; in statistics it names the figure or quantity which represents the point at which there are as many instances below as there are above it; thus, the average of a group of 5 workers earning respectively 6, 8, 10, 16, and 20 dollars a day is 12 dollars a day, whereas the median for the same group is 10 dollars, because one half of them earn less than 10 dollars a day and one half more. Norm suggests a rule for guidance or a definite pattern to be followed: it also denotes especially in such fields as psychology and sociology, an average, whether mathematically computed or estimated, of performance or achievement of a group, class, or category that can be set up as a standard for or a minimum of accomplishment by a similar larger group, class, or category; thus, a course of study for a particular school grade is based upon a norm determined by the performance of children of the age, experience, and background commonly found in that grade (crime is merely a name for the most obvious, extreme, and directly dangerous forms of . . . departure from the norm in manners and customs—Ellis) <it is everything to have acquired and to possess such a norm of Poetry within us that we know whether or not what he wrote was Poetry—Quiller-Couch> Par usually refers to an average for an individual that is like the norm for a group. It often refers to an individual person's average in health, accomplishment, or performance (I feel below par (that is, below my average in health) today) (this theme is above par for that student) In British use par may be employed in reference to an average in amount (<the par of crop production for this farm>) Ant maximum (or minimum) average adj 1 mean, median, par (see under AVERAGE n) 2 middling, *medium, indifferent, fair, moderate, mediocre, second-rate

Ant *minimum

average n

Ant analogous word

average adj, n

antonyms

award n

con defined word

award vb

Ant antonym

award n

Ant contrasted word

award award

Ant see also explanatory notes facing page 1 bounty

aware, cognizant, conscious, sensible, alive, awake mean having knowledge of something, especially of something that for some reason is not obvious or apparent to all. One is aware of something through information or through one's own vigilance in observing or in drawing inferences from what one sees, hears, or feels {few, so far as I am aware, now claim the free speech to call a knave a knave—T. S. Eliot} {would not . . . have been worthy of his reputation had he not been aware . . . of the existence of this League. Journalists have to be aware of such things—Rose Macaulay} {Americans were becoming aware that American destiny can be pursued only in a world framework—Lerner} One who is cognizant of something has had it called to his attention or has become aware of it through his own powers of observation: in careful use the word common implies firsthand or certain knowledge {he is not, as yet, fully cognizant of the facts} {through the servants, or from other means, he had made himself cognizant of the projected elopement—Trollope} One is conscious of something that he sees, hears, feels, or apprehends when he allows it to enter his mind so that he recognizes its existence or fixes his attention on it; thus, one may or may not be conscious of his heartbeat or of someone passing through the room {he stood there motionless and in wonder, dimly conscious that Hallward was speaking to him—Wilde} {to be happy or miserable without being conscious of it seems to me utterly inconsistent and impossible—Locke} {lifelong short-sightedness . . . of which he has never ceased to be conscious—Ellis} One is sensible of something who through intuitive feeling or a rational perception realizes its existence {she was disturbing him extremely . . . but he was much too sensible of her goodwill to wound her feelings by telling her so—Mackenzie} {even he was sensible of the decorous atmosphere—Joyce} One who is alive to something is acutely susceptible to its influence or sensible of its existence {the Spring finds thee not less lovely to her sweet force than yonder upstarts—Cowper} {they were fully alive to the danger of thwarting Barbara—Galsworthy} One who is awake to something is aroused to it or on the alert for developments {the country is not awake to the potential evils of a strict censorship} Ana *sure, certain, positive: informed, acquainted, apprised (see INFORM) Ant unaware —Con *insensible, insensitive, impas- sive, anesthetic; *ignorant awe n fear, *reverence Ana respect, esteem, *regard; *wonder, wondertainment, admiration Can contempt, scorn, disdain, despite (see under DIS- SPISE): insolence, superciliousness, arrogance (see corre- sponding adjectives at PROUD) awful *fearful, dreadful, frightful, terrible, horrible, shocking, appalling, terrific, horrific Ana impressive, *moving: solemn, *serious, grave: im- posing, august, majestic (see GRAND): sublime, superb, *splendid: *ominous, portentous awkward, clumsy, maladroit, inept, gauche mean not adapted by constitution or character to act, operate, or achieve the intended or desired ends with ease, fitness, or grace. Awkward and clumsy are by far the widest of these terms in their range of application. Awkward often involves the idea of unfitness for easy handling or dexterous management. It may suggest unhandiness or inconvenience {an awkward tool} {awkward arrangement of controls} It may suggest embarrassment or discomfiture {an awk- ward situation} {an awkward silence} {an awkward meet- ing} {how earnestly did she then wish that her former opinions had been more reasonable, her expressions more moderate! It would have spared her from explanations . . . which it was exceedingly awkward to give—Austen} When applied to persons, their build, their movements, or their manners, awkward usually implies a lack of ease or grace and often suggests inadequate muscular coordi- nation or deficiency in poise; thus, an awkward gait implies lack of muscular control; an awkward greeting implies want of tact or address {an awkward dancer} {sitting in silence, felt awkward; but I was too shy to break into any of the groups that seemed absorbed in their own affairs—Maugham} {his manners were awkward and unconciliatory—Buchan} Clumsy stresses stiffness or heaviness with consequent want of flexibility or dexterity and is often applied to something so constructed or con- trived as to be lumbering or ponderous {a boy of clumsy build} {a bear is the most clumsy of animals} {a clumsy narrative style} {clumsy boots} {when a great writer . . . creates a speech of his own which is too clumsy to be flexible and too heavy to be intimate—Ellis} {a great play in spite of . . . the clumsy machinery of the plot—T. S. Eliot} Often, and especially when applied to persons and their acts, it implies a lack of expertise or adroitness in manipulation often with a suggestion of bungling {the clumsy attempts of governments or other social bodies to interfere . . . will only make matters worse—Hobson} {he was a clumsy dissector because of his injury—H. G. Wells} Maladroit and inept imply awkwardness or clumsiness in managing whatever requires mental or social dexterity and are applicable only to persons and their acts or utterances. Maladroit implies a lack of tact or of skill in avoiding difficult situations in human intercourse and is often opposed to political or diplomatic in their extended senses {a maladroit reply to a letter} {a mala- droit remark} {it was more correct to “break” a piece of bad news to a person by means of a (possibly maladroit and unfeeling) messenger—Thackeray} Inept stresses inappropriateness or lack of aptness especially in a per- son’s acts or utterances; often, in addition, it carries a suggestion of futility or absurdity; thus, a remark may be inept because it is so out of keeping with the topic under discussion as to seem pointless and also maladroit if it gives an awkward turn to the conversation {the conviction that the British were everywhere so inept that they de- served to lose—Abend} {one of the most often encoun- tered weaknesses in the trial of criminal cases is the inept and unconvinging testimony of the law enforcement officer—Paul Wilson} {the sharp-eyed and penetrating critic for whom . . . this extraordinary and extraordinarily inept society has in fancied security unwittingly been waiting—Brownell} Gauche suggests a lack of social graces that makes for clumsiness or ineptness: it may imply also shy- ness, inexperience, or ill breeding {this journey . . . tends to reduce my shy, taciturn, and somewhat gauche manner—G. G. Scott} Ana *stiff, wooden, rigid: embarrassing, discomfiting, discor- recting (see EMBARRASS) Ant handy, deft: graceful —Con adroit, *dexterous: skillful, adept, *proficient; *easy, simple, facile, effortless awry, askew, askance mean deviating from a straight line or direction. They may all imply divergence from what is straight or straightforward, direct, symmetrical, or orderly, but they are seldom applicable to the same things. Awry carries a strong implication of disorderliness, of disarrange- ment, or of confusion {the blinds all hang awry} {every- thing in the kitchen was awry} {their plans went awry} Askew stresses crookedness or distortion. It implies that the thing so described is set at a wrong angle, is twisted out of its proper position, or goes off in the wrong direction 〈every chair in this room is askew〉 〈since the hurricane many of the trees are askew〉 〈the seam in the front of your skirt runs askew〉 Askance is used chiefly in the set phrases "to look, or eye, or view askance" which all mean to observe or examine with mistrust, suspicion, disfavor, jealousy, or disapproval 〈aside the Devil turned for envy; yet with jealous leer malign eyed them askance 〈Milton〉 〈both . . . were viewed askance by authority 〈Gladstone〉

axiom *principle, fundamental, law, theorem

background

babble vb gabble, jabber, pratle, chatter, patter, prate, gibber, gab, *chat Ana *gossip, blab, tattle: converse, talk, *speak babel hubbub, clamor, racket, *din, uproar, hullabaloo, pandemonium Ana clamorousness or clamor, vociferousness (see corresponding adjectives at VOCIFEROUS): *confusion, disorder Con stillness, quietness or quiet, silence or silence, noiselessness (see corresponding adjectives at STILL) baby vb mollycoddle, humor, pamper, *indulge, spoil bacillus bacterium, virus, *germ, microbe back n *spine, backbone, vertebrae, chine back adj *posterior, rear, hind, hinder, after Ant front back vb 1 *support, uphold, champion, advocate Ana assist, aid, *help: favor, accommodate, *oblige: abet (see INCITE)
Con *weaken, undermine, disable, cripple; subvert, upset (see OVERTURN): oppose, *resist, combat, fight
2 retrograde, *recede, retreat, retract Con *advance, progress
backbiting n *detraction, slander, scandal, calumny Ana aspersion, *animadversion, reflection, stricture: *abuse, inventive, obloquy, vituperation: vilifying or vili-fication, defaming or defamation (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN) Ant vindication (see corresponding verb at MAINTAIN) —Con *compliment, flattery, advertisement: praising or praise, eulogizing or eulogy, extolling (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE)
backbone 1 back, *spine, vertebrae, chine 2 grit, guts, sand, *fortitude, pluck Ana *courage, resolution, tenacity, mettle, spirit: courrageousness, intrepidity, dauntlessness, valiancy (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE): nerve, *temerity, hardihood Ant spinelessness backdrop *background, setting, milieu, mise-en-scène environment
backer *sponsor, surety, guarantor, patron, angel background, setting, environment, milieu, mise-en-scène. backdrop are comparable when they refer to persons and their actions as found in real life or as represented in art and denote the place, time, circumstances, and conditions in which those persons live or carry on their activities. However they vary widely in their derivations and are not always interchangeable. Background refers primarily to a dramatic performance and to the back and usually dimly lighted part of the stage as distinguished from the better-lighted foreground where the main action usually takes place; it may be used similarly of pictorial art to denote that part of a picture which seems most remote from the spectator and against which the figures or principal objects represented seem to be projected 〈many of the Renaissance painters preferred a natural background, such as mountain peaks and blue sky, others preferred an architectural background, such as a group of buildings or an interior〉 In its common extended use the term is often widened in scope to include the whole aspect of the environment of something (as an historical event, a movement, a career, or a phase of a person's or a people's development) that is capable of being seen in perspective and that may be viewed as antecedent, causal, or intimately related to the fundamental quality of what it envelops 〈to know a person well one needs to know his background〉 〈students of English literature must have as background a knowledge of English history〉 〈landscape is treated as an accessory to human life and a background to human events—Binyon〉 Setting also derives its basic implications from the arts, originally from the jewelers' art, where the term is used of the framework of precious metal in which a gem is mounted, and later from the dramaticists' art, where it is used of the framework (as scenic paintings and furniture) which indicates to the spectator the surroundings in which the action of a play takes place. Hence setting is preferred to background as a designation of the element in a novel, a play, or other literary representation of human life which is distinguished from the plot and the characters and which is the author's imaginative reconstruction of the time, place, and conditions in which his characters live and act. When used in reference to real life, setting commonly connotes the standpoint of one who looks at human beings and their activities as though they were dramatic or literary representations 〈what a social setting it was, that little world into which Mark Twain was born! It was drab, it was tragic—Brooks〉 Environment basically denotes the surroundings and especially the natural surroundings (as of a town, a body of water, or an individual) 〈relaxed . . . in a cozy environment of apple-green furniture and art linoleum—Punch〉 When relating to a person or a living being environment commonly suggests not only natural surroundings but any or all external factors (as social or economic conditions, nutrient supply, or crowding) that are important in the physical, mental, and moral development of the species or the individual or as formative influences 〈the environment which produced Jonathan Edwards and Cotton Mather—Brownell〉 When the formative influences in a person's development are the result of heredity or nature, background is the preferred term; when they are the product of his surroundings or his nurture, environment is the more likely choice: thus, one may say that, although it is impossible to change a child's background, he may turn out well if brought up in a different environment. Milieu carries none of the scientific implications of environment, yet it also means surroundings and is used chiefly in refercence to the physical and social surroundings of a person or group of persons. It is preferred to environment when there is the intent to evoke a clear picture or to suggest the specific character or atmosphere of such surroundings; it may be used in reference to imagined as well as to actual backslide vb relapse, *lapse Ana revert, *return: deteriorate, degenerate, decline (see corresponding nouns at DETERIORATION): recede, retreat, retrograde backslider *renegade, apostate, recreant, turncoat backsliding n relapse, lapse (see under Lapse vb) Ana retrogressiveness or retrogression, retrogradation (see corresponding adjectives at BACKWARD): abandoning, deserting, forsaking (see ABANDON) backward, retrograde, retrogressive, regressive all involve the idea of not moving or going ahead, or forward, or in advance. Only when applied to motion or a movement does backward imply the reverse of forward motion (a backward thrust of a hand) (the backward swimming of a crayfish) Its commonest implication is failure to move ahead; in this sense it is chiefly applied to human beings who do not or cannot progress or develop with others of their age, kind, or class or to persons or things that hold back or are held back from doing what is normal or to be expected; thus, a child who is unable to keep up with others of his age in school because of some degree of mental deficiency is described as backward; a person who holds back from expressing his appreciation, or in urging his candidacy for a position, because of shyness or self-distrust is also describable as backward; when cold weather and frosts delay the development of vegetation beyond the normal or usual time, the season may be called backward (England, throughout the middle ages, was one of the backward countries of Europe: it was on the outskirts of the great continental civilization—Mumford) Retrograde is not only applicable to backward motion and backward movement but also to any moving or seemingly moving thing that proceeds in a direction which is contrary to the direction usually followed by things of its kind (retrograde motion of a wheel) (a retrograde planet seemingly moving from east to west) It is also applicable to a process (as of natural development) in which the events occur in an order contrary to the usual or progressive; thus, an animal that passes from a more complex to a simpler and often degenerate state during development is said to manifest retrograde development. Retrograde when applied to races, cultures, institutions, or movements differs from backward in implying decline or degeneration; thus, a backward society is one that does not progress, while a retrograde society is one that is relapsing into barbarism or sinking into an inferior state. Retrogressive implies opposition to progressive. Like retrograde, and unlike backward, it implies movement in the direction that is the reverse of forward; unlike retrograde, however, it is seldom applied to physical movement; thus, one speaks of a retrograde (but not a retrogressive) movement or rotation, but one might speak of retrogressive (or retrograde) cruelties or behavior when stressing decline from some higher or more progressive level. Retrogressive is sometimes preferred as a milder term when the reverse of improvement or betterment rather than positive decline from an improved or better state is implied (a retrogressive policy) (objections were made to the proposed legislation on the ground of its probable retrogressive effect) Regressive carries a stronger implication of going backward by steps or degrees and often, also, a weaker implication of failure to progress or move ahead than any of the others. Consequently it is often the preferred term when a colorless or uncolored statement of fact is intended; thus, when one infers a cause from an effect or a principle from a number of facts he follows a regressive process of reasoning; the process of growing old may be described as a retrograde development when the emphasis is on its backward direction, as a retrogressive development when the stress is on the absence of progress, and a regressive development when the intent is to indicate that it is marked by an inversion of order in its stages; a regressive loss of memory implies that the most recent memories disappear first and the earliest linger longest. Ana laggard, dilatory, *slow: *stupid, slow, dull, dense: * lethargic, sluggish: *abnormal, atypical Ant advanced —Con civilized, cultured (see corresponding nouns at CIVILIZATION): cultivated, cultured, refined (see corresponding nouns at CULTURE): educated, instructed (see TEACH) bactericidal adj germicidal, antiseptic, disinfectant (see under ANTISEPTIC n) bactericide germicide, *antiseptic, disinfectant bacterium *germ, microbe, bacillus, virus bad 1 Bad, evil, ill, wicked, naughty are comparable when they mean not meeting with the approval of the ethical consciousness. Bad is a very general term and applies to anyone or anything reprehensible, for whatever reason and to whatever degree (almost as bad, good mother, as kill a king, and marry with his brother—Shak) (Johnnie's been a bad boy today: he's emptied the cookie jar) (bad dog! you've torn up my scarf) Evil is a stronger term than bad and usually suggests the sinister or baleful as well as the reprehensible (evil deeds) (the evil eye) (he knew nothing bad about him, but he felt something evil—Cather) (an evil and treacherous folk, and they lied and murdered for gold—Morris) (the evil counselors who . . . abused his youth—J. R. Green) III is close to evil in basic meaning and may suggest an active malevolence or vicious intent (an ill deed) (it was ill counsel had misled the girl—Tennyson) Often ill may be used in a weaker sense to suggest the imputing or implying of evil or sometimes of mere objectionableness or inferiority to someone or something (held in ill repute by his fellows) (attached an ill significance to the statement) (had an ill opinion of their abilities) Wicked implies the actual often conscious or deliberate contravention or violation of moral law (God is angry with the wicked every day—Ps 7:11) (wicked designs) It is sometimes used with weakened, even playful force (you are the wickedest wifty person I know—Lyttton) Naughty was once serious (a most vile flagitious man, a sorry and naughty governor as could be—Barrow) but is now trivial in its application. Mostly it implies mischievousness on the part of a child too young to have a lively sense of right and wrong. <Charles never was a naughty boy. He never robbed birds' nests, or smoked behind the barn, or played marbles on Sunday—Deland> Sometimes it expresses charitable censure of a person of responsible age who has done wrong <it was only one naughty woman out of the world. The clergyman of the parish didn't refuse to give her decent burial—Meredith> Often it is applied to what is impolite, impudent, or amusingly risqué <the still popular, and still naughty, and perpetually profane Decameron—Higher>

Ana iniquitous, *vicious, villainous: *base, low, vile: *immoral, un moral, amoral

Ant good —Con righteous, virtuous, *moral, ethical, noble

2 Bad, poor, wrong are comparable when they mean not implying up to a standard of what is satisfactory. Bad implies a failure to meet one's approval; it need not imply positive condemnation, but it always suggests that the thing so described falls below the mark or is not up to what one would call good <he is a bad correspondent> <her handwriting is very bad> <it's a bad day for a long walk> It often and implies positive harmfulness  <bad food for the young>   <it is bad for her to live alone> Sometimes it suggests corruption or pollution <this meat is bad> <bad air> <bad water> Often also it may suggest unpleasantness in any degree, in this sense ranging from the merely displeasing to the strongly offensive or painful or distressing <it leaves a bad taste in the mouth> <have bad news> <he always comforted himself when things were bad by thinking how much worse they might have been> Poor also implies a failure to reach a satisfactory point or level, but it usually imputes to the thing so described a deficiency in amount or in returns or a lack of a quality or qualities essential to excellence; thus, a poor crop is one that is relatively scanty; poor land is wanting in fertility, while bad land lacks the potentiality for agricultural development; a poor book may be devoid of interest or artistic quality, but a bad book is commonly offensive to one's sense of propriety; a poor carpenter is one lacking in skill <business was poor this year>

Wrong (see also FALSE) implies a failure to conform to a strict standard; it suggests deviation from a standard of what is satisfactory or, more specifically, fit, appropriate, proper, or orderly <I know that something is wrong with this suit> <do not make a wrong choice in selecting your profession> <hang a picture in the wrong light> <there is nothing wrong in this arrangement of the furniture>

Ant good —Con excellent, perfect, meritorious (see corresponding verbs at BANTER): *fun, game, jest, sport

badlands waste, desert, wilderness

baffle balk, circumvent, outwit, foil, thwart, *frustrate

Ana *puzzle, mystify, confound, dumbfound: discomfit, rattle, faze, *embarrass, disconcert: *confuse, addle, muddle: *hammer, fettet, hog-tie: *hinder, impede, obstruct, block

bag n Bag, sack, pouch denote a container made of a flexible material (as paper, cloth, or leather) and open or opening at the top. Bag is the widest in its range of application and is referable to anything that comes under this general description and is used to hold something <money bag> <travelling bag> <paper bag> <saddlebag> <mail-bag> Sack is usually more restricted in its application than bag: within these limits, however, the terms are interchangeable. Sack commonly suggests oblong shape, a coarse material and, often, crude workmanship <gunny-sack> <paper sack> <flour sack> It is probably more often used than bag when it refers to containers and their contents <deliver 1000 sacks of grain> <sacks of potatoes> <sell coal by the sack> Pouch is applied chiefly to a small bag carried on the person or in the hand and used as a substitute for a pocket; it often specifically designates a bag that is opened or closed by means of a gathering string, zipper, or flap <tobacco pouch> <pouch for bullets> <pouch-shaped handbag> <mail pouch>

bag vb capture, trap, snare, entrap, ensnare, *catch

bail n bond, security, *guarantee, guaranty

bail vb *dip, ladle, scoop, spoon, dish

ball n province, domain, territory, *field, sphere

bait vb Bait, badger, heckle, hector, chivvy, hound, ride mean to persist in tormenting or harassing another. Bait derives its implications from its basic reference to the action of dogs set on to bite and worry an animal (as a chained bear, boar, or bull). Both in this and in extended use it suggests wanton cruelty or malicious delight in persecution <the diversion of baiting an author has the sanction of all ages—Johnson> Badger is more specific than bait. Basically it suggests the baiting of a badger that has been trapped in a hole or barrel and can neither escape nor adequately defend itself from attack; in reference to persons it implies pestering or persecuting that drives the victim into a hopelessly confused or frenzied state of mind <badger a witness being cross-examined> <the mill foreman so taunted the workers, so badgered them and told them that they dared not quit—Sinclair Lewis> Heckle implies persistent questioning of a speaker (as a candidate for election, a legislator discussing a bill before the house, or a person advocating or condemning a movement or cause) and an attempt to bring out his weaknesses or to destroy the effect of his argument. It suggests an intent to harass and confuse a speaker by frequent interruptions and by inconvenient or embarrassing questions <the advocates of any unpopular cause must learn to endure heckling> <infuriates some of his fellow Justices by heckling lawyers who appear before the Court—Sat. Review> Hector always carries a suggestion of bullying and implies a spirit-breaking scolding or maddeningly domineering treatment <we are not to be hectored, and bullied, and beat into compliance—Fielding> they had hard times when they were little . . . and were hectorcd and worried when they ought to have been taking some comfort—Stowe> Chivy and hound both stress relentless chasing and pursuing. Chivy, however, often also suggests teasing or annoying past the endurance of the victim <having seen two successive wives of the delicate poet chivied and worried into their graves—Conrad> Hound implies persistent and long-continued persecution till the tormentor's end is achieved or the victim acknowledges himself defeated (he was hounded by reporters until he made his stand known) (grandfather had been hounded out of his congregation because he couldn’t hold her to their standards of behavior for a minister’s wife—Mary Austin).

Ride implies persistent goading or spurring (as by unfair criticism, ridicule, or onerous impositions) (a hard taskmaster rides those who serve him) (he was ridden so hard by the coach that he was no longer fit to remain on the team).

Ana *worry, annoy, harass, harry; torment, rack, torture, try, *afflict.

bait n * lure, snare, trap, decoy.

Ana allurement, attraction (see corresponding verbs at ATTRACT): enticement, temptation (see corresponding verbs at LURE).

bake parch, * dry, desiccate, dehydrate.

balance n 1 Balance, equilibrium, equipoise, poise, tension are comparable when denoting the stability or efficiency resulting from the equalization or exact adjustment of opposing forces. Balance suggests a steadiness that results when no part are properly adjusted to each other, when no one part or constituting force outweighs or is out of proportion to another (kept her balance on the icy street) (keeping his emotional balance under stress) (the balance between civilian and military needs—Collier’s Yr. Bk.) (establish an acceptable balance between satisfactions and frustrations—Kardiner) (I doubt that Thoreau would be thrown off balance by the fantastic sights and sounds of the 20th century—E. B. White). Equilibrium may be interchangeable with balance (retain physical and emotional equilibrium under stress) but is more often restricted to a mechanically produced or producible property deriving from a thing’s construction, support, or relation to external forces and then often suggests a tendency to return to an original position after disturbance (a ship’s equilibrium) (an equilibrium of opposing human impulses—Sinclair Lewis) (establishing an equilibrium between the Western forces and a possible aggressor—Current History) (a fundamental lack of equilibrium between different aspects of the constitutional distribution of power—R. M. Dawson). Equipoise suggests perfection of balance or stability of equilibrium (to maintain … equipoise among contending interests—Butterfield) (the structure remains upright, a marvel of equipoise—Norman Douglas) (the equipoise of intellectual and pietistic interests in him—H. O. Taylor). Poise denotes an equality of opposing or different things or forces and often implies a state or an appearance of perfect balance or serenity especially of mind (the condition of a poise between widely divergent impulses and emotions that produces a strange serenity—Leavis) (the main characteristic of their blond gray-eyed colleague is quiet poise that stands her in good stead in the exciting, high-pressure work—Newsweek). Tension in this relation implies strain, either a pull from both ends or an outward pressure in every direction, of such equality that there results a tautness without undue strain at any point; applied to a mental condition it implies an inner balanced vital opposition of moral or intellectual forces, powers, or qualities (indolent as he was on all occasions which required tension of the mind, he was active and persevering in bodily exercise—Macaulay) (the whole tension of Gide’s work is characterized in those sentences: the incessant dialectic of a man who knows no peace but the precarious equilibrium of opposites—Times Lit. Sup.) (in letting the whole physical system lose tone, for lack of the tension which gaiety imparts—Brownell).

3 *remainder, rest, residue, residuum, leaving, remnant, remains.

balance vb 1 counterpoise, counterbalance, *compensate, countervail, offset.

2 poise, ballast, trim, *stabilize, steady.

Con * overturn, upset, capsize.

bald * bare, barren, naked, nude.

Ana austere, *severe: unembellished, unadorned, unornamented (see affirmative verbs at ADORN): colorless, uncolored.

Con * ornate, florid.

balderdash * nonsense, twaddle, drivel, bunk, poppycock, gobbledegook, trash, rot, bull.

bale n * bundle, package, pack, parcel, bunch, packet.

baleful maleficient, malefic, malignant, *sinister.

balk vb 1 * frustrate, thwart, foil, baffle, circumvent, outwit.

Ana defeat, beat, lick, * conquer, overcome: block, obstruct, impede, * hinder: * prevent, forestall.

Ant forward —Con further, promote, * advance: abet (see INCITE): assist, aid, * help; * support, uphold, back.

2 jib, shy, boggle, stinkle, scruple, * demur, strain, stick.

Con * yield, submit, capitulate, succumb, relent.

balky * contrary, restive, perverse, froward, wayward.

ballest vb * stabilize, steady, balance, trim, poise.

ballet vb * vote, * suffrage, franchise.

ballyhoo n * publicity, promotion, propaganda.

Ana advertisement, broadcasting (see under DECLARE).

balmy 1 * soft, gentle, smooth, bland, mild, lenient.

2 * soft, gentle, smooth, bland, mild, lenient.

Ana agreeable, * pleasant, gratifying, grateful: gladdening, delighting, rejoicing, regaling (see PLEASE): assuaging, allaying, lightening, relieving (see RELIEVE): salubrious, salutary (see HEALTHFUL).

Con * intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent: vexing, bothering or bothersome, irksome or irksome, annoying (see corresponding verbs at ANNOY).

bamboozle trick, hoodwink, * dupe, gull, hoax, befoul.

ban vb prohibit, * forbid, interdict, inhibit, enjoin.

Ana bar, block, * hinder: * prevent, preclude: * exclude, debar, rule out.

Con allow, permit, suffer, * let: tolerate, abide, suffer (see BEAR).

banae flat, jejune, inane, vapid, wishy-washy, * insipid.

Ana * trite, hackneyed: * simple, fatuous, silly, asinine: commonplace, platitudeous, bromidic.
nouns at COMMONPLACE

Ant original: recherché — Con fresh, new, novel; pithy, terse, succinct (see CONCISE): stimulating or stimulative, provoking or provocative, exciting, piquing (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE)

band n 1 *bond, tie

Ana connection, link, joining (see corresponding verbs at JOIN): *joint, articulation, suture
2 *strip, stripe, ribbon, fillet
3 troop, troupe, *company, party

Ana coterie, clique, *set, circle: horde, mob, *crowd: society, club, *association, order

bandy vb *exchange, interchange

bane *poison, venom, virus, toxin

baneful *pernicious, noxious, deleterious, detrimental ban harmful, injurious, mischievous, hurtful (see corresponding nouns at INJURY): malign, *sinister, baleful: *poisonous, venomous, toxic

Ant beneficial — Con advantageous, profitable (see BENEFICIAL): salutary, wholesome, *healthful

banish, exile, expatriate, ostracize, deport, transport, extradite are comparable when denoting to remove by authority or force from a country, state, or sovereignty. To banish is to compel one, usually by public edict or sentence, to leave a country or section, although not necessarily one's own, either permanently or for a fixed time and with or without restriction to a given place (banish an enemy of the King) (the Newtonian scheme of the universe does not banish God from the universe—Times Lit. Sup.) To exile is to banish or cause to depart under constraint from one's own country; it may connote either expulsion by formal sentence or decree or the compulsion of circumstances and an enforced absence or sometimes a prolonged voluntary absence; thus, Russians and foreigners alike may be banished from Russia, but only Russians can be exiled to Siberia; Dante was banished from his native Florence because of political troubles, but he exiled himself for the rest of his life as a protest against conditions there. Expatriate differs from exile sometimes in its implication of loss of citizenship in one's own country (expatriate Jews from Germany) but often in its implication of voluntary exile or naturalization in another country (Henry James expatriated himself from the United States) Exile often suggests a possibility of return with full rights to one's own country; expatriate, however, may imply the exclusion of that possibility. In historical context ostracize denotes a temporary banishment by popular vote from one of the cities of ancient Greece; the term is used more commonly in an extended sense which implies not expropriation, but a forced exclusion by common consent, from recognition or acceptance by society (the dangers inherent in ostracizing from public service men of eminence—Kimmis Hendrick) (exposed as a cheat and ostracized by his fellow officers) To deport is to send a person out of a country of which he is not a citizen either because his presence is considered inimical to the public welfare or because he has not legally entered that country. It often implies return to the country of which the deported person is a citizen or subject or from which he has emigrated, especially if he is without funds to go where he chooses. To transport is to banish to a penal colony a person convicted of a crime (convicts were transported to Australia) To extradite is to deliver over an alleged criminal at the request of the sovereignty or state having jurisdiction to try the charge (since no treaties existed between the Allied Control Commission and neutral states, it follows that no duty to extradite existed among the latter—Neumann) (the escaped prisoner was extradited by the State of Illinois at the request of the State of Georgia)

Ana *eject, expel, out: *exclude, debar, eliminate, shut out

Con admit, *receive, accept: *harbor, shelter, entertain: protect, shield (see DEFEND)

bank n 1 *shoal, bar, reef 2 *shore, strand, coast, beach, foreshore, littoral
3 mass, heap, pile, stack, shock, cock (see under HEAP vb)

Ana *aggregate, aggregation, conglomerate, conglomeration: assemblage, assembly, collection, gathering (see under GATHER)

bank vb mass, *heap, pile, stack, shock, cock

Ana collect, assemble, *gather

Con *scatter, disperse

bankrupt vb impoverish, exhaust, *deplete, drain

Ana denude, *strip, bare: sap, cripple, disable, undermine (see WEAKEN)

banner n *flag, standard, ensign, color, streamer, pennant, pendant, pennon, jack banquet *dinner, feast

banter vb Banter, chaff, kid, rag, rib, josh, jolly are comparable when denoting to make fun of good-naturedly (as by reminding one of an actual fault, foible, failure, or shortcoming, by exaggerated praise obviously remote from the truth, or by playful imputation of undeserved success). The same distinctions in implications and connotations are found in their corresponding nouns. Banter is the generic term and may usually be substituted for any of the others, though not without loss of specificity ("Why didn't you get tipsy, Sir? Don't you ever intoxicate yourself but at lawful marriages? . . .") Ripton endured his bantering that he might hang about Richard—Meredith To chaff is to nettle with rough banter (they chaffed me for leaving so early—Price) Kid is frequently as general in meaning as banter (he is very fond of placing his hand on his heart and declaiming about his warm virtues. He gets a lot of kidding for it—Gunther) More often than perhaps any other word in this group, however, it specifically implies an attempt at good-natured imposition on one's gullibility; thus, "No kidding?" is a common way of asking "Are you serious?" of one who has made a statement that sounds incredible (she says he's going to do a portrait of her. I think he's kidding her—Harper's) Used with a reflexive pronoun, kid implies a shutting one's eyes to the truth (if you think you can avoid hard work and long hours and yet write something memorable, you are just kidding yourself) To rag is to banter repeatedly or persistently and often annoyingly to the victim (there were, even, no unpleasantnesses (aside from a bit of ragging about his galoshes . . .)—Bergen Evans) Rib implies bantering under conditions which make it impossible or inadvisable for the butt to retort or defend himself and also may imply specifically the enactment of a role on the part of the ribber (high government officials are ribbed in the skits presented yearly before the Gridiron Club in Washington) (ribs her fellow Russians as the temperamental ballerina who introduces her equals as her "supporting cast"—Time) Josh and especially jolly imply transparent good humor in the funmaker. Josh usually suggests homeliness and unsophistication (for children he has jokes and candy. He cheers the men . . . and joshes the women—Time) (running the chatty, homespun, joshing sort of thing that actually goes on in a town—S.R.L.) Jolly often implies an ulterior aim such as putting the person bantered into good humor so that he will grant a favor (he was a good salesman who joggled his customers, but not too obviously) (jollied and joked with sailors in the street—Wester) baptize 86 bare

baptize, christen mean to make one a Christian or to admit one to a Christian communion by a ceremony in which water is poured or sprinkled on the head or in which the body is immersed in water. Baptize is at once the precise and the general term for this ceremony because it implies both the rite and its ends, and it may be used in reference to both infants and adults. Christen is the popular word, but for several centuries it has so emphasized the giving of a name, which is in some churches a part of the ceremony of baptism, that it now is used at times without any reference to the religious ceremony and even with reference to inanimate objects which are formally named, often with a ceremony analogous to that of baptism; thus, “the baby has not yet been christened” may mean either “not yet baptized” or “not yet named,” though both are commonly implied; a ship is christened by performing the ceremony of breaking a bottle of liquid (as champagne) against its sides while pronouncing its name.

bar n 1 Bar, barrier, barricade mean something which hinders or obstructs. Both bar and barrier apply to something that prevents free communication or passage; more specifically, bar frequently suggests a restriction of ingress or egress, while barrier suggests an obstacle to advance, progress, or attack; bar also may suggest an obstacle that is not removable or one beyond which it is unnecessary to press. Barrier is used more commonly than bar specifically to denoting an obstruction thrown across a street or way to check a hostile advance (the fighting at the barricades in Paris during the Commune).

2 *obstacle, obstruction, impediment, snag

Ana Hindrance, block, dam (see corresponding verbs at hinder): *difficulty, hardship, vicissitude Ant advantage —Con odds, edge (see Advantage): help, aid, assistance (see under help vb)

shoal, bank, reef

bar vb obstruct, block, dam, impede (see hinder)

Ana shut out, debar, *exclude: *prevent, preclude, obviate: *forbid, prohibit, interdict: *close, shut Ant admit: open —Con accept, *receive, take barbarian adj Barbarian, barbaric, barbarous, savage are comparable when applying to people or characteristics of people that are not fully civilized. Barbarian frequently applies to a state about midway between full civilization and tribal savagery (some barbarian peoples have brought their mores into true adjustment to their life conditions and have gone on for centuries without change—Sumner).

Barbaric and barbarous may also be used to express this notion (they had passed the barbaric stage when they invaded Chaldea. They knew the use of metals; they were skillful architects and . . . good engineers—Cloodd).

Barbaric and savage may be described as barbarous. This is not the same as specifically Teutonic: cruelty and faithlessness toward enemies, feuds, wergeld—H. O. Taylor <for him those chambers held barbarian hordes, hyena foemen, and hot-blooded lords—Keats>.

Barbaric and barbarous are more common in relation to taste and refinement. Barbaric suggests a wild, profuse lack of restraint (this audacious and barbaric profusion of words—chosen always for their color and their vividly expressive quality—Symons) the march became rather splendid and barbaric. First rode Feisal in white, then Sharraf at his right in red headcloth and henna-dyed tunic and cloak, myself on his left in white and scarlet, behind us three banners of faded crimson silk with gilt spires—T. E. Lawrence.

Barbarian implies an utter lack of cultivated taste and refinement (a race of unconscious spiritual helots. We shall become utterly barbarous and desolate—Lewishohn) <but this deeply barbarous book may, in its very vulgarity of expression, be in advance of its time—Dorothy Thompson>.

Ant civilized

barbarian n *obscuratist, philistine

barbaric *barbarian, savage, barbarous

Ana *showy, ostentatious: florid, *ornate, flamboyant: *gaudy, garish, flashy, meretricious Ant restrained: refined: subdued barbarism, barbarity are frequently confused. Barbarism is used chiefly of a state of society or of a culture that may be described as barbarian, or as neither savage and crude nor civilized and highly refined (the savage mystic is also the savage man of science, the priest and the doctor are one. It is so also for the most part in barbarism—Ellis) <the human race . . . is as yet only a little bit civilized and . . . in time of serious trouble . . . has a very strong tendency to stampede back into barbarism—Lippmann>.

Barbarity is used chiefly in reference to a temper or to practices that may be described as barbarous, or uncivilized, brutal, and inhuman (barbarity seldom equaled by the fiercest of savages) (his dream of eating pâtes de foie gras to the sound of trumpets ignored the calculated barbarity which produced the food he loved—Reppplier).

Sometimes, however, barbarity denotes a taste that is barbaric (the supposed influence of Seneca on the barbarity of Elizabethan tragedy—T. S. Eliot).

Ant civilization —Con culture, cultivation, refinement

barbarity *barbarism

Ana barbarousness, savagery, ferociousness or ferocity, cruelty, inhumanity (see corresponding adjectives at fierce).

Ant humaneness —Con gentleness, mildness, smoothness, lenity or leniency (see corresponding adjectives at soft).

barbarous 1 savage, barbaric, *barbarian

Ana *rough, harsh: untutored, untaught, uneducated, illiterate, *ignorant: *rude, rough, crude Ant civilized: humane
2 savage, inhuman, ferocious, *fierce, cruel, fell, cruel, pitiless, ruthless, uncompromising (see corresponding nouns at sympathy): atrocious, monstrous, *outrageous

Ant clement —Con merciful, *forbearing, tolerant, lenient: *tender, compassionate, sympathetic: humane, humanitarian, benevolent (see charitable).

bard n *poet, minstrel, troubadour, rhymer, rhymer, versifier, poetaster bare adj 1 Bare, naked, nude, bald, barren are comparable when they mean destitute or divested of the naturally or conventionally appropriate covering or clothing. Bare woman, the very child at the breast—J. R. Green <they had further traits and customs which are barbaric rather than specifically Teutonic: cruelty and faithlessness toward enemies, feuds, wergeld—H. O. Taylor> <for him those chambers held barbarian hordes, hyena foemen, and hot-blooded lords—Keats>.

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
strongly suggests the removal or, often, the rejection of something additional, superfluous, dispensable, or acquired; thus, a bare head is one without a hat; bare legs suggest lack of socks or stockings; bare trees have lost all their leaves; one takes another's bare word for a thing when one demands no confirmation or documentary proof; a bare room may be empty of furniture or may have only such furniture as is indispensable (the bare statement that "art is useless" is so vague as to be really meaningless, if not inaccurate and misleading—Ellis) Naked suggests absence of all covering, especially in the way of protective or ornamental covering. When used with regard to persons and implying absence of clothing, the word is not uniform in its pictorial and emotional evocations; it may suggest many conditions, such as a state of nature and of physical beauty, a state of destitution and of pitiful suffering, a state of privacy and of admirable modesty or purity, a state of shameful publicity or of wanton exhibitionism (Eve . . . in naked beauty more adored, more lovely, than Pandora, whom the gods endowed with all their gifts—Milton) Poor naked wretches, wheresoe'er you are, that hide the petting of this pitiless storm—Shak. In extended use, therefore, naked is preferred to bare when the emphasis is on revelation or exposure, or on the power of revealing or exposing something as it is in its severe outlines or structure, in its plain truth or without disguise, or in its hidden weakness or strength (cloth must have clothes, but truth loves to go naked—Fuller d. 1734) (It is not asked that poetry should offer naked argument—Day Lewis) (the power of striking out, in a few naked, simple words, a picture which is ineffaceable—Lowes) Nude and naked are very close synonyms when they are used in reference to persons, but nude, because of its association with the representation of undraped figures in art, tends to suggest little more than the absence of covering and to be comparatively a colorless word with little extended use and with few, if any, significant and distinctive implications. Because of its unequivocal meaning, nude is preferred to naked when the mere fact of being without clothing is indicated and there is no intent to convey an aesthetic or ethical implication (three nude statues in the exhibition) (Residents of the houses along the river objected to nude swimmers) Bald implies absence of the hair of the head or, sometimes, actual or apparent absence of another covering (as of foliage, feathers, or vegetation); thus, the bald eagle is the common eagle after it has reached an age when its head and neck feathers are white and inapparent at a distance; a bald tree is one that no longer bears leaves at its top; a bald mountain is one whose peak is bare of vegetation. In extended use bald implies austere or colorless bareness and a conspicuous absence of qualities that might add charm, vivacity, or interest; thus, a bare style is one that employs economy of means or a meagerness of ornament; a naked style is one that disguises nothing and shows not the slightest obscurity or hesitancy in presenting the thought; a bald style is bare and plain to the point of severity (his expression may often be called bald . . . but it is bald as the bare mountain tops are bald, with a baldness which is full of grandeur—Arnold) Barren (see also sterile) implies a lack of fertility or productive power and therewith also implies absence of natural or appropriate covering as an outward sign of impoverishment, impotence, or aridity; thus, barren lands are not only bare but they are waste, desolate lands incapable of producing crops; a barren style is the style of a person who has not the mind, heart, or imagination to give his style any signs of life or vitality or any coloring of fancy (without social history, economic history is barren and political history is unintelligible—Trevelyam) bare vb denude, divest, denude (see strip vb); unclothed, undressed, unrobed (see affirmative verbs at clothe) Ant covered 2 *mere

Bare

Bark

bark vb Bark, bay, howl, growl, snarl, yap, yap mean to make the sound of or a sound suggestive of a dog. Bark implies the sharp, explosive utterance characteristic of dogs; it may be used not only of them and of another animal (as a seal) that produces a similar noise but also of a person or a sonorous thing that gives the same effect (heard the barking of wolves in the distance) (the guns barked all night long) (they [critics] had . . . barked at you, foamed at you day after day, now you were ended. They praised you . . . and laid you away—Lindsay) (thunder . . . barked in the distance—McFee) Bay implies a repeated or almost continuous barking in deep prolonged tones that is characteristic of hounds in pursuit of quarry (I had rather be a dog, and bay the moon, than such a Roman—Shak.) (dogs baying and driving him up a tree—Darwin) Bay is seldom used of any animals other than members of the dog family (including mythical ones such as Cerberus) and is infrequently used in reference to men. When it is so used, it generally implies the action not of an individual but of a group (as a mob) that acts like a pack of dogs baying (I dare avouch you'd stand up for yourself, though all the world should bay like winter wolves—Tennyson) Howl implies a loud, mournful cry made by dogs seemingly in distress and often interpreted as evidence of hunger or loneliness. The term implies also similar sounds made by other animals, but its strongest association has been with dogs and wolves (a dog howled each night) (pursued by howling wolves) Howl (see also roar) may be used in reference to human beings to imply loud crying, laughing, or derisive calling, and to other sounds that suggest the howling of animals (as in loudness and prolongation). Growl applies to the long, low rumbling sound suggesting a threat that is made by an angry dog; less often it is used in reference to other animals (as the bear or cat). Like howl, it is applied to persons and to inanimate things (as thunder and winds). When used of persons, it suggests utterance in a surly or grumbling mood (be growled, "What are you doing there?") (he's no business to growl . . . about money—Holland) Snarl implies not only a growling but a snapping and baring of fangs; it, too, is used typically of dogs and suggests an aggressive or infuriated state (the dog never snarled until he was mistreated) (children run from a snarling dog) Snarl when used of a person's manner or speech implies a highly disagreeable quality and usually suggests spite or malignity and a menacing attitude (the midwife wondered and the women cried "O, Jesus bless us, he is born with teeth!" And so I was; which plainly signified that I should snarl and bite and play the dog—Shak.) Yelp has as its basic implication the utterance of short, shrill barks by a dog (as in eagerness, in pain, or in fear); when used in reference to men, the word often implies a number of short, shrill utterances, especially indicating surprise, fear, or excitement (a . . . huntsman

---

ana analogues words ant antonyms con contrasted words see also explanatory notes facing page 1
clad for the field, with his fresh pack yelping...abouthim—Dickens> <the nominations have accordingly furnished something to yelp on—Jefferson> "Look out," yelps the crowd and the high walls fall—Lindsay> Yap comes close to yelp, but it chiefly implies the short, shril barking of a small dog or excited, staccato sounds that are comparable <half a dozen little yapping dogs...
. . . assailed me—Braddon> It may suggest excessive talking that conveys little but is usually uttered in an insistent or offensive and often high-pitched voice. Ana bellow, vociferate, bawl, *roar: yell, *shout, scream, shriek bark n *skin, rind, peel, hide, pelt baroque adj *ornate, florid, rococo, flamboyant barren 1 *sterile, unfruitful, infertile, impotent Ant fecund —Con *fertile, prolific, fruitful
2 bald, *bare, naked, nude Ana arid, *dry: desolate, forlorn (see ALONE): impoverished, exhausted, depleted (see DEPLETE): austere, *se-vvere, stern
Con luxuriant, lush, *profuse: opulent, *luxurious, sumptuous barricade n barrier, *bar barrier n barricade, *bar barrister *lawyer, counselor, counsel, advocate, attorney, solicitor
basal basic, underlying, *fundamental, radical base n Base, basis, foundation, ground, groundwork are comparable when meaning something on which another thing is reared or built or by which it is supported or fixed in place. Base may be applied to the lowest part or bottom of something without strong implication of purpose as a support or prop <the base of a tree> <base of a mountain> but more often it implies specific reference to a broad bottom or to a substructure on which a thing rests or seems to rest for support or by which it is kept upright or stable <the base of a pyramid> <the base of a lamp> <the base of a triangle> <the first of four cabinets the liberal leader was to form...in attempts to achieve a combination of ministers with a wide enough base to ensure effective support—Current Biog.> The word may fail to stress an underlying and then applies to something which serves either as a starting point of a development, an operation, or a process   or as a necessary ingredient that carries or contains the active ingredient of a mixture <lanolin is the base of many cosmetics> <dynamite often has an absorbent base such as sawdust> Basis like base may be used in reference to something that underlies and supports or to something that serves as a starting point, but the term is rarely applied to a physical or material thing; thus, one may speak of the base (but not the basis) of a monument, or of the basis (not the base for a certain belief <implicit trust is the basis of a lasting friendship> <phrase a question as a basis for discussion <tradition forms a basis for the acquiring of literary taste —Day Lewis> Foundation usually implies solidity in what underlies and supports and fixity or stability in whatever is erected on that support; thus, a house has a base even if it rests directly on the ground but it may properly be said to have a foundation only when it rests on a substructure (as a wall of stones or bricks lining an excavation and usually rising above the surface of the ground); a report may be said to have its basis (not foundation) in speculation, but a report that is said to be without foundation has no basis in fact <let me pry loose old walls; let me lift and loosen old foundations—Sandburg> <as the happiness of the people is the sole end of government, so the consent of the people is the only foundation of it—Adams> <how firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord, is laid for your faith in His excellent Word!—Old Hymn> Ground implies something solid or firm beneath, or a substratum comparable to the earth or ground in its firmness and capacity for support; the term is therefore applied to a material, a substance, or a surface upon which another thing is built or against which it is displayed; thus, a piece of net may serve as a ground upon which a pattern is worked in lacemaking; before a decorative design is applied to a wall, the ground, or wall surface, must be treated and colored so that it will take the pattern and display it properly. Groundwork is applied not to a substratum but to a substructure; like foundation, the term suggests something built up before the superstructure is erected, but, unlike foundation, it is used chiefly in a figurative sense <early training is the groundwork of good habits> <lay a groundwork in college for one's professional studies> <the groundwork of all happiness is health—Hunt> Ant top —Con *summit, peak, apex base vb Base, found, ground, bottom, stay, rest are comparable when they mean to supply or to serve as a basis.
Base now rarely suggests a material support upon which a material superstructure is built <the pile...I reared up to the cloud...based on the living rock—Browning> but rather something material or immaterial that underlies a nonmaterial superstructure (as a belief, a system, a judgment, a hope or an action) <is it not the conviction that action should be based...on solid fact?—Elliot> <shares, or bonds, or other pieces of paper, the value of which is based upon the estimated future earnings or profits—Hobson> Found comes so close to base as often to be indistinguishable from it and, therefore, to be interchangeable with it <and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the wind blew...and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock—Mt 7:25> Often, however, it suggests not what merely underlies but what is consciously advanced as support (as for an opinion, a principle, a judgment, a belief, or an affection)  <certain fixed laws and principles which he proceeds to found upon Aristotle—Babbitt> <this criticism is founded in misconception—Cardozo> Ground denotes an implanting (as into the earth) that gives solidity and firmness;
it may apply to something (as personal virtue, education, or an institution) which can grow and thrive only when it is firmly based (as if by deep roots) <that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints...and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge—Eph 3:17-19> <ofttimes nothing profits more than self-esteem, grounded on just and right—Milton> But ground may be used, less strictly, in a sense approaching that of base and found <he grounds his theory on evidence gathered over a long period of time> <their quarrel was grounded on a dispute over petty matters Bottom implies a broad or strong base <bottomed upon solid principles of law and policy—Burke> Stay implies a support that keeps upright or prevents from falling and may suggest adding a supplementary support to correct an observed or anticipated tendency <stay a weakened wall with props> <his nature looked coldly upon its early faith and sought to stay itself with rational knowledge—H. O. Taylor> Rest stresses reliance or dependence on something as a base or fundamental support <their academic reputations rest, quite largely, upon their academic power—Mills> <metrical forms are conventional, and therefore rest, like all matters of usage, on acceptance—
Loves> <if the Germans are to justify the high claims
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
they make for Lessing as a critic, they must rest them on other grounds than his intellectual originality or the fineness of his taste—Babbitt

*base

baseless, groundless, unfounded, unwarranted mean not justified or justifiable in any way. Baseless implies an entire lack of foundation; it imputes to a thing lack of support or want of evidence, premise, postulate, presupposition, presumption, assumption (see under presuppose)

baste vb *beat, pummel, thrash, buffet, pound, belabor

bashful

1 basal, *fundamental, underlying, radical

basic 1 basal, *fundamental, underlyng, radical

banana principal, capital, *chief, main: primordial, *primary

baptize peak

2 *alkaline

basis *base, foundation, ground, groundwork

be *principle, fundamental, axiom, law, theorem:
one of those terms, but it (or more particularly its related adjective, substantive) often additionally suggests a relation to or dependence on something; thus, a thing that bear by itself (a self-substantive) thing is independent and self-contained; an idea substantive or maintains its existence only so long as it appeals to the mind of thinking men (those secret distributions without which the body cannot substantiate its vigor—Addison) In philosophical use substantive is used often in reference to purely mental conceptions and implies logical validity or the character of being true or logically conceivable (the round square . . . is an object, which neither exists, nor substantive, nor has any kind of being at all—Chisholm)

bear carry, convey, transport, transmit

bear suffer, endure, abide, tolerate, stand, brook denote to sustain something trying or painful. Bear and suffer are also synonyms in their more comprehensive denotation, to sustain whatever is imposed (this theory will bear examination) (the stone suffers no alteration in a colder climate) Both verbs, however, are more often used in their specific senses because of their customary reference, with bear, to things that are heavy or difficult or, with suffer, to things that are painful or injurious. Bear suggests more the power to sustain than the manner in which something is sustained (water as hot as one can bear it) (this decency which has made him bear prolonged and intolerable humiliation with control and courtesy—Mannes) Bear affliction suffer more often implies acceptance of infliction than patience or courage in bearing (I am waylaid by Beauty . . . Oh, savage Beauty, suffer me to pass—Millay) (being a man of uncommon spirit, he never suffered the least insult or affront to pass unchastised—Smollett) Endure and * abide* usually refer to long-continued trials or sufferings borne without giving in. Endure usually connotes stamina or firmness of mind, while * abide* suggests patience and submission (I am able now, methinks . . . to endure more miseries and greater far—Shak.) (what fatimes impose, that men must needs abide—Shak.) Tolerate and stand imply overcoming one’s own resistance to what is distasteful or antagonistic. Tolerate often connotes failure to resist through indifference or, sometimes, through a desire for peace or harmony (tolerate differences in opinion) (Archer’s New York tolerated hypocrisy in private relations; but business matters it exacted . . . impeccable honesty—Wharton) Stand is often used in place of bear, but distinctively it implies the ability to keep from flinching (he can stand teasing) (he stood the attack well) Brook occurs chiefly in negative constructions and implies self-assertion and defiance (restraint she will not brook—Milton) (he is not well-born enough to succeed there, and his sense of intellectual superiority did not brook subordination—Laski) The other verbs are also used commonly in negative clauses but with weakened emphasis. In such constructions bear (with the negative) commonly implies dislike, suffer rejection, endure intolerance, * abide* impatience, tolerate contempt, and stand repugnance. Ana accept, receive: afflict, try, torment, torture 4 press, bear down, squeeze, crowd, jam Ana weigh, oppress, depress: burden, encumber, load, saddle 5 Bear, relate, certain, appertain, belong, apply are comparable when used intransitively with the meaning to have a connection, especially a logical connection. One thing bears on or upon another thing when the first touches so directly upon the second (usually something in question) as to carry appreciable weight in its solution or in the understanding of issues it involves (ignore all facts except those that bear upon this particular case) (this situation bears directly upon the question under discussion) One thing relates to another thing when there is some connection between them which permits or, more often, requires them to be considered together with reference to their effect upon each other. The connection implied is usually closer in the intransitive than in the transitive verb (see join), being commonly one of dependence or interdependence (in an organism each part relates to every other part) (show how the demand relates to the supply) (each incident relates to the plot) (a detail in a painting relates to the design of the whole) (the duties of the citizen, as he understood them, related not only to acts, but also to thoughts—Mencken) One thing pertains or appertains to another when there is a connection that permits their association in practice or thought. Both of these words are more widely applicable than bear and relate, for they cover not only the connections specifically implied in those words but also those close connections implied by belong and those remote connections A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
implied by have to do with; thus, the things that pertain to happiness are all the things that can be thought of as causing, contributing to, preventing, or affecting the quality of happiness (moral philosophy is the branch of philosophy that deals with all problems pertaining to morals or ethics). Pertain more often implies a necessary connection or a very close relation than the more formal appertain, which commonly suggests an incidental or acquired connection (a . . . faithful high priest in things pertaining to God—Heb 2:17) the crown and all wide-stretched honors that pertain by custom and the ordinance of times unto the crown of France—Shak. (to that simple object appertains a story—Wordsworth) Belong, usually with to, implies a relation in which one thing is a part or element without which another cannot exist, function, have its true character or being, or be complete. In this sense a thing that belongs is a property, an attribute, a duty, or a proper concern (the Government of the United States . . . does not possess all the powers which usually belong to the sovereignty of a nation—Tane) nor does value belong to what concerns man only—Alexander. But belong also may be used of things as they pertain to persons, then implying possession (the watch belongs to James) (this land belongs to the government) or informally of persons with reference to their qualifications for fitting into a group, especially a social group (she's smart and jolly and everything, but she just doesn't belong—Ferber) Apply, also with to, implies a relation in which a more inclusive category (as a law, a principle, a rule, a theory, a general term) covers a less inclusive specific instance, usually also explaining, interpreting, or describing the latter or having some clear bearing upon it (the rules of addition apply to our debts as rigorously as to our assets—James) he really was the one child to whom the "spare-the-rod" precept did not apply—he was naturally good—Deland. Ana *concern, affect: touch, influence, *affect: weigh (see DEPRESS)

beard vb *face, brave, challenge, dare, defy Ana confront, *meet, encounter beard down *press, bear, squeeze, crowd, jam bearing n Bearing, comportment, demeanor, mien, port, presence are comparable when they denote the way in which or the quality by which a person outwardly manifests his personality and breeding. Bearing is the most general of these words; it may imply reference to a person's mental attitude to others, his conduct in society, or his characteristic posture or way of holding himself (if I were so, she could not sway her house, command her followers . . . with such a smooth, discreet and stable bearing—Shak.) "You should have seen him as a young man," she cried . . . drawing herself up to imitate her husband's once handsome bearing—D. H. Lawrence Deportment applies especially to a person's actions in their relations to the external, often conventional amenities of life; it so strongly suggests the influence of breeding or training that in current use it often means little more than behavior (lessons in deportment) (naturalism is limited to neurotectics; while Style means a British deportment—stiff upper lip, stiff limbs, and stiffer backbone—and an eloquenter Oxfordian delivery—Bentley). Demeanor applies rather to one's attitude as shown in one's behavior in the presence of others (his demeanor in public was still, silent, almost sepulchral. He looked habitually upon the ground when he conversed, was chary of speech, embarrassed—Motley) (the child who has been treated wisely and kindly has a frank look in the eyes, and a fearless demeanor even with strangers—Russell). Mien implies reference both to bearing and demeanor, often as suggestive of mood (for truth has such a face and such a mien, as to be loved needs only to be seen—Dryden) (his mien of settled woe—Robertson Davies). Port implies reference to physique and, especially through long association with such adjectives as majestic, regal, and proud, to a stately or dignified physique (pride in their port, defiance in their eye, I see the lords of human-kind pass by—Goldsmith) (people with a dignity of port, an amplitude of back, an emphasis of vocabulary—L. P. Smith). Presence is more explicit than bearing; it denotes a person's bearing with reference to its power to impress his personality on others or to attract their attention, interest, or admiration (in mature life he became "a bulky person," with strong health and a commanding presence—Inge) (a small, birdlike person, of no presence—Rose Macaulay) (by a Port, one may understand them to indicate something unsympathetically impressive; whereas a Presence would seem to be a thing that directs the most affable appeal to our poor human weaknesses—Meredith) beat vb 1 Beat, pound, pummel, thrash, buffet, baste, belabor are comparable when they mean to strike repeatedly. Beat, the usual and general word of this group, may imply no more than the simple action of repeated striking (as with one's hands or an implement). The purpose is usually suggested by the object beaten, even when the manner of beating or the kind of implement used is not specifically stated (clean a rug by beating it) (beat his breast in anguish) (the shocking increase in the battered child syndrome, the physical result of viciously beating a young child) (the horse restless beat the ground with his hooves) Pound suggests beating with a weight or pestle to crush or reduce to a pulp or powder (as in grinding meal). More often the term implies heavier, more damaging blows than beat; it may suggest repeated striking (as by a heavy hammer, strong doubled fists, the hooves of horses, bombs, or shells), and it often also suggests rhythmical, loud, and heavy sounds (the big boys who sit at the tables pound them and cheer—Hughes) (the hooves of the horses pounding on the bridge—Anderson) (he could hear his own heart pounding) (he pounded on the door in an effort to rouse the sleeping family) (night after night the port was pounded by bombs).

Pummel implies the beating of a person with one's fists: although it does not suggest as heavy blows as pound, it carries a stronger suggestion of continuous raining of blows and, often, of the infliction of injury than beat (a desire to pummel and wring the nose of the aforesaid Stiggins—Dickens) (he pummeled and slapped and scrubbed the somewhat obese nudity of his companion—Buchan) Thrash in its basic sense means to separate the grain (as of wheat) from the husks and straw, originally by beating or striking again and again (as with a flail). Consequently thrash usually means to strike repeatedly in a manner suggestive of strokes with a flail and usually with an implement (as a stick or whip) (thrust a hedge with a cane in order to drive out the rabbits) (propelled himself through the water with wildly thrashing arms) (everyone fought fire. Everyone went to the woods and thrashed out some new blaze—Vorse) Buffet implies a repeated striking with or as if with an open hand: it therefore suggests a slapping rather than a pouding and in extended use is employed chiefly with reference to something which dashes against the face or the body in the manner of a slap or which one fights as if by slapping. The two hands of Madame Defarge buffeted and tore her face—Dickens. Buffeted by high waves. Baste implies a sound vigorous thrashing with any weapon (including the tongue). I took a broom, and basted her, till she cried extremely—Pepys. If you will give me the loan of a horsewhip, I’ll baste the backs of these lazy fellows of yours—Wheelwright. Belabor implies a prolonged and mighty basting or buffeting. He saw Virago Nell belabor, with Dick’s own staff his peaceful neighbor—Swift. A group of demonstrating Egyptians being belabored by police—Dotty.

Ana slug, clout, sweat, punch, *strike, hit, smite, slap, box, buffeted

2 defeat, lick, *conquer, vanquish, subdue, subjugate, reduce, overcome, surmount, overthrow, rout

Ana surpass, excel, outstrip (see exceed). Confloum. Nonplus. (see puzzle)

3 *pulsate, throb, pulse, palpitate

Ana quiver, quaver, quake (see shake): vibrate, oscillate, fluctuate, pendulate (see swing). Beat

n pulsation, pulse, throb, palpitation (see under pulsate).

Ana accent, accentuation, stress (see emphasis): rhythm, cadence.

beatitude blessedness, bliss, felicity, *happiness

Ana rapture, *ecstasy, transport: joy, fruition, enjoyment, pleasure.

Ant despair: dolor—Con tribulation, affliction, trial, cross: anguish, woe, sorrow, grief: suffering, agony, misery, *distress

beau *top, exquisite, dandy, cockcomb, dude, buck

beau ideal ideal, exemplar, pattern, model, example, mirror, standard.

beauteous pulchritudinous, fair, good-looking, handsome, pretty, comely, bonny, lovely, *beautiful

Ana alluring, attractive, fascinating, charming (see under attract).

beautiful adj. Beautiful, lovely, handsome, pretty, bonny, comely, fair, beauteous, pulchritudinous, good-looking are comparable when they express judgment of a person or thing perceived or contemplated with sensuous or aesthetic pleasure. Although they differ widely not only in their implications and connotations but also in their range of reference, they carry in common the meaning of emotional or spiritual pleasure; it is seldom used to describe something large or impressive; consequently it often connotes diminutiveness, daintiness, or exquisiteness. A group of pretty girls. A very pretty child. A pretty cottage. Pretty is often used depreciatively to suggest mere pleasingness of appearance and the absence of qualities that make for beauty, grandeur, or strength. A pretty woman in the neighborhood called a “bonny man.” His features were remarkably regular, and his complexion was remarkably fair—D. Brown. A bonny, which is more common in British and especially Scottish use, implies approbation of a person’s or thing’s looks but it may also imply various pleasing qualities (as sweetness, simplicity, healthiness, plumpness) A bonny day. A great actress and a bonny girl—Donn Byrne. A bonny baby. What the sentimental women of the neighborhood called a “bonny child.” His features were remarkably regular, and his complexion was remarkably fair—G. D. Brown. Comely implies an opposition to what is homely and plain and suggests pleasant wholesomeness with a measure of good looks or physical attractiveness. A comely barmad. (The comeliest woman in the club. Jack was so comely, so pleasant, so jolly—Dibdin. Once a moorland Helen, and still comely as a blood horse and healthy as the hill wind—Stevenson.)

Fair applies especially to something which is pleasing or delightful to look at. Of all these adjectives beautiful is usually the richest in significance; since the abstraction it represents (the beautiful) has been for many centuries the subject of discussion by philosophers, artists, and aestheticians, its content in a particular context often depends upon the speaker’s or writer’s cultural background, his chosen philosophy, or his own peculiar definition. In general, however, both in learned and in ordinary use beautiful is applied to what excites the keenest pleasure not only of the senses but also through the medium of the senses of mind and soul. It also suggests an approach to or a realization of perfection, often specifically the imagined perfection associated with one’s conception of an ideal. That is why beautiful is applicable not only to things that are directly perceived by the senses. A beautiful woman. A beautiful scene. The beautiful “Winged Victory.” An exquisitely beautiful painting. But to things that are actually mental constructions formed in the mind through the instrumentality of language or as a result of inferences from certain outward manifestations. A beautiful poem. A beautiful plan. A beautiful character. Beautiful, like beautiful, usually suggests a more than sensuous pleasure, but it implies keen emotional delight rather than profound intellectual or spiritual pleasure. It is applied therefore to what is so pleasant to look upon, to hear, to smell, or to touch that the person affected dwells delightfully, sensuously, or amorously upon it or the sensations it produces. Why ever wast thou lovely in my eyes—Shak. In after years... thy mind shall be a mansion for all lovely forms—Wordsworth. A sailing ship—that loveliest of human creations—Ellis. Handsome, on the other hand, carries little connotation of emotional or spiritual pleasure; it implies rather a judgment of approval occasioned by something that is pleasant to look upon because it conforms to one’s conception of what is perfect in form and detail or in perfect taste, and pleasing because of its due proportions, symmetry, or elegance. It is applied chiefly to what can be regarded unemotionally and with detachment; thus, a woman who is described as handsome rather than as beautiful or lovely is by implication one whose appearance aesthetically satisfies the observer but does not markedly stir his deeper feelings. A handsome dress. A handsome horse. A handsome table. They say I’m handsome.” You’re lovely, Bella!” She draws in his homage—Meredith. Pretty, in contrast to handsome, is applied largely to what pleases by its delicacy, grace, or charm rather than by its perfection or elegance of form or style. It is seldom used to describe something large or impressive; for in general it often connotes diminutiveness, daintiness, or exquisiteness. A group of pretty girls. A very pretty child. A pretty cottage. Pretty is often used depreciatively to suggest mere pleasingness of appearance and the absence of qualities that make for beauty, grandeur, or strength (a pretty poem. A pretty view. BONNY, which is more common in British and especially Scottish use, implies approbation of a person’s or thing’s looks but it may also imply various pleasing qualities (as sweetness, simplicity, healthiness, plumpness. A bonny day. A great actress and a bonny girl—Donn Byrne. A bonny baby. What the sentimental women of the neighborhood called a “bonny child.” His features were remarkably regular, and his complexion was remarkably fair—D. Brown.

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
beautify: embellish, deck, bedeck, *adorn, ornament, decorate, garnish

Ana: enhance, heighten (see intensify)

Ant: uglify — Con: *deface, disfigure: *deform, distort, contort: mar, spoil, *injure, damage because, for, since, as, inasmuch as are the chief causal conjunctions in English. Because assigns a cause or reason immediately and explicitly; as, I hid myself, *because [=for the express reason that] it is false; he must have passed this way, *because [=owing to the specific fact that] there is no other road or *because [=as is directly proved by the fact that] his footprints are here. For is a particle of less immediate reference than because; it regards the statement to which it is subjoined as relatively independent and proceeds to adduce for it some ground, reason, evidence, proof, explanation, or justification; as, I hid myself, for [=as I may add by way of explanation] I was afraid; he must have passed this way, for [=as you may readily see] here are his footprints; I like him, for [=I ask, in justification of the fact who can help it? Since is less formal and more incidentally than because; as assigns a reason even more casually than since; each of them frequently begins its sentence; as, Since (or As) I was afraid, I hid myself (I will come, since you asked me) (As I knew him to be out of town, I did not call) Inasmuch as assigns a reason in a somewhat concessive or qualified fashion; as, Inasmuch as [=in view of, or considering, the fact that] I was afraid, I hid myself. I am ready to accept your proposal, *inasmuch as [=seeing that] I believe it is the best you can offer.

becloud: cloud, eclipse, fog, befog, *dim, eclipse, *obscure, darken, obfuscate

Ana: *confuse, muddle, addle, befuddle: *puzzle, perplex, distract

bedeck: deck, garnish, embellish, beautify, decorate, ornament, *adorn bedim: dim, eclipse, cloud, becloud, *darken, obfuscate

Ana: *confuse, muddle, addle, befuddle: *puzzle, perplex, distract

beef: overhang, jut, project, *bulge, protuberate, protrude, stick out

Ana: menace, *threaten befall: betide, occur, *happen, chance, transpire

befog: fog, cloud, becloud, eclipse, *obscure, darken, dim, bedim, obfuscate

Ana: *puzzle, perplex, distract, bewilder, dumbfound: *confuse, muddle, addle

befool: fool, dirty, sully, *soil, smirch, besmirch, grime, begrime, tarnish

Ana: *spot, spatter, sprinkle

befuddle: fuddle, addle, muddle, *confuse

Ana: bewilder, distract, confound, perplex (see Puzzled): intoxicate, inebriate (see corresponding adjectives at DRUNK)

Ant: clarify, clear

beg: entreat, beseech, implore, supplicate, adjure, importune mean to ask or request urgently. Beg suggests earnestness or insistence especially in asking a favor (why, boy, before I left, you were constantly begging to see Town—Meredith) Entreat implies an attempt to persuade or to overcome resistance in another especially by ingratiating oneself (he was accustomed to command, not to entreat—Cather) Beseech implies great eagerness and often anxiety or solicitude (she besought him, for his soul’s sake, to speak the truth—Kipling) Implore, often used interchangeably with beseech, at times suggests even greater urgency in the plea or more manifest anguish (the last look of my dear mother’s eyes, which implored me to have mercy—Dickens) Supplicate adds to entreat the suggestion of fervent prayer or of a prayerful attitude (invite, entreat, supplicate them to accompany you—Chesterfield) (fall on his knees and supplicate the God of his fathers—Terrien) Adjure implies an injunction as well as a plea and is strengthened by the expressed or implied invocation of a sense of responsibility or duty or of something sacred (I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ—Mt 26:63) It may sometimes suggest little more than urgency or peremptoriness (so E company . . . doubled for the dear life, and in the rear toiled the perspiring sergeant, adjuring it to double yet faster—Kipling) Importune commonly suggests repeated attempts to break down resistance and often connotes annoying pertinacity (a valued adviser who annoyed me with the dear old constraints of the church—Emerson)

Ana: solicit, request. *ask: plead, pray, petition, sue (see under PRAYER): *demand, exact

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
begin

廉价，可鄙，破败，对不起，可耻，乞丐式

Ana

开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，开始，start,
behave 1 Behave, conduct, comport, demean, deport, acquit, quit are comparable when they mean to act or to cause oneself to act in a specified way or in a way that evokes comment. Behave denotes the performing of various actions or the saying of various things in the manner indicated by modifiers (one must keep one's contracts, and behave as persons of honor and breeding should behave—Rose Macaulay) (you will bitterly reproach him in your own heart, and seriously think that he has behaved very badly to you—Wilde) Used without modifiers, it indicates action and conduct adjudged proper and seemly; in this use it is common in relation to children and adolescents (the average parent is likely to say that the child behaves if the child conforms to what the parent thinks is right—Fishbein) Conduct often applies to actions showing direction or control of one's actions or bearing with command, will, knowledge, and resolution (he conducted himself with patience and tact, endeavoring to enforce the laws and to check any revolutionary moves—W. E. Stevens) Comport, in this sense always reflexive, is somewhat more formal than behave and conduct but usually lacks any other special suggestion though it sometimes may convey the notion of conformance to the expected (as of one's class) or suitable (as to one's position) (the missionaries...comported themselves in a way that did not rouse general antagonism or they could have been easily ousted—Spicer) (a man is judged now by how well he comports himself in the face of danger—Alridge) (after having seen him thus publicly comport himself, but one course was open to me—to cut his acquaintance—Thackeray) In this sense demean and deport are close synonyms for comport; the former is becoming rare (it shall be my earnest endeavor to demean myself with grateful respect towards her—Austen) The latter may suggest deportment according to a code (Dido and Aeneas, in the Roman d'Eneas, deport themselves in accordance with the strictest canons of courtly love—Lowes) Acquit and quit, the latter archaic, are always used reflexively in this sense; they are likely to apply to action deserving praise or meeting expectations (I trust we acquit ourselves worthily as custodians of this sacred mystery—Wylie) (he then acquitted himself well as a hardworking and level-headed chairman of the judiciary committee of the House—Pearson) (the endless heroes of life and death who still bravely meet their separate belch vb Belch, burp, vomit, disgorge, regurgitate, spew, throw up are comparable when they mean to eject matter (as food or gas) from the stomach by way of the mouth or, in extended use, from a containing cavity by way of an opening. Belch denotes the noisy voiding of gas from the stomach and may be extended to something ejected in volume and often with noise (as smoke and fire from a cannon or a volcano) (there stood a hill not far, whose grisly top belched fire and rolling smoke—Milton) (the war-riehs shrieks and belches out his fury—Capern)

Burp in its basic sense in interchangeable with belch (mopping his face solemnly with his cologne-scented handkerchief, and burping surreptitiously under it—Mencken) but in extended use is much less forceful and usually refers to something sounding like a human belch (the engine burped and ran out of gas—Road and Track).

Vomit is the usual word for the ejection through the mouth of what has been eaten or swallowed; ordinarily it implies nausea, but it may suggest a previous gorging or surfeit- ing or the use of an emetic (and the Lord spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land—Jonah 2:10) It is often used to suggest a forcible rejection or an emission or a discharge of contents (that huge black-mouthed sewer, vomiting its pestilential riches across the mud—Kingsley).

Disgorge, though close to vomit, more specifically implies an ejection of something swallowed, in essentially its original state (Jonah was disgorged by the whale after three days and three nights). Especially in extended use it may suggest an ejection or yielding up (as of something held or secreted) that is induced by force or pressure from without (make the French generals disgorg the church plate which they have stolen—Wellington). Basically regurgitate implies a flowing or gushing back, typically of food from the stomach to the esophagus or mouth (cattle regurgitate small cuds of herbage for further chewing) In extended use regurgitate may reflect quite neutrally its basic meaning ("Mind you," he said regurgitating his article slowly phrase by phrase, "the subject doesn't make the work of art"—Huxley) but more often it carries some suggestion of the unpleasantness of the physiological phenomenon (Henry was incapable of reversing himself or of regurgitating Cromwell's wealth—Hackett) (read greedily and without abatement, and regurgitated his formal culture in the same feverish spasms—Gurko) Spew is rare in modern usage as a synonym for vomit but has extended use as denoting a pouring forth in a stream that cannot be restrained or, sometimes, a spurring or spitting forth (the steer ... dying spews a flood of foamy madness, mixed with clotted blood—Dryden)

It also may imply specifically a pouring forth of something offensive (as abusive or foul language) (Thersites spews over everything that we had deemed high and sacred, his foul ... insults—Dowden). Basically throw up is closely equivalent to vomit, though it may stress the matter ejected rather than the physiological process. In extended use it is distinctly less vigorous than vomit and usually implies no more than a producing or bringing forth of something (all the voluminous information thrown up by successive ... investigations—Bemix)

Anna *eject, expel belieager *besiege, invest, blockade
Anna *surround, environ, encircle, encompass, hem, gird: *enclose, envelop: harass, pester, *worry, annoy belie *misrepresent, falsify, garble
Anna contradict, contravene, negative (see DENY): controvert, *disprove
Ant attest —Con *reveal, discover, disclose: *indicate, bespeak, betoken

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
bellicose  *belligerent, pugnacious, combative, contentious, quarrelsome

*bellicose  *aggressive, assertive: antagonizing or antagonistic, combating or combative (see corresponding verbs at RESIST): fighting, warring, battling, contending (see CONTEND): rebellious, factious, seditious, mutinous (see SUBORDINATE)

Ant pacific: amicable  —Con peaceful, pacifist, peaceable (see PACIFIC) belligerent  adj  Belligerent, bellicose, pugnacious, combative, quarrelsome, contentious mean having or taking an aggressive or fighting attitude. Belligerent usually implies actual engagement in hostilities (the belligerent powers in the World War)  (define a nation's status as not neutral yet not belligerent)  When applied to such things as tones, speeches, or gestures, the term implies an actively hostile mood or warlike temper (a belligerent reply to a diplomatic note)  Bellicose applies usually to a state of mind or temper: it suggests a desire or readiness to fight or sometimes a disposition to stir up a fight (a bellicose tribe)  (an intoxicated man in a bellicose mood)  (an editorial in a bellicose vein)  Pugnacious and combative differ from bellicose (which is sometimes given an ironic or mock-heroic turn) in applying more commonly to disposition or character: they need not, however, convey the impression of pettiness or ill nature or of readiness to fight without genuine cause, so frequently implied in quarrelsome (the Scotch are certainly a most pugnacious people: their whole history proves it—Borrow)  (fight in the field of sports . . . [is] generally approved. The combative impulses in human nature may thus find an expression—Cohen)  (soon every father bird and mother grew quarrelsome, and pecked each other—Cowper)  (on the days they worked they were good-natured and cheerful . . . on our idle days they were mutinous and quarrelsome—Franklin)  Contentious frequently suggests perversity of temper and wearisome persistence in dispute (a very kind woman, though saying what she liked about her neighbors, and contentious toward all antireformers—Canby)

Ana hostile, antagonistic (see corresponding nouns at ENMITY): fighting, warring, battling, contending (see CONTEND): warlike, *martial

Ant friendly  —Con neighborly, *amicable:  *neutral, indifferent

below vb  *roar, bluster, bawl, vociferate, clamor, howl, yell

Ant yell, *shout, scream, shriek: bay, *bark, yelp: *cry, wail, keen belly  *abdomen, stomach, paunch, gut, belly belong  *belongings: *possessions, effects, means, resources, assets

below, under, beneath, underneath mean in a lower position relatively to some other object or place. Below (opposed to above) applies to something which is anywhere in a lower plane than the object of reference; under (opposed to over) to something which is below in a relatively vertical line, and it may imply actual covering (below sea level)  (the valley far below us)  (under a tree)  (under the bed)  (hide one's light under a bushel)  (the Whirlpool Rapids are below, and the Cave of the Winds is under Niagara Falls)  (the whole visible landscape is below, but only a small portion of it under, an observer in a balloon)  Beneath is an equivalent of both below and under (heaven above, or . . . the earth beneath—Exod 20:4)  beneath the spreading tree—Goldsmith  Underneath is often employed in place of under or beneath. It is, however, the preferred term when there is the intent to imply complete or nearly complete concealment (mines underneath the city)  (garments worn underneath a dress)

In their extended senses below and under agree in expressing inferiority but differ (like above and over) in the immediacy of the relation expressed; thus, one officer may be below another in rank without being under him in immediate subordination. Similarly, with reference to deficiency, below is commonly used in general, under in more specific, relations (below the accepted standard)  (below normal temperatures)  (under six years of age)  Underneath frequently suggests social, moral, or general inferiority (married beneath herself)  (criticism beneath his notice)  (beneath contempt)  Underneath suggests, not inferiority, but something underlying and not indicated clearly by what is outwardly manifest (underneath his ingratiating manner one felt a sinister intention)  (there is something underneath this announcement, I am sure)

Ant above  —Con over (see ABOVE)

belt  *zone, *area, tract, region

bemoan  bewail, lament,  *deplor

Ant *grieve, mourn, sorrow

bemuse  *daze, stun, stupefy, benumb, paralyze, petrify

Ant *illuminate, enlighten: arouse, rouse,  *stir, awaken: excite, stimulate,  *provoke bend vb  *curve, twist

Ant contort,  *deform: deflect, divert (see TURN)

Ant straighten

beneath  underneath, under,  *below

Ant above, over

benefaction  *donation, contribution, alms

Ant *gift, present, largess, boon: *charity, philanthropy beneficial, advantageous, profitable are applied to what brings good or gain. Beneficial refers to what brings health or well-being; advantageous, to what more directly conduces to relative superiority or subserves a desirable end; profitable, to what yields useful or lucrative returns (a climate beneficial to rheumatism)  (measures . . . beneficial to the kingdom—J. R. Green)  (the enemy were in an advantageous position on the hill)  (you see . . . how swift and advantageous a harbinger it [a good reputation] is, wherever one goes—Chesterfield)  (a profitable study)  (profitable investments)

Ant maleficient

benefit vb  Benefit, profit, avail mean to do good or to be of advantage to someone. Benefit usually implies personal betterment or improvement (as of one's physical, intellectual, moral, or spiritual condition), but it may suggest enrichment or a furtherance of one's ends (a summer at the seashore benefits the entire family)  (we all benefit greatly by lighthouses, even those of us who have never seen the sea and never expect to—Shaw)  (the expansion of the city's industries benefits everyone indirectly)  Profit carries a strong implication of gain, especially material gain. It is therefore preferred to benefit when an increase or yield, as opposed to a decrease or loss, in one's store (as of wealth, power, or knowledge) is to be suggested; thus, he always profits (not benefits, unless one wishes to imply a salutary effect) by the misfortunes of
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
is . . . beleaguer ing . . . a worthy gentleman—Richardson> (the family is beleaguered by peddlers) Invest comes very close to besiege, but it does not, by comparison, carry as strong an implication of strength or of persistence in attack. In many cases it implies the use of men and weapons to prevent ingress or egress, but it carries little suggestion of frequent assaults upon the position (Astorga is invested, but has not been vigorously attacked—Wellington) (Charleston was never besieged nor was any serious effort made . . . to invest it on the land side—Spaulding) Blockade usually stresses a closing of all sea-lanes to those who wish to enter or leave hostile territory. The term usually implies the use of ships or mines to attain this end, but if the attacking country is sufficiently strong, it may imply prohibition of neutral or enemy vessels entering or leaving and efforts to seize or detain those that disobey. The object of blockading is usually to starve the enemy or to prevent the entrance of essential supplies (in any showdown the West's ultimate power to blockade might make the Russians think twice—Time).

Ana *enclose, envelop, pen: *surround, environ, encircle, encompass, hem: beset (see INFEST); assail, *attack, assault

besmirch smirch, dirty, sully, *soil, foul, befoul, grime, begrime, tarnish

Ana *spot, spatter, sprinkle

Ant cleanse

besotted infatuated, *fond, insensate

Ana fatuous, asinine, foolish, silly, *simple: *drunk, drunken, intoxicated, inebriated: *stupid, slow, dull, dense, crass

Con sensible, sane, *wise, judicious, prudent: *rational, reasonable: sober, *serious, earnest bespangle spangle, *spot, spatter, sprinkle, mottle, fleck, stipple, marble, speckle

Ana *illuminate, illumine, lighten, light: glow, *blaze, flame: *flash, gleam, sparkle, scintillate, twinkle bespangled spangled, spotted, spattered, sprinkled, mottled, flecked, stippled, marbled, speckled (see under SPOT vb)

Ana *bright, brilliant, radiant, luminous: illuminated, illuminated, lighted (see ILLUMINATE) bespeak bespeak, attest, *indicate, argue, prove

Ana manifest, evidence, *show, evince, demonstrate: imply, hint, *suggest

bestial brutish, brute, *brutal, feral, beastly

Ana debased, depraved, corrupted or corrupt (see under DEBASE): degenerate, *vicious: degraded (see ABASE): sensual, fleshly, *carnal bestow confer, present, donate, *give, afford

Ana *distribute, dispense, divide: *grant, award

bet n Bet, wager, stake, pot, ante denote in common something of value, usually money, risked in the confidence or hope that something is true or will turn out in a certain way, something else of value being risked by at least one other party in support of an opposing confidence or hope. Bet and wager are used with little distinction of meaning either of what is risked or of the act of risking it. Stake implies money or valuable bet and actually produced and entrusted to a neutral party (stakeholder) or placed in the pot in a card game. By extension a stake is anything material or nonmaterial that one stands in jeopardy of losing (and will probably always have the largest commercial stake in the African continent—LIVINGSTONE) (with my most affectionate wishes for Dr. Johnson's recovery, in which his friends . . . have so deep a stake—Dick) A pot is an aggregate of the bets made by all the bettors or players especially in poker (won several big pots in successive deals) An ante typically is a stake which each player in a poker game who wishes to continue a particular hand puts up after he has seen his original five cards but before he draws other cards, but in some games of stud or draw poker and in blackjack the ante is a compulsory stake put up by each player before the cards are seen. By extension an ante is a share or amount which must be put up, usually as a price or as a prelude to a joint venture (considerations that tend to raise the ante so as to discourage all but the most efficient producers—Amer. Fabrics) (the ante of these shareholders and other private sources of financing the steel expansion will come to about 1.7 billion dollars—Atlantic)

bête noire *abomination, bugbear, anathema bethink recollect, remind, *remember, recall, reminisce, mind better adj Better, superior, preferable mean more worthy or more pleasing than another or others. Better, which often serves as the comparative of good, in this sense implies a quality or character in a person or thing that surpasses or exceeds that in the one or ones called good (the theme is good, but I think you can write a better one) (he proposed a better scheme than any that had been discussed) Often, however, better is used in comparison or contrast with something that can be described as bad (give him time to show his better nature) (looking upon myself as no better than a dead man—Steel) or with something that may be good, bad, or indifferent yet from the point of view of the speaker or writer is to be rejected as totally undesirable in comparison (it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea—Mt 9:42) (better to reign in Hell than serve in Heaven—Milton) Superior in all its uses retains some feeling of its basic meaning, higher in physical position, which is now largely restricted to technical contexts in which it implies opposition to what is below (inferior); thus, the upper jaw or maxilla is sometimes distinguished as the superior maxilla from the lower jaw or mandible which is then designated the inferior maxilla. Superior often implies a scale (as of values or ranks) and emphasizes height (as of status, quality, or worth); thus, if a student is doing good work one might suggest that he could do better (as compared with his previous accomplishment) if he tried, and might hope that his added efforts would produce a truly superior result (as compared either with any relevant accomplishment or with a scale of possible accomplishments); one might like an author's new book better than his last but rate it superior to anything he had previously written (a sergeant is superior to a corporal) (certain rights are superior to constitutions and to statute laws—Lippincott) (the superior durability of parchment—Coulton) Superior implies a degree of experience—Trewartha) Preferable implies a choice between two things or one thing and all others usually on the ground that the thing chosen is better by comparison or is superior in quality, status, or kind. But its chief emphasis is upon relative desirability, and the other implications may be greatly biannual, biennial, semiannual, though not synonymous.

between, among are comparable when they take as object two or more persons or things and indicate their relation (as in position, in a distribution, or in participation). Between in its basic sense applies to only two objects (between Seylla and Charybdis) between two fires. When this word is used of more than two objects, it brings them severally and individually into the relation expressed a treaty between three powers (the three survivors had but one pair of shoes between them). I hope that between public business, improving studies, and domestic pleasures, neither melancholy nor caprice will find any place for entrance—Johnson. Among always implies more than two objects which it brings less definitely into the relation expressed among so many candidates one must find a good one among so many candidates one must find a good one. Among the survivors were two boys. Five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?—Jn 6:9.

beware lament, deplor, bemoan

Ana sorrow, *grieve, mourn: wail, weep, *cry

Ant rejoice

bewilder mystify, perplex, distract, *puzzle, confound, nonplus, dumbfound

Ana *confuse, addle, fuddle, muddle: fluster, flurry, perturb, agitate, upset (see DISCOMPOSE): baffle, foil (see FRUSTRATE) bewitch enchant, captivate, fascinate, charm, allure, *attract

Ana *thril, electrify: delight, *please: infuriate, enemor (see corresponding adjectives at ENAMORED)

bewitching enchanting, captivating, fascinating, charming, alluring, attractive (see under ATTRACT) biannual, biennial, semiannual, though not synonymous, are frequently confused. The chief source of confusion is biannual, which is used to mean either twice a year or happening every two years. If no clue to its meaning is given by the text, the reader will often be at a loss to determine the time expression biannual unequivocally means existing for two years or happening every two years biennial plants biennial convention biennial reunion. Semiannual is also unequivocal, since it means half-yearly, or once a year, semiannual publication semiannual payments.

bias n prejudice, prepossession, partiality, *prediction

Ana slant, standpoint, *point of view, viewpoint, angle: *leaning, propensity: inclining or inclination, predisposition, disposition (see corresponding verbs at INCLINE) Con fairness, justness, impartiality, dispassionateness (see corresponding adjectives at FAIR)

bias vb incline, dispose, predispose

Ana sway, influence, *affect, impress bicker squabble, spat, tiff, quarrel, wrangle, altercation (see under quarrel n)

Ana *contend, fight, battle, war bickering spat, tiff, squabble, *quarrel, wrangle, altercation

Ana *discord, contention, dissension, strife, conflict bid vb 1 command, order, enjoin, direct, instruct, charge

Ana *summon, summons, call, cite

Ant forbid —Con prohibit, enjoin, interdict, inhibit (see FORBID)

2 *invite, solicit, court, woo

Ana *ask, request

bid n tender, *overture, advance, approach

Ana offering or offer, proffering or proffer (see corresponding verbs at offer): *proposal, proposition: inviting or invitation, soliciting or solicitation (see corresponding verbs at invite)

biddable docile, amenable, tractable, *obedient

Ana *compliant, acquiescent: obliging, complaisant, good-natured, *amiable: submissive, *tame

Ant willful —Con intractable, refractory, recalcitrant, headstrong, ungovernable, *unruly: *obstinate, stubborn, stiff-necked, mulish bidding behest, *command, order, injunction, mandate, dictate

Ana direction, instruction (see corresponding verbs at COMMAND): summoning or summons, calling or call, citing or citation (see corresponding verbs at SUMMON) biennial *biannual, semiannual

big large, great

Ana *grand, magnificent, imposing, grandiose, majestic, august: *huge, immense, enormous, gigantic, colossal

Ant little —Con *small, diminutive, wee, tiny, petite, minute, microscopic, miniature bigot fanatic, *enthusiast, zealot

bigoted *illicit, narrow-minded, narrow, intolerant, hidebound

Con tolerant, *forbearing, lenient: *liberal, progressive, advanced, radical bill n Bill, beak, neb, nib denote the jaws of a bird together with their projecting horny covering. Bill is the general term and is used inclusively by ornithologists for such a structure; in popular usage, however, bill suggests a structure that is straight and often flattened or long and slender (as in the duck, swan, hummingbird, crane, heron, sandpiper, or snipe) or one that is short, stout, and conical (as in the cardinal bird or hawfinch). Beak is associated with striking or tearing and is the usual term for a structure, characteristic especially of birds of prey, in which the tip of the upper mandible has a sharp downward curvature and overhangs the lower mandible (as in the eagle, vulture, or hawk). Although the kite soars with unblurred beak—Shak. Neb and nib are equivalent to bill or beak chiefly in dialect or poetry but derive from this use their commoner extended sense of a jutting or pointed thing or part (the nib of a pen) bill n Bill, act, statute, law are frequently confused when used to designate a legislative measure. Bill is properly applied only to the draft of a measure submitted to a legislature for its acceptance or rejection. The other terms are properly applied only to bills which have been passed. In actual use they are practically identical. Strictly, however, a bill becomes an act when it is passed and duly signed by an executive officer; an act becomes a statute when it is legally effective and a part of the written law of the state; a statute is one kind of law (see LAW).

billingsgate scurrility, vituperation, *abuse, invective, obloquy

bind *tie

Ana *fasten, attach: *join, link, unite, connect

Ant loose: unbind

biography life, memoir, autobiography, collections are comparable when they mean a more or less detailed account of the events and circumstances of a person’s life. Biography is the technical, neutral term for this kind of writing or for an example of it; the term suggests neither length nor brevity of treatment, neither factuality nor in-biologic

101

interpretation of facts, neither partisanship nor detachment, for it may be characterized by any of these qualities, but it does imply that the course of a career is covered at least in its main events ⟨the official biography . . . written by his son is still in print and easily available—Nock⟩ ⟨Lynton Strachey's biography of Queen Victoria restricts itself to the facts which develop his conception of her⟩ Life usually suggests a fuller and more intimate treatment than biography; a work so designated may, however, be written on a brief scale or be drawn out so that very little is escaped. Life is often used in place of biography when the author especially wishes to suggest a vivid or graphic or interpretive account or to imply the addition of firsthand material (as letters or a journal); the term is also often used in the combination “life and times” as the title for a biography placing the subject in the background of his period ⟨Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson⟩ ⟨Ray Stannard Baker's Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson⟩ ⟨Life and Times of Jesus by J. F. Clarke⟩ Memoir (or often the plural mem-oirs) refers to a biography written by one who has intimate knowledge of its details; although it does not necessarily imply that the subject of the biography is the writer, it very frequently does so. Also, memoir may suggest reminis- cences of a whole or of part of a life; the term therefore carries no promise of completeness, or fullness, but it does connote a more personal approach than biography or, usu- ally, than life ⟨Hallam Tennyson's biography of his father is called Alfred, Lord Tennyson: A Memoir⟩ ⟨Its spirit is so devout as to make it almost more a memoir than a biography—Nock⟩ Autobiography refers to a biography of oneself typically written toward the end of one's life or at the completion of one's active career. Autobiography usually implies some distinction in the writer and a demand for or the desire to give information about the personalities and events of his time or about the background of the events in which he has played a part. The term is seldom used in the titles of books and is preferred as a designation of a type ⟨My Life is Havelock Ellis's autobiography ⟩ ⟨what would we give for such an autobiography of Shakespeare—Carlyle⟩ Confessions as a type belong to the genre of autobiography. Confessions are usually written by a person who desires to avow fully the experiences of his life, both shameful and creditable. The motive of such a book is as varied as the books themselves; thus, to give extremes, the Confessions of St. Augustine were written for the glorification of God, who has brought him out of a life of sin; the Confessions of Rousseau were written to reveal truly and sincerely all his experiences of his life, both shameful and creditable. The motive does imply that the course of a career is covered at least in deficiency which may be expressed on the one hand in extreme delicacy ⟨something dreamy, ambiguous, almost epicene—Norman Douglas⟩ or on the other in utter decadence ⟨the glass of fashion and the mold of form, so dainty a figure, indeed, that he turned Mark Twain's stomach and appears as an epicene clown in the American's robust story—G. W. Johnson⟩ bite ⟨particle, mite, smidgen, whit, atom, iota, jot, tittle Ana piece, fragment, detail, fraction, *part, portion⟩ bite, gnaw, champ, gnash are comparable when they mean to attack with or as if with the teeth. Bite fundamentally implies a getting of the teeth, especially the front teeth, into something so as to grip, pierce, or tear off ⟨bite an apple deeply⟩ ⟨bite into a cookie⟩ ⟨bite off a piece of molasses candy⟩ Sometimes bite denotes to wound by biting ⟨the dog has bitten a boy⟩ (unable to fight with hands or feet, he savagely bit his antagonist) In extended use bite implies unusual power of penetration or power of cutting into something so that it stings or pricks, or gives support to a good grip or hold ⟨scissors that snip sheet steel and bite off heavy bars—Shaw⟩ ⟨bite an etching plate with acid⟩ ⟨saws . . . as they . . . bite the biologic n *drug, simple, medicinal, pharmaceutical biotype *habitat, range, station birthright 1 *right, appanage, prerogative, privilege, perquisite 2 patrmony, *heritage, inheritance biseulural adj Bisexual, hermaphroditic, hermaphroditic, androgynous, epinec are comparable when meaning combining male and female qualities. The first four of these terms may be used interchangeably to mean being structurally or functionally both male and female; they may apply to all kinds of living beings and may designate a normal or an abnormal state. Bisexual also is applied to human mental or behavioral qualities ⟨careers catastrophically broken by the vagaries of bisexual personality —New Republic⟩ and, more precisely, designates the individual who responds sexually to members of both sexes ⟨the ancient Greeks who were notoriously bisexual (women for breeding and boys for pleasure)—Gerber⟩ Such use need not imply abnormality ⟨the author accepts the notion of the bisexual character of man—Mullahy⟩ Hermaphroditic and hermaphrodite when applied to human beings usually indicate primarily the presence of physical characteristics and especially of actual gonads of both sexes in the same individual and imply an abnormal state ⟨hermaphroditic children, where both ovaries and testes are present—Newsweek⟩ Hermaphroditic frequently or hermaphrodite occasionally has extended use in which it suggests the combination of two readily distinguishable and often more or less incongruous elements; thus, a hermaphrodite wagon is one made up of a two-wheeled cart with an extra pair of wheels and a rack added; her-maphrodite calipers have one caliper and one divider leg ⟨a young Königsberg architect, a Bait (that is to say a kind of hermaphrodite Russian and Prussian too)—Clare Sheridan⟩ ⟨everybody in every war, barring the hermaphrodite soldier who wears a uniform but doesn't fight, lives in a sort of hell—Kenneth Roberts⟩ Androgy-nous in reference to human beings or to qualities or characteristics rarely connotes abnormality but rather suggests a congruous and pleasing blending ⟨has the an-drogy nous Greek beauty which suits a youth or a goddess equally well, combining the vigor of one sex with the grace of the other—The Critic⟩ ⟨if one is a man, still the woman part of the brain must have effect; and a woman must also have intercourse with the man in her. Co-leridge perhaps meant this when he said that a great mind is androgy nous—Woolf⟩ Androgy nous is also the preferred term for use in respect to deities, their attributes or appearances ⟨a somewhat androgy nous Apollo—Grig-on⟩ ⟨the androgy nous character of the Bodhisattva: masculine Avalokiteshvara, feminine Kwan Yin—Joseph Campbell⟩ Unlike the preceding terms, epicene has no technical application to physical or functional status; however, in its often allusive reference to sex in characterizing human beings, their attributes, or the products of their being it may approach the other terms in meaning ⟨decapitated by a hero disguised as a woman . . . his brothers suspect the epicene wife because of her masculine arms—Lowie⟩ More often epicene suggests deficient sexuality and may imply intersexuality, effeminacy, or sexlessness ⟨the hearty sportsman who is really epicene beneath his tweeds—Gibbs⟩ (if only all this messy business of sex could be done away with and we could all remain . . . happy, epicene Peter Pans—Dwight Mac-donald) In some contexts epicene loses all direct reference to sex and suggests rather the weakness inherent in deficiency which may be expressed on the one hand in extreme delicacy ⟨something dreamy, ambiguous, almost epicene—Norman Douglas⟩ or on the other in utter decadence ⟨the glass of fashion and the mold of form, so dainty a figure, indeed, that he turned Mark Twain's stomach and appears as an epicene clown in the American's robust story—G. W. Johnson⟩ Bizarre vb debar, shut out, *exclude, eliminate, rule blab vb blackguard *villain, scoundrel, knave, rascal, rogue, are applied to things with an unpleasant taste bitter, acrid biting cutting, crisp, trenchant, *incisive, clear-cut delicious, luscious, *delightful delicious —

Blame n Blame, culpability, guilt, fault are comparable when they mean responsibility for misdeed or delinquency.
Blame is a term of shifting denotations, sometimes meaning the reprehension, criticism, or censure of those who find fault or judge one's work or acts. I have never desired praise . . . I have been indifferent to, if not indeed contemptuous of, blame—Ellis or sometimes a charge or accusation of some fault, misdeed, or delinquency < fear of incurring blame in Wiltstoken for wantonly opposing her daughter's obvious interests—Shaw >
When the term denotes responsibility for wrongdoing or delinquency, it also implies the meriting of reproof, censure, or the appropriate penalty < he took on himself all the blame for the project's failure > < they tried to shift the blame for their defeat > Often the term means ultimate rather than immediate responsibility < the blame [ for backwardness in American education ] has sometimes been put, and with some justice, upon our migratory habits and upon the heterogeneous character of our population—Grandgent > Culpability usually means little more or no more than the fact or the state of being responsible for an act or condition that may be described as wrong, harmful, or injurious < they could not prove his culpability for the accident > < as if the estrangement between them had come of any culpability of hers—Dickens > an inc escapable responsibility rests upon this country to conduct an inquiry . . . into the culpability of those whom there is probable cause to accuse of atrocities and other crimes—R. H. Jackson > Guilt usually carries an implication of a connection with misdeeds of a grave or serious character from the moral and social points of view. Also it usually implies a deserving of severe punishment (as condemnation, loss of freedom, or, in the case of sin, loss of salvation) or of a definite legal penalty (as a fine, imprisonment, or death). Therefore, when the term denotes responsibility for a crime or sin, it also carries implications of need of proof before punishment can be determined or forgiveness granted < though she was strongly suspected of murder, her guilt was not established until after her death > < since he admitted his guilt, he saved the state the cost of a trial > < to confess one's sins is to acknowledge one's guilt for those sins > Fault (see also FAULT 2) is often used in place of culpability as a simpler word < the fault is her parents', not the child's > < the fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings—Shak. >

Guilt responsibility, accountability, answerability (see corresponding adjectives at RESPONSIBLE): censure, condemnation, denunciation, reprehension (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) either in his own knowledge or in that of others, by his confession or by proof (often legal proof) of his responsibility; the term may stress either the fact that guilt has been proved or the fact or the fear of resulting punishment (the defendant was found guilty) suspicion always haunts the guilty mind; the thief doth fear each bush an officer—Shak.> (let no guilty man escape, if it can be avoided—Grant) Often the term suggests merely a state of mind (as a consciousness that one has committed a sin or a crime or a fear that one is justly suspected of wrongdoing or of a misdeed) a guilty conscience) (there is no use in making the refractory child feel guilty—Russell) A person is culpable who has been shown to be blameworthy and open to severe censure or condemnation (the judge . . . remarked that those whom Smith had gullied were almost as culpable as he—Altick) The term is also applicable to a blameworthy act, condition, or practice for which one is responsible or which leads to wrong or harm (culpable ignorance) (culpable neglect) (is it not . . . culpable and unworthy, thus beforehand to slur her honor?—Shelley) Ant blameless — Con faultless, *impeccable, flawless

blasphemy, profanity, swearing, cursing blasphemy 1 Blasphemy, profanity, swearing, cursing are comparable when meaning impious or irreverent speech. Blasphemy, the strongest term (see also profanation), applies strictly to an intentional or malicious utterance in which the Supreme Being is defied or offered indignity: as such it is regarded as a serious sin in theology and as a crime at the common law <genuine blasphemy, genuine in spirit and not purely verbal, is the product of partial belief and is as impossible to the complete atheist as to the perfect Christian—T. S. Eliot> Profanity has a wider range and includes all irreverent reference to holy things; it is particularly applied to speech in which the names of God, Jesus, and the Virgin Mary are used lightly and irreverently, especially in expressing rage or passion in oaths, curses, and imprecations (he had what one might call a preliminary recourse in his profanity, those “scorching, singing blasts” he was always directing at his companions—Brooks) Swearing and cursing are forms of profanity, the former stressing indulgence in profane and often meaningless oaths; the latter, indulgence in profane curses or imprecations (as by calling on God to damn or punish the object of one’s wrath or hatred) among laborers and others, that ungodly custom of swearing is too frequently heard, to the dishonor of God and contempt of authority—Wren) (why, what an ass am I! . . . that I . . . must . . . unpack my heart with words, and fall a-cursing—Shak) Ana insult, *affront, indignity: scurrility, vituperation (see abuse n) Ant adoration — Con worship, reverence, veneration (see under Revere) 2 *profanation, desecration, sacrilege ana debasement, corruption, perversion (see corresponding verbs at Debase): misrepresentation, falsehood, untruth, *lie

blast n blight, nip (see under blast vb)

ana destruction (see corresponding verb at Destroy): extermination, extirpation, wiping out (see corresponding verbs at exterminate): ruin, wreck (see ruin vb)

blast vb Blast, blight, nip mean as verbs, to ruin or to injure severely, suddenly, or surprisingly and as nouns, the effect of such ruin or injury. Blast which basically implies a violent outbreak (as of wind) carries the implication of something pernicious that comes with sweeping force to destroy or demolish or to bring with it complete frustration (I’ll cross it, though it blast me—Shak) O fairest flower, no sooner blown but blasted—Milton) the thunder cracked again. It is terrifying in the tropics, that sound. . . . You expect to be annihilated, blasted, burned to a crisp—McFee) our shelter from the stormy blast—Watts) the East bowed low before the blast—Arnold) Blight primarily implies a withering and killing of plant tissue by some natural agency (as disease, pests, or adverse weather) dahlia blighted by an unseasonable frost) (late blight of potatoes) Similarly in extended use the term implies a destructive altering (as of a plan, a hope, or a life) by some external but relevant agency (a secret marriage . . . was a blight on his life—George Eliot) when the true scholar gets thoroughly to work, his logic is remorseless, his art is implacable, and his sense of humor is blighted—Henry Adams) a Peloponnesian or a European war lays its blight on whole peoples—Montague) (The Moonstone is very near to Bleak House. The theft of a diamond has some of the same blighting effect on the lives about it as the suit in Chancery—T. S. Eliot) Nip may imply a squeezing, a pinching, or more specifically, a cutting off between two edges, surfaces, or points; in extended use, it implies the acting of something comparable (as a killing frost or a bitter wind) that has power to damage, to check, or to distress (so have I seen some tender slip saved with care from winter’s nip—Milton) the wind that blows between the worlds, it nipped him to the bone—Kipling) (most of the flowers had been nipped by a heavy frost) In the idiomatic phrase “to nip in the bud” nip harks back to the implication of cutting off and suggests a terminating or destroying of something before it has fully developed or matured (the plans for an uprising were nipped in the bud) nip a scandal in the bud (Ana) destroy; *ruin, wreck; *exterminate, extirpate, wipe: *injure, damage, spoil blasphemous 2 blasphemous, profane, sacrilegious

blasphemy

ana cursing, damning, exebringating, anathematizing, objurgating (see Exebrate): *irreligious, ungodly, godless

Ant reverent

blasphemy

ana analogous words Ana antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
bleaze vb Blaze, flame, flare, glare, glow are comparable both as verbs meaning to burn or appear to burn brightly and as nouns denoting a brightly burning light or fire. Blaze implies great activity in burning, the thorough kindling of the burning substance or material, and the radiation of intense light and often heat (the sun blazed down upon them with a crushing violence—Forester) everyone fought fire. Everyone went to the woods and thrashed out some new blaze—Vorse (her eyes blazing in her white face—Stevenson) Flame suggests a darting tongue or tongues of fire formed by rapidly burning gas or vapor; it therefore often connotes less steadiness than blaze and sometimes less intense heat and light (the burning house was soon a mass of flames) (the torches flamed in the wind) (the dry fuel soon burst into flame) (dimmed hope’s newly kindled flame—Shelley) Flare implies flame, especially a flame darting up suddenly against a dark background or from a dying fire (torches that guttered and flared—Howlett) he . . . lighted a cigarette and then remembered that the flare of the match could probably be seen from the station—Anderson—Glare (see also Gaze) emphasizes the steady emission or reflection of bright light; it sometimes connotes an almost unendurable brilliancy (dazed by the lantern glare—Kipling) (the snow glares in the sunlight) (the glare of a forest fire in the sky) (he . . . lets the fire glare on the sullen face for a moment, and it sears itself into the memory forever—J. R. Lowell) (his days were passed in the glare of publicity—Buchan) Glow also stresses the emission of light, but it suggests an absence of flame and therefore connotes steadiness, intensity, radiance without brilliancy, and often warmth and duration (the glow of coals) (her fine effect of glowing from within as a lamp glows—Mary Austin) (the fire that burned within him, that glowed with so strange and marvelous a radiance in almost all he wrote—Huxley) Ana illuminate, illumine, light: burn: flash, gleam, glance bleach vb *whiten, etiolate, decolorize, Blanch Ant dye bleak cheerless, dispiriting, *dismal, dreary, desolate Ana *cold, chilly, frigid, freezing: barren, *bare, bald: stripped, denuded (see strip vb) blemish n Blemish, defect, flaw all denote an imperfection. Blemish applies to something (as a spot or stain) that is external or superficial and mars or disfigures the appearance of an object (on their sustaining garments not a blemish—Shak.) (he sturdily perfected nature by correcting all the little blemishes of manner and little weaknesses of character in order to produce an immaculate effect—Parrington) (a reputation without a blemish—Holmes) (blind Milton was dictating the last books of Paradise Lost to his amanuensis—Altick) (if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch—Mr 15:14) It is as often employed in an extended sense, especially as implying a lack of the mental, moral, or spiritual vision essential to the perception or discernment of what actually exists or what is really true (His divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness . . . But he that lacketh these things is blind—2 Pet 1:3-9) (expose the merits to me if you think me blind—Justice Holmes) Blind is also applicable to things devoid of intelligence or of ability to know whether they are moving or tending (blind, mechanical forces of society—Wilde) or to acts, emotions, and attitudes which are the result of or which produce mental, moral, or spiritual blindness (blind terror) (blind acceptance of authority) or to something (as a space or a structure) that is so dark or obscure or obstructed that one cannot see through, into, or around it (a blind wall) (blind alley) (a blind corner) Sightless is sometimes the preferred term when permanent total blindness is implied (the sightless Homer) (rehabilitation of the sightless and partially blind—Current Biol.) Purlblind is disused in the sense of totally blind (purlblind Argus, all eyes and no sight—Shak.) but it persists in the sense of nearly blind, or without sight enough to do one’s work or make one’s way successfully (purlblind with cataracts, he gets a living by misprinting, by hand, a four-page paper—Gerald Kersh) More usually, purlblind implies the imperfection or even the absence of mental, moral, or spiritual vision and usually connotes obtuseness or shortsightedness that comes from ignorance, stupidity, or indifference being—Guérard> Ana blot, stain, *stigma: tainting or taint, pollution, defilement (see corresponding verbs at contaminate): *fault, failing, frailty: *lack, want, privation Ant immaculateness—Con purity, simplicity (see corresponding adjectives at pure): cleanliness, cleanliness (see corresponding adjectives at clean): clearness, transparency, pellucidity (see corresponding adjectives at clear) blemish quail, shrink, *recoil, flinch, wince Ana evade, elude, avoid, shun, eschew, *escape: tremble, quiver, shudder, quake, *shake Con *bear, suffer, endure, abide, stand blend vb fuse, *mix, merge, coalesce, mingle, commingle, amalgamate Ana combine, unite, conjoin (see join): integrate: consolidate, unify, *compact Ant resolve—Con *analyze, break down: *separate, part, divorce: decompose, disintegrate (see decay) blend n *mixture, admixture, compound, composite, amalgam blessed *holy, sacred, divine, spiritual, religious Ana accused blessedness beatitude, bliss, *happiness, felicity Ana enjoyment, fruition, joy, *pleasure Ant misery, dolor—Con suffering, *distress, agony: woe, anguish, *sorrow, grief bright n blast, nip (see under blast vb) Ana *injury, damage, hurt, harm: frustration, thwarting (see corresponding verbs at frustrate) bright vb *blast, nip Ana *injure, damage, hurt, harm, spoil: *maim, cripple, batter: frustrate, thwart blind adj Blind, sightless, purblind mean lacking or deficient in the power to see or to discriminate objects. Blind is used to imply absence or deprivation or gross restriction of the power of vision, either by congenital defect or as a result of disease or of an injury to the organs of vision (the very years when the blind Milton was dictating the last books of Paradise Lost to his amanuensis—Altick) (if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch—Mr 15:14) It is as often employed in an extended sense, especially as implying a lack of the mental, the moral, or spiritual vision essential to the perception or discernment of what actually exists or what is really true (His divine power hath given us all things that pertain unto life and godliness . . . But he that lacketh these things is blind—2 Pet 1:3-9) (expose the merits to me if you think me blind—Justice Holmes) Blind is also applicable to things devoid of intelligence or of ability to know whether they are moving or tending (blind, mechanical forces of society—Wilde) or to acts, emotions, and attitudes which are the result of or which produce mental, moral, or spiritual blindness (blind terror) (blind acceptance of authority) or to something (as a space or a structure) that is so dark or obscure or obstructed that one cannot see through, into, or around it (a blind wall) (blind alley) (a blind corner) Sightless is sometimes the preferred term when permanent total blindness is implied (the sightless Homer) (rehabilitation of the sightless and partially blind—Current Biol.) Purlblind is disused in the sense of totally blind (purlblind Argus, all eyes and no sight—Shak.) but it persists in the sense of nearly blind, or without sight enough to do one’s work or make one’s way successfully (purlblind with cataracts, he gets a living by misprinting, by hand, a four-page paper—Gerald Kersh) More usually, purlblind implies the imperfection or even the absence of mental, moral, or spiritual vision and usually connotes obtuseness or shortsightedness that comes from ignorance, stupidity, or indifference A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk () indicates place of treatment of each group.
blind 105 blossom

⟨the intolerable narrowness and the purblind conscience of the society—George Eliot⟩ ⟨in Washington purblind congressmen, sensitive only to the demands of big business, fastened . . . the McKinley tariff—Nevins & Commager⟩

Con seeing, perceiving, discerning, noticing, noting (see see): *aware, alive, conscious, sensible, cognizant, awake blind n Blind, shade, shutter mean a device that serves as a screen for a window. Blind is used especially in British countries to designate a window covering, usually of fabric and operating on a roller, that shuts out the sunlight or at night prevents those outside from seeing in. In this sense shade is more usual in the United States. The use of the term blind as an element of or as a shortened form for venetian blind is common both in American and British countries. Venetian blind refers to a flexible inside curtain composed of light and narrow laths fixed on tapes which may be raised or lowered as desired and whose laths may be opened or closed according to the amount of light needed. But blind (or blinds, since a pair of the devices is usually fitted to a single window) is used chiefly for a device fitted on the outside or on the inside of a window, made of a wooden frame with slats that are movable or fixed, and typically hinged at the side so that when opened it lies flat against the outside wall or folds into an inner recess of the window frame. This device is also called a shutter. But shutter is actually a more inclusive term and implies a device that can be shut (as to exclude light, rain, or wind, to insure privacy, or to make safe against intruders). The term therefore includes such devices as those made of solid panels whether used singly or in pairs or sets to each window, and whether left permanently in place or hung when desired ⟨storm shutters⟩ ⟨hurricane shutters⟩ ⟨each night the shopkeeper put up his shutters⟩

blink vb *wink

Ana ignore, disregard, overlook, slight, *neglect: evade, elude, avoid, shun (see escape)

Con *see, note, notice, observe, remark

bliss beatitude, blessedness, felicity, *happiness

Ana enjoyment, joy, delectation, fruition, *pleasure: rapture, ecstasy, transport blihe jocund, *merry, jovial, jolly

Ana gay, *lively, animated, vivacious, sprightly: joyful, joyous, lighthearted, *glad, happy, cheerful: buoyant, effervescent, volatile (see elastic)

Ant morose: abstrалиval —Con sad, depressed, dejected, gloomy (see corresponding nouns at sadness): *sullen, glum, dour, saturnine: *melancholic, melancholy

blockvb obstruct, bar, dam, impede, *hinder

Con *advance, forward, further, promote blockade n Blockade, siege are comparable when denoting an attempt of a belligerent force to break down the resistance of the enemy by preventing egress or ingress of men or entrance of supplies over a considerable period of time. Blockade is used chiefly of an attempt made to close a port, harbor, or coast, especially by effectively investing it with warships or with mines so that fresh supplies (as of food, fuel, and ammunition) are cut off from the enemy ⟨run a blockade⟩ ⟨raise a blockade⟩ (the allied blockade of the North Sea avenues to the German coast during the war) Siege is applied chiefly to a military as opposed to a naval attempt. The term implies investment with troops on all sides of a fortified place (often a city). It also suggests, as blockade does not, frequent assaults by the besieging forces as efforts to compel surrender ⟨the siege of Troy⟩ ⟨the siege of Vicksburg in the American Civil War⟩

blockade vb *besiege, beleaguer, invest

Ana *close, shut: block, impede, obstruct (see hinder): *enclose: *surround, environ, encircle

bloodless anemic, *pal

Ana *colorless, uncolored: wishy-washy, vapid, inane (see insipid)

Ant sanguine: plethoric —Con vital, alive, *living: vivid, *graphic: *vigoristic, lusty, nervous bloody, sanguinary, sanguine, sanguineous, gory are comparable when they mean affected by or involving the shedding of blood. Bloody may be used in place of any of the succeeding words, but it specifically and distinctively applies to that which is covered with blood or is actually or apparently made up of blood ⟨a bloody knife⟩ ⟨bloody hands⟩ ⟨a bloody discharge from a wound⟩ Sanguinary and bloody are also when a simpler, more forcible word is desired apply to something attended by or someone bent upon bloodshed ⟨a sanguinary conflict⟩ ⟨sanguinary deeds⟩ ⟨my thoughts be bloody, or be nothing worth—Shak⟩ ⟨a bloody battle⟩ Sanguine and sanguineous are used chiefly in a literary context in place of either of the preceding words or specifically implying an association with the invisible blood extract or the color of blood ⟨to find his way through the sanguine labyrinth of passion through which he was wandering—Wilde⟩ ⟨his passion, cruel grown, took on a hue fierce and sanguineous—Keats⟩ Gory sometimes suggests clotted blood, but more often it suggests a profusion of blood that testifies to slaughter ⟨a gory fight⟩ ⟨never shake thy gory locks at me—Shak⟩ bloom n flower, blow, blossom (see under blossom vb)

bloom vb flower, blow, *blossom

Ana flourish, thrive, prosper (see succeed)

blossom n flower, bloom, blow (see under blossom vb)

blossom vb Blossom, bloom, flower, blow are comparable as verbs when meaning to become florescent and as nouns when meaning the period or state of florescence or (except for blow) meaning the florescent part itself. Blossom may be used of a plant that reaches the condition of florescence, but typically it applies to trees, shrubs, and herbaceous plants (and to their florescent parts) that normally proceed to bear what is ordinarily (not technically) called a fruit ⟨the cherry trees are in blossom⟩ ⟨the apple trees will blossom next month⟩ ⟨the tomatoes have shed their blossoms⟩ Bloom, though sometimes employed interchangeably with blossom, is typically used of such herbaceous plants, shrubs, or trees (or their florescent parts) as have reached the height of their beauty during the period of florescence ⟨the roses are in bloom⟩ ⟨the iris is blooming⟩ ⟨the rhododendron has blooms in early June in this locality⟩ Flower in technical use as a noun refers to the part of a seed plant which normally bears reproductive organs; in popular use it is usually restricted to such part when its gross structure is showy and conspicuously colored or white. Fragrance, freshness, shortness of life or of beauty are the implications in the popular use of the noun and the verb that distinguishes flower from bloom chiefly but also from blossom; also flower is often thought of as apart from the plant where it has grown ⟨a bouquet of flowers⟩ ⟨the rambler’s period of flowering is short⟩ ⟨one after another the garden plants flowered, but always in the meantime some had faded⟩ (as for man, his days are: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth—Ps 103:15) ⟨full many a flower is born to blush unseen, and waste its sweetness on the desert air—Gray⟩ ⟨there can be no perfect flower without fragrance—Symons⟩ Blow, in this

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Definition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>bluejacket</td>
<td>mariner, sailor, seaman, tar, gob</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bluff</td>
<td>blunt, brusque, curt, crusty, gruff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blueprint</td>
<td>sketch, draft, tracing, plot, diagram, delineate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cry</td>
<td>weep, wail, keen, whimper</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blubber</td>
<td>blub, lumph, lollop, bumble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blow</td>
<td>blossom, bloom, flower</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blot</td>
<td>stigma, brand, stain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blush</td>
<td>flush</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bluff</td>
<td>mean, rude, uncivil, unpolite</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

A colon colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

A colon colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
boast vb Boast, brag, vaunt, crow, gasconade mean to give vent in speech to one's pride in oneself or something (as family, connections, race, or accomplishments) intimately connected with oneself. Boast and vaunt are often used transitorily as well as intransitorily; the other words are chiefly intransitive. Boast is the general term; it may or may not carry a suggestion of contempt or impute exaggeration, ostentation, or vaingloriousness to the boaster. What folly then to boast what arms can do!—Milton (The Wretch...abors the craft he boasted of before—Cowper) He was childishly anxious to boast that he had walked the whole of the six or seven miles—Mackenzie) Brag is more forceful than boast and carries a stronger implication of exaggeration and conceit; it often also implies glorying in one's superiority or in what one can do as well as in what one is, or has, or has done (Nor shall death brag thou wander'st in his shade—Shak) (Even when they brag, their eyes are generally self-mocking, mildly wise—Lord) (That we may brag we have a lass, there's none again sae bonie—Burns) Vaunt is more literary than either of the preceding terms and implies habitual or extravagant self-vaunting (Vaunted with pride)—Kersh Gasconade is the least common of these terms and implies habitual or extravagant self-vaunting (an enlightened statesman and not a gasconading militarist—Bowers)

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Analogous Words

Bogglé vb stickle, stick, strain, scrape, *demur, balk, jib, bogus adj *counterfeit, spurious, fake, sham, pseudo, pinchbeck, phony

Ana fraudulent, deceitful, deceptive (see corresponding nouns at IMPOSTURE): duping, hoaxing, gulling, hoodwink- ing (see DUPE)

Con *authentic, genuine, bona fide, veritable boil n *abscess, furuncle, carbuncle, pimple, pustule

boil vb Boil, seethe, simmer, parboil, stew mean to prepare (as food) in a liquid heated to the point where it emits considerable steam. Boil implies the bubbling of the liquid and the rapid escape of steam; it may be applied to the liquid alone, but usually it suggests a fast method of accomplishing an end (as cooking or cleansing) <boil water> (the water is boiling) <boil eggs> <boil clothes> Seethe differs only slightly from boil. It emphasizes the subjection of something to the influence of a boiling liquid in order to cook it thoroughly or to make an infusion of it <tomorrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the Lord: bake that which ye will bake today, and seethe that ye will seethe—Exod 16:23> This difference, though slight, is also apparent in extended senses of boil and of seethe, for boil suggests a sudden rise and ebullition <he boiled with anger> and seethe suggests the agitation and turmoil which follows a cause of excitement <the crowd was seething with excitement> Simmer suggests that the liquid is at the point of boiling; it implies less steam and less bubbling than boil and is used, therefore, to denote a gentle and slower form of cooking <corned beef should be simmered, not boiled> <simmer milk> Parboil usually implies boiling for a limited time to prepare some food for further cooking (as by roasting or frying) <parboil potatoes prior to roasting them with beef> <parboil a chicken before frying it> Stew implies long slow simmering, usually in a closed vessel; it is used especially in reference to meats or fruits cooked until they are tender or broken up <stew beef and kidneys together> <stew fruit for dessert>

boisterous obstreperous, clamorous, blatant, *vociferous, strident

Ana sporting, brawling, rollicking, frolicking, gambling (see PLAY vb): *unruly, ungovernable: *indecorous, unseemly bold *brave, courageous, unafraid, fearless, intrepid, valiant, valorous, dauntless, daunted, doughty, audacious

Ana daring, reckless, venturesome, *adventurous, daredevil, rash, foolhardy: mettlesome, *spirited: fearless, unpresuming, unafraid (see affirmative adjectives at FEARFUL)

Ant cowardly —Con *timid, timorous: quailing, flinch- ing, shrinking, recoiling (see RECOIL) bolster vb prop, *support, sustain, buttress, brace

Ana *strengthen, reinforce, fortify: uphold, champion (see SUPPORT)

bombard assail, storm, assault, *attack

bombast, rhapsody, rant, fistian, rodomontade all designate a style of speech or writing characterized by high-flown pomposity or pretentiousness of language disproportionate to the thought or subject matter. All of them are derogatory in some degree; some of them are frankly contemptuous. Bombast does not necessarily connote emptiness of thought, but it implies inflation or a grandiosity or impressiveness in language and style which so outruns the thought that the attention is distracted from the matter and concentrated upon the manner of expression. When used in description rather than in censure, bombast often additionally suggests a soaring eloquence or a kind of oratorical grandeur, such as is found in Marlowe’s Tamburlaine the Great or is characteristic of Elizabethan drama in comparison with modern realistic drama; when used in deprecation, it suggests padding, windiness, verbosity, and exaggeration (to outweigh better pens with the swelling bombast of a bragging blank verse—Nash) (their eloquence is all bombast—Kingsley) (it looks like mere “rhetoric,” certainly not “deeds and language such as men do use.” It appears to us, in fact, forced and flagitious bombast—T. S. Eliot) Rhapsody, like bombast, may be scarcely or obviously derogatory. It designates an ecstatic or effusive utterance or writing in which the language or style is governed by the feelings rather than by logical thought. It may, at one extreme, suggest inspired utterance (as in rapture) or, at the other, a maudlin loquaciousness (O then my breast should warble airs, whose rhapsodies should feast the ears of seraphims—Quarles) (his characters... are excellently drawn, but he writes as though he had uncovered a new religion and thought it deserved a rhapsody—New Yorker) In scholarly and critical use it is often applied to a kind of writing that has no perceptible argument and is seemingly incoherent, yet moves by a kind of logic of its own from one expression of feeling or one image to another (the traditional assumption that it [Kubla Khan] was a rhapsody of enchanting images which “led to nothing”—Times Lit. Sup.) Rant and fistian are definitely terms of derogation. Both are applicable to bombast and rhapsody at their worst, but rant stresses its extravagance or violence of expression or utterance and fistian the banality of its quality or the preposterousness of its character (the hoarse rant of that demagogue fills the air and distracts the people’s minds—Ascoli) (he, whose fistian’s so sublimely bad, it is not poetry but prose run mad—Pope) (romantic fistian; which may be defined as the enormous disproportion between emotion and the outer object or incident on which it expends itself. Victor Hugo abounds in fistian of this kind—Babbitt) Rodomontade is applied especially to the rant of the bragart, of the demagogue, or of anyone given to bluster and magniloquie (the brothers set about abusing each other in good round terms and with each intemperate sally their phrases became more deeply colored with the tincture of Victorian rodomontade—Marsh)

Ana grandiloquie, magniloquence, rhetoric (see corresponding adjectives at RHETORICAL): inflatedness, turgidity, timidity, flatulence (see corresponding adjectives at INFLATED)

Con temperativeness or temperance, sobriety or sobriety, unimpassionedness (see corresponding adjectives at SOBER): dispassionateness, justness (see corresponding adjectives at FAIR)

bombastic grandiloquent, magniloquent, *rhetorical, aureate, flowery, euphistic

Ana *inflated, turgid, timid: verbose, diffuse, *wordy: eloquent, voluble, fluent, articulate, *vocal bona fide *authentic, genuine, veritable

Ana true, *real, actual: *reliable, dependable, trust- worthy: *pure, absolute, simple, sheer

Ant counterfeit, bogus —Con simulated, feigned, pretended, affected, ashamed, assumed (see ASSUME) bond adj *bound, indentured, articulated

Ant free —Con emancipated, manumitted, liberated, freed (see FREE vb): independent (see FREE adj) bond n 1 Bond, band, tie all denote something which serves to bind or bring two or more things firmly together, but they differ from each other not only in implications but in their specific applications. Bond often retains its basic implication of restraint upon the freedom of the individual. It may be applied to a restraining device (as a rope, a chain, a fetter, or a manacle) which prevents a prisoner from escaping or, more broadly, to something that interferes with one's liberty and holds one down (it has been said that only the dying man is free, for death breaks every bond). But bond is equally applicable to something that connects or brings together two individuals (persons or things) or all the individuals comprising a group or mass into a stable union. In this sense the term may and often does refer to a connection that is primarily spiritual; occasionally, especially when the plural is used, there is also a hint of restraint or constraint (the bond of faith) (the bond of fellowship) (the bonds of a common tradition) (the religion of the Greeks) [was] . . . the bond of their political life—Dickinson] Band (see also strip) may imply, like bond, a restraint, a fastening, or a connection, but it more usually also implies something mucro in the form of a flat and narrow piece of material often one that forms a hoop or ring; thus, a band around the hair is worn to confine the hair and may be a ribbon with ends tied together or a hoop or half hoop (as of metal or plastic); an endless strip of rubber or elastic material is called a rubber band; a hooplike piece which holds together two parts of a structure (as the barrel and stock of a gun or two sections of a pillar) is called a bond: also, a straight member of a wall (as continuous moldering, a frieze, or a strip of brickwork in a different pattern) often serves not only as an ornament but also as a union or connection between two sections of the wall or structure, and is therefore called in architecture a band. Tie basically applies to a bond or band for fastening or restraining which is of a flexible substance (as rope, cord, or string) and can be secured by knotting the loose ends together or one end to the thing fastened and the other to its support. Consequently, in extended use, tie tends to suggest a less integral union and often more flexibility in the connection than bond, which it otherwise closely resembles; thus, one breaks the bond of friendship but one severs the tie of friendship; the ties of blood suggest the pull exerted by blood relationship, but the bond of blood suggests an obligation or a duty. Tie, as applied to specific fastenings or connections, is used chiefly when the object of the connection is not (as in bond) to form into an integral unit or (as in band) to keep closely united or together but to bring together two things that are affected by common forces so that when they are subjected to strain or tension they will not spread or pull apart; thus, the transverse bars on which rails rest and which serve to keep the rails equidistant from each other are called ties: a piece (as a beam, a post, or a rod) which connects two parts or sides of a structure (as the ribs of a vessel or the two sides of a pointed arch) and serves to brace and stay the whole is called a tie. 2 surety, security, bail, *guarantee, guaranty bondage *servitude, slavery boner blunder, mistake, *error, howler, bull, slip, lapse, faux pas bonny comely, pretty, good-looking, fair, lovely, *beautiful, handsome, beauteous, pulchritudinous Ana pleasing, agreeable, *pleasant: attractive, charming, captivating (see under ATTRACT) Ant homely bonus bounty, *premium, reward, guerdon, award, prize, meed bon vivant gastronome, gourmet, gourmand, *epicure, glutton Ant ascetic bookkeeper, accountant, auditor. A bookkeeper keeps a regular, concise, and accurate record of business transactions by making the proper entries in the various books of account for that purpose. An accountant is a person skilled in the art of bookkeeping and may be employed either to organize and set up a system of records suitable to the needs of a particular organization or to investigate and report upon the financial condition of an organization by a study and analysis of its books of record. An auditor is an examiner who checks and verifies the financial records of an organization to see that these records correctly represent its condition. boon favor, *gift, present, gratuity, largess Ana benefaction, *donation, contribution Ant calamity —Con *misfortune, mischance, mishap: *trial, cross, tribulation, affliction boor, churl, lout, clown, clodhopper, bumpkin, hick, yokel, rube are comparable when meaning an uncouth, ungainly fellow. Most of these words may be applied to rustics, but they tend increasingly to imply reference to breeding, manners, and appearance rather than to origin or social status. The same distinctions in connotations and implications are apparent in the adjectives derived from the first four of these nouns, boorish, churlish, loutish, clownish. Boor implies an opposition to gentleman, especially in respect to characteristics indicative of good breeding and fineness of feeling. As a rule boor and boorish imply variously rudeness of manner, insensitiveness, lack of ceremony, or unwillingness to be agreeable in the presence of others (love makes gentlemen even of boors, whether noble or villain—Henry Adams) (to the European mind, with all its goodwill, the very things that make us more powerful make us also more boorish—Lerner] Churl may suggest low birth or social status but more often ill-bred surly meanness of expression or attitude. The latter implication is far more common in the adjective churlish, which characteristically implies surliness, irresponsiveness, or ungraciousness (warns all whom it concerns, from King to churl—John Morley) (by what magic wasit that this divine sweet creature could be allied with that old churl —Meredith) (they object to the dairymaids and men crossing the elm vista . . . . It seems churlish—Shaw] Lout and loutish apply especially to hulky youths or men without regard to origin and usually suggest stupidity, clumsiness, and sometimes, abruptness of bearing or demeanor. Both words are terms of contempt frequently applied to idlers or loafers of particularly unprepossessing appearance (it was inevitable that the older boys should become mischievous louts; they bullied and tormented and corrupted the younger boys because there was nothing else to do—H. G. Wells] Clown and clownish come close to lout and loutish in connotation. Instead of stupidity, however, the terms often connote ignorance or simplicity and instead of hulkeness they suggest the unguainliness of a person whose body and movements reveal hard plodding labor (the clown, the child of nature, without guile—Cowper) When used in reference to those who are not countrymen the terms still imply reference to rustics and awkwardness and often, by association with the other sense of clown, a propensity for absurd antics (he was the sort of boy that becomes a clown and a lout as soon as he is not understood, or feels himself held cheap—D. H. Lawrence] Clodhopper distinctively suggests the frame and the heavy movements generally associated with plowmen but is not restricted in application to rustics (though honest and active they're most unattractive and awkward as awkward can be—can be. They're clumsy clodhoppers—Gilbert> Bumpkin implies a loungish suggestiveness of unfamiliarity with city ways and manners <bashful country bumpkins—Irving> Hick comes close to bumpkin and suggests the unsophisticated simple rustic <chicks of the hinterlands mistrusting city politicians> Yokel and rube more particularly suggest a rustic lack of polish or an obtuse gullibility <his mouth was agape in yokel fashion—Crane> <always a new crop of rubes waiting to be tricked out of their money>

Ant gentle

boorish loutish, clownish (see under BOOR>

Ana *awkward, clumsy, maladroit, inept: *rude, dis courteous, ungracious, uncivil, impolite, ill-mannered

Ant gentlemanly —Con *sauve, urbane, smooth: courteous, courtly, gallant, polite, *civil boost vb *lift, raise, elevate, hoist, rear, heave bootleg

booty *spoil, loot, plunder, prize, swag

bootless

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

of a possibility or risk of abrupt transition (as from one state to another)  <on the brink of a horrible danger—Wilde>

Ana *limit, bound, confine, end

Con inside, interior (see corresponding adjectives at INNER> bore vb *perforate, drill, puncture, punch, prick

Ana penetrate, pierce, *enter boredom *tedium, ennui, doldrums

Ant amusement —Con diversion, entertainment, recreation (see under AMUSE> boring *irksome, tiresome, wearisome, tedious

Ana *dull, humdrum, monotonous, dreary, stodgy, pedes trian

Con *interesting, absorbing, engrossing, intriguing: exci ting, stimulating, provoking or provocative (see corre sponding verbs at PROVOKE>

botch vb *Botch, bungle, fumble, muff, cobble mean to han dle or treat awkwardly or unskilfully. Botch may imply repairing or mending, but it frequently implies a making or forming by patching or by putting together out of pieces. It consistently suggests incompetence and a spoiling or marring of the thing produced, whatever its character <botch a job> <an assemblage of ill-informed gentlemen who have botched every business they have ever undertaken—Shaw> <the suit was vilely botched and skimmed . . . and now it was too late to remedy the defect—Wolfe>

Bungle implies ignorance, ineffectualness, or clumsiness in design or execution or an inability to use materials with skill or competence <the plans were badly bungled> <he has completely bungled the matter> <some singularly excellent recordings side by side with some pretty bungled ones—P. H. Lang> <some Occupation officials said and did stupid things, and inexpience led to bungling—Sat. Review>

Fumble stresses clumsy or unskilful use of the hands especially in uncertain attempts to reach, take, or grasp something or in groping in the dark for something  <recovered himself, fumbled with his cap, and made a bow—Dickens> <his old fingers fumbling absurdly for the beard which wasn't there—Mary Austin> <so she fumbled about in the dim light, and brought her brother his bread and butter and meat—Deland>

Occasionally it suggests the awkward uncertainty not of hands or fingers but of mind or soul  <never fumbling with what she has to say, never . . . imperfectly presenting her thought—Arnold>

Muff, a word much used in sports, especially implies an unskilful performance or a bad play (as in catching a ball, firing a shot, or wielding a golf stick) <muff a stroke> <he muffed the ball> Consequently muff in more general use often means to fail by bungling or fumbling <muff an opportunity> <he muffed his chances for the nomination>

Cobble is much like botch, though it basically implies the mending or patching of shoes; in more general use it stresses a patching or putting together of something in a crude or clumsy manner <even generous critics . . . attribute to him a limit in narrative tration (see under AMUSE)

creation (see corre sponding verbs at PROVOKE>

MAIM): wreck, ruin

Ana patch, mend, repair: *treat, handle: mutilate (see MAIM): wreck, *ruin bother vb vex, *annoys, irk

Ant comfort —Con solace, console (see COMFORT): appease, placate, *pacify, mollify, propitiate bottom vb *base, found, ground, stay, rest

Ana *support, sustain: *set, fix, establish

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
bound

*limit, confine, end, term

bound, bond, indentured, artificed

*bounce
dismiss, drop, sack, fire, discharge, cashier

*bough
jump, leap, spring, vault (see under JUMP)

*bouquet

*bracket

1 vb stint, turn, trick, tour, *spell, shift, go

2 vb *impression, impress, imprint, print

*broad

*brave

*braid

*brave

infinite, uncircumscribed, illimitable, eternal,

*bow
defy, *yield, submit, capitulate, succumb, relent,

*bowl

*bow

award, reward, meed, guerdon, prize, *premium,

*bought couple, pair, yoke

*brace, pairs

*bout

*beyond

*bounce

*bough
one might refer to the *valorous deeds of a *valiant band of knights (the regiment itself is a proud one, with a *valorous record—*Infantry Jour.) Dauntless emphasizes determination, resolution, and fearlessness despite danger or difficulty (the dauntless English infantry were receiving and repelling the furious charges—Thackeray) (nothing appalled her dauntless soul—Beckford) Undaunted indicates continued courage and resolution after danger, hardship, or defeat (he watched them at the points of greatest danger falling under the shots from the scorpions, and others stepping undaunted into their places to fall in in the same way—Froude) Doughty combines the implications of formidable, sturdy, and brave but may have an archaic or humorous suggestion (he was reaching the bend of the stairs leading to the boardroom, the doughty president of the endangered railway knocked him down to the ground floor—Charles & Mary Beard) (so doughty a warrior must break a lance—Parrington) Bold may indicate a forward or defiant tendency to thrust oneself into difficult or dangerous situations (it was a bold man who dared to walk alone through hundreds of miles of lion-infested country with nothing but a spear in his hand to seek work and adventure—Cloete) (these fellows who attacked the inn tonight—bold, desperate blades, for sure—Stevenson) (he knew a fool and a tyrant in high places, and was bold to call them by their true names—Parrington) When used of immaterial things (as plans, experiments, or deeds) bold suggests a disregard for danger, risk, or convention (a bold scheme to corner the wheat market) Audacious implies spirited and sometimes reckless daring (the place where the fiery Ethan Allen first sketched his audacious move against Ticonderoga—Schulberg) (hitherto no liberal statesman has been so audacious as to . . . lay pro-fane hands on the divine right of nations to seek their own advantage at the cost of the rest—Veblen) Ana daring, venturesome, daredevil, adventurous (heroic, gallant (see corresponding nouns at heroism): plucky, gritty (see corresponding nouns at fortitude)) Ant craven — Con timid, timorous: shrinking, flinching, blenching (see recoil) vb brave vb dare, defy, beard, face, challenge Ana confront, meet, encounter: oppose, combat, resist, fight bravo assassin, cutthroat, gunman brawl n Brawl, broil, fracas, melee, row, rumpus, scrap are comparable when meaning a noisy fight or quarrel. Brawl implies angry contentions, blows, and a noisy racket; it usually suggests participation by several persons (a family brawl that kept the neighbors awake) (street brawls) (a howling brawl amongst vicious hoodlums—Stafford) Broil stresses disorder, confusion, and turmoil among the combatants more than the disturbance they cause others. The term may be used contemptuously in place of war, conflict, or controversy (plunging us in all of the brols of the European nations—Jefferson) but it is more often used of a violent fight or quarrel where the issues are not clear or significant or where the opponents are not clearly distinguished (but village mirth breeds contests, brols, and blows—Shelley) Fracas is applicable to a noisy quarrel or excited disturbance whether leading to blows or not; the term does not suggest as much vulgarity or as many participants as brawl, but it may imply as much noise and excitement (they were hot-tempered, frequently embroiled in quarrels. John Adams, after such a fracas, listed his new enemies in his diary—C. D. Bowen) * Melee* applied to a more or less disorganized hand-to-hand conflict or to a dispute which resembles such a combat. In many instances the emphasis is so strongly on confusion and mix-up that the implication of combat or contention is weakened or lost (the calmness of the platform was transformed into a meler. Little Constance found herself left on the fringe of a physically agitated crowd which was apparently trying to scale a precipice surmounted by windows and doors—Bennett) Row is applicable to a demonstration or fight, whether a quarrel, a squabble, or a dispute, that is so public or so noisy as to attract attention (during the recent row over atomic-energy legislation their feuding was epic—Friendly) Rumpus suggests even greater agitation and disturbance than row, for it usually connotes an uproar (you incur my serious displeasure if you move one inch in this contemptible rumpus—Scott) Scrap usually suggests a physical tussle but often implies little more than a noisy, sharp quarrel (the boys are good friends, but they have many a scrap) Ana conflict, fight, fray, fray, affray (see contest) (contention, dissension, strife, discord: wrangle, altercation, quarrel, squabble: uproar, racket, din, hubbub, clamor bravyn muscular, burly, husky, sinewy, athletic Ana stalwart, strong, sturdy, stout, tough: fleshy Ant scrawny — Con lanky, lank, gaunt, rawboned, lean, spare, skinny: thin, slender, slight, slim brazen shameless, brash, impudent Ana callous, hardened, indurated: insolent, arrogant (see PROUD): rash, reckless (see ADVENTUROUS): bold, audacious (see BRAVE) Ant bashful — Con shy, diffident, modest, coy: timid, timorous: stealthy, surreptitious, underhand, secret breach n 1 Breach, infraction, violation, transgression, trespass, infringement, contravention are comparable when denoting the act or the offense of one who fails to keep the law or to do what the law, one's duty, or an obligation requires. Breach occurs rarely by itself except in phrases such as “a law more honored in the breach than in the observance.” The word is usually followed by of and a noun or pronoun which indicates the thing which is broken or not kept (his action constitutes a breach of faith) (he was found guilty of breach of the peace by reason of his noisy, disorderly, and annoying conduct) (sued for breach of contract) Infraction is now more often used than breach (except in certain time-honored idioms) for a breaking of a law or obligation (an infraction of the school rules) (an infraction of a treaty) (an infraction of canon law) (we have scrutinized the case, but cannot say that it shows an infraction of rights under the Constitution of the United States—Justice Holmes) Violation adds to breach and infraction the implication of flagrant disregard of the law or of the rights of others and often suggests the exercise of force or violence; thus, the violation of a treaty suggests positive, often aggressive and injurious action, while its infraction may imply a mere failure strictly to adhere to its terms (a violation of military discipline) (the police interference was a violation of the right to free assembly) (when more of the people's sustenance is exacted through the form of taxation than is necessary to meet the just obligations of Government . . . such exactation becomes ruthless, arbitrary, and a violation of the fundamental principles of a free Government—Cleveland) Transgression is applied to any act that goes beyond the limits prescribed by a law, rule, or order; often the term is used specifically of an infraction of the moral law or of one of the commandments (for sin is the transgression of the law—1 Jn 3:4) "I was forgetting," she said. "I am forbidden tea." . . . She looked at the cup, tremendously tempted. . . . An occasional transgression could not harm her—Bennett) Trespass also implies an overstepping of prescribed bounds, but it carries in addition a strong implication of encroachment upon the rights, the comfort, or the prop-
break

broad

Two Break, break, split, schism, rent, rupture, rift are comparable when they mean a pulling apart in relations or in connections. Break is the most general in application of any of these terms, is capable of being referred to any such pulling apart in itself, as apart from the context, throwing light on its cause, its magnitude, or its seriousness (a breach in unity) (widen the breach between old friends) (having followed the high banks of the Tom to the furthest extremity...they happily found a breach in the inclosure—Kingston) (it may be one man's privilege and duty to heal the breach between the Arab and the Jew—Douglas) Break (see also break n) is often substituted for breach when one wishes to emphasize the strain that is inducing or has induced a disruption (as between persons or groups) (efforts to avoid an open breach with the conservative faction) (the break was final, and there was no course open for the nation except war) Split usually implies a complete breach, suggesting a division such as would be made by an ax or knife; often, also, it hints at the impossibility of bringing together again the two parts (as parties or factions) that once formed a whole. Split often implies a division of friends or friendly groups into opposing parties or factions (a major split between the United States and most of the rest of the free world—Bundy) (I fear the split betwixt Constable and Cadell will render impossible what might otherwise be hopeful enough—Scott) Schism implies a clear-cut separation between divisions of an original group and consequent discord and disunion between the two parts; typically the term is used of such a division in a religious communion, but it may be applied to any union of rational beings (as a political party or a philosophical school) (he succeeded in dividing the American Quakers into two bodies; and this schism...lasted on till the present year—Inge) (a school of libertarians arose with all the mad consequence of schism and heresy—Blackmur) Rent suggests an opening made by tearing or rending and may impute characteristics (as irregularity, jaggedness, and narrowness) to a break to which it is applied (thy stately mansion, and the pride of thy domain, strange contrast do present to house and home in many a raggy rent of the wild Peak—Wordsworth) (through the wide rent in Time's eternal veil, hope was seen beaming—Shelley) (a rent in the social fabric—Millstein) Rupture approaches break in meaning, but it carries a more clearly defined stress upon a break in relations between people or groups; in addition, it frequently is affected by its special medical use and then often suggests an actual but not always clearly apparent break (mother and son avoided an open rupture by never referring to their differences—Santayana) (it was still the policy of the Cardinal...to carry on the convention that he had not provoked any direct rupture with Vienna—Bello) Rift implies a breach that is made usually by some natural process (as one that produces a separation of rocks in a mountain or a cracking of the earth); consequently it is often applied to a breach that is small at first and is in danger of growing larger (this little rift it was that had widened to a now considerable breach—H. G. Wells) (it is the little rift within the lute, that by and by will make the music mute—Tennyson) (it was, I believe, the terrible Wars of Religion that made the fatal rift between religion and science which we are now trying to close—Inge) An division, severance, separation (see corresponding verbs at separate); dissension, *discord, difference, variance, strife: estrangement, alienation (see corresponding verbs at estrange) Con union, *unity, solidarity, integrity: accord, *harmony, concord bread, bread and butter sustenance, *living, livelihood, subsistence, maintenance, support, keep break vb Break, crack, burst, burst, bust, snap, shatter, shiver are comparable as general terms meaning fundamentally to come apart or cause to come apart. Break basically implies the operation of a stress or strain that will cause a rupture, a fracture, a fissure, or a shattering either in one spot or in many (break a dish by dropping it) (break a bone) (the column broke when subjected to too great a weight) (a flood resulted when the dam broke) But break goes much further than this. Often, with or without the help of an advverb, it suggests the disruption of something material or immaterial, either in whole or in part. It may then imply a collapsing or causing to collapse (the wagon broke down) (break the enemy by the only methods possible—starvation, attrition, and a slow, deadly...envelopment—Buchan) (his spirit was broken) Similarly it may imply a destruction of completeness, integrity, or wholeness; thus, one breaks a set of china by losing or destroying one or more pieces of the set; one breaks a ten-dollar bill by spending part of it and getting the remainder in smaller bills or coins (break a solid group into factions) With the same underlying notion it may imply a destruction of continuity (as by interrupting, terminating, or disintegrating) (break a circuit) (break a journey) (break his silence) (break up a friendship) (it was the only time that day he saw her pale composure break—Cather) Sometimes the sense of disruption is not obvious, and the idea of piercing so as to let someone or something make entrance or exit predominates (broke his way through the crowd) (break a new path) (break the news gently) (she had just broken into her fiftieth-year—Woolf) Most common of the senses that bear only a slight relation to the primary sense of break is one that implies violation or transgression (break the law) (break the Sabbath) (call in edict, should be capable of being broken for special reasons—Russell) Basically crack means to make the sudden, sharp sound characteristic of a breaking of something brittle (as ice, bone, or glass). It is often applied with this denotation to things which make a similar sound yet do not necessarily break (crack a whip) (the

Analogous words: bread, break, split, schism, rent, rupture, rift

Antonyms: contraven-

Contrasted words: split schism

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
break

break n 1 Break, gap, interruption, interval, hiatus, lacuna all denote a lapse in continuity. Break applies not only to a lapse in continuity in something material or substantial (a break in geological strata) (a break in the clouds) (he tried to find a break in the fence) but also in things (as a course of action or something having extension in time) that may be considered in reference to their continuity (he ran the long race without a break) (the book was written with no breaks except for eating and for sleeping) (a holiday makes a pleasant break in routine) (there was no break in the long, cold winter) (yet he felt that he was going away forever, and was making the final break with everything that had been dear to him—Caithor) Gap basically applies to an opening (as in a wall or fence) made either by natural decay or by deliberate effort as a means of ingress or egress; the term may also include an opening (as a gash between mountains) that serves as a passage inward or outward (the breaks in the Great Wall of China) (Gap) Gap in commerce is the term for that in representing either a break in continuity or in leaving an unfilled or unfillable space (here's our chief guest. If he had been forgotten, it had been as a gap in our great feast—Shak.) (so that the jest is clearly to be seen, not in the words—but in the gap between—Cowper) (a fatal gap in our security structure—Truman) (one would like to cling to the old-fashioned theory that there is a gap between accusation and proof—Schlesinger b. 1917) Interruption implies a break that not only makes for a lapse in continuity but that disturbs the procedure (as of an action, a work, or a discourse) and causes a temporary stop or that, less often, makes a void or gap in space or order (the growing infirmities of age manifest themselves in nothing more strongly, than in an invertebrate dislike of interruption—Lamb) (those who hope to render themselves . . . oblivious to the harsh interruptions of reality—Day Lewis) (the mountain range continues without interruption until it meets the sea) Interval refers to the distance (as in time or in space) that exists between two things that are basically alike; the term often serves simply as a basis for measuring or suggesting this distance (at present, perhaps, it was as well to be asunder. She was in need of a little interval for recollection—Austen) (how soft the music of those village bells falling at intervals upon the ear in cadence sweet—Cowper) (there stretches on either side of the rivers . . . a region of hills and lakes and swamps among which the farms are only upland intervals—Canby) Interim applies to the interval between two events (as the death or abduction of a sovereign and the accession of his successor or the discarding of one method and the instituting of another) many contended that the death of the queen regent in the incessant chasseur or void from Pesaro and her marriage to Bisceglie was sired by Cesare—Beuf) (in a healthy mind there is an interim between one duty and another—Crothers) Hiatus applies mainly to an interruption or lapse in time or continuity, and so implies that something important or essential is missing (Charles II had been restored to his kingdom . . . after an enforced hiatus of twelve years—Abernethy) (we are likely to be disconcerted by . . . hiatuses of thought, when certain links in the association of ideas are dropped down into the unconscious mind—Edmund Wilson) ("The war," they said, "has caused a hiatus, and thought has broken with tradition"—Rose Macaulay) Lacuna may stress the vacancy of a gap or void (fills a lacuna in our knowledge as to the whereabouts of many manuscripts—Gohdes) (one of the rare lacunae in this map—Lebon) and is often thunder cracks) (this voice cracked) Crack more frequently implies a breaking of something hard or brittle or of something also hollow, often with a sudden sharp sound and usually without a separation of the parts (the dish was cracked, not broken) (cracking nuts between two stones) (the mirror was cracked by the explosion) (the sound of cracking glass) (the thin ice cracked under the skater's weight) Occasionally it implies merely the breaking of something that has grown dry or parched (heer has made his lips crack) (the prolonged drought has caused the earth to crack) Burst usually implies a breaking (as into pieces) with a scattering of contents by the force of internal pressure (burst a blood vessel) (the boiler burst under too great pressure) (bombs bursting in air—Key) (the willow scarde holds the sap that tightens the bark and would burst it if it did not enlarge to the pressure—Jefferies) Sometimes the implication is merely the sudden release or the likelihood of such release of something seeking utterance but hitherto suppressed or held back (burst into laughter) (bursting with suppressed merriment) (burst into tears) Sometimes a breaking under tension, under concussion, or through limitations is the only implication that the word carries (burst the beams which held him) or it may stress the violence of the force that burst the door or the suddenness with which someone or something comes out in (the lilacs burst into bloom) (she burst into the living room) (the news of the attack burst upon the nation) Burst may be used informally in place of burst especially in the sense of to break under the strain of pressure, of tension, or of concussion (this westernmost province . . . is beginning to burst its industrial britches—Wall Street Jour.) Snap fundamentally implies a quick, sudden effort to seize (as by biting or by snatching at), but usually this action is accompanied by a short sharp sound (as a report or a click). Hence snap is often used to imply the action of breaking or bursting when the intent is to suggest a quick, clean-cut break and the sharp sound which accompanies it (branch after branch snapped during the storm) (a string of his violin snapped) (sharp the link of life will snap—Housman) Shatter literally implies a breaking into many pieces, but unlike burst, which emphasizes the cause, it stresses the effect, a scattering of the pieces far and wide, and a total destruction of the thing involved (the flying debris shattered the window) (shatter a rock by an explosion of dynamite) (a down) Sometimes the implication is merely the sudden release or the likelihood of such release of something seeking utterance but hitherto suppressed or held back (burst into laughter) (bursting with suppressed merriment) (burst into tears) Sometimes a breaking under tension, under concussion, or through limitations is the only implication that the word carries (burst the beams which held him) or it may stress the violence of the force that burst the door or the suddenness with which someone or something comes out in (the lilacs burst into bloom) (she burst into the living room) (the news of the attack burst upon the nation) Burst may be used informally in place of burst especially in the sense of to break under the strain of pressure, of tension, or of concussion (this westernmost province . . . is beginning to burst its industrial britches—Wall Street Jour.) Snap fundamentally implies a quick, sudden effort to seize (as by biting or by snatching at), but usually this action is accompanied by a short sharp sound (as a report or a click). Hence snap is often used to imply the action of breaking or bursting when the intent is to suggest a quick, clean-cut break and the sharp sound which accompanies it (branch after branch snapped during the storm) (a string of his violin snapped) (sharp the link of life will snap—Housman) Shatter literally implies a breaking into many pieces, but unlike burst, which emphasizes the cause, it stresses the effect, a scattering of the pieces far and wide, and a total destruction of the thing involved (the flying debris shattered the window) (shatter a rock by an explosion of dynamite) (a bolt of lightning shattered the oak tree) Consequently, especially as applied to intangible things, shatter consistently implies a far more devastating and destructive effect than break; thus, "his health was broken by the experience" means that it was seriously impaired, but "his health was shattered by the experience" means that it was impaired beyond the point of complete recovery (the shattering of his illusions) (the pathetic groanings after the fragments of a shattered faith—Day Lewis) (the Great War shook civilization to its base. . . another conflict on the same scale would shatter it—in) The legend of Rome's invincibility had been shattered—Buchan Shiver, a chiefly rhetorical term, implies a shattering by dashing, smashing, or any usually external force (he shivered his part of the case to useless lumber—Dickens) Ana disintegrate, crumble (see DECAY): *detach, disused specifically of a blank in a text (as of a manuscript or inscription) where a few words have been omitted or effaced (translated the whole work anew, and succeeded in filling many lacunae in the text—Megger). In anatomical use the term more often stresses the minuteness than the vacuity of a gap (as a pit or chamber) (cartilage cells are isolated in scattered lacunae).

break

Analyze (see those at BREACH 2)

3 chance, *opportunity, occasion, time

break down *analyze, resolve, dissect

Con concatenate, articulate, *integrate breakdown n analysis, resolution, dissection (see under ANALYZE)

breastwork *bulwark, bastion, parapet, rampart breed vb *generate, engender, propagate, reproduce, procreate, beget, sire, get breed n *variety, subspecies, race, cultivar, strain, clone, stock

breeding cultivation, *culture, refinement

* tact, address, poise, savoir faire: *courtesy, amenity, gallantry: grace, dignity, *elegance

Ant vulgarity — Con boorishness, churlishness (see corresponding adjectives under BOOR): grossness, coarse- ness (see corresponding adjectives at coarse): rudeness, discourtesy or discourtesy, ungraciousness (see corresponding adjectives at RUDE)

breeze *wind, gale, hurricane, zephyr bridle vb *check, curb, *restrain, inhibit

Anna repress, *suppress: *govern, rule: control, direct, manage (see CONDUCT)

Ant vent — Con *express, utter, air, voice, ventilate 2 bristle, *strut, swagger

Anna plume, preen, pique, *pride

Con grovel, *wallow: cringe, cower (see FAWN): wince, *fume of (lambent —Con)

brief adj Brief, short are the most comprehensive adjectives in English meaning not long. Brief refers primarily to duration: short, to either duration or linear extent (a brief interview) (a short sermon) (a short distance) (a short legs) As applied to duration, brief and short are sometimes complete synonyms (a brief struggle) (a short battle) But short frequently suggests incompleteness, curtailment, or sudden stoppage, and brief sometimes implies condensation (he cut his speech short) (he made his speech as brief as possible) As applied to linear extent, brief is facetious and means extremity short (a brief skirt)

Anna *transient, fleeting, passing, momentary, short-lived: *concise, terse, succinct, laconic, pithy: compacted or compact, concentrated (see corresponding verbs at compact): shortened, abbreviated, abridged, curtailed (see SHORTEN)

Ant prolonged, protracted — Con lengthened or lengthy, extended or extensive, elongated (see corresponding verbs at extend)

brief n abstract, epitome, *abridgment, synopsis, con spectus

brief adj 1 Bright, brilliant, radiant, luminous, luminous, effulgent, refugent, beaming, lambent, lucent, incandescent are comparable when they mean actually or seemingly shining or glowing with light. Bright implies an opposition to dim or dull; it applies chiefly to things that vary in the degree in which they shed light or are pervaded by light, according to circumstances; thus, when used in reference to a fire or burning material (as coals), it suggests a good draft and flames; when used in reference to a day, it implies lack of clouds, fog, smoke, or other obstacles to the passage of sunlight (a bright sky) (a bright star) (a bright sword) (bright eyes) (a bright color)

Brilliant (see also INTELLIGENT) implies conspicuous or intense brightness; it also often connotes scintillating or flashing light (a well-cut diamond is the most brilliant of gems) (the sun is too brilliant for the human eye) (a brilliant smile) (Madame Olenska's face grew brilliant with pleasure—Wharton) (what one saw when one looked about was that brilliant blue world of stinging air and moving cloud— Cather) Radiant, in contrast with bright and brilliant, stresses the emission or seeming emission of rays of light; it suggests, therefore, a property or power possessed by a thing rather than a quality ascribed to it because of its effect on the vision; thus, a celestial body is properly described as radiant only when it emits rays of light; a planet, no matter how bright it appears to the eye, is preferably described as bright or brilliant because it shines by reflected light (Virtue could see to do what Virtue would by her own radiant light, though sun and moon were in the flat sea sunk—Milton) The term, however, is sometimes used of anything that seems to give out light in the manner of the sun or a star (in warlike armor drest, golden, all radiant—Shelley) Luminous, like radiant, suggests emission of light, but, unlike it, implies the sending forth of steady suffused glowing light; it is applicable to anything that shines by reflected light or that glows in the dark because of some special quality (as of physical state or chemical activity); thus, all celestial bodies are luminous, but only self-luminous bodies (stars in the strict astronomical sense) are also radiant (Phosphorus is a luminous substance) As applied to color or to colored things the term implies more than bright, for it usually suggests a jewel-like quality (the luminous green of the emerald) or iridescence (the blue off Nantucket is not the miracle of luminous, translucent color off Sardinia—Lowes) As applied to ideas or their expression, the term implies crystallike clearness and the absence of all obscurity (a luminous treatment of a subject) (a luminous statement—Brougham) Lustrous is applied only to an object whose surface reflects light; it therefore seldom implies perversing light but, rather, a brilliant or iridescent sheen or gloss (the lustrous brass of a burned lamp) (a lustrous enameled surface) (lustrous satin) Effulgent and refugent indicate resplendent or gleaming brilliance, and the latter implies further that the brilliance is reflected, sometimes from an unseen source (effulgent loveliness) (a chandelier of refugent crystal) (in arms they stood of golden panoply, refugent host—Milton) Beaming literally implies emission of a beam (see beam under ray) (rising moon, fair beaming, and streaming her silver light the boughs amang—Burns) In its commonest use (as applied to looks or expression) beaming suggests a display of happiness, satisfaction, or benevolence (the beaming eyes of children greeting Santa Claus) (broad beaming smile—George Elliot) Lambent is applied to a thing (as a flame or a luminous body) which throws a play of light over an object or surface without rendering it brilliant or lustrous (the lambent flame of genius . . . lights up the universe—Hazlitt) (lambent lightning-fire—Shelley) Often lambent suggests the emission of soft gleams of light (kind, quiet, nearsighted eyes, which his round spectacles magnified into lambent moons—Deland) Lucent is a highly poetical or literary adjective that approaches luminous or, less often, lustrous in its meaning; it is usually applied to something transfigured by light (as from the sun or a fire) (the lucent fume of... the sky’s smoke rising up—Mackenzie> (till every particle glazed . . . and slowly seemed to turn tolucent amber—Gibson> Incandescent suggests intense glowing brightness of or as if of an intensely heated body <pots incandescent in the kiln> (an incandescent lamp> set thoughts aglowing in incandescent language—Ilesias> Ana illuminated, illuminated, lighted, lightened, enlight-ened (see illuminate); flashing, gleaming, glistening, sparkling (see flash vb); glowing, flaming (see blaze vb> Ant dull; dim —Con dusky, murky, gloomy, *dark, obscure: *colorless, uncolored: *pale, pallid, ashen, livid 2 smart, quick-witted, brilliant, clever, *intelligent, knowing, alert>

Ant *sharp, keen, acute: *quick, ready, prompt, apt: precocious, advanced (see premature)> Ant dense, dull —Con *stupid, slow, crass, dumb: *lethargic, sluggish: phlegmatic, stolid, impassive> brillian 1 radiant, luminous, *bright, effulgent, lustrous, refugent, beaming, lambent, luminet, incandescent> Ana flashing, scintillating, sparkling, gleaming, glittering, coruscating (see flash vb); blazing flaming, flaring, glowing (see blaze vb> Ant subdued (of light, color) —Con gloomy, murky, obscure, dim, dusky (see dark)>

2 *intelligent, clever, bright, smart, alert, quick-witted, knowing> Ana erudite, *learned, scholarly: sage, sapient, *wise> Ant crass —Con *stupid, slow, dull, dense, dumb> brim rim, edge, brink, *border, verge, margin> bring, take, fetch are comparable but not interchange-able when used in the sense of to convey from one place to another. Bring implies carrying, leading, or trans-porting to a distance from the point where the speaker or agent is or will be; take, a carrying, leading, or con-ducting to a point away from the one where the speaker or agent is or will be; thus, a mother asks her boy setting out for school to take a note to the teacher and to bring home a reply; a farmer takes his cattle to the market and brings back a supply of sugar, flour, and fresh meat. Fetch implies going to a place where something is to be found, getting it, and bringing it back to the starting point <please fetch me a chair from the next room> I shall fetch whatever you need> he called to her, and said, Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink. And as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thine hand—I Kings 17:10-11>

Ana bear, *carry, convey: obtain, procure, get> Ant withdraw, remove> brin verge, edge, *border, rim, margin> Ana *limit, bound, end, confine: *shore, strand, coast> brisk nimble, *agile, sry> Ana *fast, quick, rapid, fleet, swift, speedy: ready, prompt, *quick: dynamic, live, *active> Ant sluggish —Con *lethargic, torpid, comatose: *lazy, indolent, slothful, fainthearted: *inactive, inert, idle> bristle vb bridle, *strut, swagger> Ana preen, plume *pride, pique: evince, manifest, *show, evidence: flaunt, parade, display, exhibit (see show)> Con conceal, hide, bury> brette crisp, *fragile, frangible, short, friable> Ana *hardened, indurated> Ant tingle —Con *elastic, resilient, springy, flexible: tough, terebrant, *strong, stout> broach vb voice, utter, *express, vent, air, ventilate> Ana *reveal, disclose, divulge: *introduce, interject, interpose> broad adj Broad, wide, deep are comparable chiefly when they refer to horizontal extent. Broad and wide apply to surfaces or areas as measured from side to side  and deep (see also deep) to those as measured from front to back  Broad and wide always and deep in some in-stances may be used of surfaces that spread away from one: thus, a river may be wide or broad (but not deep, which would here refer only to vertical distance) at a given point, but a flower border may be four feet wide, broad, or, if the far side is not ordinarily accessible, deep. When a plot of ground or similar area is measured, broad or, especially, wide is used of the distance from one side to the other and deep of that from front line to back line (the lot is 70 feet wide and 100 feet deep)> Broad and wide are frequently interchangeable when used descriptively to mean having relatively great extent across or from side to side  But broad commonly applies only to surfaces or areas as such  (a broad-headed tack) > Broach-shouldered> Wide applies also to apertures or to something that opens or spreads. Wide, therefore, is the preferred term when the emphasis is upon the distance between limits rather than on the extent of the intervening surface  a wide opening> (a wide view) > (the doorway is four feet wide)> Deep in similar descriptive use, when it carries an implication only of horizontal extent, is applicable only to something that has great extent backward (as from an opening or from the front)  a deep cavern> a deep lot>

Ana extended or extensive (see corresponding verb at extend): *spacious, capacious, commodious, ample: vast, immense (see huge): expanded, dilated (see expand)> Ant narrow —Con confined, circumscribed, limited, restricted (see limit vb)> broadcast vb *1 strew, straw, scatter, sow> Ana *spread, circulate, disseminate, propagate> 2 promulgate, publish, advertise, announce, *declare, proclaim> broadcasting promulgation, publication, advertisement, announcement, declaration, proclamation (see under declare)>

Brobdignag* huge, vast, immense, enormous, ele-phantine, mammoth, giant, gigantic, gigantic, colossal, gargantuan, Herculean, cyclopean, titanic> Ant littiputan>

brui* crush, mash, smash, squash, macerate> Ana batter, mangle, *maim: *press, squeeze> bruise n *wound, contusion, trauma, traumatism, lesion> brush vb *Brush, graze, glance, shave, skin are comparable when they mean to touch lightly in passing. Brush implies a movement like the flick of a brush upon a surface: sometimes it suggests no more than an almost impalpable touching, but sometimes it suggests a light touching or rubbing that disperses something that it touches <ye tinsel Insects! whom a court maintains .... The Muse's view) <fair dewy roses brushed against our faces—Keats> the roof—Pollet> their eyes met and brushed.
like birds’ wings—F. S. Fitzgerald.> Grace implies the swift passage of a bullet or any rapidly moving object so that it touches a person or thing abrading the surface or, in the case of a person, the skin whose solid virtue the shot of accident nor dart of chance could neither graze nor pierce—Shak.> (the bullet grazed the young lady’s temple—Scott) (the missile grazed the spot where the shrike sat, and cut the ends of his wings—Burroughs).> Glance (see also Flash) basically implies a blow (as from a sword, a spear, or an ax) that owing to the hardness or resistance of what is struck turns aside or slips and so fails of its full effect; hence glance in its participial form glancing is often used to describe such a blow either in its course or effect (he struck a glancing blow) (the blow glanced off his shoulder without even jarring him) (the blade glanced, I did but shear a feather—Tennyson). Shave implies a touching as lightly and closely as a razor that passes over the face; although it comes near to graze, it carries no implication of abrasion but rather in some contexts suggests a dangerous approach or a narrow escape (now shaves with level wing the deep, then soars like birds’ wings—Gilbert) (three hansom shaves him by an inch—Barrie). Skim (see also FLY) also implies a light touch in passing (kingfishers . . . darted across the water, their wings just skimming the surface—Walden) but it never suggests the action of anything (as a bullet, a razor, or a weapon) that is even slightly dangerous; rather it suggests an avoidance of depths by someone or something that touches upon the surface or dips only into shallows (skim a book in reading) (I am pleased to skim along the surfaces of things—Wordsworth).> Ana touch, contact (see corresponding nouns at CONTACT): *scatter, disperse, dispel: *slide, slip, glide> brush n. skirmish, *encounter> bristled, blunt, gruff, *bluff, crusty> brute, brutish, bestial, beastly, feral are not close antonyms.> Ana sensual, animal, fleshly, *carnal: *coarse, gross, vulgar: *stupid, dull, dense, crass: barbarous, savage (see BARBARIAN).> Con humane, humanitarian (see CHARITABLE): gentle, mild (see SOFT): chivalrous, courteous (see CIVIL).> brutish adj: *brutal, brutish, bestial, beastly, feral> Ana inanimate, lifeless, *dead: inert, supine, *inactive: impotent, *powerless> brutish *brutal, brute, bestial, beastly, feral> Ana dull, dense, crass, *stupid: sluggish, comatose, lethargic: stolid, *impassive, apathetic> Con *intelligent, alert, quick-witted: responsive, sensitive, impressionable (see SENTIENT).> buccaneer *pirate, freebooter, privateer, corsair> buck n. dude, *top, dandy, beau, coxcomb, exquisite> buckle vb *flex, crook, bow> Ana *break, crack, snap, burst: bend, twist, *curve> bucolic pastoral, *rural, rustic> Ana boorish, loutish, clownish, churlish (see under BOOR): *natural, simple, naive, ingenuous> Ant urbane> buffet vb *baste, pummel, *beat, pound, belabor, thrash> Ana *strike, smite, hit, slap, slug: batter (see MAIM).> bugbear bête noire, *abomination, anathema> build vb Build, construct, erect, frame, raise, rear are comparable when they mean to form or fashion a structure or something comparable to a structure. Build strictly implies the putting together of parts (as the materials should be combined in order to gain the desired result—S. S. Van Dine) (often followed by up) may suggest an analogy between the material thing and an edifice especially by implying an adding of part to part or bit to bit in the attainment of an end (build up a man’s ego) build up a fortune bit by bit (build a theory, on slight evidence) (often followed by up) (build a ship) When used in reference to something immaterial (build a cathedral) (build a shack) (the robins built their nest in the fork of a tree) (build a battle-ship) (the manual labor, involved but the problem involved in the fitting together of parts. Construct therefore emphasizes the discovering by the mind of how the parts or the materials should be combined in order to gain the desired end. To build is the work of men who use their hands or by analogy their brains to bring something into being:... to construct is the work of men who use their brains, though sometimes their hands in obedience to their brains, to solve the problem of how a thing should be or is built or made or brought into being; hence construct implies composition or design and may take as its object anything brought into material or immaterial existence by one or the other process (construct a plot) (construct a dam) (the mind of the scientist constructs its own world—Inge) (each constructed and consolidated a realm—Belloe) Construct is also often used as the opposite of destroy without a specific reference to these implications (it is proverbially easier to destroy than to construct—T. S. Eliot) (roughly speaking, we construct when we increase the potential energy of the system in which we are interested, and we destroy when we diminish its potential energy—Russell) Erect basically means to set upright. Although the term may carry this as its essential meaning (erect a flagpole) (the cobra erected itself to strike) it was early applied to high structures and has accordingly come to imply building in its most usual sense. The word is often used in place of build without any marked implication of putting together parts and materials (many huge factories erected during the war now stand idle) but it always carries some suggestion of the sense of to set up (as by building or establishing) (erect a statue to his memory) (erect a scaffold) (a very much denser obstruction is in the process of being erected now by literary critics—Day Lewis) Frame approaches construct but in respect to physical structures more specifically applies to the bringing together and joining of parts (as sills, plates, and joists) that define the form of the final structure (a cottage framed of pine and sheathed with cedar) In extended use it throws the stress upon a forming or fashioning to suit a design, an intention, a purpose, or the facts and may be applied to anything so constructed (frame an answer) (frame a hypothesis) (picture him excuses framing—going from her far away—Gilbert) (all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and paramount law of the nation—John Marshall) (it is in order to overcome these obstacles that the notes and questions in this volume have been framed—Notes and Queries on Anthropology) Raise and rear (see also LIFT) often replace build, especially when the idea of height is emphasized (now after this he build a wall without the city . . . and raised it up a very great height—2 Chron 33:14) (those arts which were destined to raise our Gothic cathedrals—Coulton) (this tower; it is my own; though it was reared to Beauty—Millay) Ana fabricate, fashion, manufacture (see MAKE): produce, turn out, yield, *bear Ant unbuild, destroy —Con demolish, raze (see DE-STROY) *ruin, wreck build n * physique, habit, constitution Ana * form, figure, shape, conformation, configuration: *structure, framework: contour, *outline: style, *fashion building n Building, edifice, structure, pile are comparable when they mean a construction (as of wood, brick, or stone) intended to house a family, business, or an institution. Building is the common and in most cases the adequate term (a school building) (a new building going up) (the buildings of the temple—Mt 21:41) Edifice usually applies to large and elegant buildings (should I go to church and see the holy edifice of stone . . . ?—Shak) Structure retains more frequently than the others the sense of something constructed, often in a particular way (a tumbledown structure) (a modern steel structure) Like edifice, structure is often used of buildings of some size or magnificence (the civic auditorium . . . is the city's most important public structure—Amer. Guide Series: Mich.) Pile is a somewhat literary term for a very large building or sometimes a cluster of buildings especially of stone; it usually suggests a public or official structure (as a palace, a cathedral, or a government building) (contrast between the vast pile of the cathedral and the pygmy men in the street—Laski) bulge vb Bulge, jut, stick out, protuberate, protrude, project, overhang, beetle mean to extend outward beyond the usual and normal line. Bulge suggests a swelling out in an excessive or abnormal fashion; it may be used when the impression to be given is that there is an imperfection, a defect, or a cause of strain that explains the swelling (the wall bulged in the center) (above her boots . . . the calves bulged suddenly out—Bennett) (good little Fyne's eyes bulged with solemn horror—Conrad) Jut (often with out) and stick out do not imply abnormality as a rule but construction, formation, or position that permits a thing to extend outside or beyond the flat line of a surface (rocks jutting from the water) (the nun took Father Latour to a window that jutted out and looked up the narrow street—Cather) (one building stuck out from the straight line made by the next) Protrude, which is currently much less used than the corresponding adjective protuberant and the corresponding noun protuberance, implies a swelling or sticking outward (as in a rounded or angular prominence); it does not differ greatly from bulge, but it often carries less implication of something radically wrong (the point of his elbows markedly protuberated) Protude implies a thrusting forth especially in an unexpected place: it applies especially to something that does not seem to belong or that sticks out obviously (whenever a small tuft of heather . . . protruded itself through the grass . . . and entangled her feet—Hardy) (through the leaves . . . a slender dead stem protruded, and from a twig at its summit depended a broken spider's web—Hudson) (the great rollers piled up on the sandy beach where great boulders protruded here and there—Heiser) In literal use project is more often intransitive, though in extended uses it is chiefly transitive. Intransitively it may mean to jut out or to protrude (the eaves usually project far beyond the roof in semitropical and tropical climates) (this great rimrock, which projected out over the erosions like a granite shelf—Cather) In its transitive use, however, it carries implications of throwing or casting forward both in literal use (project a shadow) (project the colors from a prism upon a wall) and especially in extended use when it refers to thoughts, conceptions, or feelings; thus, one projects not only his ideas or thoughts but his powers (as of imagination or comprehension), as if by throwing them out, so that they reach their goal effectively (one couldn't formulate and express one's ideas and project them into that space of charming, inconsequent talk, that swept on gaily over anything one said—Rose Macaulay) (all the knowledge we possess . . . is of the past, and the further back we can project our vision, the more comprehensive, the more thorough, the more efficient is that knowledge—Grandgent) Often the idea of extending beyond the usual and normal line gives way to other implications derived especially from psychology, mathematics, and magic, and the word then means simply to externalize or to free oneself from (project one's thoughts) (she projected her own guilt into the other person—Overstreet) Both overhang and beetle imply a jutting out over the support or base; overhang sometimes connotes a threatening position, while beetle often suggests precariousness or ominousness (then lend the eye a terrible aspect . . . let the brow o'erwhelm it as fearfully as doth a galled rock o'erhanging bulge, jut, stick out, protuberate, protrude, project, overhang, beetle and jutty his confounded base—Shak.> {an overhanging roof} <beetling brows> {the dreadful summit of the cliff that beetles o'er his base—Shak} {an isolated hill that beetled over the western edge of the ridge—Cather}

Bulge n protuberance, *projection, protrusion

Con cavity, hollow, *hole, pocket

Bulk n Bulk, mass, volume mean a body of usually material substance that constitutes a thing or unit. Bulk is applied mainly to what is or appears to be inordinately large or heavy {the bulk of ancient minister—Wordsworth} and often more or less shapeless or unshapely {on the living sea rolls an inanimate bulk—Shelley} {a blue night set with stars, the bulk of the solitary mesas cutting into the firmament—Cather} {Dr. Lanskell sank his gouty bulk into the armchair behind his desk—Wharton} Mass is applied mainly to something, whether material or immaterial, that is or gives the appearance of being built up by the piling or gathering together of things of the same kind so that they cohere and have a real or apparent unity {the towering mass of the Sierras} {pieces of obsolete science, imprisoned ... in the solid mass of a religious creed—Inge} {the mass [of people] never comes up to the standard of its best member, but on the contrary degrades itself to a level with the lowest—Thureau}

Volume usually applies to something that flows and is therefore without outline and often continuous in extent {a tremendous volume of water} {a volume of gas poured into the room} {it [the voice] rose through a volume} {of water} <a

Ana swell, distend, dilate, *expand |
*Huge, gigantic, colossal, mammoth, elephantine, *form, figure, shape |

Of gas poured into the room) <it [the voice] rose through a volume) <a

Ana huge, gigantic, colossal, mammoth, elephantine, enormous: corpulent, obese, portly, *fleshy: burly, husky (see MUSCULAR) |
Con petite, diminutive, *small, little |

Bull 1 blunder, howler, boner, mistake, *error, slip, bump, *stumble, trip, blunder, lurch, flounder, lumber, bump |

are comparable when they denote a structure above the ground that forms part of a fortification and is specifically intended for purposes of defense. Bulwark is the most general and the least technical of these terms. It is or has been applied to various defensive structures (as a wall intended to keep out an enemy, a structure of logs, earth, or stones from behind which defenders can safely attack besiegers or an assaulting force, and a breakwater or sea wall). The term is also extended to a person or a thing regarded as a firm, steadfast, or powerful defense or defender {he stood, the bulwark of the Grecian band—Pope} {the support of the State governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns, and the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies—Jefferson}

Breastwork applies chiefly to a structure of earth, often hastily thrown up and usually only a few feet in height, behind which defenders may crouch or stand so as to fire their guns from a protected position {the mud breastworks had long been leveled with the earth—Irving} Rampart and para-

*petite, diminutive, *small, little |

Cat her y beetled that

Bulldoze bully, browbeat, *intimidate, cow

Ana *threaten, menace: terrorize, terrify, *frighten: worry, harass, harry

Bulldozer bully, browbeat, *intimidate, cow

Ana cajole, wheedle, blandish, *small, little |

Con cajole, wheedle, blandish, *cock |

Bulldozed pigheaded, stiff-necked, stubborn, mulish, *obstinate, dogged, pertinacious

Bully vb bulldoze, browbeat, *intimidate, cow

Ana torment, rack, torture (see AFFLICT): *threaten, menace: terrorize, terrify, *frighten, scare

Ant coax —Con wheedle, cajole, blandish {see COAX}: *lure, entice, inveigle, decoy

Bulwark n Bulwark, breastwork, rampart, parapet, bastion

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
Victor Emmanuel clashed sharply, and on these occasions it was usually the King who won—Times Lit. Sup. 〈when the new demands of our changing economic life clash with the old dogmas—Cohen〉 Collide denotes a more or less direct running together or against with a definite and often destructive force or shock 〈the tanker sank after it collided with the freighter〉 or it may indicate a forceful direct disagreement or opposition 〈an English East India Company was using the Portuguese route around Africa and colliding with the Portuguese in India—Barr〉 Conflict is archaic in senses involving physical contact and is used to convey the notion of variance, incompatibility, or opposition 〈conflicting testimony by two witnesses〉 〈to stand up amid conflicting interests—Wordsworth〉

bunk
hit, *strike, smite: impinge, jolt, jar (see corresponding nouns at IMPACT)

bumpkin
hick, yokel, rube, clodhopper, clown, lout, *boor, churl

bundle
1 *group, cluster, parcel, lot
2 *bundle, bale, parcel, pack, package, packet
An assembly of articles bound or rolled together 〈a bundle of papers〉 〈a bundle for the laundry〉 〈a bundle of old clothes〉 A bundle is a collection of things, usually of the same sort, fastened closely together in orderly fashion 〈a bunch of violets〉 〈a bunch of radishes〉 A bale is a large bundle of goods bound up for storage or transportation and especially one composed of materials (as rags, hay, straw, cotton, or wool) which are closely pressed together so as to form a mass, usually rectangular, tightly bound with stout cord or wire, and often wrapped in paper or burlap. Because there is in various localities a uniform size for a bale of a certain commodity, the word often also implies an average or approximate weight 〈a United States bale of cotton weighs approximately 500 pounds〉 Parcel (see also PART) implies a state of being wrapped and tied and a small or moderate size, and it carries no suggestion of the number or kind of things so wrapped and tied 〈a shopping bag for parcels〉 〈loaded down with parcels〉 〈send parcels through the mail〉 Pack implies more careful and more compact arrangement than bundle; specifically it denotes a conveniently packed bundle of goods or supplies that is carried on the back (as by a peddler, a soldier on the march, or a mule). A package is specifically something packed (as in a box or receptacle of moderate size or in a compact bundle) especially for convenience in sale or transportation 〈an express package〉 〈a package of envelopes〉 〈candy in the original package〉 〈package goods〉 It may also be applied to a group of intangibles (as contracted services or performances) forming, offered, or dealt with as a unit 〈sell them a . . . complete package 〈lot, house, equipment and financing in a single transaction—Guthheim〉 〈a series of treaties and agreements forming a single package—Fay〉 A packet is a small package or parcel 〈a packet of letters or dispatches〉

bun
*nonsense, twaddle, drivell, balderdash, poppycock, gobbledygook, trash, rot, bull

buoyant
volatile, expansive, resilient, effervescant, *elast

burden

bumpkin
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
capacity to receive (charge a battery) To this sense have been added new connotations especially of loading beyond a capacity to receive or to contain so that the word now often implies a burdening, an overloading, or a weighing down (the youth was too charged with emotion to speak—Merideth) (songs . . . must not be too charged with meaning . . . or they will fail of their effect—Binyon) (all the . . . elemental processes of nature, all the changing, yet abiding physiognomy of earth and sky, were charged for psalmist and prophet with spiritual significance—Lowes) Saddle usually implies the imposition of a burden or encumbrance, ordinarily by another, though sometimes as a result of one's own fault (he is saddled with cares because of a hasty marriage) (by what mismanagement . . . had a project like this been saddled with Lord Comfrey as chairman?—Jan Struther) (saddling the nation with restrictive laws—New Republic) Ana oppress, *depress, weigh: *crush, mash Con lighten, alleviate, mitigate, *relieve: *moderate, temper burden n substance, purport, gist, core, pith Ana *subject, matter, subject matter, theme, text, topic burdensome oppressive, *onerous, exacting Ana *heavy, ponderous, cumbersome, cumbrous, weighty: *iksome, wearsome: fatiguing, exhausting, fagging, tiring (see tire): arduous, *hard, difficult Ant light —Con *easy, facile, simple, smooth, effortless burglar thief, robber (see under Theft) Ana stealer, pilferer, filcher, purloiner (see corresponding verbs at steal): plunderer, looter, rifler (see corresponding verbs at rob) burglarize *rob, plunder, rifle, loot Ana *steal, pilfer, filch, purloin, lift, pinch, snatch, cop, swipe: sack, pillege, *ravage, despoil burglarly theft, larceny, robbery

burlesque n caricature, parody, travesty Ana mimicry, mockery, imitation (see corresponding verbs at copy): *fun, jest, sport, game: satire, sarcasm, humor, *wit: derision, ridicule (see corresponding verbs at ridicule) burlesque vb caricature, parody, travesty (see under caricature n) Ana mimic, ape, mock, imitate, *copy: *ridicule, deride

burn vb Burn, scorch, char, sear, singe mean to injure by exposure to fire or intense heat. Burn is the most comprehensive of these terms, for it is applicable regardless of the extent of injury or of whether fire or heat is the destructive agency (the cake was burned to a crisp in the oven) (only the lower edge of his coat was burned by the flames) (the grass was badly burned by the sun) (the child burned his hand by touching the hot stove) Burn is also applicable when a similar injury or effect is produced by another agency (burn plants by using too strong a fertilizer) (a sharp wind burns the face) Scorch implies superficial burning that changes the color (especially to brown or black) or texture of something (scorch a dress in ironing it) (the paint of the house was badly scorched by the flames from the grass fire) Char usually implies total or partial reduction to carbon or charcoal by fire (charred wood) (char coffee beans in roasting them) (the lower parts of the rafters were charred in the fire) Seah usually implies burning or scorching of animal tissues by fire or intense heat (as in cauterizing a wound, branding an animal, or quickly browning the outside of meats so that they will retain their juices in later and slower cooking) (seared the damaged tissue with an electric needle) (many cooks still sear beef before roasting it) Singe implies a very superficial burning (the fire next door merely singed our house) Sometimes such burning is intentional, especially when the short hairs or bristles covering a carcass being prepared for market or for cooking are quickly destroyed by a flame (singe a chicken before broiling it) Ana kindle, fire, ignite, *light: *blaze, flame, glow burp *belch, vomit, disgorge, regurgitate, spew, throw up burst vb *break, crack, bust, snap, shatter, shiver Ana distend, swell, *expand: *push, shove, thrust, propel bury secrete, cache, *hide, conceal, screen, ensconce Con expose, display, parade, flaunt, exhibit, *show: unearth, *discover, ascertain, learn, determine business n 1 *work, occupation, pursuit, calling, employment Ana *trade, craft, handicraft, art, profession 2 *affair, concern, matter, thing Ana *function, office, duty, province: *task, job, assignment, chore, stint 3 Business, commerce, trade, industry, traffic are comparable chiefly when they denote one of the forms or branches of human endeavor which have for their objective the supplying of commodities. Business specifically applies to the combined activities of all those who are engaged in the barter, purchase, or sale of commodities of any sort either as wholesale or retail transactions or in financial transactions connected with such activities; in this sense business is thought of as the combined activities of all kinds of dealers (as merchants) and financiers (as bankers) as opposed to those of all kinds of producers (as manufacturers and farmers). The term is also used more broadly to include the activities of producers and transporters of goods as well as of merchants and bankers, since all these have for their ultimate aim the supplying of commodities and the increase of private wealth (there should be no conflict between government and business) (business is greatly depressed throughout the world) Commerce and trade, on the other hand, apply to the activities of those who are engaged in the exchange of commodities, especially such exchange as involves transactions on a large scale and the transportation of goods from place to place. The words are often used interchangeably; thus, in the United States the Interstate Commerce Commission regulates common carriers of all kinds (rail, water, motor) engaged in interstate transportation of passengers or goods; the Federal Trade Commission was created to prevent use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce and to investigate trade conditions in and with foreign countries. But in general commerce is preferred when different countries or states are involved, when transportation is across seas or by sea, and when the dealings are not only in merchandise but also in media of exchange (as money, bills of exchange, and notes) and trade, when different business organizations in the same country are involved or when the dealings are in commodities (laws regulating interstate commerce) (ships engaged in commerce with the West Indies) (a slump in the sale of automobiles has adversely affected the trade between the manufacturers and the steel companies) (free trade designates a policy of permitting entry of natural and manufactured products from foreign countries without duties or tariff restrictions) Industry applies chiefly to the activities of those who are engaged in production, especially in the processing of natural products, the manufacture of artificial products, the erection of buildings and other structures, on so large a scale that problems of capital and labor are involved. The term may be used generally to include all activities covered by this definition (automation is rapidly revolutionizing industry) It may also be used more narrowly of any branch of industry as determined by the thing produced (the sugar industry comprises all business organizations engaged in the processing and refining of sugar) (the steel industry) (the automobile industry) Traffic (see also INTERCOURSE) applies to the activities of those who are engaged in the operation of public carriers (as ships, railroads, bus lines, and systems of trucking) and who are therefore primarily responsible for the transportation not only of commodities and articles of manufacture but also of persons from one part of a country or of the world to another (the traffic interests were also represented at the conference) bust vb *break, crack, burst, snap, shatter, shiver Ana see those at BURST bustle n flurty, *stir, ado, fuss, pother Ana *business, commerce, trade, industry, traffic: movement, motion: hubbub, clamor, racket, babel, *din Con inactivity, idleness, inertness, passiveness, supineness (see corresponding adjectives at INACTIVE) busy, industrious, diligent, assiduous, sedulous mean actively engaged or occupied in work or in accomplishing a purpose or intention. Busy may imply nothing more than that the person or thing referred to is not idle, that is, that he is at work or that it is in use (the doctor is busy just now) (the telephone is busy) In attributive use and some predicative use busy usually implies habitual or temporary engrossment in activity or the appearance of such engrossment (the busy bee) (a busy life) (nowhere so busy a man as he there was, and yet he seemed busier than he was—Chaucer) (busy offices full of bustling clerks—Nevins & Commager) Industrious applies to one who is characteristically attentive to his business, work, or avocation; it implies habitual or continual earnest application (a willing, industrious boy ever striving to please) (at once the most industrious and the least industrial of the great nations—Browne) Diligent may stress care, constancy, attentiveness, and thoroughness, but it often implies application of these to some specific object or pursuit; thus, one may be diligent in seeking some favorite pursuit without being in general industrious (the Yankee's boots were missing, and after a diligent search were not to be found—Melville) (a diligent student of the scriptures) Assiduous implies studied and unremitting, and sedulous, painstaking and persevering application to a business or enterprise (acquire the power to speak French fluently by assiduous practice) (an assiduous nurse) (a sedulous but not brilliant student) (attempted to gain his end by sedulous flattery) (even the most assiduous critic can scarcely hope to keep abreast of the growing flood of translated books—Times Lit. Sup.) (I read with sedulous accuracy ... the metrical romances—Coleridge) (she would never fail in sedulous attention to his wants—M. E. Freeman) Ana engrossed, absorbed, *intent: working, toiling, laboring, travelling (see corresponding nouns at WORK) Ant idle: unoccupied —Con *inactive, inert, passive: indolent, slothful, *lazy: slack, relaxed (see LOOSE) butchery slaughter, *massacre, carnage, pogrom Ana murdering or murder, slaying, killing (see corresponding verbs at KILL) butt in vb *intrude, obtrude, interlope Ana interfere, *meddle, intermeddle: *interpose, intervene, interfere, mediate, intercede Con withdraw, retire (see GO): *refrain, abstain, forbear buttress n Buttress, pier, abutment are architectural terms for auxiliary structures designed to serve as a prop, shore, or support for a wall (as of a building). A buttress is a structure (as of masonry) projecting from and supporting a wall and often designed especially for receiving and carrying the outward pressure or thrust exerted on the wall by the weight of an arch or vault. In a flying buttress the pressure or thrust is carried over an open space. A pier is a thickened piece of masonry designed to stiffen a wall. A pier may be built as a part of the wall or it may be a detached mass used as the vertical part of a flying buttress and carrying the thrust of a masonry bar or rod extending between it and the wall. An abutment is the particular section of either a buttress or a pier which actually receives the pressure or thrust exerted by the weight of an arch or vault.

In bridge building an abutment is the support at either extreme end of the structure or, by extension, the anchorage of the cables for a suspension bridge; a pier is any intermediate support between the ends of a bridge.

by, through, with are comparable as prepositions followed by a word or phrase naming the agent, means, or instrument. By is followed commonly by the agent or causative agency (a wall built by the Romans) (a novel by Scott) (destroyed by fire) (devoured by wolves) (blessed by a priest) (infamed by the jibes of officers) (impressed by the evidence) Through implies intermediacy; it is followed by the name of the person or thing that serves as the medium of the means by which an end is gained or an effect produced (speak through an interpreter) (procure a rare book through a friend) (express ideas through words) (acquire a position through influence) (an opportunity lost through indecision) With, on the other hand, is often followed by the name of the instrument which accompanies the action (write with a pen) (eat with a fork) (defend oneself with a stick) It may, however, take for its object something not consciously used as an instrument but serving as the instrumentality by which an effect is produced (he amended the crowd with his anecdotes) (do not kill us with kindness) bystander onlooker, looker-on, witness, eyewitness, *spectator, observer, beholder byword *catchword, shibboleth, slogan Ana proverb, *saying, saw, motto: *abuse, invective: legend, caption (see INSCRIPTION) cad, bounder, rotter mean one who shows himself to be no gentleman. Usually they are somewhat vague terms of contempt for bad behavior or manners. Cad is applied especially to a man who violates in some way or another the code of morals or of manners by which he has been brought up and is supposed to be guided (Napoleon III—in whom the cad, the coward, the idealist, and the sensualist were inextricably mixed—Birrell) (I pretended to gloat over the sight . . . I have rarely in my life felt such a cad—Buchan) Bounder usually applies to a man who apes the gentleman but who in some definite way (as undue stylishness of dress or faulty habits of speech) marks himself as a mere imitation; the term condemns him as ignorant, obtrusive, or vulgar in a measure that puts him beyond the pale of good society (that is an antisocial proceeding, the conduct of a bounder—Archer) (this breezy, cocksure, self-assertive Englishman was what we today should be inclined to call a bounder—Cyril Robinson) Rotter may be applied to a man who is extremely objectionable especially on moral grounds (a regular rotten; that man is about as bad as they make them—George Moore) The term is sometimes used of one who is felt as objectionable because of some failure, however great or small, to conform and then may suggest no more than mild disapprobation (there were a few rotters among the schoolboys, but fortunately not very many) (he's a bit of a rotter but a jolly good fellow for all that) cadaver corpse, *body, carcass

cadaverous wasted, pinched, *haggard, worn, careworn

Ana gaunt, skinny, scrawny, angular, rawboned, lank, lanky, *lean, spare

Ant plump, stout —Con *fleshy, fat, corpulent, obese, portly, rotund cadence *rhythm, meter

Ana accentuation, accent, stress, *emphasis: beat, pulse, throb, pulsation (see under PULSATE)

cage vb *enclose, envelop, fence, pen, coop, corral, wall

Ana confine, circumscribe (see LIMIT): *imprison, incarcerate, jail: *surround, environ, encompass, hem

cajole wheedle, blandish, *coax

Ana entice, inveigle, seduce, decoy, *lure: beguile, delude, *deceive: tease, tantalize (see WORRY)

Con browbeat, bully, bulldoze, cow, *intimidate: constrain, oblige, compel, coerce, *force cake vb *harden, solidify, indurate, petrify

Ana *compact, consolidate: *contract, compress, condense, shrink calamitous *unlucky, disastrous, ill-starred, ill-fated, unfortunate, lackless, hapless calamity *disaster, catastrophe, cataclysm

Ana *accident, casualty, mishap: *misfortune, mischance, adversity, mishap: tribulation, visitation, affliction, *trial, cross: ruin, wretch (see RUIN)

Ant boon —Con fortune, luck (see CHANCE): favor, *gift: benefaction (see DONATION)

calculate, compute, estimate, reckon mean to determine something (as cost, speed, or quantity) by mathematical and especially arithmetical processes. Calculate is usually preferred when highly advanced, intricate, or elaborate processes are followed with precision and care and when the result arrived at is not readily proven by a physical confirmation (as by measuring or enumerating) (<calculate> the distance between the sun and the earth) (<calculate> the number of atoms in a cubic centimeter of hydrogen) Compute is preferred where the data are given or the actual figures involved are known and at hand and not arrived at indirectly; it therefore commonly implies the use of simple though often lengthy arithmetical processes (<compute> the interest due) (<compute> the cost of running a business during a given year) Estimate carries so strong an implication from its more common sense (see ESTIMATE) of an evaluation based on one's experience and good judgment that even when it implies careful calculation or computation it still connotes a result that is not necessarily exact but approximates the exact result; for he who estimates deals with data or figures that are to some extent unsatisfactory. Hence estimate is preferred to calculate and compute when the cost of a piece of work to be done is computed at present prices (a contractor's bid on a projected building is based on its estimated cost to him) ( the number of eggs laid by the hens during the month)

Ana weigh, study, *consider: *ponder, ruminate: determine, ascertain, *discover

Con guess, *conjecture, surmise

calculating circumspect, *cautious, wary, chary

Ana *deliberate, designed, considered, studied, premeditated: designing, scheming, plotting (see corresponding verbs under PLAN N): wily, guileful, crafty, artful, cunning, *sly

Ant reckless, rash —Con foolhardy, daring, venturesome, *adventurous: improvident, imprudent, indiscreet (see affirmative adjectives at PRUDENT)

calculation circumspection, caution, wariness, chariness (see under CAUTIOUS)

Ana *prudence, forethought, foresight, providence, discretion: *care, concern, solicitude: astuteness, perspicacity, sagacity, shrewdness (see corresponding adjectives at SHREW)

Ant recklessness, rashness

caliber *quality, stature

Ana capability, capacity, *ability: force, *power

call vb *summon, summons, cite, convok, convene, muster

Ana assemble, *gather, collect: *invite, bid

call n *visit, visitation caller *visitor, visitant, guest calling occupation, pursuit, business, *work, employment

Ana profession, *trade, craft, art, handicraft callous *hardened, indurated

Ana tough, tenacious, stout, *strong: *firm, solid, hard: *inflexible, adamant, obdurate, inexorable: insensitive, impassible, *insensible, anesthetic

Ant tender —Con *soft, lenient, gentle, smooth: yielding, submitting, relenting (see YIELD): compassionate, responsive, sympathetic (see TENDER): sensitive, susceptible, open, exposed, subject, liable callow green, crude, raw, * rude, rough, uncouth
Ana puercile, boyish, juvenile, * youthful: naïve, ingenuous, simple, unsophisticated, artless, * natural: adolescent, pubescent (see corresponding nouns at YOUTH)
Ant full-fledged, grown-up — Con * mature, adult, mature calm adj Calm, tranquil, serene, placid, peaceful, halcyon mean quiet and free from all that disturbs or excites. Calm is primarily applied to sea or weather, usually conveys an implicit contrast with its opposite, stormy, and suggests freedom, real or assumed, from agitation of whatever sort (as men for ever temp’rate, calm, and wise — Pope) Tranquil implies a more settled composure, a more inherent quiet, than calm with less suggestion of previous agitation overcome (farewell the tranquil mind! farewell content! — Shak) (the tranquil beauty of Greek sculpture — Fitz-Gerald) (a tranquil trust in God amid tortures and death too horrible to be related — Motley) Serene suggests a lofty and unclouded tranquillity (regions of mild calm and serene air, above the smoke and stir of this dim spot which men call Earth — Milton) (the serene monotony that so often wears the aspect of happiness — Glasgow) Placid connotes lack of excitement and suggests an unruled and equable aspect or temper or even sometimes, in derogatory use, a hint of stupidity (to confirm by placid silences the fact that the wine had been good — Henry James) (the placid common sense of Franklin — J. R. Lowell) (she is as placid as a cow) Peaceful (see also PACIFIC) implies repose or the attainment of undisturbed tranquillity (I am grown peaceful as old age tonight — Browning) (they harried his hitherto peaceful domains — Irving) Halcyon implies an almost magic or golden calmness especially of weather or of spirit (soft blue stone, the color of robins’ eggs, or of the sea on halcyon days of summer — Cather) (the long uproar over the passage of the Reform Bill compared to which the stormiest days of the New Deal were halcyon — Dwight Macdonald)

Ana * still, quiet, stillly, noiseless: pacific, peaceable, * impulsive, stoic: unruffled, composed, collected, imper turbable, unflammable, * cool
Ant stormy: agitated — Con shaken, rocked, convulsed (see SHAKE): disturbed, perturbed, discomposed, upset (see DISCOMPOSE)

calm vb Calm, compose, quiet, quieten, still, lull, soothe, settle, tranquilize are comparable when they relate to persons and their feelings and moods and mean essentially to bring to an end or relieve from whatever distresses, agitates, or disturbs. Calm implies a previous disordered state and denotes a returning to inner quietude especially as aided by judgment, fortitude, or faith (Christian faith calmed in his soul the fear of change and death — Wordsworth) (her also I with gentle dreams have calmed — Milton) Compose, often reflective, retains its basic notion of arranging in order, specifically in an order that results in repose; it may heighten suggestions of conscious effort, resolution, and fortitude (my child, if ever you were brave and serviceable in your life . . . you will compose yourself now — Dickens) (a most composed invincible man; in difficulty and distress, knowing no discouragement — Carlyle) Quiet and quieten may connote a temporary external calmness in speech or demeanor rather than lasting inner calm (the most unreasonable of Franklin’s impulses had now been quieted by this most reasonable of marriages — Van Doren) These terms are likely to be used in indicating the effect of actions on persons in authority on others (threats to the physical well-being of the unborn baby can quieten a noisy and uncooperative patient in labor — Lancet) Still is somewhat literary or poetic and stresses the fact of cessation of agitation (flattened, silenced, stillled — Woolf) (a voice stillled by death) It may suggest more peremptory action than the other terms compared and often connotes a return to quietude induced by power, authority, or awe (the debate was stillled by the crash of guns) (it was Mary who stillled the hideous bawling of Peter — H. G. Wells) Lull suggests the somnolence of lullaby, to which it is related (Aiken has lullled the reader with a seductive music and has transported him into the dreamworld of Freudian fantasy — Matthiessen) It may, on the one hand, apply to the gentle easing of an infant into sleep (as by song or rocking) or, on the other hand, imply a sleepy relaxation into repose, complacence, unawareness, or apathy when one should be vigilant (we must not let a year or two of prosperity lull us into a false feeling of security — Truman) Soothe suggests bland, gentle mitigation, assuagement, or solace (cooled their fevered sleep, and soothed them into slumbers full and deep — Keats) (when they [babies] wake screaming and find none to soothe them — Lamb) Settle (see also DECIDE) stresses the subsiding of swirling agitation and implies a stabilizing and easing of a mind or body previously upset (as by emotional excitement, illness, or intoxication) (settled her stomach with peppermint tea) (I’ll read a bit before supper to settle my mind — T urnbull) I can’t settle my brains, your next news of me will be that I am locked up — Montagu) Tranquilize in general use stresses the serenity and depth of peace achieved (when contemplation . . . sends deep into the soul its tranquilizing power — Wordsworth) but in recent years it has acquired a more specific though closely related medical application in which it implies a relieving of mental tension and agitation by means of medication (tranquilizers will calm nervous cows for milking . . . The most hopeful prospect in tranquilizing the animal world lies in the possibility it may change the attitude of some dogs toward postmen — Sacramento Bee)
Ana allay, assuage, mitigate, alleviate, * relieve: mollify, placate, appease, * pacify Ant agitate, arouse — Con upset, perturb, disturb, dis quiet, * discompose calmulate defame, slander, asperse, traduce, * malign, vilify, libel Ana revile, vituperate (see SCOLD): * decry, derogate, extol, laud, * praise, acclaim: defend, justify (see MAINTAIN) calmnum slander, * detraction, backbiting, scandal
Ana aspersion, reflection, * animadversion, stricture: defaming or defamation, maligning, traducing, vilifying or vilification, libelling or libel (see corresponding verbs at MALIGN vb)
Ant eulogize: vindicate — Con extol, laud, * praise, acclaim: defend, justify (see MAINTAIN) camouflage * disguise, cloak, mask, dissemble wish> {may we take your coach to town?—Thackeray}
The use of can for may in asking or granting permission is widespread.
canal *channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct cancel efface, obliterate, expunge, delete, *erase, blot out Ana invalidate, annul, *nullify: void, *annul, abrogate: *deface, disfigure: *neutralize, counteract, negative Con confirm, *ratify: *enforce, implement cancer *ability, capacity capable cant —Shaw)

efface, obliterate, expunge, delete, *erase, blot out

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability

•channel, conduit, duct, aqueduct

•ability, capacity
capable competent, qualified, *able

Ana efficient, *effective, effectual, efficacious
Ant incapable —Con incompetent, unqualified (see in-capable)
capacious *spacious, commodious, ample
Ana *broad, wide: extended or extensive (see corresponding verb EXTEND): expanded or expansive (see corresponding verb EXPAND)
capacity *ability, capability
dealing perfect justice to his son he was doing all that was possible—Meredith> Vagary suggests still more strongly the erratic, extravagant, or irresponsible character of the notion or fancy <straight they changed their minds, flew off, and into strange vagaries fell—Milton>  Crotchety implies even more perversity of temper or more indifferen t or trivial point <the impracticable crotchets you are fond of airing are not recognized in England as sane politi cal convictions—Shaw> <this political view may now seem to have been the crotchety of a particular set of historical scholars—Dewey>

Ana humor, mood, temper, vein: notion, idea: impulse (see MOTIVE): irrationality, unreasonable-ness (see corresponding adjectives at IRRATIONAL): perverseness, contrariness (see corresponding adjectives at CONTRARY)

Con intent, purpose, intention, design: project, scheme, plan: deciding or decision, determining or determination, resolving or resolution (see corresponding verbs at DECIDE) capricious mercurial, unstable, inconstant, fickle

Ana changeable, changeful, protean: variable: mood, humor-ous (see corresponding nouns at MOOD): volatile, effervescent (see ELASTIC)

Ant steadfast —Con constant, resolute, staunch, loyal, faithful: steady, constant capsize vb upset, overturn, overthrow, subvert caption inscription, legend
capsize *
close, cut
*contrary, perverse: exacting, demanding (see * self or another, or the pertinent thing that engrosses and
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
careless

a precaution for perfection (a careful piece of work) (a careful examination by the doctor) (a careful mapping out of the plan of battle) All of the other words mean exceedingly careful, but they vary in their implications of the motives which inspire such carefulness and, to a less extent, in regard to the objects of attention. Meticulous usually suggests timorousness lest one make the slightest error or fall short of a high standard; in addition, it implies extreme fussiness or fastidiousness in attention to details [Mr. Prufrock . . . like most converts, meticulous over points of ritual—Day Lewis] (the meticulous care with which the operation in Sicily was planned has paid dividends. For our casualties . . . have been low—Roosevelt) (there were men who ploughed clumsily . . . leaving banks of land untouched . . . but Hendrik was not one of these, his work was meticulous—Cloete) Scrupulous (see also upright) implies the promptings of conscience, not only of one’s moral conscience but of one’s sense of what is right and wrong (as in fact, in logic, or in aesthetics); it therefore also implies strict or painstaking adherence to what one knows to be true, correct, or exact (scrupulous fairness of statement) (scrupulous observation of details) Bradley, like Aristotle, is distinguished by his scrupulous respect for words, that their meaning should be neither vague nor exaggerated—T. S. Eliot

Punctilious, on the other hand, implies knowledge of the fine points (as of law, etiquette, ceremony, or morality) and usually connotes excessive or obvious attention to the details or minutiae of these (I am sorry . . . to see you so punctilious as to stand upon answers, and never to come near me till I have regularly left my name at your door—Gray) (the punctilious gods who judged them according to the principles laid down in some celestial Book of Etiquette—Krutch) Punctual may occasionally come close to punctilious in its stress on attention to the fine points of a law or code, but in such use the term carries a much stronger implication than punctilious of emphasis on their observance and a weaker implication of concentration upon the minutiae (we are not altogether so punctual as the French, in observing the laws of comedy—Dryden) (his punctual discharge of his duties—Froude) More usually the term implies near perfection in one’s adherence to appointed times for engagements or in following a schedule and then means punctually prompt (I made Mr. Middleditch punctual before he died, though when he married me he was known far and wide or in following a schedule and then means punctiliously of concentration upon the minutiae—Anne). . . . Curious to consider how heedless flies are!—Dickens (discreetly heedless, thanks to her long association with nobleness in art, to the leaps and bounds of fashion—Henry James) Thoughtless may emphasize lack of reflection or of forethought (thoughtless of tomorrow and God—Guthrie) More frequently it suggests lack of thoughtfulness or consideration for others (now and then, however, he is horribly thoughtless, and seems to take a real delight in giving me pain—Wilde) Inadventent usually implies heedlessness; the term is rarely applied to persons or their minds but is used in qualifying their acts and especially such of their errors) or inattention resulting from concentration on other things rather than from ignorance or intention (an inadvertent wakening of a person who is asleep) (an inadvertent error in spelling or in pronunciation) (they are in a bad fix . . . and sometimes with an inadvertent child or two to support—Rand)

Ana *negligent, neglectful, lax, slack, remiss: casual, desultory, haphazard, *random, hit-or-miss, happy-go-lucky

Ant careful —Con meticulous, scrupulous, punctilious, punctual (see careful): accurate, precise, exact, nice (see correct)

caress vb Caress, fondle, pet, cosset, cuddle, dallade mean to show affection or love by touching or handling. Caress implies an expression of tender interest (as by soft stroking or patting) or of affection ordinarily without undue familiarity (soothing with a touch the wild thing’s fright . . . caressed it into peace with light, kind palms—Edwin Arnold) (the little Isaac . . . leaned against his father’s knee . . . while Abraham’s left hand quieted him and caressed the boy’s face—Henry Adams) Fondle implies doting fondness and frequently lack of dignity; it usually suggests attentions (as hugging or kissing) more obvious and less gentle than caressing (fondle a baby) (all that he was good for, she said, was to fondle and fumble and kiss—Graves) (dwarf trees that had to be fondled and humored—Brooks) Pet, sometimes, and cosset imply special attentions and indulgences including more or less fondling (the petted child of the family) (died . . . in the newest and largest of hospitals petted by all her nurses—Jarrell) (soothed and cosseted by his aunt—Cather)

In recent use pet more often stresses flirtatious or amorous fondling and sometimes suggests undue familiarity (a petting party) Cuddle chiefly suggests the action of a mother or nurse in drawing a child close to her breast to keep it warm, happy, and quiet (little boys . . . who have kind mamma to cuddle them—Kingsley) The term may be extended to other attentions which imply a desire to protect and keep warm and comforted (The Temple seems . . . to have been coaxed, and warmed, and cuddled by the people round about him—Thackeray) (we might cuddle up to the world in a comfortable attitude—Langer) Dandle suggests playful handling of a child (as by moving him up and down lightly on one’s knee) (the mother cuddles, but the father dandles, their little boy) In its extended use dandle usually implies toying with especially in a playful but pampering manner (editors, scholars, mercaricature vb burlesque, parody, travesty (see under CARICATURE n)

Ana mimic, mock, ape, imitate, *copy: distort, *deform: simulate, counterfeit (see ASSUME): *ridicule, deride carriage

n
carnal, fleshly, sensual, animal are comparable when they are used in reference to human beings, their acts, works, desires, and interests and mean having or showing a physical rather than an intellectual or spiritual character or origin. Both carnal and fleshly imply a connection with the body or flesh especially when thought of as distinct from the spirit. Carnal need not in itself imply condemnation (as against against morally as well as carnal attack—Stoker) Often it is a purely descriptive or classificatory term (a . . . flier with a lyrical gift for conveying the carnal élan of men fighting, was the first writer ever to treat air combat in epic style—Flanner) but through its frequent opposition to the spiritual it has come to suggest not merely man's bodily but his lower nature and appetites (the superiority of the spiritual and eternal over the carnal and temporal had to be vindicated—H. O. Taylor) medieval Christian tradition to restore the conviction that sex, being carnal and not spiritual, is low, lascivious, and wicked—Garvin and ultimately to be applied more or less specifically and usually derogatorily to the sexual and the lustful as the most bodily of appetites and the most antithetical to the spiritual nature (to make herself a carnal object, the prey of another, is in contradiction to her self-worship: it seems to her that embraces blight and sully her body or degrade her soul—Parshley) (he has also three partner antagonists: his wife Lucy and his two mistresses, one a carnal affair, the other "idealistic"—Bentley) (who more than carnal a recent virgin—Steinbeck) (had an instant succès du scandale. It titillated the prurient with the frankness of its carnal detail—S. H. Adams) Fleshly, though it implies a connection with the flesh thought of as man's lower nature, is often less suggestive of condemnation than carnal (turn to Bernard's love of God, and rise with him from the fleshly to the spiritual—H. O. Taylor) (the godly dame, who fleshly failings damns—Pope) Sensual implies a connection with sensations, but it further implies an indulgence in bodily sensation for its own sake rather than for an aesthetic end (his feet and hands were always cold and there was for him an almost sensual satisfaction to be had from just lying perfectly still . . . and letting the hot sun beat down on him—Anderson) Very often the word carries implications of grossness marked by concentration on bodily sensation and the absence of intellectual or spiritual qualities (a sloping meaty jaw, and large discolored buckteeth which showed unpleasantly in a mouth . . . always half open . . . that gave his face its sensual, sly, and ugly look—Wolfé) Animal implies a connection with man's physical nature as distinguished chiefly from his rational nature. It comparatively seldom implies an intent to depreciate (he could never find his Nirvana in mere sensuousness; he could not sink into the mud of animal existence—Parrington) (the first mood at any war's end is sheer animal joy in survival—Wecter) (he taught the boy boxing, and shooting, and . . . superintended the direction of his animal vigor—Meredith) Ana physical, *bodily, corporeal, corporal, somatic: *sensual: gross, *coarse, vulgar, obscene: *earthly, earthly, worldly, mundane: lustful, lewd, wanton, lascivious (see LICENTIOUS)

Ant spiritual: intellectual —Con *moral, ethical, virtuous, noble, righteous: ethereal, aerial (see AIRY): pure, *chaste, modest, decent carol vb *sing, troll, descant, warble, trill, hymn, chant, carry adj. caviling, faultfinding, captious, critical, or carping.

Antonyms
Con: commending or commendatory, applauding, complimenting.

Synonyms
Commend, lauding, extolling.

Approve
Avow, own, declare, avow, assert.

Carry vb
- Carry, bear, convey, transport, transmit are comparable when they mean to be or to serve as the agent or the means whereby something or someone is moved from one place to another.
- Carry often implies the use of a cart or carriage or more recently of a train, ship, automobile, or airplane, but it may imply a personal agent or a beast of burden or some natural or artificial passage (as an artery or a pipe) or a ship carries a heavy cargo (airplanes carry mail) (a bus built to carry sixty passengers) (carry news) (please carry the basket to the house) (the arteries carry the blood from the heart to the various parts of the body).
- Bear stresses the support of the weight of whatever is being moved; in its extended senses, even though actual weight may not be implied, bear is preferred to carry when effort is suggested or the importance or the significance of what is carried is to be connoted (let four captains bear Hamlet, like a soldier, to the stage—Shak.) (over his head was borne a rich canopy—Johnson) (then came the envoy's bearing rich gifts) (come bearing good news) (Convey is more often used than carry of things that move continuously or in that mass or that pass through natural or artificial channels or mediums (an endless belt for conveying dirt from an excavation to the trucks removing it) (freight cars for conveying coal from the mines to the various cities and towns) (pipelines to convey natural gas from one section to another) (language conveys thought) Transport is used in place of carry or convey when the stress is on the movement of persons or goods especially in numbers or bulk and typically over a considerable distance and by a professional carrier (as a railroad or shipping line) (fast liners were used to transport troops to France) (trucks transporting farm produce to market) (most modern well-to-do Englishmen and Americans, if they were transported by magic into the Age of Elizabeth, would wish themselves back in the modern world—Russell) Transmit emphasizes the causative power in an agent or instrument: it implies either an actual sending by some means of conveyance or transportation (the telegraph company transmits messages to all parts of the world) (the steamship company will transmit your baggage whenever it receives the word) or the power or the property of permitting passage through or from one place to another (glass transmits light) (metals transmit electricity).

Carve vb
Con: amalgamation
Ant: analogous words
- Carve, incise, engrave, etch, chisel, sculpture, sculpt, sculpt are comparable when they denote to cut an outline or a shape out of or into some substance (as stone, wood, or metal). They are, however, not close synonyms, for few of the terms keep within the limits of this meaning. Carve (see also cut) suggests working with an instrument (as a knife or a chisel) in order to adorn a surface or to fashion a solid figure; the term may connote an artistic purpose (as representation or decoration) and a method of work involving the cutting of a pattern into a surface (intaglio carving) or the cutting away of parts of the original surface so as to leave a raised design or raised figures upon a new ground (relief carving) or the fashioning of a whole or partial figure by cutting or chipping away excess material (carve an inscription on a tombstone) (the legs of chairs and table were carved with oak leaves) (a figure carved in stone is fine carving when one feels that not the figure, but the stone . . . has come to life—Sweeney) Incise implies cutting into with an instrument (as a knife) that leaves traces; more specifically it implies a cutting into some hard or resistant material so that figures, letters, or devices are marked upon its surface (incise an epitaph upon a monument) (the gem had been incised with his coat of arms and was used as his seal) Engrave often implies a cutting into and may be used as an equivalent of incise: in general use, however, it more often implies a cutting (as upon wood, stone, or metal) with a graving tool in order to form an inscription or a pictorial representation that can be printed either from the incised lines, spaces, or points (as in copperplate engraving) or from parts of the surface left in relief (as in wood engraving). The noun engraving denotes a picture printed from a plate or block thus made, but the verb usually emphasizes the work of the one who actually cut the plate or block (was asked to engrave a portrait of Daniel Webster) (prints made from an engraved copper plate) Engrave also may be used to connote an indelible impression upon the heart, mind, or memory (no stone stands over where he lies. It is on our hearts that his life is engraved—Galsworthy) Etch differs from engrave only in implying that the lines and dots which form a picture are incised not upon the metal but through a hard, acid-resisting surface (as of varnish) covering the metal of a plate and are then eaten into the plate by coating this surface with acid. Chisel, though used widely by workers in stone and wood to suggest the various processes (as of cutting or shaping) that are executed with a chisel, is in general use more often employed to suggest either literally or figuratively the process of carving an image from resistant material; the emphasis in such use is upon the skill of the maker and the artistic quality of the product (it was a great artist who chiseled the vital figure of the Winged Victory out of stone) (finely chiseled features) Sculpture and the related sculpt and sculpt imply the formation of primarily three-dimensional figures especially in stone or metal. Basically sculpture suggests carving or chiseling out of some hard substance, but all three terms stress the end result over the technique and may be extended to include the making of three-dimensional art forms by such diverse methods as modeling and molding, welding, or construction as well as by the traditional carving and chiseling, and all three, but especially sculpture, may be further extended to processes and results suggesting the work of a sculptor (a sculptured bronze head) (because it was God Who had sculptured the mountains . . . while it was men who had bricked the cities and that was why they were sometimes so ugly—Bruce Marshall) (does not so much sing Mozart's phrases as sculpt them, with the sure instincts of a master craftsman—Gelatt) (Brancusi . . . sculps what Plato had in mind by the idea of form—Time).

Ana shape, fashion, form (see make): produce, turn out.
(see BEAR)

case

1. *instance, illustration, example, specimen, sample

Ana *occurrence, event, incident, episode, circumstance: situation, condition, *state

2. *cause, action, *suit, lawsuit

casement *window, dormer, oriel

cash *currency, *money, legal tender, specie, coin, coinage

cashier vb *dismiss, discharge, drop, fire, sack, bounce

Ana *ject, expel, oust: eliminate, disbar, *exclude, suspend

Con *engage (see PROMISE): elect, appoint, *designate, name

cast 1 *throw, fling, hurl, pitch, toss, sling

Ana *direct, aim, point, level, train, lay; *scatter, disperse

2. *discard, shed, melt, slough, scrap, junk

Ana *relinquish, abandon, yield, surrender, leave: relinquish, reject (see DECLINE): *dismiss, drop

3. *figure, foot, *add, sum, total, tot

Ana compute, *calculate, reckon

castaway *derelic, *outcast, reprobate, pariah, unatouchable

castigate vb *chastise, *punish, chasten, discipline, correct

Ana *beat, baste, thrash, pummel, belabor: berate, tongue-lash, rate, upbraid, wig, rail (see SCOLD): *penalize, fine, amerce, mult

castrate *sterilize, spay, emasculate, alter, mutilate, geld, castrate

casual 1 *accidental, incidental, adventitious, contingent, fortuitous

Ana unmeditated (see EXTEMPORANEOUS): *indifferent, unconsidered, incurious: *negligent, slack, lax, remiss: inadvertent, *careless, heedless

Con *intentional, *voluntary: premeditated, *deliberate, studied, considered, advised, designed: *careful, meticulous, punctilious, scrupulous

2 *desultory, *random, haphazard, chance, hit-or-miss, happy-go-lucky

Ana offhand, impromptu, improvised, *extemporaneous, extemore: *spontaneous, impulsive: unmethodical, un-systematic (see affirmative adjectives at ORDERLY)

Ant deliberate —Con *formal, conventional, ceremonial (see CEREMONIAL)

casualty *incident, mishap

Ana *disaster, calamity, catastrophe, cataclysm: *misfortune, mischance, mishap

casualistic *sophisticial, fallacious (see under FALLACY)

Ana *plausible, specious: tortuous (see WINDING): oblique, devious, *crooked: misleading, delusive, deceptive, delusory

Con *sound, cogent, convincing, *valid

casuistry sophistry, sophism, *fallacy

cataclysm catastrophe, *disaster, calamity

Ana *convulsing or convulsion, rocking, shaking, agitation (see corresponding verbs at SHAKE): revolution (see REBELLION): *misfortune, mischance, mishap

catalog n *list, inventory, table, schedule, register, roll, roster

Ana enumerate, number, *count: enter, admit cataract n *flood, deluge, inundation, torrent, spate

catastrophe *disaster, calamity, cataclysm

Ana *trial, tribulation, visitation: defeating or defeat, overthrowing or overthrow, routing or rout (see corresponding verbs at CONQUER)

Con *victory, triumph

catch vb *1 Catch, capture, trap, snare, entrap, ensnare, bag comparable when meaning to get into one's possession or under one's control either by taking or seizing or by means of skill, craft, or trickery. Catch, the ordinary and general term of this group, distinctively implies that the thing laid hold of has been in flight, in concealment, or in constant movement and that possession has been gained by pursuit, force, strategy, or surprise or by means of a device or accident which brings it within one's reach physically, visually, or mentally (after several days' search the detectives caught the murderer) (not to able to catch the man who snatched her purse) (catch fish) (catch a ball) (catch a pupil cheating in an examination) (his eyes caught the skirt of her dress—Dickens) (Yancey Cravat caught the word beneath his teeth and spat it back—Ferber) (he smiled back like a child caught in a lie—Steinbeck) Sometimes the power of laying hold of is ascribed not to a person, his vision or other sense, or his mind, heart, or imagination but to the thing which draws to itself his attention, his eye, or his fancy (the fact caught her interest, just as sometimes a point in a wide dull landscape catches the eye—Deland) (two recent imports... offer striking new surprises which may catch unaware even the veteran reader—Anthony Boucher) Capture implies heavier odds (as greater opposition or difficulty or more competition) than does catch and suggests a taking possession that amounts to an overcoming or a victory (capture a stronghold of the enemy) (capture a company of retreating soldiers) (he was making plans... to capture the banking of the country—Bello) (no artist can set out to capture charm; he will toil all the night and take nothing—Benson) *Trap, snare, entrap, and ensnare imply catching by a device which holds the one caught in a position that is fraught with danger or difficulty or from which escape is difficult or impossible. Trap and snare imply the use of a trap or snare (see LURE n), but entrap and ensnare suggest trickery in capture more often than the use of an actual trap or snare: all four terms impume craft to the catcher and unwarrantless or lack of caution to the one that is caught. Distinctively, trap and entrap suggest a being held in a position where one is at the mercy of the captor and his designs, and snare and ensnare a being held so that the more one struggles the more desperate becomes one's situation (trap an animal) (snare a bird) (trap a detachment of soldiers with an ambush) (themselves in bloody toils were snared—Scott) (as if he would clear away some entanglement which had entrapped his thoughts—Bromfield) (entrap a person by a sudden question into making a dangerous admission) (sympathetic to the regime that ensnared them in its monstrous net—B. D. Wolfe) Bag carried a double implication of catching (as game or specimens) and of putting into a container (as a game bag) for transportation or storage (he bagged several rare butterflies within the last month) (bag pheasants) So strong is the implication of catching and killing game in this use that the word is often employed without suggestion of putting in a bag (they bagged three bears on their last hunting expedition) (it bagged the British rights to John Hersey's Hiroshima while other English publishers were asleep—Cerf)

Ana seize, *take, grasp, grab, clutch, snatch: apprehend, *arrest

Ant *miss

2 *incure, contract

catching contagious, *infectious, communicable catchword, byword, shibboleth, slogan mean a phrase that catches the eye or the ear and is repeated so often that it becomes a formula. Catchword usually applies to a phrase that serves as the formula or identification mark of an emotionally charged subject (as a school of thought, a political party, or a cause) and that is often used by those who have only a superficial knowledge of the subject and catechize

interrogate, quiz, examine, question, *ask, query, categorical 1 *ultimate, absolute Con *hypothetical, conjectural, supposititious (see SUPposed): conditional, contingent, relative, *dependent express, definite, *explicit, specific Ana *positive, certain, *sure: *forthright, downright Con ambiguous, equivocal, vague, cryptic, enigmatic, *obscure: dubious, *doubtful, questionable, problematic category *class, genus, species, denomination, genre Ana division, section, *part: classification (see corresponding verb at ASSORT) cater vb Cater, purvey, panderm are comparable when they mean to furnish with what satisfies the appetite or desires.
Cater basically implies the provision of what is needed in the way of food and drink (he that doth the ravens feed, yea, providently caters for the sparrow—Shak.) The term especially implies provision of food and drink ready for the table (a firm that caters for dinners, weddings, and receptions) In extended use cater often implies the provision of something that appeals to a specific appetite <caters to the national taste and vanity—Thackeray> Often, especially when followed by to, the term implies a certain subserviency (as to popular standards or uncultivated tastes) <too many movies, novels, and comic books do cater to an appetite for violence—Sisk> <cat-to the public demand for the sensational> Purvey usually suggests the provision of food but sometimes of such other material necessities as lodgings and clothes. In contrast with cater, however, it suggests service as a source of supply, either as an agent through whom what is wanted may be found or as a merchant who sells the needed articles <merchants who purveyed to the troops during the Seven Years’ War> In extended use, especially when followed by for, purvey implies the provision of whatever is needed to satisfy, delight, or indulge (the function of the eye is not merely ministerial; it merely purveys for use—Lanier) Panderm, which basically means to act as a procurer or as a go-between in an illicit amour, in its frequent extended use may imply a purveying of something which will gratify desires and passions that are degrading or base <pander to depraved appetites> <pandto morbid tendencies> or may connote more servile truckling <denounced legislative pandering to special interests—Time> <institutions which Pandered to the factory workers . . . —a movie house, a quick-lunch wagon
—F. S. Fitzgerald> or even no more than a deferring to or a reasonable indulgence of tastes <choose a plan to suit your type of land and to panderm to your own particular tastes—Sydney Bulletin> <such things, as being traditional, may panderm to your sense of the great past.
Histrionically, too, they are good—Beerbohm Ana *furnish, equip, appoint, accouter: pamper, indulge, humor: *satisfy, content

cause
n 1 Cause, determinant, antecedent, reason, occasion are comparable when denoting what in whole or in part produces an effect or result. Cause is applicable to an agent (as a circumstance, condition, event, or force) that contributes to the production of an effect or to any combination (as of circumstances, conditions, or events) that inherently or necessarily brings about a result (<one of the causes of the French Revolution was the bankruptcy of the government> <every effect must have an adequate cause> <what was the cause of this outbreak?> <water and soil pollution are the root causes of mortality in the tropics—Heiser> Cause is sometimes used of a personal agent whose activities are instrumental in bearing consequences (he is the cause of all our troubles) or of the motive which prompts one to action (he claimed to have just cause for his attack) A determinant is a circumstance, factor, element, quality, or motive that by itself or in combined with other factors conditions or fixes the nature of a result and especially of a product or outcome <environment is an important determinant of character> <the ideals and the character of citizens are the final determinants of their form of government> (“imponderables,” which in philosophy as in politics are the most important factors of experience and determinants of action—Inge>

Ana analogous words  Ant antonyms  Con contrasted words  See also explanatory notes facing page 1
<strength of organization, shelter from foreign or other distant competition, command of markets in key industries—these are the main direct determinants of wage rates—Hobson> Antecedent is applicable to a person or thing (as an object or a circumstance, condition, or event) that is responsible, usually in part, for a later existing person or thing, most often as a progenitor, precursor, or predeterminant; it is certainly true that these twelfth-century windows . . . had no antecedent, and no fit succession—Henry Adams> (the antecedents of emperor-worship lay far back in history—Buchan) (phenomena like these have other social, cultural, or superorganic phenomena as their immediate causes or antecedents—Kroeber) Reason is interchangeable with cause when it means specifically a traceable or explainable cause; it always implies, therefore, that the effect is known or has actually been brought about; there was a reason for Mark Twain's pessimism, a reason for that chagrin . . . . That bitterness of his was the effect of a certain miscarriage in his creative life, a balked personality, an arrested development—Brooks> Occasion applies to a situation or to a person, place, or event which provides such a situation that serves to set in motion causes already existing or to translate them into acts; thus, the cause of a war may be a deep-rooted enmity between two peoples, the occasion of it such a relatively unimportant incident as the murder of a citizen of one country within the confines of the other; an occasion of sin may be a visit to a place (as a saloon) where the real cause, a propensity to drink, is not resisted (a formula that has been the occasion for a considerable amount of misunderstanding—Richards)>

Ana * motive, spring, incentive, inducement, spur, goad, impulse; motivation, activation, actuation (see corresponding verbs at activate); agent, agency (see mean); * origin, root, source, prime mover

Con * effect, result, consequence, outcome, issue

2 * suit, lawsuit, action, cause, case

cautious, circumspect, wary, chary, calculating are comparable when meaning prudently attentive to the dangers one may encounter or the risks one may face, or revealing such attentiveness. The same differences in implications and connotations are apparent in the nouns caution, circumspection, wariness, chariness, calculation when they denote the quality of the character or the mental processes of one who is so attentive. Caution and caution usually imply both the prompting of fear, especially of fear of failure or of harm to oneself or others, and the exercise of forethought in planning or of prudence in proceeding so that the dangers of failure or the risks of disaster may be avoided or minimized (the troops advanced with great caution) (a cautious investor) (for the most part, he generalizes with a sobriety and a caution worthy of the highest praise—Huxley) (the old man, cautious in all his movements, always acting as if surrounded by invisible spies, delayed setting out until an hour after dark—Hudson>) Circumspect and circumspection frequently imply less fear than cautious and caution; commonly, however, they suggest the exercise of great prudence and discretion, especially in making decisions or in acting, and the surveying of all possible consequences, lest moral, social, business, or political harm may inadvertently occur (and in all things that I have said unto you be circumspect—Exod 23:13) (they do not live very happy lives, for they even more than the others are restricted in their movements, and they must live the most circumspect of lives—Steinbeck) (the . . . circumspection with which it approaches the consideration of such questions—John Marshall>) Wary and wariness usually carry a far stronger suggestion of suspiciousness than cautious and caution and sometimes, as a result, connote less well-grounded fear. Often, also, the terms imply alertness in watching out for difficulties or dangers or cunning in escaping them (they . . . had a wary eye for all gregarious assemblages of people, and turned out of their road to avoid any very excited group of talkers—Dickens) (we must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal preach the "ism" of appeasement—Roosevelt) (our domestic dogs are descended from wolves . . . they may not have gained in cunning, and may have lost in wariness—Darwin>) Chary and chariness imply the cautiousness of those who are careful of what they have or what they can give, say, or do and proceed with great reserve or discretion (I am chary of admitting native differences between the sexes, but I think that girls are less prone than boys to punish oddity by serious physical cruelty—Russell>) (my business experience has taught me to be chary of committing anything of a confidential nature to any more concrete medium than speech—Faulkner>) (there was no fastidious overrefined chariness in the use of that name—F. W. Robertson>) Calculating and calculation imply the caution of one who carefully and deliberately plans the way to attain his own and often selfish end taking into account every possible danger and the way in which it can be met (some day the American boy's outlook upon the future may be as clear and calculating as that of his European brother—Grandgent>)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
cease

*stop, quit, discontinue, desist

cavity

*hollow, *hole, pocket, void, vacuum

cede

*truce, armistice, peace
cease-fire

*watchful, vigilant, alert: prudent, provident, foresighted, forethoughtful, discreet (see under PRUDENCE): heedful, careful (see negative adjectives at CARELESS)

Adventurous, temerarious — Con: venturesome, daring, rash, reckless, foolhardy (see ADVENTUOUS): *precipitate, impetuous, headlong cavalcade

*procession, parade, cortège, motorcade

Ana *succession, progression, chain, train: array, *display, play cave

succumb, submit, *yield, capitulate, relent, defer, bow

caviling adj captious, faultfinding, censorious, carping, *critical, hypercritical

Ana exacting, demanding (see DEMAND): *contrary, perverse: objecting, protesting, expostulating, kicking (see OBJECT)

Con: accommodating, obliging, favoring (see OBLIGE): *complaisant, *amiable, good-natured: conciliating, pacifying, mollifying, appeasing (see PACIFY)

cavity

hollow, *hole, pocket, void, vacuum

Con: bulge, protuberance, protrusion, *projection

cease

*stop, quit, discontinue, desist

Ana end, terminate, *close, conclude, finish: stay, suspend, intermit (see DEFER)

Con: *spring, arise, rise, originate: *begin, commence, start, initiate, inaugurate: *extend, prolong, protract: *continue, persist

cease-fire

*truce, armistice, peace

cede

surrender, abandon, waive, resign, yield, *relinquish, leave

Ana *grant, concede, award, accord, vouchsafe

Con: withhold, hold, hold back, keep back, retain (see KEEP) celebrate commemorate, solemnize, observe, *Keep celebrated

renowned, *famous, famed, eminent, illustrious

Ana: prominent, conspicuous, outstanding, signal (see NOTICEABLE)

Ant: obscure

celebrity

*fame, renown, glory, honor, éclat, reputation, repute, notoriety

Ana: prominence, conspicuousness (see corresponding adjectives at NOTICEABLE)

Ant: obscurity

celerity, alacrity, legerity are comparable when they are used in reference to human beings and denote quickness in movement or action. Celerity stresses speed in moving or especially in accomplishing work (she could, when she chose, work with astonishing celerity—Bennett) the human brain, we are reminded, acts at times with extraordinary celerity—Cardozo Alacrity emphasizes promptness in response more than swiftness in movement, though the latter is usually implied (you must wait till she sends for you—” and she winced a little at the alacrity of his acceptance—Wharton) Very often, also, it connotes eagerness or cheerful readiness (working away at his subject with the alacrity ... of a man ... fulfilling the very office ... for which nature had designed him—L. P. Smith) Legerity, a less common word than the others, refers more to the quality than to the rate of speed and implies nimbleness and ease (cover the ground with the legerity of a trained runner) (when the mind is quickened ... the organs ... newly move, with ... fresh legerity—Shak) (the legerity of the French mind made the Gallic visitor quick to comprehend his desire for solitude—Wylie) Ana: expedition, dispatch, speed, hurry, *haste: quickness, rapidity, swiftness, fleetness (see corresponding adjectives at FAST): velocity, *speed: agility, briskness, nimbleness (see corresponding adjectives at AGILE)

Ant: leisureliness — Con: slowness, deliberateness or deliberation, dilatoriness (see corresponding adjectives at SLOW): *lethargy, languor

celstial adj

Celestial, heavenly, empyrean, empyreal mean of, relating to, or fit for heaven or the heavens. Celestial (opposed to terrestrial) may refer either to the visible heavens (the region surrounding the earth and seemingly enclosed by the sky) or to the religious conception of heaven or the heavens (in Christian use, the abode of God, the angels, and the blessed dead); thus, a celestial globe is one on whose surface the stars, planets, comets, and nebulae are depicted; a celestial body is a star, planet, or other aggregation of matter that forms a unit for astro-" center

Ana reprimand, rebuke, reproach, *reprieve: upbraid, berate, tongue-lash (see scold)

Ant commend — Con applaud, compliment, recommend (see commend): eulogize, laud, *praise center n Center, middle, midst, core, hub, focus, nucleus, heart are comparable when meaning the point, spot, or portion of a thing which is comparable to a point around which a circle is described. Center approximates more or less closely its strict geometrical sense as the point within a circle or sphere that is equidistant from every other point on the circumference or is the average distance from the exterior points of a body or figure (the center of a table) (the center of the earth) Center may be extended to a thing or a part of a thing which suggests a geometrical center especially in being the point around which the rest rotates or revolves (each airy thought revolved round a substantial center—Wordsworth) (the old school was the center of our lives, somehow: dances, Sundays, services—McCourt) or at which all lines (as of activity) converge (draw to one point, and to one center bring beast, man, or angel, servant, lord, or king—Pope) (as of activity) converge (draw to one point, and to one center bring beast, man, or angel, servant, lord, or king—Pope) (the discernment and understanding in which he penetrates to the heart and essence of the problem—Cardozo)

Middle, also applies to what has duration (as of activity) converge (draw to one point, and to one center bring beast, man, or angel, servant, lord, or king—Pope) (the discernment and understanding in which he penetrates to the heart and essence of the problem—Cardozo)

Middle is less precise than center and suggests a space rather than a point; it is the part of an object which includes and surrounds the center; thus, the middle of a room is the central portion of it (they have what they call a central depot here, because it's the middle of England—Bennett) Middle, unlike center, also applies to what has duration (the middle of the night) and to merely linear extension (the middle of the road) Middle may be applied freely to something which lies between the beginning and end (as of a process, a course, or a piece of work) (in this, as in most questions of state, there is a middle—Burke) (he was stopped in the middle of his speech) (a play should have a beginning, middle, and end) Midnight is often used in place of middle for a point or spot well within a group or number of enveloping persons or objects or of things (as duties, affairs, and burdens) that surround or beset one; however it seldom occurs except in a prepositional phrase introduced by in, into, from, out of (he stood in the midst of a crowd) (he penetrated into the midst of the forest) (why it was he should feel in the midst of all these people so utterly detached and so lonely—Bromfield) (sense of right, uppermost in the midst of fiercest strife—Wordsworth)

Core basically denotes the central portion of certain fruits (as the apple) which is made up of the forest) (why it was he should feel in the midst of all these people so utterly detached and so lonely—Bromfield) (sense of right, uppermost in the midst of fiercest strife—Wordsworth)

Focus implies a point at which a number and usually the total number of things of the same sort (as rays of light, waves of sound, attentions, or interests) converge and become one (the attention of the audience was focused upon the speaker) (the essential characteristic of poetry is its power of focusing the whole range of our sensibilities—Binyon) (how to get the sense of equity or fair play which prevails in many other spheres of action to focus upon these . . . disturbing economic questions is thus distinctively a moral issue—Hobson) Centralize is used of things (as government, authority, or administrative procedure) that may be either gathered about a center or divided, distributed, or diffused; it especially implies the placing of power and authority under one head or in one central organization or the bringing together of similar things at one point (authority is said to be centralized wherever a manager tends not to delegate authority to his subordinates—Koo and O'Donnell) (the bidders of reorganization point out that the centralized type of administrative organization has worked well with the national government, with the better-governed cities, and with American business—Dimond & Pfieger) (by centralizing . . . the reserves of the member banks within a district, the Federal Reserve System builds up a large sum of money and credit upon which any member bank may call—Goodman & Moore) Concentrate differs from the other words not only in being more widely applicable but also in its greater emphasis upon human or things depend for their life, activity, ideas, or progress (Boston Statehouse is the hub of the solar system—Holmes) Focus is applicable to a point of convergence or concentration or, sometimes, in nontechnical use, of emanation; thus, the point at which rays of light meet after reflection or refraction is called a focus; a person to whom all eyes are turned is the focus of attention (a place of exchange for the merchandise of East and West . . . the focus of a network of trade routes—Buchanan) Nucleus applies especially to a vital and usually small and stable center about which matter is gathered or concentrated or to which accretions are made (the nucleus of a cell) (the nucleus of an atom) (a small but good collection of books as a nucleus for his library) (unable to re-create a satisfactory social group from the nucleus of his own individuality—Day Lewis) Heart applies to a place or thing that lies well within something (as a region or system) and which determines the essential character of the whole or serves as a vital, positive, or motivating part (the economic heart of the nation has gradually shifted to the west) (exploits done in the name of France—Shak) (Rome was the heart and pulse of the empire—Buchan) (the discernment and understanding in which he penetrates to the heart and essence of the problem—Cardozo)

Con *circumference, periphery, perimeter, compass: bounds, confines, limits (see singular nouns at LIMIT)

center vb Center, focus, centralize, concentrate are comparable (though not closely synonymous) because all mean to draw to or fix upon a center. Center strongly implies a point upon which things turn or depend; typically the term is followed by a prepositional phrase (as with in, on, or upon) that names the thing (or sometimes the person) upon which all responsibility or all attention is placed or around which anything or everything of a specified kind (as hopes, fears, or joys) turns (the authority was centered in one person) (the incident upon which the plot centers) (a common belief about art is that it centers about emotion—Alexander) (the man whose hopes and fears are all centered upon himself can hardly view death with equanimity, since it extinguishes his whole emotional universe—Russell) Focus implies a point at which a number and usually the total number of things of the same sort (as rays of light, waves of sound, attentions, or interests) converge and become one (the attention of the audience was focused upon the speaker) (the essential characteristic of poetry is its power of focusing the whole range of our sensibilities—Binyon) (how to get the sense of equity or fair play which prevails in many other spheres of action to focus upon these . . . disturbing economic questions is thus distinctively a moral issue—Hobson) Centralize is used of things (as government, authority, or administrative procedure) that may be either gathered about a center or divided, distributed, or diffused; it especially implies the placing of power and authority under one head or in one central organization or the bringing together of similar things at one point (authority is said to be centralized wherever a manager tends not to delegate authority to his subordinates—Koo and O'Donnell) (the bidders of reorganization point out that the centralized type of administrative organization has worked well with the national government, with the better-governed cities, and with American business—Dimond & Pfieger) (by centralizing . . . the reserves of the member banks within a district, the Federal Reserve System builds up a large sum of money and credit upon which any member bank may call—Goodman & Moore) Concentrate differs from the other words not only in being more widely applicable but also in its greater emphasis upon human

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
skill and human methods, discipline, or effort in effecting its purpose; the word may be used not only with reference to what may be centralized or focused and to much that may be centered but is applicable also to material substances that can be reduced in volume (as by dehydration or evaporation), thereby gaining in strength or intensity (see also compact) here Hannibal . . . concentrated the forces which had been gathered from such distant countries—R. B. Smith} but neither of the men paid much attention to these things, their eyes being concentrated upon the little flat stone—Hardy} I think that it is a test which we may apply to all figure-painters . . . if we ask whether the figures are really occupied by what they are doing, if the movements of the body are concentrated on the particular business of the moment—Binyon *central, cerebral, mental, intellectual, psychic, intelligent cerebral and ceremonious imply strict attention to and regard for what is prescribed by the etiquette or tradition of a court or of polite society, by the ritual of a church, or by the formalities of the law for a ceremony or a proceeding. They are sometimes interchangeable (Duncan dropped back, whether from reverence or ridicule his father had never discovered, into the ceremonious usages of the past—Glasgow) an age in which no lady was too frail to attend a play alone . . . seemed to her, on the whole, better worth living in than the ceremonious era that had witnessed her fall—Glasgow} its worship is not highly ceremonious—Shepherd but more often ceremonial distinctively suggests the existence of and conformance to an elaborate, prescribed, and usually ritualistic code of procedures, while ceremonious stresses elaborate, often punctilious and dignified procedures or, in reference to persons, a tendency to formality and ceremony; thus, a wedding is a ceremonial occasion but not one at which the participants need be excessively ceremonial (grace ceremonial occasions, like birth and death and the assumption of manhood—Buchan} the president is . . . the ceremonial head of the American government . . . He greets distinguished visitors, lays wreaths on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, bestows the Medal of Honor on flustered pilots—Rossiter} the Zuñi are a ceremonial people, a people who value sobriety and inoffensiveness above all other virtues. Their interest is centered upon their rich and complex ceremonial life—Benedict} wine is a ceremonial drink in Normandy, where none is grown or made. It is not expected to taste good—Liebling} Formal in comparison to ceremonial suggests set form or procedure rather than external ceremonies (a formal call) in comparison to ceremonious, formal suggests stiffness, restraint, decorousness rather than impressive dignity or punctiliousness (rules are an integral part of German life, rules for behavior . . . for persons of every status, for every formal situation—Mead} the habits of the family . . . may be termed formal, and old-fashioned by such visitors as claim to be the pink of the mode—Scott} Conventional applies to whatever is in accord with or governed by recognized, frequently artificial conventions or standards; it connotes lack of originality or independence (a conventional expression of regret) (the conventional white tie with men’s full evening dress) (a highly conventional person) (a skillful . . . journalist, conventional and conformist except in a strong bent toward liberal humanitarianism—Canby} Solemn is used in relation to religious observances or services and to certain acts the conduct of which is prescribed by law. The term implies, usually, strict attention to every detail that is prescribed or allowed by the ritual of the church or by the formalities of the law; thus, a solemn Mass is one in which the full liturgy is followed; a solemn feast is one celebrated not only by the full liturgy but by such other ceremonial observances as processions and pageants (funerals . . . were as much social events as solemn obsequies—Schlesinger d. 1965) having taken the solemn oath of office in the presence of my fellow countrymen—in the presence of our God—Roosevelt} a liturgical, ritualistic (see corresponding nouns at FORM) ceremonial n ceremony, ritual, rite, liturgy, *form ceremonious *ceremonial, formal, solemn, conventional ceremonious adj impressive, *moving: *decorous, seemly, proper: stately, imposing, majestic, grandiose (see grand) ceremoniousness unceremonious, informal ceremony ceremonial, ritual, liturgy, rite, *form, formality ceremony ceremonial adj 1 positive, *sure, cocksure

central adj 135 certain adj certainty, certitude

*confident, assured, sanguine

— *doubtful, dubious, questionable

2 Certain, inevitable, necessary are comparable when they mean bound to follow in obedience to the laws of nature or of thought. What is certain does not admit of being described as probable even in the highest conceivable degree and is beyond question or dispute (death is the only future event we can regard as certain) <it is certain that effects must have a cause—Bp. Butler> What is inevitable (see also INEVITABLE) is as it must be (sometimes should be) according to some unchangeable law (as of nature, of logic, or of beauty). Inevitable often carries little suggestion of unavoidability but stresses finality (as in truth or rightness) or an ultimate character (as perfection) <the results obtained in an actual experiment . . . seem nonsensical . . . when we picture light as bullets, but perfectly natural and inevitable when we picture it as waves—Jeans> <the design is, indeed, so happy, so right, that it seems inevitable; the design is the story and the story is the design—Cather> What is necessary is logically or naturally inevitable and cannot be denied without resulting contradiction or frustration (consequences distinctions of law are distinctions of degree. If the states had any power it was assumed that they had all power and that the necessary alternative was to deny it altogether—Justice Holmes> <his plays are the necessary expression of his mind and character, not the necessary conditions of his existence—Inge> probable: supposed — possible, likely (see We have been cocksure of many things test of that the world will go on indefinitely) is not the destroy man's of his own existence) <one has grounds of such sureness need not be objective proofs or

feel with irresistible certitude, Assurance (see also CONFIDENCE 2)

Glasgow)—is a designate the quality of a thing believed necessary which they designate. The psychological differentiation of certainty as the state of mind induced by something of which there is objectively as well as subjectively not the slightest question, from certainty as the state of mind of one whose faith or belief is so strong that it resists all attack, has indubitably affected the meanings and the use of these terms in general use <some philosophies tend to destroy man's certainty of his own existence> <one has certainty of nothing in the future, even that the sun will rise tomorrow, but that does not weaken one's certainty that the world will go on indefinitely> <certitude is not the test of certainty. We have been cocksure of many things that were not so—Justice Holmes> Certitude is usually more personal and less objective than certainty and suggests deeper roots for one's freedom from doubt and less likelihood of a change of belief <one thing, however, we feel with irresistible certainty, that Mark Twain's fate was once for all decided there—Brooks> In its greater objectivity certainty also provides a term that may logically designate the quality of a thing believed <certitude is a mental state: certainty is a quality of propositions—Newman> <the suspense which was more terrible than any certainty—Glasgow>

Assurance (see also CONFIDENCE 2) stresses sureness and confidence rather than certainty; the grounds of such sureness need not be objective proofs or the evidence of one's senses, for something of which one has assurance is typically something that is indemonstrable or is yet to happen; the word usually suggests implicit reliance on oneself or on one's powers, one's intuitions, or one's methods or complete trust in another (as a source of information, a supporter, a sovereign, or God) <I'll make assurance double sure, and take a bond of fate—Shak.> <faith is the assurance of things hoped for—Heb 11:1 (RV)> <rather, it might be said that he went beyond hope to the assurance of present happiness—More>

Conviction usually implies previous doubt or uncertainty. It involves the idea of certitude but is not its equivalent, for certitude may or may not imply a rational basis for one's freedom from doubt, and conviction (see also OPINION) usually does. It differs from certainty in stressing one's subjective reaction to evidence rather than the objective validity of the evidence itself. Conviction is therefore commonly applied to the state of mind of one who has been or is in the process of being convinced <have lost the old American conviction that most people are good and that evil is merely an accident—Malcolm Cowley> <she does not wish me to go unless with a full conviction that she is right—Conrad> faith, credence: proof, demonstration (see under PROVE)

— doubt, skepticism, mistrust (see UNCERTAINTY)

certify 1 Certify, attest, witness, vouch are comparable when they mean to testify to the truth or genuineness of something. Certify usually implies a statement in writing, especially one that carries one's signature or seal or both or one that is legally executed; thus, a certified check carries the guarantee of a bank that the signature is genuine and that there are sufficient funds on deposit to meet it <they said their chemists . . . could certify on their honor that their extract contained no salicylic acid—Heiser>

Attest (see also INDICATE) implies oral or written testimony from a person in a position to know the facts, usually but not invariably given under oath or on one's word of honor; thus, when one says that something is well attested, he implies that there is sufficient documentary or oral testimony from competent persons to warrant its acceptance <the pleader . . . had witness ready to attest . . . that every article was true—Swift> <Washington's strong natural love of children, nowhere attested better than in his expense accounts—Fitzpatrick> In technical legal use attest is used chiefly in reference to the official authentication of a document (as a will, a deed, or a record) or to the guaranteeing of the genuineness of a signature or a statement or an oath by a qualified public agent (as a notary public or a commissioner of deeds) <an attested copy of the marriage record—Cather> Witness implies attestation, not necessarily official or notarial, of a signature (as of a statement, a will, or a bond) by one who has seen that signature actually made and who subscribes his own name to the document as evidence of its genuineness <he called in two of his servants to witness the signature to his will> Vouch (usually with for) rarely implies official or legal proof, which the other words in this group usually do imply, but it suggests that the one who testifies is a competent authority or a reliable person who will stand behind his affirmation and support it further if necessary <for the exactness of this story [of a purported miracle] in all its details, Bishop James of Vorgio could not have vouched, nor did it greatly matter. What he could vouch for was the relation of intimacy and confidence between his people and the Queen of Heaven—Henry Adams>

avouch, avow, aver, *assert, profess

2 endorse, accred, *approve, sanction

vouch (see CERTIFY): *authorize, commission, license reject, repudiate, refuse (see DECLINE)

certainty *certainty, assurance, conviction *belief, faith, credence, credit: sureness, positiveness, cocksureness (see corresponding adjectives at SURE)

— doubt, *uncertainty, skepticism, mistrust

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
chafe

*abrade, excoriate, fret, gall

Anina [injure, hurt, damage, impair: fray, skin, peel:]

*abuse, maltreat, outrage: irritate, exasperate chaff [vb] [banter, kid, rag, jolly, rib, josh]

Anina [tease, tantalize, *worry: ridicule, deride, twit, taunt chagrined [mortified, ashamed

Anina [discomfited, abashed, embarrassed, disconcerted (see EMMARRASS): humiliated (see ABAISE):] discomposed, perturbed, upset (see DISCOMPOSE chain [n] series, string, train, sequence, *succession, progression challenge [vb] [face, brave, dare, defy, beard

Anina [question (see ASK): dispute (see DISCUSS): claim, *demand, require: *invite, solicit chamber [n] room, apartment

champ [n] bite, gnaw, gnash

champion [vb] back, advocate, uphold, *support

Anina [vanquisher, *victor, winner, conqueror chance [n] 1 Chance, accident, fortune, luck, hap, hazard denote something that happens without an apparent or determinable cause or as a result of unpredictable forces.

Chances serves often as a general term for the incalculable and fortuitous element in human existence and in nature and is usually opposed to law (see PRINCIPLE) It is incorrect to say that any phenomenon is produced by chance; but we may say that two or more phenomena are conjoined by chance . . . meaning that they are in no way related by causation—J. S. Mill Chance often retains implications derived from its early association with the casting of dice or lots and the selection of one out of many possibilities by this means; consequently it may mean determination by irrational, uncontrollable forces (leave things to chance) or it may mean degree of probability (his chance of success is one in ten) or it may mean one possibility of success among many possibilities of failure (he is always willing to take a chance

*Accident is interchangeable with chance only when a particular event or situation is in mind (it happened by accident or by chance) It differs from chance mainly in its emphasis on lack of intention buildings are not grouped like that by pure accident—Cather *meeting by accident, we hovered by design—Emily Dickinson

Fortune, owing to its historical connection with the ancient Roman goddess of chance, Fortuna, often designates the hypothetical cause of what happens fortuitously (fortune favored him in his first attempt) It also often suggests qualities ascribed to the goddess (as variability, fickleness, and malignity) I may conquer fortune's spite by living low, where fortune cannot hurt me—Shak. vicissitudes of fortune—Gibbon Fortune is also applied to the issue or outcome of an undertaking the success of which is problematical (the fortunes of war) the country virtually drops everything . . . to follow the fortunes of the two teams engaged in the World Series—Harold Rosenthal* Luck differs from fortune chiefly in its connotations. It not only lacks the dignity accruing to fortune through the latter's mythical associations, but it is somewhat colored by its association with gambling. It is preferable in contexts where fortune would seem bookish (but luck follows him all his days) (it was just our luck to miss that train) the fisherman had good luck today, a happy outcome, as fortune unqualifiedly does sometimes suggest minor changes or absence of radical changes 〈history shows you men whose master-touch not so much modifies as makes anew—Browning〉 〈the aeroplane—as it was called for many years before the word was modified to airplane—Harlow〉

Ana *transform, metamorphose, transmute, convert, transmogrify: *exchange, interchange: fluctuate, oscillate (see SWING vb)

Con settle, *set, establish, fix: endure, abide, *continue, persist

change n 1 alteration, variation, modification (see under change vb)

Ana *variety, diversity: divergence, *deviation, aberration

Ant uniformity: monotony

2 Change, mutation, permutation, vicissitude, alternation are comparable especially in their concrete senses. Change, the inclusive term, denotes not only any variation, alteration, or modification in a thing (as in its form, substance, or aspect) but also any substitution of one thing for another 〈he could detect no change in her when they met again〉 〈the body undergoes changes during puberty〉 〈a change of season〉 〈a change of clothes often makes a change in one's appearance〉 〈poor faithful dogs, lovers of novelty and change of scene—Reypler〉 〈mutation and permutation are applied to a change within a thing or in a combination of things regarded or functioning as a unit. Mutation stresses lack of permanence or stability; it has been applied to variations or alterations that are expected only because they are inherent in the nature of things but are otherwise fortuitous or unaccountable 〈O world! But that thy strange mutations make us hate thee, life would not yield to age—Shak.〉 More typically the term connotes suddenness and unpredictableness but seldom implies impossibility of explanation; often also it implies orderly change 〈so far as reality means experienceable reality, both it and the truths men gain about it are everlastingly in process of mutation—mutation towards a definite goal, it may be—James〉

Permuation implies transposition within a group or combination of things without change in the constituent elements or parts of that group or combination. It is now used largely in reference to a change in position within a group of differentiable items (as digits, letters, colors, or sounds) 〈the 26 letters of the alphabet are capable of endless combinations and permutations〉

It may imply a rearrangement of constituent elements that effects a change in relations, emphasis, or significance and so gives a new form to what is substantially the same material 〈conventions beget conventions, to be sure, and their ramifications and permutations are endless—Lowes〉 〈by whatever permutations and combinations may be necessary, we may gradually move somewhat nearer to that reign of law—Davis〉

Vicissitude (see also difficulty) implies a change so great as to seem a substitution for, or a reversal of, what has been. Sometimes it is applied to such changes as occur in natural succession or from one extreme to another 〈Nature indeed vouchsafes for our delight the sweet vicissitudes of day and night—Cowper〉 〈like walking in a wood where there is . . . a constant vicissitude of light and shade—J. R. Lowell〉

More often it is applied to a sweeping and unpredictable change that overturns what has been and so has the character of a revolution or an upheaval 〈the place and the object gave ample scope for moralizing on the vicissitudes of fortune, which spares neither man nor the proudest of his works, which buries empires and cities in a common grave—Gibbon〉

This implication of reversal is now so strong that the original implication of succession in turn is disappearing. Alteration, though logically used only of the succession of two things in turn, is also used, as vicissitude once was, of two or more things 〈the alteration of the seasons〉

Ana metamorphosis, transformation, conversion, transmutation, transmogrification (see under TRANSFORM): substitute, surrogate, shift (see RESOURSE)

changeable, changeful, variable, mutable, protean are comparable when meaning having or showing a marked capacity for changes or a marked tendency to alter itself or be altered under slight provocation. Changeable, the ordinary and most comprehensive term of this group, usually suggests this as a characteristic or property that is the result of such reactions as inconstancy, fickleness, an unsettled state, a ready responsiveness to certain influences, or a roving habit 〈changeable weather〉 〈she was a fresh, cool, dewy thing . . . fiful and changeable with the whim of the moment—Hawthorne〉 〈a changeable silk is one that seems to change its color with each change of position or point of view〉

Changeful is a more poetic term than changeable; it throws greater stress on the fact of changing frequently than on the underlying characteristic or property which manifests itself in such changes 〈the changeful April day—Southey〉 〈he felt that life was changeful, fluid, active, and that to allow it to be stereotyped into any form was death—Wilde〉

〈all your charms more changeful than the tide—Millay〉

Variable carries an implication of subjection to frequent and often deeper changes than either of the preceding words; it stresses shifting or fluctuation as a characteristic or property and therefore usually connotes uncertainty or unpredictability 〈a region of variable winds〉 〈man himself was a variable, mixed and transitory creature; he could not escape the law of his own being—L. P. Smith〉 〈the methods of statistics are so variable and uncertain . . . that it is never possible to be sure that one is operating with figures of equal weight—Ellis〉

 Mutable also implies subjection to change, but it suggests an opposition to unchanging, fixed, or permanent and therefore is less often applied to something fluctuating and variable than to something living, growing, or developing that shows changes due to progression or regression or to external influences or conditions over which the thing affected has no control 〈my lord, you know what Virgil sings, woman is various and most mutable—Tennyson〉 〈our view of any of these concepts, say justice, is mutable, changing from century to century, from place to place—G. W. Johnson〉 〈our valuation of poetry . . . depends upon several considerations, upon the permanent and upon the mutable and transitory—T. S. Eliot〉

Protean suggests a capacity for assuming many different forms or shapes without loss of identity; the term therefore implies changeability with respect to outer manifestations rather than inner character or nature 〈an amoeba is a protean animalcule〉 〈the protean genius of Shakespeare〉 〈for poetry is protean in its moods and dispositions, and its diction changes with its bents and its occasions—Lowes〉 〈but an idea is a misty, vague object that takes on protean shapes, never the same for any two people—Dwight Macdonald〉

Ana unstable, *inconstant, mercurial, capricious, fickle: mobile, *movable

Ant stable: unchangeable —Con set, fixed, settled, established (see set vb): unceasing, * everlasting: enduring, abiding, persisting or persistent (see corresponding verbs at continue)}

changeful *changeable, variable, protean, mutable

Ana fluid (see LIQUID adj): *active, dynamic, live: progressing, advancing (see ADVANCE vb): declining, deteriorating, degenerating (see corresponding nouns

An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
channel 1 passage, *strait, narrows, sound

2 Channel, canal, conduit, duct, aqueduct all mean something through which a fluid (as water) is led or flows. Channel implies the natural bed of a stream of running or moving waters; the term is also applied to a deep portion of a stream or body of water either where the main current flows or where a good passage for boats exists (the brook's channel is nowhere more than three feet deep) (the channel for ships into the harbor needs to be dredged frequently on account of the drifting sands) Channel often applies also to a natural or an artificial passageway (as a tube, a gutter, a ditch, or a trough) through which something (as waste) flows or (as chain or wire) runs (the poison channel in a snake's fangs) (the channel of a tackle block through which the rope runs) Canal is used for an artificial waterway which connects two bodies of water (the New York State Barge Canal connecting Lake Erie and the Hudson river) (the Panama Canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans) It is also used in designations of various ana- tomical grooves or tubular channels (as for the containing of some structure or the passage of some substance) (the alimentary canal through which food passes in the course of digestion) Conduit may be applied to an artificial or natural passageway that serves to convey or transmit a fluid (volcanoes . . . made by discharge of material through a more or less cylindrical conduit in the earth's crust—Howel Williams) but the term is more often used specifically for a large heavy pipe which conveys water from a reservoir to a point where it is distributed or for a pipe that carries the wires or cables of an electric system (into it through underground arteries of conduits and pipes, are fed the electric power, gas, and water supply —Science) Duct has specific application to one of the small anatomical tubes through which a secretion is conveyed to where it is needed or is excreted from the organism (thoracic duct) (bile duct) The term is also used in reference to any of the pipes of a furnace or an air-conditioning system through which air is taken in, circulated, or discharged. Aqueduct is applied to an artificial channel for water (as a conduit) and especially to an artificial structure, in appearance like a bridge, for carrying water over a river, or over a gorge or gap between elevations.

Ana passage, pass (see way)

3 vehicle, *mean, instrument, instrumentality, organ, agency, agent, medium chant vb *sing, troll, carol, descant, trill, hymn, intone chaos 1 *confusion, disorder, disarray, jumble, clutter, snarl, muddle

Ant system —Con ordering or order, organization (see corresponding verbs at ORDER)

2 *anarchy, lawlessness

chip away, erode, pare, scarify, erode, scrape, mark

Ant protect, shield, guard, safeguard (see DEFEND) char vb *burn, scorch, sear, singe

character n 1 Character, symbol, sign, mark are comparable in the specific sense of an arbitrary or conventional device that is used in writing and in printing, but is neither a word nor a phrase nor a picture. Character suggests the distinctive form or shape of such a device (an inscription in runic characters) It is applicable to a letter of an alphabet, to a digit in arithmetical notation, to a note in musical notation, or to a single and simple figure or diagram which is the conventional representation of such a directive or indicative value as a comma (,), a direction to delete (θ), a minute in degree ('), or an indication of G clef in music (/>. Symbol may be used interchangeably with character in this sense; more typically it is employed when the meaning or significance of the character rather than its shape is stressed; thus, for each letter in the English alphabet there are various characters (as small letter and capital or italic and boldface) for use in writing and printing but each letter, whatever the character used to express it, is a symbol for a speech sound; the character is the symbol used to indicate that a question has been asked. Symbol is sometimes extended to other devices than those strictly called characters, such as abbreviations (O is the symbol for oxygen), as diagrams or schematic figures (© is the symbol for full moon in calendars), or as more or less arbitrary arrangements of numerals, letters, or other characters (12mo or 12" is the symbol for duodecimo) Sign, like symbol, stresses the meaning rather than the form of the device; unlike symbol, however, it is seldom interchangeable with character, either because it may be a complicated device involving many characters or because it is less arbitrary and actually suggests through its shape or form the thing which it signifies. There is a tendency therefore to prefer sign to symbol when the device is complicated or in its form gives a hint of what it represents, either because it is a schematic representation of the thing (© is a highway sign for double right curves) or because it has figurative associations with the idea represented (←, an arrow, or sign indicating direction) Sign, however, is used idiomatically of characters indicating a mathematical operation (the plus sign +) (the minus sign → and of those indicating one of the twelve divisions of the zodiac (♈ is the sign of Aries, the Ram) Mark comes closer to character than symbol or sign, because it carries little, if any, suggestion of reference to an idea. It is the ordinary designation of any of various characters that are used to make clear the meaning of a passage but that add nothing to that meaning (punctuation marks, such as the comma , or the question mark ?) or that indicate to the eye how words should be pronounced (pronunciation marks such as the acute accent ' or the cedilla ç) (diacritical marks such as “ over the vowel a) 2 *quality, property, attribute, accident

Ana characteristic, peculiarity, distinctiveness or distinction, individuality (see corresponding adjectives at characteristic)

3 individuality, personality, complexion, temperament, temper, *disposition

Ana *mind, intellect, soul, intelligence: *soul, spirit: *courage, mettle, spirit, resolution

4 nature, description, *type, kind, ilk, sort, stripe, kidney

5 reference, recommendation, testimonial, *credential characteristic adj Characteristic, individual, peculiar, distinctive are comparable when they mean indicating or revealing the special quality or qualities of a particular person or thing or of a particular group of persons or things. Characteristic stresses the indication or revelation not only of what is essential or typical, but of what distinguishes and serves to identify the person, the thing, or the group; the word, however, fixes the attention on the thing considered more as it is in itself than as it seems in contrast or relation to other things (he answered with characteristic courtesy) (it was characteristic of the relationship between these two that, in all the pleadings and protests of the poor deferred lover, Sally never made the offer of convention and custom to release him—Deland) (a fertile oasis possesses a characteristic color scheme of its own—Huxley) Individual (see also...

characteristic

Not only implies a reference to a particular person or thing but also places much more stress on qualities that distinguish him or it from all other members of the same class or kind than does characteristic; it therefore usually applies to something that indicates or reveals a personality or a nature that is different from others (that singularly individual voice of Tom's—mature, confident, seldom varying in pitch, but full of slight, very moving modulations—Cather) (the individual idiosyncrasies of each member of the great family—Anderson). Peculiar (see also Strange) comes close to individual; it usually implies a reference to a person or thing as he or it is in himself or itself and as differentiated from all others of the same kind. It may, however, apply to such a class as a sex, a race, or a people. In this use, the term does not, as in its more common derived sense, necessarily carry any hint of strangeness or oddness; rather it suggests private and undisputed possession (as of a quality, a character, an emotion, or a significance) (a grief that was private and peculiar—Meredith) (a drowsy fervor of manner and tone which was quite peculiar to her—Hardy). In these aspects . . . of his work we pretend to find what is individual, what is the peculiar essence of the man—T. S. Eliot) (habits both universal among mankind and peculiar to individuals—Allport). Distinctive implies the possession of an individuality or peculiarity that marks the thing so described as apart from all others of its class or type and often, therefore, as worthy of special recognition or praise (it is this . . . distinctive vision of the world as a whole which seems to give Leonardo that marvelous flair for detecting vital mechanism in every field—Ellis) (it is . . . the exquisite craftsmanship . . . that has given to free verse, alike in England and America, its most distinctive qualities—Loves). Ana *special, especial, specific, particular: typical, natural, normal, *regular characteristic n Characteristic, trait, feature mean something that marks or sets apart a person or thing. Characteristic designates a constant property or quality that stands out in such a way as to distinguish a person or thing from others or to reveal him or it as he or it is; the term is applicable not only to persons and concrete objects but to things which are immaterial, intangible, or the product of abstraction (here we must note in the man one very striking characteristic . . . he appreciated the singularity of his talent—Bellow) (what was only an incidental and local damage . . . became a widespread characteristic of Western civilization—Mumford) (a constant alternation of lyricism and flatness . . . is the salient characteristic of postwar verse technique—Day Lewis). Trait applies especially to persons, peoples, or types and to their sharply accented qualities of character or of mind; otherwise, the term differs from characteristic only in its suggestions of clear definition and of distinctiveness (Marino Lucero had not one trait in common with Martinez, except the love of authority—Cather) (what they like to do . . . not at all what they are fitted to do, is the rule of their effort. And it is the unfalling trait of the amateur—Brownell). Feature, on the other hand, suggests not a quality or property, but a part or detail of a thing (as a face, a view, an object, or a character) which attracts and holds the attention by reason of its shape or form or by reason of its importance, its conspicuousness, or its being pressed upon one's attention (her eyes are her most admirable feature) (the great feature of the exposition is the new coliseum). Though the gloom had increased sufficiently to confuse the minor features of the heath, the white surface of the road remained almost as clear as ever—Hardy) (features so un-Egyptian that they practically prove that her cult was a local one—G. W. Murray). In the United States the term feature is often applied specifically to something exhibited or advertised as particularly attractive and especially to the principal attraction in a motion-picture entertainment or to a distinctive or prominent article, story, or cartoon in a periodical (a feature writer).

An *quality, property, character: peculiarity, individuality (see corresponding adjectives at characteristic).

characterize, distinguish, mark, qualify are comparable when they mean to be a peculiar or significant quality or feature of something. Characterize stresses that quality or feature (or those qualities or features) which stands out and identifies the person or thing considered; often an obvious or striking feature rather than a fundamental or basic quality is implied (metaphor characterizes the language of poetry—R. M. Weaver) (that mien of assured authority, of capacity tested in many a crisis, which characterized Mrs. Baines—Bennett). Distinguish (see also distinguish), on the other hand, stresses a feature, a quality, or a characteristic that makes a person or thing different from others or that sets him or it apart from and sometimes above others (a peculiar sort of sweet pudding . . . distinguished the days of his coming—Lamb) (was distinguished for ignorance; for he had only one idea, and that was wrong—Disraeli) (once writers were a class apart, distinguished by ink-stained fingers, unkempt hair, and a predilection for drinking cheap wine in cellars—Uhlen). Mark (see also mark vb) implies the presence of noteworthy qualities or features that are the outward signs of an inward character (no triumph—no exaltation . . . marks her manner—Cowden Clarke) (are we so sure that the qualities that mark successful climbers—self-assertion, acquisition, emulation—are highly desirable?—Ellis). Qualify (see also prepare, moderate) occasionally implies a quality, characteristic, or description that is attributed by the immediate writer or speaker to a person or thing as fitted to him or it (the “Devil’s drawing room,” as some have qualified that wondrous place—Byron) (cannot qualify it as . . . either glad or sorry—T. S. Eliot) (Ana *distinguish, differentiate, demarcate: individualize, peculiarize (see corresponding adjectives at characteristic).

charge vb 1 *burden, encumber, cumber, weigh, load, lade, tax, saddle 2 direct, instruct, bid, enjoin, *command, order Ana request, solict, *ask: adjure (see Beg) 3 *accuse, incriminate, indict, impeach, arraign Ana denounced, blame, censure, condemn (see Criticize) Ant absolve—Con *exculpate, exonerate, vindicate, acquit: pardon, remit, forgive, *excuse 4 *ascribe, attribute, impute, assign, credit, accredit Ana *fasten, attach, fix, affix: *join, connect, link 5 *rush, dash, tear, shoot Ana impel, drive (see Move): *fly, dart, scud

charge n *price, cost, expense

chargé d'affaires *ambassador, legate, nuncio, minister, chargé des affaires (in French)

charitable benevolent, humane, humanitarian, philanthropic, eleemosynary, altruistic are comparable when they mean having or showing interest in or being concerned with the welfare of others. Charitable stresses either active generosity to the poor or leniency and mercifulness in one's judgments of others, but in each case it... usually retains in some degree the implications of fraternal love or of compassion as the animating spirit behind the gift or the judgment <generous and charitable, prompt to serve—Wordsworth> <Mrs. Hawthorne had been rude ... to a friend of his, but that friend, so much more charitable and really good than she was, had made excuses for her—Archibald Marshall> (<it is more charitable to suspend judgment—Glasgow> Benevolent also stresses some inner compulsion (as native kindliness, a desire to do good, or an interest in others' happiness and well-being). In contrast with charitable, however, it more often suggests an innate disposition than an inculcated virtue <his intentions are benevolent> <old Dimple with his benevolent smile—H. G. Wells> <my mother ... always employed in benevolent actions while she uttered uncharitable words—Wharton> <the administrator of the future must be the servant of free citizens, not the benevolent ruler of admiring subjects—Russell> Humane implies tenderness and compassion, sometimes as qualities of one's temperament, but sometimes as required qualifications of enlightened and sensitive human beings; it is referable chiefly, but not exclusively, to methods and policies affecting the welfare of others <humane treatment of prisoners or of animals> <with reasonable motives, with humane men I will plead; but to tyrants I will give no quarter, nor waste arguments where they will certainly be lost—Garrison> Humanitarian suggests an interest in the welfare or well-being of mankind or of a particular class or group of men more than of the individual; it is applied especially to acts, outlooks, and policies (as of institutions, rulers, or governments) <as a nation we have been sharing our abundance with the world's hungry people ... primarily from a humanitarian standpoint—Hope> <such humanitarian issues as the repeal of the brutal debtor laws—Parrington>  <to use the A-bomb ... was ... wrong ... on humanitarian grounds—Zacharias> Philanthropic and eleemosynary also suggest interest in humanity rather than in the individual, but they commonly imply (as humanitarian does not) the giving of money on a large scale to organized charities, to institutions for human advancement or social service, or to humanitarian causes <philanthropic foundations> <found time to devote to church, civic, and philanthropic affairs—Silveus> <eleemosynary institutions> <contractors, rarely known for wearing eleemosynary halos, cheerfully pocketed a loss ... while they waited for the self-help workers ... to catch up—Olivier> <an institution of higher education is not a commercial enterprise ... Its character is eleemosynary, strictly eleemosynary—Himstead> Altruistic presupposes the guidance of an ethical principle: that the interests of others should be placed above those of self; it usually implies the absence of selfishness and often indifference to one's own welfare or interests <if it is assumed that the objectives of American policy are wholly altruistic, it follows that non-Americans who participate ... must be wholly virtuous—Muggeridge> <altruistic motives> (<an altruistic physician). Ana generous, *liberal, bountiful, bounteous, openhanded, munificent; merciful, *forbearing, lenient, clement, tolerant: *tender, compassionate, warmhearted, sympathetic Ant uncharitable —Con merciless, relentless, implacable (see GRIM): *stingy, close, closefisted, parsimonious, niggardly, cheeseparing charity 1 *mercy, clemency, grace, lenity Ana love, affection, *attachment: benevolence, humane- ness, altruism (see corresponding adjectives at charitable): benignity, benignancy, kindness, kindliness (see corresponding adjectives at kind): generosity or generosity, liberalness or liberality, bountifulness or bounty, openhandedness (see corresponding adjectives at liberal): goodwill, amity, *friendship Ant malice, ill will —Con malevolence, malignity, malignancy, spite, spleen (see MALICE) 2 Charity, philanthropy are comparable in several of their meanings. Both words denote basically a love for one's fellowmen and a disposition to help those who are in need. But charity in this sense tends to suggest a Christian virtue and the will to help, as well as the deed, whenever the occasion arises <as for the rarity of Christian charity under the sun!—Hood> <melt not in an acid sect the Christian pearl of charity—Whittier> Philanthropy in this sense is much vaguer because it usually implies a love of mankind and a disposition to help the community or one's fellowmen rather than the individual <this philanthropy ... is everywhere manifest in our author—Dryden> Consequently there is a tendency to think of charity as benevolence manifested especially in public or private provision for the relief of the poor, and of philanthropy as benevolence manifested in efforts to promote the welfare or well-being of one's fellowmen; thus, out of charity one provides for the support of a destitute orphan; out of philanthropy one sends a large gift of money to an educational institution (<in benevolence, they excel in charity, which alleviates individual suffering, rather than in philanthropy, which deals with large masses and is more frequently employed in preventing than in allaying calamity—Lecky>) The terms also may be applied to what is done or given out of charity or philanthropy or to an institution or cause which is the object of such benefaction <the cold philanthropies, the ostentatious public charities ... he exposed with utter and relentless scorn—Wilde> <many charities and many philanthropies were aided by him during his lifetime> charlatan mountebank, quack, *impostor, faker Ana humbug, fraud, cheat, fake (see IMPOSTURE): pretender, feigner, counterfeiter (see corresponding verbs at assume) charm n talisman, amulet, *fetish charm vb fascinate, allure, captivate, enchant, bewitch, *attract Ana delight, rejoice, *please, gratify Ant disgust charming fascinating, alluring, captivating, enchanting, bewitching, attractive (see under attract vb) Ana *delightful, delectable, delicious: pleasing, agreeable, grateful, *pleasant Ant forbidding chart n Chart, map, graph are comparable as nouns meaning a graphic and explanatory representation by means of lines, dots, colors, and symbols of something incapable of the face of the earth, or values of a variable at specified times and places) and as verbs meaning to make such a representation of something. Chart is the most inclusive of these terms; it implies the aim of making clear to the mind through the eye by graphic projection of data something (as solutions of an equation, points on the face of the earth, or values of a variable at specified times and places) that cannot be viewed directly (  <A star chart> <charting the shifting channel of a river> <at 30,000 feet, in clear skies above the boiling cloud cap of a hurricane, an Air Force plane charts the size of the disturbance—N. Y. Times> Chart often specifically denotes a map designed as an aid to air or water navigation by stressing features and hazards of the area depicted. The modern nautical chart is the end product of all the field operations. Into its construction enter the results of the geodetic, topographic, hydrographic, tidal, and magnetic work of the Survey—Shalowitz> <an uncharted rock> Map usually implies a representation of the earth's surface or of a part of it that shows directly according to some given scale or projection the relative position and size of cultural features (as streets, buildings, cities, towns, villages, counties, states, provinces, or countries) as well as the shape and proportionate extent of natural features (as bodies of water, mountain ranges, and coasts) A map newly explored country. It may also be used in reference to a representation of the celestial sphere or of a particular heavenly body (mapping the surface of the moon) A map of the northern heavens> Graph applies specifically to a chart or diagram in which two variable factors (for example, the prices of a commodity and the times at which these varying prices were asked) are so represented as to indicate their interrelationship. The usual method of preparing a graph is to locate by means of coordinates a series of points and often to join them with a curve or a series of straight lines A graph of a patient's fever> A graph the course of business since 1962> Ana *plan, plot, scheme, design, project chart vb map, graph (see under chart n) Ana see those at chart n charter vb *hire, let, lease, rent chartery *cautious, circumspect, wary, calculating Ana prudent, discreet, provident (see under PRUDENCE); *sparing, economical, frugal, thrifty; reluctant, hesitant, loath, *disinclined chase vb *follow, pursue, trail, tag, tail Con flee, fly, *escape: elude, evade, *escape: *abandon, forsake, desert chasm *gulf, abyss, abyss chaste, pure, modest, decent are comparable *chary prudent, discreet, provident (see under PRUDENCE): Ana *beast, thrash, pummel, baste, belaborg chat vb Chat, gab, chatter, prate, prattle, babble, gabble, jabber, gibber denote to emit a loose and ready flow of inconsequential talk or as nouns the talk so emitted. To chat is to talk in light, easy, and pleasant fashion (in easy mirth we chatted o'er the trifles of the day before—William Whitehead) (passed an hour in idle chat) To gab is to talk trivia glibly and long, often tiresomely with great rapidity (it was she who chattered, chatted, on their walks, while . . . he dropped a gentle word now and then—Conrad) (my chattering was as gay and sprightly as birdsong—Warren) To patter is to speak or repeat rapidly and mechanically (pattering prayers half inaudibly) or glibly and volubly often without much regard to sense (they're college-reared and can patter languages—Buchan) (the patter of an auctioneer) To prate is to talk idly and boastfully (a prating fool shall fall—Prov 10:8) The word is often specifically used in reproach implying platitudinous or fulsome boasting or a readiness to talk at length about things of which the speaker is really ignorant or has only superficial knowledge (we may prate of democracy, but actually a poor child in England has little more hope than had the son of an Athenian slave to be emancipated into that intellectual freedom of which great writings are born—Quiller-Couch) To prattle is to talk like a child (as in artlessness and freedom or sometimes in lack of substance and sense) (prattled on . . . in this vein, speewing up the squalid confusion of his thoughts—Anthony West) (we are . . . charmed with the pretty prattle of children—Sidney) Babble, gabble, jabber, and gibber basically imply a making of sounds suggestive of speech but lacking the meaning content, intelligibility, and articulateness of normal adult human speech (a brook babbled among the stones) The noisy gabbles of geese (monkeys jabbering in the trees) (an idiot mewing and gibbering) As applied to human speaking speech all four terms are somewhat derogatory and especially suggest lack of clarity in both articulation and content (the babble of four or more voices going on at once—G. A. Miller) (saying nothing comprehensible, just babbling and gabbling, half unconsciously— Bennett) (subjected to gabble about fifteen-century politics—McCarten) (must we fall into the jabber and babel of discourse—Sir Winston Churchill) (listened to gibber about . . . our present form or methods of government—The Nation) (the sheeted dead did squeak and gibber in the Roman streets—Shak.) Ana converse, talk, *speak: gossip

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
cheat vb Cheat, cozen, defraud, swindle, overreach are fraud, fake, deceit, deception, imposture, counterbeggarly, shabby, pitiable, sorry, contemptible, low, base, vile, poor, bad, wrong Ant noble

cheat n fraud, fake, deceit, deception, imposture, counterfeit, sham, humbug
Ana hoaxing or hoax, bamboozling or bamboozlement (see corresponding verbs at DUPE): deception, trickery, chicanery, chicaner; charlatan, quack, mountebank, faker, impostor; swindler, defrauder, cozener (see corresponding verbs at CHEAT)

chatter vb Cheat, cozen, defraud, swindle, overreach are comparable when meaning to obtain something and especially money or valuables from or an advantage over another by dishonesty and trickery. Cheat suggests deceit and, usually, tricks that escape or are intended to escape the observation of others (cheat at cards) (cheat in a written examination) (she and her husband had cheated every one with whom they had dealings—Anderson) (he is not cheated who knows he is being cheated—Coke) Cozen implies more artfulness or craft and often more allusions than cheat; it usually suggests the victim's loss of something of value to him whether of real worth or not (soldiers cozen'd of their pay by clever girls) (cousins, indeed; and by their uncle cozen'd of comfort, kingdom, kindred, freedom, life—Shak.) (the Popular Front—that famous opportunity for men of goodwill to be cozened by the Communists—Poore) Defraud implies depriving another of something that is his by right whether by taking it from him or by withholding it; the word, however, implies misleading statements or deliberate perversion of the truth more often than it implies craft, artfulness, or wiles (defraud a widow of a piece of property) (the stockholders held that they had been defrauded by those who reorganized the company) (thou shalt not defraud thy neighbor, neither rob him—Lev 19:13) (freedom of speech and press does not include
. . . the right to deceive or defraud—Neil) Swindle implies either gross cheating or defrauding especially by imposture or by gaining the victim's confidence;
it usually implies the obtaining of money or something quickly or easily convertible into money by false pretenses (the forger swindled the merchants of the city out of large sums of money) (the despised Chinese, who were cuffed and maltreated and swindled by the Californians—Brooks)
Overreach implies getting the better of a person with whom one is dealing or negotiating or bargaining by unfair or dishonest means; often it implies cheating or defrauding or swindling (he never made any ea bargain without overreaching (or, in the vulgar phrase, cheating) the person with whom he dealt—Fielding) Ana *dupe, gull, hoax, hoodwink, bamboozle, trick, befooled: deceive, delude, beguile, double-cross, mislead check n *corrective, control, antidote Ana *oversight, supervision, surveillance

check vb 1 *arrest, interrupt Ana stay, suspend (see DEFER): stop, cease, discontinue, desist: repress, suppress: frustrate, thwart, foil, circumvent
2 biddle, curb, restrain, inhibit Ana *hinder, impede, obstruct, block: prevent, preclude, obviate: baffle, balk (see FRUSTRATE): control, manage (see CONDUCT vb) Ant accelerate (of speed): advance (of movements, plans, hopes): release (of feelings, energies)

cheked, chekered *variegated, parti-colored, motley, pied, piebald, skewbald, dappled, freaked cheek n nerve, effrontery, hardihood, gall, temerity, audacity Ana boldness, intrepidity (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE): impudence, brazeness, shamelessness, brashness (see corresponding adjectives at SHAMELESS)
Ant diffidence —Con shyness, modesty, bashfulness (see corresponding adjectives at SHY): timorousness, timidity (see corresponding adjectives at TIMID): reserved-ness or reserve, reticence (see corresponding adjectives at SILENT)

cheep vb *chirp, chirrup, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter cheep n chirp, chirrup, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter (see under CHIRP vb)
cheer vb 1 *encourage, inspirt, hearten, embolden, ne, steel Ana *comfort, console, solace: gladden, gratify (see PLEASE): stimulate, excite, quicken, provoke Ant deject: dismay —Con *discourage, dishearten, dispirit
2 root, *applaud
Ana acclaim, laud, *praise
Con deride, mock, *ridicule, taunt cheerful lighthearted, joyful, joyous, glad, happy Ana jolly, jovial, merry, blithe, jocund: mirthful, gleeful (see corresponding nouns at MIRTH): gay, vivacious,
* lively, animated Ant glum, gloomy —Con *sullen, saturnine, dour, morose: depressed, melancholy, sad (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS): doleful, lugubrious, *melancholy
Ant cheerless *dismal, dreary, dispiriting, bleak, desolate Ana discouraging, disheartening, dejecting (see DIS-COURAGE)
Ant cheerful

cheeseparing *stingy, close, closefisted, tight, tightfisted, niggardly, penny-pinching, parsimonious, penurious, miserly

chemist *druggist, apothecary, pharmacist cherish 1 prize, treasure, value, *appreciate Ana love, enjoy, *like: esteem, respect, regard (see under REGARD n): revere, venerate, reverence: protect,
* defend, shield, safeguard, guard Ant neglect —Con ignore, overlook, slight, disregard, forget (see NEGLECT): desert, forsake (see ABANDON) 2 foster, *nurse, nurture, cultivate Ana preserve, conserve, * save: harbor, shelter, entertain
Ant abandon—Con repudiate, scorn, reject (see DECLINE vb): contempt, despise, disdain chew out *scold, upbraid, rate, berate, tongue-lash, jaw, bawl, wig, rail, revile, vituperate chic adj smart, fashionable, modish, *stylish, dashing chicane, chicanery trickery, double-dealing, *deception, fraud

Ana artifice, stratagem, maneuver, ruse, feint, * trick, wire, gambit, ploy: intrigue, machination, * plot: under-headedness, furtiveness, surreptitiousness (see corresponding adjectives at SECRET) Con straightforwardness, forthrightness (see corresponding adjectives at STRAIGHTFORWARD): *honesty, integration, probity, honor

chide reproach, * reprove, rebuke, reprimand, admonish Ana *criticize, reprehend, censure, blame, condemn, denounce: * scold, upbraid, rate, berate Ant commend —Con applaud, compliment (see COM-MEND): * praise, laud, extol chief

chief n Chief, chieftain, head, headman, leader, master are comparable when they mean the person in whom resides authority or ruling power but they differ in their applications and associations. Chief is the most comprehensive of these terms, being applicable as a general term to anyone from an absolute monarch to one's immediate superior (the chief of a court of inquiry was called the grand inquisitor) (the chargé d'affaires reports daily to his chief). Usually, however, the term is applied specifically to one who is supreme in power or authority over a tribe or clan (an Indian chief) or to the superior officer in a civil department (the chief of police) (chief of police) or to one who is vested with authority and power to act by the organization over which he presides (the chairmen of the national committees of the leading political parties are virtually party chiefs). The phrase in chief is often added to a title, held by two or more, to indicate the one who is the first in authority (commander in chief) (editor in chief).

Chiefnia has never obtained the generality of chief, and still usually carries implications derived from its early and still leading application to the chief of a tribe, a clan, or of a primitive, savage, or barbaric group (the chieftain's plaid) (a robber chieftain). Head, though seemingly as comprehensive as chief, is applied most frequently to the person of a group who serves as its chief executive or on whom shoulders the responsibility finally rests (the head of the family) (the head of a school) (the British prime minister is actually the head of the government) (the head of a department).

Headman comes close to chieftain in that it usually applies to the person who serves as the chief of his tribe or village; the term, even more than chieftain, implies a condition of savagery or barbarism. Leader implies headship, sometimes of a nation or people but more often of an organized body (as a political party, a society, or a band of musicians) or of an informal assembly (as of persons or animals) (a rangy red steer was the leader of the stampede). The term usually implies a capacity for guidance, direction, or for the assumption of full control and of winning the support of those under one (the leader of an orchestra) (the leader of the opposition in the British parliament) Master, on the other hand, applies to a head who has another or others under him subject to his direction or control and necessarily obedient to his will: the term stresses his authority rather than his capacity for guidance (a man cannot serve two masters). In general use the term is applied as a designation to an employer of servants and to the head of a school or of a class. It is also applied generally to anyone who exerts great and controlling influence over others or who is regarded as one to be followed or obeyed. The chief specific use of master is as the title of the person qualified to command a merchant vessel; in this use it is commonly superseded by captain as a courtesy title.

Ana governor, ruler (see corresponding verbs at GOVERN) Con *follower, disciple, henchman, adherent, satellite chief adj Chief, principal, main, leading, foremost, capital mean first in importance or in standing. Chief is applicable to a person that serves as the head of his class or group or to a thing that stands out as above all the rest of its class or kind in rank, importance, dignity, or worth; the term therefore usually implies the subordination of all others (chief justice of the supreme court) (president of a republic is its chief magistrate) (the cathedral is the chief church of a diocese) (the chief topic of conversation) (duty, not pleasure, is the chief aim of living—Glasgow). Principal is applicable to whatever is the first in order of power or importance and so is applied chiefly to a person to whom is given direction, control, or government of others or to a thing (or person thought of as a thing) that, because of its size, its position, or its intrinsic importance precedes all others of its class or kind (the principal dancer in a ballet) (the principal keeper in a prison) (the principal gate to the grounds of an institution) (the principal streets of a city) (the principal witness against the accused) (a chicken stew of which the principal ingredient was not chicken but sea cucumber—Steinbeck). Main is applicable to something (often a part, unit, or division of a large or extensive thing) that excels all the others of its class or kind in size, potency, or importance (the main line of a railroad) (the main street of a small city) (the mainland) words have been used so long as the main channel for communication—Day Lewis) (the literary critic . . . will yet find, like the historian, his main subject matter in the past—L. P. Smith).

Leading, like principal, implies precedence, but it often distinctively implies, in addition, a capacity or fitness for drawing others, for guiding them, or for giving a particular quality or character to a movement (the leading men of the city) (he had been the leading counsel for the seven Bishops—Macaulay) (the leading automobile in a procession) (another leading object in education for efficiency is the cultivation of the critical discernment of beauty and excellence in things and in words and thoughts, in nature and in human nature—Elliot). Foremost differs from leading, which is otherwise closely resembles, in its stronger implication of being first in an advance or progressive movement; it is preferable for that reason whenever there is a suggestion of the person's or thing's having forged ahead to that position (one of us, that struck the foremost man of all this world—Shak). ("handedness," of course, is the foremost primate characteristic—La Barre)

Capital is applicable to a thing that stands at the head of its class or kind because of its importance, its significance, its excellence, or its seriousness (a capital plan) (his capital offense was that he had omitted to mention her at all) (the seven capital sins are the most important sins theologically not because they are the worst sins but because they lead to other sins and are fatal to spiritual progress) (with a little managing . . . she would have gained every point as easily as she had gained the capital one of taking the foundling baby under her wing—Wharton). Ana *dominant, paramount, sovereign, predominant, preponderant, preponderating: *primary, prime: *superme, preeminent Ant subordinate —Con secondary, dependent, subject (see subordinate): subservient, ancillary, subsidiary, *auxiliary chiefly *largely, greatly, mostly, mainly, principally, generally chieftain *chief, head, leader, master childish *childlike

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter

*crack, cleft, fissure, crevasse, crevice, cranny cchine
backbone, back, spine, vertebrae

chimerical
cool, *cold, frigid, freezing, frosty, gelid, icy, glacial, chilly

Cheep
Ana
Ant

Ana naïve, unsophisticated, ingenuous, artless (see NATURAL): docile, *obedient, tractable, biddable chilly cool, *cold, frigid, freezing, frosty, gelid, icy, glacial, arctic

Ant balmy

chimerical fantastic, fanciful, visionary, *imaginary, quixotic

Ant feasible —Con *possible, practicable: reasonable, *rational: sensible, sane, *wise, prudent chine backbone, back, spine, vertebrae

chink *crack, cleft, fissure, crevasse, crevice, cranny

Ana *break, gap, interruption: split, rift, *breach

chirp vb Chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter can all mean as verbs to make the little sounds character- istic of small animals and as nouns the little sounds so made, and all can be extended to sounds and the making of sounds (as by human beings) that suggest such small animal sounds. Chirp implies the short, sharp, and thin sound that is made by practically all small birds and some insects; it regularly connotes cheerfulness but often also busyness and immaturity. *chirrup of birds (see ANIMAL): *the linnet . . . chirps her vernal song of love—Southey *one of these birds . . . began to ascend, by short hops and flights, through the branches, uttering a sharp, preliminary chirp—Burroughs *someone turned on the water down the hall and all the second-floor faucets chirped at once, like so many crickets—Algren *wait until the boldest chirps: “It was tonight, dear, wasn’t it?”—MacLeish Chirrup implies a more sustained effect than chirp, as though a bird is singing or is learning to sing; it also often heightens the connotations of cheer- fulness or liveliness. *untucked his head from under his wing and chirruped drowsily—Sinclair *the shrill persistent chirrup of a fledgling sparrow—there is a new chirrup in their talk, feeling that they shall feel livelier in a livelier land—O’Casey *made her little chirruping sound of welcome—Woolf *the bullets chirruped by in the soft buzzing sound of insects on the wing—Mailer Chirp implies a more sustained effect than chirp, as though a bird is singing or is learning to sing; it also often heightens the connotations of cheer- fulness or liveliness. *untucked his head from under his wing and chirruped drowsily—Sinclair *the shrill persistent chirrup of a fledgling sparrow—there is a new chirrup in their talk, feeling that they shall feel livelier in a livelier land—O’Casey *made her little chirruping sound of welcome—Woolf *the bullets chirruped by in the soft buzzing sound of insects on the wing—Mailer Chirp implies a more sustained effect than chirp, as though a bird is singing or is learning to sing; it also often heightens the connotations of cheer- fulness or liveliness. *untucked his head from under his wing and chirruped drowsily—Sinclair *the shrill persistent chirrup of a fledgling sparrow—there is a new chirrup in their talk, feeling that they shall feel livelier in a livelier land—O’Casey *made her little chirruping sound of welcome—Woolf *the bullets chirruped by in the soft buzzing sound of insects on the wing—Mailer Chirp implies a more sustained effect than chirp, as though a bird is singing or is learning to sing; it also often heightens the connotations of cheer- fulness or liveliness. *untucked his head from under his wing and chirruped drowsily—Sinclair *the shrill persistent chirrup of a fledgling sparrow—there is a new chirrup in their talk, feeling that they shall feel livelier in a livelier land—O’Casey *made her little chirruping sound of welcome—Woolf *the bullets chirruped by in the soft buzzing sound of insects on the wing—Mailer

Cheep implies feebleness yet shrillness of sound such as that made by a very young bird or by a mouse, a bat, or a squirrel (the persistent cheep of a crate of new-hatched chicks) (a brood of ducklings, which had lost their mother, filled into the barn, cheeping feebly—George Orwell) (fog seemed to rise from his raincoat and his shoes cheeped—Dorothy Parker) Peep differs from cheep chiefly in stressing the weakness of the sound and so suggesting its faintness or the animal’s helplessness (the peep of a chick just struggling from the shell) (a warisome mother . . . hovers over her child. Every time he peeps, she jumps to see what’s the matter—Spock) (all the little boats peeped their klaxons, and the bells . . . suddenly burst into crashing, bashing peals—Panter-Downes) (consisted for the most part of odd little squeals from the woodwinds. These peeps . . . added up to a fairly meaningless and silly score—Philip Hamburger) Tweet usually implies the monosyllabic note of a very small bird or the call of small game birds (as the quail or bob- white) (a redstart . . . sat on the fence near my hut till dusk, tweeting rather plaintively on one note—Kingdon- Ward) (the referee checked the play with sharp tweets of his whistle) Twitter implies a succession of notes or sounds, uttered tremulously or excitedly; when applied to persons or their utterances or doings it can suggest feverish or disorderly excitement (the trees twittered feverishly, and cool winds swept the ground—Peggy Bennett) (the swallow twittering from the straw-built shed—Gray) (these youngest girls . . . stood around twitter- ting, trying to appear prim, but only succeeded in look- ing more and more excited—Styron) The noun, espe- cially, is often used to express a state of agitation (in a twitter of excitement) (a nerve-racking place full of the twitterers and colors and smells and gaggles and screeches of too many unlovely showing girls—Wouk) Chitter, like twitter, implies a succession of sounds, but distinct- ively it can imply a briskness and sharpness of tone that belong also to chattering and then may carry such conno- tations as alarm, irritation, or fear (heard a squirrel chitter in alarm, as if it had scurried around the trunk of a tree after something had startled it—Frazee) (the caw- ings of jackdaws, the chittering of sparrows—Powys) (from close by came the chitter of a screech owl—Saxon) (some teeth in angry fit may chitter—Alexander Boswell)

chirp n chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter (see under CHIRP vb)

chirrup vb *chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter chirrup n chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter, chitter (see under CHIRP vb)

chisel vb sculpture, sculpt, sculpt, *carve, incise, engrave, etc

Ana *cut, chop: produce, turn out (see BEAR): shape, fashion, form (see MAKE) chitter vb *chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter chitter n chirp, chirrup, cheep, peep, tweet, twitter (see under CHIRP vb)

chivalrous gallant, courteously, courteous, polite, *civil Ana *spirited, mettlesome, high-spirited

Ant churlish —Con *rude, ungracious, discourteous: boorish, loutish, clownish (see under BOOR)

chivy vb *bait, badger, heckle, hector, hound, ride

Ana *worry, annoy, harry, harass, tease: chase, pursue, trail, *follow: torment, try, *afflict choice n Choice, option, alternative, preference, selection, election are comparable when they mean the act or oppor- tunity of choosing or the thing chosen. Choice usually implies the right or the privilege to choose freely from a number (as of persons, things, or courses) (take your choice of rooms) (the he had no choice in the determination of his profession) (everyone admires his choice, for she is a very attractive young woman) Option stresses a specifically given right or power to choose one from among two or more mutually exclusive actions or courses of action (the state constitution gives local option to cities and towns in the matter of granting or with- holding licenses for the sale of intoxicants) (the court sentenced the convicted speeder to one month’s imprison- ment with the option of a fine) (the students have no option in the matter of vacations) In business trans- actions, an option is usually purchased and enables one to demand during an agreed length of time fulfillment of a contract to sell (as a specified quantity of a commodity) or buy (as a particular parcel of real estate) at a price and on terms agreed upon when drawing the option (acquire an option on a tract of land) (buying and selling options on the stock exchange) Alternative typically stresses restriction of choice between two mutually exclusive things (as propositions, theories, courses, or policies). Commonly it implies that all other comparable things are ruled out by force of circumstances (the alternatives before the country were peace with dishonor or war with honor) or by unconquerable personal aversion (the only alternative to liberty, in Patrick Henry's estimation, was death) or by logical necessity (if the States had any power it was assumed that they had all power and that the necessary alternative was to deny it altogether—Justice Holmes) Alternative, however, is sometimes used of more than two possible choices. Preference emphasizes the guidance of one's choice by one's bias or predilections or by one's judgment of values or of desirability (he was promised his preference) (he said he had no preference and would wait until others had declared their preferences) Selection implies a wide range of choice and the need of discrimination or taste in choosing (he was commended for his selection of books) (she did not have time for the careful selection of a hat) Election adds to selection the implication of an end or purpose which necessitates the exercise of judgment (the students will make their election of courses before returning to college) (the doctrine of predetermination holds that men are destined to heaven or hell by divine election)

choice adj Choice, exquisite, elegant, recherché, rare, dainty, delicate are comparable when they mean having qualities that appeal to a fine or highly refined taste. Choice stresses preeminence in quality rather than careful selection of the best, although the latter may also be connoted; consequently, the word usually suggests an appeal to a highly cultivated and discriminating taste (the choice and master spirits of this age—Shack) (when education in America began, it was intended for the fit and was designed to produce a choice type—Grangewell)

Exquisite implies consummate perfection in workmanship, in choice, in quality, or in impression produced—a perfection so fine and unobtrusive that it attracts only the most sensitive and fastidious (he paints with exquisite art the charm of the deep country and the lure of the simple life—Buchan) (angels, supporting, saluting, and incensing the Virgin and Child with singular grace and exquisite feeling—Henry Adams) Elegant differs widely from exquisite; it implies either an impressive richness or grandeur restrained by fine taste, or grace and dignity characterized by a noble simplicity (whoever wishes to attain an English style...elegant but not ostentatious, must give his days and nights to the volumes of Addison—Johnson) (charming to look at and elegant to her finger-tips—John Martin) (the handsomest man of the company, very elegant in velvet and broadcloth—Cather) Recherche like the preceding terms implies care in selection; it suggests a studied exquisiteness or elegance (the sangfroid, grace, abandon, and recherche nonchalance with which Charles Yates ushers ladies and gentlemen to their seats in the opera house—O. Henry) (giving long and recherche dinners—Saintsbury) Very frequently, however, it implies a search for the novel or fresh as well as the choice, and it may carry a connotation of artificiality or of straining for effect (the word devastating...was thought to be recherche; the discerning reader is likely to call it affected—Beach) Rare derives from its ordinary senses (see INFREQUENT) (then) connotations of uncommonness and of a fineness associated with the rarefied air of the upper regions; nevertheless, its major implication is distinction in merit or excellence or a superlative quality (the rarest cordials old monks ever schemed to coax from pulpy grapes—Lowell) (he [W. H. Hudson] is, of living writers that I read, the rarest spirit—Galsworthy) Dainty (see also NICE 1) may come close to choice, but is then used chiefly to describe things which give delight to the fastidious taste, especially to the eye, and often also the palate (her house is elegant and her table dainty—Johnson) More often, however, the term implies smallness and exquisiteness (those dainty limbs, which Nature lent for gentle usage and soft delicacy—Milton) (the spirit of romance, gross and tawdry in vulgar minds, dainty and refined in the more cultivated—Parrington) Delicate, like dainty, implies exquisiteness and an appeal to a fastidious taste, but it ascribes fineness, subtlety, and often fragility to the thing rather than smallness, and it implies an appeal not only to the eye or palate, but to any of the senses or to the mind or spirit (the more delicate perfume of the pink-flowering thorn—Wilde) (not, however, an effervescing wine, although its delicate piquancy produced a somewhat similar effect—Hawthorne) (I have, alas! only the words we all use to paint commoner, coarser things, and no means to represent all the exquisite details, all the delicate lights, and shades—Hudson) (an irony so quiet, so delicate, that many readers never notice it is there...or mistake it for naive—Priestley)

Ana preeminent, surpassing, peerless, incomparable, *supreme, superlative: picked, selected, culled, chosen (see CHOOSE)

Ant indifferent (see MEDIUM) —Con mediocre, second-rate, middling, fair, average, *medium: common, ordinary choke *suffocate, asphyxiate, stifle, smother, strangle, throttle

choleric splenetic, testy, *irascible, touchy, cranky, cross

Ana *irritable, furious, huffy, querulous, petulant, peevish: *angry, acrimonious, wrathful, wroth, indignant, mad, irate: fiery, peppery, spunky (see SPIRITED): captious, carping, faultfinding (see CRITICAL)

Ant placid: unperturbable —Con *calm, tranquil, serene: *cool, composed, nonchalant choose, select, elect, opt, pick, call, prefer, single are comparable when they mean to fix upon one of a number of things as the one to be taken, accepted, or adopted or to make such a determination. Choose commonly implies both an act of judgment and the actual taking or adoption of what is fixed upon (that he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good—Isa 7:15) (between them...we can see little to choose—Henry Adams) (the disinterested search for truth is certainly one of the highest and noblest careers that a man can choose—Inge) Select usually implies a wide range of choice and discrimination or discernment of values in making one's choice (one particular nation to select from all the rest—Milton) (the difficult task of selecting a presidential candidate—H. D. Jordan) (his temperament was selecting the instances he should narrate, his mind selecting the words to employ—F. M. Ford) Eject often implies a deliberate choice, especially between alternatives, or a careful selection of some out of many possibilities: ordinarily, it carries a stronger implication of the rejection of that not chosen than either of the preceding words (eject a president) (according to the doctrine of predetermination, God elective those who are to be saved) (will it not look a little odd...when you have so many devoted children, that you should elect to live alone—Sackville-West) (having elected deliberately...that stern land and weather—Faulkner) Opt (often with for) implies an election between alternatives (give the people an opportunity to opt for statehood—Rupert Emerson) often specifically, in the case of inhabitants of territory transferred by treaty, between retaining one's former citizenship or acquiring citizenship in the new state Opt

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>chop</th>
<th>147</th>
<th>circumpection</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>to remain a British subject</td>
<td>Pick implies a careful selection, often on personal grounds; cull, a nice or fastidious choice</td>
<td>Ant straight</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>attempts to pick an exact synonym—Johnson</td>
<td>circulate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>O’Lowell</td>
<td>revolve, rotate (see TURN); interchange, exchange</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pick an all-star team from the players in the city</td>
<td>circumference, perimeter, periphery, circuit, compass</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>his dictionary had no vulgar word in it, no harsh one, but all culled from the luckiest moods of poets—J. R. Lowell</td>
<td>Perimeter is more comprehensive than circumference; it includes not only the line that bounds any circular figure or area, but also the broken line that encloses any polygon; moreover it may designate the whole outer boundary of a body, especially a more or less spherical body (the perimeter of a hexagon)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Prefer implies choice that indicates what one favors or desires; it does not, however, always carry an implication of taking or adopting what one chooses or of getting one’s choice</td>
<td>Periphery is sometimes interchangeable with perimeter but it is more frequently used in an extended sense. More often than any other word in this group it is referred to the actual edge or border or boundaries of something</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Prefer the blue dress to the brown one</td>
<td>Periphery usually refers to the area or space within an enclosing line or the ground that formally might be covered by the leg of a compass describing such a line within thy crown, whose compass is no bigger than thy head—Shak.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>certain colors were preferred . . . for reasons of association and tradition</td>
<td>Perimeter has become so tied up with the idea of a journey round the periphery of something that the two ideas are fused</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>experience has taught me, when the versions of the same story . . . differ materially, to prefer the less exciting—Davis</td>
<td>for the sake of association and tradition preferred . . .</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Single (usually with out) implies choice or election usually of an individual person or thing from a number</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Singles out for special praise the guide—(singles from a number</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana established, fixed, settled (see SET); *hardened, indurated, callous</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana acute (of illness)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana adopt, espouse, embrace; *desire, wish, crave</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana reject; eschew —Con *forgo, forbear, abnegate: refuse, *deny, spurn, repudiate</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana split, cleave, rive (see TEAR vb)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ana task, duty, assignment, job, stint</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ana work, occupation, employment, business</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>christen baptize</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chronic inveterate, confirmed, deep-seated, deep-rooted</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana established, fixed, settled (see SET); *hardened, indurated, callous</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana acute (of illness)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chronicle *history, annals</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 *account, story, report, version</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana narration, recital, recountal (see corresponding verbs at RELATE)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chthonian *infernal, Hadean, stygian, hellish, Tartarean</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chubby rotund, plump, fat, *fleshy, stout, portly, corpulent, obese</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana chunky, stubby, dumpy, squat (see STOCKY</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana slim</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chummy intimate, close, thick, confidential, *familiar</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>chunky *stocky, thickset, thick, stubby, squat, dumpy</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana rotund, chubby (see FLESHY</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>church *religion, denomination, sect, communion, creed, faith, cult, persuasion</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>churl n *boor, lout, clown, clodhopper, bumpkin, hick, yokel, rube</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ant *gentleman, aristocrat</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>churlish boorish, louthish, clownishh, clownishh (see under BOOR)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana ungracious, ill-mannered, discourteous, *rude, uncivil, impolite: curt, blunt, brusque, gruff, crusty (see BLUFF); surly, dour (see SULLEN)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana curtly —Con *civil, polite, courteous, gallant: courtly</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ant courteously —Con *civil, polite, courteous, gallant: courtly</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>church urbane, *suave, diplomatic, bland, politic, smooth</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>cinders clinkers, embers, *ash</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>circadian *daily, diurnal, quotidian</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>circle n *set, coterie, clique</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana friends, acquaintances, intimates (see singular nouns at FRIEND); associates, companions, comrades (see singular nouns at ASSOCIATE)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>circle vb 1 *surround, envelop, encircle, encompass, compass, hem, gird, girdle, ring</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana enclose, envelop: circumscribe, restrict (see LIMIT)</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 revolve, rotate, *turn, gyrate, wheel, spin, whirl, whirl, eddy, swirl, pirouette</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>circuit compass, *circumference, perimeter, periphery</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana route, course, *way: tour, *journey</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>circuitous roundabout, *indirect</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ana *winding, serpentine, sinuous, tortuous, flexuous</td>
<td>two forms are referred to</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
circumstance *occurrence, event, incident, episode Ana *item, detail, particular: factor, constituent, component, *element circumstantial, minute, particular, particularized, detailed, itemized are comparable when they mean dealing with a matter point by point. Circumstantial applies especially to accounts of events or to narratives, but it is applicable also to the persons who recount or narrate or to their memories. The term implies full and precise reference to the incidents or circumstances attending an event  <generally speaking, a historical novel . . . must be documented with the news of what once happened, and full of circumstantial life—Garriques> <my memory is exact and circumstantial—Dickens> Minute, in addition, applies to investigations, researches, inspections, and descriptions; it stresses interest in or inclusion of every detail, no matter how trivial or insignificant. It therefore usually connotes exhaustiveness or meticulous exactness <he prolonged the flower-picking process by minute and critical choice—Deland> <Plato . . . in the Laws . . . provides for the state a perfect jungle of minute regulations—Buchan> <she was interested in the little details and writes with minute care about the change of fashion—Bradford> Particular differs little from circumstantial except in being applicable also to descriptions and lists; it may therefore imply attention to every feature or item rather than to every incident or circumstance  <as part of the four-sheet maps from which it is taken—Jefferson> <I think myself obliged to be very particular in this relation, lest my veracity should be suspected—Swift> Particularized often replaces particular as applied to narratives, descriptions, and lists; it is not used of those who so narrate, describe, or list, but it may be applied to the circumstances, features, and items that they present <Scott's particularized descriptions of his characters>  Detailed applies to a circumstantial or minute account, description, study, or representation; it implies, however, abundance of rather than exhaustiveness in detail <Perera in the sixteenth century . . . presents a detailed picture of Chinese life—Ellis> <the detailed study of history should be supplemented by brilliant outlines—Russell> Itemized implies complete enumeration of details, especially of those that indicate the separate purchases or separate credits in a mercantile account, or of those that indicate the articles or groups of articles in the possession of a person or business (as in an inventory) <an itemized bill> Itemized list of his expenditures >The term is also applicable to descriptions, narratives, or accounts which in addition to being particularized have something of the formality of an inventory <an itemized description of a room> Ana precise, nice, exact, accurate (see CORRECT): *full, complete, replete Ant abridged: summary —Con succinct, terse, laconic, *concise, pithy, compendious: shortened, abbreviated, curtailed (see SHORTEN) Ant conform (to laws, orders): cooperate (with persons) —Con promote, further, *advance, forward: abet (see prevail. In some use, especially in international law, nation is applied to anyone entitled to the protection of a government regardless of whether his status is that of citizen or not; in this sense, the Filipinos were formerly nationals, though never citizens, of the United States.
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

Ant alien — Con stranger

civic, civil, civilian are not close synonyms but rather words whose meanings lend themselves to confusion. In a sense they have a common meaning: of, relating to, or characteristic of a citizen—but in each case the word citizen has a specific or particular meaning. Civic implies some relation to a city and its citizens; city, however, is used loosely so as to cover any community having closely related interests (as a town, a village, or a city proper) or any municipality or corporation having powers of local self-government: in this sense civic is used in distinction from state, federal, and national. London took the lead in this new development of civic life—J. R. Greeny. Civic interests gave way to national interests. Often the word comes close in meaning to public when used to modify acts, functions, obligations, or qualities, the chief distinction consisting in its closer application to the life of the community. His personal virtues were no less outstanding than his civic virtues. For the theme of her life is civic. In the social sense as well as private beings and that civilization depends on the spread of civic virtues—Bentley. Civic, in general, has reference to a citizen as a member of the state, or to citizens as members of the state. In this sense state denotes usually a larger organized unit than that denoted by city and comes close in meaning to country, nation, and people. The term civic implies reference to this organization; thus, civil liberty is the liberty permitted to a citizen by the laws of the state or exemption from arbitrary government interference; a civil war (as opposed to a foreign war) is a conflict between citizens of the same state.

More specifically, there is often a definitely implied contrast in the use of civil; the civil authorities are those that prevail in all affairs except where ecclesiastical authorities or military authorities have the final say; civil service designates a service of the state in any capacity that does not distinctively belong to the military organization; thus, civil architecture applies to architecture which is neither ecclesiastical nor military; in law, civil actions are distinguished from criminal actions as relating to proceedings in connection with the private or individual rights of citizens; also, in law, a civil death implies not a natural (that is, actual) death, but the loss or renunciation of all legal rights or status. The saw the Bible as... containing the complete, final, and absolute code for all matters spiritual and civil—J. D. Hart. A program to make of the Atlantic Alliance a civil and not merely a military Community—Ascot. Civilian refers to persons who are not members of the armed forces and is used chiefly in contrast to military. Civilian duties in time of war. Rationing of gasoline among civilian consumers. Glad to get back to civilian clothes.

Civil adj 1 civic, civilian

2 Civil, polite, courteous, courtly, gallant, chivalrous are comparable as applied to persons or their words and acts when in intercourse with others with the meaning observant of the forms required by good breeding. Civil commonly suggests the bare fulfillment of the ordinary requirements of social intercourse; it frequently implies little more than forbearance from rudeness. It was an entirely civil greeting, but that was all you could say of it—Christopher L. Farge. (This man... cut short one of our party, and addressed a sly remark to Spencer. . . .) Spencer’s answer was civil, but brief and not inviting—Fiske

Polite, while sometimes suggesting a merely perfunctory attitude, is more positive than civil; it commonly implies thoughtfulness for the feelings of others, united with polish of manner and address. Nothing was ever so serene as his countenance, so unembarrassed as his manner, so polite as his whole demeanor—Landel. The Bishop seldom questioned Jacinto about his thoughts or beliefs. He didn’t think it polite—Cather. Courteous implies more considerate and dignified, courtly, more stately and ceremonious, observance of due civilities owns a fine old historical painting in Châtelton and he was courteous enough to permit me to view it—Upton Sinclair. (Be courteous to all, but intimate with few—Washington)

His great-uncle, a courtly and stately old gentleman—Symonds. Gallant and chivalrous imply courteous attentiveness to women. But gallant suggests spirited and dashing or ornate and florid expressions of courtesy. (The General attended her himself to the street door, saying everything gallant... admiring the elasticity of her walk, which corresponded exactly with the spirit of her dancing—Austen.) The qualities... of surface chivalry and gallant attentiveness in her brilliant American friend had for a moment seemed to reveal a lack in me—Ellis. In a moment he was all gallant anxiety and solicitude—Wylie. Chivalrous suggests high-minded, disinterested, sometimes self-sacrificing attentions. Nothing can beat a true woman for a clear vision of reality; I would say a cynical vision if I were not afraid of wounding your chivalrous feelings—Conrad. With what chivalrous accents would he address... those witty and wise women of old words—L. P. Smith. She had fainted from weakness and he had felt strangely chivalrous and paternal—Glasgow.

Ana complaisant, obliging, amiable: gracious, affable, cordial: polite, diplomatic, bland, urbane, suave.

Ant uncivil, rude—Con churlish, boorish, loutish (see under boor): ill-mannered, impolite, discourteous, ungracious (see rude).

Civilian adj 1 civic, civil

Civilization, Culture are comparable when meaning the particular stage or stage of advancement in which a race, a people, a nation, a specific class, or an integrated group of these finds itself at a given period. Civilization always implies a definite advance from a state of barbarism; often it suggests the absence of all signs of barbarism or a divorce from all the ways of living, all the beliefs, all the conditions that distinguish a primitive from a civilized society. The civilization of France has been for centuries and is still the central and dominating civilization of Europe—L. P. Smith. This mesa had once been like a beehive; it was full of little cliff-hung villages, it had been the home of a powerful tribe, a particular civilization—Cather. Culture (see also culture), on the other hand, suggests rather the complex of attainments, beliefs, customs, and traditions which forms the background of a particular people or group, which distinguishes them from all other peoples or groups, and which gives their particular civilization, no matter how little or how far advanced, its peculiar quality or character. Greece for our purposes means not a race, but a culture, a language and literature, and still more an attitude towards life, which for us begins with Homer, and persists, with many changes but no breaks, till the closing of the Athenian lecture rooms by Justinian—Inge. It would no doubt have been more satisfactory to select a people like the Fijians rather than the Littaeus, for they represented a more robust and accomplished form of a rather similar culture, but their culture has receded into the past—Ellis. Ana cultivation, *culture, breeding, refinement.

Ant barbarism—Con barbarity (see barbarism).

See also explanatory notes facing page 1.
barbarousness, savagery (see corresponding adjectives at BARBARIAN)

claim vb *demand, exact, require

Anna *maintain, assert, defend, vindicate, justify: allege, *adduce, advance

Ant disclaimer: renounce —Con disavow, disown, disacknowledge (see affirmative verbs at ACKNOWLEDGE): reject, repudiate, refuse (see DECLINE vb); concede, allow, *grant: waive, cede, *relinquish: *forgo, abnegate claim n Claim, title, pretension, pretense are comparable when they denote an actual or alleged right to demand something as one's possession, quality, power, or prerogative. Claim carries the strongest implication of any of these terms of a demand for recognition; only the context can indicate whether that demand is regarded as justifiable or not or whether the right is actually asserted by the person involved (though the house was legally the daughter's, the father, as the one who had paid for it and had taken care of all taxes and insurance, had a moral claim to live there the rest of his life) (intelligent persons cannot accept the claims made for many patent medicines) (the advanced no claim to scholarly knowledge) (searching for truth as against all the claims and all the counterclaims of all the partisans—Lippmann) (liberty itself became...a principle of anarchy rather than a body of claims to be read in the context of the social process—Laski) Claim also occurs in a more concrete sense as denoting the property or possession for which one sets up a claim (make no claim to it a measure of hypocrisy or deceit <this court happened to possess those attributes are constituted ipso facto a class—J. S. Mill>) Class consistently implies division which may involve abstraction of a single group from a greater unclassified mass or the separation of a larger group into discrete subgroups; the basis of such a division may be strictly logical or a mere matter of convenience, and often it involves a value judgment (Hickey is the first class of English memoirists—Times Lit. Sup.) (the class of nominal Christians for whom there might be a chance—Lovett) Category may be interchangeable with class but is sometimes more precise in suggesting classification or grouping on the basis of a certain readily perceived criterion or on a predication, often an explicit one (we cannot approach a work of art with our laws and categories. We have to comprehend the artist's own values—Ellis) (none of the writings of the fathers of the English Church belongs to the category of speculative philosophy—T. S. Eliot) Genus and species, scientific in their suggestion, differ in that the first implies a larger less specific group, the latter a smaller more specific one (English society, in other words, is...a species of a larger cultural genus—Watnick) (the word infringement is almost never used to describe acts of the genus, unfair competition. It is applied only to the species, namely trademark misuse—Pattishall) Denomination usually indicates that the group under consideration has been or may be named explicitly and clearly; it is common in religious use (Methodist, Presbyterian, and other denominations) and use with a series of closely related units (denominations of currency) Genre refers to a specific, named type; its use is mainly restricted to literature and art (some of his prose poems, a genre...which he invented—Sat. Rev.) (the larger literary types or genres, such as the drama or novel—Lerner & Mims) Anna division, section (see PART): classification (see corresponding verb at ASSORT): grade, rank, gradation, rating (see corresponding verbs at CLASS)

class vb Class, grade, rank, rate, graduate, gradu ate are synonyms in that they all involve the idea of ordering a number of things according to a scale or of placing a thing in

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
classify

vb Clean, cleanse mean to remove whatever soils, stains, or contaminates from someone or something. Clean is the word in common and literal use for the removal of foreign matter (as dirt, litter, and debris) typically by washing, sweeping, dusting, or clearing away (clean a dress) (clean a room) (clean off a table).

Cleanse in this relation seldom wholly loses some hint of its basic notion of making morally or spiritually pure; it is, therefore, the term of choice when the matter to be removed is or is felt as foul, polluting, or noxious or the action is rather one of purifying than of merely restoring to order, freshness, or neatness; thus, one would clean a house but, more often, cleanse a sickroom; one would cleanse a wound but clean one's teeth (cleanse the bowels with a laxative).

Unlike clean, cleanse is common in essentially metaphorical extension in which it always retains the suggestion of removing what is vile, harmful, or obnoxious (the brilliant campaign which cleansed Havana from yellow fever—S. H. Adams) (young soldiers who are now being cleansed of subversive ideas at Valley Forge Army Hospital—D. H. Gillis) (take part in an attempt to cleanse the public life of the country—Ewer).

The air was purer for the cleansing rain—Mackaldonald.

Ant soil

classify

Analogous words: Ant antonyms: Con contrasted: See also explanatory notes facing page 1
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
clinkers 153

Con desert, forsake, *abandon: *relinquish, leave, resign, yield clinkers cinders, *ash, embers clip vb *shear, poll, trim, prune, lop, snip, crop Ana *cut, chop, slash, slit: curtail (see shorten): sever, *separate clique *set, circle, coterie Ana party, faction, bloc, ring, combine, *combination cloak vb mask, *disguise, dissemble, camouflage Ana conceal, *hide, screen Ant unclasp —Con *reveal, disclose, discover, betray clodhopper bumptie, hick, yokel, rube, *boor, lout, clown, churn clog vb fetter, hog-tie, shackel, manacle, *hamper, tramcel
Ana impede, obstruct, *hinder, block: balk, baffle, *frustrate: check, curb (see restrain) Ant expedite, facilitate —Con *free, liberate, release: forward, further, *advance, promote cloister n 1 Cloister, convent, monastery, nunnery, abbey, priory. Cloister and convent are general terms denoting a place of retirement from the world for members of a religious community; they may apply to houses for recusals of either sex. In such use cloister stresses the idea of seclusion from the world; convent, of community of living. Basically a monastery is a cloister for monks; in actual use it is often applied to a convent for men or occasionally for women who combine the cloistered life with teaching, preaching, or other work. Nunnery, which specifically denotes a cloister for nuns, is often displaced by convent with the same specific meaning. A monastery or nunnery governed by an abbot or an abbess is called an abbey; by a prior or prioress, a priory. A priory is subordinate in rank to, but often independent of, an abbey.
2 arcade, *passage, passageway, ambulatory, gallery, corridor, aisle, hall, hallway clone *variety, subspecies, race, breed, cultivar, strain, stock close vb 1 Close, shut are very close synonyms in the sense of to stop or fill in an opening by means of a closure (as a door, a gate, a lid, or a cover) and are often used interchangeably. However, they may have distinctive nuances of meaning and quite different implications in idiomatic use. Close is the more general term, usually implying both the act of stopping an opening and the result produced by such an act but stressing exclusion of those who would enter or pass through. Shut stresses the act or process and the means employed in this process; it not only carries a more emphatic implication or a more vivid suggestion of drawing a door, gate, lid, or window into a position which closes the opening, but it often also evokes an image of fastening securely (as by drawing a bar or a bolt or locking); hence, in closing a door or gate one merely draws it into a position which bars entrance or egress until it is again opened but in shutting a door or gate one pushes or pulls it into the position where it is closed. Idiomatically, one closes (not shuts) an opening or a gap or one closes (not shuts) a park or a church to the public, because in neither case is the use of a door, gate, or other means of exclusion clearly or definitely implied. On the other hand, in idiomatic use shut, especially when followed by up, out, or against, carries a stronger and often a more direct and emphatic suggestion than close of the interposition of a barrier or obstacle (often an immaterial, one) that effectually prevents ingress or egress (he found every road to the accomplishment of his desires shut against him) (he shut his eyes to everything he did not wish to see) (he shut his eyes in death) (he was warned to shut his mouth)
Ana *exclude, debar: block, bar, dam (see hinder)
Ant open
2 Close, end, conclude, finish, complete, terminate are comparable as transitive verbs meaning to bring something to a stopping point or to its limit, or, with the exception of complete, as intransitive verbs meaning to come to that point. Close usually has latent in it the idea of action upon something which may be regarded as in some sense open as well as unfinished (see close vb 1)
<close an account, a debate, or a subscription list> <recall those nights that closed thy toilsome days—Pope> <the Peace of Westphalia . . . which closed the Thirty Years' War—Barr> End conveys a stronger sense of finality; it frequently has implicit reference to a progress or development which is thought of as having been carried through (the harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved—Jer 8:20) (ended his life) (ended his labors upon a book) Conclude is a more formal term and applies particularly to transactions, proceedings, or writings that have a formal or special close (concluded his speech with a peroration) (conclude a meeting with a benediction) (I shall conclude this essay upon laughter with observing that the metaphor of laughing . . . runs through all languages—Spectator) Finish implies that what one set out to do is done; often, therefore, it connotes the completion of the final act in a process of elaboration (as polishing or perfecting) (gave the festive table a finishing touch) (I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do—Jn 17:4) (it wants but seventeen lines of having an end, I don't say of being finished—Gray) (I shall finish with a Chopin nocturne—Hellman) Complete implies the removal of all deficiencies or a finishing of all that has been attempted (when Blondel paused about the middle, the king began the remainder, and completed it—Warton) (complete their education in Europe) (art partly completes what nature is herself sometimes unable to bring to perfection—Ellis) (he may well have thought that his days would be few on earth, and that it would be foolish to put his hand to a task which he could not complete—Buchan) Terminate implies the setting of a limit in time or space (Ben Lomond terminates the view—Dorothy Wordsworth) (the age at which the youth of each nation terminates full-time education—Conant) (he had never seen the instrument that was to terminate his life—Dickens) (hostilities terminate at sundown)
Ana *stop, cease, quit, desist Con *begin, commence, start, inaugurate, initiate close adj 1 Close, near, nigh, nearby are comparable both as adjectives and as adverbs when they mean not far (as in place, time, or relationship) from the point, position, or relation that is indicated or understood. Close (see also close adj 2) commonly implies so slight a difference that the two things (sometimes persons) under consideration may be said to be almost in contact if the difference is in distance or almost coincident if the difference is in time, to be of the immediate family if the difference is in relationship, or to be very like the original if the difference is in a copy (the houses on this street are close together) (close relatives) (close friends) (hold one close) (the more accurately we use words the closer definition we shall give to our thoughts—Quiller-Couch) (a close shave) (give close attention to a problem) (a close translation of a passage) Near may often be used in place of close (events that come near to each other) (near relatives) but it carries a much less explicit suggestion of contiguousness or adjacency and may be used of persons or things that, though not far off (as in place, time, or relationship) are not almost in contact, almost coincident, or of the closefisted

immediate family (come near where I can see you) (a near concern of all of us) Near also is applied to things reproduced (as by copying, imitating, or translating) that more or less closely resemble but are far from replicas of the original; in this sense the term is often used in depreciation (near beer) (a near translation) (near silk) (near-leather upholstery). Nigh is somewhat outmoded or poetic in the sense of near. As an adverb it, even more often than near, is followed by to, unto, about, on, upon (he was sick nigh unto death—Phil 2:27) (now the day is over, night is drawing nigh—Baring-Gould) As an adjective it differs little from near except in sometimes being given preference in the comparative and superlative degrees to nearer and nearest (friend, brother, stiffest neighbor—Whitman). Nearby indicates a position near in distance or close at hand (nearby towns) (the nearby houses) (there is no hotel nearby)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

closefisted

immediate family (come near where I can see you) (a near concern of all of us) Near also is applied to things reproduced (as by copying, imitating, or translating) that more or less closely resemble but are far from replicas of the original; in this sense the term is often used in depreciation (near beer) (a near translation) (near silk) (near-leather upholstery). Nigh is somewhat outmoded or poetic in the sense of near. As an adverb it, even more often than near, is followed by to, unto, about, on, upon (he was sick nigh unto death—Phil 2:27) (now the day is over, night is drawing nigh—Baring-Gould) As an adjective it differs little from near except in sometimes being given preference in the comparative and superlative degrees to nearer and nearest (friend, brother, stiffest neighbor—Whitman). Nearby indicates a position near in distance or close at hand (nearby towns) (the nearby houses) (there is no hotel nearby)

- closefisted — Con (generous, bountiful, bounteous, openhanded (see LIBERAL): lavish, prodigal (see PROFUSE)
- closefisted — Stingly, close, tight, tightfisted, niggardly, parsimonious, penurious, miserly, cheeseparing, penny-pinching close-lipped — close, closemouthed, uncommunicative, taciturn, reserved, reticent, secretive, *silent, tight-lipped

close-mouthed — close, close-lipped, tight-lipped, reticent, reserved, uncommunicative, *silent, taciturn, secretive

clothe — vb congeal, curdle, *coagulate, set, jelly, jell clothes — attire, dress, apparel, array, robe. Cloth, the least specific of these terms, means to cover or to provide what will cover (one's body or whatever is bare) with or as if with garments (clothe the child warmly) (clothe your thoughts in words) (rugged clothes clothed and softened with snow) The other words convey the same meaning but each one adds to it distinctive implications and connotations. Attire suggests a more careful process and more formality than clothe and therefore is avoided except when the context requires that note (he said it was for the honor of the Service that he attired himself so elaborately) but those who knew him best said that it was just personal vanity—Kipling

Dress is far less formal than attire and much richer in its connotations than clothe. It often suggests care in the choice and arrangement of clothes and sometimes, especially in dress up, preening and prinking or selection of one's best or choicest clothes (children warmly but simply dressed for school) (every afternoon she dresses up and goes out) (dressed up in his Sunday clothes) Dress up sometimes distinctively implies an assuming of the dress of or a dress suitable to another (dress up as Cleopatra) while dress, especially in its intransitive or reflexive forms, often implies a change of clothes to those that are appropriate for a special occasion; thus, to dress for dinner implies a change into dinner or evening clothes (I shall not have time to dress) The idea of decking or adorning is frequently associated with dress especially in its extended senses (dress the hair with flowers) (dress the table for an elaborate dinner) (yet shall thy grave with rising flow'rs be dressed—Pope)

Apparel and array are chiefly literary words used when there is the intent to connote splendor, elegance, or gorgeousness in what a person or thing is clothed with (she had a garment of divers colors upon her: for with such robes were the king's daughters . . . appareled—2 Sam 13:18) (a time when meadow, grove, and stream . . . to me did seem appareled in celestial light—Wordsworth) (consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these—Mt 6:28, 29) (1 rode with him to court, and there the Queen arrayed me like the sun—Tennyson)

Robe implies a dressing with or as if with a robe and has the same wide range of use as the noun—Tennyson—Lynch)

- unclothe — Con (strip, divest, dismantle

clothes — clothing, dress, attire, apparel, raiment are comparable when they denote a person's garments considered collectively. Clothes and clothing are general words which do not necessarily suggest the personal ownership but sometimes a manufacturer or a merchant (evening clothes) (summer clothing for men) (her clothes are always immaculate) (each child has ample clothing) clothing

dress is used with reference only to a wearer's outer clothes; it is not only far less inclusive than clothes and clothing but less concrete in its suggestions except when qualified (both men and women are expected to wear full dress) (the actors will be costumed in the period) (a man of sense carefully avoids any particular character in his dress—Chesterfield) (in pilgrim dress on his way to Mecca—Doty) attire usually stresses the appearance or the total impression produced by one's clothes; it is therefore rarely used with reference to one's own clothes except in affectation or humorously; when applied to another person's, it is as a rule qualified (our speech, our color, and our strange attire—Pope) (his unfashionable attire and clumsy manners—Coley) apparel (often specifically wearing apparel) carries a weaker suggestion of the effect produced and a stronger implication of a collection or assemblage of clothes than attire, which otherwise it closely resembles in meaning; therefore one says an article of apparel (rather than attire) and the richness of her attire (rather than apparel) (a blue serge suit, a grey shirt, a blue and red necktie, a gray homburg, and black shoes and gloves comprised his apparel) (the apparel oft proclaims the man—Shak.) (his daily apparel was rough and shabby—Cather) raiment is a more or less literary term that is nearly as comprehensive as clothes, for it includes everything that is worn for decency, comfort, and adornment and therefore suggests reference to undergarments as well as to outer garments (brought a change of raiment with him) When the quality or the texture of the clothing is to be indicated, raiment is the appropriate word (fine raiment) (the coarse raiment of a penitent pilgrim) but what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses—Mt 11:8 (if these strangers were of important air and costly raiment—O'Nolan)

clothing *clothes, dress, attire, apparel, raiment
cloud vb *obscure, dim, bedim, darken, eclipse, becloud, vb

society, *association, order

club cloy vb
down

n

group, bunch, parcel, lot

cluster

clothing is used with reference only to a wearer's outer clothes; it is not only far less inclusive than clothes and clothing but less concrete in its suggestions except when qualified (both men and women are expected to wear full dress) (the actors will be costumed in the period) (a man of sense carefully avoids any particular character in his dress—Chesterfield) (in pilgrim dress on his way to Mecca—Doty) attire usually stresses the appearance or the total impression produced by one's clothes; it is therefore rarely used with reference to one's own clothes except in affectation or humorously; when applied to another person's, it is as a rule qualified (our speech, our color, and our strange attire—Pope) (his unfashionable attire and clumsy manners—Coley) apparel (often specifically wearing apparel) carries a weaker suggestion of the effect produced and a stronger implication of a collection or assemblage of clothes than attire, which otherwise it closely resembles in meaning; therefore one says an article of apparel (rather than attire) and the richness of her attire (rather than apparel) (a blue serge suit, a grey shirt, a blue and red necktie, a gray homburg, and black shoes and gloves comprised his apparel) (the apparel oft proclaims the man—Shak.) (his daily apparel was rough and shabby—Cather) raiment is a more or less literary term that is nearly as comprehensive as clothes, for it includes everything that is worn for decency, comfort, and adornment and therefore suggests reference to undergarments as well as to outer garments (brought a change of raiment with him) When the quality or the texture of the clothing is to be indicated, raiment is the appropriate word (fine raiment) (the coarse raiment of a penitent pilgrim) but what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses—Mt 11:8 (if these strangers were of important air and costly raiment—O'Nolan)

clothing *clothes, dress, attire, apparel, raiment
cloud vb *obscure, dim, bedim, darken, eclipse, becloud, vb

society, *association, order

club
cloy vb
down

n

group, bunch, parcel, lot

cluster

clothing is used with reference only to a wearer's outer clothes; it is not only far less inclusive than clothes and clothing but less concrete in its suggestions except when qualified (both men and women are expected to wear full dress) (the actors will be costumed in the period) (a man of sense carefully avoids any particular character in his dress—Chesterfield) (in pilgrim dress on his way to Mecca—Doty) attire usually stresses the appearance or the total impression produced by one's clothes; it is therefore rarely used with reference to one's own clothes except in affectation or humorously; when applied to another person's, it is as a rule qualified (our speech, our color, and our strange attire—Pope) (his unfashionable attire and clumsy manners—Coley) apparel (often specifically wearing apparel) carries a weaker suggestion of the effect produced and a stronger implication of a collection or assemblage of clothes than attire, which otherwise it closely resembles in meaning; therefore one says an article of apparel (rather than attire) and the richness of her attire (rather than apparel) (a blue serge suit, a grey shirt, a blue and red necktie, a gray homburg, and black shoes and gloves comprised his apparel) (the apparel oft proclaims the man—Shak.) (his daily apparel was rough and shabby—Cather) raiment is a more or less literary term that is nearly as comprehensive as clothes, for it includes everything that is worn for decency, comfort, and adornment and therefore suggests reference to undergarments as well as to outer garments (brought a change of raiment with him) When the quality or the texture of the clothing is to be indicated, raiment is the appropriate word (fine raiment) (the coarse raiment of a penitent pilgrim) but what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses—Mt 11:8 (if these strangers were of important air and costly raiment—O'Nolan)

clothing *clothes, dress, attire, apparel, raiment
cloud vb *obscure, dim, bedim, darken, eclipse, becloud, vb

society, *association, order

club
cloy vb
down

n

group, bunch, parcel, lot

cluster

clothing is used with reference only to a wearer's outer clothes; it is not only far less inclusive than clothes and clothing but less concrete in its suggestions except when qualified (both men and women are expected to wear full dress) (the actors will be costumed in the period) (a man of sense carefully avoids any particular character in his dress—Chesterfield) (in pilgrim dress on his way to Mecca—Doty) attire usually stresses the appearance or the total impression produced by one's clothes; it is therefore rarely used with reference to one's own clothes except in affectation or humorously; when applied to another person's, it is as a rule qualified (our speech, our color, and our strange attire—Pope) (his unfashionable attire and clumsy manners—Coley) apparel (often specifically wearing apparel) carries a weaker suggestion of the effect produced and a stronger implication of a collection or assemblage of clothes than attire, which otherwise it closely resembles in meaning; therefore one says an article of apparel (rather than attire) and the richness of her attire (rather than apparel) (a blue serge suit, a grey shirt, a blue and red necktie, a gray homburg, and black shoes and gloves comprised his apparel) (the apparel oft proclaims the man—Shak.) (his daily apparel was rough and shabby—Cather) raiment is a more or less literary term that is nearly as comprehensive as clothes, for it includes everything that is worn for decency, comfort, and adornment and therefore suggests reference to undergarments as well as to outer garments (brought a change of raiment with him) When the quality or the texture of the clothing is to be indicated, raiment is the appropriate word (fine raiment) (the coarse raiment of a penitent pilgrim) but what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings' houses—Mt 11:8 (if these strangers were of important air and costly raiment—O'Nolan)
coast—Pope} {simple parables of the coarse businessman and the sensitive intellectual—De Voe} {some of the royal family were as coarse as the king was delicate in manners—Henry Adams} Vulgar {see COMMON 3} suggests something that is offensive to good taste or decency, frequently with the added implication of boorishness or ill breeding {Caliban is coarse enough, but surely he is not vulgar—Hazlitt} {Burns is often coarse, but never vulgar—Byron} {it was, in fact, the mouth that gave his face its sensual, sly, and ugly look, for a loose and vulgar smile seemed constantly to hover about its thick coarse edges—Wolfe} Gross {see FLAGRANT} is opposed to fine in the sense of delicate, subtle, ethereal; it implies either a material, as contrasted to a spiritual, quality or a bestiality unworthy of man {the grosser forms of pleasure—Wharton} {gross habits of eating—Caliban . . . is all earth, all condensed and gross in feelings and images—Coleridge} {my anger and disgust at his gross earthy egoism had vanished—Hudson}

Obscene stresses more strongly the idea of loathsomely indecency or utter obnoxiousness {the war to him was a hateful thing . . . waged for the extension of the obscene system of Negro slavery—Parrington} {an obscene allusion—{the jest unclean of linkboys vile, and watermen obscene—Pope} {the rabble of Comus . . . reeling in obscene dances—Macaulay} {it was, of course, easy to pick out a line here and there . . . which was frank to indecency, yet certainly not obscene—Canby} Ribald suggests vulgarity and often such impurity or indecency as provokes the laughter of people who are not too fastidious {a ribald folksong about fleas in straw—Lowes} {their backs . . . shaking with the loose laughter which punctuates a ribald description—Mary Austin} {we starn, as in the presence of some great dignitary from behind whom, by a ribald hand, a chair is withdrawn when he is in the act of sitting down—Beerbohm}

Ana rough, crude, *rude, raw, green, callow, uncouth: *rank, rampant: boorish, loutish, clownish (see under ANT)}

Ant fine: refined — Con delicate, dainty, exquisite, *fine: refined (see corresponding nouns at CULTURE)}

cost n *shore, strand, beach, bank, foreshore, littoral (see under Stack, Shock, Pile, *Heap, Mass, Bank)} cost vb toboggan, *slide, glide, slip, skid, glissade, slither coag, cajole, wheelie, blandish mean to use ingratiating art in persuading or attempting to persuade. Coax implies gentle, persistent efforts to induce another or to draw what is desired out of another {in a coaxing voice, suited to a nurse soothing a baby—Burney} {it most often suggests artful pleading or teasing in an attempt to gain one’s ends {little by little, he coaxed some of the men whom the measure concerned most intimately to give in their views—Kipling} {one . . . who can linger over and taste a phrase, coaxing its flavor to the palate as if it were an old wine—Moody} {his skill in coaxing . . . the attention of the variable human mind to divine objects—T. S. Eliot} but it may be extended to other situations in which persevering yet careful efforts are used to attain an end {coax embers into a blaze—Cajole} may stress deceit (as by flattering or making specious promises) {they . . . should be treated as they themselves treat fools, this is, be cajoled with praises—Pope} It more often implies enticing or alluring and suggests beguilement rather than duplicity {I think a vein of sentiment . . . induced me to take the journey, and to cajole a reluctant friend into accompanying me—Rephiller} Wheelie suggests more strongly than cajole the use of soft words, artful flattery, or seductive appeal {she could wheelie the soul out of a saint—Hewlett} {he had wheeled the Abeya woman out of her geraniums, and left her pleased with herself for surrendering them—Mary Austin} {no hucksters to wheelie you into buying souvenirs—Nebel} Blandish implies less artfulness than wheedle and more open flattery and a more apparent desire to win over by charming or alluring {would the blandishing enhancer still weave his spells around me—Dickens} {found herself being blandished by millionnaires—Rogow}

Ana *induce, persuade, prevail, get: tease, pester (see WORRY): inveigle, entice, tempt, *lure cobble vb *botch, bungle, fumble, muffle Ana patch, *mend, repair: fabricate, forge, manufacture (see MAKE): impair, mar, spoil (see INJURE) cock vb stack, shock, pile, *heap, mass, bank Ana *gather, collect, assemble

Con *scatter, disperse
cok n stack, shock, pile, heap, mass, bank (see under HEAP vb)

cocksure positive, certain, *sure Ana *confident, assured, sanguine, presumptuous: pretentious (see SHOWY): *decided, decisive AnT dubious, doubtful — Con modest, diffident (see SHY)

coerce compel, *force, constrain, oblige Ana *intimidate, bulldoze, bully, browbeat, cow: *threaten, menace: drive, impel (see MOVE): terrorize (see FRIGHTEN)
Con *induce, persuade, prevail, get: *coax, cajole, wheelie, blandish: *lure, entice, tempt, seduce, inveigle

coercion compulsion, *force, violence, duress, constraint, restraint

Ana *power, might, puissance, strength: intimidation, bulldozing, bullying, browbeating (see corresponding verbs at INTIMATE): threatening or threat, menacing or menace (see corresponding verbs at THREATEN) coetaneous coeval, contemporaneous, *contemporary, synchronous, simultaneous, coincident, concomitant, concurrent coeval coetaneous, synchronous, coincident, contemporaneous, contemporary, contem-poraneous cogent convincing, compelling, telling, *valid, sound Ana forceful, forcible, potent, *powerful, puissant: compelling, constraining (see FORCE vb): inducing, persuading or persuasive (see corresponding verbs at IN-FLUENCE): inveigling, demonstrating (see PROVE): *effective, effectual cogitate *think, reflect, deliberate, reason, speculate Ana ponder, ruminate, meditate, muse: *consider, excogitate, weigh, contemplate, study: *think, conceive, imagine, envisage, envision cognate *related, allied, kindred, affiliated Ana akin, alike, identical, similar (see LIKE): common, generic, general, *universal

Con diverse, *different, divergent, disparate, various cognizant *aware, conscious, sensible, alive, awake Ana *conversant, versed: informed, acquainted, apprised (see INFORM)

AnT ignorant — Con *insensible, insensitive, impas-sible, anesthetic: ignoring, overlooking, slighting, neglecting (see NEGLECT): oblivious, unmindful, *forgetful cohere *stick, adhere, cleave, cling Ana coalesce, fuse, merge, blend (see MIX): *fasten, attach, affix: *join, combine, unite, connect, associate Con *detach, disengage: disentangle, untangle, dis-embarrass (see EXTRICATE)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
coherence, cohesion mean the quality or character of a whole all of whose parts cohere or stick together. Coherence usually implies a unity of such immaterial or intangible things as the points of an argument, the details of a picture, or the incidents, characters, and setting of a story, or of material or objective things that are bound into unity by a spiritual, intellectual, or aesthetic relationship (as through their clear sequence or their harmony with each other); it commonly connotes an integrity which makes the whole and the relationship of its parts clear and manifest (to treat the subject with the clearness and coherence of which it is susceptible—Wordsworth) is there or is there not a spiritual coherence in Christianity, or is it only a gathering of laws and precepts, with no inherent connected spiritual philosophy?—Galsworthy) scientific work . . . may indeed possess the appearance of beauty, because of the inner coherence which it shares with fine art—Alexander (no more coherence than the scattered jangle of bells in the town below—Quiller-Couch) Cohesion more often implies a unity of material things held together by such a physical substance as cement, mortar, or glue or by some physical force (as attraction or affinity) a house stands and holds together by the natural properties, the weight and cohesion of the materials which compose it—T. H. Huxley what am I, Life? A thing of watery salt held in cohesion by unreeling cells which work they know not why, which never halt—Masefield) Cohesion may also be used of either material or immaterial things when the emphasis is on the process by which things cohere rather than on the resulting unity a state composed of discordant races incapable of cohesion.

Ana *unity, integrity, solidarity, union: clearness, perspicuousness, lucidity (see corresponding adjectives at CLEAR)

Ant incoherence

cohesion *coherence

Ana unification, consolidation, concentration, compacting (see corresponding verbs at COMPACT): coalescence, fusing or fusion, blending or blend, merging (see corresponding verbs at MIX)

Con disintegration, decomposition, crumbling (see corresponding verbs at DECAY): deliquescence (see corresponding verb at LIQUEFY)

coil vb wind, curl, twist, twine, wreath, entwine

Ana *turn, revolve, rotate, circle coin n coinage, currency, specie, legal tender, cash, *money coinage coin, currency, cash, specie, legal tender, *money concur, *agree

Ana accord, correspond, jibe, harmonize, tally (see AGREE): *match, equal

Ant differ —Con diverge (see SWERVE) coincident synchronous, simultaneous, concurrent, concomitant, coeval, coetaneous, contemporaneous, *contemporary cold, cool, chilly, frigid, freezing, frosty, gelid, icy, glacial, arctic mean having a temperature below that which is normal or comfortable. Cold is the general term, often implying nothing more than a lack of warmth (a cold day) (a cold hand) (cold meat) It may also connote discomfort (shivering in her cold room) (battered by a cold wind)

Cool suggests moderate and often refreshing coldness (a cool breeze) (a cool hand on a fevered brow) (a cool drink) But when hotness or warmth is desirable it, too, connotes something disagreeable (cool soup) (a cool radiance)

Chilly implies coldness that makes one shiver (a chilly morning) (a chilly room) Frigid, freezing, and frosty imply temperatures below 32° Fahrenheit. Frigid stresses the intensity of the cold (a frigid climate) (frigid weather) and freezing its congealing effect (as on man, vegetation, and water) (a freezing wind) (freezing temperature) while frosty applies rather specifically to times or conditions in which fine ice crystals are deposited from atmospheric moisture onto a cold surface (frosty nights are usually clear and cold with little wind) Gelid is equivalent to freezing, but it somewhat more often stresses the resultant discomfort (so the leaden hours passed in the gelid darkness—Sitwell) while sea-born gales their gelid wings expand—Goldsmith) Icy, when used to indicate a kind of coldness, implies frigidity so great as to be painful and cutting; it is applicable chiefly to winds, storms, and water an icy rain an icy northeast wind Basically glacial is very close to icy (the air in the cave was glacial, penetrated to the very bones—Cather) but its later association with glacier has given it an ambiguous cast in many locutions; thus, a glacial lake might be, according to context, either a painfully cold lake or one formed by the action of a glacier. Arctic is the strongest of these words in its suggestion of intense coldness. It connotes the frigidity of the polar regions and is usually a hyperbolic rather than an exact term a winter notable for its arctic temperatures.

When applied to persons, their temperaments, their acts and words, and their responses to stimuli, these words are also marked by differences in implications. Cold suggests absence of feeling or emotion, or less than normal human sympathy, friendliness, sensitiveness, or responsiveness his plea left us cold cold words he treated us with cold justice their cold intelligence, their stereotyped, unremitting industry repel me—L. P. Smith) Okio, in spite of his unerring eye and his incomparable cunning of hand, was of too cold a temperament to infuse a powerful current of life into the old tradition—Binyon) Cool (see also COOL) 2 stresses control over one's feelings or emotions, and therefore absence of excitement or agitation this wonder, that when near her he should be cool and composed, and when away from her wrapped in a tempest of desires—Meredith) both looked at life with a cool realism which was not allowed to become cynical—Buchan) Chilly, frosty, and freezing usually stress the effect of another's coldness: chilly connotes a depressing or repressive influence (a chilly greeting) (a chilly reception) while frosty connotes a checking or restraining of advances (a frosty smile) and freezing connotes a blighting or repelling (a freezing reply to a letter) many . . . had been repelled by his freezing looks—Macaulay)

Frigid suggests such a deficiency of natural feeling as is abnormal or repellent; it is specifically applicable to persons who are sexually passionless and averse to sexual intercourse, but it is often applied to things which are not, but by their nature should be, impassioned or infused with feeling or warmth (frigid verse) (frigid religion) (frigid hospitality) Gelid and icy suggest a discomforting chill (as in manner or conduct), the former sometimes stressing the power to benumb, the latter the power to pierce or stab immediately, the long gelid, nightly silence fell between us—Spina) (her voice dropped into an icy gravity—Yerby) a lady of the most arresting beauty and icy good breeding—Max Peacock) Glacial suggests a chilling lack of vitality or animation (Boston, for all its glacial perfection, has no intimacy at all—Virgil Thomson) his manner more glacial and sepulchral than ever—Molloy) Arctic frequently adds to frigid a connotation of remoteness from all that is human or referable to humanity (exact and arctic justice—Mencken)

Ant hot

Ana analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1 collate *compare, contrast collateral adj *subordinate, secondary, dependent, subject, tributary Anna *related, allied, kindred, cognate; correlative, complementary, corresponding, reciprocal collation *comparison, parallel, contrast, antithesis Anna corroboration, verification, confirmation, authentication (see corresponding verbs at CONFIRM): emending or emendation, revising or revision, correcting or correction (see corresponding verbs at CORRECT)
colleague *partner, copartner, ally, confederate Anna *associate, companion, comrade collect *gather, assemble, congregate
Anna mass, *heap, pile; *accumulate, amass, hoard: consolidate, concentrate, compact Ant disperse: distribute —Con *scatter, dissipate, dispel: dispense, divide, deal, dole (see DISTRIBUTE): *separate, part, sever, sunder: *assort, sort collected composed, *cool, unrefined, imperturbable, unflappable, nonchalant Ant distracted, distraught —Con agitated, perturbed, upset, disturbed, flustered, flurried (see DISCOMPOSE) collection assemblage, assembly, gathering, congregation (see under GATHER vb)
Anna heap, pile, mass, stack (see under HEAP vb): accumulation, hoarding or hoard (see corresponding verbs at ACCUMULATE) collide *bump, clash, conflict
Anna hit, *strike; impinge, impact (see corresponding nouns at IMPACT): dash, charge, *rush collision *impact, impingement, clash, shock, concussion, percussion, jar, jolt Anna striking, hitting (see STRIKE vb): wrecking or wreck, ruining or ruin, dilapidation (see corresponding verbs at RUIN): demolishment, destruction (see corresponding verbs at DESTROY) colonnade, arcade, arcature, portico, peristyle are discriminated as used in architecture. A colonnade is a row of columns (typically on the outside of a building) spaced at regular intervals and carrying an architrave or horizontal member lying directly across their capitals, so that the opening between each pair of columns is square-topped. Colonnade is usually applied not only to the columns but to the entire structure consisting of columns, roof, and pavement or to the space which they enclose. The word is used especially in reference to classical architecture. An arcade is a long series of arches with their supporting columns and piers together with the other members that complete the structure as an architectural feature. An arcade may be either inside or outside of a building; it may be a purely decorative feature or a means of admitting light and air. When purely decorative, the spaces between the arches and the piers may be filled in (sometimes providing niches for statues); this type of arcade is also called an arcature. An arcade may take the place of an outer wall (as of a gallery or cloister). Arcade is used especially of types of architecture (as the late Romanesque and the Gothic) in which the arch is an essential feature. Portico and peristyle are used in reference to architectural features employing the colonnade. When the colonnade extends across, or nearly across, one side of a building and serves as an entrance, it is called a portico; when it is continued so as to extend along three or, usually, all four sides of a building, it is called a peristyle.
color n 1 Color, hue, shade, tint, tinge, tone are comparable when they mean a property or attribute of a visible thing that is recognizable only when rays of light fall upon the thing and that is distinct from properties (as shape or size) apparent in dusk. Color is the ordinary term and, in precise use, the only generic term of this group. It may apply to the quality of blood which one describes as redness, of grass as greenness, of the sky as blueness, of snow as whiteness, or of ebony as blackness, or to the optical sensation which one experiences when one sees these things respectively as red, green, blue, white, and black. It may refer to any of the bands of the spectrum or to any of the variations produced by or as if by combination of one or more of these with another or with white, black, or gray (Walden is blue at one time and green at another. . . . Lying between the earth and the heavens, it partakes of the color of both—Thoreau) Color is also specifically applicable to the attribute of things seen as red, yellow, blue, orange, green, purple (the chromatic colors) as distinct from the attribute of things seen as black, white, or gray (the achromatic colors) (give a white house touches of color by painting the window sashes and shutters green) Hue, especially in poetry or elevated prose, is often synonymous with color (as brown in hue as hazelnuts and sweeter than the kernels—Shak.) (all the gradational hues of the spectrum from red through yellow, green, blue, to violet—Scientific Monthly) More specifically, hue suggests some modification of color (their shining green has changed to a less vivid hue; they are taking bluish tones here and there—Heart) Shade is often used in the sense of one of the gradations of a color, especially as its hue is affected by its brilliance. When a darker shade of blue (a brighter shade of green) (a shade paler—J. C. Van Dyke) Tint is also used as meaning a gradation of color in respect to brilliance, but it always suggests hue and is commonly used in reference to light colors that seem to be given by a light or delicate touching; thus, what are often called "pastel colors" or "pastel shades" are known also as tints. The term is not infrequently used in contrast to shade, especially when the latter word connotes comparative darkness or dullness (the flags by the shore were turning brown; a tint of yellow was creeping up the ruses—Jefferys) (dark it appeared, but the precise tint was indeterminable—Hudson) (the sprays of bloom which adorn it are merely another shade of the red earth walls, and its fibrous trunk is full of gold and lavender tints—Cather) Tinge implies more of interfusion or stain than tint (autumn bold, with universal tinge of sober gold—Keats) (the water . . . imparts to the body of one bathing in it a yellowish tinge—Thoreau) Tone is a rather general word, sometimes equivalent to color but more often suggesting hue or a modification of hue (as a tint or tinge) (from strand to cloud-capped peak, the tone was purple—Beebe) (tone, which he plays with as has no other of the moderns, modifying color brightness to achieve his foreseen tonal harmony—Cheney) Nearly all of these terms carry extended meanings derived from or related to the senses previously considered. Color usually suggests an outward character or aspect such as may be changed by circumstances (your love for him has changed its color since you have found him not to be the saint you thought him—Hardy) (it has been an essentially aristocratic movement—But . . . it took on a strongly democratic color—Mencel) may be imparted to a thing to brighten and vivify it (people talk of matters which I had believed to be worn threadbare by use, and yet communicate a rich color . . . to them—Benson) Hue is less often so used than color; it usually suggests a character rather than an aspect, but it does not necessarily imply an ingrained character (our mental hue depends ... completely on the social atmosphere in which we move—Horace Smith) Tint applies to a character that is not dominant but imparted as if by contact or influence (our inborn spirits have a tint of thee—Byron) Shade and tinge are used in the sense of trace, touch, trifling (for this sense, see TOUCH) (eyes that ... had some tinge of the oriental—Edmund Wilson) (a shade less cordial than usual) (a tinge of sadness)

2 usually in plural colors *flag, ensign, standard, banner, streamer, pennant, pendant, pennon, jack colorful *plausible, credible, believable, specious Ana convincing, compelling, telling, cogent, sound, *valid colorless uncolored, achromatic mean without color. However, they are not freely interchangeable. Colorless is applied to something that is transparent (water is a colorless liquid) or to something that is bleached, blanched, or pallid (colorless leaves) (colorless cheeks and lips) Uncolored is applied to something that is left in its natural state or is not dyed or stained (uncolored oranges) or to objects which have not been touched or touched up with color (an uncolored photograph) Achromatic is applied to something that is free from any of the hues in the spectrum or from any hues formed by combinations of these or that gives images which are free from extraneous colors produced by refraction (an achromatic color) (an achromatic telescope) A color (in its inclusive sense) may be chromatic or achromatic: if the former, it has a hue; if the latter, it has not and is, therefore, white, black, or a pure gray. Ana *pale, pallid, ashen, wan: whitened, blanched, bleached, decolorized (see WHITEN)

Ant colorful colossal *huge, vast, immense, enormous, elephantine, mammoth, giant, gigantic, gigantean, gargantuan, Herculean, cyclopean, titanic, Brobdignagian Ana monumental, stupendous, tremendous, prodigious, *monstrous column *pillar, pilaster comatoso torpid, sluggish, *lethargic Ana * languid, languorous, listless, languishing: phlegmatic, *impassive: *insensible, anesthetic, impassible: inert, passive, supine (see INACTIVE) Ant awake comb vb *seek, search, scour, hunt, ferret out, ransack, rummage Ana *scrutinize, inspect, examine: investigate, probe (see corresponding nouns at INQUIRY) combat vb *resist, withstand, contest, oppose, fight, conflict, antagonize Ana *fight, *contend, battle, war: *attack, assail, assault, bombard, storm Ant champion: defend —Con protect, shield, guard (see DEFEND): *support, uphold, advocate: *maintain, justify, vindicate combat n conflict, fight, *contest, affray, fray Ana *battle, engagement, action: *encounter, skirmish, brush: controversy, dispute, *argument: contention, strife, conflict, *discord combative *belligerent, bellicose, pugnacious, quarrelsome, contentious Ana *aggressive, militant: strenuous, energetic, *vigorous: virile, manly, manful (see MALE) Ant pacific combination, combine, party, bloc, faction, ring denote a union, either of individuals or of organized interests, for mutual support in obtaining common political or private ends. Combination is the most comprehensive of these terms, being applicable to any such union whether a trust, an alliance, or simply an association for the purpose of urging demands or resisting claims (a combination of citizens devoted to holding down taxes) (a combination of railroads to maintain existing rates) Combine is often interchangeable, especially in informal use, with combination (the coal combine) Often it may connote a combination with an improper or illegal aim in view (how the Mafia operates has been duplicated ... in Ed Reid’s book of that famous ... combine—Kogan) (a combine that understands it must destroy ... if it is actually to control—The Commonweal) A party is a number of persons united in support of some opinion, cause, or principle; it usually implies a similar body in opposition, especially when used in reference to a political organization built up to continue the action and policies of government through election of its candidates to office (in the United States there are usually only two strong parties) (the Labour party in England) (he who draws his pen for one party must expect to make enemies of the other—Dryden) (who, born for the universe, narrowed his mind, and to party gave up what was meant for mankind—Goldsmith) Bloc implies a combination of persons or groups who otherwise differ in party or in interests for the sake of achieving a common and often temporary end; thus, in France and in Italy, a bloc is a combination of members of two or more political parties; in the United States, a bloc is a combination not of parties but of members of different parties who have a common end (the farm bloc formed by members from the agricultural states wishing to secure legislation helpful to their constituents) Faction frequently suggests a smaller body than party and commonly implies selfish ends and the use of unscrupulous or turbulent means (so several factions from this first ferment work up to foam and threaten the government—Dryden) (the Whigs and Tories in Rome, Athens, and Jerusalem never for their ends and the use of unscrupulous or turbulent means—Dryden) (the Labour party in England) (who, born for the universe, narrowed his mind, and to party gave up what was meant for mankind—Goldsmith) Bloc implies a combination of persons or groups who otherwise differ in party or in interests for the sake of achieving a common and often temporary end; thus, in France and in Italy, a bloc is a combination of members of two or more political parties; in the United States, a bloc is a combination not of parties but of members of different parties who have a common end (the farm bloc formed by members from the agricultural states wishing to secure legislation helpful to their constituents) Faction frequently suggests a smaller body than party and commonly implies selfish ends and the use of unscrupulous or turbulent means (so several factions from this first ferment work up to foam and threaten the government—Dryden) (the Whigs and Tories in Rome, Athens, and Jerusalem never forgot national points with more zeal, to attend to private faction, than we have lately—Walpole) Ring is applicable to an exclusive, often more or less secret, combination for a selfish and often corrupt or criminal purpose (as the control of a market, of political patronage, or of distribution of narcotics) (the Tweed Ring was in control of New York City politics for six years) Innocent women were frequently framed by a ring consisting of police officers, stool pigeons, bondsmen and lawyers—Ploscowe Ana *monopoly, corner, pool, cartel, syndicate, trust combine vb 1 unite, associate, link, conjoin, *join, connect, relate Ana *mix, mingle, commingle, blend, fuse, amalgamate; consolidate, unify (see COMPACT vb) Ant separate —Con part, divide, sever, sunder, divorce (see SEPARATE): *detach, disengage 2 *unite, cooperate, concur, conjoin Ana coalesce, merge (see MIX): coincide, *agree, concur combine n *combination, party, bloc, faction, ring Ana see those at COMBINATION combustible adj Combustible, inflammable, flammable, incendiary, inflammatory, which are not close synonyms, since they apply to different types of nouns, are comparable because they mean showing a tendency to catch or be set on fire. Combustible applies chiefly to material which is of such a nature that it catches fire easily and usually burns quickly (excelsior is very combustible) (a combustible roof of pine shingles) Inflammable applies to materials ready to flame up at the slightest cause of the term, however, suggests more than the ease with which a thing burns, for it stresses a capacity for flaring up dangerously (the fire soon gutted the attic, which had been full of old papers and other inflammable materials) Inflammable as applied to persons, their natures, their hearts, and their temperaments stresses the danger as well as the ease in arousing them (as to anger, excitement, or passion); it applies also to a subject or situation that can induce such arousal (the vision of a single young woman is said to have overcome the inflammable monk—Meredith) ("Don't trouble about it, Clym. They may get to be friends.") He shook his head. "Not two people with inflammable natures like theirs"—Hardy (a very inflammable subject to be raised at election time) Flammable is equivalent to inflammable and used chiefly in respect to materials dangerously likely to flare up or explode (gasoline is a highly flammable substance requiring special care in storage and transportation) Incendiary not only stresses a capacity for starting up or causing a conflagration but a malicious intent to do the same. Therefore the term applies not only to something that is designed to cause fire but to fire that is caused by intent or design (an incendiary bomb) (an incendiary conflagration) The term may be extended to something (as an act, practice, speech, or publication) that tends to arouse something (as sedition, evil passions, or violence) that acts as destructively or disasterously as fire (incendiary ideas) (an incendiary policy) While the adjective is seldom applied to persons, the noun incendiary chiefly, except when used as short for such phrases as incendiary bomb, designates a person who maliciously or willfully sets fire to a building or other property or who deliberately incites quarrels, unrests, sedition, or violence. Inflammatory, like incendiary, emphasizes the power to cause a fire, especially in the hearts or minds of people, but it carries less suggestion of a malicious intent (taking to politics, he became a Chartist, and was found to be a capable inflammatory speaker—Lucas) (this gentleman . . . having been imprisoned fourteen months for inflammatory language anent the Federal Government—Reppier)

An inflammatory speaker is said to become inflamed (as an act, practice, speech, or publication) that tends to arouse something (as sedition, evil passions, or violence) that acts as destructively or disasterously as fire (incendiary ideas) (an incendiary policy) While the adjective is seldom applied to persons, the noun incendiary chiefly, except when used as short for such phrases as incendiary bomb, designates a person who maliciously or willfully sets fire to a building or other property or who deliberately incites quarrels, unrests, sedition, or violence. Inflammatory, like incendiary, emphasizes the power to cause a fire, especially in the hearts or minds of people, but it carries less suggestion of a malicious intent (taking to politics, he became a Chartist, and was found to be a capable inflammatory speaker—Lucas) (this gentleman . . . having been imprisoned fourteen months for inflammatory language anent the Federal Government—Reppier)

come, arrive are comparable because both basically mean to get to one point from another more or less distant in space, time, relation, or development. (Come (with to) and arrive (with at) are synonyms of reach (see reach); thus, one comes to or arrives at the end of a journey; one comes to or arrives at a decision. Come is one of the elementary intransitive verbs of motion, always implying movement toward, and may be used wherever such movement, actual or apparent, physical or spiritual, is implied. Arrive, however, stresses rather the reaching of and the end of movement toward a destination. Come, therefore, may be used with or without the implication that the destination is reached; arrive consistently carries that implication (I can see them coming) (they will arrive at three o'clock) When used in reference to things that move or progress without an agent or agency (as because of some law of nature or in obedience to some inner law or principle) come is usually preferable unless a definite end or termination or, often, fulfillment (as of expectation) is suggested (the days come and go) (at last the day of departure arrived) (the longed-for breeze was slow in coming, but when it arrived it brought joy to all) (success never comes to those who await it idly; it usually arrives only after years of patient endeavor) Come often suggests or requires statement of a source of place from which a thing has issued; arrive, on the other hand, often suggests or requires a statement of an end, a goal, or a climax to a progress or development (the family comes from peasant stock) (the family arrived socially when the grandfather of the present baron was elevated to the peerage) In such cases come and arrive are not inter-its ... fire roaring behind a chaste canopy of velvet overmantel—Sayers> Snug (see also NEAT) suggests the state or the frame of mind of one who has as much room, or responsibility, or freedom, or money as is essential to his well-being but no more than he actually needs to be cozy, content, or secure; the term usually connotes such comfort as is associated with small but comfortable quarters as distinguished from those that are spacious or with a quiet, restricted, but pleasant way of life as distinguished from one where there is little time for one’s own interests or where one is driven by ambitions or restlessness; often, specifically, the term emphasizes protection from the elements, and warmth and dryness, as contributions to one’s comfort <all the gypsies and showmen ... lay snug within their carts and tents—Hardy> <Arnold the heartbroken outcast from the snug house-hold of faith, wearying in spiritual wastes of sand and thorns—Montague> Easy (see also EASY 2) implies relief from all that makes for discomfort or hardships, with the result that one is happy or free from care, anxiety, trouble, or doubt <he is in easy circumstances for the first time in his life> <she could now enjoy herself with an easy conscience> <people of the right sort are never easy until they get things straight—Kefauver> <Mrs. Struthers’s easy Sunday hospitality—Wharton> Restful usually suggests a state of mind of one who is comfortable, cozy, or easy, as well as relaxed, or a quality in a thing that induces such a state of mind (it’s restful to arrive at a decision, and restful just to think about New Hampshire—Frost>  Ana comforting, consoling, solacing (see COMFORT vb): content or contented, satisfied (see under SATISFY): grateful, welcome, agreeable, gratifying (see PLEASANT) Ant uncomfortable: miserable —Con wretched (see MISERABLE): distressing, troubling (see TROUBLE vb): annoying, vexing, irking, bothering (see ANNOY) comic adj comical, *laughable, farcical, funny, droll, risible, ludicrous, ridiculous Ana diverting, amusing, entertaining (see AMUSE): *witty, humorous, facetious: grotesque, antic, *fantastic Ant tragic —Con *serious, solemn, grave, sober: pathetic, touching, poignant, *moving, affecting comical comic, farcical, ludicrous, ridiculous, *laughable, risible, droll, funny Ana absurd, silly, *foolish: jocular, joose, humorous (see WITTY): waggish, impish, rogueish, sportive (see PLAYFUL): deriding or derisive, ridiculing, mocking (see corresponding verbs at RIDICULE) Ant pathetic —Con *melancholy, doleful, lugubrious, dolorous: *moving, poignant, touching, affecting comity amity, goodwill, *friendship Ana *association, society: companionship, comradeship (see base words at ASSOCIATE): concord, accord, *harmony command vb Command, order, bid, enjoin, direct, instruct, charge mean to issue orders to someone to give, get, or do something. Command and order agree in stressing the idea of authority, command implying its more formal and official exercise <the chairman commands the undertaking—Kefauver> and order, its more peremptory, sometimes even arbitrary, exercise; thus, a king, a military officer, the captain of a ship, commands; a landowner orders a trespasser off his premises; one is apt to resent being ordered, except by those who have a right to command. But order is used by a physician with no such connotation <the doctor ordered outdoor exercise> Bid in this sense is usually somewhat literary or informal; it usually implies an ordering or directing (often with a suggestion of peremptoriness) directly and by speech <she bade him be seated> <he seized him by the collar and sternly bade him cease making a fool of himself—Shaw> Enjoin adds to the idea of authority the implication of urging or warning; direct and instruct suggest especially business, official, or diplomatic relations, direct being perhaps the more mandatory, instruct the more formal, of the two  <the church enjoins certain duties> <the editor directed his secretary to admit no callers during a conference> <instruct an assistant to gather certain information> St. Peter ... enjoins us to be ready always to give an answer to every man that asks us a reason for the faith that is in us—Lowes> Why otherwise does it [the Constitution of the United States] direct the judges to take an oath to support it?—John Marshall> Charge, chiefly a literary term, implies not only enjoining but the imposition of a task as a duty <Mrs. Yeobright gave him the moneybags, charged him to go to Mistover—Hardy> <Gustavus ... considered himself charged by God with the defense of the true Lutheran faith—Barr> Ana control, manage, *conduct, direct: exact, *demand, require: *force, compel, coerce, constrain, oblige Ant comply, obey command n 1 Command, order, injunction, bidding, behest, mandate, dictate mean a direction, that must or should be obeyed, to do or not to do something. Command imputes to the person who issues the directions either unquestioned authority <the commands of a general> or complete control of a situation <at the command of the intruder he held up his hands> The term usually connotes either peremptoriness or imperativeness <at the command of his father he returned to the house> <every request of hers he interpreted as a command> <encouragement to some extent there is by every command or prohibition—Cardozo> Order is not always clearly distinguishable from command: it is, however, the preferred word for directions to subordinates that are instructions as well as commands; in such use it commonly implies explicitness in detail <the troops were awaiting orders from headquarters> (in response to the principal’s order, the pupils maintained silence while passing through the corridors) <refusal to recognize the authority of the emperor amounted to a refusal to take orders—Pharr> Injunction carries a weaker implication of imperativeness than the preceding words except in legal use, where it is applied to a court order commanding a person to do or more often to refrain from doing something on the penalty of being adjudged guilty of contempt of court. In general use the word stresses admonition without losing the implication of expected or demanded obedience <the high injunction not to taste that fruit—Milton> <she carefully obeyed the injunctions laid upon her by her physician> <delivered stern injunctions> Bidding, chiefly literary, usually implies the status of master or parent in the person who issues the orders and therefore stresses expected obedience or the fact of being obeyed <thousands at his bidding speed—Milton> (at the ghoulish bidding of the cloud, ... the surly summons of the sun—Aiken> Behest is also distinctly literary and equivalent to bidding in its implications <do his master’s high behest—Scott> During the war, it is true, at the behest of government agencies, many writers worked into their serials incidents and dialogue of a worthy sociological nature—Thurber> Mandate (see also MANDATE 2) carries the strongest implication of imperativeness of all of these words, for it denotes a command or order issued by a commend, recommend, applaud, compliment are commensurate commemorate

commence

Dictate basically denotes a command given orally (he . . . received his suggestions, and bowed to his dictates—Meriden) More often it applies to a command or authoritative judgment uttered by an inner voice (as of the conscience) or formulated in a principle or law (the government which has a right to do an act, and has imposed on it the duty of performing that act, must, according to the dictates of reason, be allowed to select the means—John Marshall) (a suspicion that . . . the moral law speaks in equivocal tones to those who listen most scrupulously for its dictates—L. P. Smith)

Anita direction, instruction, charging or charge (see corresponding verbs at Command): precept, ordinance, law, statute, canon, rule

2 control, authority, power, jurisdiction, sway, dominion

Anita ascendency, *supremacy: sovereignty (see under Free adj)

commemorating vb celebrate, observe, *keep, solemnize

commence *begin, start, initiate, inaugurate

Anita institute, *found, organize, establish

Con finish, complete, conclude, terminate, end, *close commend, recommend, applaud, compliment are comparable when they mean to voice or otherwise manifest to others one's warm approval. Commend usually implies a desire to call attention to the merits of a person or a thing (the police commissioner publicly commended the officers who made the arrest) (his wife seriously commended Mr. Collins for having spoken so sensibly—Austen) (it is always dangerous and impertinent to commend a poem for anything but its poetry—L. P. Smith)

Anita direction, instruction, charging or charge (see corresponding verbs at Command): precept, ordinance, law, statute, canon, rule

comment n commentary, *remark, observation, note, obiter dictum

Anita interpreting or interpretation, elucidation, explication, expounding or exposition, explaining or explanation (see corresponding verbs at Explain): annotation, gloss (see under Annotate)

comment vb commentate, *remark, animadvert

Anita interpret, elucidate, expound, *explain, construe, explicate: *annotate, gloss: *criticize: illustrate, *exemplify commentary comment, *remark, observation, note, obiter dictum

Anita see those at Comment n

commentative vb comment, *remark, animadvert

Anita see those at Comment vb

commentator see under commentary at Remark vb

commerce 1 trade, *business, industry, traffic

2 traffic, *intercourse, dealings, communication, communion, conversation, converse, correspondence commercial adj Commercial, mercantile are comparable when they mean of, relating to, or dealing with the supplying of commodities. Commercial is the more widely applicable term: it may be used in reference to anything which has to do with the buying or selling of commodities for profit, with their transportation, and sometimes, even, with their production, or with business affairs in general; thus, a commercial transaction is any piece of business involving a buyer and seller of goods or property that is for the financial benefit of the seller; commercial law deals with all matters (as contracts, negotiable papers, liens, payment of debts, and partnerships) that have reference to business; a commercial attaché is, in the United States, an officer of the Department of Commerce attached by the Department of State to an embassy or legation in a country where trade is important. Also, commercial is used to describe whatever has for its aim financial profit or is guided by the methods or practices of business (the commercial theater) (commercial aviation) (commercial sports) (commercial radio programs are programs paid for by advertisers) Mercantile is often used interchangeably with commercial with little difference in meaning; thus, a mercantile transaction is not ordinarily distinguishable from a commercial transaction, nor mercantile law from commercial law. The term, however, more often suggests actual buying and selling (the occupation of a merchant) than commerce in general including production and transportation and is therefore more restricted in its application; thus, a commercial house is a business or company engaged in foreign or domestic commerce: a mercantile house is a business, usually wholesale, engaged in merchandising (mercantile agent) (mercantile establishment)

commingle mingle, blend, *mix, merge, coalesce, fuse, amalgamate

Anita combine, unite, conjoin, associate (see Join):
commit

commit compassion, pity, condolence, *sympathy, ruth, empathy

_Ana_ compassionateness, tenderness, warmheartedness (see corresponding adjectives at TENDER): mercifulness, clemency (see under FORBEARING): lamenting or lamentation, bewailing, bemoaning (see corresponding verbs at DEPLORE): pitifulness, piteousness, pitiableness (see corresponding adjectives at PITIFUL)

_Ant_ ruthlessness, pitilessness

commission vb *authorize, accredit, license

_Ana_ appoint, *designate, name, nominate: empower, *enable: instruct, enjoin, charge, bid, order, *command

commit vb 1 Commit, entrust, confide, consign, relegate are comparable when they mean to assign to a person or place for some definite end or purpose (as custody or safekeeping). _Commit_ is the widest term; it may express merely the general idea of delivering into another's charge (<commit the management of an estate to an agent>) or it may have the special sense of a transfer to a superior power or to a place of custody (<into thine hand I commit my spirit—Ps 31:5>) or we therefore commit his body to the earth; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust—Book of Common Prayer) (<commit a person to prison>) (<commit one's thoughts to paper>) To entrust is to commit with trust and confidence; to confide is to entrust with entire reliance and assurance (<entrusted him with her secret>) () (<the right of naturalization was therefore, with one accord, surrendered by the States, and confided to the Federal Government—Talley>) (<never to those bloodstained accursed hands will the future of Europe be confided—Sir Winston Churchill>) _Consign_ implies a more formal act and frequently suggests such transfer or delivery as removes its object from one's immediate control (<consigned goods to an agent for sale>) (<he must now . . . consign him to a living tomb again—How-thorne>) (<the barber and the curate of La Mancha . . . felt bound to wall up Don Quixote's library, and consigned to the flames many of the volumes which had so unsettled the poor knight's wits—Muggeridge>) To _relegate_ is to consign to some particular class, position, or sphere usually with the implication of setting aside or getting rid of [<man] is relegated to his place in a classification—Newman> (<he supposed that he had disappointed the Bishop and that he was being relegated into the limbo of moderately satisfactory young parsons—Mackenzie>)

_Ana_ transfer, shift, remove, *move: assign, * allot

2 Commit, _perpetrate_ mean to be responsible for or to be guilty of some offense or mistake. _Commit_ is the term regularly used in prohibiting (as in some of the Ten Commandments) or to describe engaging in an action that is counted a sin, crime, or offense (<commit murder>) (<commit adultery> (<commit blasphemy>) In less specific use the word may mean little more than do or perform, but it retains to a greater or less degree its implication of reprehensive (<commit a stupid blunder>) (<commit needless errors> _Perpetrate_ basically implies the committing of a crime (<perpetrate arson>) (<perpetrate treason) and often so strongly carries the notion of crime or offense that a neutral word can be used as the object of the verb without any doubt as to its offensive character (<the deed was perpetrated at midnight>) However, _perpetrate_ is also freely used of acts or actions which though not criminal are morally, socially, intellectually, or artistically reprehensible and which may range from the utterly out-rageous to the mildly deplorable (<hastened to perpetrate the partition of your country before the Polish nation could consolidate its position—Sir Winston Churchill>) (<the colossal waste they perpetrate probably does not exceed the financial blunders and stuffed overhead in big corporations—Paul>) (<Peter Cornelius, who at Munich was quite successfully perpetrating . . . about the worst art of the century—Mather>) (<went away feeling I had perpetrated a delightful fraud—L. P. Smith>) _Ana_ offend, sin, scandalize (see corresponding nouns at OFFENSE): transgress, trespass, violate, contravene (see corresponding nouns at BREACH)

commodious spacious, ample

_Ana_ *comfortable: large, big, great: broad, wide, deep

_Cond_ circumscribed, confined, limited, restricted (see LIMIT vb): inconvenient, incommodious (see corresponding verbs at JOIN): merged, blended, amalgamated (see MIX)

_Ant_ individual

2 mutual, * reciprocal

_Ana & Ant_ see those at COMMON

3 _Common_ makes no distinction between the character of what is generally or usually met with and not in any way special, strange, or unusual. _Common_ implies the lack of distinguishing, conspicuous, or exceptional qualities; positively, it suggests usualness, everyday character or quality, or frequency of occurrence (_the common people_) (_a common soldier_) (_the common chickweed_) (_a common error_) (_he lacks common honesty_) (_for common love_) (and women two or three of the common loves will suffice—the love of family and home, of school and church, of mountain and sea—Eliot) _Often_ the term also connotes inferiority, coarseness, lack of breeding, or low station (_the common herd_) (_of common clay_) _O hard is the bed . . . and common the blanket and cheap—Housman_) (_a common fellow with no notion of politeness or manners_) _Ordinary_ expresses more definitely accordance with the regular order or run of things (_the ordinary intercourse of man with man—Newman_) (_it is not an ordinary war. It is a revolution . . . which threatens all men everywhere—Roosevelt_) _It_ usually implies qualities not above, and frequently below, the average (_choice word and measured phrase, above the reach of ordinary men—Wordsworth_) (_let others expatiate on trivial objects, ordinary characters, and uninteresting events—Landor_) _As_ a term of depreciation _ordinary_ is similar to but less contemptuous than _common_ (_a very ordinary-looking person_) (_his ability is no more than ordinary_) _Familiar_ stresses something that is generally known and easily recognized because of its frequency of occurrence or one's constant association with it rather than because of its lack of distinguishing qualities (_the tyranny of familiar surroundings over the imagination—Russell_) (_to remind you of what is so familiar as to be frequently forgotten—Frankfurter_) (_the doctrine of Einstein, which sweeps away axioms so familiar to us that they seem obvious truths, and substitutes others which seem absurd because they are unfamiliar—Ellis_) _Popular_ and _vulgar_ (see also COARSE) imply commonness that arises from use or acceptance by or prevalence among the vast majority of persons, often specifically among the common people of a country or an age (_popular fallacies_) (_the vulgar tongue_) _Popular_ more often stresses the implication of widespread prevalence, currency, or favor among the people or the masses; _vulgar_ more often connotes inferiority, coarseness, lack of breeding, or low station. _Vulgar_ is basically an adjective or phrase used of subjects, or objects associated with the vulgar, or common people. _Vulgarity_ is the quality of being vulgar, or, specifically, is a vulgarity (a vulgarity). _Popular_ or _vulgar_ are often used in contemptuous sense to apply to the common people or to things related to them._

---

_Analogous words_ integrate

_Antonyms_ * authorize, accredit, license*

_Contrasted words_ commit people than does vulgar, which even in this sense nearly always carries derogatory connotations (as of inferiority or coarseness) ⟨a popular song⟩ ⟨dancing . . . of all the arts . . . most associated in the popular mind with pleasure—Ellis⟩ ⟨this mode of interpreting Scripture is fatal to the vulgar notion of its verbal inspiration—Arnold⟩ ⟨a popular instead of an accurate and legal conception of what the word monopole in the statute means—Justice Holmes⟩ ⟨we were reluctant to expose those silent and beautiful places to vulgar curiosity—Cather⟩

An uncommon—exceptional—Con rare, *infrequent, occasional: singular, unique, peculiar, odd, *strange commonplace n Commonplace, platitude, truism, bromide, cliché mean an idea or expression lacking in originality or freshness. A commonplace is a stock idea or expression which is frequently little more than the obvious, conventional, and easy thing to think or say on a given subject ⟨the machinery as well as the characters of those novels became the commonplaces of later romancers—Raleigh⟩ ⟨the superficial commonplaces which pass as axioms in our popular intellectual milieu—Cohen⟩

Platitude adds to commonplace the suggestions of flatness or triteness and, often, utterance with an air of importance or novelty ⟨what is that sentimental platitude of somebody’s . . . about the sun being to flowers what art is to life?—Hewlett⟩ ⟨traditional schoolbook platitudes and campaign slogans—Frankfurter⟩ A truism is a self-evident truth; it differs from an axiom (see axiom at PRINCIPLE) in frequently implying a somewhat superfluous insistence upon the obvious ⟨Pope’s palpable truism “The proper study of mankind is man”⟩ ⟨it is a truism that a sound society makes for sound individuals—Day Lewis⟩

Bromide applies to a commonplace, platitude, or truism that strikes the listener or reader as especially dull or hackneyed and, often, as an evidence of its maker’s low-grade mentality ⟨despite the silly old bromide, the fat man is more often than not the best loved of men—McClure’s Mag.⟩ ⟨under the circumstances the usual, indeed the expected, Chamber of Commerce bromides would have been acceptable—J. M. Brown⟩

Cliché applies to an expression which when new was fresh and full of meaning but which by constant iteration has become not only dull but hackneyed and stereotyped ⟨the cliché is merely the sometime novel, that has been loved not wisely but too well—Lowes⟩ ⟨the pathetic cliché, “for the sake of the children,” has perpetuated many unsuccessful marriages—D. B. Lewis⟩

An expression ⟨phrase, idiom, locution: banality, jejune, inanity, wishy-washiness (see corresponding adjectives at INSIPIID): triteness, threadbareness (see corresponding adjectives at TRITE)⟩

common sense see sense 2
commotion, agitation, tumult, turmoil, turbulence, confusion, convulsion, upheaval are comparable when they designate great physical, mental, or emotional excitement. All carry this general meaning yet have applications which fit them for narrower use in specific senses. Commotion always implies movement and to and fro that may be violent and disturbing or that may be merely sharply in contrast to a usual calm. It is used physically of storms, especially as they affect the movement of the seas ⟨behind the endless surges of the deep . . . a host of mariners perpetual sleep, too hushed to heed the wild commotion’s roar—Channing d. 1901⟩ and of unusual bustle or hubbub ⟨there was commotion all over the house at the return of the young heir—Meredith⟩ Even when commotion represents mental or emotional excitement, it indirectly suggests movement in heightening the ideas of unrest and perturbation (eighteen years of commotion had made the majority of the people ready to buy repose at any price—Macaulay) Agitation, on the other hand, suggests a stirring up or a shaking up comparable physically to that accompanying a fermentation or to boiling or seething ⟨the agitation of the earth’s crust during an earthquake⟩ Usually it describes strong emotional excitement that, whether controlled or not, causes distress or pain to the person involved ⟨that sickening agitation of the heart which arises from hope deferred—Scott⟩ ⟨“Pray,” said Mr. Lorry . . . bringing his left hand . . . to lay it on the supplicatory fingers that clasped him in so violent a tremble, “pray control your agitation”—Dickens⟩ It also may refer to the stirring up of men’s minds and emotions on some usually emotionally charged matter or question ⟨political agitation by foreign agents⟩ ⟨an anti-Catholic agitation that was marked by the destruction of churches—Amer. Guide Series: N. Y.⟩

Tumult may mean, generally, either commotion or agitation that is characterized by uproar, din, or great disorder ⟨the tumult and the shouting dies, the captains and the kings depart—Kipling⟩ It also may apply specifically to a riot or fracas or to an insurrection or rebellious outbreak ⟨the tumults and disorders of the Great Rebellion had hardly been subdued—T. S. Eliot⟩ but it is equally applicable to other things ⟨as it is violent disturbance of the elements or an agitation of conflicts of passions⟩ that suggest restlessness, noise, disorder, and intense excitement ⟨it thunders and lightens . . . what tumult’s in the heavens?—Shak⟩ ⟨the gods approve the depth, and not the tumult, of the soul—Wordsworth⟩

Turmoil implies a state where nothing is at rest and where everything seethes with excitement. It is applicable to a state of physical commotion or to a condition of mental or emotional agitation, but in all cases it carries a suggestion of harassment and of ferment from which there seems no escape. In fact, it often connotes the point of view of a person who loves peace and hates disturbance ⟨her life had been calm, regular, monotonous . . . now it was thrown into . . . indescribable turmoil—Bennett⟩ ⟨the child’s inner life is often a turmoil of terrors and anxieties of which his parents know almost nothing—Inge⟩ ⟨the great peace beyond all this turmoil and fret compassed me around—L. P. Smith⟩

Turbulence implies an excitement that cannot be easily put down or allayed; it may suggest impetuosity, insubordination, unruliness, lack of discipline, or comparable qualities in inanimate things ⟨yon foaming flood seems motionless as ice; its dizzy turbulence eludes the eye, frozen by distance—Wordsworth⟩ ⟨it required all the personal influence of the king to check the turbulence of his irritated followers—Patton⟩ ⟨the rest exhibited plenty of the turbulence of passion, but none of the gravity of thoughtful emotion—Quiller-Couch⟩

Confusion (see also CONFUSION) applies chiefly to a mental state which may affect one person or many and which is marked by such a condition that the mind is at sea and unable to function; usually it suggests perturbation and inability to think coherently often as a result of embarrassment or discomfiture ⟨the crown was thrown into confusion by the news⟩ ⟨overcome with confusion, and unable to lift up her eyes—Austen⟩ ⟨she was slowly emerging from the mental confusion which followed the fall—Ellis⟩ ⟨to cover his confusion, he half turned away—Anderson⟩ Convulsion and upheaval suggest large-scale violent activity, commotion, or agitation. More particularly convulsion implies a sudden, surging, confused, or spasmodic action (as in the earth’s crust, the individual’s mind, or the body politic) ⟨flourishing cities were demolished by the earth’s convulsion—Martin⟩

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
communicate, impart mean to convey or transfer something (as information, feelings, or qualities) neither tangible nor concrete; to impart is to share with another his knowledge or skill to others) <I wonder do you ever succeed really in communicating our thoughts to one another—Shaw> you are worth to society the imparting—Holland

Ana acquaintance, apprise, *inform, advise, notify: tell, disclose, *reveal, divulge, discover: convey, *transfer

Con conceal, *hide: *suppress, repress: withhold, hold back, keep back, reserve (see keep) communication *intercourse, commerce, traffic, dealings, conversation, converse, correspondence, communication

Ana exchanging or exchange, interchange or interchange (see corresponding verbs at exchange): conversing, talking (see speak): *news, tidings, advice, intelligence

communion 1 *intercourse, commerce, traffic, converse, dealings, communication, conversation, correspondence

Ana empathy, *sympathy: mysticism (see under ascetic): contemplation (see corresponding verb at consider): ecstasy, rapture, transport

2 *religion, denomination, faith, church, creed, sect, cult, persuasion compact adj dense, *close, thick

Ana compressed, condensed, contracted (see contract vb): compacted, consolidated, compacted (see compact vb): solid, *firm, hard: *tight

Con *loose, slack: diffuse, prolix, verbose, *wordy: tenuous, rare, *thin compact vb Compact, consolidate, unify, concentrate are comparable when meaning to bring or gather together the parts, particles, elements, or units of a thing so as to form a close mass or an integral whole. Compact stresses the process more than the effect. It usually suggests a packing or pressing together of many things so as to form a closely arranged mass or a dense substance and may be used in reference both to material and immaterial things; sometimes it carries so strong an implication of solid formation or construction that it fundamentally means to build firmly or to strengthen (heat and lack of rain have compacted the soil) compact matted fibers of wool and hair into felt by rolling and pressing) <sweet spring . . . a box where sweets compacted lie—Herbert> it is based on solid facts, may, is compacted of solid facts from the first sentence to the last—Times Lit. Sup.> Compact implies a merging or uniting, often in an exceedingly close union, of previously distinct but usually homogeneous or complementary things. The term may take as its object such a whole as a nation, a people, or an empire or as a substance or material and may imply a process which promotes the binding together of the parts, elements, or individuals so that solidarity or solidarity is achieved <war tends to consolidate a people> <organize state leagues for political action in order to consolidate the labor vote—Watkins> <rolling and cooling consolidated the newly laid asphalt into a firm smooth pavement> But consolidate can also take as its objects the units (as parts, elements, individuals, or groups) which have been brought together in close union (these organizations worked independently, and subsequently they were partially consolidated—Heiser> <two marriages with the Dutch Vandergraves had consolidated these qualities of thrift and handsome living—Wharton>

Unify implies a union of heterogeneous or homogeneous parts, elements, or individuals that results in the making or producing of a thing that has established identity, that stands by itself as a thing apart; the term does not, however, carry as strong an implication of solidarity as does consolidate but, on the other hand, it places stress on the integration of parts so that each does its appointed work or serves its own purpose to the benefit not only of itself but of the whole; thus, a dramatist unifies (not consolidates) the play he composes; after a civil war, the task of the government is to unify (rather than consolidate) a nation; the imagination of a great poet unifies a mass of images and impressions; the Homeric poems may have been originally a collection of narrative poems, but it seems likely that one person unified them <would now be technically possible to unify the world and abolish war—Russell> Concentrate usually carries the implication of bringing together a number of things that are scattered or diffused and of massing them around a point or center; <concentrate troops at places where an attack is expected> <concentrate one's efforts on a single piece of work> (the science of that age was all divination, clairvoyance . . . seeking in an instant of vision to concentrate a thousand experiences—Pater> Concentrate may be extended to imply the fixing of the mind or attention on one thing so that all distracting objects or thoughts are eliminated <her excitement made her unable to concentrate on the task> A similar implication of eliminating whatever weakens, dilutes, or adulterates is found in technical use; thus, the chemist concentrates a solution by evaporating the solvent; a miner concentrates ores (i.e., separates the base from the precious metals) by a machine or by washing. Ana compress, condense, *contract: bind: *tie, unite, consolidate (see join): knit, *weave compact n pact, entente, convention, concordat, treaty, cartel, *contract, bargain companionable *social, cooperative, convivial, gregarious, hospitable

Con dissipate, disperse, *scatter: *separate, part, divide

Ana friendly, neighborly, *amicable: *amiable, obliging, complaisant, good-natured: sociable, affable, *gracious, cordial

Con uncongenial, unsympathetic (see inconsonant): reserved, taciturn, uncommunicative (see silent) company, party, band, troop, troupe are comparable when they denote a group of persons who are associated in a joint endeavor or who are assembled for a common end. Company is the general term for either a temporary assemblage or a permanent association of individuals who join forces — Book of Common Prayer — the whole company of thinkers who have written philosophy — Sullivan A party is a company assembled temporarily for a common purpose — search party — dinner party — a party of visitors from the country A band is a company united by a common tie or purpose; the term implies closer organization and a less casual coming together than does company — the robbers worked in bands — a band of musicians — that small, transfigured band ... whose one bond is, that all have been unspotted by the world — Arnold A troop is a company or band that works or acts together in close form or in unanimity; the term frequently suggests a throng or multitude — there entertain him all the saints above, in solemn troops, and sweet societies — Milton — a mobile and dynamic troop whose major aims are the improvement of the mind — Hauser In specific use troop is applied to a band of soldiers or, in the plural, troops, to soldiers collectively — farewell the plumed troop, and the big wars — Shaks. — British troops When the reference is to a company of performers (especially on the stage) troupe is the preferred spelling — a circus troupe Ana *set, circle, coterie, clique: *association, society, club, order: *crowd, throng, mob, horde comparable *like, alike, similar, analogous, akin, parallel, uniform, identical Ant disparate — Con *different, divergent, diverse, various compare, contrast, collate mean to set two or more things side by side in order to show likenesses and differences. Compare implies as an aim the showing of relative values or excellences or a bringing out of characteristic qualities, whether they are similar or divergent; contrast implies as an aim an attempt to emphasize their differences; thus, one may compare the movement of the Odyssey with that of the Aeneid to arrive at their distinctive qualities; one may thereupon contrast the buoyancy and rapidity of the one with the staleness and dignity of the other. One object is compared with another, as above: it is compared to another when it is formally represented on the basis of a real or imagined similarity as being like that other; thus, Pope compares Homer with (not to) Vergil; he compares Homer to (not with) the Nile, pouring out his riches with a boundless overflow, Vergil to (not with) a river in its banks, with a gentle and constant stream. Collate suggests a minute or critical comparison in order to note points of agreement and divergence; it applies especially to the minute comparison of books and manuscripts containing different versions of the same work for the sake of ascertaining or establishing the correct text — he has visited all Europe ... not to collect medals, or collate manuscripts: but ... to compare and collate the distresses of all men in all countries — Burke Ana *match, equal, approach, touch, rival comparison, contrast, antithesis, collation, parallel mean a setting of things side by side so as to discover or exhibit their likenesses and differences, especially their generic likenesses and differences. Comparison is often used as the comprehensive term; it is preferred when the differences are obvious, and an intent to lay bare resemblances and similarities for the sake of expounding or judging is implied — despite the fact that Communism and Fascism are antagonistic ideologies, there is ground for a comparison between them — students who make a comparison of Shakespeare's Hamlet and the play which was its source acquire intimate knowledge of the great dramatist's indebtedness to others — Because measuring one thing in terms of another is usually implied by comparison, the word often impugns an offensive character either to the association — the comparison of "the colonel's lady" and "Judy O'Grady" — or to the judgment — comparisons are odious — a tactful person never makes comparisons — he will lose nothing by the comparison — make no comparisons; and if any of the company be commended for any brave act of virtue, commend not another for the same — Washington Contrast more specifically implies an intent to distinguish or discriminate things which are so much alike that their differences are not obvious — the correct use of close synonyms can be shown only by contrast — you cannot value him alone; you must set him, for contrast and comparison, among the dead — T. S. Eliot Contrast often also suggests an aesthetic rather than an expository aim or an artistic effect gained by the exhibition of startling differences — in physical appearance that contrast is glaring ... the square, full-blooded, blunt face of the one, the pointed chin and finely cut, pale features of the other — Bello Antithesis also implies contrast for the sake of revealing startling differences, but it distinctively suggests such opposition in the things contrasted that they either represent balancing extremes or negate each other. The word may imply an expository intent; it then presupposes that the true nature of one thing is fully understood only when it is presented as opposed to what is unlike it in every particular — the century-old antitheses of heavenly justice and earthly fallibility, sin and innocence, Heaven and Hell, God and the Devil dominate Melville's mind — Weir Collation and parallel denote a kind of comparison for the purpose of revealing both likenesses and differences. Both imply a close study and usually a specific aim. Collation more specifically implies a comparison of different versions, accounts, editions, texts, or manuscripts of the same thing for the purpose of verification, coordination, correction, or selection of the original — make a collation of the Scriptural accounts of the Resurrection — of these [corrupt passages in Shakespeare] the restoration is only to be attempted by collation of copies or sagacity of conjecture — Johnson — and parallel usually a minute comparison of passages, articles, or works which are believed to have a different origin in order to detect correspondences, or of accounts, records, or stories told at different times which ought to agree, in order to detect discrepancies; thus, by what is often called "the deadly parallel," a comparison of two articles may reveal such correspondences in language and thought as to give ground for a charge of plagiarism, or a comparison of testimony given by the same witness on two occasions may reveal discrepancies that make him liable to arrest for perjury. Ana *likeness, similarity, resemblance, analogy, similitude, affinity: *parallel, counterpart, analogue, correlate compass vb 1 *surround, environ, encircle, circle, encompass, hem, girdle, ring Ana *enclose, envelop: confine, circumscribe, restrict (see LIMIT) 2 gain, attain, achieve, *reach Ana effect, fulfill, accomplish, *perform; complete, finish (see close vb) compass n 1 *circumference, perimeter, periphery, circuit Ana area, extent, magnitude, *size: *field, sphere, domain 2 *range, gamut, reach, radius, sweep, scope, orbit, compendium, syllabus, digest, pandect, survey, sketch, compendious telling, convincing, cogent, sound, *valid tender, sympathetic, warmhearted, warm, responsive
*pitiful, piteous: merciful, *forbearing, clement
*merciful, benevolent, *charitable merciless, unrelenting, relentless, implacable, *grim congruous, *consonant, consistent, congenial, sympathetic
*pitiful, piteous: merciful, *forbearing, clement
*pitiful, piteous: merciful, *forbearing, clement consistent, uncongenial, discordant, discrepant: *adverse, antagonistic, counter compatible
*force, coerce, constrain, oblige impel, drive, *move: *command, order, enjoin prevail, *induce, persuade, get: *coax, cajole, wheedle, blandish
telling, convincing, cogent, sound, *valid summary, pithy, succinct, *concise, terse, laconic *close: condensed, contracted (see CONTRACT vb); abridged, abbreviated, shortened (see SHORTEN) amplified, expanded, inflated (see EXPAND): *full, complete: diffuse, prolix (see WORDY) compendium, syllabus, digest, pandect, survey, sketch, precis, aperçu are comparable when they mean a treatment of a subject or of a topic in brief compass. A compendium gathers in brief, orderly, and intelligible form, sometimes outlined, the facts, principles, or details essential to a general understanding of some matter; the word typically implies compilation rather than original meaning to make up for or to undo the effects of. Compensate is by far the broadest of these terms both in mode of use and scope of application. It may be used transisively and especially passively with either the one to be made up to or the thing to be made up for as object, or it may be used intransitively. In either case it is commonly modified by a phrase governed by for denoting a cause, by with specifying an equivalent, or by by indicating an action.
It is freely applicable to the purely physical compensate compensation is universally recognized as essential to justice and mercy) (in the healthy human body the salt intake and the salt loss through excretion)
Horizontal, ken, purview Ana circumscription, limitation, restriction (see corresponding verbs at LIMIT): limits, bounds, confines (see singular nouns at LIMIT) Compassion pity, commiseration, ruth, *sympathy, empathy, condolence
Ana tenderness, compassionateness, responsiveness, warmheartedness (see corresponding adjectives at TEN-DER): *mercy, charity, grace, lenity, clemency Con indifference, aloofness, unconcern (see corresponding adjectives at INDIFFERENT): mercilessness, relentlessness, implacability (see corresponding adjectives at GRIM) Compassionate *tender, sympathetic, warmhearted, warm,
compatible
Ana suitable, appropriate, proper, meet, fitting, *fit:
harmonizing, corresponding or correspondent, according or accordant (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): harmonious (see corresponding noun HARMONY) Ana incompatible —Con incongruous, *inconsonant, inconsistent, uncongenial, discordant, discrepant: *adverse, Ant incompatible —Con incongruous, *inconsonant, inconsistent, uncongenial, discordant, discrepant: *adverse,
compel *force, coerce, constrain, oblige Ana impel, drive, *move: *command, order, enjo
prevail, *induce, persuade, get: *coax, cajole, wheedle, blandish
Compendious telling, convincing, cogent, sound, *valid
Compendious summary, pithy, succinct, *concise, terse, laconic Ana compact, *close: condensed, contracted (see CON-TRACT vb): abridged, abbreviated, shortened (see SHORTEN) Con amplified, expanded, inflated (see EXPAND): *full, complete: diffuse, prolix (see WORDY) Compensation vb 1 Compensate, countervail, balance, offset, counterbalance, counterpoise are comparable when meaning to make up for or to undo the effects of. Compensate is by far the broadest of these terms both in mode
of use and scope of application. It may be used transisively and especially passively with either the one to be made up to or the thing to be made up for as object, or it may be used intransitively. In either case it is commonly modified
by a phrase governed by for denoting a cause, by with specifying an equivalent, or by by indicating an action.
It is freely applicable to the purely physical compensate
a pendulum for the effects of temperature change a weakened heart compensated by muscular hypertrophy compensation is universally recognized as essential to justice and mercy) (in the healthy human body the salt
intake and the salt loss through excretion)
One thing balances another, or two things balance (or balance each other) when both are so adjusted that they are either equal or properly proportioned (as in numbers, quantity, size, importance, or effectiveness) and the combination is harmonious because neither one outweighs the other or can exert a harmful influence on the whole (in sentencing prisoners, the judge balanced
justice and mercy) (in the healthy human body the salt
intake and the salt loss through excretion)

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
compete

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

<the general tendency to the degradation or dissipation of energy is balanced . . . by a building-up process in the cell and in the organism—Inge> <that, like a ground in painting, balances all hues and forms, combining with one tone whatever lights or shades are on it thrown—Bridges> <the pressures of business, labor, and farmers . . . manage to check and balance each other—Ascoli>

One thing offsets another (this and the following terms have no intransitive use) when the former, as the exact opposite of the latter and its equal (as in importance, in effectiveness, in power, or in numbers), neutralizes the latter's good or evil effect, gain or loss, or benefit or harm <his loss of thousands of votes from his own party was offset by his gain in independent votes> <the disadvantages of the plan are sufficient to offset its clear advantages> <the benefits of favorable climatic environment are oftentimes more than offset by the inconveniences of travel, loneliness, and homesickness—Heiser>

It is difficult to see any need for it that offsets in the slightest all the trouble it may cause—Chafee

One thing counterbalances another when the former serves or is intended to serve to offset some quality (as an excess, a deficiency, or an evil) in the latter <in his second book, there has to be rather more about religion to counterbalance the detailed, joyless descriptions of the heroine's sex life—Punch> or when the former acts as a corrective of any tendency in the latter to loss of equilibrium or proper balance, especially when it, or one of its parts, is subjected to undue pressure, strain, or tension  <mine hoists are often operated by the counterbalancing of an ascending and a descending car>

One thing counterpoises another when the former provides the equivalent of the latter in weight or value (physical, spiritual, artistic) and insures the balance of the whole <like scales, in which the weight on one side must be counterpoised by a weight in the other—Jefferies>

A counterpoise tower <the new tower is a little wanting in repose> <it is difficult to see any need for it that exceeds the increased load when the elevator carries passengers or freight> <the pressures of business, labor, and farmers . . . manage to check and counteract each other—Ascoli> each other <forced to contend with an army that outnumbered them> Contend, which may suggest something for the scholarship <the rivals contested lukewarmly for the crown>

<that unpromising young man with high collar and pince-nez whose somewhat priggish air of superiority infuriated most of the rest> <the increased load when the elevator carries passengers or freight> <it is difficult to see any need for it that exceeds the increased load when the elevator carries passengers or freight> <the pressures of business, labor, and farmers . . . manage to check and counteract each other—Ascoli> each other <forced to contend with an army that outnumbered them> Contend, which may suggest something for the scholarship <the rivals contested lukewarmly for the crown>

<that unpromising young man with high collar and pince-nez whose somewhat priggish air of superiority infuriated most of the rest> <the increased load when the elevator carries passengers or freight> <it is difficult to see any need for it that exceeds the increased load when the elevator carries passengers or freight> <the pressures of business, labor, and farmers . . . manage to check and counteract each other—Ascoli> each other <forced to contend with an army that outnumbered them> Contend, which may suggest something for the scholarship <the rivals contested lukewarmly for the crown>
Democrats—Schlesinger b. 1917)

Ana self-assured, self-confident, self-possessed, assured, confident (see corresponding nouns at CONFIDENCE); conceited, egotistic, egoistic (see corresponding nouns at CONCEIT); proud, vain, vainglorious (see under PRIDE n)

Con *humble, modest: diffident, *shy

complaint ailment, *disease, disorder, condition, affection, malady, distemper, syndrome

complaisant obliging, good-natured, *amiable

Ant contrary, perverse —Con disagreeable, unpleasant (see affirmative adjectives at PLEASANT); ungenial, unsympathetic (see INCURIOUS): *cold, chilly, frigid

complement n Complement, supplement are comparable both as nouns meaning one thing that makes up for a want or deficiency in another thing and as verbs meaning to supply what is needed to make up for such a want or deficiency. Complement implies a completing; it may suggest such a relation between two things or two groups of things that if they are put together they form a whole, or the full number, amount, or quantity necessary for a given purpose; thus, a grammatical complement is a word or phrase which must be added to a predicate if the latter is to make a definite assertion as well as in “he feels well,” free in “to set him free,” of no use in “it proved of no use” (bought a farm complete with its complement of implements and livestock) (you need two more chairs to complement those you already have in the room) How ever, the term even more often suggests such disparity in two things that what is supplied by either one is lacking in the other, with the result that their actual or theoretical combination gives a completeness that constitutes or approaches perfection (had found someone whose . . . masculinity was the very complement of his own fragile graces—Horace Gregory) (no adequate conception of the pictorial art of Asia can be attained without taking account of these wonderful works [of Japanese figure painting], complementing, as they do, the philosophic and poetic art which culminated in the Chinese painting of the Sung era—Binyon) (the chief products of Belgium and the Netherlands appeared to complement more than to duplicate one another—Valentine) Supplement implies an addition to something relatively complete but capable of improvement, enrichment, or enhancement by such an addition; thus, a supplement to a newspaper (often, a “book supplement” or “literary supplement”) is an additional section which enriches the character of the issue. Usually the term means exactly this (a year of foreign travel is an excellent supplement to a college education) (supplement a work with an index) (the detailed study of history should be supplemented by brilliant outlines—Russell) Sometimes, however, the term carries the implication of needless addition (the policy of apartheid is only a political supplement to an economic policy—Ross) Sometimes, on the other hand, it comes close to complement in suggesting essential differences or a need of combination if perfection is to be attained (physics, history, and religion have their different valuations of experience) . A complete philosophy would find room for all and would show how they supplement each other—Inge (the settle, which is the necessary supplement to a fire so open that nothing less than a strong breeze will carry up the smoke—Hardy)

Ana counterpart, correlate, *parallel

complement vb (see under COMPLEMENT n)

Ana complete, finish, *close

complementary, complemental *reciprocal, correlative, corresponding, convertible

Ana complementing, supplementing (see corresponding verbs under COMPLEMENT n): completing, finishing (see CLOSE vb): related, associated (see JOIN)

Con *different, diverse, divergent, disparate: *inconsonant, incompatible, incongruous, inconsistent

complete adj full, plenary, replete

Ana entire, *whole, total, all: *perfect, intact, whole, entire

Ant incomplete

complement vb finish, conclude, *close, end, terminate

Ana effect, fulfill, achieve, execute, accomplish, *perform, discharge

Con initiate, inaugurate, start, *begin, commence complex adj Complex, complicated, intricate, involved, knotty are comparable when they mean having parts or elements that are more or less confusingly interrelated. Something is complex which is made up of so many different interrelated or interacting parts or elements that it requires deep study or expert knowledge to deal with it (the complex mechanism of a watch) (our general failure to grasp the need of knowledge and thought in mastering the complex modern world—Russell) (the complex details of naval, ground, and air activities—Roosevelt) Something is complicated which is so complex that it is exceedingly difficult to understand, solve, explain, or deal with (a complicated problem in mathematics) (his descriptions of the most complicated organic structures are astonishingly lucid—Huxley)

Something is intricate which, because of the interwinding or interlacing of its parts, is perplexing or hard to follow out (the intricate tracery of an arabesque) (nature utilizes the sunshine, the air and the earth as raw materials for creating myriad perfumes, but so intricate are her processes . . . that man cannot follow precisely in her footsteps—Morris son) (the economic situation is so complex, so intricate in the interdependence of delicately balanced factors—Dewey) Something is involved in which the parts are or are thought of as so intertwined or interwoven or so turned upon themselves as to be separated or traced out only with difficulty; the term, therefore, in reference especially to financial affairs, implies extreme complication or disorder (the involved patterns of heraldic knots) (an involved sentence or argument) (her husband . . . at his death . . . had left his affairs dreadfully involved—Austen) (public issues are so large and so involved that it is only a few who can hope to have any adequate comprehension of them—Dickinson) Something is knotty which is not only complicated but is so full of perplexities, difficulties, or entanglements that understanding or solving seems almost impossible (that brings up at last the knotty question, what is enough?—Shaw) (the knotty problems of a complex society—Parrington) The same object may be seen from many different points of view; a sailor’s knot may be intricate and complicated, as well as involved; a network of railroad tracks may be complicated as well as intricate, though not involved.

Ana mixed, mingled, blended, merged, fused, amalgamated (see MIX): composite, compound (see corresponding nouns at MIXTURE)

Ant simple (see PURE)

complex n *system, scheme, network, organism, economy

Ant component —Con member, *part, portion, piece: constituent, *element, factor: *item, particular, detail

complexion temperament, temper, *disposition, character, personality, individuality

Ana humor (see WIT): *mood, humor, vein, temper: nature, kind, *type, sort compliance acquiescence, resignation (see under COM- PLIANT

*name obedientia, docility, amenableness, tractableness (see corresponding adjectives at OBEDIENT): submitting or submission, yielding, deferring or deference (see corresponding verbs at YIELD)

Ant frowardness —Con obstinacy, stubbornness (see corresponding adjectives at OBSTINATE) compliant, acquiescent, resigned, and their corresponding nouns compliance, acquiescence, resignation, are comparable when used in reference to a person, a mood, or a disposition that manifests acceptance (as of another's will or of something disagreeable or hard to endure). Compliant suggests a flexibility or lack of firmness in mood or temperament and frequently implies readiness to accept meekly and without question 〈educational methods that make children compliant〉〈a naturally compliant race〉 Acquiescent implies acceptance without protest or rebellion; it often also connotes a temperamentally lack of self-assertiveness 〈the cause of reform slowly went on gaining adherents—most of them . . . of the acquiescent rather than the militant type—Grandgent〉

Resigned usually presupposes a disposition or a temperament neither compliant nor acquiescent and implies deliberate but not necessarily happy acceptance and resolute forbearance from repining 〈he had become resigned to her perpetual lamentation—Meredith〉〈resignation to inevitable evils is the duty of us all—Austen〉

Ana *obedient, amenable, tractable, docile: submissive: *tame, subdued: accommodating, conforming, adapting or adaptable (see corresponding verbs at ADAPT)

Ant froward —Con *contrary, perverse, balky, restive, wayward: refractory, recalcitrant: *unruly, ungovernable, intractable, willful, headstrong

complicated intricate, involved, *complex, knotty

Ana difficult, arduous, *hard: abstruse: *recondite: perplexing, puzzling, mystifying (see PUZZLE vb)

Ant simple (see EASY) —Con *easy, facile, light compliment n Compliment, flattery, adulation all denote praise addressed directly to a person. A compliment is a courteous expression of commendation and may be either sincere or merely formal 〈in the noble dedication . . . to the Duchess of Ormond we have an example of Dryden's most polished and magnificent style in elaborate personal compliment—Gosse〉〈pay the craftsmen the due that they deserve〉

Flattery implies insincerity in compliment or a play upon self-love or vanity by means of artful or obsequious praise 〈when one is flagging, a little praise (if it can be had genuine and unadulterated by flattery) . . . is a cordial—Scott〉〈it is better to leave genuine praise unspoken than to expose yourself to the suspicion of flattery—Shaw〉

Adulation adds to flattery the implications of servility or fulsomeness 〈he fascinated others into believing him a superior being; feasted his self-esteem on their adulation until it swelled to monstrous proportions—Huxley〉

Ana *encomium, tribute, panegyric, eulogy: praise, lauding or laudation, extolling or extollation (see corresponding verbs at PRAISE)

Ant taunt —Con *affront, insult, indignity: depredation, disparagement (see corresponding verbs at DECRY): criticism, censure, reprehension, reprobation, denunciation (see corresponding verbs at CRITICIZE) compliment vb *commend, applaud, recommend

Ana *praise, laud, extol, eulogize, acclaim

Con *criticize, censure, reprehend, condemn, denounce: *decry, depreciate, disparage comply *obey, mind

Ana accede, consent, agree, acquiesce (see ASSENT): *yield, submit, defer, bow

Ant command, enjoin —Con *resist, withstand: thwart, balk, *frustrate component constituent, ingredient, *element, factor

Ana member, *part, detail, portion, piece: *item, particular

Ant composite: complex —Con *mixture, compound, blend, admixture, amalgam comport acquit, quit, demean, *behave, conduct, deport compose *calm, quiet, quieten, still, lull, soothe, settle, tranquillize

Ana *pacify, mollify, propitiate, conciliate: *moderate, temper

Ant discompose —Con disquiet, disturb, perturb, agitate, upset (see DISCOMPOSE)

composed collected, *cool, unruffled, imper turbable, unflappable, nonchalant

Ant discomposed: anxious —Con agitated, perturbed, upset, disquieted, flustered, flurried (see DISCOMPOSE): worried, concerned (see under CARE n)

composer *writer, author

Ana *maker, creator, author: *artist, artificer composite admixture, blend, compound, amalgam, *mixture

Ana combining or combination, uniting or union (see corresponding verbs at JOIN) composition theme, paper, article, *essay composure *equanimity, sangfroid, phlegm

Ana coolness, collectedness, imperturbability, nonchalance (see corresponding adjectives at COOL): self-possession, aplomb (see CONFIDENCE): placidity, serenity, calmness (see corresponding adjectives at CALM)

Ant discomposed, perturbation —Con agitation, disquieting or disquiet, flustered or fluster (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE): alarm, consternation, terror, *fear, panic: discomfiture, embarrassment (see corresponding verbs at EMBARRASS)

compound n *mixture, amalgam, composite, admixture, blend

Ana combining or combination, uniting or union (see corresponding verbs at JOIN): coalescence, fusing or fusion, merging or merger (see corresponding verbs at MIX)

Ant element

comprehend 1 *understand, appreciate

Ana seize, grasp (see TAKE): conceive, envisage, envision (see THINK)

2 *apprehend

Ana see those at COMPREHEND 1

3 embrace, involve, *include, imply, subsume

Ana *contain, hold: classify, pigeonhole (see ASSORT)

Ant element

comprehension apprehension (see under APPREHEND)

Ana understanding, appreciating or appreciation (see corresponding verbs at UNDERSTAND): *knowledge, science, learning, erudition

compress vb constrict, deflate, *contract, condense, shrink

Ana *compact, concentrate, consolidate: bind, *tie

Ant stretch: spread —Con *expand, dilate, distend, swell, inflate: disperse, *scatter, dissipate compulsion coercion, constraint, duress, *force, violence, restraint

Ana compelling or impulsion, driving or drive (see corresponding verbs at MOVE): pressure, *stress: necessity, exigency, *need

Con persuasion, inducement (see corresponding verbs at INDUCE): *choice, option, election, preference compunction 1 remorse, *penitence, repentance, contrition, attrition

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
compute

Ana regret, *sorrow: conscientiousness, scrupulosity (or scrupulosity (see corresponding adjectives at UPRIGHT) 2 sculpure, demur, *qualm
Ana *hesitation, hesitancy: reluctance, disinclination (see corresponding adjectives at INDECISINDEX) compute *calculate, reckon, estimate Ana *count, enumerate, number: sum, total, tot, figure, cast, *add comrade *associate, companion, crony Ana *friend, intimate, confidant: colleague, *partner, confederate, ally conation *will, volition
Ana *effort, exertion: *action, act: *choice, selection, option concatenate vb articulate, *integrate Ana link, connect, relate, unite, combine, *join, associate: fuse, blend, merge, coalesce (see MIX): organize, systematize (see ORDER vb)
Con break down, resolve, *analyze, dissect concatenated articulated, integrated (see under INTEGRATE vb)
Ana *cumulative, accumulative, additive: linked, connected, united, related (see JOIN): organized, systematized (see ORDER vb)
concatenation articulation, integration (see under INTEGRATE vb)
Ana sequence, *succession, chain, train conceal *hide, screen, secrete, bury, cache, ensconce
Ana cloak, mask, *disguise, disable, camouflage Ant reveal —Con disclose, discover, divulge, betray (see REVEAL): expose, exhibit, display, *show, parade, flaunt: manifest, evidence, *show, evince concede 1 grant, allow Ana admit, *acknowledge: waive, cede (see RELINQUISH)
Ant dispute —Con argue, debate, *discuss, agitate
2 *grant, vouchsafe, accord, award
Ana *yield, submit: surrender, resign, cede, *relinquish Ant deny (something to somebody) —Con refuse (see DECLINE) conceit 1 Conceit, egotism, egoism, self-esteem, self-love, amour propre mean an attitude of regarding oneself with favor. Conceit implies a conviction of superiority in one or more lines of achievement or an overweeningly favorable opinion of one's powers or accomplishments. It often connotes a failure to see oneself truly or an offensive, bumptious manner. *To have lost the godlike conceit that we may do what we will, and not to have acquired a homely zest for doing what we can, shows a . . . mind that . . . forswears compromise—Hardy) <conceit may puff a man up, but never prop him up—Ruskin) (it was part of the author's formidable conceit that he wrote only for the most learned of his professional colleagues—Galbraith) Egotism stresses the tendency to attract attention to and center interest on oneself, one's thoughts, and one's achievements. The word sometimes implies contempt for but more often an overriding of or disregard for others' interests or opinions. A man and a boy of ten are perhaps better company than a man and a boy of fifteen. There's so much less egotism between them—H. G. Wells) <egotism resides more in a kind of proud isolation, in a species of contempt for the opinions and aims of others—Benson Egoism emphasizes concentration on oneself, one's interests, and one's needs. It seldom suggests a tendency to display oneself or to attract attention to oneself, but it commonly implies self-interest, especially as opposed to altruism or interest in others, as the inner spring of one's acts or as the measure by which all things are judged <she preferred to be herself, with the egoism of women—Meredith) <the essence of a self-reliant and autonomous culture is an unshakable egoism. It must not only regard itself as the peer of any other culture; it must regard itself as the superior of any other—Mencken> Self-esteem implies a proper and balanced pride in oneself <ofttimes nothing profits more than self-esteem, grounded on just and right—Milton) <love, hope, and self-esteem, like clouds depart and come, for some uncertain moments lent—Shelley) <woman had the feeling of being a constructive factor in the economic process; thus she was provided with a sound basis for self-esteem—Horney> Self-love usually implies an abnormal regard for oneself that excludes or overshadows all other interests or affections. On the other hand it occasionally designates that degree of love for oneself or interest in one's well-being which is the proper and necessary complement of one's love for others <but 'tis not easy with a mind like ours . . . to bid the pleadings of self-love be still—Cowper) <self-love but serves the virtuous mind to wake, as the small pebble stirs the peaceful lake . . . friend, parent, neighbor, first it will embrace: his country next; and next all human race—Pope>) Amour propre comes closer to self-esteem, for it stresses pride, usually pardonable pride, in oneself. It is therefore used when the idea of sensitive-ness to others' opinions is indicated (the amour propre of the French people had been outraged—Holt & Chilton) <she flattered his amour propre by asking that from his generosity which she could have taken as a right—Read>)
Ana *pride, vanity, vainglory: arrogance, superciliousness, insolence (see corresponding adjectives at PROUD): complacency, smugness, priggishness (see corresponding adjectives at COMPLACENT)
Ant humility —Con humbleness, modesty, meekness, lowliness (see corresponding adjectives at HUMBLE): diffidence, shyness, bashfulness (see corresponding adjectives at SHY)
2 *caprice, freak, fancy, whim, whimsy, vagary, crotch conceive *think, imagine, fancy, realize, envisage, envision Ana *consider, excogitate: speculate, cogitate, *think: ponder, ruminate, meditate concentration application, *attention, study Ana fix, *set, settle, establish: muster, convocate, convene (see SUMMON)
2 *compact, consolidate, unify
Ant dissipate —Con disperse, disspel, *scatter: dilute, *thin, attenuate, extenuate, rarely: *distribute, divide, dispense, deal concern vb 1 center, focus, centralize
Ana fix, *set, settle, establish: muster, convocate, convene (see SUMMON)
2 *compact, consolidate, unify
Ant dissipate —Con disperse, dispel, *scatter: dilute, *thin, attenuate, extenuate, rarely: *distribute, divide, dispense, deal concerned application, *attention, study Ana intentness, raptness, engrossment, absorption (see corresponding adjectives at INTENT) Ant distraction
concept *idea, conception, notion, thought, impression Con percept, sense-datum, sensum, image, *sensation conception concept *idea, conception, notion, impression Ana *opinion, view, belief, conviction, persuasion, sentiment: theory, *hypothesis concern vb 1 concern, affect are sometimes confused. Concern implies the bearing or influence, affect, the direct operation or action, of one thing on another; thus, a piece of legislation may concern (that is, have to do with, have reference or relation to) certain vested interests without affecting them (that is, producing an effect upon them, changing them in any way).
Ana *bear, pertain, appertain, apply, relate, belong: influence, sway, *affect, touch concern n 1 *affair, business, matter, thing 2 solicitude, *care, anxiety, worry
Ana thoughtfulness, considerateness or consideration, attentiveness or attention (see corresponding adjectives at thoughtfu)

Ant unconcern —Con indifference, aloofness, incuriousness, uninterestedness, disinterestedness (see corresponding adjectives at indifferent)

concerned solicitous, careful, anxious, worried (see under care n)

Ana engrossed, absorbed, *intent: impressed, affected, influenced, touched (see affect vb): troubled, distressed (see trouble vb)

Ant unconcerned —Con *indifferent, incurious, aloof, detached, uninterested, disinterested: *negligent, neglectful, remiss concerning regarding, respecting, *about concert vb *negotiate, arrange

Ana *discuss, debate, argue: concur, cooperate, *unite, conjoin, combine concession *allowance

Ana favor, boon, *gift: indulgence, leniency, tolerance, forbearance (see under forbearing)

conciliate *pacify, appease, placate, propitiate, mollify

Ana arbitrate, adjudicate (see judge vb): mediate, intervene (see interpose): persuade, prevail (see induce): calm, tranquilize (see corresponding adjectives at calm): adjust, accommodate, reconcile, *adapt

Ant antagonize —Con *strange, alienate, disaffect: *provoke, excite, stimulate, pique; *incite, foment concise, terse, succinct, laconic, summary, pithy, compendious are comparable when meaning briefly stated or presented or given to or manifesting brevity in statement or expression. A person is concise who speaks or writes briefly: a thing is concise that is brief because all superfluities have been removed and all elaboration avoided (a concise report) (I hadn’t known Jane spoke so well. She has a clever, coherent way of making her points, and is concise in reply if questioned —Rose Macaulay) A thing is terse that is both concise and finished; the word often implies both pointedness and elegance (pure, terse, elegant Latin —Edwards) ( terse headlines are another part of the Tribune’s campaign to save newsprint — New Yorker) A person or thing is succinct that compresses or is marked by compression into the smallest possible space; the term suggests great compactness and the use of no more words than are necessary ( succinct directions) (a strict and succinct style is that where you can take away nothing without loss, and that loss to be manifest —Ben Jonson) (a book must have a title, and today it must have a succinct title; therefore this book appears as Richelieu —Bellow) A person or thing is laconic that is characterized by such succinctness as to seem curt, brusque, unperturbed, or mystifying (this laconic fool makes brevity ridiculous —Davenant) (I cannot exactly say with Caesar, “Veni, vidi, vici”: however, the most important part of his laconic account of success applies to my present situation —Byron) (laconic, these Indians —La Barre) A thing is summary that presents only the bare outlines or the main points without details (a summary account of the year’s events under a few main headings) The term often suggests almost rude curtness or extreme generality (the terms I use here are exceedingly summary. You may interpret the word salvation in any way you like —James) (her diary and her letters continued to be mainly the swift and summary record of crowded and delightful days —El lis) A thing is pithy that is not only terse or succinct but full of substance and meaning and therefore especially forcible or telling (pithy epigrams) (a brief, pithy, and, as it then appeared to him, unanswerable argument against the immortality of the human soul —Hawthorne) (his speech was blacksmith-sparked and pithy —Masefield) Something is compendious which is concise, summary, and weighted with matter; the word suggests the type of treatment that distinguishes the typical compendium (a compendious account of the Reformation) (a compendious style) (the compendious scholarly words which save so much trouble —T. E. Brown)

Ana condensed, compressed (see contract vb): compacted, concentrated (see compact vb): abridged, abbreviated, shortened (see shorten): *brief, short

Ant redundant —Con prolix, diffuse, verbose, *wordy conclude 1 *close, finish, terminate, end, complete

Ant open —Con commence, *begin, start, initiate, inaugurate

2 judge, gather, *infer, deduce

Ana reason, speculate (see think): *conjecture, surmise, guess concluding adj *last, final, terminal, latest, ultimate

Ana closing, terminating, ending, finishing, completing (see close vb)

Ant opening —Con beginning, commencing, starting, initiating or initial, inaugurating or inaugural (see corresponding verbs at begin)

conclusion judgment, deduction, inference (see under infer) conclusive, decisive, determinative, definitive are comparable when they mean having or manifesting qualities that bring something to a finish or end. Conclusive applies most frequently to an argument, evidence, or reasoning that is irreputable or so convincing that it compels certainty or certitude and puts an end to question or debate concerning a matter (there is one very convincing text which so strongly supports the tradition that it seems conclusive —Bello) (a very persuasive if not a conclusive argument —John Marshall) Decisive (see also decided) applies to something (as an act, event, influence, or argument) that puts an end to controversy or competition, to vacillation, to uncertainty, or to insecurity; it often comes close in meaning to critical (the decisive battle of the war had not yet been fought) (my words had been decisive. At least they put an end to the discussion —London) Determinative applies especially to matters (as decisions, judgments, operative causes, or influences) which put an end to uncertainty, wavering, and fluctuation and serve to give a fixed direction, goal, or character (as to a life, a course, or a movement) (the determinative influence in shaping his career) (an appeal covering similar merchandise is pending . . . which will be determinative of this issue —U.S. Treasury Decisions) Definitive, which is often opposed to tentative and, sometimes, to provisional, applies to whatever is put forth as final and as serving to make further questioning, dispute, uncertainty, or experiment needless or as serving to put an end to an unsettled state or condition where temporary measures have been necessary (the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States are definitive) (a definitive treaty) (a definitive edition of an author’s works is one that claims to have said the last word on all textual problems) (not until there is a settled and definitive world order can there be such a thing as a settled and definitive version of human history —Huxley)

Ana convincing, compelling, telling, cogent (see valid): *certain, inevitable, necessary

Ant inconclusive —Con *doubtful, dubious, questionable, problematic; *theoretical, speculative, academic; *plausible, credible, specious

concoct *contrive, devise, invent, frame

Ana *make, fabricate, fashion, manufacture: create, discover (see invent): conceive, envisage, envision, concomitant

adj coincident, concurrent, synchronous, simultaneous, contemporaneous, contemporary, coeval, coetaneous

Ana attending or attendant, accompanying (see corresponding verbs at ACCOMPANY): associated, connected, related, linked (see JOIN)

Con antecedent, *preceding, foregoing, previous, preceding; following, succeeding, ensuing (see FOLLOW)

concomitant n *accompaniment condict *harmony, consonance, accord

Ana agreement, concurrence, coincidence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): peacefulness or peace, tranquility, serenity, placidity, calmness (see corresponding adjectives at CALM): amity, comity, goodwill, *friendship

Ant discord—*Con strife, conflict, dissension, contention, difference, variance (see DISCORD)

condicat compact, pact, treaty, entente, convention, cartel, *contract, bargain

concurrence *junction, confluence concur 1 conjoin, *unite, combine, cooperate

Ana accord, harmonize, *agree, jibe

2 *agree, coincide

Ana consent, *assent, accede, acquiesce, agree

Ant contend—*Con fight, battle, war (see CONTEND): quarrel, wrangle (see under QUARREL n): dispute, debate, argue (see DISCUSS)

concurrent coincident, simultaneous, synchronous, concomitant, contemporaneous, *contemporary, coeval, coetaneous

conclusion shock, percussion, *impact, impingement, collision, clash, jar, jolt

Ana beating, pounding, buffeting (see BEAT vb): striking, smiting, swatting, slapping (see STRIKE vb)

condemn 1 denounce, censure, blame, reprobate, reprehend, *criticize

Ana *judge, adjudge: *decry, belittle, depreciate, disparage: *disapprove, deprecated

Con commend, applaud, compliment: *praise, laud, extol, acclaim, eulogize: condone, *excuse, pardon, forgive

2 *sentence, doom, damn, proscribe

Con *free, release, liberate, discharge: acquit, absolve, exonerate, *exculpate, vindicate: *rescue, redeem, save, deliver

condense *contract, shrink, compress, constrict, deflate

Ana abridge, abbreviate, *shorten, curtail: reduce, diminish, *decrease: *compact, concentrate, consolidate

Ant amplify (a speech, article) —*Con *expand, swell, distend, dilate, inflate

condescend *stoop, deign

Ana favor, accommodate, *oblige: vouchsafe, concede, *grant

Ant presume

condign *due, rightful

Ana just, equitable, *fair: merited, deserved (see corresponding nouns at DUE)

condition *sentence, doom, damn, proscribe

Ana prorogative, requisite, *requirement

2 *state, situation, mode, posture, status

Ant circumstance, *occurrence, event: occasion, antecedent, *cause: *phase, aspect, side, facet, angle

3 *disease, disorder, affection, ailment, malady, complaint, distemper, syndrome

condition vb *prepare, fit, qualify, ready

conditional *dependent, contingent, relative

Ana problematic, questionable (see DOUBLET): *provisional, tentative: subject, prone, *liable, open: *acci-condolence *sympathy, pity, commiseration, compassion, ruth, empathy
An* a consolation or consolation, solacing or solace, comforting (see corresponding verbs at COMFORT)
Con* felicitation, congratulation (see corresponding verbs at FELICITATE) condone *excuse, forgive, pardon, remit
An* a disregard, overlook, forget, ignore (see NEGLECT vb):
Con* an excuse, absole, acquit
Con* a punish, chastise, discipline, castigate, correct: condemn, denounce, censure, reprobrate, reprehend (see CRITICIZE*): disapprove, deprecate conduct n* behavior, deportment
An* an act, deed, *action: demeanor, mien, deportment, *bearing conduct vb 1 escort, convoy, *accompany, attend, chaperon
An* guide, lead: convey, transmit, carry 2 Conduct, manage, control, direct are comparable when they mean to use one's skill, authority, or other powers in order to lead, guide, command, or dominate persons or things. Conduct may imply the act of an agent who is both the leader and the person responsible for the acts and achievements of a group having a common end or goal (conduct an orchestra) (the minister conducts the prayer meetings) (Douglas conducted conferences and studies which led to a reorganization of the Stock Exchange—Current Biol.) but often the idea of leadership is lost or obscured and the stress is placed on a carrying on by all or by many of the participants (debate, conducted seriously with a view to ascertaining the truth, could be of great value—Russell) (it was judged desirable for him to see how affairs were conducted in the United States—Heiser) Manage usually implies the handling, manipulating, or maneuvering of a person or persons or a thing or things so as to bring about a response or submission to one's wishes or attempts to use, guide, lead, or command (he manages the sailboat admirably) (he cannot manage himself, so how can he be expected to manage others) (manage a refractory child) (the boy . . . could not yet manage his "r"s" and "th"s" alight—Kipling) (the first condition for an artist in glass is to know how to manage blue—Henry Adams) (now do you leave this affair in my hands. Only tell me which woman it is and I will manage the affair—Buck) But manage is also often used to imply the action of one who is in authority and charged with handling the details of a business or industry or of one of its departments or of any complex or intricate system or organization (he manages a theater) (manage the financial affairs of a company) (the delight she would take in managing a real house, not in any sense as its drudge, but magnificently as its mistress—Dell) (manage a chain of restaurants) Control stresses the idea of authoritative guidance and suggests a keeping within set or desired bounds (as of accuracy, efficiency, propriety, or discipline); it implies a regulating or a restraining often by getting or keeping the upper hand (no attempt was made . . . to control by public authority the production and distribution of wealth—Dickinson) (in order to make its highways most useful, the business traffic upon them must be controlled—Justce Holmes) (he started things moving and then was caught up in the repercussions of the movement. He mounted an act as if it were a horse, found himself unable to control it—Cloete) Sometimes, however, control implies little more than domination or the complete subjection of the dominated person or thing to one's will (he has learned to control himself) (the struggle between two strong-willed women to control one weak-willed man is the usual motive of the French drama in the nineteenth century—Henry Adams) (the pirates at one time practically controlled the coasts of Florida—Amer. Guide Series: Fla.) Direct (see also COMMAND, DIRECT 1, DIRECT 2) implies a regulation of the activities (as of a group of persons) or of the course or courses to be followed; it carries no suggestion of a desire or aim to dominate, but of an intent or purpose to keep the persons or things involved straight, well organized, or properly administered (the president and trustees direct the affairs of the institution) (the architect directed the building of the bank) (direct American taste and mold the genius of the young republic—Brooks) An supervise, oversee (see corresponding nouns at OVERSIGHT): govern, rule: engineer, pilot, steer, lead (see GUIDE vb): operate, work, function (see ACT vb) 3 demean, deport, behave, comport, acquit, quit conduit n channel, canal, duct, aqueduct confederacy, confederation* federation, coalition, fusion, *alliance, league confederate n 1 *partner, copartner, colleague, ally
An*, Ant, & Con see those at ALLY 2 Confederate, conspirator, accessory, abettor, accomplice. As used in law these words all convey the idea of complicity or common guilt in a wrongful act. Confederate is the general term applied to any person who in conjunction with others intentionally contributes to the commission of an unlawful act, whether the act be a crime or a civil injury. For civil joint wrongdoers the specific term is conspirator. An accessory is neither the chief actor (principal) in an offense nor a person present at its performance but one who accedes to or becomes involved in its guilt by some act (as of instigating, encouraging, aiding, or concealing) either previous or subsequent to the commission of the offense. In the case of certain classes of offenses (as treason or misdemeanors) the law ordinarily recognizes no distinction between an accessory and a principal. An abettor is one who is actually or constructively present at the commission of the deed and contributes to it by moral or physical force. An accomplice is one who with criminal intent participates in the commission of an offense whether as principal, abettor, or accessory. Legal usage does not recognize the distinction made by laymen between principal and accomplice.
confer 1 bestow, present, give, donate, afford An accord, award, vouchsafe, *grant
2 Confer, commune, consult, advise, parley, treat, negotiate are synonyms when they are used intransitively and bear the meaning to carry on a conversation or discussion especially in order to reach a decision or settlement. Confer implies comparison of views or opinions and, as a rule, equality in those participating in the discussion (the executives confer weekly about important business affairs) (the Dauphin and his train approacheth, to confer about some matter—Shak.) Commune, once a close synonym of confer, now is rare in this sense (we were communing on important matters—Walpole) In current use it usually implies spiritual intercourse (as in prayer or meditation or in a close union of minds and spirits) (there, sitting on the ground, the two [mother and child] would commune with each other by the hour—Hudson) Consult adds to confer the implication of seeking or taking counsel (the president will not make his reply to the ambassador until he has consulted with the cabinet) (the three powers would consult on how to ameliorate the internal political conflict—Vucinich) Advise often is not clearly distinguishable from consult except that it is more suitable for use regarding personal matters on which one seeks advice (before he makes his decision, he will

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
advise with his friends | Parley, treat, and negotiate | all imply the talk involving the discussion of terms | they are at hand, to parley or to fight—Shak. | ... | the government was forced to parley with the rebels—Harrington | Treat adds to parley the implication either of a common will | to adjust differences or of the need of diplomacy | the warring nations were ready to | treat for peace | the commander in chief | ... was to treat for an armistice—Pares | Negotiate implies compromise or bargaining | after the preliminaries were over, they proceeded to negotiate | Ana | converse, talk, *speak: *discuss, debate, argue

confess avow, *acknowledge, admit, own | Ana | *grant, concede, allow: disclose, divulge, *reveal, discover: *declare, proclaim, publish | Ant | renounce (one's beliefs, principles)

confessions *biography, life, memoir, autobiography | confidant intimate, *friend, acquaintance | confessions *biography, life, memoir, autobiography | Ana | comrade, crony, companion (see ASSOCIATE)

confide entrust, *commit, consign, relegate | Ana | bestow, present, *give: *grant, vouchsafe, accord, award

Ant | doubt: apprehension | Con | *distrust, mistrust: distrust, uneasiness, distrust, uneasiness, distrust, uneasiness, distrust, uneasiness, distrust, uneasiness, distrust, uneasiness

2 Confidence, self-confidence, assurance, self-assurance, self-possession, aplomb are comparable when denoting either a state of mind free from diffidence, misgivings, or embarrassment or the easy, cool, or collected bearing or behavior resulting from this attitude. Confidence stresses faith in oneself and in one's powers; it does not as a rule imply conceit nor preclude the suggestions of support from external agencies or influences or of modest recognition of that assistance (far better that the task should be entrusted to one who had a... sincere confidence in his power of dealing with the difficulties of the situation—Benson) | the confidence that springs from complete mastery of his subject—Grandgent

When self-sufficiency is connoted, self-confidence commonly replaces confidence (he has the self-confidence of one who has made money—Shaw) | in extreme youth one has to be secondhand... one lacks self-confidence—Rose Macaulay | Assurance is distinguishable from confidence only by its far stronger implication of certainty and its frequent suggestion of arrogance; thus, one meets a situation with confidence when one's belief in one's powers is strong, but with assurance when one never questions the outcome or the rightness of what one is saying or doing (there was indeed in the personality of that little old lady the tremendous force of accumulated decision—The inherited assurance of one whose prestige had never been questioned—Galsworthy) | no experience so far served to reveal the whole offensiveness of the man's assurance—Mary Austin

Self-assurance implies an assured self-confidence (the serene self-assurance... of the Abbey is unlike the baffling compound of modesty and self-assertiveness in a Nonconformist chapel—Sperry) | he wrote with that pleasing self-assurance which the civilized man occasionally shares with the savage—Repliet | Self-possession implies an ease or coolness arising from command over one's powers; it connotes, usually, controlled but not repressed emotions and actions, or speech free from flattery and appropriate to the situation (she was rather afraid of the self-possession of the Morels, father and all... It was a cool, clear atmosphere, where everyone was himself, and in harmony—D. H. Lawrence | had that carefully cultivated air of quiet self-possession, suggesting inner repose and serenity—Strauss

Aplomb describes the behavior or, less often, the bearing of one whose assurance or self-possession is conspicuously but not necessarily disagreeably evident (ignoring with admirable aplomb the fact that we are tardy—Lowes) | (it is native personality, and that alone, that endows a man to stand before presidents and generals... with aplomb—Whitman

Ana | *courage, resolution, mettle, spirit, tenacity | Ant | *diffidence—Con modesty, bashfulness, shyness (see corresponding adjectives at shy): misgiving, *apprehension

certain, assured, sanguine, sure, presumptuous are comparable as applied to a person or to his temperament, looks, manner, acts, or utterances with the meaning not inhibited by doubts, fears, or a sense of inferiority. Confidence may imply a strong belief in oneself or one's powers but it nearly always implies freedom from fear of failure, frustration, or attack and, as a corollary, certainty of success, fulfillment, or approval. As a rule, it is not a deprecative term, and often is complimentary (his voice was manly and confident) | the happy and joyous temper which characterizes a fresh and confident faith—Inge do you grapple the task that comes your way with a confident, easy mind?—Guest (a confident feeling of immense reserves in strength and endurance—T. E. Lawrence)

Assured suggests the absence of question in one's mind as to whether one is right or wrong, secure or insecure in one's position, or likely to fail or to succeed; it may also imply certainty of one's righteousness, security, success, but this is not one of its consistent or emphatic implications (talking with assured authority about places we have not visited, plays we have not seen—Lucas) | the assured gaze of one who is accustomed to homage—Bennett | she had the casual, assured way of speaking—Wolfe

Sanguine implies a greater measure of optimism than confident, sometimes suggesting this as a weakness rather than as a virtue (Mr. Britling's thoughts were quick and sanguine and his actions even more eager than his thoughts—H. G. Wells) | sanguine and very susceptible to flattery, Haydon was always ready to believe that the smallest stroke of good fortune must be the herald of complete success—Huxley | a surgeon's commission for the doctor, and a lieutenantcy for myself, were certainly counted upon in our sanguine expectations—Melville

Sure implies that one's freedom from doubts or fears is rather the consequence of certainty or of complete confidence in one's skill than of temperament or health. The word also often connotes a steady and disciplined mind, mental or emotional stability, or unfailing accuracy | a sure scholar | a sure craftsman | (as he is slow he is sure—Steele) | she tempted the young man into kissing her, and later lay in his arms for two hours, entirely sure of herself—Anderson

Sure is applicable also to any part of the body equipped to do a certain kind of work under the control of the brain, or to the work itself; thus, a sure hand works with unfaltering skill and accuracy; sure feet pick their way fearlessly over slippery rocks; a sure eye is necessary for a sure aim (the sure rhythm of their tiny moccasined feet—Cather) | Presumptuous implies an excess of confidence that is usually displayed boldly or insolently. The term is distinctly deprecative and suggests that the one so characterized is lacking in courtesy, judgment, and savoir faire | she enforced the doctor's orders in a way which seemed... loud and presumptuous—Wescott

Ana | courageous, intrepid, *brave, bold, dauntless, un daunted, valiant, fearless, unafraid: positive, certain

*trust, reliance, dependence, faith

*confidence

*confess

*confide

*confidence

*Ana

*conferences

*confident confirm 1 *ratify

*Aerrat apprehensive: diffident —Con *fearful, afraid: nervous, uneasy, jittery (see IMPATIENT): *shy, bashful, modest: dubious, *doubtful

confidential close, intimate, *familiar, chummy, thick

Ana *secret: trusty, tried, trustworthy (see RELIABLE) configuration conformation, figure, shape, *form

Ana *outline, contour, silhouette, profile, skyline confine vb circumscribe, *limit, restrict

Ana bind, *tie: *restrain, curb, inhibit, check: *hamper, trammel, fetter, shuffle, hog-tie, manacle: *imprison, incarcerate, immure, intern, jail

confine n bound, *limit, end, term

Ana verge, edge, *border: *circumference, periphery, compass

confirm 1 *ratify

Ana *assent, consent, acquiesce, accede, subscribe: validate (see CONFIRM 2): sanction, *approve, endorse

Con reject, refuse, *decline

2 Confirm, corroborate, substantiate, verify, authenticate, validate mean to attest to the truth, genuineness, accuracy, or validity of something. Confirm and corroborate are both used in reference to something doubtful or not yet proved. Confirm, however, usually implies the resolving of all doubts typically by an authoritative statement or by indisputable facts (his failure to pay his debts confirmed their suspicion that he was not to be trusted) (there is a rumor—which cannot of course be confirmed—Gorell) (it was expected extensively gratified, superabundantly confirmed—Henry James) Corroborate suggests particularly the strengthening of one statement or piece of evidence by another (the bystanders corroborated his story) (in general the material illustrates and corroborates what has already become known from other sources—Kennei) Substantiate presupposes something needing to be demonstrated or proved and implies the offering of evidence sufficient to sustain the contention or to create a strong presumption in its favor (they were able to substantiate their claim to the property when the long-lost deed was found) (Darwin spent nearly a lifetime in gathering evidence to substantiate his theory of the origin of species) (no proof had to be brought forward to substantiate the claims they made—Anderson) Verify has for its distinctive implication the established correspondence of the actual facts or details to those that are given in an account or statement. When what is in question is a suspicion, a fear, or a probability, it can be verified only in the result, event, or fulfillment (the prediction of a severe storm was verified in every detail) (it [faith] begins as a resolution to stand or fall by the noblest hypothesis . . . ; but it is verified progressively as we go on—Inge) In more general use verify implies a deliberate effort to establish the accuracy or truth of something usually by comparison (as with ascertainable facts, an original, or a series of control experiments) (verify all the citations in a book) (statements of accounts due are not sent out until they are verified) (the careful scientist verifies every step in an experiment) (he has explored most of Trans-Jordan, verified biblical accounts by his findings and excavations—Current Bis.) (a government survey party was verifying the neighboring landmarks—Parphey) Authenticate presupposes question of a thing's genuineness or validity and therefore implies a demonstration of either of these by someone (as an expert or the proper authority) in position to know or to determine (the collector refused to purchase the manuscript until it had been authenticated by experts) (the bank authenticated the signatures on the note) (an authenticated copy of the Declaration—Dumas Malone) Validate is more often used than authenticate when applied to legal papers requiring an official signature or seal before becoming valid (validate a passport) It is, however, also used when the soundness of a judgment, of a belief, or of a policy is in question (the expansion of demand which alone can validate the policy—Hobson) (he validated his conclusion when he demonstrated that his facts and his reasoning were correct in every detail)

Ana *support, uphold, back: vouch, attest, *certify

Ant deny: contradict —Con gainsay, traverse, impugn, contravene, negative (see DENY): confute, refute, controvert, *disprove confirmed *inveterate, chronic, deep-seated, deep-rooted

Ana established, fixed, set, settled (see SET vb): *hardened, indurated, callous

Confiscate appropriate, *arrogate, usurp, preempt

Ana seize, *take, grab: condemn, proscribe (see SENTENCE vb)

confagation *fire, holocaust

conflict n 1 combat, fight, *contest, affray, fray

Ana engagement, *battle, action: *encounter, skirmish, brush; controversy, dispute, *argument

2 strife, contention, dissension, difference, variance, *discord

Ana clash, collision, impingement, *impact: antagonism, hostility, *enmity: incompatibility, incongruousness, inconsistency, inconsonance, discordance (see corresponding adjectives at INCONSONANT)

Ant harmony —Con consonance, concord, accord (see HARMONY): comity, amity, *friendship: compatibility, congruity (see corresponding adjectives at CONSONANT)

conflict vb 1 *resist, withstand, contest, oppose, fight, combat, antagonize

2 *bump, clash, collide

Ana *contend, fight: *differ, vary, disagree

Ant accord —Con harmonize, *agree: *match, equal, touch, rival confusiveness *junction, concourse confuse 1 *adapt, adjust, accommodate, reconcile

Ana *harmonize, tune, attitude: *assent, accede, acquiesce: accept, *receive

Ant *agree, accord, harmonize, correspond, square, tally, jibe

Ant diverge —Con *differ, disagree conformation configuration, *form, shape, figure

Ana *structure, anatomy, framework, skeleton confound 1 dumbfound, nonplus, bewild, mystify, *puzzle, perplex, distract

Ana flabbergast, amaze, astound, astonish, *surprise: *structure, anatomy, framework, skeleton

Ant puzzle, perplex, distract confront vb *meet, face, encounter

Ana defy, beard, challenge, brave, dare (see FACE): oppose, withstand, *resist

Ant recoil from

Confuse 1 Confuse, muddle, addle, fuddle, befuddle mean to throw one out mentally so that one cannot think clearly or act intelligently. Confuse usually implies intense embarrassment or bewilderment (you confuse me, and how can I transact business if I am confused? Let us be clearheaded—Dickens) Muddle often suggests stupefaction (as by drink) and usually implies blundering, aimless, but not necessarily unsuccessful attempts to deal with ideas, situations, or tasks beyond one's powers of analysis or one's capacity (a subject so abstruse as to muddle the brains of all but exceptional students) (we have confusion 1 Confusion, disorder, chaos, disarray, jumble, clutter, snarl, muddle are comparable when they mean the state or a condition in which things are not in their right places or arranged in their right relations to each other, or an instance of such a state or condition. Confusion suggests such mixing or mingling as obliterates clear demarcation or distinction; disorder (see also DISEASE) implies lack or more frequent disturbance or breach of due order or arrangement; thus, a busy worker might leave his desk in confusion with objects mingled together and no arrangement apparent to an observer, but a burlag searching for it money would probably leave it in disorder with contents thrown about and out of their normal (though not necessarily orderly) arrangement. <The dark confusion of German history—Guérard> (mid the misery and confusion of an unjust war—Shelley) cowardice has succeeded to courage, disorder to discipline—Dickinson (our last chance to substitute order for disorder, government for anarchy—E. B. White) Chaos suggests an absolute or sometimes hopeless confusion suggestive of the ancient Greek conception of Chaos as the unorganized state of primordial matter before the creation of distinct and orderly forms; the term therefore more often implies innate lack of organization rather than disturbance of an existent order. <The Essays of Montaigne ... a confusion indeed, but a chaotic swirling with germs of evolution—J. R. Lowell> When chaos does imply a disturbing, it usually suggests a reducing to the utter confusion of primordial matter (back not merely to the dark ages but from cosmos to chaos—Baruch) Disarray, more even than disorder, implies disarrangement; it is therefore preferable when the breaking up of order or discipline is to be suggested. <The disarray into which society had been thrown by this deplorable affair made their presence in town more necessary than ever—Wharton> Jumble implies the mixing of incongruous things with resulting confusion (the house they lived in ... was a heterogeneous architectural jumble—Meredith) Clutter implies confusion and crowding and often suggests a disagreeable or more or less messy state. <Lord, what a mess this set is in! If there's one thing I hate above everything else ... it's clutter—Millay> Snarl, basically applied to a tangle of filaments (as hairs or threads), implies confusion and entanglement and suggests great difficulty in unraveling and ordering his affairs are in a snarl (held up by a traffic snarl) Muddle (compare muddle at CONFUSE 1) also implies confusion and entanglement, but in addition it suggests the influence of bungling and a more or less hopeless condition <we both grub on in a muddle—Dickens> (the world's been confused and poor, a thorough muddle; there's never been a real planned education for people—H. G. Wells) Ana derangement, disarrangement, disorganization, disturbance (see corresponding verbs at DISORDER): *din, babel, pandemonium, hullabaloo: animal, lawlessness Con ordering or order, systematization, organization (see corresponding verbs at ORDER): system, *method 2 *commotion, agitation, tumult, turmoil, turbulence, convulsion, upheaval Ana disorder, disorganization, disturbance (see corresponding verbs at DISORDER): perturbation, agitation, disquiet, upset (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE): discomfiture, embarrassment (see corresponding verbs at EMBARRASS) confute controvert, refute, *disprove, rebut congeal vb *coagulate, set, curdle, clot, jelly, jell Ana solidify, *harden: *compact, concentrate, consolodate: cool, chill, freeze (see corresponding adjectives at COLD) Con melt, *liquefy, deliquescence congenial *consonant, consistent, compatible, congruous, sympathetic Ana companionable, cooperative, *social: sociable, congenial, cordial, *gracious, affable: pleasing, *pleasant, agreeable Ant uncongenial: antipathetic (of persons): abhorrent (of tasks, duties) congenital inborn, *innate, hereditary, inherited, inbred Ana *inherent, constitutional, ingrained: *native Con acquired (see GET): accidental, adventitious conglomerate, conglomeration aggregate, agglomeration, *aggregate, aggregation Ana mass, heap, pile, stack (see under HEAP vb): accumulation, amassment, hoarding or hoard (see corresponding verbs at ACCUMULATE) congratulate *felicitate Con console, solace, *comfort: commiserate, condole with, pity (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS) congregate *gather, assemble, collect Ana swarm, *teem Ant disperse congregation assembly, assemblage, gathering, collection (see under GATHER vb) Ana audience, *following, public: *crowd, throng, press, crush congruous compatible, congenial, *consonant, sympathetic, consistent Ana harmonizing or harmonious, according or accordant, corresponding or correspondent, agreeing or agreeable (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): seemingly, proper (see DECOROUS): meet, appropriate, fitting, *fit Ant incongruous —Con incompatible, uncongenial, *inconsonant, discordant, discrepant conjectural hypothetical, suppositional, *supposed, suppositive, reputed, putative, purported Ana presumed, assumed, postulated (see PRESUPPOSE): *theoretical, speculative: alleged (see ADDUCE) Con proved, demonstrated (see PROVE) conjecture vb Conjecture, surmise, guess are comparable as verbs, meaning to draw an inference from slight evidence, and as nouns, denoting an inference based upon such evidence. Conjecture implies formation of an opinion or judgment upon what is recognized as insufficient evidence (Washington conjectured that at least 300 of the enemy were killed—Amer. Guide Series: Pa.) (mysteries which must explain themselves are not worth the loss of time which a conjecture about them takes up—Sterne) Surmise implies still slighter evidence, and exer-

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ana analogous words</th>
<th>Ant antonyms</th>
<th>Con contrasted words</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>See also explanatory notes facing page 1</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
conjecture 178

ince of the imagination or indulgence in suspicion (what thoughts he had beseems not me to say, though some surmise he went to fast and pray—Dryden) just how long the small multiplied impressions will take to break into surmise ... nobody can tell—Quiller-Couch we are not told what their business was but we may surmise it was the fur trade—G. F. Hudson) Guess implies a hitting upon or an attempting to hit upon either at random or from insufficient, uncertain, or ambiguous evidence you would never guess from meeting them that anyone would pay them for their ideas—Rose Macaulay (my daughter Lucie is ... such a mystery to me; I can make no guess at the state of her heart—Dickens)

* infer; gather, conclude, judge, deduce: speculate, reason, think: imagine, fancy, conceive (see THINK)

* ascertain, determine, learn, * discover: * prove, demonstrate, test, try conjecture n surmise, guess (see under CONJECTURE vb)

* theory, * hypothesis: * opinion, view, belief, conception (see under INFER)

Ant * fact

conjoin 1 * join, combine, unite, connect, link, associate, relate

2 combine, * unite, concur, cooperate conjugal * matrimonial, marital, connubial, nuptial, nymeval

Ant single connect * join, link, associate, relate, unite, conjoin, combine

* fasten, affix: articulate, concatenate, * integrate

Ant disconnect —Con sever, sunder, divorce, * separate, part, divide: * detach, disengage

connoisseur dilettante, * aesthete

* epicure, gourmet, bon vivant: * expert, adept

Con * amateur, tyro, dabbler connotation denotation (see under DENOTE)

* suggestion, implication, intimation (see corresponding verb at SUGGEST): evoking or evocation (see corresponding verb at EDUCE): import, signification, * meaning, significance, sense

connote * denote

* suggest, imply, intimate, hint: * express, voice, utter: import, signify, * mean, denote

connubial conjugal, * matrimonial, marital, nuptial, nymeval conquer, defeat, vanquish, overcome, surmount, subdue, subjugate, reduce, overthrow, rout, beat, lick all mean to get the better of or to bring into subjection whether by the exercise of force or of strategy. Conquer and defeat are perhaps the most general. Defeat usually signifies merely the fact of getting the better of or winning against and may imply no more than a temporary checking or frustrating the enemy were successfully defeated he defeated the older man in the tennis tournament (a distortion of the news picture which defeats the whole purpose to which our system is committed—Mott) Conquer, however, usually implies a large and significant action (as of a large force in war) or an action involving an all-inclusive effort and a more or less permanent result Caesar conquered most of Gaul (culture conquers more surely than the sword—A. M. Young) (science has conquered yellow fever—Amer. Guide Series: La.) (the 21-year-old Englishman who conquered the most dangerous river in the world—N. Y. Times Book Rev.) Vanquish suggests a significant action of a certain dignity usually in the defeat of a person rather than a thing and usually carrying the suggestion of complete defeat to overthrow the enemy solely by his own effort—hean (vanquish him solely by his own effort—Hean) (vanquish an opponent in a championship match at tennis) Overcome usually implies an opposing, more or less fixed obstacle to be dealt with and a high degree of effectiveness in dealing therewith whether by direct conflict or perhaps more often by indirect means (as evasion or substitution) (overcome the enemy's shore fortifications) (overcoming difficult legal obstacles—Americana Annual) (using the airlift to overcome the blockade—Collier's Yr. Bk.) (overcome a speech defect) Surmount, like overcome, implies an opposing, more or less fixed obstacle but carries the idea of surpassing or exceeding rather than overcoming in face-to-face conflict (the technical problems to be surmounted—K. F. Mather) (many petty faults which he is apparently unable to surmount—New Republic) (Simon ... has an inner force that is capable of surmounting conditions—Malcolm Cowley) Subdue, subjugate, and reduce all throw emphasis upon the condition of subjection resulting from defeat. Subdue signifies to bring under control by or as if by overpowering (in 1803 Commodore Edward Preble subdued the Barbary Coast pirates—Amer. Guide Series: Me.) (in their last century of conquest they almost succeeded in subduing the whole island—Blanshard) (all violence or recklessness of feeling has been finally subdued—Cather) (the wilderness had been almost completely subdued by cutting down the forests and building roads and cities) Subjugate signifies to bring into and keep in subjection, often as a slave is in subjection (authoritarian reaction which overwhelmed Italy and subjugated it for two centuries—R. A. Hall) (the heart and imagination subjugating the senses and understanding—Arnold) Reduce signifies surrender and submission but usually of a town or fortress under attack or siege the town and finally the province were reduced by the invaders (overthrow the established government by violence) (get swiftly through the field of fire and pierce the heart and imagination) (Wintringham) (a huge body of evidence ... completely overthrows the older view—Comfort) Rout always suggests a defeat so complete as to cause flight or the complete dispersion of the opposition (twelve hundred French and a large force of Indians were intercepted ... and utterly routed, only 200 of the French escaping capture or death—Bingham) (weaver with the assistance of two other gunboats routed a large force of Texas cavalry when they attacked Fort Butler—Bolander) Beat and lick are characteristic of a less formal style of expression or level of usage than the preceding verbs. Both come close to defeat in meaning but distinctively beat (see also BEAT 1) is rather neutral in this sense, except that occasionally it may imply the finality though not the scope of vanquish (the local ball team won the state championship by beating all comers) while lick usually implies a complete humbling or reduction to impotency and ineffectiveness of the one defeated (the fighter must be confirmed in the belief that he can lick anybody in the world—Liebling) (with the problem growing, the railroads have redoubled their efforts to lick it—Faulkner)

* frustrate, thwart, foil, circumvent, outwit, baffle, balk

Con surrender, submit, capitulate (see corresponding nouns at SURRENDER): * yield, succumb, bow, cave conqueror vanquisher, * victor, winner, champion conquest * victory, triumph

* subjugation, subdual, defeating or defeat, overthrowing or overthrow, routing or rout (see corresponding verbs

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
consecrate
hallow, dedicate, * devote consecutive,
successive, sequent, sequential, serial are conscious sensible, * aware, cognizant, alive, awake conscientious *assent, accede, acquiesce, agree, subscribe courses into one—regularity) <combination of two sequential changes which proceed with sequential sent a dozen
which follow one another without interruption or break.
But consecutive is somewhat more emphatic, stressing the immediacy of the succession, the regularity or fixedness of the order, and the close connection (as in time, space, or logic) of the units while successive is applicable to things that follow regardless of differences (as in duration, extent, or size) or of the length of the interval between the units; thus, one would speak of nine, ten, and eleven as consecutive numbers since they follow one another in immediate and regular order, but of flashing the successive numbers three, eleven, and nine on a screen since the order would then be neither immediate nor regular; one would speak of successive (not consecutive) leap years since the order though regular is not immediate and of successive strokes of a piston since, though immediate, it need not be regular (the most important cause . . . has run throughour our post-Conquest history like a consecutive thread—Coulton) <the product of the successive labors of innumerable men—Mumford> Consecutive is also applicable to a person or to thought that manifests logical sequence <consecutive thinking absolutely requires personal initiative—Elliot> Sequent and sequential apply to an arrangement or to things (sometimes a thing) following a sequence (as a causal, logical, or chronological sequence) or some settled order <the events of the narrative do not follow in the order> <the galleys have sent a dozen sequent messengers this very night at one another's heels—Shak> Changes which proceed with sequential regularity <combination of two sequential courses into one—Pressley> Serial implies that the thing or things so qualified form a series or will appear as a series; it therefore suggests likeness or uniformity in the units and, usually, a prearranged order especially in time or space <the fifth of the serial concerts> <from the publisher's point of view mystery stories make good serial narratives> <wrote her a serial account of his adventures—Krutch>
Ana following, succeeding, ensuing (see FOLLOW) con continual, * continual, incessant: coherent (see corresponding noun CONCERNENCE) logical Ant inconsecutive — Con, alternate, * intermittent, recurrent, periodic: desultory, * random, haphazard, hit-or-miss consensus vb * assent, accede, acquiesce, agree, subscribe Ana yield, submit, defer, relent: permit, allow, * let: * approve, sanction, concur (see AGREE)
Ant dissent — Con refuse, * decline: * disapprove, dep ecrate: * demur, balk, stick, stickle, strain

179 consider

antecedent — Con cause, determinant, reason, occasion: * origin, source, root 2 * importance, moment, weight, significance, import Ana necessity, * need, exigency: * worth, value, renown, honor, reputation, repute, * fame: eminence, illustriousness (see corresponding adjectives at FAMOUS) consequentially therefore, hence, then, accordingly, so conserve vb preserve, * save Ana protect, shield, safeguard, guard, * defend Ant waste, squander

1 Consider, study, contemplate, weigh, exegicate are comparable chiefly as transitive verbs meaning to fix the mind for a time on something in order to increase one's knowledge or understanding of it or to solve a problem involved in it. Consider often suggests little more than an applying of one's mind (a proposal so unreasonable that one does not need to consider it) but sometimes it also carries such a restricting implication as that of a definite point of view (in the last paragraphs we have considered science as a steadily advancing army of ascertained facts—Inge) or as that of thinking over (the publishers told him they would consider his book) <marriage is an action too freely practiced and too seldom adequately considered—Rose Macaulay> <in Florida consider the flamingo, its color passion but its neck a question—Warren> or as that of casting about in order to reach a suitable conclusion, opinion, or decision (when I came to consider his conduct, I realized that he was guilty of a confusion—T. S. Eliot) Study implies greater mental concentration than consider; usually it also suggests more care for the details or minutiae and more of an effort to comprehend fully or to learn all the possibilities, applications, variations, or relations (the president said that the bill must be studied before he reached a decision regarding the signing or vetoing of it)  <study a patient's reactions to a new treatment> <I like very naturally to think that I am being read; but the idea that I am being studied fills me, after the first outburst of laughter, with a deepening gloom—Huxley> <Bryce, who had studied the matter so thoroughly, was wont to insist it is the smallest democracies which today stand highest in the scale—Ellis> Contemplate (see also SEE) implies, like meditate (see under PONDER), the focusing of one's attention upon a thing and a close dwelling upon it; the term, however, does not always carry a clear implication of the purpose or result. When the object on which the mind rests is a plan, a project, or an imaginative conception, the word usually suggests its formulation in detail or its enjoyment as envisioned <Henchard bent and kissed her cheek. The moment and the act he had contemplated for weeks with a thrill of pleasure—Hardy> <the poet "has an idea," and in the course of contemplating it he draws up from his subconscious a string of associated ideas and images—Day Lewis> When the object contemplated lies outside the mind and has either material or immaterial existence, the term suggests an attempt to increase one's knowledge and comprehension of it through minute scrutiny and meditation <nature is beautiful only to the mind which is prepared to apprehend her beauty, to contemplate her for her own sake apart from the practical delight she brings—Alexander> <the opinion . . . widely held, that while science, by a deliberate abstraction, contemplates a world of facts without values, religion contemplates values apart from facts—Inge> Weigh (compare PONDER) implies evaluation of something and especially of one thing in respect to another and relevant thing or things; it suggests an attempt to get at

Ana analogous words
Ant antonyms
Con contrasted words
See also explanatory notes facing page 1
the truth by a balancing (as of counterclaims, contradictory data, or conflicting evidence) in teaching the young to think hard, any subject will answer. The problem is to get them to weigh evidence, draw accurate inferences . . . and form judgments—Eliot> (it is not enough to count, we must evaluate; observations are not to be numbered, they are to be weighed—Ellis) Excogitate is often replaced by think out and implies the application of the mind to something so that one may find the solution of the problems involved (excogitate a plan whereby poverty may be relieved without unduly burdening the taxpayers) (there may have been a time when the scientific inquirer sat still in his chair to excogitate science—Dewey) Ana * ponder, meditate, ruminate, muse: reflect, cogitate, * think, reason, speculate: inspect, examine, * scrutinize, scan Con ignore, * neglect, overlook, disregard, slight 2 Consider, regard, account, reckon, deem denote to hold the view or opinion that someone or something is in fact as described or designated. They are often used interchangeably, but there are shadings of meaning that allow them to be discriminated. Consider suggests a conclusion reached through reflection (he considers exercise a waste of energy) (it seems, however, best to consider as literature only those works in which the aesthetic function is dominant—René Wellek & Austin Warren) Regard may retain its primary implication of looking upon. Sometimes it suggests a judgment based on appearances (I was . . . plainly regarded as a possible purchaser—L. P. Smith) Often it implies a point of view, sometimes merely personal, sometimes partisan (the regulations of the state were not regarded by the Greeks—as they are apt to be by modern men—as so many vexatious, if necessary, restraints on individual liberty—Dickinson) (a church . . . which regarded all dissentients as rebels and traitors—Inge) Account and reckon to some extent retain their basic implications of counting or calculating, and in comparison with the other terms they stress such value-related factors as evaluation and differentiation (these trees were not reckoned of much value) (another field where the dominance of the method of sociology may be reckoned as assured—Cardozo) (I account the justice which is grounded on utility to be the . . . most sacred and binding part of all morality—J. S. Mill) Deem is somewhat literary. It is often used as the equivalent of consider, but it distinctly stresses judgment rather than reflection (behind the economic problem lies a psychological or ethical problem, that of getting persons to recognize truths which they deem it to their interest to avoid—Hobson) (the first time he made a helmet, he tested its capacity for resisting blows, and battered it out of shape; next time he did not test it, but deemed it to be a very good helmet—Russell) (investigation of all the facts which it deems relevant—Truman) Ana * think, conceive, imagine, fancy: judge, gather, * infer, conclude considerate * thoughtful, attentive Ana kindly. * kind: tender, sympathetic, warmhearted, compassionate: obliging, compliant, * amiable Ant inconsiderate —Con * forgetful, unmindful, oblivious: * careless, heedless, thoughtless considered * deliberate, premeditated, advised, designed, studied Ana intentional, * voluntary, willful: planned, projected, schemed (see corresponding verbs under PLAN n) Ant unconsidered —Con * precipitate, impetuous, headlong: impulsive, * spontaneous, instinctive consign * commit, entrust, confide, relegate Ana transfer, * move, remove, shift: assign, allocate, * allot: resign, surrender, yield (see relinquish) consistent congruous, * consonant, compatible, congenial, sympathetic Ana conforming or conformable, tallying, jibing, squaring (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): matching, equaling (see MATCH vb): identical, alike, similar, * like Ant inconsistent —Con discrepant, discordant, incongruous, * inconsonant, incompatible: contradictory, contrary, * opposite, antithetical consolidate * compact, unify, concentrate Ana integrate, articulate, concatenate: amalgamate, merge, fuse, blend (see MIX): condense, compress (see CONTRACT vb) * weave, knit Con melt, * liquefy: separate, sever, sunder, part: * distribute, dispense, divide: dissipate, * scatter, disperse consolidation, merger, amalgamation are comparable when denoting a union of two or more business corporations. Consolidation is often used as a general term; more precisely it implies a unification of the companies or corporations with dissolution of their separate corporate identities and transfer of their combined assets, franchises, and goodwill to a single new corporate unit, often under an entirely new name. Merger usually implies a unification in which one or more companies or corporations are absorbed by another and the assets (as property, franchises, and goodwill) of the former are transferred to or merged into the latter whose corporate status and name remain unchanged. In a merger additional shares of stock may be issued by the absorbing company or corporation to replace on an agreed basis the shares of the units absorbed or a monetary transaction may be involved. Amalgamation is often used interchangeably with consolidation in its general sense and applied to any form of consolidation or merger. It is sometimes restricted to a consolidation in which a new corporation with an entirely new name and corporate identity results or, in British use, to a union of the merger type. Ant dissolution consonance * harmony, concord, accord Ana agreement, conformity, correspondence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): concurrence, coincidence (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): compatibility, congruity (see corresponding adjectives at CONSONANT) Ant dissonance (in music): discord —Con inconsonance, discordance, incompatibility, incongruity, discrepancy (see corresponding adjectives at INCONSONANT) consonant adj Consonant, consistent, compatible, congruous, congenial, sympathetic are comparable when they mean being in agreement one with another or agreeable one to the other. Consonant implies agreement with a concurrent circumstance or situation, or conformity to an accepted standard, or harmony between two things that must come into contact or comparison with each other; the term suggests absence of discord (Fijians possessed a physical endurance consonant with their great stature—Heiser) (it is . . . more consonant with the Puritan temper to abolish a practice than to elevate it and clear away abuses—Quillier-Couch) (to pursue callings more consonant with Buddha's teaching—Binyon) (nature has no ends consonant with . . . the desires of man which would make it possible for him to accord himself to her—Krutch) Consistent suggests such agreement or harmony between things or between the details of the same thing as implies the absence or avoidance of contradiction <that their letters should be as kind as was consistent with proper maidenly pride—De Quincey> <did not think it to be consistent with his dignity to answer this salty—Trollope> <no one has yet imagined a consistent picture of what the electron and proton really are—Jeffs>

Conspicuous implies a capacity for existing or coming together without disagreement, discord, or disharmony; the term does not necessarily suggest positive agreement or harmony, but it does imply the absence of such conflict between two or more things as would make their association or combination impossible or incongruous <with all the eagerness compatible with . . . elegance, Sir Walter and his two ladies stepped forward to meet her—Austen> <to combine, in the highest measure in which they are compatible, the two elements of refinement and manliness—Froude> <many bad qualities are of course compatible with vitality—for example, those of a healthy tiger. And many of the best qualities are compatible with its absence—Russell>

Congruous implies more positive agreement or harmony than compatible does; ordinarily it implies the absence or avoidance of contradiction <that their introduction ideas are congruous to the subject—Cowper> <the negative form incongruous is currently far more common than congruous. Congenial is most often used of persons or things that are in such harmony with the taste of a person that they afford him pleasure or delight or satisfaction   <the reticence and understatement of the method made it specially congenial to the Chinese—Binyon> <[Hobbes's] theory of government is congenial to that type of person who is conservative from prudence but revolutionary in his dreams—T. S. Eliot> <the ideal of a Greek democracy was vastly congenial to his aristocratic temperament—Parrington>

Occasionally congenial is used of things in the sense of wholly and satisfyingly congruous <all such introduced ideas are congenial to the subject—Alexander> <statement, overstatement, and understatement in letters given a congenial context, every one of them is right—Montague> Sympathetic (see also tender), like congenial, usually suggests qualities in the person or thing so described that make him or it in agreement with another person's likings or tastes, but, in contrast with congenial, it suggests a more subtle appeal and often a less hearty acceptance <every author who is sympathetic to them—Bradley> <Arnold does still hold us. . . . To my generation . . . he was a more sympathetic prose writer than Carlyle or Ruskin—T. S. Eliot>

A noun conforming or conformable, harmonizing or harmonious, agreeing or agreeable, according or accordant (see corresponding verbs at AGREE): concurring or concurrent, coinciding or coincident (see corresponding verbs at AGREE)

Ant inconsonant: dissontant (in music) —Con discordant, discrepant, inconsistent, incompatible, incongruous (see inconsonant)

Conspicuous synopsis, epitome, abridgment, abstract, brief

Ana *compendium, syllabus, digest, survey, sketch, précis, aperçu

Conspicuous prominent, salient, signal, noticeable, remarkable, striking, arresting, outstanding

Ana patent, manifest, evident, distinct, obvious: eminent, celebrated, illustrious (see famous)

Ant inconspicuous —Con common, ordinary: obscure, vague: lowly, humble, modest: hidden, concealed (see hide): secret, covert

Conspiracy cabal, intrigue, machination, plot

Ana *sedition, treason: treacherousness or treachery, perfidiosity or perfidy, disloyalty, faithlessness, falsehood or falsity (see corresponding adjectives at faithless)

Conspirator confederate, accessory, accomplice, abettor

Constant adj 1 faithful, true, loyal, staunch, steadfast, resolute

Ana abiding, enduring, persisting or persistent, lasting (see corresponding verbs at continue): dependable, trustworthy, reliable, trusted, tried

Ant inconstant, fickle —Con unstable, capricious, mercurial (see inconstant): disloyal, faithless, false, perfidious

2 steady, uniform, even, equable

Ana established, settled, set, fixed (see set vb): invariable, immutable, unchangeable (see affirmative adjectives at changeable): regular, normal, typical, natural

Ant variable —Con changeable, changeable, mutable, protean: fluctuating, wavering (see swing)

3 continual, incessant, unremitting, continuous, perpetual, perennial

Ana persisting or persistent, persevering (see corresponding verbs at persevere): pertinacious, dogged, obstinate, stubborn: chronic, confirmed, inveterate

Ant fiful —Con intermittent, alternate: spasmodic (see fitful): occasional, sporadic, infrequent

Constitution panic, terror, alarm, fright, fear, dread, dismay, horror, trepidation

Ana confusion, muddlement or muddle (see corresponding verbs at confuse): bewildernent, distraction, perplexity (see corresponding verbs at puzzle): agitation, perturbation (see corresponding verbs at discompose)

Con sangfroid, composure, equanimity, phlegm: aplomb, self-possession (see confidence)

Constituent n component, element, ingredient, factor

Ana *part, portion, piece, detail, member: item, particular

Ant whole, aggregate —Con system, complex, organism, economy: composite, compound, blend, amalgam (see mixture)

Constitution physique, build, habit

Ana temperament, temper, personality (see disposition): organism, system: structure, framework, anatomy

Constitutional adj inherent, intrinsic, essential, ingrained

Ana congenital, innate, inborn: native: natural, normal (see regular): characteristic, individual, peculiar

Ant adventitious —Con accidental, adventitious, fortuitous: unnatural, irregular, anomalous: foreign, alien, extraneous, extrinsic

Constrain oblige, coerce, compel, force

Ana impel, drive, move, actuate: require, exact, demand

Constraint compulsion, coercion, duress, restraint, force, violence

Ana suppression, repression (see corresponding verbs at suppress): compelling or impulsion, driving or drive (see corresponding verbs at move): goad, spur, motive, spring: obligation, duty

Constrict compress, contract, shrink, condense, deflate

Ana *tie, bind: restrict, confine, circumscribe: limit: restrain, curb

Con *expand, dilate, distend, swell, inflate: enlarge:

Increase

Construct build, erect, frame, raise, rear

Ana analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
contact

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
or stained or in process of corruption or decay <tainted meat> <his unkindness may defeat my life, but never taint my love—Shak.> <the Claudioi, brilliant, unaccountable, tainted with some deep congenital madness—Buchan> <directed toward the purge from the public service rolls of those tainted with fascism—Taylor Cole> The less common attaint may be closely synonymous with taint <our writers have been attainted by the disease they must help to cure—Frank> More often it retains a hint of its primary meaning of to sentence to outlawry or death and then suggests a sullying (as of one's name) or a degrading especially as a result of actual or reputed misconduct <wherein a good name hath been wrongfully attainted—Milton> <no breath of calumny ever attainted the personal purity of Savonarola—Milman> Pollute implies that the process which begins with contamination is complete and manifest and that what was pure and clean has lost its clearness or fairness and has become muddy or filthy or poisoned <the nuisance set forth in the bill was one which would be of international importance—a visible change of a great river from a pure stream into a polluted and poisoned ditch—Justice Holmes> Pollute is especially apt when the reference is to something that ideally is clean, clear, or bright <pollute the minds of children by obscenities> <you . . . are polluted with your lusts—Shak.> Defile strongly implies befouling of something which ought to be kept clean and pure or held sacred. It usually suggests violation, profanation, or desecration and is highly opprobrious in its connotations <an evil bird that defiles his own nest—Latimer> (scenes such as these . . . tis his supreme delight to fill with riot, and defile with blood—Cowper> (cruelty is not only the worst accusation that can be brought against a man, defiling the whole character—Bello> Ana *debase, vitiate, corrupt, deprave: impair, spoil, *injure, harm contemn despise, disdain, scorn, scout contemp contemptuous contemporary, coeval, coetaneous, contemporary, concurrent contemporary adj Contemnaneous, contemporaneous, coeval, coetaneous, simultaneous, coincident, concomitant, concurrent* contemp contemporaneous (of which contemporary is applied somewhat more frequently to persons, contemporaneous to events), the time regarding which agreement is implied is determined only through the context <Shakespeare was contemporary with Cervantes, who died in the same month> <Shelley's last year was contemporaneous with Matthew Arnold's first> <the reign of Louis XIV was contemporaneous with the Commonwealth in England and also with the Restoration and the revolution of 1688>  <love of school is not contemporaneous with residence therein; it is an after product—Grant stay> Contemporary, but not contemporaneous, may imply reference to the present; it then means of the same time as that of the speaker or writer <we are not without contemporary talent—Wharton> <most contemporary novels Jane found very bad—Rose Macaulay> Coeval usually implies contemporaneity for a long time or at a remote time (everyone knows that the Roman Catholic religion is at least coeval with most of the governments where it prevails—Burke> <the theory requires that these coeval stars should be of nearly the same mass and brightness—Eddington> Coetaneous is a close synonym of coeval, but it may more specifically suggest contemporaneity of origin (the maturation of Veblen's thought led him to note two forces . . . whose coetaneous presence acted first in the promotion of reason and then in its derangement—Rosenberg> <ancient and coetaneous mountain ranges> Synchronous applies an exact correspondence between the usually brief periods of time involved; simultaneous more frequently denotes agreement in the same point or instant of time <two pendulums so adjusted that their movements are synchronous> <the two shots were simultaneous> <French speech has run a similar and almost synchronous course with English—Ellis> (it was proposed that there should be simultaneous insurrections in London . . . and at Newcastle—Macaulay> Coincident applies to events that are regarded as falling or happening at the same time; it ordinarily minimizes the notion of causal relation (the discovery of America was almost coincident with the capture of Granada) <the growth of the mine union movement was coincident with the growth of business and manufacturing—Hay> Concomitant carries so strong an implication of attendance or association that it often imparts a subordinate character; however, only when it implies coincidence or synchronouness is it truly a synonym of the other words <the concomitant circumstances of this event cannot be ignored> (as the beauty of the body always accompanies the health of it, so certainly is decency concomitant to virtue—Spectator> Concurrent adds to synchronous the implication of parallelism or agreement (as in length of existence or in quality or character) <concurrent terms in prison> <the concurrent operation of many machines> <great cultural achievements have not been inevitably, or even generally, concurrent with great material power—Bryson> Ana living, existing, subsisting (see BE> Con see those at Contemporary contempt despite, disdain, scorn (see under DESPISE vb) Ana abhorrence, detestation, loathing, hatred, hate (see under HATE vb): aversion, *antipathy: repugnance, disgust (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT) Ant respect —Con esteem, admiration, *regard: *reverence, awe, fear contemptible adj Contemptible, despicable, pitiable, sorry, scurrv, cheap, beggarly, shabby are comparable when they mean arousing or deserving scorn or disdain. Contemptible applies to whatever inspires such scorn or disdain for any reason however great or small <with that property he will never be a contemptible man—Austen> (the one disgraceful, unpardonable, and to all time contemptible action of my life was to allow myself to appeal to society for help and protection—Wilde> Despicable is a stronger term and frequently implies both keen and scornful, sometimes indignant, disapprobation and a sufficient cause for such a reaction <the immorality of James's Court was hardly more despicable than the imbecility of his government—J. R. Green> (even excellent science could and did often make despicable morality—Gaussen) Pitable (see also pitiful) implies the inspiring of pity mixed with contempt (a pitiful show of weakness) a pitiful attempt at reform (the resorting to epithets ... is a pitiful display of intellectual impotence—Cohen) Sorry is often used interchangeably with pitiful without marked loss, but it often distinctively implies contemptible or ridiculous inadequacy, wretchedness, or sordidness (sorry accommodations for the travelers) mounted ... upon a lean, sorry, jackass of a horse—Sterne Scruvy implies extreme despicability and meanness and the arousing of disgust as well as scornful contempt (a scruvy trick) (a scruvy impostor) (what difference between this Rome and ours ... between that scruvy dumbshow and this pageant sheet ... ? —Browning) Cheap often implies contemptibility that results from undue familiarity or accessibility (had I so lavished of my presence been ... so stale and cheap to vulgar company—Shak.) More often, however, cheap and beggarly imply contemptible pettiness, cheap by falling far below the standard of what is worthy, beggarly by its remoteness from what is adequate (cheap politics) (a cheap and natty life—Shaw) (about his shelves a beggarly account of empty boxes—Shak.) (the South in 1800 was a land of contrasts, of opposum and squalo ... fine mansions, beggarly taverns—Brooks) Shabby comes close to cheap and beggarly in implying contemptible pettiness and to scruvy in implying meanness and the arousing of disgust; distinctively it may stress the poverty, the paltriness, or the ungenerous nature of what is so characterized (the shabby way in which this country ... treated a poet so deeply devoted ... ) (since they had left with the Thames—Hewes) (the explorer’s mistress shows up with the bargain of physical strength or skill or the employment of weapons, or the desire or effort to overcome that something. Contend, the most general of these words, (see also RESIST) (a contest of wits) (what mighty contests rise from trivial things—Pope) (boundary controversies or other contests between states—Frankfurter) Conflict usually implies discord and warfare; it also suggests a closer engagement than contest (arms on armor clashing brayed ... dire was the noise of conflict—Milton) Conflict may be extended to denote a struggle (often spiritual or mental) between opposing or contradictory principles or forces (there is ... outward conflict of persons and groups, there is also a conflict of forces in the hero’s soul—Bradley) Combat is less commonly used in an extended sense (a combat against despair) It implies an encounter, especially an armed encounter, between two (individuals, parties, or forces), frequently for the determination of a dispute (let these have a day appointed them for a single combat in convenient place—Shak.) (these progressive leaders in both parties rose only after bitter struggle. They were the product of more than a lively contest. Sometimes the continguous were contests—White> Fight usually implies a hand-to-hand conflict and therefore emphasizes the individual participants. It ranges in dignity from a spiritual struggle (fight the good fight of faith—I Tim 6:12) to actual blows with fists or weapons (a prizefight). Affray commonly refers to a tumultuous disturbance (as a street fight between mobs or factions) that inspires terror. Legally an affray is a fight that disturbs the public peace; in literary use the word is often applied to an uneasym or acrimonious dispute (the suppressing of riots and affrays—Burke). (days of European crises, diplomatic affrays, hecatomitic accidents—Montague) Some bloody affray between scholars—Quiller-Couch. Fray is usually either a literary term, often with more dignified connotations than affray of which it is otherwise a very close synonym, or it is a poetical or hyperbolical substitute for battle, contest, or game ('Where are the vile beginners of this fray?" "O noble prince, I can discover all the unlucky manage of this fatal brawl)—Shak.

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

Ana *encounter, skirmish, brush: competition, emulation, rivalry (see corresponding verbs at RIVAL): battle, engagement, action; continuous, adjoining, butting, conterminous, adjacent, tangential, juxtaposed;

Ant nearest, next: close, near, nigh, nearby;

continence temperance, abstemiousness, sobriety, abstinence;

ana chasteness or chastity, purity (see corresponding adjectives at CHASTE): modernness or moderation, temperateness (see corresponding adjectives at MODERATE)*; ant continence—Con lecherousness, lustfulness, lewdness, lasciviousness, licentiousness, wantonness (see corresponding adjectives at LICENTIOUS): excessiveness, inordinateness (see corresponding adjectives at EXCESSIVE)

continent adj temperate, unimpassioned, sober;

Continency *emergency, exigency, pinch, juncture, pass, continuing, constant, incessant, unremitting, perpetual, perennial are comparable when meaning characterized by continued occurrence or recurrence over a relatively long period of time. Continual implies a close or unceasing succession or recurrence; continuous, an uninterrupted continuity or union (as of objects, events, or parts) (ensure a continuous supply of provisions at or parts) <ensure a continuous, unbroken connection, sequence, or extent of unbroken connection or substance; thus, continual industry implies that one is always at it; continuous labor, that the work itself is performed at a stretch (he that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast—Prov 15:15) <that dull and continuous burden of the sea heard inland before or after a great storm—J. R. Lowell> Continuous refers to both time and space, continual only to time; thus, one may speak of a continuous (not continual) expanse, but of a continual (or continuous) noise (humanism has been sporadic, but Christianity continual—T. S. Eliot)

Constant implies uniform, steady, or persistent occurrence or recurrence and usually connotes lack of change or variation (as in character, degree, or rate) <constant throbbing of the engine> <such a career meant constant toil—Buchan> <unfortunately, perhaps, experience does not grow at a constant, but at an accelerated, rate—Krutch> Incessant implies ceaseless or uninterrupted activity; unremitting, unceasing activity without slackening or halting; and perpetual (see also LASTING), unflagging repetition or lasting duration <incessant cough>  <perpetual colds> <sporadic outbursts are converted by the rationalization into purposive and unremitting activity—Huxley> <the perpetual fuel of controversy—Newman> <sins unatoned for and uncondoned bring purgatorial or perpetual torment after death—H. O. Taylor> <his incessant talking and shouting and bellowing of orders had been too much—London> Perennial carries the implication of existence over an indeterminate number of years; especially in older use this idea may be stressed and that of exhaustlessness often connoted the perennial beauty and heroism of the homeliest human nature—J. R. Lowell> <the perennial feeling of silent worship—Carlyle>

In current use, probably because of the application of the term to plants that die down to the roots and spring up again seasonally over a number of years, the implication of continual recurrence or constant renewal is perhaps more common <revolt is perennial—Lowes> <the perennial question of the relation between ought and is, of obligation and fact—Alexander>

Ana unceasing, endless, terminable, overlasting: eternal (see INFINITE): lasting, permanent, perdurable

Ant intermittent—Con recurrent, periodic, alternate (see INTERMITTENT): fitful, spasmodic;

continuance continuation, continuity;

ana endurance, persistence, lasting (see corresponding verbs at CONTINUE): perseverance, persistence (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE): remaining, staying, tarrying (see STAY)

continuation, continuance, continuity are often confused, especially when meaning the quality, the act, or the state of continuing or of being continued or an instance revealing such a quality, action, or state. Continuation suggests prolongation or resumption <the continuation of a line> <it's the continuation of a philosophic plan—Meredith> <the boy from a good classical school finds that his college Latin, Greek, and mathematics are the natural continuation of what he has already acquired—Grandgent> Continuance implies duration, perseverance, or stay <eleven years' continuance—Shak> <patient continuance in well doing—Rom 2:7> <our continuance in the city depends on our boy's health> <the idleness and vice of many years continuance—Austen> Continuity stresses uninterrupted or unbroken connection, sequence, or extent <the continuity of a series> <the continuity of attention> <the entire breach of continuity in your history made by the Revolution—Arnold> <space and time are thus vehicles of continuity by which the world's parts hang together—James> In the technical language of those engaged in making motion pictures or in radio and television broadcasting, continuity denotes material written in advance (as the scenario of a motion picture or the lines to be spoken in a radio broadcast) as provision for perfection in sequence and in timing of the performance. Ana extending or extension, prolonging or prolongation, protracting or protraction (see corresponding verbs at EXTEND) Ant cessation continue, last, endure, abide, persist are comparable when meaning to remain indefinitely in existence or in a given condition or course. Continue distinctively refers to the process and stresses its lack of an end rather than the duration of or the qualities involved in that process. Often, in addition, it suggests an unbroken course what a man is as an end perishes when he dies; what he produces as a means continues to the end of time—Russell the illusion continues that civilization can somehow be reconciled with atomic war—Fleming* Last especially in its derivative lasting (see LASTING) when unqualified usually stresses length of existence exceeding what is normal or expected the anger of slow, mild, loving people has a lasting quality—Deland* When qualified, last often loses this distinctive implication the work that Michelangelo did complete has lasted well—Barr* the refrigerator is guaranteed to last five years the fire lasted only three months. Endure adds to last the implication of resistance, especially to destructive forces or agencies for living things, who suffer pain, may not endure till time can bring them ease—Lowell* an art . . . which endured . . . until man changed his attitude toward the universe—Henry Adams* Abide and its derivative abiding imply stability or constancy, especially in opposition to mutability or impermanence though much is taken, much abides—Tenneyson* notwithstanding the countless features of London's living which were abiding, the changes made themselves felt—J. M. Brown* Persist adds to continue the implication of outlasting the appointed or normal time; it often also connotes recurrence, especially in sporadic instances an attitude towards life, which . . . persists, with many changes but no breaks, till the closing of the Athenian lecture rooms by Justinian—Inge* Ana remain, *stay: survive, *outline, outlast Con arrest, interrupt, check: *stop, cease, desist, quit, discontinue: suspend, stay, intermit, *defer, postpone continuity *continuation, continuance Ana *succession, sequence, chain, train, progression Con intermittence, recurrence, alternation, periodicity (see corresponding adjectives at INTERMITTENT) fitfulness (see corresponding adjective at FITFUL) continuous constant, perpetual, perennial, *continual, incessant, unremitting Ana connected, related, linked (see JOIN) successive, *consecutive, sequent, serial: *steady, constant, uniform Ant interrupted—Con *intermittent, recurrent, periodic, alternate comfort distort, warp, *deform Ana twist, bend, *curve contour *outline, silhouette, skyline, profile Ana configuration, shape, *form, conformation, figure contraband adj smuggled, bootleg contract n Contract, bargain, compact, pact, treaty, entente, convention, cartel, concordat designate an agreement reached after negotiation and ending in an exchange of promises between the parties concerned. Contract applies especially to a formal written agreement, often of a business nature, couched in such explicit terms as to be enforceable at law a regular contract to the above effect was drawn up by a lawyer, and signed and sealed in the presence of witnesses—Hawthorne Bargain applies especially to an agreement regarding purchase and sale this bargain provides for an exchange of so much Ameri- can wheat and cotton for so much British rubber and tin* A compact is an earnest or solemn exchange of promises, sometimes between state or political groups and often between persons. A compact may be unwritten or undocumented, the only assurance of its execution being the trust which each party places in the honor of the other. The word is used when a keen sense of the obligation which it imposes is assumed of each of the parties men and women . . . marry and promise loyalty to some one person. They can keep that compact and yet not shut themselves away from other men and other women—Rose Macaulay* let us make a compact. I shall do everything to please you, and you must promise to do everything to please me—Hudson* the National Assembly, inspired by Thiers's patriotism, adopted . . . the "Compact of Bordeaux," whereby it was agreed that political differences should be put aside in order to carry through expeditiously the work of reconstruction—Schario* Pact as used of an agreement between persons or groups is usually interchangeable with compact suicide pact, an agreement between two persons to commit suicide an unvoiced pact between us to read him with . . . skepticism—Horace Gregory Perhaps because of its popularity with newspaper headline writers which its brevity won for it, pact is used with increasing frequency in the (often unofficial) agreements between states the Pact of Corfu was a constitutional pact wherein leaders of the southern Slavs agreed to join in a unitary kingdom—the Nation*; in this use it is frequently interchanged with treaty, which is the generic term for an agreement between states made by negotiation or diplomacy the Lateran Pact or Treaty establishing Vatican City a nonaggression pact a trade pact a commercial treaty the president . . . shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties U. S. Constitution* treaty, and never pact, however, is the term for an agreement establishing peace after a period of armed hostility the Treaty of Versailles* An entente is a cordial or amicable agreement between nations in regard to their foreign affairs, usually involving a promise of joint military action in case of aggression against an adherent to the entente the Triple Entente between France, Great Britain, and Russia* An entente may be in writing set forth in a published document or it may be based simply on an exchange of promises between heads of government, or may be merely a state of mind of the peoples concerned it changes the entente into an alliance, and alliances . . . are not in accordance with our traditions—Grey* The word is also used of an understanding between groups (as of economic competitors) a broader peace treaty between leaders of industry, labor, and agriculture governing both price and wage adjustments. This kind of entente would seem to be central to the management of an economy such as ours L. G. Re- oldy* A convention is usually an agreement which is either less formal or more specific than a treaty; it may be an agreement between several states regulating matters affecting all of them (as postage, copyright, or the conduct of war) or an agreement between commanders of armies in respect to military operations the conventions for suspending hostilities agreed upon by me with Marshall Sout and Suchet—Wellington* A cartel (see also MONOPOLY) is a written agreement or convention between opposing nations, usually for the regulation of intercourse between them in view of or during war. Cartels provide for such matters as the treatment and exchange of prisoners, postal and telegraphic communication, the mode of reception of bearers of flags of truce, and the treatment of the wounded. Concordat usually applies to an agreement between the pope and a secular government for regulating the relations between church and state (the Concordat of Worms was an agreement with Germany (1122) regulating investiture of bishops and abbots) Less often the term is used for an agreement regulating ecclesiastical matters (the prospect of a union of the Protestant Episcopal church and the Presbyterian Church... which a concordat proposed a year ago—Springfield Republican)

contract vb 1 pledge, covenant, engage, *promise, plight 2 catch, *incur

Con *escape, avoid, evade, elude, shun, eschew: avert, ward, *prevent

3 Contract, shrink, condense, compress, constrict, deflate denote to decrease in bulk, volume, or content, but they vary widely in their suggestion as to how this decrease is effected and what consequences it has. Contract means to draw together the sides or the particles of, especially by a force from within, with a consequent reduction in compass or a compacting of the mass (the heart, by contracting and dilating rhythmically, keeps up the circulation of the blood) (molten iron contracts as it cools)

Shrink means to contract so as to fall short of an original length, bulk, or volume (shrink cloth) (his assets have shrunk) (apples often shrink before rotting) Condense denotes reduction, usually of something more or less homogeneous, to greater compactness without material loss of content (condense a gas to a liquid) (condense a speech into a few paragraphs) Compress, which also means to reduce to a compact state, differs from condense in that it connotes a pressing or squeezing of something formless or diffused into definite shape or into a small compass (compress air) (compress cotton into bales) (compress the events of a lifetime into a play taking three hours to present) Constrict means to make narrow or smaller in diameter either by contraction or by squeezing (the pores of certain bodies are constricted under the influence of cold) (the throat is constricted by too tight a collar) Deflate means to cause to shrink by exhausting of a gas, or something insubstantial (deflate a balloon) (deflate a wild rumor) (deflate an undeserved reputation)

Ana dwindle, diminish, *decrease, reduce

Ant expand —Con dilate, swell, distend, inflate (see EXPAND) contradict *deny, gainsay, negative, contravene, traverse, negate, nullify, *categorically deny, gainsay, negative, contravene, traverse, negate, *categorically

Con *confirm, verify, authenticate, substantiate contradictory n contrary, antithesis, opposite, antonym, antipode (see under OPPOSITE adj)

Ana *converse, reverse

contradictory adj contrary, antithetical, *opposite, antagonistic, antipodal, antipodean

Ana negating, nullifying (see NULLIFY): counter, counteractive, antagonistic, *adverse

Con agreeing, squaring, tallying, jibing (see AGREE) contraption gadget, *device, contrivance

Ana appliance, tool, instrument, *implement, utensil: *machine, mechanism, apparatus: expedient, makeshift (see RESOURCE) contrary n antithesis, opposite, contradictory, antonym, antipodean (see under OPPOSITE adj)

Ana *converse, reverse

contrary adj 1 antithetical, *opposite, contradictory, antagonistic, antipodal, antipodean

Ana divergent, disparate, *different: counter, antagonistic, *opposite, contrary, negating, nullifying (see NULLIFY)

2 Contrary, perverse, restive, balky, froward, wayward are comparable when they mean given to opposing or resisting wishes, commands, conditions, or circumstances. A person is contrary who by nature or disposition is so self-willed that he cannot or will not accept dictation or advice (she is the most contrary child I have ever seen) or who vigorously objects to any arrangements or plans made by others (they've been in your way all these years, and you've always complained of them, so don't be contrary, sir—Cather) A person or sometimes one of his acts, utterances, or desires is perverse when he or it as a result of temperament or disposition, or sometimes of physical constitution or moral character, runs counter to what is right, true, correct, or in keeping with human nature, especially as determined by the moral law, by custom, or by the laws of nature or the state. Like contrary, the term may suggest obstinate willfulness, but even then it usually carries a stronger suggestion of wrongheadedness (perverse dispersions of men of corrupt minds, and destitute of the truth—1 Tim 6:5) (they will not be resolute and firm, but perverse and obstinate—Burke) More often, however, the term suggests defiance of or disobedience to the law, especially the moral law or the established proprieties (Rimbaud was the rebel incarnate... he was perverse, untractable, adamant—until the very last hour—Henry Miller) (the poet's sense of responsibility to nothing but his own inner voice is perhaps his only way of preserving poetic integrity against the influences of a perverse generation—Day Lewis) Perverse sometimes suggests perversion or a sexual maladjustment that reveals itself in aberrant or abnormal desires or acts (the presence of a small minority of abnormal or perverse persons... affords no excuse for restricting the liberty of the many to the standard of the few—Ellis) (the last perverse whim which has taken possession of the debauche—Krutch) A person is restive (see also IMPATIENT) who obstinately refuses to obey the commands or the will of another; the term may imply inaction or a turning in another direction but more often it suggests intractability or unreasonableness (the common man... is increasingly restive under the state of "things as they are"—Veblen) (your colonies become suspicious, restive, and untractable—Burke) A person or, more often, an animal (as a horse) is balky when he or it stops short and refuses to go further in the desired direction or in the performance of something undertaken (the horse was never balky unless he was overloaded) (a child may become balky when he is confused by too many orders) (examination of witnesses, mostly reluctant if not downright balky—The Nation) A person (often a child) is froward who is so contrary or so prone to disobedience that he will not comply with the most reasonable of requests or suggestions; the term usually suggests a characteristic rather than an occasional or a justifiable reaction (all the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing froward or perverse in them—Prov 8:8) (I never entered on disobedience without having settled with myself that the fun of it would be worth the pains, scorned repentance, and endured correction with a philosophy which got me the reputation of being a hardened and froward child—Mary Austin) A person is wayward who is so perverse that he is incapable of government by those in authority over him and therefore goes his own way, however wanton or capricious or depraved it may be (can institution for wayward girls) (I have been wild and wayward, but you'll forgive me now—Tennyson) Things that are erratic or follow no clear law or principle are also describable as wayward (wayward fancies) (a wayward breeze) contrast refractory, recalcitrant, intractable, headstrong, *unruly: contumacious, rebellious, *insubordinate Ant good-natured, complaisant — Con *amiable, obliging: *compliant, acquiescent: amenable, tractable (see obedient) contrast n
*comparison, collation, parallel, antithesis Ana distinction, difference, divergence, discrepancy, *dissimilarity, unlikeliness: conflict, *discord contrast vb *compare, collate contravene *deny, contradict, traverse, impugn, negative Ana oppose, combat, *resist, fight: controvert, *disprove:
*trespass, encroach, infringe
Ant uphold (law, principle): allege (right, claim, privilege) contravention trespass, transgression, violation, infringement, *breach, infraction
Ana *offense, vice, sin, crime
Con compliance, acquiescence (see under compliant) contribution *donation, benefaction, alms Ana grant, subvention, subsidy, *appropriation: *gift, present, largess, boon contributory *auxiliary, ancillary, adjuvant, subservient, accessory
Ana concurring, cooperating (see unite): helping or helpful, aiding, assisting or assistant (see corresponding verbs at help) contrition attrition, repentance, *penitence, compunction, remorse
Ana *sorrow, grief, regret contrivance *device, gadget, contraption Ana invention, creation, discovery (see corresponding verbs at invent): *implement, tool, instrument, appliance, uten: *machine, mechanism, apparatus contrive, devise, invent, frame, concoct mean to find a way of making or doing something or of achieving an end by the exertion of one's mind. Contrive implies ingenuity or cleverness in planning, designing, or in scheming; it is a matter of indifference whether the end or object is good or bad, since the word stresses the manner of making, doing, or achieving rather than the character of the end (in every deed of mischief he had a heart to resolve, a head to contrive, and a hand to execute—Gibbon) (If we were perfectly satisfied with the present, we should cease to contrive, to labor, and to save with a view to the future—Macaulay) (She was forced to hurry. And she had risen that morning with plans perfectly contrived for the avoidance of hurry—Bennett) (Contrive a way of helping them without their knowing it) Deivse often comes very close to contrive, but in general it throws more stress upon mental effort than upon ingenuity; the term often implies the serious reflection and experimentation that precedes the bringing of something into being, especially something new or quite different (Deivse new and dainty dishes for a fastidious taste) (Deivse an engine of triple the power (Deivse a plan of campaign) (Deivse a new method of teaching a subject) (Grossly contriving their dear daughter's good—poor souls, and knew not what they did, but sat ignorant, Deivising their own daughter's death—Ten-nesson) (Leonardo was a child even ... in devising fantastic toys and contriving disconcerting tricks—Ellis) Invent, though often used interchangeably with devise, commonly retains from its primitive senses some notion of finding, but the term comes closer in its implication to originating, especially after reflection and reflection, but sometimes more quickly, as the result of a happy accident (the telescope was invented by Galileo in 1609) (Huxley claims to have invented the term astatic) (His pains to invent a complete, generally unworlly terminology of his own—Muller) (She was tired of inventing means for making the days and nights pleasant and carelessly variable for others—Van Vechten) Frame (see also build) implies the exact fitting of one thing to another (as in devising or inventing a story, a theory, or a rule); usually the term suggests an exact fitting (as of the words to the thought, or of the plot, character, and actions to the story as a whole, or of the expression to the spirit, or of the means to the end) (It will make me some time to frame a proper reply to this letter) (Statutes ... which must needs have been framed for some purpose or other—Kingsley) (Never, it may be safely asserted, was a plan of society framed so consistent, harmonious and beautiful in itself—Dickinson) Concoct especially suggests a bringing together of ingredients in new or unexpected combinations, arrangements, or order so as to enhance their effectiveness (as in writing, in imagining, or in fashioning (from the scraps of conversation he had overheard he concocted a plausible and amusing yarn) (The most horrible monsters and torments ... his fervid imagination could concoct out of his own bitter experiences and the manners and customs of his cruel times—Elliot)
Ana plan, scheme, project (see under plan n): manipulate, ply, swing (see handle) control vb direct, manage, *conduct Ana *govern, rule: regulate, *adjust: *guide, lead, pilot, ingineer, steer: *restrain, curb, check control n 1 command, dominion, authority, *power, jurisdiction, sway
Ana ascendancy, *supremacy: might, puissance, *power, force: management, direction (see corresponding verbs at conduct)
Con mutiny, revolt, *rebellion
2 *corrective, check, antidote
Ana regulation, *law, ordinance, rule, precept, statute, canon
controversy dispute, *argument
Ana contention, dissension (see discord): disputation, *argumentation, forensic, debate controvert vb rebut, refute, *disprove, confute Ana contravene, traverse, impugn, *deny, gainsay:
oppose, combat, fight (see resist): dispute, debate, agitate, argue, *discuss Ant assert — Con defend, justify, *maintain, vindicate contumacious rebellious, *insubordinate, mutinous, seditious, factious
Ana *contrary, perverse, froward: refractory, recalcitrant, intractable, un governable, *unruly, headstrong Ant obedient — Con *compliant, acquiescent, resigned:
amenable, tractable, docile (see obedient) contumelious *abusive, opprobrious, vituperative, scurlous Ana insolent, overbearing, arrogant, disdainful (see proud): humiliating, demeaning, debasing, abusing (see abase): flouting, scoffing, jeering, sneering (see scoff) Ant obsequious — Con complimenting or complimentary, commending or commendatory, applauding (see corresponding verbs at commend) contusion bruise, *wound, trauma, traumatism, lesion conundrum puzzle, riddle, enigma, problem, *mystery convalesce *improve, recover, recuperate, gain Ana progress, *advance: *strengthen, invigorate: *cure, heat, remedy
convenience convention, usage, *form convene convok, muster, *summon, summons, call, cite Ana *gather, congregate, assemble, collect Ant adjourn — Con disperse, *scatter, dismiss, *eject convent *cloister, nunnery, monastery, abbey, priory convention 1 entente, compact, pact, treaty, cartel, concordat, *contract, bargain
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
conversant, versed are comparable when they mean being familiar with something; they are seldom found in attributive use. Conversant (usually followed by with) implies a familiarity with a subject or a field of knowledge or with the writings on that subject or in that field that comes from long association, long experience, frequent intercourse, or many dealings with them (like Walpole... he was thoroughly conversant with questions of finance—Lecky) {The Pilgrim's Progress} is known not only to everyone who is conversant with the other writings of the period, but to thousands, the world around, who never heard of... [Bacon's] Essays—Lowes} {British officers... must be conversant with the ways of a dozen or more castes—Rand} Versed (followed by in) may be used interchangeably with conversant or it may be used distinctively to convey not only an implication of familiarity with something, but of skill, adeptness, or proficiency (as in an art or a profession); thus, a person versed in law need not be conversant with the laws of all European countries; a specialist in forensic medicine though versed in medicine may not be conversant with all the new methods of treating pneumonia. Because of this added implication, versed is often used in combination {well-versed} {ill-versed} {poorly versed} {I don't think him deeply versed in life—Byron} {political minutemen excited by the issues of the day, informed on these issues and at the same time fully versed in the problems of the community—Humphrey} {versed in all the arts of procrastination, indolence, and evasion—A. R. Williams} Ana intimate, *familiar: informed, acquainted (see informal): *learned, erudite: adept, *proficient, skilled, expert, skillful, masterly

Ant ignorant

conversation, converse communication, communication, *intercourse, commerce, traffic, dealings, correspondence Ana conversing, talking or talk, speaking or speech (see corresponding verbs at speak)

converse vb talk, *speak Ana *express, voice, broach, air, ventilate, vent, utter: *chat, chatter, gabble: *gossip, tattle: *discourse, descant, expatiate, dilate converse n see conversation

converse n Converse, obverse, reverse are frequently confused when they mean something which is the opposite of another thing. Converse applies chiefly to statements or to propositions; typically it implies an interchange or transposition of the important terms (the relation of wife to husband is called the converse of the relation of husband to wife—Russell) {the converse of "none but the brave deserves the fair" is "none but the fair deserves the brave"} Converse is not to be confused with contradictory (see under opposite adj); so long as the important terms are transposed, one proposition is the converse of another whether or not it is its opposite (the feeling that society needs protection against the individual rather than the converse—Brownley) Obverse and reverse specifically apply to the two faces of a coin or medal, obverse applying to the one containing the head or principal inscription, reverse to the other; in more general use, obverse refers to the more, reverse to the less, apparent or intentionally conspicuous side or face of something (looking at the fair tapestry of Life, with its royal and even sacred figures, he dwells not on the obverse alone, but here chiefly on the reverse; and indeed turns out the rough seams, tatters, and manifold thrums of that unsightly wrong side—Carlyle) Ana opposite, contrary, antithesis, contradictory (see under opposite adj)

conversion transformation, metamorphosis, transmutation, transmogrification, transfiguration (see under transform) convert vb *transform, metamorphose, transmute, transmogrify, transfigure Ana manufacture, fabricate, forge, *make: apply, utilize, employ, *use convert n Convert, proselyte are synonyms only in being applicable to the same person. Both denote a person who has embraced another creed, opinion, or doctrine than the one he has previously accepted or adhered to. Convert commonly implies a sincere and voluntary change of belief; it is, therefore, the designation preferred by the church, the party, or the school of thought of which such a person becomes a new member (the first American novelist to become a... convert to naturalism—Malcolm Cowley) Convert is also applied to a person who undergoes the religious experience called conversion or a turning from a life of sin or indifference to one guided by religious (specifically, Christian) principles and motives. Proselyte basically denotes a convert to another religion. It is still used in reference to a convert to Judaism who manifests his sincerity and fidelity by strict adherence to religious laws and practices. In general use, however, the term may suggest less a reverent or convicted and voluntary embracing than a yielding to the persuasions and urgings of another, be it an earnest missionary or zealot or someone with less praiseworthy motives (ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte—Mt 23:15) Proselyte is often the designation chosen by the members of a church for one formerly of their number who has been converted to another faith. The term is also applied to a person won over to a party, a cause, or a way of life in which he has formerly expressed disbelief or disinterest (you agree with the rest of the married world in a propensity to make proselytes—Shenstone)

Ana neophyte, *novice

Con apostate, *renegade, backsider, recreant, turncoat convertible reciprocal, corresponding, correlative, complementary, complementary Ana interchangeable, exchangeable (see corresponding verbs at exchange)

convey 1 transport, *carry, transmit, bear Ana *move, remove, shift, transfer: take, fetch, *bring 2 transfer, deed, alienate Ana consign, *commit, relegate

convict n *criminal, felon, malefactor, culprit, delinquent Ana miscreant, blackguard, scoundrel, *villain: offender, sinner (see corresponding nouns at offense)

Ana tenet, dogma, *doctrine: judgment, conclusion (see under infer) convincing compelling, telling, cogent, *valid, sound Ana proving, demonstrating (see prove): persuading or persuasive, inducing (see corresponding verbs at induce): forcible, forcible, potent, *powerful convivial companionable, *social, gregarious, hospitable, cooperative

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
convolve

_An_ sociable, genial, cordial, affable, *gracious: gay, _live: vivacious: merry, jocund, jolly, jovial: hilarious, mirthful (see corresponding nouns at _MIRTH_)

_Ant_ taciturn: said —_Con_ reserved, reticent, *silent: *serious, sober, grave, sedate, solemn, somber: asocial, _unsocial_ _converse_ convene, muster, *summon, summons, call, cite

_An_ assemble, *gather, congregate, collect: *invite, bid _Ant_ prorogue, dissolve —_Con_ disperse, *scatter _convoy_ vb escort, conduct, *accompany, attend, chaperon

_An_ protect, shield, guard, safeguard, *defend: *guide, lead, pilot convulse

_rock, shake, agitate
_An_ *discompose, disturb, disquiet, perturb _convulsion_ spasm, paroxysm, *fit, attack, access, accession

_2_ commotion, agitation, tumult, turmoil, turbulence, convulsion, upheaval
_An_ shaking, rocking (see _SHAKE_): quaking, trembling, tottering (see _SHAKE_): revolution, revolt, *rebellion: cataclysm, *disaster

_convulsive_ spasmodic, *fitful _Con_ *steady, uniform, even, equable, constant _cool_ 1 chilly, *cold, frigid, freezing, frosty, gelid, icy, glacial, arctic _Ant_ warm

_2_ Cool, composed, collected, unruffled, imperturbable, unflappable, nonchalant are comparable when applied to persons, their manners, appearance, temper, or acts, in the sense of showing or seeming to show freedom from agitation or excitement. Cool (see also _COLD_) basically implies such self-control that no hint is given of any emotion or motive that might warm, inflame, excite, or impassion. Specifically, it may further imply detachment or dispassionateness <modest youth, with _cool_ reflection crowned—_Pope_> my work, I am often told, is _cool_ and serene, entirely reasonable and free of passion—_Ellis_ or calm courage in assault or under attack <soldiers _cool_ under fire> or deliberateness or determination in gaining one's ends <the _coquette_ [Queen Elizabeth I] of the presence chamber became the _coolest_ and hardest of politicians at the council board—_J. R. Green_> or calm assurance or effrontery <the sudden change in her voice, from _cool_ imperial arrogance to terrified pleading—_Graves_> or actual or seeming indifference

_Composed_ implies the freedom from signs of agitation or excitement that is characteristic of a decorous sedate temperament or is the result of self-discipline (in her _composed_, schooled manner she despised and disliked both father and daughter exceedingly—_Conrad_> she was _composed_ without bravado, contrite without sanctimoniousness—_Reppier_> she was pale, and looked as if she hadn't slept, but _composed_, as she always is—_Rose Macaulay_)

_Collected_ stresses a concentration of the mind or spirit with resulting elimination of all distractions; otherwise it differs little from _composed_. <be _collected_: no remnant of _Shak._> Mrs. Hawthorne wore her _collected_ Sunday expression, and Tony knew that she did not allow them to talk of mundane affairs on these expeditions to and from church—_Archibald Marshall_> <the _Queen_ . . . remained, as she herself said, "very much _collected_; civil and high, and betrayed no agitation"—_Sitwell_>

_Unruffled_ implies coolness, placidity, and often, poise, in the midst of excitement or when there is cause for agitation (while others fretted and fumed, he remained _unruffled_) (her mind was _unruffled_ by the spiritual problems which were vexing the minds around her—_J. R. Lewis_> <an efficient organizer, smooth and _unruffled_—_Flora Lewis_>

_Imperturbable_ implies such coolness and assurance that one cannot be abashed, annoyed, disconcerted, alarmed, or otherwise disturbed; it usually implies a temperamental rather than an acquired frame of mind <Franklin's _imperturbable_ common sense—_Arnold_>

_Unflappable_ is a somewhat informal synonym of _imperturbable_, and like the latter stresses ability to resist what tends to disturb (from his encounters with lions and hippos . . . Mr. Hillaby emerges _unflappable_ and subtly triumphant—_Times Lit. Sup._> 〈an _unflappable_ debater, he never let a Soviet accusation go unanswered—_Newsweek_〉 〈an _unflappable_ management of affairs that might otherwise become bothersome—_Wicker_〉

_Nonchalant_ stresses an easy coolness of manner or casualness that suggests indifference or unconcern; it often connotes lightheartedness or offhandedness <_God_ . . . knows, if he is not as indifferent to mortals as the _nonchalant_ deities of Lucretius—_Byron_> <at the back [of the ambulance], haughty in white uniform, _nonchalant_ on a narrow seat, was _The Doctor_— _Sinclair Lewis_> 〈he walked in a _nonchalant_ fashion—_D. H. Lawrence_〉

_An_ *calm, tranquil, serene, placid: detached, aloof, *indifferent: *impassive, stoic, phlegmatic
_Ant_ ardent: agitated —_Con_ fervid, fervent, passionate, per fervid, *impassioned: perturbed, discomposed, disturbed, upset, flustered, flurried (see _DISCOMPOSE_)

_coop vb_ *enclose, enclose, fence, pen, corral, cage, wall
_An_ confine, circumscribe, *limit, restrict: *hinder, impede, obstruct, block, bar _cooperative_ conjoin, *unite, combine

_An_ coincide, *agree, concur

_Ant_ counteract —_Con_ *neutralize, negative: *nullify, negate, annul _cooperative_ *social, companionable, gregarious, convivial, hospitable _An_ sociable, cordial, genial, affable, *gracious: helping or helpful, aiding, assisting (see corresponding verbs at _HELP_)

_uncooperative_ —_Con_ *unsocial, asocial

_cop vb_ *steal, filch, pinch, snitch, swipe, lift, pilfer, purloin _An_ *associate, companion, comrade

_copious_ *plentiful, abundant, ample, plentiful
_An_ *profuse, lavish, exuberant, prodigal, luxuriant, lush _meager_ —_Con_ scanty, scant, scrimpy, sparse, exig uous, spare (see _MEAGER_): *thin, slight, tenuous, slim, slender _copy n_ *reproduction, duplicate, carbon, carbon copy, transcript, facsimile, replica _An_ counterpart, *parallel: imprint, print, *impression, impress: *image, effigy

_Ant_ original

_copy vb_ _Copy_ imitate, mimic, ape, mock mean to make something like an already existing thing in form, appearance, or obvious or salient characteristics. _Copy_ implies duplication of an original and thereby as close a resemblance as is possible under the circumstances ( _copy_ a letter) 〈_copy_ Da Vinci's "_Mona Lisa"〉 ( _copy_ the clothes of a fashionable designer) 〈_later_ examples of the Greek revival travestied the classic style rather than _imitate_ it—_Amer. Guide Series: Mass._〉

_Imitate_ stresses following something as a pattern or model; it does not therefore preclude variations from the original; thus, a writer who _imitates_ Keats may merely _echo_ enough of that poet's rhythms, images, or sentiments to produce poetry reminiscent of Keats. _Imitate_ may imply emulation (_she_ slept for hours in the daytime, _imitating_ the cats—_Stafford_>) 〈_imitated_ the example of his elders〉 or it may imply representation in another medium (art imitates nature) or the dramatist imitates life or the music imitates a storm or it may imply simulation (fabrics that imitate leather) or their pots seemed to imitate leather vessels—Childé

Mimic usually implies an exact copying, especially of a person's movements, gestures, voice, mannerisms, sometimes for the sake of making sport of them, but often with the intention of giving a lifelike representation of them (I am sure I repeat her words, though I cannot mimic either the voice or air with which they were spoken—Fielding) The word sometimes suggests a counterfeit clever enough to seem real; it therefore often implies the skill of an actor (I might mimic a passion that I do not feel, but I cannot mimic one that burns me like fire—Wilde) he learned to call wild turkeys with a piece of bone—through which he was able to mimic the notes of the bird—Brooks Ape also implies close copying sometimes seriously, sometimes in the spirit of mimicry (in dress and habits, ape the Arabs around them—G. W. Murray)

Often it suggests an attempt to emulate what one admires and then may connote such failure of the attempt as is likely to subject one to contempt (the lower classes aped the rigid decorum of their "betters" with laughable results—Harrison Smith)

Mock commonly adds to mimic the implication of a derisive intent. It often distinctively suggests immediate repetition of the words or actions mimicked (mocked his teacher) the babbling echo mocks the hounds—Shak.

her shadow still glowered about . . . as though . . . to mock behind her back—Keats (she contended every point, objected to every request, shirked her work, fought with her sisters, mocked her mother—Mead)

Ant originate

correct vb correct, rectify, emend, remedy, redress, amend, reform, revise mean to set or make right something which is wrong. One corrects something which is inaccurate, untrue, or imperfect or which contains errors, faults, or defects, when one by substitutions brings it into conformity with a standard or rule of accuracy, truth, or perfection (corrected his mistakes in pronunciation) (correct printers' proofs) (appellate jurisdiction . . . revise and correct the proceedings in a cause already instituted—John Marshall) Also, one corrects a person when one points out his errors or faults for disciplinary purposes (see also PUNISH) (she's been with me such a long time . . . She takes liberties. I've corrected her once or twice—Bennett) One thing corrects another thing when the former serves to counteract or neutralize the bad effect of the latter (alkaline tablets to correct stomach acidity) (his head corrects his heart in the choice of friends)

One rectifies something which requires straightening out or ordering because it deviates from the rule or standard of what is right, just, equitable, or properly controlled or directed (rectify a mistake in an account) (rectify an error of judgment) (reason is here no guide, but still a guard: 'tis hers to rectify, not overthrow, and treat this passion more as friend than foe—Pope) an incredible, disgraceful blunder, which should be rectified at the earliest possible moment—New Republic) One emends a thing when one frees it from error or defects; specifically an editor emends a corrupt text when he replaces doubtful readings with others that are judged to be closer to the original or to the intention of the author (the eighteenth-century editors of Shakespeare freely emended the texts of his plays)

One remedies something which is a source of evil or harm when one makes such corrections as will either bring about its eradication or restore what is harmed to a normal, sound, or prosperous condition (the crime can never be remedied, it can only be expiated—Day Lewis) remedy an abuse of a privilege (remedy the maladministration of relief) remedy a social evil) One redresses something which involves unfairness, injustice, or lack of proper balance; the word usually suggests reparation or compensation (there is no calamity which right words will not begin to redress—Emerson) (the wrongs that were to be righted, the grievances to be redressed, the abuses to be done away with—Muggeridge)

One amends something when one makes such corrections or changes in it that it is bettured or raised to a higher standard (amend his life) (the work once done he could not or would not amend it—Yeats) (laws that are not repealed are amended and amended—Shaw) One reforms something when one makes drastic changes in it in an attempt to eliminate imperfections; the word usually implies a new form or character (reform the church) (the fact is that the world does not care to be reformed . . . This makes the way of the improver hard—Crothers)

One revises something when one looks it over to discover where it requires correction or amendment and makes the necessary changes (revise a book before its second printing) (revise a state constitution) (there can be no doubt as to the jurisdiction of this court to revise the judgment of a Circuit Court—Taney)

One *improve, better, ameliorate: offset, *compensate, countervail, counterbalance, balances; *neutralize, counteract: *adjust, regulate, fix: *reprove, reprimand, admonish, chide

Con impair, spoil, mar, *injure, damage, harm, hurt: aggravate, *intensify

2 discipline, *punish, chastise, chasten, castigate

Con *indulge, pamper, spoil, humor, baby: condone, *excuse

Correct adj Correct, accurate, exact, precise, nice, right are comparable when meaning conforming to standard, fact, or truth. Correct, the most colorless term, implies scarcely more than freedom from fault or error, as judged by some (usually) conventional or acknowledged standard Corrective, control, check, antidote are corrective remedial, restorative, sanative, *curative adj

Ana vb): A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

taste—

Corrective which will neutralize or nullify these effects is necessary (there is no antidote against the opium of time—Browne) <the whole truth is the best antidote to falsehoods which are dangerous chiefly because they are half-truths—Coleridge> correlative n *parallel, analogue, counterpart correlative adj corresponding, complementary, complemental, *reciprocal, convertible correspond *agree, square, accord, tally, jibe, harmonize, conform

Costly adj —Con invalidate, negate, *nullify corrupt vb deprave, debauch, pervert, *debase

Corrective adjremedial, restorative, sanative, *curative

Corrective n Corrective, control, check, antidote are comparable in their extended senses where they denote something which serves to keep another thing in its desired place or condition. Corrective is applied to an agency or influence which keeps true a thing that is subject to aberration or deviation, or which rectifies or remedies a departure in it from truth, balance, soundness, or health <the sight of the product [of our work] put to its full uses. . . is the best corrective to our blunders—Suzallo>  Control is applied to a predetermined device, rule, agency, or procedure which sets a guard upon a person or thing so as to prevent his or its overpassing prescribed limits or so as to enable him or it to be discovered if in error <the Constitution of the United States sets up various controls for the three branches of government, such as the veto power of the president>  <the only government controls authorized by law are marketing quotas—New Republic> Check is applied to something which affords a means of securing or insuring accuracy, uniformity in quality, or the maintenance of a standard <duplicate records are kept by different clerks as a check upon each other> <by means of statewide examinations of pupils, the regents keep a check on the efficiency of the schools> <any arbitrary formula too rigidly adhered to may endanger good writing, but a good set of principles used as a check and an aid may be very helpful—Mott> Antidote, basically a remedy that counteracts a poison, implies that harm has been done and that a corrective which will neutralize or nullify these effects is necessary (there is no antidote against the opium of time—Browne) <the whole truth is the best antidote to falsehoods which are dangerous chiefly because they are half-truths—Coleridge> expensive applies chiefly to something which is high-priced, especially with the implication of a cost beyond the thing's value or the buyer's means. An expensive suit of clothes.

The father . . . was unable to give the child as expensive an education as he had desired—Froude. Both costly and expensive may also be applied to whatever involves great losses or is a drain upon one's resources, not only in money but in such matters as time, effort, or health—Stefansson. The rat is expensive to get rid of, but even more expensive to maintain—Heiser. Dear is opposed to cheap and commonly suggests a high, often an exorbitant, price or excessive cost; usually it implies a relation to other factors than the intrinsic worth of a thing. Butter is cheap when it is plentiful, and dear when it is scarce—Shaw. Relatively high wages of building labor bring dearer housing—Hobson. Their stout resistance was destitute of cost—Motley. Valuable when applied to things which have monetary value usually suggests the price they will bring in a sale or exchange (the most valuable dog in the kennel) (he stores away all his valuable effects). Dogs are ruined—Motley. Valuable when applied to things that are humanly but biologically useless—Krutch. Precious originally came closer in meaning to costly than to valuable, of which it is now a very close synonym. But it carries a heightened implication of worth and often applies to something or someone whose value can scarcely be computed in terms of money. Precious friends hid in death's dateless night—Shak. Happy is the man who findeth wisdom . . . she is more precious than rubies—Prov 3:13-15. To any one who has ever looked on the face of a dead child or parent the mere fact that precious is somewhat old-fashioned in general use, usually stresses a counting one by one (look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them—Gen 15:5). All told there were 27 public schools (Jones). Or it may suggest a lingering counting interspersed with meditation on each unit counted (thus he . . . like beads in the memories of his days—Powes). Tell, which is somewhat old-fashioned in general use, usually stresses a counting one by one (look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them—Gen 15:5). All told there were 27 public schools (Jones). Or it may suggest a lingering counting interspersed with meditation on each unit counted (thus he . . . like beads in the memories of his days—Powes). Tell is more common in current use in the collocation tell off which adds to the notion of counting that of setting apart the units counted (old off a detail and put them to opening a trench—Dobie). Enumerate implies a listing or mentioning of each one in a series not only that their total may be ascertained, but that they may be individually known or specified (enumerate the powers of the supreme court) (enumerate the species of plants found on an island) (enumerate the various dishes served at a dinner). Number is a somewhat literary equivalent of either count or enumerate: in some uses it carries an additional suggestion of allotment or limit (the days of every man are numbered) (the number the flowers of the field) (but even the very hairs of your head are all numbered—Lk 12:7) (his hosts of blind and unresisting dupes the despot numbers—Shelley).
counteractive

counteractive
- counter, adverse, antagonistic

Ana
- countervailing, countervailingness, countering, counteringness, counteringnessness, counteringnessnessness
- countervailing, countervailingness, countervailingnessness, countervailingnessnessness
- countering, counteringness, counteringnessness, counteringnessnessness
- counteringnessnessnessness

counterbalance
- vb offset, *compensate, countervail, balance, counterpoise

Ana
- stabilize, steady, poise: correct (sense 1)

Con
- *overturn, upset, capsize

counterfeit
- vb feign, sham, simulate, pretend, *assume, counterfeit:
  - offset, *compensate, countervail, vb

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
courageous brave, unafraid, fearless, intrepid, valiant courteous polite, civil, courtly, gallant, chivalrous

vb invite, woo, bid, solicit courtesy, amenity, attention, gallantry are comparable to quit a comrade on the road, and to quite now—it is too much for a woman of any courage, implies firmness of mind and spirit... of a thousand little ceremonious, formal, conventional, ceremonial:

considerateness or consideration, attentiveness, thoughtfulness (see correspending adjectives at THOUGHTFUL) Ant discourtesy—Con churlishness, boorishness (see corresponding adjectives under BOOR): rudeness, impolite-ness, ungraciousness, incivility (see corresponding adjectives at RUDE) courteous

polite, civil, courtly, gallant, chivalrous

Anna analogous words | Ant antonyms | Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
the emphasis is upon one of these implications, the basic idea being obscured (their advance was covered by squadrons of airplanes) (he covered his anxiety by joining in the laugh) (there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed—Mt 10:26) In still another sense cover implies an extending so far as to include, embrace, or comprise something (left scarcely enough money to cover his debts) (this point has already been covered in the argument) (Chaucer’s life covered the last sixty years of the fourteenth century) (I think your statement covers the matter completely) (a situation not covered by the rules) Overspread usually implies a covering by something that diffuses itself or spreads over a surface; the word carries no clear implication of concealing, sheltering, or protecting, but it does suggest the activity of something that flows, expands, or scatters until the entire surface is covered (clouds overspread the sky) (the ground is overspread with weeds) (a blush overspread his face) (the rising waters quickly overspread the valley) Envelop suggests the presence or addition of something that surrounds and therefore covers or nearly covers a person or thing on all sides; it is often used of a gas or a liquid or of clothing (enveloped in a fur overcoat) (enveloped in water up to his chin) (till the sweet . . . incense-laden atmosphere . . . enveloped her like a warm and healing garment—Rose Macaulay) Envelop lends itself to extension and often connotes something impalpable or intangible as the enveloping element (words stir our feelings . . . through their enveloping atmosphere of associations—Lowes) (we are surely justified in . . . calling the spiritual presence which envelops us the spirit of Christ—Inge) Wrap comes very close to envelop in meaning, but it suggests something that folds or winds about so as to enclose rather than surround; the difference, although sometimes slight, is usually important to idiomatic usage; thus, one wraps (better than envelops) oneself in blankets or one wraps up (not envelops) several bars of soap (a closely wrapped female figure approached—Hardy) In extended use wrap usually suggests something that enfolds, enshrouds, or entangles (all the household were wrapped in slumber) (the place was suddenly wrapped in darkness when the lights gave out) (he found the roots of the poplar wrapped closely about the drainpipe) (the mother was wrapped up in the welfare of her son) Shroud and veil, in their extended senses, imply a covering that protects, conceals, or disguises, but shroud usually emphasizes the density and veil the comparative tenuity of the surrounding element (the queen, shrouded in deepest mystery—Carlyle) (its proceedings were impenetrably shrouded from the public eye—Prescott) (the hills, shrouded in grey mist—Buchan) (their [women’s] beauty, softened by the lawn that thinly veiled it—Radcliffe) (her eyes were quick under a faint dimness that merely veiled their vigor—Roberts)

An *hide, conceal, screen: *close, shut: *enclose, enshroud, shelter, protect, *defend Ant bare —Con expose, exhibit, display (see show): evince, demonstrate, manifest, *show

Cover *shelter, retreat, refuge, asylum, sanctuary
Ant hiding or hiding place, concealment, screening or screen (see corresponding verbs at HIDE): safety, security (see corresponding adjectives at SAFE)

Covert *secret, clandestine, surreptitious, underground, underhanded, stealthy, furtive
Ant hidden, concealed, screened (see HIDE): disguised, dissembled, masked, cloaked, camouflaged (see DISGUISE vb)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
con  197  cedence

Con  animate, *quicken, vivify, enliven: cringe, cower, *fawn cower  cringe, truckle, *fawn, toady  Ana  shrink, quail, flinch, blench, wince, *recoil cow  bull, buldozo, browbeat, *intimidate: *strut, swagger, bristle coxcomb  *top, dandy, beau, exquisite, dude, buck coy  bashful, *shy, diffident, modest  Ant  pert —Con  *sassy, arch: brazen, brash, impudent (see SHAMELESS) cozen  *cheat, defraud, swindle, overreach  Coxcomb  fop, dandy, beau, exquisite, dude, buck  Ant  pert  —Con  *sassy, arch: brazen, brash, impudent (see SHAMELESS) cower  bashful, *shy, diffident, modest  Ant  pert —Con  *sassy, arch: brazen, brash, impudent (see SHAMELESS)

— Contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
ing or acceptance, admitting or admission, receiving or reception (see corresponding verbs at RECEIVE): assenting or assent, acquiescing or acquiescence (see corresponding verbs at ASSENT): reliance, confidence, *trust, faith
Con doubt, *uncertainty, skepticism: mistrust, *distrust: disbelief, *unbelief, incredulity credible, testimonial, recommendation, character, reference mean something presented by one person to another in proof that he is what or who he claims to be. Credential (usually in the plural credentials) implies material evidence and especially a letter or document indicating that a person (occasionally a thing) is what he claims (or it seems) to be; the term was originally and is still used of the letter from the sovereign or head of one state to another carried by a new envoy or ambassador and formally presented to the sovereign or head of the state in which he is to serve (an envoy extraordinary from Savoy . . . presented his credentials in the Banqueting House—Macaulay) The term is often used of a letter presented to show competency or to attest identity, or of statements made or acts performed that serve as proof of what is to follow (if we turn out to be poor managers of our own affairs, we will have inferior credentials to present abroad—W. O. Douglas) The putative Proofs of the right business, who may or may not die of old age before his credentials as an archfiend are established—Lardner} these statements I put forward by way of credentials for a comparison which I purpose to make—Grandgent} Testimonial usually implies a written statement from a person competent to judge the character, qualifications, or merits of another and to testify to his fitness to hold or to fill an office or a position (six testimonials were received affirming his fitness for the ministry) (selected what seemed to me from the testimonials to be the two best men—Crofts) However, the word is often used as an equivalent of recommendation, a term which implies that the statement comes from one (as a former employer or teacher) who commends a person to the notice of a possible employer (armed with several recommendations he started out to seek a job) Character, which in this sense is used chiefly in Great Britain, is the designation given to a statement furnished by a former employer about the qualities and habits of a person as manifested while in his employ (then came . . . the coachman, the grooms, the sweeper. For each and all of these I had to write characters—John Lang) Although reference may imply no more than the giving of the name of a person from whom information regarding another may be obtained (as by a possible employer or landlord) it increasingly tends to be employed as a synonym of recommendation or character (Mrs. Blank told the woman she would let her know when she had examined her references) (she had lost all her references and was afraid to apply for a job)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
intolerable slowness {tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow, creeps in this petty pace from day to day—Shak.} {that sad, disappointing, disillusioning . . .
war crawled through that bitter winter of defeat—Rose Macaulay} Both often imply a slow movement of a person, especially into another's favor or into a given status or position, but creep usually suggests stealthy and insinuating methods {creep along the hedge-bottoms, an' thou'll be a bishop yet—Tennyson} {even in later and more enlightened times, the study of literature has crept its way into official Cambridge—Quiller-Couch} and crawl, procedure by awkwardness, servility, cringing, or groveling {Cranmer . . . hath crawled into the favor of the king—Shak.} {pomp-fed king . . . art thou not the veriest slave that e'er crawled on the loathing earth?
—Shelley} Both also imply a sensation such as might be produced by lice, fleas, or other human or animal parasites, but creep suggests a shivering, nervous reaction, and crawl, an intense feeling of distress and discomfort {something in their countenances that made my flesh creep with a horror I cannot express—Swift} {his flesh was crawling with the need of alcohol—Doherty} crevasse *crack, cleft, fissure, crevice, cranny, chink Ana chasm, *gulf: *break, split, rent, rift crevise *crack, cleft, fissure, crevasse, cranny, chink Ana *break, split, rift, rent: *break, gap crime *offense, vice, sin, scandal
Ana *fault, failing, frailty, foible, vice Con virtue, *excellence, merit, perfection criminal n Criminal, felon, convict, malefactor, culprit, delinquent mean, in common, one guilty of a transgression or an offense especially against the law. Criminal designates one who commits some serious violation of the law, of public trust, or of common decency, as vicious unwarranted attack, embezzlement, or murder. Felon, the legal term for one popularly called a criminal, designates one guilty of a felony, which used with legal exactness covers all lawbreaking punishable by death or prolonged confine ment (as in a state penitentiary) and is distinguished from a misdemeanor {men were transported with the worst felons for poaching a few hares or pheasants—Shaw} {the casual or accidental felon who is impelled into a misdeed by force of circumstances—Banany} Convict basically denotes one convicted of a crime or felony but has come more generally to signify any person serving a long prison term {the stranger turned out to be a convict who had escaped on the way to prison} {a riot among convicts in a state penitentiary} Malefactor signifies one who has committed an evil deed or serious offense but suggests little or no relation to courts or punishment {most of our malefactors, from statesmen to thieves
—T. S. Eliot} {a malefactor robbing small stores at night and setting fire to them} Culprit often carries the weakened sense of one guilty of a crime {after the series of crimes, the police tried for several weeks to find the culprit} but more generally either suggests a trivial fault or offense, especially of a child {the culprits were two boys, one about twelve years old, the other about ten—Green Peyton} or applies to a person or thing that causes some undesirable condition or situation {another group of supposed culprits who are being blamed for the present inflationary situation—Waage} {the culprit holding up world peace and understanding—Lyddgate} Delinquent applies to an offender against duty or the law especially in a degree not constituting crime; in its present semilegal use, in application to juvenile offenders against civil or moral law, it usually implies a habitual tendency to commit certain offenses and contrasts with criminal in implying a sociological or psychological rather than judicial attitude toward the offender {whether a customer who has missed a payment is . . . a habitual delinquent —Phelps} {we label as delinquents those who do not conform to the legal and moral codes of society—Federal Probation} Ana offender, sinner (see corresponding nouns at OFFENSE): transgressor, trespasser, violator (see corresponding nouns at BREACH) cringe cower, truckle, *fawn, toady Ana *recoil, quail, flinch, bлеч, wince: bow, cave, *yield, submit, defer cripple vb 1 *maim, mutilate, batter, mangle Ana *injure, hurt
2 disable, *weaken, enfeeble, debilitate, undermine, sap Ana damage, harm, impair, mar (see INJURE) crisis exigency, emergency, pinch, *juncture, pass, contingency, strait
crisp brittle, short, friable, *fragile, frangible
Con *limp, flabby, flaccid
2 clear-cut, cutting, *incisive, trenchant, biting Ana terse, pithy, laconic, succinct, *concise: piquing, stimulating, provoking or provocative (see corresponding verbs at PROVOKE) criterion *standard, touchstone, yardstick, gauge Ana test, proof, trial, demonstration (see under PROVE):
*principle, axiom, law: judging or judgment, adjudgment, adjudication (see corresponding verbs at JUDGE) critical 1 Critical, hypercritical, faultfinding, captious, caviling, carping, censorious are comparable when they mean exhibiting the spirit of one who detects and points out faults or defects. Critical, when applied to persons who judge and to their judgments, is the one of these terms that may imply an effort to see a thing clearly, truly, and impartially so that not only the good in it may be distinguished from the bad and the perfect from the imperfect, but also that it as a whole may be fairly judged or valued (a tête-à-tête with a man of similar tastes, who is just and yet sympatetic, critical yet appreciative . . . is a high intellectual pleasure—Benson) Critical may also imply a keen awareness of faults or imperfections with often the suggestion of loss of fairness in judgment {the attitude of Euripides towards the popular religion is . . . clearly and frankly critical—Dickinson} the vast audience
. . . was wont to be exceedingly critical. Bungling work drew down upon the headsmen the execrations of the mob, and not infrequently placed his own life in danger—Replier) When this loss of fairness is to be implied or when the judge's undue awareness of defects and over-emphasis of them is to be suggested, writers often prefer hypercritical to critical {the audience that night was,
as the actors soon knew, hypercritical} he was . . .
exceedingly difficult to please, not . . . because he was hypercritical and exacting, but because he was indifferent —Bennett} {constant hypercritical belittling of the efforts of others—Rosen & Kiene} Faultfinding sometimes takes the place of critical, sometimes of hyper-critical, but usually suggests less background, less experience, or less fastidiousness than either; it is therefore frequently used when an unreasonably exacting or a querulous temperament is also to be suggested {a continually faultfinding reviewer of books} {a fault-finding parent} {Mrs. Stebbins's book would be better throughout for a more critical (I don't mean faultfinding) account of her authors' works—Bentley} Captious implies a readiness, usually a temperamental readiness, to detect trivial faults or to take exceptions on slight grounds, because one is either unduly exacting or perversely hard to please {is it captious to say that, when Manoah's locks are called “white as down,” whiteness is no characteristic of down?—Landor <after reading a work of such amplitude it seems captious to protest that the motivating forces . . . are inadequately analyzed—Bruin

Caviling usually implies a captious disposition but stresses the habit or act of raising picayune or petty objections <cavilling legislators who delay the passage of a bill> <the most caviling mind must applaud their devoted sense of duty—Willis> <those cavilling critics who snipe from the musty back rooms of libraries—Ramsdell> Carping, far more than hypercritical or faultfinding, implies ill-natured or perverse picking of flaws and often in addition suggests undue emphasis upon them as blameworthy <and to that end we wished your lordship here, to avoid the carpings censure of the world—Shak> <that carpings spirit in which she had been wont to judge of his actions—Trollope> Censorious implies a disposition or a tendency to be both severely critical and condemnatory of what one criticizes <such is the mode of these censorious days, the art is lost of knowing how to praise—Sheffield>

Ana judicious (see WISE): *judicial: fastidious, finicky, particular, *nice, fussy, squeamish: discriminating, discerning, penetrating (see corresponding nouns at DISCERNMENT): understanding, comprehending, appreciating (see UNDERSTAND)

Ant uncritical —Con *superficial, shallow, cursory 2 crucial, *acute

Ana decisive, determinative, *conclusive: momentous, consequential, weighty, significant, important (see corresponding nouns at IMPORTANCE)

criticism, critique, review, blurb, puff are comparable when meaning a discourse (as an essay or report) presenting one’s conclusions after examining a work of art and especially of literature. None of these terms has a clearly established and narrowly delimited meaning, but, in general, each can be distinguished from the others with reference to its leading implications and its place in usage. Criticism is of all these terms the most nearly neutral and the least capable of carrying derogatory connotations. The proper aim and the content of a criticism have never been definitely fixed and are still subjects of controversy, but the term usually implies an author who is expected to have expert knowledge in his field, a clear definition of his standards of judgment, and an intent to evaluate the work under consideration <read every criticism of a new play the following its first performance> Criticism is more often applied to the art, craft, or collective writings of such writers or speakers than to the individual article <this feeling, that contemporary judgments are apt to turn out a little ludicrous . . . has converted much criticism of late from judgment has converted much of a new play the day following its first performance> <we are trying to get away from the word “management” because it has been lambasted, ridiculed, criticized, and blasted—Personnel Jour> Reprehend in present-day English takes a person as an object far less often than a thing, a quality, or an action. In such use it not only explicitly suggests the approach of a critic and his disapproval but implies a more or less severe rebuke <reprehend not the imperfection of others—Washington> <the thing to be reprehended is the confusing misuse of the word “verse”—Grandgent> Blame fundamentally implies speaking in dispraise of a person or thing rather than in his or its favor; in general it also suggests the mental approach of a critic or detector of faults <some judge of authors' names, not works, and then blame them—Arnold> <blamed them—Arnold> <Aristotle, while blaming the man who is unduly passionate, blames equally the man who is insensitive—Dickinson> Blame sometimes loses much of its opposition to praise and then may strongly convey an imputation or accusation of wrongdoing <one cannot blame starving children who steal food> or of guilt <there is no one to blame but yourself> Again blame may connote ultimate responsibility rather than actual guiltiness and then can take a thing as well as a person for its object <the German family, whose patriarchical authoritarianism has been blamed . . . for militarism and despotism—Padover> <the drugfiend will get drugs somewhere: if he finds his poppy and mandragora in poetry, you must blame his habit, not the poet—Day Lewis> Since blame no longer invariably implies the simple reverse of commendation, censure is usually preferred to blame as the antonym of praise. This word carries a stronger suggestion of authority or competence in the critic or judge than does The text contains a critique and includes antonyms and synonyms for various words. The critique touches on themes of judgment, criticism, and evaluation. It also includes usage notes for words like "condemn," "censure," and "censure." The text discusses the implications of public declaration and the nature of public opinion. It also touches on the subjective nature of criticism and the role of the critic in shaping public perception. The text includes a variety of word pairs, such as "criticism, review, blurb, puff," "comrade, companion, associate," and "knit, weave, plait, braid, tat." The critique also includes a discussion of the verb "crochet." crucial

\(\text{a mob . . . which pulled down all our prisons—Burke}\)

Especially in the United States and in Australia mob may be employed as an intensive of crowd, sometimes implying more disorganization (it is the tendency of a large crowd to become a mob) but at other times denoting merely an extremely large crowd (you could scarcely call it a crowd; it was a mob). In theatrical use mob applies to any large and manifestly agitated crowd of persons that has to be directed as a unit to achieve the proper or the intended effects. Rout applies to an especially disorderly or tumultuous mob. A hirpling rout scraped together from the drags of the people—Milton (the busy rout of the street could be seen. He loved the changing panorama of the street—Dreiser). Horde usually applies to an assemblage or to a multitude massed together. It is sometimes preferred to crowd, throng, mob, or rout when a contemptuous term is desired, especially one that suggests the rude, rough, or savage character of the individuals who constitute the multitude or mass (hordes of small boys roving through the streets) (the horde of excursionists took possession of the beach) (hordes of sturdy rogues and vagrants—Fussell). Ana *multitude, army, host, legion

crucial critical, *acute

Ana threatening, menacing (see THREATEN): trying, afflicting, torturing or torturous (see corresponding verbs at AFFLICT)

crude rude, rough, uncouth, raw, callow, green

Ana primitive, primeval (see PRIMARY): *immature, unmastered: *coarse, vulgar, gross

Ant consummated, finished — Con cultivated, refined, cultured (see corresponding nouns at CULTURE): *mature, mellow, adult: matured, developed, ripened (see MATURE

crueal inhuman, fell, *fierce, truculent, ferocious, barbarous, savage

Ana atrocious, *outrageous, monstrous, heinous: *brutal, bestial: merciless, relentless, implacable, *grim

Ant pitiful — Con compassionate, *tender, sympathetic: merciful, clement, *forbearing, lenient: humane (see CHARITABLE)

crusade n voyage, trip, *journey, jaunt, excursion, expedition, pilgrimage

crumble disintegrate, decompose, *decay, rot, putrefy, spoil

crush vb 1 Crush, mash, smash, bruise, squash, macerate are comparable when they mean to reduce or be reduced to a pulp or broken mass. Crush implies a compressing between two hard or resistant surfaces that succeeds, usually, in destroying the shape and integrity of the mass; the result depends on the texture of what is crushed, whether it is permanently deformed and destroyed, broken into fragments, or capable of springing back into shape (crushed her fingers between the rollers of a mangle) (the ostrich) leaveth her eggs in the earth . . . and forgetth that the foot may crush them—Job 39:14-15) (many persons were crushed to death in the panic) (this hat crushes easily) (the crushed leaves of mint have a strong smell) Mash implies the beating or pounding of something, often deliberately, to a soft pulp; in this sense mash may come close to crush in meaning (this hand shall . . . mash all his bones—Pope) but it is more often used in reference to the preparation of certain vegetables and fruits in the kitchen by similar means (mash cooked potatoes) (mash strawberries for jam) Mash carries a stronger implication of violence in implying a force that shatters or batters; it also often suggests the uselessness for all purposes of what is smashed (smash a bottle to bits) (the upshot of which, was, to smash this witness like a crockery vessel, and shiver his part of the case to useless lumber—Dickens) (his hair was black and close-cut; his skin indurated; and the bridge of his nose smashed level with his face—Shaw). Bruise, though more commonly used in reference to an injury of the flesh, also carries a sense related to that of crush, smash, or mash in which it implies the pressing or beating of something so as to break it down with the effect of setting the juices running or of softening the fibers (nor bruise her flowerets with the armed hooves of hostile paces—Shak.) (some scatt'ring pot-herbs . . . bruised with vervain—Dryden). Squash differs from the preceding words chiefly in its applicability to objects that are very soft (as through overripeness or immaturity) or that require little effort to crush by pressure (every pear that fell from the tree was squashed) (he squashed under his foot every beetle he could find). Macerate is used chiefly in reference to a process of steeping something in a liquid so as to soften or detach its fibers or to wear away its soft parts; the softening or detachment of fibers is chiefly emphasized, and macerate often refers to a step in an industrial process or to a part of a digestive process (macerate rags as the first step in papermaking) (corn is macerated in the gizzard of a fowl). The term may, however, imply a wearing away of the soft part from whatever cause; it particularly suggests a wasting away of the body (as through fasting or worry) (the fierce unrest, the deathless flame, that slowly macerates my frame—Martin).

Ana *press, squeeze, crowd, jam: batter, mangle, *maim: *beat, pound

2 Crush, quell, extinguish, suppress, quench, quash are comparable when they mean to bring to an end by destroying or defeating. Crush in this sense takes from its basic meaning the implication of being destroyed or injured severely by pressure from without, but it differs in being more often applied to immaterial than to material things and in implying a force at work that makes for the destruction of effective opposition or operation especially by preventing resistance or by depriving of the freedom necessary for expansion or thriving (truth, crush to earth, shall rise again—Bryant) (the free play of passion and thought, the graces and arts of life . . . were crushed out of existence under this stern and rigid rule—Dickinson) (the mere volume of work was enough to crush the most diligent of rulers—Buchan). Quell means to overwhelm completely and reduce wholly to submission, to inactivity, or to passivity; the term may be used in respect to people or animals or to (usually immaterial) things; thus, one may quell a riot or the rioters; quell a mutiny or the mutineers (the nation obeyed the call, ralled round the sovereign, and enabled him to quell the disaffected minority—Macaulay) (had some difficulty in quelling the tumult that arose when the bell was answered—Shaw). Extinguish (see also ABOLISH) implies an end as sudden or as complete as the blowing out of a candle or the putting out of a fire with water (the sudden and soon extinguished genius of Marlowe—T. S. Eliot) (lives that were to be extinguished in Hitler's gas chambers—Deutscher). Suppress differs from crush especially in implying conscious action, in more strongly suggesting a power or force that openly quells or extinguishes, and in more often taking as its object a definite objective person or thing (suppress a political organization) (one purpose of the purchase was to suppress competition) (little by little, the two great roads—Justice Holmes) (deeply as the Cistercians disliked and distrusted Abelard, they did not violently suppress him—Henry Adams). Quench, which is close to extinguish.
in its basic meaning, differs from it in extended use in stressing a satisfying, damping, cooling, or decreasing (as of arid) as the cause of extinction. Although it is used specifically of thirst, it is also frequently referred to emotions, sensations, and desires (see also ANNUAL) it implies a sudden and summary extinction (quash a rebellion) (he foresaw that the dreadful woman ... would quash his last chance of life—Dickens) (the lady, together with her family, was dispatched to the safe distance of the Far East. ... Thus was quashed an idyll—S. H. Adams)

An destroy, demolish; *ruin, wreck; annihilate, abolish; obliterate; blot out, efface (see ERASE)

crush n press, throng, *crowd, horde, mob, rout crushy brusque, gruff, blunt, curt, *bluff

Ana smash, bash, *irritable: choleric, splenetic, waspish, *irascible: crabbed, surly, saturnine, dour  (see SULLEN)

cry vb Cry, weep, wail, keem, whimper, blubber mean to vb *strike, hit, smite, punch, slug, slog, swat, clout, slap, box cry vb pick, single, *choose, select, elect, opt, prefer cull vb peak, climax, apex, acme, *summit, pinnacle, meridian, zenith, apogee

cumberly *blame, guilt, fault

Ana responsibility, accountability (see corresponding adjectives at RESPONSIBLE) culpable guilty, *blameworthy

Ana responsible, accountable, answerable, amenable, liable

culpit *criminal, felon, convict, malefactor, delinquent

Ana *prisoner: offender, sinner (see corresponding nouns at OFFENSE): scoundrel, blackguard, miscreant, rogue, rascal (see VILLAIN)

cult sect, denomination, *religion, communion, faith, creed, persuasion, church cultivar *variety, subspecies, race, breed, strain, clone, stock

cultivate nurture, *nurse, foster, cherish

Ana develop, *mature, ripen; raise, rear (see LIFT); educate, train, instruct, *teach: improve, better, ameliorate

Con *neglect, ignore, disregard, slight cultivation breeding, *culture, refinement

culture n 1 Culture, cultivation, breeding, refinement are comparable when they denote a quality of a person or group of persons which reflects his or their possession of excellent taste, manners, and social adjustment. Culture implies a high degree of enlightenment that has been acquired by familiarity with what is best in the civilized life of many ages and lands; in addition, it usually suggests fineness of taste, delicacy of perception, and gracious urbanity of manners (a man of culture) <culture, the acquainting ourselves with the best that has been known and said in the world—Arnold> Cultivation is often preferred to culture because it suggests the continuous pursuit of culture and the self-discipline which accompanies such pursuit, rather than its achievement, and is therefore more modest and often more appropriate (he has found many persons of cultivation in the city to which he has recently moved) <gratitude is a fruit of great cultivation; you do not find it among gross people—Johnson> (a work of prose fiction written by one who not only possesses obvious cultivation but is also a distinguished practicing poet—Steegmuller) Breeding implies such training or lifelong experience in courtesy and the amenities of gracious living that one is never at a loss how to act or what to say; moreover the word often suggests poise, tact, an ability to come forward or to retire at will or at need, and other social qualities which mark one out even among one's social equals (I am a gentleman of blood and breeding—Shak.) <as men of breeding, sometimes men of wit, t'avoid great errors, must the less commit—Shak> (kept unseen, unheeded cried—Millay) Wail usually implies expressing grief without restraint, in mournful and often long-drawn-out cries, moans, and lamentations ("Where is my father, and my mother, nurse?" "Weeping and wailing over Tybalt's corpse"—Shak.) <hear him, o'erwhelmed with sorrow, yet rejoice; no womanish or wailing grief has part—Cowper> <soon as she ... saw the lifeblood flow ... wailing loud she clasped him—Shelley> Keen implies the wailing lamentations or dirges of a professional mourner (keen [means] hideous, dismal wailing or howling practiced in Ireland among the humbler classes in token of grief, at funerals, and on hearing news of a death or other calamity—Wyld) <keened our sorrow—Punch> <keened like a sqwaq bereft—M. H. Moody> Whimper implies low, whining, broken cries (as made by a baby or puppy) (whimpering in fright) <had seen the old general whimper like a whipped dog—F. M. Ford> Blubber implies scalding, disfiguring tears and noisy, broken utterances (as of a child who cannot have his way) (he always blubbers until those who oppose him give in to him) <tears came easy to him; he could blubber like a child over a slight or a disappointment—S. H. Adams>

Ana lament, bewail, bemoan, *deplore: sob, moan, *sigh, groan

crying adj *pressing, urgent, imperative, importunate, insistent, exigent, instant

Ana outstanding, conspicuous (see NOTICABLE): compelling, constraining (see FORCE vb)

cryptic enigmatic, *obscure, dark, vague, ambiguous, equivocal

Ana puzzling, perplexing, mystifying (see PUZZLE vb): occult, esoteric, *recondite: *mysterious, arcane

Con see those at ENCUMBER

Ana analogous words

Ant antonyms

Con contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
cumulative, accumulative, additive, summative are comparable when meaning increasing or produced by the addition of like or assimilable things. Something is cumulative which is constantly increasing or is capable of constant increase (as in size, amount, power, or severity) by successive additions, successive accretions, or successive repetitions; thus, the cumulative effect of a drug may be harmful even though the immediate effect of each dose has, apparently, been beneficial; terror is cumulative because one fear tends to inspire another (groupings of fact and argument and illustration so as to produce a cumulative and mass effect—Cardozo) Something is accumulative which is constantly increasing in amount or bulk through successive additions or which has reached its sum total or magnitude through many such additions (the art of nations is to be accumulative. . . . the work of living men not superseding, but building itself upon the work of the past—Ruskin) (such persons cannot understand the force of accumulative proof—Whatley) Cumulative is now used more often than accumulative especially where increasing severity or enhancement in influence or power are to be suggested. Something is additive which is of such a nature that it is capable either of assimilation to or incorporation in something else or of growth by additions. An additive detail, element, or factor is one that has such amineness that it becomes a constituent part of that thing; thus, red, green, and blue-violet are the additive colors and are used in color photography because they blend to form any color (this new hypothesis assigns to the atom properties which are in no way inconsistent with the inverse-square attraction of its electrons and protons; rather they are additive to it—Jeans) (this pluralistic view, of a world of additive constitution, is one that pragmatism is unable to rule out from serious consideration—James) Something is summative which is capable of association or combination with other things so as to produce such a sum total as an additive whole or a cumulative effect (the summative action of a drug and its adjuvant) (if the student could not add up his achievements, if there was nothing summative in his education—Educational Review)

Ana accumulated, amassed (see accumulate): multiplying, increasing, augmenting (see increase)

Cunning adj 1 ingenious, *clever, adroit
Ana skillful, skilled, adept, *proficient, expert, mastering 2 crafty, tricky, artful, *sly, foxy, insidious, wily, guileful
Ana devious, oblique, *crooked: *sharp, acute, keen: *shrewd, astute: knowing, smart (see intelligent)
Ant ingenuous —Con artless, unsophisticated, naive (see natural)

Cunning n 1 skill, *art, craft, artifice
Ana dexterousness or dexterity, adroitness, deftness (see corresponding adjectives at dexterous): proficiency, adeptness, Expertness (see corresponding adjectives at proficient): ingenuity or ingenuity, cleverness (see corresponding adjectives at clever)
2 guile, *deceit, duplicity, dissimulation
Ana craftiness, insidiousness, wiliness, guilefulness, trickiness or trickery, artfulness, slyness (see corresponding adjectives at sly): stratagem, ruse, maneuver, feint, *trick, wile, gambit, ploy
Ant ingenuousness

Cupidity, greed, rapacity, avarice are comparable when meaning intense desire for wealth or possessions. Cupidity stresses the intensity and compelling nature of the desire and often suggests covetousness as well (the sight of so much wealth aroused his cupiditv) (the vast cupiditv of business in preempting the virgin resources of California—Parrington) Greed, more than cupiditv, implies a controlling passion; it suggests not strong but inordinate desire, and it commonly connotes meanness as well as covetousness (a low, incessant, gnawing greed . . . for power, for money, for destruction—White) Rapacity implies both cupiditv and actual seizing or snatching not only of what one especially desires but of anything that will satisfy one's greed for money or property; it often suggests extortion, plunder, or oppressive exaction (<the rapacity of the conquerors knew no bounds) (<the woman's greed and rapacity . . . disgusted me—Thackeray) (<the rapacity of the warlords—Peffer) Avarice, although it involves the idea of cupiditv and often carries a strong suggestion of rapacity, stresses that of miserliness and implies both an unwillingness to let go whatever wealth or property one has acquired and an insatiable greed for more (<such a stanchless avarice that, were I king, I should cut off the nobles for their lands, desire his jewels and this other's house: and my more-having would be as a sauce to make me hunger more—Shak.) (<they scrimped and stinted and starved themselves . . . out of avarice and the will-to-power—Mumford)

Ana covetousness, avariciousness, greediness, acquisitiveness (see corresponding adjectives at covetous): avidity, eagerness (see corresponding adjectives at eager): lust, *desire Curative, sanative, restorative, remedial, corrective are comparable when they mean returning or tending to return to a state of normalcy or health. Curative is applicable to whatever effects or, sometimes, seeks or tends to effect a complete recovery especially from disease of body or of mind (a curative drug) (curative regimens) (most medicines are alleviative in their action and not definitely curative. Rather, they overcome the symptoms of disease and give the patient a chance to recover—Morrison) Sanative is a general term applicable to whatever is conducive either to the restoration of or the maintenance of health, whether of body and mind or of spirit or morals; the term often comes close to salutary in meaning (<the sanative virtue of action . . . to dispel doubt and despair—Masson) Restorative is occasionally applicable to what restores to health but more often to what revives someone unconscious or renews or refreshes someone or something overstrained or exhausted (<the restorative effect of rain on parched fields) (<take a restorative drink before dinner) (<that voyage proved entirely beneficial and restorative—Ellis) Remedial is much the broadest term of this group and like the related noun (see remedy) and verb (see cure vb) is applicable not only to whatever alleviates or cures disease or injury of body or mind but to whatever tends to relieve or correct a faulty or evil condition (as of the community, the law, or the body politic) (<while . . . the teacher's greatest contribution lies in the prevention of maladjustment, he must also assume a major responsibility in remedial work with the student who has become poorly adjusted—C. C. Dunsmoor & L. M. Miller) (<whatever action the court takes towards a convicted offender . . . is in fact a punishment; and it does not cease to be so because it may also be used as a form of remedial treatment, adapted to the personality of the offender and directed to his social rehabilitation—Ford) (with power and humility she overcame the world, and cast down the devil with prayer and remedial tears—H. O. Taylor) (the communities affected entered upon a patient course of remedial action and successfully labored to prevent a recurrence of these disorders—Handlin) Corrective (compare corrective n) in many of its uses comes close to remedial, but, unlike the latter, it cannot ordinarily re-cure vb *remedy, medicine, medicament, medication, specific, physic curb vb check, bridle, *restrain, inhibit cure—Shak.)
cured adj *indulge, pamper, humor curl vb *coagulate, congeal, set, clot, jelly, jell cure vb Cure, heal, remedy mean to rectify an unhealthy or undesirable condition especially by some specific treatment (as medication). Cure and heal may apply interchangeably to both wounds and diseases (pierced to the soul with slander's venomous spear, the which no balm can cure—Shak.) (physician, heal thyself—Lk 4:23)

current adj *prevailing, prevalent, rife
curse vb *wind, coil, twist, twine, wrench, entwine

curse n Curse, imprecation, malediction, anathema are comparable when they denote a denunciation that conveys a wish or threat of evil. Curse (opposed to blessing) usually implies a call upon God or a supernatural power to visit punishment or disaster upon a person; in dignified use it commonly presupposes a profound sense of injury and a plea to a divine avenger for justice. No other word in this group suggests so strongly the certainty of the threatened evil (the untented woundings of a father's curse pierce every sense about thee!—Shak.) (an orphan's curse would drag to hell a spirit from on high—Coleridge)

imprecation also implies an invocation of evil or calamity, but it often suggests as its provocation wrath rather than a sense of injury and a desire for revenge rather than for justice as its aim (with imprecations thus he filled the air, and angry Neptune heard the unrighteous prayer—Pope)

Both curse and imprecation are applied to profane swearing involving blasphemy, but, again, the latter is the weaker in its implications. Malediction (opposed to benediction) is applied chiefly to bitter reproaches or denunciations publicly proclaimed and bringing disgrace or ignominy to their object (my name . . . to all posterity may stand defamed, with malediction mentioned—Milton)

Cleopatra has long ago passed beyond the libels with which her reputation was blackened by a terrified Rome— even the maledictions of great poets—Buchan) (a passage in one of the recently discovered Ras Shamra poems . . . pronounces a malediction . . . "may Horon break thy head"—Mercer) Anathema basically denotes a solemn authoritative ecclesiastical ban or curse accompanied by excommunication (the third letter to Nestorius . . . con-

place curative; specifically it applies to what is designed to restore something to a norm or standard or bring it up (or down) to a desirable level from which it has deviated. In this relation the term is peculiarly applicable to material objects that supplement or compensate for a defective function or part, but it may be used interchangeably with remedial in most contexts, though the emphasis may be more on making good a defect or deficiency than (as in remedial) on relieving the distress it causes; thus, one would speak of corrective (rather than remedial) shoes for the relief of weak ankles, but one could say that among remedial (or corrective) measures for weak ankles are shoes with special lifts in the soles (constantly called upon their corrective lenses to decipher documents—Ace) (such corrective declines need not, necessarily, represent the end of this greatest of all bull markets—Van Loan)

there is today special need for the balancing and corrective sanities of not taking ourselves and our time over seriously—Alain Locke)

Ana healing, curing, remedying (see cure vb)
curb vb check, bridle, *restrain, inhibit

remedy, medicine, medicament, medication, specific, physic
cure vb Cure, heal, remedy mean to rectify an unhealthy or undesirable condition especially by some specific treatment (as medication). Cure and heal may apply interchangeably to both wounds and diseases (pierced to the soul with slander's venomous spear, the which no balm can cure—Shak.) (physician, heal thyself—Lk 4:23)

current adj *prevailing, prevalent, rife

curse vb *wind, coil, twist, twine, wrench, entwine

remedy vb check, bridle, *restrain, inhibit tained the anathemas—R. M. French} In more general use the term applies to a strong or violent denunciation by one in authority or in a position to judge of something as grossly wrong, as productive of evil, or as accursed (the Pope . . . has condemned the slave trade—but no more heed is paid to his anathema than to the passing wind—Gladstone) (continued openly . . . to flaunt their beauties, in spite of the anathemas from the pulpits—Wellman) or it may be used in a much weakened sense to mean no more than a vigorous denunciation (no anathema pronounced by any psychologist against such words as "purpose" will exercise this initiative as a distinctive and observable characteristic of certain modes of conscious doing—C. I. Lewis) (people) of self-respect who would like to teach our children . . . are afraid to hire themselves out to communities and states . . . where they may be under the continuous censorship of politicians, petty moralists, and those businessmen for whom the mere subscription to a liberal journal is a reason for anathema—Ulich)

An execution, objurygation (see corresponding verbs at EXECUTE) (profanity, *blasphemy, swearing)

Ant blessing

curse vb damn, anathematize, *execrate, objurgate

An condemns, denounces, reprobates (see CRITICIZE) (blasphemer, swear (see corresponding nouns at BLASPHEMY))

Ant bless

cursed accursed, damnable, *execrable

An, Ant, & Con see those at ACCURSED

cursing profanity, swearing, *blasphemy

An curse, imprecation, maladministration, anathema: execration, objurygation (see corresponding verbs at EXECUTE)

cursory *superficial, shallow, uncritical

An hastily, speedily, quick, rapid, swift, *fast: brief, short: casual, desultory, *random, haphazard

Ant painstaking —Con meticulous, *careful, scrupulous, punctilious

curt brusque, blunt, crusty, gruff, *bluff

An laconic, terse, summary, *concise: brief, short: snappish, waspish, *irritable: peremptory, imperious (see MASTERFUL)

Ant voluble

curtail *shorten, abbreviate, abridge, retrench

An reduce, *decrease, lessen: cut, slash

Ant protract, prolong —Con extend, lengthen, elongate curve vb Curve, bend, twist are comparable when they mean to swerve or cause to swerve or deviate from a straight line or a normal direction or course. *cut is the word of widest application, and it may describe any deviation or swerving from the straight or level that suggests an arc of a circle or an ellipse (his lips were curved in a smile—Kenneth Roberts) (over the roof a few swallow's were curving—Glasgow) Bend is likely to refer to an angular turning or a curving at a certain point under a degree of force or pressure (bend the steel strips as required) (bend the glass tube at the point indicated) In extended use bend may imply some forcing or distortion of materials or of facts or some pressure on or persuasion of people (was somewhat prone to bend logic to meet the demands of argument—E. S. Bates) (not all prescriptive speech is made purely and typically at bending the hearer's attitudes to those of the speaker—Falk) Twist is likely to suggest a force having a spiraling effect throughout the object involved rather than an effect at one point, and it may imply, especially in extended use, a wrenching out of shape or distorting rather than a giving of a desired or desirable shape (the light steel rods twisted together by the explosion) (hands gnarled and twisted with age) (mend a break in a fence by twisting two wires together) (an un conquering confidence . . . which underates, or twists into a wry joke, the fatal moment of war—Times Lit. Sup.)

Ania deflect, divert, *turn: *swerve, veer, deviate cut vb Cut, hew, chop, carve, slit, slash mean to penetrate and divide something with a sharp-bladed tool or instrument (as a knife, ax, or sword) Cut is by far the most comprehensive term, for it is not only interchangeable with any other word in the group but also with any of a large number of verbs that suggest use of a specific tool (knife, shears, reap, or mow) or dividing in a certain way (as separation or isolation) similar to one produced by cutting (cut off a member of the family) (she is cut off from all her friends) or one (as distress or pain) suggestive of a stabbing or lasting (the remark cut her to the heart) Hew is not only more restricted in its application than cut but it carries far more explicit implications. It usually suggests the use of a heavy tool (as an ax, a sword, or chisel) which calls for the expenditure of much effort in the cutting or shaping of large, difficult, or resistent objects or material hew them to pieces, hack their bones Shak hewn stones *and now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree ... which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire—Lk 3:9 there's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough them how we will Shak Chop implies a cleaving or dividing by a quick, heavy blow (as of an ax, a cleaver, or a hatchet) or, more often, a dividing into pieces by repeated blows of this character chop off branches of a tree chop the trunk of a tree into firewood chop meat into small pieces Carve has come to be restricted to two types of cutting. The first requires the use of special tools (as chisels and gouges) and has for its end the artistic shaping, fashioning, or adornment of a material (as stone, ivory, or wood) a sculptor carves a statue out of marble the back and legs of the chair were elaborately carved an exquisite ivory box carved with figures The second requires a sharp knife and has for its end the cutting up and especially the slicing of meat at table in pieces suitable for serving serve a roast of beef the head of the family carves the turkey Silk implies the making of a lengthwise cut; except that it suggests the use of a sharp clean-cutting instrument (as scissors, a scalpel, a sword, or a knife) it carries no clear connotations as to the extent of the cut in depth or in length the surgeon slit the abdominal wall in front of the appendix the long skirt was slit to the knee Slit a sealed envelope Slash also implies a lengthwise cut but usually suggests a sweeping stroke (as with a sharp sword, knife, or machete) that inflicts a deep and long cut or wound: very frequently it connotes repeated cuts and often furious or rough-and-tumble fighting slashing desperately at his circling enemies tires slashed by vandals Ana split, cleave, rive (see TEAR): sever, sunder (see SEPARATE vb): curtail (see SHORTEN)

cutthroat assassin, gunman, Bravo daily Diurnal, quotidian, circadian mean of each or every day. Daily is used with reference to the ordinary concerns and customary happenings of life daily wishes (the daily newspaper) Sometimes however it implies an opposition to nightly (the daily anodyne, and nightly draught—Pope) Diurnal is commonly either astronomical (with special reference to the movements of the heavenly bodies) or poetic in its use (the diurnal revolution of the earth) (rolled round in earth's diurnal course—Wordsworth) Diurnal also implies opposition to nocturnal (the diurnal and nocturnal offices of the monks) Hunting dogs are mainly diurnal animals—Stevenson-Hamilton Quotidian adds to daily the implicaion of recurrence each day (a quotidian fever) It often suggests also a commonplace, routine, or everyday character or quality (that quality of strangeness which puts a new light on all quotidian occupations—Bennett) (he has found in quotidian interests and affections and appetites so complete an escape from the labors and the struggles of the creative spirit—Brooks) (as quotidian as catching the 8:52 from Surbiton to go to business on a Monday morning—Huxley) Circadian is a chiefly technical term of recent coinage that differs from daily or quotidian in implying only approximate equation with the twenty-four hour day (circadian rhythms in insect behavior)

Ana analogous words
Ant antonyms
Con contrasted words
See also explanatory notes facing page 1
danger, peril, jeopardy, hazard, risk mean either dangerous, hazardous, precarious, perilous, risky all mean attended by or involving the possibility of loss, evil, injury, harm; however, they are frequently not freely interchangeable in usage. Dangerous applies to persons, things, or situations that should be avoided or treated with exceeding care because contact with them or use of them is unsafe and exposes one or causes one to expose others at least to danger  (a dangerous doctrine) <conditions dangerous to health the child discovers that grown-ups lie to him, and that it is dangerous to tell them the truth—Russell> (a wide circumstance must be made to avoid a fierce and dangerous tribe called Snake Indians—Parkman> Hazardous carries a far stronger implication of dependence on chance than dangerous carries: it is often the preferred term when the chances of loss, death, or harm are comparatively great; thus, a hazardous occupation (especially from the point of view of insurability) is one in which the worker must run significantly greater than average risks of accident or loss of life; a hazardous carrier is one which has as many (if not more) chances of failing as of succeeding <no one should be deluded into believing that we can ever have completely assured lives.
Living is a hazardous business at the best—Furnas>
the hazardous game of secret service in enemy country —Alexander Forbes> Precarious is often used inaccurately where dangerous or even hazardous would be the better word. The basic meaning of this word is uncertain or insecure: therefore, it may be used without implication of threatened danger or of possible hazards; in strict use precarious health is uncertain health rather than a physical condition threatening death; a precarious occupation is one that may be neither dangerous nor hazardous but uncertain (as in its tenure or remunerativeness) whoever supposes that Lady Austen's fortune is precarious is mistaken. . . . It is . . . perfectly safe—Cowper> a National Church in the early Caroline sense deapended upon the precarious harmony of the king, a strong archbishop, and a strong first minister—T. S. Eliot
The term often carries also an implication of attendance by danger or hazards especially as a factor in or source of insecurity or uncertainty; thus, a precarious hold or footing is one that is so insecure that it involves danger the precarious track through the morass—Scott> keeping a precarious and vital balance, like a man walking on high on a tightrope—Montague> Perilous carries a stronger implication of the immediacy of a threatened evill than dangerous (after all their intolerable toils, the sounding tumult of battle, and perilous sea-paths, resting there . . . amid the epitaphs and allegorical figures of their tombs—L. P. Smith> we all know how perilous it is to suggest to the modern woman that she has any "sphere"—Babbitt> Risky comes close to perilous in suggesting high possibility of harm or loss, but it is usually applied to an action or activity which a person undertakes voluntarily and often with knowledge of the perils or risks to which it exposes him takes one's life—with undertake a risky job> (no risky investment) <so risky was travel that the Indiana legislature specifically permitted travelers to carry concealed weapons—Sandburg> Ana unsafe, insecure (see affirmative adjectives at SAFE): chancey, chance, haphazard, *random, hit-or-miss
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
dangle

Ant safe, secure

dangle suspend, *hang, sling

Ana oscillate, sway, pendulate, fluctuate (see SWING): *swing, wave

dank damp, humid, moist, *wet

Ana soaked, saturated, sopped or soppy, drenched (see corresponding verbs at SOAK)

dappled *variegated, parti-colored, motley, checkered, checked, pied, piebald, skewbald, freaked

dare vb *face, brave, challenge, defy, beard

Ana *venture, risk, chance, hazard

daredevil adj daring, rash, reckless, foolhardy, venturesome, *adventurous

Ana & Con see those at DARING

daring rash, reckless, daredevil, foolhardy, venturesome, *adventurous

Ana bold, intrepid, audacious (see BRAVE)

Con *timid, timorous: *cautious, wary, circumspect, chary: prudent, sensible, sane, *wise, judicious

dark adj 1 Dark, dim, dusky, obscure, murky, gloomy mean partly or wholly destitute of light. Dark, the ordinary word and the most general of these terms, implies a lack of the illumination necessary to enable one to see or to identify what is before him. It may imply lack of natural illumination (as by the sun or moon) (a dark forest) (a dark night) or of artificial illumination (as by gas or electricity) (a dark room) or a lack of immaterial light (as cheerfulness) (a dark mood) (a dark countenance) or of moral or spiritual light (a dark deed) or of brilliance—that is, the quality of lightness in color (a dark blue)

*Dim suggests just so much darkness that the things before one cannot be seen clearly or in their distinct or characteristic outlines: it may be applied equally to things viewed or to a source of illumination (the light has grown dim) (dim stars) (he could just make out dim figures in the distance) It may designate a usually bright thing that is dulled or softened (a . . . dim and tender red—Hudson) (a dim image of their glorious vitality—Krutch) or a place or time that is nearly dark (scrambled over to join the other ghosts out on the dim common—Galsworthy) (the hazy light . . . reminded him of the dim distances of his own . . . country—Anderson)

Dim as applied to eyes, sight, or insight suggests a loss of functional keenness (eyes dim with tears) (dim eyesight)

Dusky suggests the halfway state between light and dark characteristic of twilight: like dim it implies faintness of light but unlike that word definitely connotes grayness and an approach to darkness (dusky windowless loft) (dusky clouds) (but comes at last the dull and dusky eve—Cowper)

Obscure is more often used in its extended senses (see OBSCURE) than in its literal sense, but it is employed literally when there is a suggestion of darkening by covering, concealment, or overshadowing that deprives a thing of its lightness, brightness, or luster (obscurest night involved the sky—Cowper) (obscure stars) (an obscure corner of the attic)

Murky originally implied and still sometimes implies intense darkness or a darkness in which things are not even faintly visible (Hell is murky!—Shak.)

In current use, the term more often suggests a thick, heavy darkness suggestive of smoke-laden fogs or of air filled with mist and dust (an atmosphere murky with sand—Cather) (as if its [London’s] low sky were the roof of a cave, and its murky day a light such as one reads of in countries beneath the earth—L. P. Smith)

Gloomy (see also SULLEN) implies imperfect illumination owing to causes that interfere seriously with the radiation of light (as dense clouds or the heavy shade of many closely set trees): in addition, it often connotes pervading cheerlessness (the day was especially gloomy for June) (the gloomiest part of the forest) (the room was gloomy and depressing with only a dim light from a small candle) (their gloomy pathway tended upward, so that, through a crevice, a little daylight glimmered down upon them—Hawthorne)

Ant light —Con *bright, brilliant, radiant, luminous: illuminated, enlightened, lighted (see ILLUMINATE)

2 *obscure, vague, enigmatic, cryptic, ambiguous, equivocal

Ana abstruse, occult, *recondite, esoteric: *mystical, mystic, analagous, cabalistic: intricate, complicated, knotty, *complex

Ant lucid —Con *clear, perspicuous: simple, *easy, light, facile

darken *obscure, dim, bedim, eclipse, cloud, becloud, fog, befog, obfuscate

Ana illuminate —Con enlighten, illumine (see ILLUINATE): elucidate, *explain

darse vb *fly, scud, skim, float, shoot, sail

Ana *speed, precipitate, hasten, hurry

dash vb *rush, tear, shoot, charge

Ana dart, *fly, scud

dass n 1 *vigor, vim, spirit, esprit, verve, élan, drive

Ana force, energy, might, *power: vehemence, intensity (see corresponding adjectives at INTENSE): impressive-ness (see corresponding adjective at MOVING)

2 *touch, suggestion, suspicion, soupçon, tincture, tinge, shade, smack, spice, vein, strain, streak

dashing smart, *stylish, fashionable, modish, chic

date n *engagement, rendezvous, tryst, appointment, assignation

daunt appall, *dismay, horrify

Ana cow, *intimidate, browbeat: discomfit, disconcert, faze (see EMBARRASS): foil, thwart, baffle (see FRUSTRATE): *frighten, alarm, scare, terrify

Con rally, rouse, arouse, *stir, waken, awaken: impel, drive, *move, actuate: activate, *vitalize, energize

dauntless *brave, courageous, unafraid, fearless, intrepid, valiant, valorous, undaunted, doughty, bold, audacious

Ana indomitable, unconquerable, *invincible: heroic, gallant (see corresponding nouns at HEROISM)

Ant poltroon —Con *fearful, afraid, apprehensive

dawdle *delay, procrastinate, loiter, lag

Ana linger, tarry, wait, *stay: *trifle, toy, dally: *play, sport, disport

Con *stir, rally, rouse, arouse: hurry, hasten, *speed

daydream n dream, *fancy, fantasy, phantasy, phantasm, notion, vision, nightmare

Ana imagining or imagination, conceiving or conception, fancying (see corresponding verbs at FANCY): illusion, *delusion, hallucination

daze vb Daze, stun, bemuse, stupefy, benumb, paralyze, petrify all mean to dull or deaden the powers of the mind through some disturbing experience or influence. Daze may imply any of numerous causes (as a blow on the head, an excess of light, or a physical or mental shock) which prostrates one’s powers and leaves one confused or bewildered or dizzied (tilt I felt I could end myself too with the dagger—so deafened and dazed— . . . with the grief that gnawed at my heart—Tennessy) (the cattle gather and blare, roused by the feet of running men, dazed by the lantern glare—Kipling)

Stun usually suggests a sudden deprivation of one’s powers of thought or a loss of consciousness as a result of a heavy blow or a violent fall, but it is also used in an extended and often hyperbolic sense to describe the devastating effect of noise, surprise, or astonishment (stunned his assailant with the butt of his rifle) (stunned by the news of his son's drowning) (where wild Oswego spreads her swamps around, and Niagara stuns with thundering sound—Goldsmith) (ye little children, stun your grandame's ears with pleasure of your noise!—Wordsworth) (or has the shock ... confused ... and stunned me from my power to think—Tennyson)

Bemuse implies an adding or muddling of the mind whether through intoxication or through employment, preoccupation, or engrossment that dulls or abstracts the mind (a Prussian was regarded in England as a dull beer—bemused creature—M'Carty) (his senses so bemused in the intensity of calculation—Scott) (people with brains and intelligence ... play cards until they are bemused and stupid—McClure's Mag.)

Stupefy heights the implication of stupe or stupidity by weakening not only the implication of shock or surprise but that of overwork or fatigue; it therefore usually implies something (as an injury, an illness, a grief or anxiety long-continued, or intoxication) that dulls both the senses and the mind (sun elated them; quiet rain sobered them, weeks of watery tempest stupefied them—Hardy)

Benumb is used chiefly of the effect of cold in deadening or immobilizing the muscles, but it is used also of anything that becomes so inert that it seems as if frozen (it's so cold, so dark, my senses are so benumbed—Dickens) (Mrs. Ralston drew back a step or two. Charlotte's cold resolution conveyed by her voice and she could find no immediate reply—Wharton)

Paralyze is often used figuratively to imply an inability to act or to function, on the part of a thing as well as of a person, that comes as a result of a dire event, a burden too heavy to be borne, or an astounding disclosure (in these wild places ... a snowstorm ... does not ... paralyze traffic as London permits itself to be paralyzed under similar circumstances—Jeffries) (a certain helplessness in the presence of what is unfamiliar that fairly paralysis even Gallic curiosity—Brownell)

Petrify (see also Harden) emphasizes the immediate effect of fear, amazement, shock, or awe and suggests complete inability to move, to think, or to act, as though one were turned to stone (the spectators were petrified with horror) (she ... was too petrified to answer the question) More than any other word in this group, petrify is often used hyperbolically (I was too petrified to pay any attention to him)

Ana confound, bewilder, mystify (see puzzle): *confuse, muddle, befuddle: dazzle, dizzy (see corresponding adjectives at GIDDY)

dazzled *giddy, dizzy, vertiginous, swimming

Ana confused, added, befuddled, muddled (see confuse): confounded, bewildered, puzzled, perplexed (see puzzle)

dead adj Dead, defunct, deceased, departed, late, lifeless, inanimate all mean devoid of life. Dead applies strictly to anyone or to anything that has been deprived of life and has therefore ceased to grow or to function (a dead person) (a dead animal) (a dead tree) (every plant in the garden is dead as a result of the intensely severe winter)

Dead is also applicable to things which have not had life (in its literal sense) but have existed for a time and have been used or accepted or have proved effective or influential; thus, a dead language is no longer in spoken use by any people; a dead belief no longer has any acceptance; a dead journal no longer is printed and circulated; a dead illusion being no longer arouses interest or question no longer arouses interest or curiosity. Figure of speech: the term implies lack or loss of sensation, consciousness, feeling, activity, energy, or any of the qualities associated with life (dead fingers) (a dead engine) (a dead cigar) (the dead season in a business)

Defunct differs little in its literal sense from dead, except that it is somewhat bookish (Charlotte had entered society in her mother's turned garments, and shod with satin sandals handed down from a defunct aunt—Wharton) The term is more often applied to a thing that by failure or dissolution has ceased to function or to operate (a defunct newspaper) (a defunct corporation)

Deceased applies only to a person and especially to one who has died comparatively recently or who, though dead, is at the moment under consideration especially in some legal context (lAWs prohibiting the marriage of a man with his deceased wife's sister) (the legal heirs of the deceased millionaire were never found)

Departed is distinctly euphemistic (especially in religious use) (pray for the souls of departed relatives and friends)

Late is used in place of deceased or departed especially when stressing a relationship to a surviving person or an existent institution (under the terms of his late father's will) (the late chairman of the board of directors) (the late master of the house)

Lifeless, unlike the preceding words, does not necessarily imply deprivation of life, for it is applicable not only to something literally dead but also to something which never had life or is incapable of life. In comparison with dead, however, lifeless stresses the absence (sometimes, when loss of consciousness is implied, the apparent absence) of the phenomena characteristic of life; thus, how could a dead man, but a lifeless body (that is, a body that shows no signs of life) (there in the twilight cold and grey, lifeless, but beautiful, he lay—Longfellow) In its extended use lifeless is especially applicable to things (far less often to persons) that have not or never have had vitality, power, or spirit (a lifeless color) (a lifeless poem) (she has been lifeless since her recovery from a prolonged illness) (dull lifeless mechanical systems that treat people as if they were things—Wilde)

Monochrome is a starved and lifeless term to express the marvellous range and subtlety of tones of which . . . Chinese ink is capable (Binyon)

Inanimate is more consistently used than lifeless in describing something which never had life; it is the preferred term when a contrast between that which is devoid of life and that which possesses life is expressed or implied (objects which consist of inanimate matter—Jeans) (a transition . . . from the inorganic to the organic, from the inanimate to the living—Inge) (harnessing inanimate power to carry us and our burdens—Furnas)

But inanimate is also applicable in extended use to that which is spiritless, inactive, or not lively, and therefore dull (an inanimate style) (her inanimate movement when on the stage—Yeats)

Ant alive—Con *living

deadlock n *draw, tie, stalemate, standoff

Ana situation, condition, *state, posture: *predicament, plight, dilemma, quandary deadly adj 1 Deadly, mortal, fatal, lethal mean causing or causative of death. Deadly may imply an extremely high degree of probability rather than a certainty of death; the term therefore applies to something with the capacity of or a marked potentiality for causing death: a deadly disease is one usually ending fatally; a deadly weapon is one capable of inflicting death; the seven deadly sins in theology are those sins which must be avoided because they are the source of other sins and are destructive of spiritual life and progress (two brave vessels matched in deadly fight, and fighting to two blows—Wordsworth) (poisons more deadly than a mad dog's tooth—Shak.) (the neglect of form ... was even deadlier to poetry—Viereck) Mortal implies that death has dear

expensive, costly, precious, valuable, invaluable, dealings

deal

deadly

deaths, decease, demise, passing denote the end or the ending of life. Death is the general word and is used for the termination of plants and animals as well as of men and also of inanimate things marked by continuity or development (the death of an enterprise). Decease and demise apply only to human beings except in figurative use. Decease is preferred in legal context but in ordinary use conveys a slightly euphemistic or rhetorical quality. Demise in literal use has become somewhat pompous or affected (the lady’s demise had been ascribed to apoplexy—Hynd). In figurative use it frequently lacks such connotation (organized labor, which promised his political demise if he signed the bill against jurisdictional strikes—Beverly Smith). Passing is a euphemism for the death of a person.

Ant

deathless *immortal, undying, unfading

Ana

*everlasting, endless: eternal (see INFINITE): enduring, abiding, persisting (see CONTINUE)

Con

ephemeral, *transient, transitory, evanescent, passing deadly *deadly

Ana

*gastly, macabre, gruesome, grisly

Ant

lifelike

debar

*exclude, blackball, disbar, suspend, shut out, eliminate, rule out

Ana

*preclude, obviate, *prevent: *forbid, prohibit, ban, interdict

Con

*invite, court, woo, solicit, bid: permit, allow, *let debase

1 Debase, vitiate, deprave, corrupt, debauch, pervert mean to cause a person or thing to become impaired and lowered in quality or character and share certain distinctions in implications and connotations with the adjectives (usually participial adjectives) corresponding to the verbs, debased, vitiated, depraved, corrupted (but more often, corrupt), debauched, perverted.

Debase (see also ABASE) and debased imply a loss of worth, value, or dignity and are widely applicable (plays that debase the taste of the people) (a debased coinage) (the life-and-death struggle with Hannibal . . . had permanently debased the Roman temper and left in it a core of hard inhumanity—Buchan) (success permits him to see how those he has converted distort and debase . . . his teaching—Huxley) (the fine old language which has been slowly perfected for centuries, and which is now being . . . debased by the rubbishy newspapers which form almost the sole reading of the majority—Inge) (human values cruelly and systematically debased by the Nazis—Dean) Vitiate and vitiated imply impairment through the introduction of a fault, a defect, or anything that destroys the purity, validity, or effectiveness of a thing (a style vitiated by exaggeration) (inappropriate and badly chosen words vitiate thought—Huxley) (the fox . . . vitiates his line of scent with the gas fumes on the macadam highways—Heinold) (the vitiated air of a crowded hall) (party jealousies vitiated the whole military organization—Times Lit. Sup.) (a final decree . . . vitiated by the judge’s assumption that he was bound by the master’s findings of fact—Justice Holmes). Deprave and depraved usually imply pronounced moral deterioration; thus, a person who has a debased taste cannot enjoy what is really good or beautiful if it lacks showy surface qualities which catch his attention, but a person with a de-

Ana

*analogous words  Ant  *antonyms  Con  *contrasted words

See also explanatory notes facing page 1

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
Decay, decompose, rot, putrefy, spoil, disintegrate, crumble mean to undergo or, in some cases, to cause something to undergo destructive dissolution. Decay implies change, commonly a natural and gradual change, from a state of soundness or perfection; it may or may not suggest the certainty of complete destruction (teeth decaying from lack of care) (infirmity, that decays the wise—Shak.) (as winter fruits grow mild ere they decay—Pope) (nor shall I discuss the causes why science decayed and died under the Roman Empire—Inge) Decompose stresses the idea of breaking down by separation into constituent parts or elements (as by chemical action in the laboratory or, in respect to animal and vegetable matter in nature, by the action of living micro-organisms) (whenever molecules combine or decompose or atoms change partners, it is chemistry—Furnas) (the action of bacteria in decomposing the organic products contained and forming gases useful for power and heat—Morrison) (the odor of decomposing meat—the body—Guildy) Rot implies decay and decomposition, usually of or as if of animal or vegetable matter; the term may or may not imply offensiveness or foulness; figuratively it differs from decay in stressing stagnation or corruption rather than decline (blossoms which fall before they wither rather than cling rotting to the stalk—Binyon) (there shall they rot, ambition's honored fools!—Byron) (it was this garrison life. Half civilian, half military, with all the drawbacks of both. It rotted the soul, robbed a man of ambition, faith—Irwin Shaw) Putrefy not only suggests the rotting of or as if of animal matter but also stresses its extreme offensiveness to sight and smell (corpses putrefying on the sun-drenched battlefields) (flesh in that long sleep is not putrefied—Donne) Spoil (see also INJURE) is often used in place of rot, or putrefy when foodstuffs, especially in the home or the market, are referred to (roasted pork spoils quickly if not kept in a refrigerator) Disintegrate implies either a breaking down or a breaking apart so that the wholeness or integrity of the thing or the cohesiveness of its particles is destroyed or is in process of destruction (the London atmosphere tends to disintegrate bricks) (Rutherford and Soddy found that radioactive substances disintegrate in a way they described as "spontaneous"—the rate of decay cannot be expedited or retarded by any known physical process—Jeans) (the other great civilizations with which it was once contemporary have passed away or been disintegrated and transformed—Ellis) Crumble implies disintegration of or as if of a substance that breaks into fine particles; neither it nor disintegrate need imply, as the remaining terms almost inevitably do, an alteration at the chemical level (crumbled a piece of bread in his fingers) (winter rains had washed and washed against its . . . old bricks until the plaster between them had crumbled—Deland) (great periods of human culture which flourished at their height just as the substructure crumbled—Krutch) Ana *deception, fraud, trickery, double-dealing, chicanery, chicanery; craft, artifice (see ART); cheating, cozening, defrauding, overreaching (see CHEAT vb) Con *dishonest, mendacious, lying, untruthful Ana crafty, tricky, wily, gui1eful, foxy, insidious, cunning, sly, artful; underhand, underhanded, stealthy, sly, clandestine (see SECRET) *crooked, devious, oblique: delusory, deceptive, delusive *misleading Ant trustworthy —Con *reliable, dependable, trusty deceive, mislead, delude, beguile, betray, double-cross mean to lead astray or into evil or to frustrate by underhand or craft. A person or thing deceives one by leading one to take something false as true, something nonexistent as real, something counterfeit as genuine, something injurious as helpful: the term may imply no more than a chance or inadvertent confusing or it may suggest a deliberate ensnaring or entrapping for the agent's own and often evil ends <deceived by a chance resemblance into the belief that he had seen his dead sister's spirit> (<"No woman's safe with him."—"Ah, but he hasn't deceived me, Mrs. Berry. He has not pretended he was good"—Meredith> a person who first subconsciously deceives himself and then imagines that he is being virtuous and truthful—Russell> A person or thing misleads one by causing one to follow a wrong path, way, or course or to fall into error <misled by a confusing traffic signal> <we never find them misled into the conception that such gifts are an end in themselves—Dickinson> <nor is there any safeguard against the nations being misled and deceived by their governments into sanctioning another great war—Inge> <Thrasyllus never told lies but he loved misleading people—Graves> A person or thing deludes one by deceiving or misleading one so completely as to make one a fool, a dupe, or so befuddled as to be incapable of distinguishing the false from the true <I began to wonder whether I, like the spider that chased the shadow, had been deluded, and had seemed to hear a sound that was not a sound—Hudson> <did he, did all the people who said they didn't mind things, know that they really did? Or were they indeed deluded?—Rose Macaulay> A person or, less often, a thing, beguiles one by using such subtle and usually agreeable or alluring devices as to mislead, deceive, or delude one (the male propensity to be beguiled—Mary Austin> <I recalled some of the Indian beliefs, especially that of the . . . man-devouring monster who is said to beguile his victims into the dark forest by mimicking the human voice—Hudson> <marsh-light to beguile mankind from tangible goods and immediate fruitions—Mumford> A person or thing betrays one by using deception or treachery to deliver one into the hands of an enemy or put one in a dangerous or false position <verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me—Mt 26:21> <knowing that nature never did betray the heart that loved her—Wordsworth> <so, times past all number deceived by false shows, deceiving we cumber the road of our foes, for this is our virtue: to track and betray—Kipling> A person double-crosses another and usually a friend, partner, or accomplice by deceiving or betraying him, especially by double-dealing or duplicity <said he had been double-crossed by his partner> <De Valera charged that his own trusted negotiators had double-crossed him by signing an agreement to take the detested oath of loyalty to the British king—Blanshard> Ana *cheat, cozen, defraud, overreach: outright, circumvent (see FRUSTRATE): *dupe, gull, befoul, trick, hoax, hoodwink, bamboozle Ana undeceive: enlighten decency *decorum, propriety, dignity, etiquette Ana seemliness, decorousness (see corresponding adjectives at DECOROUS): fitness, suitability, fittingness, appropriateness (see corresponding adjectives at FIT) deception 1 Deception, fraud, double-dealing, trickery, chicanery, canker mean the act or practice of, or the means used by, one who deliberately deceives in order to accomplish his ends. Deception may or may not imply blameworthiness, for it may be used not only of cheating, swindling, and tricking but also of many arts or games in which the object is illusion or mystification <he is incapable of deception> <there is, as the conjurers say, no deception about this tale—Kipling> (magicians are adepts in deception) Deception also may be used for the state of being deceived <fall into deception> <he is surely greedy of delusion, and will hardly avoid deception—Browne> Fraud, on the other hand, except in casual use, always implies guilt, often criminality, in act or practice. Distinctively, it usually suggests the perversion of the truth for the sake of persuading someone to surrender some valuable possession or a legal right <the elder brother gained control of the property by fraud> <he will never stoop to fraud, no matter how much he desires to get rich> The term may suggest an act or practice involving concealment of truth, violation of trust and confidence, or nonperformance of contracted acts by which one (as an agent, an attorney, an executor, an employer, or an employee) gains an advantage over another to the injury of the latter <according to one legal decision "silence where necessity requires speech may sometimes constitute fraud"> <I think that obtaining money by fraud may be made a crime as well as murder or theft; that a false representation, expressed or implied at the time of making a contract of labor, that one intends to perform it and thereby obtaining an advance, may be declared a case of fraudulently obtaining money—Justice Holmes> Double-dealing usually implies duplicity in character and in actions, for it frequently suggests an act that in its essence is contrary to one's professed attitude <one does not always believe them . . . they often say one thing and mean another, so that we may fairly accuse them of double-dealing—Jernigan> The term may imply secret treating with each of two opposed persons or groups as though one were friendly to that person or group and inimical to the other <Saville . . . by his double-dealing with the King and the Scots, proved himself a political traitor—D'Iseriably> Trickery implies acts or practices that are intended to dupe or befoul others; it often implies sharp practice or actual dishonesty <we rely not upon management or trickery, but upon our own hearts and hands—Jowett> <they held that the basest trickery or deceit was not dishonorable if directed against a foe—Amer. Guide Series: R. I.> Chicanery and chicanery imply petty or paltry trickery <making a tremendous fight,—Burke> chicane and chicanery imply petty or paltry trickery chiefly by friendly to that person or group and inimical to the other <many scenes of London intrigues and complex chicanery—De Quincey> <making a tremendous fight, chiefly by chicanery—whooping for peace while preparing for war, playing mob fear against mob fear—Mencen> Ana *deceit, duplicity, dissimulation, cunning, guile: cheating, cozening, defrauding, overreaching (see CHEAT): duping, gulling, hoaxing, hoodwinking, bamboozling, befouling (see DUPE) 2 *imposture, cheat, fraud, sham, fake, humbug, counterfei, deceit Ana illusion, *delusion, hallucination, mirage deceptive *misleading, delusory, delusive Ana specious, *plausible, colorable: *false, wrong Con genuine, *authentic, veritable, bona fide: true, *real, decide

decide, determine, settle, rule, resolve mean to come or to cause to come to a conclusion. Decide presupposes previous consideration of a matter causing doubt, waver- ing, debate, or controversy and implies the arriving at a more or less logical conclusion that brings doubt or debate to an end: the word may take as its subject the person or persons arriving at such a conclusion or the thing or things that bring them to the conclusion (the time for deliberation has then passed. He has decided—John Marshall) (this exordium, and Miss Pross’s two hands in quite agonized entreaty clapping his, decided Mr. Cruncher—Dickens) (the ... mistress of the household referred to her whether we should have another round or go in to supper. Of course, she always decided as she supposed the hostess wished—Jefferyes) (it should disturb the complacency of those network officials who decided ... that not enough people were watching to justify the expense—Seldes) Determine (see also DIS- cover 2) may mean to set limits or bounds to: when it means basically to decide, this implication of definitely fixing something so that its identity, its character, its scope, its direction is clear and beyond doubt distinguishes it from decide; one decides to give a dinner party but determines the guests to be invited; a legislature decides that the state constitution should be revised and appoints a committee with power to determine what changes shall be made. In a slightly different sense determine implies the arrival at a conclusion that either is a fixed and unalterable purpose or intention (can you weep [i.e., move by weeping] fate from its determined purpose?—Middle- ton) (she was ... obviously tormented by shyness, but as obviously determined to conquer it—Mackenzie) or is the inevitable result, outcome, or end of what precedes (what we notice determines what we do; what we do again determines what we experience—James) (their civilization was one of “city-states,” not of kingdoms and empires; and their whole political outlook was necessarily determined by this condition—Dickinson) Settle implies the arrival at a conclusion, often a mental or logical conclusion but sometimes a termination for which no individual is responsible, that brings to an end all doubt, all wavering, all dispute (the Supreme Court of the United States has power to settle all questions of law) (time has settled few or none of the essential points of dispute—Henry Adams) (death settled all their problems) Rule (see also GOVERN) implies a decision or determination by authority, especially by the authority of the court (the judge ruled that the question was inadmissible) Resolve implies an expressed or clear decision or determination to do or refrain from doing something (resolve to get up earlier in the mornings) (resolve to give up smoking) (he was resolved to win through to fortune, but he must first discover his tools—Buchan)

Ana conclude, judge, gather (see INFER): *judge, adjudge, adjudicate

Con vacillate, waver, *hesitate, falter decided, decisive are often confused, especially when they mean positive and leaving no room for doubt, uncertainty, or further discussion. In this sense the words are applied chiefly to persons, their natures, their utterances or manner of utterance, their opinions, or their choices. Decided implies a contrast with what is undetermined, indefinite, and neither this nor that; thus, a decided blue raises no question of its greenness or blackness; a decided success so far overpasses the line between success and failure that no one can question its favorable termination; a decided answer leaves no doubt of a person’s meaning, wishes, or intentions. When applied to a person’s charadvertising his willingness to make concessions—Time

In its specific sense, as implying publicity for the sake of gaining patronage or support for an article of merchandise, it implies the use of communication media (as the press, the radio, handbills, or billboards); so used, it is devoid of unfavorable connotation (advertise a new model of automobile) To proclaim is to announce orally, sometimes by means of other sound (as of a trumpet), and loudly in a public place; by extension, to give wide publicity to, often insistently, proudly, boldly, or defiantly (a lie is as much a lie, when it is whispered, as when it is proclaimed at the market cross—Wollaston) (you proclaim in the face of Hellas that you are a Sophist—Jowett) To promulgate is to make known to all concerned something that has binding force (as of a law of the realm or a dogma of the church) or something for which adherents are sought (as a theory or doctrine) (the Doctrine of the Immaculate Conception was promulgated in December 1854—Robertson) (that for the training of the young one subject is just as good as another . . . is surely . . . an amazing doctrine to promulgate—Grandgent) To broadcast is to make known (as by radio or television) in all directions over a large area (the doctrine of missionary zeal . . . has been broadcast over Christendom—Isaac Taylor) (the largest . . . wireless station that can broadcast to the world—Daily Mail) (the book he has written to broadcast this conviction—Gordon Harrison)

Ana *inform, apprise, acquaint, advise, notify: impart, *communicate: reveal, disclose, discover, divulge

2 *assert, profess, affirm, aver, avouch, avow, protest, predicate, warrant

Ana *express, voice, utter, vent, broach, air, ventilate

Con *suppress, repress: *hide, conceal declass *degrade, demote, reduce, disrate declassment decline, decedence, *deterioration, degeneration, devolution

Ana decaying or decay, disintegration, crumbling (see corresponding verbs at DECAY): retrogressiveness or retrogression, regressiveness or regression (see corresponding adjectives at BACKWARD)

Con ascent, *ascension: rising or rise (see corresponding verb RISE): advance, progress (see under ADVANCE vb): *progress, progression decline vb Decline, refuse, reject, repudiate, spurn are comparable when they mean to turn away something or someone by not consenting to accept, receive, or consider it or him. Decline is the most courteous of these terms and it is used chiefly in respect to invitations, offers (as of help), or services (decline an invitation to dinner) (she declined the chair the Judge pushed toward her—Cather) (I am very sensible of the honor of your proposals, but it is impossible for me to do otherwise than decline them—Austen) Refuse is more positive, often implying decisive-ness, even ungraciousness (meats by the law unclean . . . young Daniel could refuse—Milton) (the employers refused to *recognize the unions—Shaw) Refuse, however, may imply, as decline does not, the denial of something expected or asked for (refuse a child permission to go out) (Mark knew that Mrs. Bluepott only lived to receive visitors, and he had not the heart to refuse her the pleasure of a few minutes—Mackenzie) Reject stresses a throwing away, a discarding, or abandoning; it implies a refusal to have anything to do with a person or thing (those who accepted the offer and those who rejected it—Montague) (Plotinus definitely rejects the notion that beauty is only *innate—Eliot) (the poor man must be forgiven a freedom of expression tinged at rare moments with a touch of bitterness, which manumagnanimity as well as caution would reject for one triumphant—Cardozo)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
when it satisfies a somewhat fastidious taste in behavior, manners, or speech <his conduct is not always so nice> <it is not enough for the knight of romance that you agree that his lady is a very nice girl—Justice Holmes> <the undergraduate literary club, whose membership included all nice boys with literary pretensions—Marquand> Ana formal, conventional, ceremonious, *ceremonial; dignified, elegant (see corresponding nouns at ELEGANCE) Ant indecorous: blatant decorticate *skin, peel, pare, flay decorum, decency, propriety, dignity, etiquette are comparable either when they mean a code of rules respecting what is right, fitting, or honorable in behavior or, more often, when they mean the quality or character of rightness, fitness, or honorableness in behavior resulting from the observance of such a code. The first three words are somewhat literary; the last two are the most common in speech. Both decorum and decency imply that the code is based upon the nature of things or the circumstances which attend them, and therefore the rules which it embody have their basis in nature or sound reason. De-orum especially suggests a code of rigid rules or laws governing the behavior of civilized men under given or understood conditions <if gentlemen of that profession [the army] were at least obliged to some external decorum in their conduct—Swift> <that continual breach of . . .
decorum which, in exposing his wife to the contempt of her own children, was so highly reprehensible—Austen> <he enjoyed a distinguished reputation for the excellence of his sermons, for the conduct of his diocese . . . and for the decorum and devotion of his private life—T. S. Eliot> The term may suggest also order, moderation, and a high degree of intelligibility as a basis of literary or artistic beauty <that decorum and orderliness without which all writing speech must be ineffective and obscure—Ellis> Decency often stresses a freedom from immodesty or obscenity <decency in dress> <decency in conduct> It may imply a seemliness or appropriateness that is based upon the right relation of one thing to another (as of a person to his profession, rank, or condition in life or of a thing to its use or end) <for himself, Father Joseph was scarcely acquiesce to the point of decency. He owned nothing in the world but his mule—Cather> <there are those . . . for whom St. Paul's [in London], in comparison with St. Peter's [in Rome], is not lacking in decency—T. S. Eliot> <there were May [his wife], and habit, and honor, and all the old decencies or proprieties <lost his dignity> <not in accord with the dignity of man as a son of God> <I had half a mind to save my dignity by telling him that—Conrad> <it is of the essence of real dignity to be self-sustained, and no man's dignity can be asserted without being impaired—Henry Taylor> Etiquette is the usual term for the code of manners and behavior governing one's conduct in society or in particular circumstances (as in a court or legislature). It may replace propriety, for the conventional observance of these rules <trained in the complex etiquette and protocol of the Diplomatic Corps> <unaware of the etiquette governing the setting of a table for a formal dinner> <the pompous etiquette of the court—Prescott> <Augustus had kept to the strict constitutional etiquette, indicating his preference but leaving the choice of his successor to the Senate—Buchan> <formality, conventionality, ceremoniousness, solemnity (see corresponding adjectives at CEREMONIAL); form, convention, convenience, usage Ant indecorum: license decoy n *lure, bait, snare, trap decoy vb *lure, entice, inveigle, tempt, seduce Ana snare, ensnare, trap, entrap, capture, *catch, bag: beguile, delude, *deceive, mislead decrease vb Decrease, lessen, diminish, reduce, abate, dwindle denote to make or grow less, but they are not freely interchangeable. Decrease and lessen are often employed in place of any other. Decrease normally, even in the transitive, an implication of the process of growing less, and suggests progressive decline <forces that decrease the population> <his temperature decreases> <his fears decreased as dawn approached> <the rise of the public high school . . . decreased the number and lessened the importance of the academies—Amer. Guide Series: Vt.> Lessen is a close synonym of decrease but the latter is to be preferred in contexts employing specific numbers; thus, it is idiomatic to say that a fever has lessened or that it has decreased from 101° to 99° <I hoped to obtain your forgiveness, to lessen your ill opinion—Austen> Diminish is a more precise word when the ideas of taking away or subtraction by an agent and of resultant perceptible loss are to be emphasized <their funds were greatly diminished by their extravagance> <his sense of personal initiative is culti-ved instead of being diminished—Russell> Reduce adds to diminish the implication of bringing down, or lowering; it suggests more than any of the others the operation of a personal agent <reduce the time needed for an operation> <prices were reduced to below cost> <reduce budget estimates drastically> Reduce also is applicable to lowering in rank, status, or condition <reduce a sergeant to the ranks> <suddenly reduced from riches to absolute penury—Conrad> Abate differs from diminish and reduce in its presupposition of something excessive in force, intensity, or amount and in its strong implication of moderation or, especially when referred to taxes or imposts, of deduction (physically weakened by a stomach disorder that will not abate—Alpert) Dwindle, like decrease, implies progressive lessening, but is more often applied to things capable of growing visibly smaller. It specifically connotes approach to a vanishing point <hull down—hull down and under—she dwindles to a speck—Kipling>
deduce infer, gather, conclude, judge

dedicate (deduct, subtract)

dictate, prescribe, ordain, impose (degree)

decry, depreciate, disparage, derogate, detract, belittle, minimize (mean to write, speak, or otherwise indicate one's feeling in regard to something in such a way as to reveal one's low opinion of it. Decry implies open or public censure or censure with the intent to discredit or run down someone or something (there seems almost a general wish of decrying the capacity and undervaluing the labor of the novelist—Austen)
<y've had a Western education . . . but you're decrying everything Western science has contributed to the world—Heiser>
(Dec depreciation implies a representation of a person or thing as of smaller worth than that usually ascribed to it (to prove that the Americans ought not to be free, we are obliged to depreciate the value of freedom itself—Burke)
<(he seems to me to depreciate Shakespeare for the wrong reasons—T. S. Eliot)>
<(shocked to learn that professional art critics today depreciate his works—Mary McCarthy)> (Disparage implies depreciation by more subtle or indirect methods (as slighting, invidious reference, or faint praise) (the critic . . . is generally disparaged as an artist who has failed—L. P. Smith)>
<(cities . . . which they sometimes pretended to disparage, but of which they were secretly and inordinately proud—Repreneur)> (Derogate and detract (both with from) stress the idea of taking away, positively and injuriously, especially from reputation or merit; derogate from may be used with an impersonal subject only, detract from with either a personal or an impersonal subject (a few instances of inaccuracy or mediocrity can never derogate from the superlative merit of Homer and Vergil—Goldsmith)
<(far am I from detracting from the merit of some gentlemen . . . on that occasion—Burke)>
<(the advocates of pure poetry are apt to take the line that any admixture of logical, of "prose" meaning detracts from the value of a poem—Day Lewis)>
(Belittle and minimize both imply depreciation, but belittle suggests an effort to make a thing contemptibly small, and minimize to reduce it to a minimum or to make it seem either disparagingly or defensively as small as possible (he was inclined to belittle the assistance he had received from others)
<(he minimized the dangers of the task) (let there be no belittling of such qualities as Archer's—his coherent thinking, his sense of the worth of order and workmanship—Montague)>
(always delighted at a pretext for belittling a distinguished contemporary—Edmund Wilson)>
<("Don't think that I am trying to minimize your excellent work among the hop pickers this year,") he told his curate—Mackenzie)> (Ant add deduction 1 Deduction, abatement, rebate, discount are comparable when they mean an amount subtracted from a gross sum. Deduction is interchangeable with any of the others but not without some loss in precision. An abatement is a deduction from a levied tax or impost (an abatement of the duties levied at the customhouse) A rebate is an amount deducted and returned after payment either in adjustment of an overcharge or to gain a competitive advantage (a rebate on an income tax) (a rebate on an insurance premium) A discount is a deduction from an amount owed or a price asked in consideration of a cash or prompt payment (this bill is subject to 2 percent discount if paid within thirty days) It also may denote an advance deduction of the amount of interest payable on a loan or note from the time the loan is made or the note purchased until the due date (the bank credited his account with the proceeds of the note less the discount) (2 inference, conclusion, judgment (see under infer) 3 Deduction, induction and their corresponding adjectives deductive, inductive are comparable as used in logic to designate forms of reasoning. Deduction and deductive imply reasoning from premises or propositions antecedently proved or assumed as true or certain and procedure from the general or universal to a particular conclusion; thus, the conclusion that one must die someday is based on the premises that all men are mortal and that one is a man; therefore one infers by deduction or deductive reasoning that one must necessarily be mortal. Induction and inductive imply reasoning from particular facts to a conclusion that is general or universal in its nature. In its simplest form induction implies a knowledge of every particular and a generalization from these; thus, the conclusion that all of a certain man's books have red bindings is reached by induction or inductive reasoning when one has surveyed his library and has found no exception to this rule. In its more complicated forms, since knowledge of every particular is usually impossible, induction often implies the use of postulates or assumptions which are generally accepted (as the uniformity of nature), more or less tentative conclusions, and constant observation and reexamination of the evidence. In this sense many of the laws of nature stated in the various sciences are derived by induction, but when these laws are used as premises and become the bases for further inferences, the reasoning becomes deductive.
deductive inductive (see under deduction 3) (Ana inferential, ratiocinative (see under inference))

deep

dea

deduce

deduct, subtract mean to take away one quantity from another. Deduct usually is used in reference to amounts (as of costs, payments, or credits) while subtract is used in reference to numbers or to figures obtained by a computation or calculation (subtract the cost of transportation from the profits) (subtract the price of the returned article from his bill) (subtract five from nine) (subtract five percent of the receipts for his commission) (subtract the area of the triangular northeast section from the area of the whole plot of ground)

Ant add deduction 1 Deduction, abatement, rebate, discount are comparable when they mean an amount subtracted from a gross sum. Deduction is interchangeable with any of the others but not without some loss in precision. An abatement is a deduction from a levied tax or impost (an abatement of the duties levied at the customhouse) A rebate is an amount deducted and returned after payment either in adjustment of an overcharge or to gain a competitive advantage (a rebate on an income tax) (a rebate on an insurance premium) A discount is a deduction from an amount owed or a price asked in consideration of a cash or prompt payment (this bill is subject to 2 percent discount if paid within thirty days) It also may denote an advance deduction of the amount of interest payable on a loan or note from the time the loan is made or the note purchased until the due date (the bank credited his account with the proceeds of the note less the discount) (2 inference, conclusion, judgment (see under infer) 3 Deduction, induction and their corresponding adjectives deductive, inductive are comparable as used in logic to designate forms of reasoning. Deduction and deductive imply reasoning from premises or propositions antecedently proved or assumed as true or certain and procedure from the general or universal to a particular conclusion; thus, the conclusion that one must die someday is based on the premises that all men are mortal and that one is a man; therefore one infers by deduction or deductive reasoning that one must necessarily be mortal. Induction and inductive imply reasoning from particular facts to a conclusion that is general or universal in its nature. In its simplest form induction implies a knowledge of every particular and a generalization from these; thus, the conclusion that all of a certain man's books have red bindings is reached by induction or inductive reasoning when one has surveyed his library and has found no exception to this rule. In its more complicated forms, since knowledge of every particular is usually impossible, induction often implies the use of postulates or assumptions which are generally accepted (as the uniformity of nature), more or less tentative conclusions, and constant observation and reexamination of the evidence. In this sense many of the laws of nature stated in the various sciences are derived by induction, but when these laws are used as premises and become the bases for further inferences, the reasoning becomes deductive.

deductive inductive (see under deduction 3) (Ana inferential, ratiocinative (see under inference))

deep n action, act (Ana exploit, *feat, achievement)

deep vi transfer, convey, alienate (Ana consider, regard, account, reckon)

deep 1 Deep, profound, abyssmal. Deep and profound denote extended either downward from a surface or, less often, backward or inward from a front or outer part. Deep is the most general term (a deep pond) (a slope cut by deep gullies) As applied to persons or to mental states or processes, deep implies the presence or a necessity for the exercise of penetration or subtlety, sometimes of craft ⟨a deep politician⟩ ⟨deep plots⟩ ⟨a little time often estranges men from religion, a deeper knowledge brings them back to it—Inge⟩ ⟨a deep study of the inner meaning of the work—Braithwaite⟩ Prof-found connotes exceedingly great depth ⟨a gulf profound as that Serbonian bog . . . where armies whole have sunk—Milton⟩ ⟨canyons more profound than our deepest mountain gorges—Cather⟩ It may imply the presence or need of thoroughness ⟨a profound thinker⟩ ⟨a profound treatise⟩ ⟨are, in their meditative depths, among the few profound poems of our day—Untermeyer⟩ As expressing intensity, profound is commonly stronger than deep ⟨motherhood, this queer, sensuous, cherishing love . . . an emotion more profound than most—Rose Macaulay⟩ Abysmal carries the idea of abyss, infinite depth, and implies fathomless distance downward, backward, or inward from a surface ⟨mount-tain roads . . . within a few inches of abysmal precipices
—W. R. Arnold⟩ It may imply measureless degree and is then used with words denoting a lack of something ⟨abysmal ignorance⟩ ⟨abysmal darkness⟩ ⟨plays of an abysmal foolishness—Brooks⟩ Con shallow, *superficial: flat, plane, plain, *level 2 *broad, wide deep-rooted deep-seated, chronic, confirmed, *inveherate Ana established, fixed, set, settled (see set vb)
Con eradicated, extirpated, uprooted, wiped out (see EXTERMINATE)

deface, disfigure mean to mar the appearance of a thing.
Deface usually suggests a marring of the face or external appearance of something; it frequently implies the effacement, obliteration, or removal of some part or detail ⟨earth has yet a little gilding left, not quite rubbed off, dishonored, and defaced—Hazlitt⟩ ⟨a door defaced by innumerable incised inscriptions—Shaw⟩ ⟨bad poets deface what they take [from others], and good poets make it into something better—T. S. Eliot⟩ Disfigure, as app lied to a surface, implies deeper or more permanent injury than deface; as applied to figure or configuration, it frequently suggests such impairing of beauty or attract-tiveness as results from other than structural injury ⟨a book disfigured by many serious faults⟩ ⟨the smallpox
. . . fell foul of poor little Oliver's face . . . and left him scarred and disfigured for his life—Thackeray⟩ ⟨where trees, disfigured by no gaudy lanterns, offered the refreshment of their darkness and serenity—Galsworthy⟩ ⟨in the midst of the political investigations which disfigure our time—Sat. Review⟩

Ana *injure, damage, mar: *deform, distort, contort, mutilate, batter, mangle (see MAIM) defame vilify, calumniate, *malign, traduce, asperse, slander, libel
Ana vituperate, revile (see SCOLD): *decry, disparage, detract, derogate
Con *praise, laud, eulogize, extol, acclaim default n *failure, neglect, miscarriage, dereliction Ana absence, *lack, want, privation: *imperfection, deficiency, shortage, fault defeat vb beat, *conquer, vanquish, lick, subdue, subjugate, reduce, overcome, surmount, overthrow, rout Ana *frustrate, thwart, foil, baffle, balk, circumvent, outwit
Con *yield, submit, capitulate, succumb, cave, bow, defer defect 1 *lack, want, dearth, absence, privation Ana deficiency, definitiveness (see corresponding adjectives at DEFICIENT): *need, necessity, exigency 2 flaw, *blemish

Ana *fault, failing, frailty, foible Con *excellence, perfection, virtue, merit defection, desertion, apostasy mean an abandonment that involves the breaking of a moral or legal bond or tie and that is highly culpable from the point of view of the person, cause, or party abandoned. Defection emphasizes both the fact of one's falling away and the loss that is sustained by his failure to adhere to his allegiance; in itself as apart from the context it commonly gives no certain indication of motive, though at times disaffection or loss of confidence is connoted ⟨the conversions are probably balanced by the defections and in some countries the Church seems even to be losing ground—Times Lit.
Sup.⟩ ⟨the news of the defection of Lepidus caused the Senate to declare him a public enemy—Buchan⟩ ⟨a single defection would throw the Senate into a deadlock of 48 to 48—Neuberger⟩ Desertion (see also under ABANdon) presupposes an oath of allegiance or a duty or an obligation to guard, protect, or support, the violation of which constitutes a crime or a distinctly blameworthy act. It also suggests a base motive (as cowardly fear or a desire to shirk) ⟨the penalty for desertion from an army in time of war is usually death⟩ ⟨many persons considered Wordsworth's defection from the liberal cause a desertion⟩ ⟨the crisis of our times is not such as to justify desertion of basic traditions—Chapman⟩ Apostasy implies a repudiation of something one has formerly and voluntarily professed; it connotes therefore a retreat (as in weakness) from a position or stand one has taken.
The term is used chiefly with reference to a repudiation of religious beliefs, but it is employed also when moral, philosophical, or other principles are involved ⟨when Raphael . . . had forewarned Adam, by dime example, to beware apostasy—Milton⟩ ⟨marriage is to me apostasy
. . . sale of my birthright, shameful surrender—Shaw⟩ ⟨my political apostasy . . . was attended with no diminution of reverence for that great citizen army that defended and saved the Union—Nicholson⟩

Ana disaffection, alienation, estrangement (see corresponding verbs at ESTRANGE): abandonment, forsaking (see corresponding verbs at ABANDON) Con faithfulness, loyalty, constancy (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHFUL): allegiance, *fidelity, fealty defective *deficient
Ana impaired, damaged, injured, marred (see INJURE):
violated, corrupted, debased (see under DEBASE): deranged, disordered (see DISORDER)
Ana intact —Con *perfect, entire, whole: complete,
*full, plenary: sound, *healthy defend 1 Defend, protect, shield, guard, safeguard mean to keep secure from danger or against attack. Defend implies the use of means to ward off something that actually threatens or to repel something that actually attacks ⟨raise a large army to defend the country from aggression⟩ ⟨guns used in defending the explorers against hostile incursions of the natives⟩ ⟨the independence of the Supreme Court of the United States should be defended at all costs—Lippmann⟩ Protect implies the use of a covering as a bar to the admission or impact of what may injure or destroy ⟨protect one's estate from intruders by a high wall⟩ ⟨protect one's eyes from the sun by dark glasses⟩ ⟨protect one's family by ample insurance⟩ ⟨protect tobacco plants by a cheesecloth screen⟩ ⟨the ring of old forts which so far had protected the city successfully—P. W. Thompson⟩ Shield differs from protect

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
especially in its suggestion of a protective intervention comparable to a medieval warrior's shield before one exposed to imminent danger or actual attack (Heavens shield) Lysander, if they mean a fray!—Shak.} (I could scarcely believe that she would wish to shield her husband's murderer, if he were that—Rose Macaulay)

Guard implies a standing watch at or over for the sake of defense; it usually connotes vigilance (the entrances to the palace are well guarded) (the president is always guarded by secret service men) (the accumulation of private wealth in Boston, thriftily guarded by the canny Whigs—Brooks) (inmates of a fortress are defended by its guns, protected by its walls, and guarded by sentinels against surprise) Safeguard, much more strongly than any of the preceding words, implies use of protective measures where merely potential danger exists (safeguard children who play on the streets) (safeguard our shores from attack) (in all this he was more than worldly-wise. He was safeguarding his own self-respect—Reppi)

Defer, postpose, intermit, suspend, stay mean to cause a delay in an action, activity, or proceeding. Defer suggests a delay in an action, activity, or proceeding; it may suggest bringing something that is in progress; it may suggest bringing it to a complete stop, but more often it suggests an intermitting or suspending or a slackening of pace (two spectators started forward, but she stayed them with a motion of her hand—Dickens) (they couldn't stay the flow of her ideas by reminding her how much the alteration would cost—Mary Austin) (when his mind fails to stay the pace set by its inventions, madness must ensue—Day Lewis)

Deference reverence, homage, *honor, obeisance

Deficient adj Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficiency imperfection, shortcoming, fault

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)

Deficient, defective mean showing lack of something necessary. The words are sometimes used interchangeably though they tend to diverge in their meanings. Deficient typically implies a falling short in the amount, quantity, or force considered essential to adequacy or sufficiency; defective on the other hand typically implies existence of some definite fault, injury, or flaw that impairs the completeness or efficiency of something; thus, a person is deficient in courage when he has not sufficient courage to meet his difficulties; he is mentally deficient when he has not sufficient intelligence to enable him to take care of himself; he is mentally defective (or a mental defective) when some fault or defect in his nervous system impairs his ability to think coherently; he suffers from defective hearing when he is so affected that he cannot understand what is said to him—H.L. Mencken)
definitive | 221 | degrade
---|---|---
definitive | 1 | degrade
  *determinate, decisive, conclusive definite
  *determinate, decisive, conclusive
  *determinate, decisive, conclusive

deflate
- *compress, shrink, contract, condense, constrict
- deflate, deviation, aberration, divergence
- deflate
  - define, tentatively, provisionally
  - define, tentatively, provisionally deflection

- deviation, aberration, divergence
- deviate, deviate, diverge
- *deleterious, harmful, devastating, disastrous

deflect
- turn, divert, avert, sheer
- deviate, deviate, diverge
- *deflect, deviation, aberration, divergence

deform
- distort, contort, warp
- warped
- *deform, *distort, deviation, aberration, divergence degenerate

- *corrupt, infamous, vicious, villainous, degenerate
- deteriorate, decline, declension
- degenerate, demeaned (see ABASE): debased, degraded, degraded

degrade
- demean, demote, reduce, decrase, disrate
- *degrade, demean, demote, reduce, decrase, disrate
- *degrade, demean, demote, reduce, decrase, disrate
of her brothers} Perhaps more frequently it may imply an altering of or a freeing from the restrictions of social status {the growing masses of modern society that stand outside all class-strata. These declased groups, composed . . . of individuals from all strata of society—(Arendt)}

{a younger generation which feels that the writer ought to be at least a spiritual vagabond, a declased mind—(The Dial)} {members of the declased intelligentsia—(Ridgely Cummings)}

Disrate implies a reduction in military and more especially in naval or nautical rank and is used chiefly with reference to petty or noncommissioned officers {the witness had been chief mate . . . but had been *disrated . . . for drunkenness—Mercantile Marine Mag.}

Ana humble, humblest, *abase, debase: disbar, rule out (see EXCLUSE)

Ant elevate

2 2

dehydrate vb desiccate, *dry, parch, bake

deign condescend, *stoop

deject vb *discourage, dishearten, dispirit

depress weigh, oppress: distress, *trouble

dejected depressed, dispirited, *downcast, disconsolate, *dry, parch, bake

delay vb 1 Delay, retard, slow, slacken, *detrain are not always close synonyms, but they carry the same basic meaning: to cause someone or something to be behind in his or its schedule or usual rate of movement or progress.

Delay implies the operation, usually the interference, of something that keeps back or impedes, especially from completion or arrival at a set or given time {a plague upon that villain Somerset, that thus delays my promised supply—Shak.} {a criminal court jury . . . delayed a verdict all afternoon—C. G. Jameson)

that villain Somerset, that thus my promised supply—

retard the revolution of a wheel)  {the production of certain parts necessary for airplanes is lagging} Loiter implies delay while in progress, commonly while one is walking but sometimes while one is trying to accomplish a piece of work; it also suggests lingering or aimless sauntering or lagging behind {very little remained to be done. Catherine had not loitered; she was almost dressed, and her packing almost finished—Austen> {the caravan has to go on; to loiter at any distance behind is to court extinction—Montague} {the children sauntered down Sloane Street, loitering at the closed shop windows, clinging their shillings in their pockets—Rose Macaulay} Dawdle carries a slighter implication of delay in progress (especially in walking) than loiter but an even stronger connotation of idleness, aimlessness, or of a wandering mind; consequently it usually implies a wasting of time or a taking of more time than is warranted {dawdle through four years of college} {the new maid dawdled over her work) {I did not hurry the rest of the way home; but neither did I dawdle—Heiser} {the sun dawdles intolerably on the threshold like a tedious guest—Jan Struther}

Ana linger, tarry, wait (see STAY): *hesitate, falter, vacillate, waver

Ant hasten, hurry

delectable *delightful, delicious, luscious

Ana gratifying, grateful, agreeable, pleasing, welcome, *pleasing: exquisite, rare, delicate, dainty, *choice: *palatable, savory, sapid, toothsome

Con *offensive, repulsive, revolting, loathsome: repel- lent, *repugnant, distasteful, abhorrent, obnoxious

delection enjoyment, delight, *pleasure, joy, fruition

Ana amusement, diversion, entertainment (see under AMUSE): gratifying or gratification, regaling or regale- ment (see corresponding verbs at PLEASE) delegate n Delegate, deputy, representative designate a person who stands in place of another or others. It is not always possible to distinguish these words, for they are all used in different places or at different times to designate persons whose offices and functions are much the same. Nevertheless there are broad or general differences in meaning which may be observed, although they will not always afford a clue as to why this person or that is called a delegate, a deputy, or a representative. Delegate applies to a person who is sent or is thought of as being sent with a commission to transact business for another or for others; it often specifically designates a person who is sent by an organized or unorganized body (as a branch of a larger organization or a group of employees) to a meeting where questions pertaining to the welfare of the entire organization or industry will be discussed and voted upon. Delegate usually implies powers that are not plenary but are somewhat modified (as by the delegate's own power to influence or convince others and by the need of his bowing to the will of the majority) (a lay delegate to a Protestant Episcopal synod) (each branch of the American Legion sends two delegates to the national convention) (the workers and the employers each sent three delegates to the conference) Deputy applies to a person who is given authority to act for another or for others as a substitute or as an agent; it is particularly applicable to a person who has been chosen to perform a part or the whole of an official's duties (the sheriff of each county appoints one or more deputies) (since he could not be present at the conference, he sent a deputy) Representative applies fundamentally to a person who takes the place of one or more persons in a situation where for some reason the latter cannot be. It may be used of a person engaged to do or to transact business for another or others (the firm's legal representative) (the king's representative at the peace conference) However it is more often employed in reference to one who takes the place of a larger group (as the electorate of a particular region) and thereby belongs to a body of men who as a whole are charged with making the laws for the state or nation (even in a democracy the people as a whole cannot make the laws but assign that work to their representatives in Congress or in Parliament) (the elected became true representatives of the electors—Steele) The terms are often used to imply the same or very similar functions in different places; thus, approximately the same body is called the House of Representatives in the United States and the Chamber of Deputies in the Republic of France; there is little difference except in voting powers between a representative from a state in the United States Congress and a delegate from a territory.

delete cancel, efface, obliterate, blot out, expunge, *erase ana eliminate, *exclude, rule out: omit (see neglect vb) deletious detrimental, *pernicious, baneful, noxious ana injuring or injurious, harming or harmful, hurting or hurtful (see corresponding verbs at injure): destroying or destructive (see corresponding verb destroy): ruining or ruinous (see corresponding verb ruin)

ant salutary —con *beneficial, advantageous, profitable: wholesome, *healthful, healthy deliberate adj 1 willful, intentional, *voluntary, willing ana purposed, intended (see intend): conscious, cognizant, *aware: mortal, *deadly ant impulsive —con inadvertent, *careless, heedless, thoughtless

2 Deliberate, considered, advised, premeditated, designed, studied are comparable when applied to a person's acts, words, or accomplishments with the meaning thought out in advance. Deliberate implies full awareness of the nature of what one says or does and often a careful and unhurried calculation of the intended effect or of the probable consequences (a deliberate lie) (a deliberate snub) (Poe's consummate and deliberate technique—Lowes) (the deliberate insertion into a lyrical context of pieces of slang and "prosaic" words—Day Lewis) (the tone of most comment, whether casual or deliberate, implies that ineptitude and inadequacy are the chief characteristics of government—Frankfurter) Considered, unlike deliberate, which it closely resembles in meaning, is seldom applied to questionable acts or practices; it suggests careful study from all angles rather than calculation and often, therefore, connotes soundness or maturity of judgment (there was no time for a considered reply) (the committee had before it many half-baked and a few considered proposals) (it [the press] is against Democrats, so far as I can see, not after a sober and considered review of the alternatives, but automatically, as dogs are against cats—A. E. Stevenson) (he saw no reason to parade his considered and decided loyalty—Wylie) Advised mostly is used with depreciatory or intensifying adverbial modifiers and denotes so well thought out and considered that possible criticisms and objections have been reviewed and answers to them prepared (she felt well advised to visit him before deciding to be his wife—Forster) (the public is well-advised to leave methodological decisions to members of the medical profession—Woodring) Its related adverb advisedly is often used to carry the implications of considered (which has no adverb) (he told them he used the offending word advisedly) (everything in this difficult situation has been done advisedly) (I often say that one must permit oneself, and that quite advisedly and deliberately, a certain margin of misstatement—Cardozo) Premeditated emphases forethought and planning but often falls far short of deliberate in implying careful calculation and awareness of consequences (certain self-conscious preciosities in his premeditated style—Powys) It is applied especially to things (as crimes or insults) which are morally or socially unacceptable and for which only overwhelming impulse or overmastering passion (as of fear or rage) could reasonably be offered as extenuating circumstances; in such relation, then, premeditated implies wrongdoing unmitigated by circumstances (a premeditated murder) (plain that Thady's presence on the scene at the moment was accidental and that the attack could not have been premeditated—Trollope) Designed and its adverb designedly are often applied to what has the appearance of being accidental, spontaneous, or natural but which is actually the result of intention (the designed failure of a project) (useless to seek to know whether he has been for years overlooked, or always designedly held prisoner—Dickens) Studied is applied chiefly to effects gained or qualities achieved as a result of painstaking effort or careful attention to detail; it connotes absence of spontaneity (a rather studied performance of a Beethoven symphony) (the studied dignity and anxious courtesy of the actor-manager—Shaw) It is also applied to offensive acts committed with cool deliberation and with attention to their probable effect (treat the opposition with studied discourtesy)

ana planned, schemed, projected (see corresponding verbs under plan vb): calculated (see calculate): *careful, meticulous, scrupulous ant casual —con haphazard, *random, hit-or-miss, desultory, happy-go-lucky, chance, chancy

3 leisurely, *slow, dilatory, laggard ana *cautious, circumspect, wary, chary, calculating: *cool, collected, composed, imperturbable

ant precipitate, abrupt —con impetuous, headlong, sudden, hasty (see precipitate) delightful, *delight
vb
delight
vb

delicious
deliberate
vb

delineate 1
trace, outline, *sketch, diagram, draft, plot, blueprint

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
that he is being pursued) (he had hallucinations as a child. Mediaeval figures from the Faerie Queene had walked beside him on his way to school—Brooks) Mirage is comparable with the preceding terms only in its extended sense in which it usually applies to a vision, dream, hope, or aim which one takes as a guide, not realizing that it is merely an illusion (this hope to find your people. . . . is a mirage, a delusion, which will lead to destruction if you will not abandon it—Hudson) Ana *deception, trickery, chicane, chicanery: *imposture, counterfeit, cheat, fraud, sham, fake, humbug, deceit: fantasy, vision, dream, daydream. *fancy delusive, delusory deceptive, *misleading Ana fantastic, chimerical, visionary, *imaginary, fanciful, quixotic: fallacious, sophistical, casuistical (see under fallacy): illusory, seeming, ostensible, *apparent delve *dig, spade, grub, excavate demand vb Demand, claim, require, exact are comparable not as close synonyms but as sharing the basic meaning to ask or call for something as due or as necessary or as strongly desired. Demand strongly implies peremptoriness or insistency; if the subject is a person or sometimes an expression of his will (as a law), it usually implies that he possesses or believes he possesses the right or the authority not only to issue a peremptory request but also to expect its being regarded as a command (the physician demanded payment of his bill) (the court demands fair treatment of the accused by the prosecutor) (the father demanded knowledge of what had occurred during his absence from home) (can he [the keeper of a public record] refuse a copy thereof to a person demanding it on the terms prescribed by law?—John Marshall) (instincts which the conventions of good manners and the imperatives of morality demand that they should repress—Huxley) If the subject of the verb is a thing, the verb implies the call of necessity or of imperative need (the fire that the cool evenings of early spring demanded—Mary Austin) (the mind and body of a child demand a great deal of play—Russell) (he is best in his plays when dealing with situations which do not demand great emotional concentration—T. S. Eliot) Claim implies a demanding either of the delivery or concession of something due one as one's own, one's right, or one's prerogative or of the admission or recognition of something which one as- serts or affirms; thus, one who claims a piece of property demands its delivery to him as his own; one who claims that he has solved a problem demands recognition of the truth of his assertion (there is no right to freedom or life. But each man does claim such freedom—Alexander) (a genius, say his detractors, can be perverse, and they claim the right to tell this genius when and where and why he is perverse—Read) Require is often used interchangeably with demand, but it usually distinctively implies imperativeness such as arises from inner necessity (con- secutive thinking absolutely requires personal initiative—Eliot) or the compulsion of law or regulation (require that every member of the bank's staff be bonded) or the exigencies of the situation (I shall not go away till you have given me the assurance I require—Austen) Exact implies not only demanding something but getting what one demands (exact payment of overdue rent) (exact a promise from a friend) (she . . . kept a keen eye on her Court, and exacted prompt and willing obedience from king and archbishops—Henry Adams) (the mistake of exacting reparations in money and then lending Germany the money with which to pay—Truman) Ana *limit, restrict, circumscribe, confine: define, assign, prescribe demeanor deport, comport, *behave, conduct, acquit, quit Ana *carry, bear (as reflexive verbs) demeanor *abase, degrade, debase, humble, humiliates Con heighten, enhance (see intensify): exalt, magnify, aggravize demeanoror deportment, *bearing, mien, port, presence Ana *behavior, conduct, deportment: *posture, attitude, pose: air, mannerism, *pose, affectation demented *insane, mad, crazy, crazed, deranged, lunatic, maniac, non compos mentis Ana *irrational, unreasonable: delirious, hysterical, frenzied (see corresponding nouns at mania) Ant rational dementia *insanity, lunacy, mania, psychosis Ana *mania, delirium, hysteria, frenzy demise *death, decease, passing demolish *destroy, raze Ana wreck, *ruin, dilapidate: devastate, *ravage, waste, sack Ant construct demoniac, demonic diabolic, diabolical, *fiendish, devilish Ana hellish, *infernal: crazed, crazy, maniac, *insane: inspired, fired (see inform) Con *celestial, heavenly demonstrate 1 manifest, evince, *show, evidence Ana *reveal, disclose, discover, betray: display, exhibit, parade, flaunt, expose. *show Ana *hide, conceal, secrete: dissemble, cloak, mask, *disguise, camouflage 2 *prove, try, test Ana argue, debate (see discuss): substantiate, verify, authenticate, *confirm, corroborate, validate demonstration proof, trial, test (see under prove) Ana substantiation, confirming or confirmation, corroboration, verification (see corresponding verbs at confirm) demote *degrade, reduce, declass, disrate Ant promote (in rank, grade) demur vb Demur, scruple, balk, jib, shy, boggle, stick, stickle, strain are comparable when they mean to hesitate or show reluctance because of difficulties in the way. One demurs to or at something when one raises objections to it, casts doubt upon it, or takes exception to it, thereby interposing obstacles which delay action, procedure, or decision (our colleagues in the university who demur on academic grounds to the inclusion of theology—Moherby) In older use the stress was on delay (notwithstanding he hoped that matters would have been long since brought to an issue, the fair one still demurs—Spectator) In modern use the emphasis is commonly on objection (Jerry . . . proposed that. . . . we stretch a point as standing he hoped that matters would have been long since brought to an issue, the fair one still demurs—Spectator) One scruples to do or at doing something when he is reluctant because his conscience bothers or because he is doubtful of the propriety, expediency, or morality of the action; the word is increasingly common in a negative construction (scruple to accept any gift that might seem a bribe) (he does not scruple to ask the most abominable things of you—Meredith) (in Greece and in particular Athens was overrun by philosophers, who . . . did not scruple to question the foundations of social and moral obligation—Dickinson) One balks (often at something) when he stops short and obstinately refuses to go further in his course because he has reached The limit of strength, courage, credulity, or tolerance (the horse balked at the leap) (he never balks at any task no matter how difficult it is) (there is the opposite case of the man who yields his poetic faith too readily, who does not balk at any improbablity—Babbitt) (one rather balks at the idea of synthetic roughage—excelsior, wood chips, or whatever may be at hand—Furnas) One jibs (often at something) when he balks like a horse and backs away or out (I had settled to finish the review, when, behold... I jibbed—Scott) (he jibbed at alliance with the Catholic League—Belloe) (his soldiers, many of whom had served with Antony, jibbed at the attack on their old leader—Buchan) One shies at, away from, or off from something when he suddenly frightened horse recoils or swerves aside in alarm or distaste or suspicion and is unable to proceed or act (Shy at the sight of blood) (these turns of speech... have the old virtue in them; you see the old temperament of the race still evincing itself; still shying away from the long abstract word—Montague) One boggles at, over, or about something from which he by temperament, instinct, or training shies away. In addition, to boggle often implies scripting or fussing (when a native begins perjury he perjures himself thoroughly. He does not boggle over details—Kipling) (we [lovers of poetry] do not balk at the sea-wave washing the rim of the sun, which we know it does not do, any more than we boggle at blackberries that are red when they are green—Lowes) (it was in the essence a snobbish pleasure... why should I boggle at the world?—L. P. Smith) One sticks at something to which he demurs because of scruples, especially scruples of conscience; the term is used frequently in the idiom "stick at nothing," which is another way of saying be absolutely unscrupulous (was in a hole and would stick at little to get out of it—Buchan) One stickles at, about, or over something to which he demurs or raises objections because it is offensive, distasteful, or contrary to his principles (the purist stickles at using clipped words such as gas for gasoline, phone for telephone, exam for examination) (there is no time in a serious emergency to stickle over means if they achieve the desired ends) (presumably that is his method...so the reader, eager to get good things where he can, will not stickle at it—K. D. Burke) One strains at something when he demurs to it as beyond his power to believe, accept, understand, or do. This usage is chiefly dependent on the scriptural passage "ye blind guides, which strait in a gnat, and swallow a camel." The object of at is commonly something which might without real difficulty be believed, accepted, understood, or done (persons who strain at the truth yet accept every wild rumor without question) (I do not strain at the position,—it is familiar,—but at the author's drift—Shak.)

Demur

name, designation, appellation, title, style

2 class, category, genus, species, genre

3 sect, communion, religion, faith, creed, cult, persuasion,

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

Denomination

1 name, designation, appellation, title, style

2 class, category, genus, species, genre

3 sect, communion, religion, faith, creed, cult, persuasion, church

Denotation

connotation (see under DENOTE)

A meaning, signification, significance, sense, acception, import

Denote

1 signify, *mean, import

A betoken, bespeak, *indicate, attest, argue, prove: *indent, mean: *suggest, imply, hint, intimate, insinuate

2 Denote, connote and their corresponding nouns denotation, connotation are complementary rather than synonymous. Taken together, the verbs as used in reference to terms equal mean (see MEAN vb 2). Taken singly, a term denotes or has as its denotation whatever is expressed in its definition: in a noun the thing or the definable class of things or ideas which it names, in a verb the act or state which is affirmed. A term connotes or has as its connotation the ideas or emotions that are added to it and cling to it, often as a result of experience but sometimes as a result of something extraneous (as a poet's effective use of the term, or its constant association with another term or idea, or a connection between it and some historical event); thus, "home" denotes the place where one lives with one's family, but it connotes comforts, intimacy, and privacy. What a term denotes (or the denotation of a term) can be definitely fixed; what a term connotes (or its connotation) often depends upon the experience or background of the person using it (I have used the term "post-war poets" to denote those who did not begin to write verse till after the war—Day Lewis) (there is no word that has more sinister and terrible connotations in our snobbish society than the word promiscuity—Shaw)

In logic denote and connote, though still complementary and still predicated of terms, carry very different implications. They are dependent on two highly technical terms, both collective nouns, denotation and connotation. A term denotes (or bears as denotation) the entire number of things or instances covered by it; thus, "plant" denotes the aggregate of all things that come under the definition of that word; the denotation of "plant" is far more inclusive than the denotation of "shrub." A term connotes (or bears as connotation) the sum total of the qualities or characteristics that are implied by it and are necessarily or commonly associated with it; thus, "plant" connotes (or bears as connotation) life, growth and decay, lack of power of locomotion, and, commonly, roots and cellular structure invested with a cellulose wall.

Denounce

condemn, censure, reprove, reprehend, blame, *criticize

A accuse, charge, arraign, impeach, incriminate, indict: *decry, disparage, depurate: revile, vituperate (see SCOLD)

Ant eulogize —Con *commend, applaud, compliment, recommend: *praise, extol, laud, acclaim

Dense

1 compact, *close, thick

A consolidated, concentrated, compacted (see compact vb); compressed, condensed (see contract vb); massed, heaped, piled, stacked (see heap vb)

Ant sparse (of population, forests); tenuious (of clouds, air, masses) —Con scattered, dispersed, dissipated (see SCATTER); *thin, rare: *meager, scanty, scant, exiguous 2 crass, *stupid, slow, dull, dumb

Ant obtuse, *dull: stolid, phlegmatic, *impassive

Ant subtle: bright —Con *intelligent, brilliant, clever, alert, quick-witted

Denude

bare, *strip, divest, dismantle

Ant clothe

Deny

gainsay, contradict, negative, traverse, impugn, contravene are comparable as meaning, when they refer to an act, to declare something untrue, untenable, or unworthy of consideration or, when they refer to a condition, to go counter to what is true or to the facts as they are. Deny commonly implies a refusal and usually a firm or outspoken refusal to accept as true, to grant or concede, or to acknowledge the existence or claims of (deny the report that the British ambassador has resigned) (he is no vulgar and stupid cynic who denies the existence . . . of any feelings higher than the merely physical—Huxley) (deny citizenship to certain applicants) (deny a request for more books) (for he's a jolly good fellow, which nobody can deny!) (the necessities of his own life . . . not any longer to be denied—Mary Austin) (it would seem that I was denying God—Meredith) In the reflexive form deny usually implies_abstainence or renunciation often, but not necessarily, for religious or moral reasons (she denied herself all luxuries) (he resolved to deny himself the pleasure of smoking) (compare self-denial at renunciation). Gainsay is somewhat formal or literary; it implies opposition, usually by way of disputing the truth of what another has said (facts which cannot be gainsaid) (but she's a fine woman—that nobody can gainsay—Meredith) (his mother, whom he could not gainsay, was unconsciously but inflexibly set against his genius—Brooks) (no one would gainsay the right of anyone, the royal American right, to protest—White) Contradict differs from gainsay not only in usually implying a more open or a flatter denial of the truth of an assertion but also in commonly suggesting that the contrary of the assertion is true or that the statement is utterly devoid of truth; thus "to contradict a rumor" is a stronger expression than "to deny a rumor"; one may contradict (never in this sense deny) a person, whereas one may deny or contradict (the stronger term) an assertion of his (a report which highly incensed Mrs. Bennet, and which she never failed to contradict as a most scandalous falsehood—Austen) ("Nobody contradicts me now," wrote Queen Victoria after her husband's death, "and the salt has gone out of my life"—Ellis) Contradict is also used without implication of a spoken or written denial: it then suggests that an assertion, a doctrine, or a teaching runs counter to something else, and therefore either it cannot be true or the other must be false (all the protestations of the employers that they would be ruined by the Factory Acts were contradicted by experience—Shaw) (they insisted on teaching and enforcing an ideal that contradicted the realities—Henry Adams) Negative is usually a much milder term than those which precede; often it implies merely a refusal to asent to something (as a suggestion, a proposition, a nomination, or a bill) (the senate negatived the proposed taxation) (after a polite request that Elizabeth would lead the way, which the other as politely . . . negatived—Austen) (Beaufort stood, hat in hand, saying something which his companion seemed to negative—Wharton) When the idea of going counter to is uppermost, negative usually implies displeasure (the omission or infrequency of such recitals does not negative the existence of miracles—Paley) Traverse occurs chiefly in legal use and implies a formal denial (as of the truth of an allegation or the justice of an indictment) (it traverses the theory of the Court—Corwin) Impugn usually retains much of its basic implication of attacking and carries the strongest suggestion of any of these terms of directly disputing or questioning or of forcefully contradicting a statement, proposition, or less often a person; it sometimes connotes prolonged argument in an attempt to refute or confuse (the idealists . . . took up the challenge, but their reply was to disparte the significance, and even to impugn the reality, of the world as known to science—Inge) (the morality of our Restoration drama cannot be impugned. It assumes orthodox Christian morality, and laughs (in its comedy) at human nature for not living up to it—T. S. Eliot) (no one cares to impugn a fool; no one dares to impugn a captain of industry—Brooks) Contravene implies strongly a coming into conflict but less strongly than the other terms an intentional opposition, suggesting rather some inherent incompatibility (no state law may contravene the United States Constitution or federal laws enacted under its authority—Fitzsimmons) (steps toward the mitigation of racial segregation and discrimination are often forestalled, since . . . these contravene the dicta of Southern customs and tradition—R. E. Jackson) Ana *decline, refuse, reject, repudiate: controvert, refute, rebut, confute, *disprove

Ant confirm: concede —Con aver, affirm, *assert:

*acknowledge

depart 1 leave, withdraw, retire, *go, quit

Arrive: remain, abide —Con *stay, tarry, linger, wait: *come

2 digress, deviate, *swerve, diverge, veer

Ana forsake, *abandon, desert: reject, repudiate (see decline vb): *discard, cast departed deceased, late, *dead, defunct, lifeless, inanimate depend 1 *rely, trust, count, reckon, bank

Ana lean, incline (see slant vb)

2 Depend, hinge, hang, turn are comparable when they mean to rest or, especially, to be contingent upon something uncertain or variable or indeterminable. All are normally followed by on or upon. Depend, which literally means to hang or be suspended, suggests an element of mental suspense which makes forecasting impossible. It often suggests uncertainty of a thing with reference to circumstances yet to take place, facts not yet known, or a decision yet to be made (our trip depends upon the weather) (his going to college will depend on his ability to earn enough money to cover his living expenses) (another motive is the conviction that winning the best satisfaction of later life will depend on possessing this power to think—Eliot) It may suggest also a variability that rests upon a difference in attitude or point of view (the stern moral of strikers. This may mean either a staunch fidelity to law and order, or willingness to overturn a motor bus in the street. . . . It depends on who is speaking—Montague) Hinge is sometimes used interchangeably with depend; it may retain much of its literal suggestion of a movable part (as a door or a gate) that opens or closes upon hinges and then usually implies the cardinal (see under ESSENTIAL 2) point upon which a decision, a controversy, or an outcome ultimately rests. In such use it suggests not so much mental suspense as uncertainty tempered by the certainty that the matter will go one way or the other (the outcome of the war hinges on the ability of our forces to outmove every strategic move of the enemy) (the point on which the decision must finally hinge—Thirlwall) (the whole case being built up by Mr. Kennon was going to hinge in large part upon a single issue—was Clifford under the influence of liquor—Basso) Hang likewise may interchange with depend, but more precisely it suggests a point of support such as is characteristic of the literal action of hanging; the term therefore stresses not so much the uncertainty of the event as the weakness or the strength of what gives validity, authority, or credibility to something (as a doctrine, a belief, or a course of action) or of what points the way to fulfillment or successful performance (the truth of the testimony hangs on his word only) (the election hangs on a single vote) (a good deal . . . hangs on the meaning, if any, of this short word full—T. S. Eliot)

Tuna often comes close to hinge in its meaning <great

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1 dependable *reliable, trustworthy, trusty, tried

Dependable

describe, narrate, *relate: *sketch, draft, outline,

relying, depending, trusting, reckoning, counting subject, *liable, open, exposed, susceptible

Ana sure, assured, *confident: *responsible: stanch, steadfast, constant, *faithful Con *doubtful, questionable, dubious: capricious, fickle, unstable, *inconstant, mercurial dependence

reliance, *trust, confidence, faith dependent adj 1 Dependent, contingent, conditional, relative mean having its existence or nature determined by something else. Something is dependent which cannot exist or come into existence by itself quite without aid or support ⟨we are all dependent on another, every soul of us on earth—Shaw⟩ ⟨the color of the skin is dependent on an adequate supply of blood—Fishbein⟩

What is contingent
takes its character from something that already exists or may exist and therefore is limited or qualified

by something extraneous or is incapable of existence

apart from it ⟨a person's conception of love is contingent both on his past experience and on the nature of that experience⟩ ⟨if propriety should die, there could be no impropriety, inasmuch as the contingency of the latter is wholly contingent on the presence of the former—Grandgent⟩

war is contingent: even dictatorship is contingent.

Both depend on, ignorance—Pound⟩ Something is conditional which depends for its realization, fulfillment, execution, or expression on what may or may not occur or on the performance or observance of certain terms or conditions.

Conditional and contingent are often interchangeable, but the former is preferred when eventualities are in the power of the human will ⟨the pardon is conditional on his behavior during probation⟩ ⟨while the validity of conditional recognition is a matter of degree, it would be entirely novel

. . . if the conditions for recognition were set forth by a new government—I-Kua Chou⟩ Something is relative which cannot be known, considered, or determined apart from its reference to something else and which therefore is affected by the limitations, the instability, or the imperfections of the other thing ⟨market values are always, relative to the demand⟩ ⟨the idea of civilization is relative

. . . any community and any age has its own civilization

and its own ideals of civilization—Ellis⟩

Ana subject, *liable, open, exposed, susceptible

Ant absolute: infinite: original —Con *ultimate, categorical: uncircumscribed, boundless, eternal, illimitable

(see infinite): undervived (see affirmative verb at spring)

2 subject, tributary, *subordinate, secondary, collateral

Ana relying, depending, trusting, reckoning, counting

(see rely): subsidiary, subservient, *auxiliary: abased, humbled, debased (see abuse)

Ant independent

depict *represent, portray, delineate, picture, limn

Ana describe, narrate, *relate: *sketch, draft, outline, trace

deplete vb Deplete, drain, exhaust, impoverish, bankrupt are comparable when they mean to deprive a thing in whole or in part of what is essential or necessary to its existence or potency. Deplete is often used as though it implied merely a reduction in numbers, in quantity, or in mass or volume; it may be used specifically to suggest the potential harm of such a reduction or the impossibility of restoring what has been lost before such consequences are evident; thus, bloodletting depletes the system, not only by reducing the quantity of blood but by depriving the system of elements essential to its vitality and vigor; an epidemic depletes an army when it reduces the army not only in size but in effective strength, especially at a time when that strength is needed ⟨he would have us fill up our depleted curriculum with subjects whose worth has not even been tried—Grandgent⟩ cattle herds depleting by the heavy slaughter last year—Time⟩

Drain when precisely employed retains its basic implications of slow withdrawal of liquid (as by straining, seepage, or suction)

until the substance which is drained becomes dry or the container which holds the liquid is emptied: hence it con-

notes a gradual depletion and ultimate deprivation of the figurative lifeblood of a thing or the essential element of its existence or well-being ⟨the Thirty Years' War nearly drained Germany of men and materials⟩ ⟨their country's wealthy mightier misers drain—Pope⟩ ⟨a burden of arms draining the wealth and labor of all peoples—Eisenhower⟩

Exhaust (see also tire) is very close to drain, but it stresses emptying or evacuation rather than gradual depletion. Unlike drain, which usually implies loss without compensating gain, exhaust need not suggest ultimate loss of what is removed; thus, a mine is exhausted when all its ore has been removed for refining: a soil is exhausted, or drained of nutrients, by growing crops on it without adequate fertilizing; but, a person is drained of vitality when overwork or illness reduces him to a weak condition or ineffective state ⟨exhaust a subject by treating so fully that nothing more can be said about it⟩. Emolliences is exhausted when no further sugar can be extracted from it

⟨the theme of mother and child has proved a theme which no age has ever exhausted or ever will exhaust—

Binyon⟩ ⟨evidently the old ideas had been exhausted and the time was ripe for new ideologies—R. W. Murray⟩

⟨seven hundred years of glorious and incessant creation seem to have exhausted the constructive genius of Europe

—Clive Bell⟩ Impoverish implies a depletion or a draining of something as essential to a thing as money or its equivalent is to a human being; it stresses the deprivation of qualities essential to a thing's strength, richness, or productiveness ⟨impoverish the body by too meager a diet⟩ ⟨a brilliant sun scorched the impoverished trees and sucked energy from the frail breezes—Farrelly⟩

Bankrupt stresses such impoverishment of a thing that it is destitute of qualities essential to its continued existence or produciveness; it connotes a complete or imminent collapse or breaking down ⟨argued that science by inattention to immaterial phenomena is bankrupting itself⟩ ⟨dainty bits make rich the ribs, but bankrupt quite the wits—

Shak⟩

Ana undermine, sap, debilitate, *weaken, enfeeble, cripple, disable: reduce, diminish, *decrease, lessen

Ant augment, *increase, enlarge deplore, lament, bewail, bemoan mean to manifest grief

what is regarded as irreparable, calamitous, or destructive undermine, sap, debilitate, *weaken, enfeeble,

Deplore implies keen and profound regret especially for what is regretted, sorrow or mourning. In contrast to deplore, it usually does imply utterance, sometimes passionate, sometimes fulsome ⟨yet I lament that long has ceased to be—Shelley⟩ ⟨he made the newly returned actress a tempting offer, instigating some journalist friends

An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
of his at the same time to lament over the decay of the grand school of acting—Shaw> Bewail and bemoan imply poignant sorrow finding an outlet in words or cries, bewail commonly suggesting the louder, bemoan, the more lugubrious expression of grief or, often, of a mere grievance or a complaint (the valet bewailing the loss of his wages—Alexander) (even at the time when our prose speech was as near to perfection as it is ever likely to be, its critics were bemoaning its corruption—Ellis) (and all wept, and bewailed her—Lk 8:52) (the silver swans her hapless fate bemoan, in notes more sad than when they sing their own—Pope) Ana deprecate, *disapprove: *grieve, mourn, sorrow: weep, wail, *cry Con vaunt, crow, *boast, brag deport n 1 demean, comport, *behave, conduct, acquit, quit

Ana see those at DEMEAN
2 transport, *banish, exile, expatriate, ostracize, extricate
Ana see those at BEHAVIOR
department n 1 behavior, conduct
Ana see those at BEHAVIOR
2 demeanor, *bearing, mien, port, presence Ana *from, formality, ceremony, ceremonial, ritual:
*culture, cultivation, breeding, refinement: dignity, grace, *elegance deposit n Deposit, precipitate, sediment, drags, lees, grounds mean matter which settles to the bottom of or is let fall from suspension in a fluid (as air or water). Deposit, the most comprehensive term, refers to matter left fall by a natural or mechanical process to remain where it settles until there is a visible layer or accumulation (a deposit of soot in a chimney) (a deposit of gravel on the bed of a river) (rich deposits of coal) (the walls of the houses are clean and less discolored by the deposited of carbon than usual in most towns—Jefferies) Precipitate denotes a usually solid substance separated from a solution or suspension by some chemical interaction or by some physical force (as heat, cold, or centrifugal force) (camphor may be obtained as a precipitate from an alcoholic solution by salting out) (some finely divided precipitates (as silver chloride and zinc sulfide) coalesce into amorphous, let fall from suspension in a fluid (as air or water). Deposit, usual in most towns—Jefferies) Deposit, falling, dropping, sinking, subsiding (see FALL) deposition n affidavit, testimony, *evidence Ana *account, report, version depลอเรน *debase, vitiate, corrupt, debauch, pervert
Ana defile, pollute, taint, *contaminate: *injure, impair, damage, spoil Con *improve, better, ameliorate: *exalt, magnify deprecated debased, vitiated, corrupted, corrupt, debauched, perverted (see under DEBASE) Ana dissolve, *abandoned, reprobate, profligate: degenerate, infamous, villainous, *vicious: degraded, debased (see ABASE)
decrate *disapprove
Ana *deplore, lament, bewail, bemoan: reprobate, reprehend, condemn (see CRITICIZE) Ant endorse —Con *approve, sanction: *commend, applaud decrate *decry, disparage, derogate, detract, belittle, minimize Ana underestimate, undervalue, underrate (see base words at ESTIMATE): aspere, *malign Ant appreciate —Con prize, cherish, treasure, value (see APPRECIATE): *understand, comprehend decreatic, deprecatorial *derogatory, disparaging, slighting, pejorative Ana *decrying, belittling, minimizing (see DECRY): aspersing, maligning (see MALIGN vb) underrating, underestimating, undervaluing (see base words at ESTIMATE) depress, weigh, oppress mean to put such pressure or such a load upon a thing or person as to cause it or him to sink under the weight. Depress implies a lowering of something by the exertion of pressure or by an overburdening; it most commonly implies a lowering of spirits by physical or mental causes (the long dull evenings in these dull lodgings when one is weary with work depress one sadly—J. R. Green) (the mere volume of work was enough to crush the most diligent of rulers and depress the most vital—Buchan) (he was depressed by his failure—Anderson) It may suggest lowering of bodily vigor or the power of certain organs to function (as by a drug, a disease, or an external condition) (the drug aconite depresses heart action) In reference to other things (as market prices or social or cultural states) depress often suggests a lowering in activity, intensity, or vigor (the first effect of the World War was greatly to depress the prices of stocks) (a grain market depressed by the existence of a large surplus) (to depress the culture of the minority below the point at which a full understanding of poetry becomes possible—Day Lewis) Weigh in this relation is used with down, on, or upon and carries a weaker implication of the result or lowering than depress but a stronger implication of the difficulty or burdens imposed upon a person or thing (he is weighed down with cares) (the responsibility weighs heavily upon him) (Walter's mind had cleared itself of the depression which had weighed on him so heavily—Costain) (a melancholy damp . . . to weigh thy spirits down—Milton) Like weigh, oppress stresses the burden which is borne or is imposed and, like depress, the consequent ill effects (as the lowering of spirits or of power to function) or in its more common sense (see WRONG), a trampling down, a harassing, or a subjection to heavy penalties (the weary world of waters between us oppresses the imagination—Lamb) (the Butler, oppressed by the heat . . . was in a state of abstraction bordering on slumber—Shaw) (she is so oppressed by fear that she may lose her mind)
Ana distress, *trouble, ail: *afflict, try, torment: *tire, weary, fatigued, exhaust, fag, jade, tuck Ant elate: cheer —Con gladden, rejoice, delight, gratify, *please *depressed dejected, dispirited, *downcast, disconsolate, woebegone

Ana analogous words
Ant antonyms
Con contrasted words
See also explanatory notes facing page 1 derogatory, depreciatory, depreciative, disparaging, slighting.

depression

disheartened (see DISCOURAGE): *melancholy, lugubrious
depression
decay, gloom, blues, dumps, *sadness, melancholy, melancholia despondency, forlornness, hopelessness, despair, desperation (see under DESPONDENT): doldrums, boredom, ennui, *tedium

Ant

buoyancy —Con cheerfulness, lightheartedness, gladness, joyousness (see corresponding adjectives at GLAD): *mirth, hilarity, glee deputy

1 attorney, *agent, factor, proxy

Ana substitute, surrogate (see RESOURCE)

2 *delegate, representative deracinate

uproot, eradicate, extripate, *exterminate, wipe

Ana *abolish, extinguish, annihilate, abate: *destroy, demolish derange
disarrange, unsettle, *disorder, disturb, disorganize

Ana upset, *discompose, perturb: commode, inconvenience, *inconvenience

Ant arrange (a scheme, plan, system): adjust deranged
demented, non compos mentis, crazed, crazy, *insane, mad, lunar, maniac derangement

*aberration, alienation derelict

n *outcast, castaway, reprobate, pariah, untouchable

Ana *vagabond, vagrant, tramp, hobo dereliction

failure, neglect, default, miscarriage

Ana abuse, misuse, outrage (see ABUSE vb) deride

*ridicule, mock, taunt, twit, rally

Ana * scoff, jeer, gibe, flout, sneer, gird, fleer: chaff, *banter, kid, rag, jolly, rib derive originate, arise, rise, *spring, emanate, issue, stem, flow, proceed dernier cri

*fashion, style, mode, vogue, fad, rage, craze, cry derogue
dispersal, detract, belittle, minimize, depreciate, *decry

Ana reduce, lessen, *decrease, diminish

Con enhance, heighten, *intensify derogatory, depreciatory, depreciative, disparaging, slighting, pejorative mean designed or tending to belittle. Derogatory may be used of one's own action or activity that tends to detract from his reputation or to lower him in the estimation of others (though it was supposed to be proper for them to have an occupation, the crude fact of money-making was still regarded as derogatory—Wharton) will grub in a garden all day, or wash dogs or rid them of vermin ... without considering the dirt involved in these jobs in the least derogatory to their dignity—Shaw) More often the term is applied to expressions or modes of expression (as choice of words or tone of voice) and then implies an intent to detract or belittle by suggesting something that is discreditable (the derogatory use of the term politician) he makes remarks about miracles, quite derogatory remarks—H. G. Wells) (there is no one so situated that he cannot refrain from telling race jokes and using derogatory names—Lillian Smith) Deprecatory and depreciative are used chiefly of something written or spoken that tends to lower a thing in value or in status (a deprecatory comparison of man's mortal nature with the persistence of cosmic phenomena—Lowie) They often also describe words or modes of using words that bear connotations tending to discredit or to bring into discredit the person or thing referred to (what people might refer to, slightlying, as being mere subjective feelings ... have more significance than that depreciatory way of speaking about them—Hendel) in the classic world of antiquity they called outsiders ... "barbarians"—a denomination which took on an increasingly depreciative sense—Ellis) Disparaging definitely implies an intent to depreciate usually by the use of oblique and indirect methods. The term suggests an attempt to make little of or to discourage by belittling and often carries a clearer implication of intentional detraction than derogatory and of resulting undervaluing than depreciatory or depreciative (a disparaging review of a book) (criticism is in many cases just a calling of laudatory or disparaging names—Huxley) nothing can be further from the truth than to call the Greeks "intellectualists" in the disparaging sense in which the word is now often used—Inge) Slighting applies to anything that may convey or imply a slight or indicate the little respect in which one is held by the speaker; it sometimes implies disparagement but, more often, indifference or disdain (to hear yourself ... glanced at in a few slighting terms—Ben Jonson) (a slighting allusion to his book) (the constable felt the full effect of this slighting reception—Scott) (her chief complaint is my slighting reference to Henry James—J. D. Adams) Pejorative is nearly equal to depreciatory or depreciative in meaning (it might be argued, without any pejorative implication, whether Gide's is essentially a religious temperament or whether ... he has found in the traditions and doctrines of Christianity ... an adequate and sympathetic psychology—Farrell) (the Grand Jury ... is here put in a pejorative light—Stein) It is used especially in reference to words which have acquired a later and baser meaning or to derogatory words formed from another word or root by the addition of a suffix or prefix that gives them a derogatory twist (the earlier meaning of "imp"—a child—has now given way to its pejorative meaning of a mischievous child, or rogue) (it was drifting, all right, but not drifting in any nasty pejorative sense, like ... a cake of soap in the gray water before you pull the plug in the bathtub—Warren) (euphemism ... is the motive force behind many pejorative developments. If a euphemistic substitute ceases to be felt as such ... this will result in a permanent depreciation of its meaning—Ullmann) (resort to pejorative epithets as their argument—Cohen) (poetaster is the pejorative word for poet) (pseudo- is often used in English with pejorative force)

Ana belittling, minimizing, decrying (see DECRY): aspersing, maligning (see MALIGN)
descant vb

1 *sing, troll, carol, warble, trill, hymn, chant, intone

2 *discourse, expatriate, dilate descent, dismount, alight mean to get or come down from a height. One descends when one climbs down a slope (as of a hill or mountain), a ladder, a step, a stair, a wall, or a tree; one dismounts when one gets down from a horse or from a bicycle or motorcycle; one alights when one comes down from a perch or out of a vehicle (as a carriage, a car, or an airplane) with a spring or especially with lightness and grace.

Ant ascend, climb descendant

*offspring, young, progeny, issue, posterity describe

*relate, narrate, state, report, rehearse, recite, recount

Ana delineate, *sketch, outline description

kind, sort, *type, character, nature, stripe, kidney, ilk decry

espy, *see, behold, observe, notice, remark, note, perceive, discern, view, survey, contemplate decesration

*profanation, sacrilege, blasphemy

Ana defilement, pollution (see corresponding verbs at CONTAMINATE) desert

n *waste, badlands, wilderness

desert n *due, merit

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
design vb forsake, *abandon

Ant stay, abide, abide by

Ana meed, guerdon, reward (see PREMIUM); punishment, chastisement, chastening, disciplining or discipline (see corresponding verbs at PUNISH) desert vb leave, quit, depart (see GO) Ant forsake, *abandon desert vb see under desert at ABANDON vb desertion n 1 *defection, apostasy at ABANDON

vb forsake, *abandon desert vb forgo, *abandon

Ant persevere, *remain

Ana analogous words *name, denomination, appellation, title, style

Ant imitation, *emulation, *imitation

*name, denomination, appellation, title, style Desire

Desire in more general use, however, emphasizes the strength or ardor of feeling and often implies strong intention or aim <more than any other thing on earth desired to fight for his country—White> <unions which desired to avail themselves of the benefits of the law—Collier’s Yr. BK.> Wish is less strong, often suggesting a not usually intense longing for an object unattained, unattainable, or questionably attainable <Newton’s law of gravitation could not be wished into existence—Overstreet> <not to have property, if one wished it, was almost a certain sign of shiftlessness—Brooks>

Want (see also LACK) is a less formal term than wish and so is often interchangeable with it in situations where dignity of the subject or respectfulness is not at issue, though generally want implies that the longing is for something the attainment of which would fill a real need and which is actively hoped for <those who wanted to live long—Fishbein> <the French wanted European unity—N. Y. Times>

Crave implies strongly the force of physical or mental appetite or need (as of hunger, thirst, love, or ambition) <crave peace and security after war—Donna Byrne> <what he craved was books of poetry and chivalry—Weeks> Covet implies a strong, eager desire, often inordinate and envious and often for what belongs to another <where water is the most coveted and essential resource because its supply is limited—Amer. Guide Series: Texas> <we hate no people, covet no people’s land—Willkie>

Ana *long, yearn, hangker, pine, hunger, thirst: aspirre, pant, *aim Con abhor, abominate, loathe, detest, *hate: spurn, repudiate, reject, refuse, *decline

Desire

Desire, appetite, lust, passion, urge are comparable as meaning a longing for something regarded as essential to one’s well-being or happiness or as meaning an impulse originating in a man’s nature and driving him toward the object or the experience which promises him enjoyment or satisfaction in its attainment. Desire may be used of every conceivable longing that stirs one emotionally, whether that longing originates in man’s physical or in his spiritual nature, whether it is natural and normal or unnatural and perverted, whether it is generally regarded as low or high in the scale of moral or spiritual values <the desire for food> <the desire for an education>  <the desire for peace> <his physical desire to sit in the sun and do nothing—Anderson> <the keen desire . . . to pay their debts—Reppier> <nothing dies harder than the desire to think well of oneself—T. S. Eliot> <Congreve’s characters have inclinations, not desires; habits, not ecstasies—J. M. Brown> It may be used specifically to denote sexual longing, but it does not always convey derogatory connotations when so used meaning “the sexual appetite is often called “the biological urge”,” but it is more often used of a desire so strong and insistent that it must be satisfied or a sense of frustration ensues <an urge to travel> <an urge to marry> <that almost mystic urge to climb can dominate your whole life—Vaughan-Thomas>

Desire

Desire, appetite, lust, passion, urge are comparable as meaning a longing for something regarded as essential to one’s well-being or happiness or as meaning an impulse originating in a man’s nature and driving him toward the object or the experience which promises him enjoyment or satisfaction in its attainment. Desire may be used of every conceivable longing that stirs one emotionally, whether that longing originates in man’s physical or in his spiritual nature, whether it is natural and normal or unnatural and perverted, whether it is generally regarded as low or high in the scale of moral or spiritual values <the desire for food> <the desire for an education>  <the desire for peace> <his physical desire to sit in the sun and do nothing—Anderson> <the keen desire . . . to pay their debts—Reppier> <nothing dies harder than the desire to think well of oneself—T. S. Eliot> <Congreve’s characters have inclinations, not desires; habits, not ecstasies—J. M. Brown> It may be used specifically to denote sexual longing, but it does not always convey derogatory connotations when so used meaning “the sexual appetite is often called “the biological urge”,” but it is more often used of a desire so strong and insistent that it must be satisfied or a sense of frustration ensues <an urge to travel> <an urge to marry> <that almost mystic urge to climb can dominate your whole life—Vaughan-Thomas>

Desire

Desire, appetite, lust, passion, urge are comparable as meaning a longing for something regarded as essential to one’s well-being or happiness or as meaning an impulse originating in a man’s nature and driving him toward the object or the experience which promises him enjoyment or satisfaction in its attainment. Desire may be used of every conceivable longing that stirs one emotionally, whether that longing originates in man’s physical or in his spiritual nature, whether it is natural and normal or unnatural and perverted, whether it is generally regarded as low or high in the scale of moral or spiritual values <the desire for food> <the desire for an education>  <the desire for peace> <his physical desire to sit in the sun and do nothing—Anderson> <the keen desire . . . to pay their debts—Reppier> <nothing dies harder than the desire to think well of oneself—T. S. Eliot> <Congreve’s characters have inclinations, not desires; habits, not ecstasies—J. M. Brown> It may be used specifically to denote sexual longing, but it does not always convey derogatory connotations when so used meaning “the sexual appetite is often called “the biological urge”,” but it is more often used of a desire so strong and insistent that it must be satisfied or a sense of frustration ensues <an urge to travel> <an urge to marry> <that almost mystic urge to climb can dominate your whole life—Vaughan-Thomas> despairing adj hopeful, desperate, *despondent, forlorn

Ant hopeful — Con optimistic, roseate, rose-colored desperate hopeless, despairing, desperate, despairing, forlorn

Ant reckless, rash, foolhardy, venturesome despondent adj

Ant abominate, loathe, abhor, detest, *hate: spurn, repudiate (see DECLINE) despair n 1, 2, 3: despairing, despondent, desperate, despondency

Ant repudiate (see DECLINE) despair vb 1 hopelessness, despair, desperation, forlornness (see under DESPERTED adj)

Ant hope, assurance, aplomb: *equanimity, confidence, assurance, assurance, *aptness, apathy, *appraisal:

despairing adj

Ant despite, ill will, malevolence, spleen, grudge, ill will, malevolence, spleen, grudge, despicable *contemptible, pitiable, sorry, scurrvy, cheap despise, contemn, scorn, disdain mean to regard a person or thing as beneath one’s notice or as unworthy of one’s attention or interest. The same differences in implications and connotations are observable in the corresponding nouns at DISGRACE: ignoble, *abhorrent, ignoble, *abhorrent, ignoble despise prep in spite of, notwithstanding despise vb 1, 2, 3: despise, despise, despise, despise, despise despotic despotic

despotism despotic

despotistic despotic

despotize despotic

despotize vb 1, 2, 3: despoticize, despoticize, despoticize despotism vb 1, 2, 3: despoticize, despoticize, despoticize

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
pursuer might be, I turned in desperation to meet him—

_Hudson_

Hopeless and hopelessness imply both the complete loss of hope and the cessation of effort (the hopeless look in the faces of the doomed men) The words do not necessarily suggest despondency, dejection, or gloom, for sometimes they imply acceptance or resignation ("Why should you say such desperate things?" "No, they are not desperate. They are only hopeless"—Hardy) <not that Dr. Lavendar was hopeless; he was never hopeless of anybody... but he was wise; so he was deeply discouraged— _Delany_ ) the little hopeless community of beaten men and yellow defeated women— _Anderson_ ) Forlorn (see also ALONE 1) and forlornness stress utter hopelessness, but they differ from hopeless and hopelessness in implying hopelessness even in the act of undertaking something because its failure is all but certain (we sit down in a forlorn skepticism— _Berkeley_ ) <poor prince, forlorn he steps... and so proude in his despaire— _Keats_ ) Desperate, hopeless, and forlorn and their corresponding nouns are applicable not only to men, their moods, words, and acts, but to the things which make men despairing or hopeless < desperate straits (the hopeless situation of a beleaguered garrison) < desperate grime and grossness— _McFee_ ) (all the high arid and impoverished force which the Celt has ever thrown into a forlorn and failing cause— _Cyril Robinson_ )

Ana grieving, mourning, sorrowing (see GRIEVE): depressed, dejected, melancholy, sad (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS)

Ant lighthearted— _Con_ cheerful, joyful, joyous, happy, *glad: buoyant, volatile, resilient, *elastic desperetic tyrannical, tyrannous, arbitrary, autocratic, *absolute

Ana domineering, imperious, *masterful, imperative; *dictatorial, authoritarian, magisterial destiny *fate, lot, doom, portion

Ana *end, termination, terminus, ending: goal, objective (see INTENTION) destitute 1 *devoid, void

Ana lacking, wanting (see LACK vb); *deficient: empty: barren, *bare: depleted, drained, exhausted, bankrupted or bankrupt (see corresponding verbs at DEPLETE)

Con *full, replete, complete

2 *poor, indigent, needy, penniless, impenurious, poverty-stricken, necessitous

Ant opulent
destitution want, indigence, *poverty, penury, privation

Ana *need, necessity, exigency: *lack, absence, want, privation, death: adversity, *misfortune: strait (see JUNCTURE)

Ant opulence
destroy, demolish, raze mean to pull or tear down. Destroy is so general in its application that it may imply the operation of any force that wrecks, kills, crushes, or annihilates < destroy a nest of caterpillars < destroy affection (a building destroyed by fire) < grinding poverty that destroys vitality) Its opposition to construct is often apparent (it is proverbially easier to destroy than to construct— _T. S. Eliot_) <very few established institutions, governments and constitutions... are ever destroyed by their enemies under the conviction that they have been corrupted and weakened by their friends— _Lippmann_ ) Demolish implies a pulling or smashing to pieces; when used in reference to buildings or other complex structures (as of wood, stone, or steel), it implies complete wreckage and often a heap of ruins (houses demolished by a hurricane) (the automobile was demolished in a collision with the train) The term implies the destruction of all coherency or integrity in a nonmaterial thing and, consequently, of all its usefulness < demolish an opponent's argument) <people are inclined to believe that what Bradley did was to demolish the logic of Mill and the psychology of Bain— _T. S. Eliot_) <his research has been painstaking, and he demolishes a good many legends— _Pratt_ ) Raze implies a bringing to the level of the ground; it may or may not imply an orderly process with no destruction of usable parts <several buildings were razed to make room for the new city hall) (in 1865 a Gulf hurricane razed the town— _Amer. Guide Series: Texas_) The term may imply obliteration or effacement, more, however, with reference to the implication of scraping than to the sense of pulling or tearing down <canst thou not minister to a mind diseased... raze out the written troubles of the brain...?— _Shak_ )

Ana *ruin, wreck, dilapidate: *abolish, extinguish, annihilation: *ravage, devastate, sack

Con *found, establish, institute, organize: *make, form, shape, fashion, fabricate, forge, manufacture: preserve, conserve, *save destruction *ruin, havoc, devastation

Ana demolishing or demolition, razing (see corresponding verbs at DESTROY): annihilation, extinction (see corresponding verbs at ABOLISH) detrital, desultory casual, hit-or-miss, haphazard, *random, happy-go-lucky, chance, chancy

Ana *fitful, spasmodic: unsystematic, unmethodical, disorderly (see affirmative adjectives at ORDERLY): capricious, mercurial, *inconstant, fickle

Ant assiduous (study, search, or other activity): methodical (something designed, planned, constructed) detach, disengage, abstract mean to remove one thing from another with which it is in union or association. One detaches something when one breaks a literal or figurative connection, tie, or bond and thereby isolates it or makes it independent < detach sheets from a loose-leaf book) < detach a ship from a fleet) < detach oneself from one's prejudices) <the mature critic whose loyalties quietly detached themselves from the gods of his generation— _Parrington_ ) One disengages something that is held by or involved with something else and thereby sets it free <she disengaged her hand) (it is hard for the mind to disengage itself from depressing thoughts) (I could not rest satisfied until I... had disengaged... his good work from the inferior work joined with it— _Arnold_ ) One abstracts something by withdrawing it from the place where it belongs or by separating it from a mass of like things so as to put it in another place or another relation (a vast cigar-shaped body of gas was raised and eventually abstracted from the surface of the sun— _Swinton_ ) < abstract papers from a file) < abstract may imply furtiveness and theft < abstract eggs from a nest) < abstract money from a till) It may imply an intention of shortening < abstract the essential points from an argument) or of concentrating elsewhere < abstract one's attention from one's surroundings) (see also ABSTRACT ad)

Ant attach, affix— _Con_ *fasten, fix: *tie, bind: *unite, combine, conjoin detached aloof, uninterested, disinterested, *indifferent, unconcerned, incurious

Ana impartial, dispassionate, objective, unbiased, *fair: altruistic (see CHARITABLE)

Ant interested: selfish— _Con_ *mercenary: concerned (see under CARE) detail n 1 *item, particular

Con *structure, framework, anatomy, skeleton: whole, aggregate, total, *sum: mass, *bulk: design, scheme, *plan, plot deterioration, degeneration, devolution, decadence, degeneration, arrest, apprehension, attachment (see under detention)

dissuade, discourage, divert

imprison, internment, incarceration (see under ARREST vb)

impairment, internment, incarceration (see corresponding verbs at IMPRISON)

dissuade, discourage, divert

prevent (sense 2): hinder, impede, obstruct, block: debar, shut out (see EXCLUDE): frighten, scare:

restrain, inhibit

abet: actuate, motivate — Con *incite, instigate: stimulate, excite, *provoke deterioration, degeneration, devolution, decadence, decline, declension are comparable as meaning either the process of falling from a higher to a lower level or the state of a thing when such a falling has occurred. Deterioration is the least specific of these terms and applies to any process or condition in which there are signs of impairment in quality, in character, or in value (chemicals that reduce the deterioration of rubber in aging)

the deterioration of his memory is marked in recent years man the toolmaker has made inanimate instruments: . . . do his manual work for him; he is now trying to make them do his mental work . . . . The price may be the progressive deterioration of our faculties — Inge

(to promise that warfare will be nuclear: . . . to assure the further deterioration of our position throughout Asia — Straight) Degeneration usually implies retrogression and a return to a simpler or more primitive state or condition: when used in reference to plants, animals, or their parts, it usually suggests changes in physical structure, but it may imply a progressive deterioration in structure and function resulting from disease (the sea squirt in its adult stage evidences degradation through the loss of the vertebrate characters apparent in its larval stage) (fatty degeneration of the heart)

When applied to persons in groups or as individuals or to states or empires, it suggests physical, intellectual, and often moral degradation and a reversion toward barbarism or, in the case of individuals, bestiality (the degeneration of the American Indians confined to reservations) (the degeneration of the ancient Roman Empire) (of all the dangers that confront a nation at war, this degeneration of national purpose . . . is the greatest — New Republic) Devolution in technical use may take the place of degeneration (the devolution of the sea squirt) but in general use it carries even a stronger implication of opposition to evolution (the process of human evolution is nothing more than a process of sifting, and where that sifting ceases evolution ceases, becomes, indeed, devolution — Ellis) Decadence presupposes a previous maturing and usually a high degree of excellence; it implies that the falling takes place after a thing (as a people, a literature or other form of art, or a branch of knowledge) has reached the peak of its development (there seems to be no more pronounced mark of the decadence of a people and its literature than a servile and rigid subservience to rule — Ellis) (a sharply falling rate of population growth, an abnormally high death rate, extensive illness and the like, are an indication of social decadence and ample cause for alarm on the part of political leaders — Roucek) In reference to matters of art decadence may imply no more than excessive refinement and studied attention to esthetic detail (at the turn of the century we all thought we knew what decadence meant — overripeness, overcivilization, a preoccupation with refined sensations . . . the essence of decadence is an excessive subjectivism—Times Lit. Sup.) (Van Vechten produced a kind of mock decadence unique in American literature. His novels are hyperaesthetic, perverse, and often devoted to esoteric or archaic lore — Lueders) Decline is often interchangeable with decadence because it, too, suggests a falling after the peak has been reached in power, prosperity, excellence, or achievement, but it usually suggests more momentum, more obvious evidences of deterioration, and less hope of a return to the earlier state (the rise and decline of the imperial power) (he is in the decline of life) (the association so often noted between the flowering of the intellect and the decline of national vigor — Krutch) Declension differs from decline only in connoting less precipitancy or a slower or more gradual falling toward extinction or destruction (seems to mark a declension in his career as an illustrator — Mather) (the moral change, the sad declension from the ancient proud spirit . . . was painfully depressing — Bennett)

Ana impairment, spoiling (see corresponding verbs at ABUSE): decaying or decay, decomposition, disintegration, rotting, crumbling (see corresponding verbs at DECAY): debasement, degradation (see corresponding verbs at ABASE)

Ant improvement, amelioration determinant antecedent, *cause, reason, occasion

factor (see ELEMENT): influence, weight, authority determinative *conclusive, decisive, definitive determining, deciding, settling (see DECIDE): influencing, affecting (see AFFECT): shaping, fashioning, forming or formative (see corresponding verbs at MAKE) ineffective, ineffectual, inefficacious, inefficient determine 1 settle, rule. *decide, resolve ascertain, *discover, unearth, learn detest *hate, abhor, abomination, loathe *disperse, contemn, scorn, disdain: spurn, repudi- ate, reject (see DECLINE vb)

Ant adore (sense 2) — Con love, *like, dote, fancy, relish: cherish, prize, treasure, value, *appreciate detestable odious, *hateful, abominable, abhorrent

Ana *contemptible, despicable, sorry, scurvy: atro- cious, *outrageous, monstrous, heinous: *execrable, damnable, accursed relish: cherish, prize, treasure, value, *appreciate detestation hate, hatred, abomination, abhorrence, loathing (see under HATE vb)

Ana *antipathy, aversion: despite, contempt, scorn, disdain (see under DESPISE)

Con admiration, esteem, respect, *regard: love, affec- tion, *attachment: tolerance, indulgence, forbearance (see under FORBEARING) detract belittle, minimize, disparage, derogate, *decry, deprecate

Ana asperse, *malign, traduce, defame, vilify, calumni-detrimental waste, *ravage, sack, pillage, despoil, spoliate devastate devastation *ruin, havoc, destruction

develop 1 *unfold, evolve, elaborate, perfect development, evolution are comparable when they mean growth from a lower to a higher state. Development stresses the bringing out of the hidden or latent possibilities in a thing whether through growth and differentiation and therefore through a series of natural stages (development of a seed into a plant) (development of a human being from the embryo) or through the exercise of human energy, ingenuity, or art (the development of an industry) (development of a tract of land) (development of an argument) Evolution, on the other hand, stresses an orderly succession of events or of living things, each growing out of the preceding yet marked by changes which transform it and give it a particular identity and usually a more elaborate or more advanced character (the evolution of species) (the evolution of the drama) Development is appropriately used when the emphasis is on the realization of the full possibilities of a particular thing through natural or artificial means, and evolution when the stress is on transformations which occur in a type, class, or order of things, the individual instances of which retain a likeness to the parent but manifest differences especially in the direction of complexity and progress (the Aristotelian canon that the "nature" of a thing must be sought in its completed development, its final form—Inge) (no, "revolution" is not the proper word! What is happening in modern physics is a tremendously rapid evolution—Darrow)

Con decline, declension, decadence, devolution, *de- terioration, degeneration deviate digress, diverge, *swerve, veer, depart deviation, aberration, divergence, deflection denote departure or an instance of departure from a straight course or procedure or from a norm or standard. Deviation, the term of widest application, usually requires qualification or a context to complete its meaning (no deviation from traditional methods was permitted) (there were many deviations from fact in his account) (the road proceeds without any deviation for two miles) Aberration adds to deviation definite implications of error, fault, or abnormality and therefore has highly technical significations in some of the sciences. In general use it commonly implies transgression of the moral law or the social code and is (as is used euphemistically for a reprehensible act or reprehensible behavior (the aberrations of his youth had long been forgotten) Divergence is sometimes used interchangeably with deviation, but ordinarily it denotes deviation of two or more things which from a common starting point proceed in different directions (an angle is formed by the divergence of two lines) (at no point in the discussion was there divergence of opinion on this question) Deflection adds to deviation the implication of bending or curving (deflection of rays of light passing through a prism) devise 1 Device, contrivance, gadget, contraption mean something usually of a mechanical character which is invented as a means of doing a particular piece of work or of effecting a given end. Device is the most widely applicable of these terms; it may be used of a thing that serves as a tool or instrument or as an effective part of a machine, especially one which shows some ingenuity in invention .

It may be used also of an artifice or stratagem concocted as a means of accomplishing an end (<her device for keeping the children quiet>).

...entrap thee by some treacherous device—Shak.)

Constrivance stresses skill and dexterity in the adaptation of means and especially of the means at hand to an end; it sometimes carries a suggestion of crudity of or of contempt for the resulting device or system ().

All sorts of contrivances for saving more time and labor—Shaw) (<he would look at none of the contrivances for his comfort—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.

Gadget is sometimes used of a device for which one does not know the name; more often it applies to a small and novel device and especially to an accessory or an appliance intended to add to a person's comfort, convenience, or pleasure (<the garden tools and gadgets which make gardening so much more fun—Van der Spuy> (<their new car has all the latest gadgets>.

Contraption is usually more depreciative than contrivance or gadget and often suggests a clumsy substitute rather than an ingenious invention (<he has rigged up a contraption which he calls a radio>.

<her husband's little perch-in-the-sun ... is a contrivance—Conrad>.
devoted

〈dirty yellow varnish no longer interposes here its hallowing influence between the spectator and the artist's original creation—Fry〉

Ana *commit, consign, confide, entrust: assign, *allot: *sentence, doom
2 apply, *direct, address

Ana *faithful, loyal, true, constant: attentive, considerate, *thoughtful devotee votary, *addict, habitué Ana *enthusiast, zealot, fanatic devotion loyalty, fealty, *fidelity, piety, allegiance Ana fervor, ardz, zeal, enthusiasm, *passion: love, affection, *attachment: dedication, consecration (see corresponding verbs at DEVOTE) devour *eat, swallow, ingest, consume Ana *waste, squander, dissipate: *destroy, demolish: wreck, *ruin devout, pious, religious, pietistic, sanctimonious apply mainly to persons, their acts, and their words and mean showing fervor and reverence in the practice of religion. Devout stresses an attitude of mind or a feeling that leads one to such fervor and reverence (〈a devout man, and one that feared God—Acts 10:2〉 all those various "offices" which, in Pontifical, Missal, and Breviary, devout imagination had elaborated from age to age—Pater) Pious emphasizes rather the faithful and dutiful performance of one's religious obligations; although often used interchangeably with devout it tends to suggest outward acts which imply faithfulness and fervor rather than, as does devout, an attitude or feeling which can only be inferred (〈pious churchmen〉〈happy, as a pious man is happy when after a long illness, he goes once more to church—Hichens〉〈were pious Christians, taking their Faith devoutly. But such religious emotion as was theirs, was reflected rather than spontaneous—H. O. Taylor〉 The term often, however, carries a hint of pretension, sometimes of hypocrisy (〈the saying that we are members one of another is not a mere pious formula to be repeated in church without any meaning—Shaw〉〈a hypocrite—a thing all pious words and uncharitable deeds—Reade〉 Religious may and usually does imply both devoutness and piety, but it stresses faith in a God or gods and adherence to a way of life believed in consonance with that faith (〈a man may be moral without being religious, but he cannot be religious without being moral—Myers〉〈they are not religious: they are only pew renters—Shaw〉 In its basic meaning pietistic stresses the emotional rather than the intellectual aspects of religion (〈in the Catholic Church it [use of the Bible] is threefold, doctrinal, liturgical, and pietistic—New Catholic Dict.〉 while probably a very late psalm, it brings to a kind of spiritual climax the pietistic utterances found in earlier parts of the Bible—Baach) (an emotional person with pietistic inclinations that nearly carried him over at different times to the Plymouth Brethren—H. G. Wells) Often this opposition of the emotional to the intellectual is overlooked and pietistic is used derogatorily of someone or something felt to display overly sentimental or unduly emotional piety (〈Gibbon's analysis of the causes of the growth of Christianity was very valuable, because he redressed the balance against a heavy weight of pietistic flapdoodle that passed for ecclesiastical history—Trevelyan〉 Sanctimonious has entirely lost its original connotation of a holy or sacred character and implies a mere pretension to or appearance of holiness or piety (〈a sanctimonious hypocrite〉〈sanctimonious phrases〉 Often it connotes a hypocritical aloofness or superiority of manner (if it only takes some of the sanctimonious

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
stances of generalizations about the actual and hypothetical connections between facts and events.—Streeten

(in my opinion the book Brave New World is no longer a prognosis, but a diagnosis—Peerman)

diagram n outline, draft, tracing, sketch, delineation, plot, blueprint (see under sketch vb)

Analogous words analogous words analogous words dialect n 1 Dialect, vernacular, patois, lingua, jargon, cant, argot, slang denote a form of language or a style of speech which varies from that accepted as the literary standard.

Dialect (see also language 1) is applied ordinarily to a form of a language that is confined to a locality or to a group, that differs from the standard form of the same language in peculiarities of vocabulary, pronunciation, usage, and morphology, and that persists for generations or even centuries. It may represent an independent development from the same origin as the standard form (as the Sussex dialect) or a survival (as the dialect of the Kentucky mountaineers). It is sometimes applied to any form of language differing from the standard (a Babylonish dialect which led pedants much affect—Butler d. 1680) Vernacular (usually the vernacular) has several applications, though it always denotes the form of language spoken by the people in contrast with that employed by learned or literary men. In the Middle Ages when the language of the church, of the universities, and of learned writings was Latin, the vernacular was the native language of the people whatever it might be in the locality in question (translate the Bible into the vernacular) (the first Christian missionaries from Rome did not teach their converts to pray and give praise in the vernacular—Quiller-Couch) When a contrast with the literary language rather than with Latin is implied, the vernacular is an etymological designation for the spoken language, the language that represents the speech of the people as a whole, that is colloquial but not inherently vulgar, and that is marked chiefly by the spontaneous choice of familiar, often native as opposed to exotic words and phrases (Pope... is absolute master of the raciest, most familiar, most cogent and telling elements of the vernacular—Lowes) Vernacular often implies a contrast with scientific nomenclature (taxonomic and vernacular names for flowers) Patois is often used as if it were the equivalent of dialect. It tends, however, to be restricted especially in North America to designating a form of speech used by the uneducated people in a bilingual section or country; the word often specifically refers to the hybrid language (of mingled English and Canadian French) spoken in some parts of Canada. Lingo is a term of contempt applied to any language that is not easily or readily understood. It is applicable to a strange foreign language, a dialect, or a patois or to the peculiar speech of a class, cult, or group (I have often warned you not to talk the court gibberish to me. I tell you, I don't understand the lingo—Fielding) Jargon, which may be applied to an unintelligible or meaningless speech (as in a foreign tongue or a patois), is used chiefly in reference to the technical or esoteric language of a subject, a class, a profession, or a cult and usually expresses the point of view of one unfamiliar with it and confused or baffled by it (cockets, and dockets, and drawbacks, and other jargon words of the customhouse—Swift) Whitman... has a somewhat vulgar inclination for technical talk and the jargon of philosophy—Stevenson) Cant, related to chant, seems to have been applied first to the whining speech of beggars. It has been applied more or less specifically to several different forms of language (as the secret language of gypsies and thieves, the technical language of a trade or profession, and the peculiar phraseology of a religious sect or of its preachers). From the last of these applications a new sense has been developed (see hypocrisy). When referring to the peculiar language of a subject or profession cant usually suggests the hackneyed use of set words or phrases, often in a specialized sense, and, unlike jargon, does not usually imply unintelligibility; thus, the language of sportswriters is a cant rather than a jargon; the scientific nomenclature used by physicians in official reports may be called medical jargon rather than cant by those who do not understand it; a person who repeatedly calls an investigation a "probe," a large book a "tome," a preacher a "parson," or his wife "my better half" may be said to be given to cant. Argot is applicable chiefly to the cant of the underworld; it is now sometimes used of any form of peculiar language adopted by a clique, a set, or other closely knit group. Slang does not as often denote a form of language or a style of speech as it does a class of recently coined words or phrases or the type of word which belongs to that class (in the slang of college students a drudge is a "grind") (the characteristic differences between American slang and British slang) Slang implies comparatively recent invention, the appeal of the words or phrases to popular fancy because of their aptness, picturesqueness, grotesqueness, or humorlessness, and usually an ephemeral character.

dialiectic *argumentation, disputation, debate, forensic diaphanous limpid,pellucid, transparent, translucent, clear, lucid

diatribe n *tirade, jeremiad, philippic

Analogous words

Analogous words analogous words analogous words

dictate vb Dictate, prescribe, ordain, decree, impose mean to lay down expressly something to be followed, observed, obeyed, or accepted. Dictate implies an authoritative direction by or as if by the spoken word which serves in governing or guiding one's course of action (they dictated the conditions of peace—Gibbon) (a man and woman who love each other and their children ought to be able to act spontaneously as the heart dictates—Russell) (all the other papers had traditions; their past principles dictated their future policy—Rose Macaulay) Prescribe (see also prescribe) implies a formulated rule, law, or order; it suggests an authoritative pronouncement which is clear, definite, and cannot be gainsaid (my teachers should have prescribed to me, 1st, sincerity; 2d, sincerity; 3d, sincerity—Thoreau) establishments maintained by general taxation and filled with children whose presence is prescribed by law—Grandgent) Ordain implies institution, establishment, or enactment by a supreme or unquestioned authority or power; usually it suggests an inalterable settlement of a problem or question (we still accept, in theory at all events, the Mosaic conception of morality as a code of rigid and inflexible rules, arbitrarily ordained, and to be blindly obeyed—Ellis) A blessed custom of my infancy ordained that every living room should be dominated by a good-sized center table—Repliher) A nature inexorably ordains that the human race shall perish of famine if it stops working—Shaw) Decree implies a decision made and formally pronounced by absolute authority or by a power whose edicts are received with the same attention. It is used particularly of ecclesiastical, civil, or judicial power, whether absolute or limited in its scope, or more broadly of anything whose authoritative pronouncements are blindly obeyed (the king decreed that all foreigners should be excluded from the state) (fashion decrees that skirts be shorter and jackets somewhat longer than last year) (if statues were decreed in Britain, as in ancient Greece and Rome, to public benefactors—Dickens) the old man was used to the order of his monastery, and though he slept on the ground, as the Rule decrees, preferred a decency in these things—Kipling] Impose implies a subjecting to what must be borne, endured, or submitted to. It may suggest infliction by a paramount authority (each time I attempted to speak he imposed silence—Hudson) [the ever more stringent regulations we found it necessary to impose—Heiser] More often it suggests limitations intended to make for order, beauty, or efficiency (patience and industry could only be secured . . . by the enforcement of good habits imposed by external authority—Russell) [when the language, the stresses, the very structure of the sentences are imposed upon the writer by the special mood of the piece—Cather] Ana direct, control, manage (see conduct): *guide, lead: *govern, rule: tell, utter, *say dictate n behest, bidding, injunction, *command, order, mandate Ana *law, rule, precept, canon, ordinance, statute, regulation dictatorial, magisterial, authoritarian, dogmatic, doctrinaire, oracular are comparable in the sense of imposing or having the manner or disposition of one who imposes his will or his opinions upon others. Dictatorial implies the powers of a dictator, but it has acquired so strong an implication of the assumption of such power that it often stresses autocratic or high-handed methods and a domineering, overbearing temper (a captain who has been entrusted with dictatorial power—Macaulay) [he is . . . very learned, very dictatorial, very knock-me-down—Mitford] Magisterial derives its chief implications from its reference to a magistrate or, more often, to a schoolmaster. It seldom implies an assumption of power, high-handedness, or a bad temper but does suggest excessive use or display of the powers or prerogatives associated with the offices of a magistrate or schoolmaster (as in controlling and disciplining or in enforcing the acceptance of one's opinions) (we are not magisterial in opinions, nor . . . obtrude our notions on any man—Browne) Magisterial is applied also to opinions or ideas which are so deeply impressed on the mind, especially the popular mind, that they cannot easily be eradicated (the "possible," as something less than the actual and more than the wholly unreal, is another of those magisterial notions of common sense—James) Authority is used chiefly in reference to states or governments (for this use see Totalitarian), to churches, to bodies, persons, or their policies or attitudes. It implies assumption of one's own (or another's) power to exact obedience or of the right to determine what others should believe or do; often it suggests an opposition to liberal or libertarian and sometimes to anarchic or anarchistic (authority system of education) (the authoritarian type of mind) (the decline of authoritarian control and the rapid changes in our ways of living have made changes in our education imperative—Christian Century) (in an authoritarian regime, on the other hand, it is usual to impose stringent tests of partisanship—Robson] Dogmatic implies the attitude of an authoritative or authoritarian teacher or preacher and the laying down of principles or dogmas as true and beyond dispute (art is never dogmatic; holds no brief for itself—you may take it or you may leave it—Galsworthy) [now physics is, or should be, undogmatic; mathematics is, and must be, dogmatic. No mathematician is infallible; he may make mistakes; but he must not hedge. Even in this age which dislikes dogma, there is no demand for an undogmatic edition of Euclid—Eddington] Dogmatic may imply, appreciatively, an assertive and sometimes an arrogant attitude that discourages if it does not inhibit debate (Mr. Raycie made no pretence to booklearning. . . . But on matters of art he was dogmatic and explicit, prepared to justify his opinions—Wharton] Doctrinaire usually implies a dogmatic disposition; it typically suggests an opposition to practical, for it emphasizes a disposition to be guided by one's theories or the doctrines of one's school of thought in teaching, in framing laws, or in policies or decisions, especially those affecting others (the rationalist mind . . . is of a doctrinaire and authoritative complexion: the phrase "must be" is ever on its lips—James) [the most profound contribution to political thought in America, namely, the Federalist, was not the work of doctrinaire thinkers but of men of affairs—Frankfurter] Oracular, with its implied reference to an ancient oracle, suggests the possession of hidden knowledge and the manner of one who delivers his opinions or views in cryptic phrases or with pompous dogmatism (his habit of oracular utterance when and possibly whenever he had a conviction—Pound) Ana *masterful, domineering, imperative, imperious, peremptory: despotic, tyrannical, arbitrary, autocratic, *absolute diction *language, vocabulary, phraseology, phrasing, style Ana speech, tongue, idiom, *language: enunciation, pronunciation, articulation (see corresponding verbs at ARTICULATE)

See also explanatory notes facing page

dido *prank, caper, antic, monkeyshine differ, vary, disagree, dissent mean to be unlike or out of harmony. Differ stresses the fact of unlikeness in kind or nature or in opinion but does not indicate except through the context the extent or degree of divergence (the houses in the row differ only in small details) (minds differ, as rivers differ—Macaulay) [they differed sharply about the college to which their son should be sent] Vary (see also change) though often interchangeable with differ may call attention to readily apparent differences and sometimes suggests a range of differences. The term commonly introduces a statement of the points, the ways, or the degree in which the things or the persons under discussion differ (the two editions vary only in small particulars) (the northern and southern races vary chiefly in size) (the strength and direction of sea currents vary considerably at different times of the year—Dowdeswell) Disagree emphasizes lack of agreement and not only may imply differences between things or variance between persons or opinions, but often may suggest incompatibility, unfitness, or disharmony (the two accounts disagree in important details) (the verb should not disagree with the subject noun either in person or number) (who shall decide when Doctors disagree?—Pope) (one can disagree with his views, but one can't refute them—Henry Miller) Of the words here compared only disagree is used in reference to lack of harmony between a thing and a person that results in mental or physical disorder of the latter (the climate disagreed with him) (fried foods disagree with many people) Dissent denotes a difference in opinion between persons or groups; it may imply refusal to assent to or the withholding of consent from something that is proposed or offered (dissenting to the most outrageous invasion of private right ever set forth as a decision of the court—Boyd) [it has . . . taken on the worst intolerance of ignorance and stupidity . . . . All who dissent from its orthodox doctrines are scoundrels—Mencken] or it may imply the expression of a difference in opinion from a person or persons holding an opposite view (a great number of people in England would dissent from that judgment—C. R. James) Ana diverge, deviate, depart (see Swerve) Ant agree

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
distinguish, discriminate, demarcate hard, arduous different, diverse, disparate, various are comparable when they are used to qualify plural nouns and mean not identical or alike in kind or character. Different often implies little more than distinctness or separateness (<four different persons told me the same story>) Sometimes, however, it implies contrast or contrariety (they approached the subject from different points of view) <vastly different in size than it was twenty-five years ago—N. M. Pusey> Diverse is stronger and implies marked difference and decided contrast (<I obtained from three cultivated Englishmen at different times three diverse pronouncements of a single word—J. R. Lowell> A curious fusion of diverse elements—Van Vechten> Divergent implies movement apart or along different courses and usually connotes the impossibility of an ultimate meeting, combination, or reconciliation (<they took divergent paths> he was bothered very much by divergent strands in his own intellectual composition—H. G. Wells> He recognized that labor and capital have divergent interests—Cohen> Disparate implies absolute or essential difference, often results from incongruous or incompatible elements (<two divergent, yet not wholly disparate emotions—Myers> for if men are so diverse, not less disparate are the many men who keep discordant company within each one of us—Pater> Various (see also MANY) commonly lays stress on the number of sorts or kinds (<in various shapes of parsons, critics, beaus—Pope> an exuberant energy which displayed itself in various fields—Ellis> Ana *distinct, separate, several: *single, particular: various, sundry, divers (see MANY>)

Ana *obstacle, impediment, snag, obstruction: *predication, dilemma, quandary, plight, scrape, fix, jam, pickle: pinch, strain, emergency, exigency, pass (see juncture)

diffident modest, bashful, *shy, coy

Ana shrinking, flinching, blenching (see recoil): hesitant, reluctant (see disinclined): timidous, *timid

Ant confident —Con assured, sure, sanguine, presump-tuous (see confident): self-confident, self-assured, self-possessed (see corresponding nouns at confidence): brash, brazen, impudent, * shameless diffuse adj prolix, redundant, verbose, *wordy

Ana *profuse, lavish, exuberant: desultory, casual, *random: copious (see plentiful): *loose, relaxed, slack, lax

Ant succinct —Con *concise, terse, laconic, pithy, summary: compact, *close diffuse vb *spread, circulate, disseminate, propagate, radiate

Ana disperse, dissipate (see scatter): *extend: *expand

Ant concentrate —Con *compact, consolidate: focus, *center, centralize dig vb Dig, delve, spade, grub, excavate mean to use a spade or similar utensil in breaking up the ground to a point below the surface and in turning or removing the earth or bringing to the surface of something below it. Dig, the commonest word, implies a loosening of the earth around or under something so as to bring it to the surface, or a disturbing of the earth by such loosening (<dig in the ruins of Pompeii> <dig for gold> <dig potatoes> Dig may also result comparable to that obtained by spading (<the woodchuck dug a burrow in the field>) or a bringing to the surface or out of concealment (<dig up a man's past>) or prolonged laborious effort as in study or research (<Laurie dug to some purpose that year, for he graduated with honor—Alcott>) Delve implies the use of a spade or more often of efforts comparable to the use of a spade and carries a stronger connotation of laboriousness and depth of penetration (as in the work of a gardener or of one who cultivates an interest) (<eleven, twelve, dig and delve—Old Nursery Rhyme>) (a smug and spectacled best scholar, spending . . . time delving among the chronicles . . . in much misery and hardship born—Milton> The hardships of life in a slum area) However, it is so frequently applied to the suffering, toil, and privation encountered in an attempt to accomplish an end that it often comes very close to difficulty in its implications (<the search for truth . . . makes men and women content to undergo hardships and to brave perils—Elliot> they had practically overcome the worst hardships that primitive man had to fear—Cather>)

Rigor usually applies to a hardship that is imposed upon one, sometimes by oneself (as through asceticism or ambition) but more often by an austere religion, a tyrannical government or other power, a trying climate, or an extremely exacting enterprise or undertaking (<to undergo much pain, many hardships, and other rigors—Burnet> the rigors of an explorer's life) A vast deal of sympathy has been lavished upon the Puritan settlers because of the rigors of their religion—Reynolds> A European custom which nowhere survived the rigors of the frontier—W. P. Webb> The rigors of an arctic winter> Vicissitude (see also change n 2) applies to a difficulty or hardship incident to a way of life especially as it is subjected to extraneous influences, to a career, or to a course of action; it usually suggests reference to something that demands effort and endurance if it is to be overcome (<the fierce vicissitudes of nearly combat—Lecky> it is the work he performed during these years, often in illness, danger, and vicissi-tudes, that should earn him particular gratitude from his Church—T. S. Eliot> The dwarving vicissitudes of poverty—Hackett>}

Ana analogous words
Ant antonyms
Con contrasted words
See also explanatory notes facing page 1
the reading room of the British Museum—Rose Macaulay

Spade is often interchangeable with dig but even more frequently than the latter is applied to a turning of the earth in manual (as opposed to mechanical) preparation of soil for planting (spade up a garden) (she had spaded a pit in the backyard for barbecues—Joseph Mitchell) (has spent her writing career (28 years, eleven books) spading up the New England past—Time) Grub may denote a digging and turning of soil but more often implies a clearing of soil by digging out something (as roots, stumps, and stones); often it suggests the hard, dirty, exhaustingly nature of such work and with this feeling may be used of various tasks, labors, or duties (women and children helped to grub the land—Collier) (surviving on roots he grabbed from the soil) (shuffled among the ruins of their cities, and grabbed in the countryside for food and fuel—The Lamp) (fortunes were made in a day of grubbing and lost in a night of faro or red dog—Bilington) In some cases grub reflects the disorder of the land-clearing process and denotes a haphazard and laborious rummaging (I grabbed in the dark alone, grooping among shoes and boots . . . , painfully garnering the scattered pictures—Phelan) (grub pickers . . . grubbing about among a pile of human refuse—Times Lit. Sup.) (grubbing around cemeteries) Excavate suggests making a hollow in or through something (as the ground, a mass of rock, or a mountainside) by or as if by means of a spade or shovel or a machine which performs the operations of spading and shoveling (excavate the ground for a cellar) (excavate a tomb) (excavate a tunnel) (archaeologists engaged in excavating the site of an ancient city) Ana pierce, penetrate, probe, *enter diggest n *compendium, syllabus, pandect, survey, sketch, précis, aperçu Ana collection, assemblage, gathering (see under GATHER-ER): *abridgment, conspectus, abstract, brief, synopsis, epitome digit n *number, numeral, figure, integer dignify, ennoble, honor, glorify mean to invest a person or thing with something that elevates or uplifts his or its character or raises him or it in human estimation. Dignify distinctively implies the addition of something that adds to the worth of a person or thing or, more often, to the estimation in which he or it is held or should be held (from lowest place when virtuous things proceed, the effect that touches the one honored except in externals

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
-Kipling> Divagation is often used in preference to digression when aimless wandering from the main course or inattentiveness to logic is implied. (Foxe's of poetry invites the widest... liberty of divagation, of dragging in anything that really interested him—Saintsbury) (the author of it would need to keep an extremely clear head, reject stuffing and divagation—Swinerton)

dilapidate *ruin, wreck
Ana *decay, disintegrate, crumble, decompose: *neglect, ignore, disregard, forget, slight, overlook Con repair, rebuild, *mend: *renew, restore, renovate, rejuvenate dilate 1 *discourse, expatiate, descant

Ana *relate, recount, rehearse, recite, narrate; describe; expound, *explain; *discuss, argue 2 *expand, distend, swell, amplify, inflate
Ana enlarge, *increase, augment: *extend, protract, prolong, lengthen: widen, broaden (see corresponding adjectives at BROAD)
Ant constrict: circumscribe: attenuate —Con *contract, shrink, compress, condense dilatory *slow, laggard, deliberate, leisurely Ana procrastinating, delaying, dawdling (see DELAY): *negligent, neglectful, lax, slack, remiss Ant diligent —Con *busy, assiduous, industrious: *quick, prompt, ready dilemma *predicament, quandary, plight, scrape, fix, jam, pickle Ana perplexity, bewilderment, mystification (see corresponding verbs at PUZZLE): *difficulty, vicissitude

dilettante *amateur, dabbler, tyro Con artist, *expert, adept
2 *aesthete, connoisseur
Ana *artist, artificer, architect: *writer, composer, author: craftsman, workman (see WORKER)

diligent assiduous, sedulous, industrious, *busy Ana persevering, persisting or persistent (see corresponding verbs at PERSEVERE): *indefatigable, tireless, untiring, un wearied, unflagging Ant dilatory —Con *slow, laggard, deliberate, leisurely: surely: desultory, casual, happy-go-lucky (see RANDOM)

dim vb attenuate, *thin, rarely Ana temper, *moderate, qualify: *weaken, enfeeble: *liquefy, deliquesce: *dilute, diluate, sophisticate
Ant condense: concentrate (in chemistry, especially in past participial form)

dim adj dusky, *dark, obscure, murky, gloomy Ana bright: distinct —Con brilliant, radiant, luminous, effulgent (see BRIGHT): manifest, patent, *evident, plain, clear dim vb *obscure, bedim, darken, eclipse, cloud, becloud, fog, befog, obfuscate Ana screen, conceal, *hide: cloak, mask, camouflague, *disguise Ant illustrate

dimensions extent, *size, area, magnitude, volume Ana reduce, *decrease, lessen, abate, dwindle diminish wane, ebb, *abate, subside: moderate, temper: lighten, alleviate, mitigate (see RELIEVE): attenuate, extenuate (see THIN) Con enlarge, augment, *increase: *extend: *intensify, enhance, heighten, aggravate diminutive adj little, *small, wee, tiny, minute, minia- ture Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page I van, colossal, mammoth din n. Din, uproar, pandemonium, hullabaloo, babel, hubbub, clamor, racket mean a disturbing or confusing wave of sound or a scene or situation marked by such a welter of sounds. Din emphasizes the distress suffered by the ears and the completely distracting effect of the noise as a whole; it often suggests prolonged and deaging clangor or insistent ear-splitting metallic sounds (the din of a machine shop) (escape the din of heavy traffic) (the din of a New Year's Eve party) (think you a little din can daunt mine ears?... Have I not heard great or- nance in the field, and heaven's artillery thunder in the skies?—Shak) (the general had forbidden the tolling of funeral bells so that the incessant mournful din might not pound perpetually at our ears—Kenneth Roberts)

Uproar and pandemonium both imply tumult or wild disorder, typically of a crowd of persons but often among wild animals or in the elements; when the reference is to men, uproar usually suggests the sound of a multi- tude vociferously, sometimes riotously, protesting, arguing, or defying and pandemonium, the din produced when a group or crowd usually under discipline breaks bounds and runs riot or becomes uncontrollably boister- ous (often throw the parliamentary debates into an uproar—Blanshard) (pandemonium followed the announce- ment of the armistice) (draw not the sword; 'twould make an uproar. Duke, you would not hear the end of—Keats) (the modern parent... does not want a ficti- tious Sabbath calm while he is watching, succeeded by pandemonium as soon as he turns his back—Russell)

Hullabaloo is often interchangeable with din or uproar especially in a construction following make, but it seldom carries the suggestions of piercing, ear-splitting noise or of vociferation and turmoil which are respectively so strong in din and uproar. When it refers to a welter of sounds, it suggests great excitement and an interruption of peace or quiet (the hullabaloo made by hunters and hounds in the chase) (the children are making a great hullabaloo at their party) When it refers to a situation, it suggests a storm of protest, an outburst of passion or wrath, or a torrent of comment or sensational gossip (the current political hullabaloo—New Republic) (the project was not again brought before the public until the hulla- baloo about it had died down) (the music stopped and the familiar hullabaloo was reestablished in the room—Stofford) (Babel stresses the confusion of sounds that results from a mingling of languages and vocal qualities and the seeming meaningless or purposeless quality of the sound of tongues—Bambrick) (must we fall into the jaber and babel of discord—Sir Winston Churchill)

Hubbub denotes the confusing mixture of sounds charac- teristic of activities and business; it implies incessant movement or bustle rather than turmoil (a sound heard above the hubbub of the city streets) (strollers on the common could hear, at certain hours, a hubbub of voices and racing footsteps from within the boundary wall—Shaw) Clamor and racket, like din, stress the psychologi- cal effect of noises more than their character or origin. They usually imply annoyance or disturbance rather than distress and distraction and are applicable to any combina- tion of sounds or any scene that strikes one as excessively or inordinately noisy (the clamor was such that votes could not be taken until at last the shouting subsided—W. P. Webb) (the crown began to shriek... In a few se- conds the clamor had attracted the attention of a bevy of wild crows—Kipling) (we wanted quiet, not racket—Steele) (something like forty feet of chain and wire rope, mixed up with a few heavy iron blocks, had crashed down from aloft on the poop with a terrifying racket—Conrad

Ana clamorousness, stridency, boisterousness, blatancy (see corresponding adjectives at VOCIFEROUS): clash, concussion (see IMPACT)

Ant quiet

dingly *shabby, dilapidated, faded, seedy, threadbare

Ana soiled, grimed, sullied, smirched, tarnished (see SOIL): *dull (sense 2): dusky, murky, gloomy (see DARK)

Con *bright, luminous, brilliant: fresh, *new: *clean, cleanly dinner, banquet, feast are comparable when denoting an elaborate meal that is served to guests or to a group (as of members of a club or association) and that often marks some special occasion (as an anniversary) or honors a particular person. Dinner which basically means the chief meal of the day is the most general of these terms; it is appropriately used of any elaborate and formal meal served to guests or to a group and is the preferred term for use in invitations and in colorless reference to such an affair <popular as a speaker at public dinners> <planned a birthday dinner for her cousin> <worn out by state dinners and receptions> Typically, banquet suggests the sumptuousness of the meal, the magnificence of its setting, and often the ceremonial character of the occasion and entertainment  <entertaining him, his captains, and brave knights, to grace a banquet—Keats> It may stress the excellence and elaborateness of food and service <the widows and other women prepare a special dinner, which may be so elaborate as to become a banquet—Amer. Guide Series: Ariz.> or especially in popular use it may imply no more than a formal dinner held elsewhere than in a private home <not so long ago the word “banquet” evoked pictures of barons of beef, turtle soup, boar’s heads and ten courses served on solid gold plate . . . “banquet” today has become the generic word for any meal served in a private room in a hotel—Britannia & Eve> <father’s club gave a banquet at the hotel—L. E. Billington> Feast is often interchangeable with banquet but it may carry over a feeling of its other meaning of a festival of rejoicing and then stresses the shared enjoyment and pleasure in the occasion that gives rise to the meal  <to share our marriage feast and nuptial mirth—Keats> <it is not the quantity of the meat, but the cheerfulness of the guests, which makes the feast—Clarendon> Unlike the other terms of this group feast has frequent extended use with the notion of a source of, often shared, enjoyment <treasures his memories of that . . . visit, with vegetarian meals and a feast of conversation—Fogg> <human beings have always loved these perceptual feasts of sensuous satisfaction—Hunter Mead>

dip vb 1 Dip, immerse, submerge, duck, souse, dunk are comparable when meaning to plunge a person or thing into or as if into liquid. Dip implies a momentary or partial plunging into a liquid or a slight or cursory entrance into a subject <the priest shall dip his finger in the blood—Lev 4:6> <dip a dress in cleansing fluid> <dip into a book> <she had dipped in the wells of blissful oblivion—Meredith> Immense implies that the person or thing is covered by the liquid or buried or engrossed in something <immense: the persons being baptized> <immense a dress in boiling dye for several minutes> <immense oneself in thought>  Submerge implies complete and often prolonged immersion (as in an inundation) or a being overwhelmed or, sometimes, overpowered and made helpless <the submarine submerged by the flood> <the last and most violent religious rebellion . . . seemed likely to submerge that monarchy—Belloc>

It may suggest a sinking to the lowest state, grade, or status <personality had been submerged by organization—W. P. Webb> <almost unheard of for such a girl to enter into relations with a man of that submerged class—Mencken> Duck implies a sudden plunging and an almost immediate withdrawal  <ducked into a doorway to avoid a bore>

Souse adds to duck the suggestion of more prolonged immersion and often of a thorough soaking <the boy was soused before he was freed from his captors>  <after being soused in the Atlantic ocean—Aldrich> Souse sometimes implies steeping of meat, fish, or other food in a pickle or tart liquid for the sake of preserving and flavoring it <soused mackerel>

It may often imply not only immersion but a being saturated and, hence, after liquor drinking a becoming intoxicated <basted> Dunk in its basic use means to dip and soak something (as bread or a doughnut) in coffee, tea, or milk before eating it, but in many contexts it is equivalent to duck or immerse <men dangling from lines, being dunked in the cold sea as the ship rolled—Cronk>

2 Dip, bail, scoop, ladle, spoon, dish mean to remove a liquid or a loose or soft substance from a container by means of an implement (as a pail, spoon, or scoop). They are often followed by up or out. Dip suggests the process of plunging the utensil (usually called a dipper) into the substance and lifting it out full; it is the preferred word when the labor involved is to be implied or the action is described <dip drinking water from a spring> <dip into one’s memory for facts one has nearly forgotten>

Bail is used chiefly in reference to something (as a boat) in which water has accumulated or is accumulating; it implies emptying or an attempt to empty by means of repeated dipping <bail the water out of a rowboat> <by the help of a small bucket and our hats we bailed her [a boat] out—Dana> Scoop, ladle, spoon throw the emphasis on the kind of implement employed in an operation consisting usually of dipping, conveying, and pouring. Scoop suggests a shovellike implement, either a small kitchen utensil for dipping out loose dry material (as flour, sugar, or coffee beans) or for gouging out pieces of a soft substance (as cheese) or a much larger and heavier implement used in digging or excavating operations or in the removal of a heap of things from one place to another <scoop out three cups of sugar> <scoop up the catch of fish into barrels> <scooping gravel from the pit into waiting trucks> Ladle implies the use of a ladle, or long-handled implement with a bowl-shaped end and often a pouring lip; it is especially used of substances which are liable to be spilled <ladle soup into bowls> <ladle out the punch>

The term sometimes implies the use of a mechanical device for removing and conveying liquid (as molten metal) from one container to another. Spoon implies the use of a spoon in lifting and depositing something (as food or medicine) <the girl who spoons out vegetables in the cafeteria> <slowly spooning up the hot soup>

Dish implies transference to the individual plate or dish of a portion of food (as by ladling or spooning) <dish out the vegetables> <dish up the ice cream>

diplomatic politic, smooth, bland, suave, urbane

Ana astute, *shrewd: courteous, courtesy, polite (see dipsomaniac 245
dirty

civil): artful, wily, guileful, crafty (see sly): tactful, poised (see corresponding nouns at tact)
dipsomaniac alcoholic, inebriate, *drunkard, sot, soak, toper, tosspot, tippler
direct vb 1 Direct, address, devote, apply are comparable
dipsomaniac alcoholic, inebriate, *drunkard, sot, soak, toper, tosspot, tippler
direct vb 1 Direct, address, devote, apply are comparable direct vb 1 Direct, address, devote, apply are comparable dipsomaniac alcoholic, inebriate, *drunkard, sot, soak, toper, tosspot, tippler
disarray

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
disaster, calamity, catastrophe, cataclysm are comparable when they denote an event or situation that is regarded as a terrible misfortune. A disaster is an unforeseen mishance or misadventure (as a shipwreck, a serious railroad accident, or the failure of a great enterprise) which happens either through culpable lack of foresight or through adverse external agency and brings with it destruction (of as of life and property) or ruin (as of projects, careers, or great hopes) (such a war would be the final and supreme disaster to the world—MacLeish) Calamity is a grievous misfortune, particularly one which involves a great or far-reaching personal or public loss or which produces profound, often widespread distress; thus, the rout at Bull Run was a disaster for the North but the assassination of President Lincoln was a calamity; the wreck of the Don Juan was a disaster and, as involving the loss of Shelley, it was a calamity (we have heard of his decision ... It is a disaster—for me it is a calamity—Galworthy) (Hamlet's bloody stage is now our world, and we are beginning to trace our own calamity back to its sources—Battenhouse) Catastrophe is used of a disastrous conclusion; it often emphasizes the idea of finality (the captain's folly hastened the catastrophe) (what had become of them [the inhabitants of a deserted village]? What catastrophe had overwhelmed them?—Cather) Cataclysm is often used of an event or situation that brings with it an overwhelming of the old order or a violent social or political upheaval (in the general upheaval of doctrine ... during the Reformation cataclysm—Blunt) (a thought so imperishably phrased that it sums up not only the cataclysm of a world, but also the stoic and indomitable temper that endures it—Lowes)

Ana mishap, *accident, casualty: adversity, *misfortune, mischance disastrous *unlucky, ill-starred, ill-fated, unfortunate, calamitous, luckless, hapless Ana malign, *sinister, baleful: unpropitious, inauspicious, *ominous, portentous, fateful dissavow *disclaim, repudiate, disown, disallow Ana deny, gainsay, traverse: *disapprove, deprecate: Ana maintain, assert, justify: *express, —Con adopt, embrace, espouse: utilize, employ, *use: Ana exclude, blackball disbelief *unbelief, incredulity
Ana atheism, deism (compare nouns at ATHEIST): rejection, repudiation, spurning (see corresponding verbs at DECLINE) Ana belief —Con faith, credence, credit (see BELIEF) disburse *spend, expend Ana *distribute, dispense: apportion, *allot, allocate: *pay discard vb Discard, cast, shed, mol, slough, scrap, junk mean to get rid of as of no further use, value, or service: Discard literally denotes the getting rid of a card from one's hand in a card game, usually because they are worthless or can be replaced by better cards; in its more common general sense, it implies a getting rid of something which one can no longer use to advantage or which has become a burden, an annoyance, or an interference (he sorted and re-sorted his cargo, always finding a more necessary article for which a less necessary had to be discarded—Cather) (modern research, which discards obsolete hypotheses without scruple or sentiment—Inge) (in portrait painting, where a painter discards many trivial points of exactness, in order to heighten the truth of a few fundamentals—Montague) Cast (see also THROW) may imply a seasonal process of discarding (as the throwing off of skin by a reptile) (creatures that cast their skin are the snake, the viper—Bacon) Especially when followed by off, away, or out, it more frequently implies a discarding, a rejection, a discharging, or a repudiation (his wife was casting him off, half regretfully, but relentlessly—D. H. Lawrence) (an Englishman like an Ethiopian cannot change his skin any more than a leopard can cast off his spots—Cloete) Shed is the ordinary, general term for the seasonal or periodic casting of skin, hair, antlers, or leaves (deciduous trees shed their leaves every autumn) (male deer shed their antlers annually) The term is used also to imply a throwing off or discarding of anything that is a burden to carry, that represents a past stage in one's development, or that is no longer useful or comfortable (found it warm enough to shed his overcoat) (statesmen may try to shed their responsibility by treating the situation as a natural phenomenon—Hobson) (Jane ... was acquiring new sublteties, complexities, and comprehensions, and shedding crudities—Rose Macaulay) Molt is the specific term for the periodic shedding of feathers, skin, shells, hair, or horns by various animals and the growth of new corresponding parts. It often suggests a process of a change in plumage including the shedding of feathers and their renewal (the eagle when he molts is sickly—Carlyle) (while hens are molting they do not lay eggs) In general use molt even more often than shed implies change, flux, or transition (England is molting. Opinions ... are ... in a state of flux—Goldwin Smith) (belief ... that society can molt its outer covering and become new in shape and spirit—J. D. Hart) Slough implies the shedding of tissue (as the skin by a reptile or, especially in intransitive use, of necrotic or cicatricial tissue from the surface of a sore or wound) (the snake often sloughs its skin in mid-September) (the scab is sloughing off from the sore) The term is also common in the sense of to discard or throw off what has become objectionable, burdensome, or useless (slough a bad habit) (this talented author has sloughed off most of her more irritating sentimentallites—Times Lit. Sup.) (as though her gaunt and worldly air had been only a mockery she began to slough it off—Bromfield) (the last two words, scrap and junk, have literal reference to the throwing away of fragments, parts, or pieces that are useless to the owner or can no longer be used by him. Scrap suggests a discarding as rubbish or refuse, but it may carry an implication of some use to another (as a processor or a dealer in parts or accessories) (scrap out-of-date machinery) (scrap a plan as impractical) (all the old ideas of combat have to be scrapped) (the English language that Shakespeare was born to had used up and scrapped a good deal of the English of Chaucer—Montague) Junk differs little from scrap except in stressing a throwing away and in carrying little implication of value to a second-hand dealer or to a processor of waste (junk all their old furniture before moving into their new home) (in its astonishing quest for perfection, can junk an entire system of ideas almost overnight—Davidson)

Ana *abandon, forsake, desert: reject, repudiate, spurn (see DECLINE vb); dismiss, *eject, *oust Ana adopt, embrace, espouse: utilize, employ, *use: retain, *keep, hold, hold back discern perceive, descry, observe, notice, remark, note, esp, behold, *see, view, survey, contemplate
Ana *discover, ascertain: divine, apprehend, anticipate, *foresee: pierce, penetrate, probe (see ENTER)

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
discernment, discrimination, perception, penetration, insight, acumen are comparable when they denote keen intellectual vision. All imply power to see below the surface and to understand what is not evident to the average mind. Discernment stresses accuracy (as in reading character or motives or in appreciation of art) (she had not had the discernment to discover the caliber of this young favorite—Bellow) Discrimination emphasizes the power to distinguish and select the excellent, the appropriate, or the true (there was a time when schools attempted . . . to cultivate discrimination and to furnish the material on which selection can be founded—Grandgent) nobody should reproach them for reading indiscriminately. Only by so doing can they learn discrimination—Times Lit. Sup.) Perception implies quick discernment and delicate feeling (of a temperament to feel keenly the presence of subtleties; a man of clumsiest perceptions would not have felt as he did—George Eliot) (persecutors were ordinary, reasonably well-intentioned people lacking in keen perception—Sykes) Penetration implies a searching mind and power to enter deeply into something beyond the reach of the senses (it did not require any great penetration to discover that what they wished was that their letters should be as kind as was consistent with proper maidenly pride—De Quincey) (good little novels, full of Gallic irony and penetration—Time) Insight emphasizes depth of discernment or of sympathetic understanding (throughout the years he has used . . . techniques or insights provided by abstract art, to express better his statements about men and the world—Current Biog.) Acumen suggests characteristic penetration and keenness and soundness of judgment (a paradox which your natural acumen, sharpened by habits of logical attention, will enable you to reconcile in a moment—Cowper) Ana intuition, understanding, *reason: perspicaciousness or perspicacity, sagaciousness or sagacity, shrewdness, astuteness (see corresponding adjectives at shrewd) Con stupidity, slowness, dullness, density, crassness (see corresponding adjectives at stupid): blindness (see corresponding adjective blind) discharge vb 1 *free, release, liberate, deliver, emancipate, manumit, enfranchise Ana *eject, expel, oust, dismiss: eliminate, *exclude 2 *dismiss, cashier, drop, sack, fire, bounce Ana *dispose, supplant, supersede, *replace 3 *perform, execute, accomplish, achieve, effect, fulfill Ana *finish, complete, *close, end, terminate disciple adherent, *follower, henchman, satellite, sectary, partisan Ana votary, devotee (see addict n): *enthusiast, zealot, fanatic discipline n *morale, esprit de corps Ana self-control, self-command (see base words at power): self-confidence, self-possession (see confidence): nervous, steeling (see encourage) Ant anxiety, lawlessness —Con enervation (see corresponding verb at unnerve): disorganization, disorder (see corresponding verbs at disorder) discipline vb 1 train, educate, *teach, instruct, school Ana lead, *guide: control, manage, direct, *conduct: drill, exercise, *practice 2 *punish, chastise, castigate, chasten, correct Ana subdue, overcome, reduce, subjugate (see conquer): *restrain, curb, bridge, check, inhibit disclaimer, disavow, repudiate, disown, disallow mean to refuse to admit, accept, or approve. Disclaimer implies refusal to admit or accept a claim, but it may apply specifically to a legal claim one has upon property or to a title (the son disclaimed all right to his father’s small estate) or to the claim or imputation of something evil made by another to one’s chagrin or dismay (this court disclaims all pretensions to such a power—John Marshall) I entirely disclaim the hatred and hostility to Turks . . . which you ascribe to me—Gladden) or, even more frequently, to the implied or expressed praise of oneself by another (Mark was embarrassed by the Rector’s talking like this; but if he disclaimed the virtues attributed to him he should . . . give an impression of false modesty—Mackenzie) Disavow often comes close to disclaim in meaning, but it much less often implies reference to a legal claim and fastens the attention upon a vigorous denial either of personal responsibility for something or personal acceptance or approval of something (Melfort never disavowed these papers—Macaulay) (the boys disavowed any intention to set the stable on fire) (this Court always had disavowed the right to intrude its judgment upon questions of policy or morals—Justice Holmes) Repudiate originally applied to a casting away of one’s wife (see also repudiate under decline); it may also imply a casting off or a denial of responsibility for something that has been previously acknowledged, recognized, or accepted (they repudiated their heresies) (the state has repudiated its debts) (a law which everyone recognizes in fact, though everyone repudiates it in theory—Dickinson) (the liberal mind . . . had repudiated the doctrine of original sin—Straight) Disown usually stresses a repudiation or renunciation and often applies to something that has stood in close relationship to the person disowning; it may specifically imply disheritage or abjuration (disowned his son) (disowned his allegiance to the country of his birth) (the prince . . . was . . . required to disown . . . the obligations contracted in his name—Froude) Disallow implies the withholding of sanction or approval and sometimes suggests complete rejection or condemnation (disallowed the jockey’s claim of a foul) (disallow a bill for the entertainment of the officers) (it was known that the most eminent of those who professed his own principles, publicly disallowed his proceedings—Swift) (your claim upon her hand is already disallowed—G. P. R. James) Ana *deny, gainsay, traverse, contradict: reject, refuse, spurn (see decline): deprecate (see disappoint): belittle, minimize, disparage (see de cry) Ant claim disclose *reveal, divulge, tell, discover, betray Ana confess, admit, own, *acknowledge, avow: *declare, proclaim, announce, publish, broadcast, advertise Con conceal, *hide: cloak, mask, dissemble, *disguise, camouflage discomfit disconcert, *embarrass, faze, abash, rattle Ana *anooy, vex, irk, bother: perturb, *discompose, agitate, upset, disturb: check, *arrest, interrupt discommode incommode, *inconvenience, trouble Ana disturb, perturb, upset, fluster, flurry, *discompose: vex, irk, bother (see annooy) discompose, disquiet, disturb, perturb, agitate, upset, fluster, flurry are comparable when they mean to excite one so as to destroy one’s capacity for clear or collected thought or prompt action. Discompose is sometimes only slightly more suggestive of mental confusion than disconcert or discomfit; usually, however, it implies greater emotional stress and an actual loss of self-control or self-confidence (he was still discomposed by the girl’s bitter and sudden retort. It had cast a gloom over him—Joyce) Disquiet stresses the loss, not of composure, but of something deeper (as one’s sense of security or of well-being or one’s peace of mind) (why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me?—Ps 42:11) (he was indubitably not happy at bottom, restless and disconcert, his disquietude sometimes amounting to agony
—Arnold

why should we disquiet ourselves in vain in the attempt to direct our destiny—Crothers

Disturb, unlike the preceding words, carries no implication of a loss of one's balance or of an excess of emotion; usually it implies marked interference with one's mental processes (as by worry, perplexity, disappointment, or interruption) profoundly disturbed by the prospective dissolution of a bond which dated from the seventies—Bennett nothing is more disturbing than the upsetting of a preconceived idea—Conrad

Perturb implies deep disturbance and unsettlement of mind; it usually connotes a cause for disturbance or alarm (in this perturbed state of mind, with thoughts that could rest on nothing, she walked on—Austen) to perturbed by excursions into verbal coquetry, and later into political arguments—Hillyer

Agitate emphasizes the loss of calmness and self-control and implies obvious signs of nervous or emotional excitement. It does not, however, always suggest distress of mind or a cause of worry (so agitated that she was incoherent—Deland)

grow more and more irritated, more and more agitated—Woolf

(it was a happiness that agitated rather than soothed her—Crothers)

Upset, like agitate, implies a nervous reaction, but it usually presupposes a cause that brings disappointment or distress or sorrow (they wouldn't have believed they could be so upset by a hurt woodpecker—Cather)

what upset me in the . . . trial was not the conviction, but the methods of the defense—Laski

Fluster may carry a suggestion of the excitement and confusion induced by drinking intoxicants (flustered with new wine—Tennyson) but it usually suggests the agitation, bewilderment, and sometimes fright induced by sudden and often unexpected demands, commands, needs, or crises (the aged housekeeper was no less flustered and hurried in obeying the numerous . . . commands of her mistress—Scott)

Flurry suggests the excitement, commotion, and confusion induced by great haste or alarm (they reached the station, hot and flurried, just as the train pulled out) (thoughts, with their attendant visions, which . . . flurried her too much to leave her any power of observation—Austen)

he recognized her and sat down immediately, flurried and confused by his display of excitement—O'Flaherty

Ana discomfit, disconcert, rattle, faze, *embarrass: vex, irk, bother, *annoy: *worry, harass, plague, pester

Con appease, *pacify, conciliate, mollify, placate, propitiate

disconcert rattle, faze, discomfit, *embarrass, abash

Ana bewilder, nonplus, perplex, *puzzle: *dismember, fluster, flurry, disturb, perturb disconsolate woebegone, *downcast, dejected, depressed, dispirited

Ana inconsolable, comfortless (see affirmative verbs at comfort): sorrowful, woeful (see corresponding nouns at sorrow): melancholy, doleful discontinue desist, cease, *stop, quit

Ana suspend, intermit, stay (see defer): *arrest, check, interrupt

Ant continue

discord n Discord, strife, conflict, contention, disension, difference, variance mean a state or condition marked by disagreement and lack of harmony or the acts or circumstances which manifest such a state or condition. Discord implies not only a want of harmony or of concord between persons or between things but also, usually, a positive clashing which manifests itself in personal relations by quarreling, factiousness, or antagonism, in relations between sounds by a resulting dissonance or unpleasant noise, and in relations between other things that are incongruous or incompatible by creating unpleasant impressions or mental disturbance (they were firm and understanding friends. I know of but one approach to discord in their relations—Repple)

in this state of enlightenment there is no more discord between the will, the intellect, and the feelings, and the objects of our reverence—Inge

the seeker after truth . . . must disclaim responsibility for the way in which his discoveries fit into the general scheme of things. For the moment they may seem to produce discord rather than harmony—Crothers

Strife throws the emphasis on a struggle for superiority rather than on the incongruity or incompatibility of the persons or things that disagree. It applies chiefly to relations between persons, and when used in reference to things it is nearly always figurative. Also, the term may imply any of widely different motives for the struggle (as rivalry, emulation, difference in opinion, disagreement, deep antagonism, or violent hostility) (domestic fury and fierce civil strife—Shak.)

yet live in hatred, enmity, and strife among themselves—Milton

I strove with none, for none was worth my strife—Landor

(a face in which a strange strife of wishes, for and against, was apparent—Hardy)

the crowd swells, laughing and pushing toward the quays in friendly strife—Lowell

Conflict (see also conflict) implies a clashing and a struggle, but it stresses not the aim or end but the process, the uncertainty of the outcome, or the trials, difficulties, or torments it involves. In this sense the term may apply to actual battles or wars, but usually it applies to a mental, moral, or spiritual state of a person or group of persons or to its outward manifestations (with conflict of contending hopes and fears—Cowper)

no more for him life's stormy conflicts—Whitman

the conflict of passion, temper, or appetite with the external duties—T. S. Eliot

The term is also used in a milder sense to imply an incompatibility between or the impossibility of reconciling two things which come together at the same time or upon the one person (a conflict of engagements)

(a conflict of duties) Contention may be used in place of strife in any of the senses of the latter word; more often it applies to strife that manifests itself in quarreling, disputing, or controversy; it may even be applied to a condition of affairs marked by altercations or brawls (cast out the scorners, and contention shall go out; yea, strife and reproach shall cease—Prov 22:10)

(let the long contention cease! Geese are swans, and swans are geese, let them have it how they will—Arnold)

we were never friends. There was always a certain contention between us—Max Peacock

Dissension may imply discord or strife between persons or parties, but it lays greater stress on a breach between them than do any of the preceding words; thus, to say that there is dissension in a church or political party is to imply that it is broken up into contentious or discordant factions (France, torn by religious dissensions, was never a formidable opponent—Macaulay)

(left the seeds of philosophic dissension vigorous in French soil—Belloch)

Dissension (often in the plural) and variance usually imply a clash between persons or things owing to dissimilarity in opinion, character, or nature that makes for discord or strife. The terms may also suggest apparent or actual incompatibility or impossibility of reconciliation (nationalists have always used force to settle their differences—Fowler)

I might very possibly have quarreled and skirmished with anyone of less unvarying kindness and good temper. As it is, we have never had a word or thought of difference—Henning

(to remain at variance with his wife seemed to him . . . almost a disaster—Conrad)

I never saw a child with such an instinct for preventing variance, or so full of tact—Yonge sectarian variances in the town had delayed the erection of a house

\textit{Ana} incompatibility, incongruity, inconsonance, inconstancy, uncongeniality, discrepancy (see corresponding adjectives at INCONSONANT): antagonism, hostility, *emnity, rancor, animosity, antipathy

\textit{Con} *harmony, consonance, accord

\textit{discordant} *inconsonant, incongruous, uncongenial, unsympathetic, incompatible, inconsistent, discrepant

\textit{Con} *consonant, congruous, congenial, sympathetic, compatible: harmonizing or harmonious, according or accordant, agreeing (see corresponding verbs at \textit{AGREE})

\textit{discount} *deduction, rebate, abatement

\textit{discourage} vb 1. \textit{Discourse, expatiate, dilate, descant} mean to weaken in qualities that maintain interest, zeal, activity, or power to continue or to resist. \textit{Discourage} implies not only the loss of courage and confidence but the entrance of fear and the marked diminution of all power to summon up one's forces (\textit{the long winter and the lack of fuel discouraged the settlers}) (\textit{his failure had completely discouraged his wife}) \textit{Dishearten} differs little from \textit{discourse}, but it stresses not so much a mood or a state of mind as a loss of heart or will to accomplish a purpose or to achieve an end (\textit{the slight response to their appeal disheartened the promoters of the fund}) (\textit{his answers were at the same time so vague and equivocal, that her mother, though often disheartened, had never yet despaired of succeeding at last—Austen}) \textit{Dispirit} distinctively implies the loss of cheerfulness or hopefulness; it often suggests a prevailing gloom that casts a blight upon a gathering, a project, or whatever depends for its success upon the spirits of those who enter into it. It may also, more strongly than \textit{discourage}, suggest the way an individual or group affects others (\textit{in quelling a local Arme- nian revolt he was badly wounded. Sick and dispirited, he gave up his Arabian plan—Buchan}) (\textit{dispirited by their futile efforts—Grandgent}) (\textit{the shabby, dispiriting spectacle of Versailles, with its base greed and timidities—Montague}) \textit{Depict}, even more strongly than \textit{dispirit}, implies a casting down, with resulting loss of cheerfulness or hopefulness, but, unlike \textit{dispirit}, it refers usually to the individual alone (\textit{she has been much dejected lately}) (\textit{nothing dejects a trader like the interruption of his profits—Johnson})

\textit{Ana} *depress, weigh: try, *afflict: vex, bother, irk (see \textit{ANNOY})

\textit{Ant} encourage —\textit{Con} inspirit, hearten, embolden, nerve, steel (see \textit{ENCOURAGE})

2 deter, *dissuade, divert

\textit{Ana} *restrain, inhibit: prevent (sense 2): *frighten, scare

\textit{discourse} n \textit{Discourse, treatise, disquisition, dissertation, thesis, monograph} designate in common a systematic, serious, and often learned consideration of a subject or topic. \textit{Discourse}, the widest of these terms, may refer to something written or spoken but, since it fundamentally implies a passing from one link in a chain of reasoning to another, always suggests a careful formulation and usually a plan made in advance of expression (\textit{read a discourse on the fundamental causes of war before the Foreign Policy Association}) (\textit{his discourses from the pulpit were always long remembered}). \textit{Treatise} implies a written work and suggests a formal, methodical, and more or less extended treatment, usually expository but sometimes argumentative or narrative; it often differs from \textit{discourse} in not emphasizing reasoning and in referring to a lengthy work (\textit{Turretin's history . . . (a dry, heavy, barren treatise)}) —\textit{John Wesley} (a \textit{treatise on insects}) (a \textit{philosophical treatise})

\textit{Disquisition} stresses limitation of a subject and its investigation and discussion in writing; it carries no suggestion of failure or of success but throws its emphasis upon the exploratory nature of the discussion (\textit{for . . . grave disquisition he was not well qualified—Macaulay}) (\textit{in his initial disquisition, he tells how he has searched many books—S. R. L.}) \textit{Dissertation} presupposes examination and often independent examination of a subject and its discussion at length, usually in writing; it often denotes a treatise dependent on individual research by a candidate for a higher academic degree (\textit{the sermon is a dissertation, and does violence to nature in the effort to be like a speech—Gladstone}) (\textit{Lamb's playful "Dissertation upon Roast Pig"}) (\textit{present a dissertation upon "The Pendant as a stock character in the Elizabethan Drama"}) for the doctor of philosophy degree) \textit{Thesis} basically denotes a proposition which a person (as a candidate for an academic degree) advances and offers to maintain but is also often used interchangeably with \textit{dissertation} (\textit{it is my thesis that people are growing not worse but better}) (\textit{write a doctoral thesis on Chaucer's minor poems}) although some restrict it to a dissertation or other work (as one incorporating the results of a series of experiments) intended to maintain or prove a proposition laid down or clearly stated. In practice, however, it may be difficult to tell whether the proposition or its treatment is in the user's mind, so inextricably are the two notions intertwined (\textit{a thesis maintaining that man's economic condition can be closely correlated with weather}) (\textit{B. S. nourish its extremely suggestive thesis is that the transition from Elizabethan-Jacobean to later Caroline comedy is primarily economic—T. S. Eliot}) \textit{Monograph} implies a learned treatise on a single topic (as a particular biological species, a clearly restricted literary genre, or an author). It typically refers to a work of this character published in a learned journal or as a pamphlet or small book (\textit{a monograph on "The Ballade in England"}) (\textit{a monograph on the cattishes of the Great Lakes region})

\textit{Ana} paper, article, *essay: *speech, lecture, talk, sermon

\textit{discourse} vb \textit{Discourse, expatiate, dilate, descant} are com-parable when meaning to talk or sometimes write more or less formally and at length upon a subject. \textit{Discourse} frequently implies the manner or attitude of the lecturer, the monologist, or the preacher; it may suggest detailed or logical and sometimes profound, witty, or brilliant discussion (\textit{Jonson is a real figure—our imagination plays about him discoursing at the Mermaid, or laying down the law to Drummond of Hawthornden—T. S. Eliot}) (\textit{we talk in the bosom of our family in a way different from that in which we discourse on state occasions—Lowes}) \textit{Expate}iate implies ranging without restraint or wandering at will over a subject; it connotes more copiousness than \textit{discourse} and often carries a hint of long-windedness (\textit{we will expatiate freely over the wide and varied field before us—Landor}) (\textit{the promoter of the raffle . . . was expatiating upon the value of the fabric as material for a summer dress—Hardy}) (in another lecture 1 shall expatiate on the idea—James) \textit{Dilate} implies a discoursing that enlarges the possibilities of a subject (as by dwelling on each small detail) (\textit{she proceeded to dilate upon the ceremonies of Miss Nickleby—Dickens}) (\textit{those joys on which Miss Steven-son dilates in that famous little essay in Virginibus Pueri-que—Quiller-Couch}) (\textit{he reverted to his conversation of the night before, and dilated upon the same subject with an easy mastery of his theme—Wylie}) \textit{Descant} stresses free comment, but it often also connotes delight or pleasure in this free expression of one's opinions or observations (\textit{to praise his stable, and descant upon his claret and cookery—Goldsmith}) (\textit{he descanted to his heart's content on his favorite topic of the [prize] ring—Shaw})

\begin{footnotes}
  A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
\end{footnotes} discourteous

Ana *discuss, argue, dispute; converse, talk, speak; lecture, harangue, orate, sermonize (see corresponding nouns at SPEECH)

Ant courteous — Con civil, polite, courtly, gallant, chivalrous

discover 1 *reveal, disclose, divulge, tell, betray

Ana impart, *communicate: *declare, announce, publish, advertise, proclaim

2 *Discover, ascertain, determine, unearth, learn mean to find out something not previously known to one. Discover may presuppose investigation or exploration, or it may presuppose accident, but it always implies that the thing existed, either actually or potentially, in fact or in principle but had not been hitherto seen or known or brought into view, action, use, or actual existence. Discover an island Discover a new writer

discern, observe, perceive, espy (see SEE)

Ant indiscreet — Con rash, reckless, foolhardy (see CAUTIOUS): judgment, *sense, wisdom, gumption

discourse, expatiate, dilate, descant (see corresponding adjectives at ADVENTUROUS)

discuss, argue, debate, dispute, agitate mean to discourse about something in order to arrive at the truth or to convince others. Discuss implies an attempt to sift or examine especially by presenting considerations pro and con; it often suggests an interchange of opinion for the sake of clarifying issues and testing the strength of each side. Hobart couldn't discuss. He could talk; he could assert . . . but he couldn't meet or answer arguments—Rose Macaulay not even theloon, in whose voice there is a human note, means to discuss the weather. You are living in a world almost devoid of communication—Laidr Argue usually implies conviction and the adducing of evidence or reasons in support of one's cause or position—Agrippa advised a republican restoration and Maecenas argued for a principate—Buchan deep-seated preferences cannot be argued about—you cannot argue a man into liking a glass of beer—Justice Holmes Debate stresses formal or public argument between opposing parties they had gathered a wise council to them of every realm, that did debate this business—Shak.

dispute in the sense of discuss or debate, is somewhat uncommon (Paul) spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God—Acts 19:8 It more usually implies contentious or heated argument (compare dispute n at ARGUMENT). Agitate stresses both vigorous argument and a practical objective; it usually implies active propaganda and a determination to bring about a change (when workers working ten hours a day agitate for an eight-hour day, what they really want is . . . sixteen hours off duty instead of fourteen—Shaw) (if you really expect success, agitate, agitate, agitate—Pater)

discuss *(explain, expound, interpret, elucidate, explicate: discourse, expatiate, dilate, descant

disdain n scorn, despise (see under DESPISE)

Ana aversion, antipathy: insolence, superciliousness, arrogance (see corresponding adjectives at PROUD)

Con *regard, admiration, respect, esteem: *reverence, awe, fear disdain vb scorn, scout, *despise, contemn See also explanatory notes facing page 1 disdainful

252 disfavor

Ana spurn, repudiate, reject (see decline vb)
Ant favor: admit — Con accept, *receive, take: *acknowledge, own disdainful supercilious, overbearing, insolent, arrogant, lordly, *proud, haughty Ana spurning, repudiating, rejecting (see decline vb): scornful, despising, contumacious, scolding (see despise): averse, *antipathetic, unsympathetic Con obliging, compliant, *amiable: considerate, attentive, *thoughtful disease n Disease, disorder, condition, affection, ailment, malady, complaint, distemper, syndrome denote a deranged bodily state usually associated with or amounting to a loss of health. Disease in its usual and broadest use implies an impairment of the normal state of the living body or of one or more of its parts marked by disturbance of vital functions and usually traceable to a specific cause (as a parasite, a toxin, or a dietary deficiency) (his suffering is caused by disease) As used in names of specific abnormal states, disease implies the existence of a regularly occurring identifying group of symptoms and, often, of a known cause (such dreaded diseases as smallpox and plague) (possibly celiac disease is a symptom complex with a multiple etiology rather than a single disease entity—Yr. Bk. of Endocrinology) Disorder is commonly interchangeable with disease (a nutritional disorder caused by a lack of calcium and phosphorus—Time) but typically it stresses the disordered state without regard to cause (a specialist in disorders of the liver) Disease may sometimes be used more narrowly to distinguish an abnormal state resulting from an effective process (disease is conceived as being limited to malfunctioning of the organism initiated and maintained by an infectious process—Ashley Montagu) and is then distinguished from or subordinated to disorder (his distinction between disease (morbid change in tissue due to specific microorganisms) and disorder (disturbance in structure or function from any cause) is an artificial one—Roney) (diseases and other disorders of turf—Luken's & Stoddard) Condition and the less common affection both imply a particular and usually an abnormal state of the body or more often of one of its parts; neither suggests anything about the cause or severity of such state (pulmonary affections) (a severe heart condition) Ailment, malady, and complaint are used chiefly of human disorders, and all imply a degree of indefiniteness (the pattern of ailments is changing and the degenerative diseases, like heart, circulation, and nerve diseases and cancer, are increasing—New Statesman) (had suffered from an obscure malady, an injury to the spine—Glasgow) (a digestive complaint of long standing) Ailment often suggests a trivial of long standing) Ailment is conceived as being limited (disease affects the body or of one or more of its parts marked by disturbance of vital functions and usually traceable to a specific cause (as a parasite, a toxin, or a dietary deficiency) (his suffering is caused by disease) As used in names of specific abnormal states, disease implies the existence of a regularly occurring identifying group of symptoms and, often, of a known cause (such dreaded diseases as smallpox and plague) (possibly celiac disease is a symptom complex with a multiple etiology rather than a single disease entity—Yr. Bk. of Endocrinology) Disorder is commonly interchangeable with disease (a nutritional disorder caused by a lack of calcium and phosphorus—Time) but typically it stresses the disordered state without regard to cause (a specialist in disorders of the liver) Disease may sometimes be used more narrowly to distinguish an abnormal state resulting from an effective process (disease is conceived as being limited to malfunctioning of the organism initiated and maintained by an infectious process—Ashley Montagu) and is then distinguished from or subordinated to disorder (his distinction between disease (morbid change in tissue due to specific microorganisms) and disorder (disturbance in structure or function from any cause) is an artificial one—Roney) (diseases and other disorders of turf—Luken's & Stoddard) Condition and the less common affection both imply a particular and usually an abnormal state of the body or more often of one of its parts; neither suggests anything about the cause or severity of such state (pulmonary affections) (a severe heart condition) Ailment, malady, and complaint are used chiefly of human disorders, and all imply a degree of indefiniteness (the pattern of ailments is changing and the degenerative diseases, like heart, circulation, and nerve diseases and cancer, are increasing—New Statesman) (had suffered from an obscure malady, an injury to the spine—Glasgow) (a digestive complaint of long standing) Ailment often suggests a trivial or chronic disorder (the puthouses of the period of our Civil War, in which patients suffering from minor ailments were infected with all manner of diseases—Morrison) (constantly complaining of her ailments) Malady, on the other hand, usually stresses the mysterious or serious character of a disorder (suspicion in the Oriental is a sort of malignant tumor, a mental malady—Forster) (told by his physician that he had a fatal malady—Cather) Complaint carries no inherent implication about the seriousness of the disorder but in stressing the invalid's point of view may suggest the distress that accompanies ill health (taking all sorts of medicine for vague complaints—Fishbein) Distemper, which formerly applied to human disorders, is now used almost entirely of diseases of lower animals and more particularly to denote specifically certain severe infectious diseases (as a destructive virus disease of the dog and related animals, strangles of the horse, or panleucopenia of the cat). Syndrome is often used interchangeably with disease to denote a particular disorder, but in precise professional thinking such interchangeability does not imply strict synonymy, since syndrome denotes the group or pattern of signs and symptoms that constitute the evidence of disease and carries no implication about causation; thus, one might use either Ménière's disease or Ménière's syndrome to denote a particular disorder centered in the inner ear; however, one would say that the syndrome (not disease) of recurrent dizziness, ringing in the ears, and deafness suggests the presence of Ménière's disease (a condition characterized by splenomegaly, hypochromic anemia, leukopenia, and icterus . . . this symptom complex may be produced by a variety of pathological states. It is therefore more properly classified as a syndrome than as a disease entity—W. M. Fowler)

Certain of these terms also are comparable in other uses and especially as applied to mental, spiritual, or emotional abnormal states. Disease usually connotes evident derangement requiring remedies or a cure (diseases of the body politic) (this strange disease of modern life, with its sick hurry, its divided aims—Arnold) Ailment implies something wrong that makes for unsoundness, weakness, or loss of well-being (a bodily disease may, after all, be but a symptom of some ailment in the spiritual part—Hawthorne) Malady, especially as contrasted with disease, implies a deep-seated morbid condition or unwholesome abnormality (how would they be troubled by this beauty, into which the soul with all its maladies had passed—Pater) Distemper usually harks back to its earlier reference to human ailments and stresses a lack of balance or of a sense of proportion (to seek of God more than we well can find, argues a strong distemper of the mind—Herrick) Syndrome retains its implication of a group of contributory signs and symptoms (lying is one of a syndrome or constellation of character traits that tend to be found in one another's company—Garvin) (partition . . . is no more decisive in the Irish syndrome than emigration or the decline of rural marriage or the fallen state of Irish literature—Kelleher)

diseased *unwholesome, morbid, sickly, pathological disembarrass disencumber, disentangle, untangle, *extricate

Ana release, *free, liberate: *relieve: disengage, *detach Con *hamper, trammel, clog, fetter, shackles disencumber disembarrass, disentangle, untangle, *extricate

Ana *release, alleviate, lighten: disengage, *detach: liberate, release, *free Con *depress, weigh, oppress: *hamper, fetter, shackles, manacle, trammel, clog disengage *detach, abstract

Ana disencumber, disembarrass, disentangle, untangle, *extricate: release, liberate, *free: disconnect, disjoin, dissociate, disunite (see affirmative verbs at join) Ant engage (one part, one thing with another) — Con involve, *include, embrace, comprehend, imply: link, associate, connect, unite, *join disentangle untangle, *extricate, disembarrass, disencumber

Ana disengage, *detach: separate, part, sever, unjoin: *free, release, liberate Ant entangle

disfavor n *dislike, distaste, aversion

Ana disapproval, depreciation (see corresponding verbs at disapprove): distrust, mistrust (see under distrust vb)
disfigure  *deface

_Ana_ mangle, batter, *main, mutilate; *deform, distort, contort, warp; *injure, damage, mar, impair

_Ant_ adorn — _Con_ embellish, beautify (see ADORN) disgorge  *belch, burp, vomit, regurgitate, spew, throw up disgrace  _n_ Disgrace, dishonor, disrepute, shame, infamy, ignominy, opprobrium, obloquy, odium mean the state, condition, character, or less often the cause of suffering disesteem and of enduring reproach or severe censure. Disgrace may imply no more than a loss of the favor or esteem one has enjoyed (<Queen Elizabeth's favorites were constantly in danger of disgrace if they offended her in the slightest degree>) (<he was shut up in an attic . . . and forbidden to speak to his sisters, who were told that he was in disgrace—Russell>) The term, however, often implies complete humiliation and, sometimes, ostracism (<you may find yourself at any moment summoned to serve on a jury and make decisions involving the disgrace or vindication . . . of your fellow creatures—Shaw>) Dishonor may often be employed in place of disgrace, but typically it suggests a previous condition of being honored or of having a high sense of honor; it therefore may imply the loss of the honor that one has enjoyed or the loss of one's self-respect or self-esteem (<prefer death to dishonor>) (<but now mischance hath trod my title down, and dishonor laid me on the ground—Shak.>) Wouldst thou . . . harp on the deep dishonor of our house—Byron)

Disrepute stresses the loss of one's good name or the attribution of a bad name or reputation (<the actions of certain of its guests have brought the hotel into disrepute>) (<the disgrace into which this once famous name has now fallen>) (<the habit of pub-crawling—so much the fashion when I was their age—seems to have happily fallen into disrepute—O'Connor>) Shame implies particularly humiliation (<he had been compelled to submit to—he had been ashamed to face the world, or to present himself to others—Froude>) (<the Scripture moveth us . . . to acknowledge our sins, and not to cloke them before the face of God—Gray>) (<the Scripture moveth us ... to acknowledge our sins, and not to cloke them before the face of Almighty God—Book of Common Prayer>) (<many materialists . . . seek to eliminate the word righteousness—R. E. Black & E. C. Helms>) (<the obloquy of the name of the one who has been so disgraced retains this implication with the added suggestion either of concealment of identity or of the assumption (as on the stage) of another identity—Froude>) The term, however, may apply to a feeling, an intention, or a motive when one's words, expression, or acts imply a contrary reaction (<I disdained my impatience and suspicion of him and waited—Hudson>) (<they disgrace themselves as Turks for a joke>) (<however we may disguise it by veiling words we do not and cannot carry out the distinction between legislative and executive action with mathematical precision—Justice Holmes>) Our author, disguised as Jonathan Oldstyle, contributed a series of letters . . . protesting with admirable chivalry against jesting at maiden ladies—Commins) Cloak implies the assumption of something which covers and conceals identity or nature (<the appearance of goodwill cloaked a sinister intention>) (<tolerance and public irresponsibility cannot be cloaked in the shining armor of rectitude and righteousness—A. E. Stevenson>) Mask implies a disguise, comparable to a covering for the face or head, which prevents recognition of a thing's true character, quality, or presence (<icy spots masked by newly fallen snow>) (<masking with a smile the vain regrets that in their hearts arose—Morris>) (<his pessimism . . . became an obvious mask—a child of shame—Hicks>) (<is it not . . . a pity to live no better life?>) (<God knows it is a shame!>) (<shame is a reaction to other people's criticism. A man is either openly ridiculed and rejected or by fantasying to himself that he has been made ridiculous—Benedict>) Ignominy usually implies notoriety as well as exceeding shame (<men who prefer any load of infamy, however great, to any pressure of taxation, however light>) () (<God knows it is a shame!>) (<disguise is a reaction to the presence of other people's criticism. A man is either openly ridiculed and rejected or by fantasying to himself that he has been made ridiculous—Benedict>) Infamy usually implies notoriety as well as exceeding shame (<men who prefer any load of infamy, however great, to any pressure of taxation, however light>) () (<God knows it is a shame!>) (<shame is a reaction to other people's criticism. A man is either openly ridiculed and rejected or by fantasying to himself that he has been made ridiculous—Benedict>) Ignominy, more than infamy—which in some ways it closely resembles—stresses the almost unconquerable tendency to be a matter of widespread or universal hatred or intense dislike (<whatever odium or loss her maneuvers incurred she flung upon her counselors—J. R. Green>) (<as a preliminary Augustus . . . revised the senatorial roll. This was always an invidious task . . . in the end he was compelled to make the nominations himself and face the odium—Buchan>) (<many materialists . . . seek to eliminate the odium attaching to the word materialism, and even to eliminate the word itself—James>) Disgrace, degradation, debasement, abstraction, humiliation (see corresponding verbs at ABASE): *stigma, brand, blot, stain disguise  _vb_ Disguise, cloak, mask, dissemble, camouflage are comparable when meaning to assume a dress, an appearance, or an expression that conceals one's identity, intention, or true feeling. Disguise, which basically implies an alteration in one's dress and appearance, frequently retains this implication with the added suggestion either of concealment of identity or of the assumption (as on the stage) of another identity (<escape captivity disguised as a woman>) (<they disguise themselves as Turks for a joke>) (<however we may disguise it by veiling words we do not and cannot carry out the distinction between legislative and executive action with mathematical precision—Justice Holmes>) Our author, disguised as Jonathan Oldstyle, contributed a series of letters . . . protesting with admirable chivalry against jesting at maiden ladies—Commins) Cloak implies the assumption of something which covers and conceals identity or nature (<the appearance of goodwill cloaked a sinister intention>) (<tolerance and public irresponsibility cannot be cloaked in the shining armor of rectitude and righteousness—A. E. Stevenson>) Mask implies a disguise, comparable to a covering for the face or head, which prevents recognition of a thing's true character, quality, or presence (<icy spots masked by newly fallen snow>) (<masking with a smile the vain regrets that in their hearts arose—Morris>) (<his pessimism . . . became an obvious mask—a child of shame—Hicks>) (<is it not . . . a pity to live no better life?>) (<God knows it is a shame!>) (<shame is a reaction to other people's criticism. A man is either openly ridiculed and rejected or by fantasying to himself that he has been made ridiculous—Benedict>) Ignominy usually implies notoriety as well as exceeding shame (<men who prefer any load of infamy, however great, to any pressure of taxation, however light>) () (<God knows it is a shame!>) (<shame is a reaction to other people's criticism. A man is either openly ridiculed and rejected or by fantasying to himself that he has been made ridiculous—Benedict>) Ignominy, more than infamy—which in some ways it closely resembles—stresses the almost unconquerable tendency to be a matter of widespread or universal hatred or intense dislike (<whatever odium or loss her maneuvers incurred she flung upon her counselors—J. R. Green>) (<as a preliminary Augustus . . . revised the senatorial roll. This was always an invidious task . . . in the end he was compelled to make the nominations himself and face the odium—Buchan>) (<many materialists . . . seek to eliminate the odium attaching to the word materialism, and even to eliminate the word itself—James>) Disgrace, degradation, debasement, abstraction, humiliation (see corresponding verbs at ABASE): *stigma, brand, blot, stain disgust

_Ant_ respect, esteem — _Con_ admiration, *regard: *rev- erence, awe, fear: honor, repute, glory, renown, *fame

vb: *reveal, disclose, discover, betray disgust vb Disgust, sicken, nauseate are comparable when meaning to arouse an extreme distaste in. Disgust implies a stomach that is revolted by food offered or taken; in its extended use it implies sensibilities which are revolted by something seen, heard, or otherwise known that creates strong repugnance or aversion (a disgusting medicine) (a disgusting smell) (disgusted by the vulgarities of men who ate noisily and greedily) (the very thought of such an occupation disgusted his fastidious nature) (the majority of women that he meets offend him, repel him, disgust him —Mencken) Sicken usually implies not only the exciting of distaste but of actual physical distress (as faintness or a turning of the stomach); often, however, it is used merely as a more emphatic word for disgust, or it may suggest a disgust born of weariness or exhaustion (the smell of certain flowers is sickening in its sweetness) (mine eyes did sicker at the sight, and could not endure a further view—Shak.) (she was sickened by the girl's affectations) (for a few evenings it had interested the sisters . . . but they had soon sickened of it and loathed it —Bennett) This unceasing morality, which sickens later ages—Lewis & Maude) Nauseate carries a stronger implication than disgust or sicken of loathsome ness (as to the taste, sight, or mind), and often suggests retching or vomiting (he always finds castor oil nauseating) (just now, even the thought of food nauseates the patient) (they were all nauseated by the foul odor) (nauseating behavior) (we also cannot bring ourselves to deny him that famous, if dangerous, charm of his, nauseated as we may be by the excesses into which it so often misled him—J. M. Brown) Ana revolt, repulse, offend (see corresponding adjectives at OFFENSIVE) Ant charm —Con tempt, entice (see LURE): gratify, delight, rejoice, *please dish vb ladle, spoon, *dip, bail, scoop dishhearten *discourage, dispirit, deject Ana *depress, weigh: despair, despond (see corresponding adjectives at DESPONDENT) Ant hearten —Con *encourage, inspire, embolden, cheer, nerve, steel dishonest, deceitful, mendacious, lying, untruthful are comparable especially when applying to persons, their utterances, and their acts and meaning deficient in honesty and unworthy of trust or belief. Dishonest may apply to any breach of honesty or trust (as by lying, deceiving, stealing, cheating, or defrauding) (a dishonest statement) (a dishonest employee) (while it would be dishonest to gloss over this weakness, one must understand it in terms of the circumstances that conspired to produce it—Mumford) (years ago a few dishonest men traveled about the country, saying that they could make rain—Craig & Urban) Deceitful usually implies the intent to mislead or to impose upon another in order to obscure one's real nature or actual purpose or intention, or the true character of something offered, given, or sold; it therefore usually suggests a false or specious appearance, indulgence in falsehoods, cheating, defrauding, or double-dealing (deceitful propaganda) (deceitful testimony) (she was a deceitful, scheming little thing—Zangwill) Mendacious is typically more formal than, often less derogatory than, but otherwise closely equivalent to lying, the ordinary, direct, unequivocal word (silly newspapers and magazines for the circulation of lying advertisements—Shaw) (a lying account of the accident) (go aboard the ships that caught his interest where the masters . . . set out wine and told him mendacious tales of their trade—Wheelwright) (while the communication was deceptive and so intended, it was not technically mendacious—S. H. Adams) As applied to persons mendacious more often suggests the habitude of deceit while lying suggests guilt in respect to a particular instance: thus, one might describe a person as mendacious with primary reference to his character or habit but would ordinarily prefer lying when a particular instance is in view (a mendacious child is doubted even when telling the truth) (only a lying scoundrel would tell such a tale) Untruthful is often used in place of mendacious or lying as a slightly less brutal word; however, the term distinctively implies lack of correspondence between what is said or represented and the facts of the case or the reality, and is often applied to statements, accounts, reports, or descriptions with little stress on dishonesty or intent to deceive (an untruthful account of an incident) (the artist's representation of the scene at Versailles was untruthful in many of its details) Ana *crooked, devisive, oblique: false, faithless, perfidious: cheating, cozening, defrauding, swindling (see CHEAT vb) —Ant honest —Con *upright, honorable, scrupulous, conscientious, just: straightforward, forthright, aboveboard: candid, open, *frank, plain dishonor n *disgrace, disrespect, shame, infamy, ignominy, opprobrium, obloquy, odium Ana humiliation, humbling, debase ment, degradation, abasement (see corresponding verbs at ABASE): *stigma, brand, blot, stain Ant honor —Con glory, renown, repute, *fame: reverence, veneration (see under REVERE): prestige, *influence, credit, authority, weight: esteem, respect, *regard, admiration disillusioned *sophisticated, worldly-wise, worldly, blasé Ana undeceived (see corresponding affirmative verb at DECEIVE): disenchant ed (see corresponding affirmative verb at ATTRACT) disinclined adj Disinclined, indisposed, hesitant, reluctant, loath, averse mean manifesting neither the will nor the desire to do or to have anything to do with something indicated or understood. Disinclined implies a lack of taste or inclination for something for which one has no natural bent or which meets one's disapproval (I should not be disinclined to go to London, did I know anybody there—Richardson) (disinclined to come to real grips with the vexed question of public control in industry—Cohen) (he was preoccupied and disinclined for sociability) Indisposed implies an unfavorable or often a hostile or unsympathetic attitude (unfit to rule and indisposed to please—Crabbe) (indisposed to take part in the feasting and dancing—Hardy) Hesitant suggests a holding back through fear, distaste, uncertainty, or irresolution (she was hesitant to accept the invitation) (hesitant in seeking advice) (a hesitant suitor) (hesitant about spending the money required to build an experimental plant—Griffin) Reluctant adds to hesitant a definite resistance or sense of unwillingness (I was simply persuading a frightened and reluctant girl to do the straight and decent and difficult thing—Rose Macaulay) (people were reluctant to charge a dead man with an offense from which he could not clear himself—Wharton) (reluctant to expose those silent and beautiful places to vulgar curiosity—Cather) Reluctant is also applied directly to the thing which is done reluctantly or to a thing which seems reluctant (the constant strain of bringing back a reluctant and bored attention—Russell) (they wring from reluctant soil food enough to keep . . . alive—Reppie) Loath stresses the lack of harmony between something one anticipates doing and his likes or dislikes, tastes or distastes, or sympathies or antipathies; thus, a tender person may be loath to punish a refractory child but a strict disciplinarian would be loath to allow that child to go unpunished; one may be loath to believe a well-founded report that discredits a friend and equally loath to disbelieve a rumor that confirms his bad opinion of a person.

\textit{Whyte} \textbf{Averse} suggests a turning away from something distasteful or repugnant \textit{(averse to all advice)} \textit{his impulses were generous, true, averse from cruelty—J. R. Green}

\textbf{Ana} *antipathetic, unsympathetic: opposing, resisting (see \textit{RESIST}) \textit{balking, shying, boggling, sticking, stickling (see \textit{DEMUR}): objecting, protesting (see \textit{OBJECT \textbf{vb}})}

\textbf{Con} *eager, keen, anxious: inclined, disposed, predisposed (see \textit{INCLINE \textbf{vb}})

\textbf{disinfect} *sterilize, sanitize, fumigate

\textbf{Ant} infect

\textbf{disinfectant} $n$ *antiseptic, germicide, bactericide

\textbf{disinfectant} $adj$ antiseptic, germicidal, bactericidal (see \textit{under ANTISEPTIC $n$})

\textbf{disintegrate} crumble, decompose, *decay, rot, putrefy, spoil

\textit{Ana} deliquesce (see \textit{LIQUEFY}): *scatter, disperse, dissipate: break down, resolve, *analyze, dissect

\textit{Ant} integrate, concatenate (see \textit{INTEGRATE}: fuse, blend, merge, coalesce (see \textit{MIX}): unite, conjoin, combine, link, associate, *join, connect

\textbf{disinterested} uninterested, detached, aloof, unconcerned, *indifferent, incurious

\textit{Ana} dispassionate, unbiased, impartial, *fair, just: *neutral, negative

\textbf{Ant} interested: prejudiced, biased

\textbf{dislike} $n$ Dislike, distaste, aversion, disfavor mean the state of mind of one who is not drawn to or turns from or avoids a person or thing; often these terms imply the manifestation of the state of mind.

\textit{Dislike normally suggests the finding of something unpleasant or repugnant or of a kind one is unwilling to meet or to face} \textit{an aristocratic disdain of the bourgeoisie—Inge} \textit{differentiating between mere aversion and dislike and morbid unreasonable fear or dread—Armstrong} \textit{itself dislike is rather neutral but it is readily intensified by context to the point of suggesting complete detestation} \textit{I was on fire with the same anger, dislike, and contempt that burned in Hobart towards me—Rose Macaulay}

\textbf{Distaste}, which implies a lack of taste for, usually stresses a squeamishness or a repugnance but allows a good deal of range in intensity to this squeamishness or repugnance; it may imply such other feelings as fear occasioned by the difficulties involved \textit{a pronounced distaste for mathematics} or rebellion at constraint or confinement \textit{for sheer pity of the repressed ... distaste on Nettie’s face, you ... drove her down to the movies—Mary Austin} or simply an unexplained reluctance \textit{great as was his need of shelter, the Bishop ... was struck by a reluctance, an extreme distaste for the place—Cather} \textit{Aversion suggests a disinclination for someone or something which manifests itself especially in attempts to avoid, evade, or escape. An aversion may be temperamental or it may be the result of training; it may or may not suggest an accompanying feeling, but it consistently implies a definite reaction on the part of one manifesting it} \textit{he tried to take hold of her feet with his hands, but she shrank from him with aversion—Hudson} \textit{unless we can give them an aversion from suicide, they will not abstain from it—Russell}

\textit{The natural human aversion to cold, noise, vibration, ... and the unfriendly and lonesome environment at high altitude—Armstrong} \textit{Disfavor, the weakest of these words, usually suggests no more than a lack of liking or approval but it may imply contempt, lack of confidence, or disdain as motives} \textit{the proposal met with general disfavor} \textit{the young prince had fallen into open disfavor at court} \textit{Punch ... eyed the house with disfavor—Kipling}

\textit{Ana} hate, hatred, detestation (see under hate \textbf{vb})

\textit{disfavor} (averse) disapproval, depression (see corresponding verbs at \textit{DISAPPROVE})

\textbf{Ant} liking —\textit{Con} affection, *attachment, love: *pre-dilection, partiality

\textbf{disloyal} *faithless, false, pernicious, traitorous, treacherous

\textit{Ana} disaffected, estranged, alienated (see \textit{ESTRANGE})

*inconstant, fickle, unstable

\textit{Ant} loyal —\textit{Con} *faithful, constant, true, staunch, steadfast, resolute \textbf{dismetal, dreary, cheerless, dispiriting, bleak, desolate} are comparable when they mean devoid of all that makes for cheer or comfort.

\textit{Dismetal and dreary} are often interchangeable. \textit{Dismetal} may indicate extreme gloominess or somberness utterly depressing and dejecting \textit{dismetal acres of weed-filled cellars and gaping foundations—Felix Morley} \textit{a rain dripped ... with a dismal insistence—Costain} \textit{the most dismal prophets of calamity—Krutch}

\textit{Dreary} may differ in indicating what discourages or enervates through sustained gloom, dullness, terrorsomeness, or futility, and wants any cheering or enlivening characteristic \textit{the most dreary solitary desert waste I had ever beheld—Bartram} \textit{it was a hard dreary winter, and the old minister’s heart was often heavy—Delaney} \textit{had the strength been there, the equipment was lacking. Harding’s dreary appreciation of this was part of his tragedy—S. H. Adams}

\textit{Cheerless} stresses absence of anything cheering and is less explicit than but as forceful as the others in suggesting a pervasive disheartening joylessness or hopelessness \textit{he would like to have done with life and its vanity altogether ... so cheerless and dreary the prospect seemed to him—Thackeray} \textit{Dispiriting refers to anything that disheartens or takes away morale or resolution of spirit} \textit{it was such dispiriting effort. To throw one’s whole strength and weight on the oars, and to feel the boat checked in its forward lunge—London}

\textit{Bleak} is likely to suggest chill, dull, barren characteristics that dishearten and militate against any notions of cheer, shelter, warmth, comfort, brightness, or ease \textit{the bleak upland, still famous as a sheepwalk, though a scant herbage scarce veils the whinstone rock—J. R. Green} \textit{the sawmill workers of the bleak mountain shack towns—Amer. Guide Series: Calif.} \textit{the bleak years of the depression—J. D. Hicks} \textit{Desolate applies to what disheartens by being utterly barren, lifeless, uninhabitable or abandoned, and remote from anything cheering, comforting, or pleasant} \textit{a semibarren, rather desolate region, whose long dry seasons stunted its vegetation—Marvel} \textit{some desolate polar region of the mind, where woman, even as an ideal, could not hope to survive—Glasgow}

\textit{Ana} murky, gloomy, *dark: forlorn, hopeless (see \textit{DESPONDENT})

\textit{Ant} beautiful, cheerful, *cheerful, *cheery

\textit{Con} gay, *lively, animated: cheerful, joyous (see \textit{GLAD}

\textbf{dismantle} divest, *strip, denude, bare

\textit{Ana} *furnish, equip, outfit, appoint

\textbf{dismay} vb \textit{Dismay, appall, horrify, daunt} mean to unnerve and check or deter by obscuring one’s apprehension, or aversion. \textit{Dismay suggests a loss of power to proceed either because a prospect is terrifying or disheartening, or, more often, because one is balked and perplexed or at a loss concerning how to deal with a situation} \textit{be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for} the battle is not yours, but God's. Tomorrow go ye down against them—2 Chron 20:15-16) <here was an opponent that more than once puzzled Roosevelt, and in the end flatly dismayed him—Mencken> <who in one lifetime sees all causes lost, herself dismayed and helpless—Ruskeyer> Appall, in its most forceful use, implies an overwhelming and paralyzing dread or terror <the sight appalled the stoutest hearts> <"Are you a man?" "Ay, and a bold one, that dare look on that which might appall the devil"—Shak.> The word more often implies the sense of impotence aroused when one is confronted by something that perturbs, confounds, or shocks, yet is beyond one's power to alter <an appalling waste of human life> <appalling statistics> <the unpunctuality of the Orient . . . is appalling to those who come freshly from a land of fixed mealtimes and regular train services—Huxley> <appalled by the magnitude of the tragedy—Bowers> Horrify may emphasize a reaction of horror or of shuddering revulsion from what is ghastly or hideously offensive <to developed sensibilities the facts of war are revolting and horrifying—Huxley> <this theme—a man ready to prostitute his sister as payment for a debt of honor—is too grotesque even to horrify us—T. S. Eliot> Often horrifies comes close to shock in meaning and implies momentary agitation occasioned by a surprising breach of the proprieties or dcencies <they were horrified by his playing golf on Sunday> <she horrified London society by pouring hot tea on a gentleman who displeased her—Amer. Guide Series: Va.> Daunt presupposes an attempt to do something that requires courage and implies therefore a checking or scaring off by someone or something that cows or subdues <he had been completely daunted by what he had found . . .; the Revolution . . . had been something against which self-assertion had been of no avail—Mary Austin> Daunt perhaps most often occurs in negative constructions <nothing can daunt the man whose last concern is for his own safety> <no adventure daunted her and risks stimulated her—Ellis> Ana perplex, confound, bewilder, nonplus, dumbfound, mystify, *puzzle: disconcert, rattle, faze, abash, discomfit, *embarrass: alarm, *frighten, terrify Ant cheer —Con assure, secure, *ensure: pique, quicken, stimulate, galvanize, excite, *provoke dismay n alarm, consternation, panic, *fear, dread, fright, terror, horror, trepidation Ana perturbing or perturbation, agitation, disquieting or disquietude, decomposing or discomposure, upsetting or upset (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE) <apprehension, foreboding Con *confidence, assurance, aplomb, self-possession: *courage, mettle, spirit, resolution dismiss 1 Dismiss, discharge, cashier, drop, sack, fire, bounce are comparable when they mean to undo the fixed or proper order of something. Disorder is commonly used in reference to something that depends for its proper functioning or effectiveness upon being properly ordered (see order vb 1) or in good order or array <tresses all disordered—Milton> <too rich a diet will disorder his digestive system> Derange implies a throwing out of proper arrangement of the parts, or of an important part, of something in which all the parts or elements are ordered with reference to each other or are so carefully adjusted or so closely related to each other that they work together as a unit. The term usually carries a strong implication of resulting confusion or a destruction of normal or healthy conditions <war deranges the life of a nation> <fear has deranged his mind> <within the power of man irreparably to derange the combinations of inorganic matter and organic life—Lord> Disarrange often implies little more than the changing of a fixed, neat, or perfect order of arrangement and may carry no suggestion of confusion <she . . . would not let his chamber be disarranged just at present—Martineau> <someone had disarranged the papers on his desk> <the wind disarranged her hair> Disorganize implies usually the destruction of order and functioning in a body or whole all the parts of which have an organic connection with each other or have been so ordered with reference to each other that what affects one part affects every other part; the term therefore usually suggests a disordering that impedes the functioning or impairs the effectiveness of the affected system <subversive methods intended to disorganize the internal communications of the enemy's country> <the Whigs . . . though defeated, disheartened, and disorganized, did not yield without an effort—Macaulay> <an expenditure which would disorganize his whole scheme of finance—Buchan> Unsettle implies a disordering or disarrangement that causes instability, unrest, inability to concentrate, or turbulence <the cold war has disparaging the minds of men—Travis (constant rumors that keep one unsettled) Disturb (see also DISCOMPOSE) usually implies a force or combination of forces that unsettles or disarranges; frequently it also suggests an interruption or interference that affects a settled or orderly course, plan, growth, or progress (the attraction of planets disturbs the course of comets) (regulation . . . produces a uniform whole, which is as much disturbed and deranged by changing what the regulating power designs to leave untouched, as that on which it has operated—John Marshall) (the warps and strains of civilized life . . . seem to disturb the wholesome balance of even the humblest elements of the possessive and aesthetic instincts—Ellis)

Ant order —Con arrange, marshal, organize, methodize, systematize (see order vb): array, align, range, *line, line up: regulate, *adjust, fix

disorder n 1 *confusion, disarray, clutter, jumble, chaos, snarl, muddle Ana derangement, disarrangement, disorganization, disturbance, unsettlement (see corresponding verbs at DISORDER): *anarchy, chaos, lawlessness
Ant order —Con arrangement, organization, methodization, systematization (see corresponding verbs at ORDER): system, *method
2 *disease, condition, affection, ailments, malady, complaint, distemper, syndrome

disorganize disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange Ant organize —Con systematize, methodize, arrange, marshal, *order

disown

*decry, depreciate, derogate, detract, belittle,
*disorder, derange, dis-

dispel

1 *confusion, disarray, clutter, jumble, chaos, disorder

2 *disease, condition, affection, ailments, malady, complaint, distemper, syndrome

disorderize disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange
Ant order —Con arrange, marshal, organize, methodize, systematize (see order vb): array, align, range, *line, line up: regulate, *adjust, fix

disorganization disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange Ant organize —Con systematize, methodize, arrange, marshal, *order

disown

*decry, depreciate, derogate, detract, belittle,
*disorder, derange, dis-

disorder

*disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange
Ant order —Con arrange, marshal, organize, methodize, systematize (see order vb): array, align, range, *line, line up: regulate, *adjust, fix

disorderize disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange Ant organize —Con systematize, methodize, arrange, marshal, *order

disown

*decry, depreciate, derogate, detract, belittle,
*disorder, derange, dis-

disorder

*disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange
Ant order —Con arrange, marshal, organize, methodize, systemize (see order vb): array, align, range, *line, line up: regulate, *adjust, fix

disorganize disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange Ant organize —Con systematize, methodize, arrange, marshal, *order

disown

*decry, depreciate, derogate, detract, belittle,
*disorder, derange, dis-

disorder

*disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange
Ant order —Con arrange, marshal, organize, methodize, systemize (see order vb): array, align, range, *line, line up: regulate, *adjust, fix

disorganize disturb, unsettle, *disorder, derange, disarrange Ant organize —Con systematize, methodize, arrange, marshal, *order

disown
disport

Ana ostentatiousness or ostentation, pretentiousness or pretension, showiness or show (see corresponding adjectives at SNOWY)

disport n sport, play, frolic, rollick, romp, gambol (see under PLAY vb)

Ana recreation, diversion, amusement, entertainment (see under AMUSE); merriment, jollity (see corresponding adjectives at MERRY)

disport vb sport, *play, frolic, rollick, romp, gambol

Ana divert, *amuse, recreate, entertain disposal, disposition are frequently used without clear distinction when they mean the act or the power of disposing of something. However, when the emphasis is on what shall be done with money, property, or possessions, disposal tends to imply a getting rid of (as by selling, giving away, assigning to others, or destroying) and disposition, a proper or orderly distribution or utilization. (see the disposal of her jewels seemed necessary to pay her debts)

(t he disposition of the intestate’s property has been agreed upon by the heirs)
(c incinerators used for the disposal of garbage)
( I am happy that the speedy disposal of the pictures will enable you . . . to settle this unpleasant affair—Mitford)
( the donors have stipulated for the future disposition . . . of those funds—John Marshall)
(When the idea of arrangement or ordering or of making arrangements is stressed, disposition, rather than disposal, is the more accurate term)
( while the disposition of the branches is unsymmetrical, balance is maintained—Binyon)
( a deserter had informed Octavian of the general plan . . . and he made his dispositions accordingly—Buchan)
( The idiomatic phrases at one’s disposal and at (or in) one’s disposition differ in that, though both imply a placing under one’s control, the former suggests use as one sees fit and the latter, subjection to one’s direction, arrangement, or command)
( they put their summer home at the disposal of the bridal couple)
( had at his disposal no considerable sums of money—Trench)

Ana destroying or destruction, demolishing or demolition (see corresponding verbs at DESTROY)

dispose predispose, bias, *incline Ana influence, *affect, sway

disposition 1 *disposal

Ana administering or administration, dispensing or dispensation (see corresponding verbs at ADMINISTER): management, direction, controlling or control, conducting or conduct (see corresponding verbs at CONDUCT): arrangement, ordering (see corresponding verbs at ORDER)

2 Disposition, temperament, temper, complexion, character, personality, individuality are comparable when they mean the prevailing and dominant quality or qualities which distinguish or identify a person or group. Disposition applies to the predominating bent or constitutional habit of one’s mind or spirit:
( ages of fierceness have overlaid what is naturally kindly in the dispositions of ordinary men and women—Russell)
( the taint of his father’s insanity perhaps appeared in his unbalanced disposition—E. S. Bates)

Temperament applies to the sum total of characteristics that are innate or inherent and the result of one’s physical, emotional, and mental organization.
( a nervous, bilious temperament)
( I verily believe that nor you, nor any man of poetical temperament, can avoid a strong passion of some kind—Byron)
( shall I ever be cheerful again, happy again? Yes. And soon. For I know my temperament—Mark Twain)

Temper (compare temper under moderate vb) implies a combination of the qualities and especially those acquired through experience which determine the way one (as a person, a people, an age) meets the situations, difficulties, or problems that confront him.
( there was a general confidence in her instinctive knowledge of the national temper—J. R. Green)
( the leaders of forlorn hopes are never found among men with dismal minds. There must be a natural resiliency of temper which makes them enjoy desperate ventures—Croters)
( Unlike the foregoing terms temper may suggest an acquired or transient state of mind controlling one’s acts and decisions)
( after four years of fighting, the temper of the victors was such that they were quite incapable of making a just settlement—Huxley)

Complexion implies some fundamentally distinctive quality based on mood, attitude, and ways of thinking that determines the impression one produces on others.
( the rationalist mind . . . is of a doctrinaire and authoritative complexion: the phrase “must be” is ever on its lips—James)
( great thinkers of various complexion, who, differing in many fundamental points, all alike assert the relativity of truth—Ellis)

Character applies to the aggregate of qualities, especially moral qualities, which distinguish an individual at any one time in his development, which constantly tend to become more or less fixed, and which must be taken as a whole into consideration in any ethical judgment of him.
( in his youth his character was weak and unstable)
( that inexorable law of human souls that we prepare ourselves for sudden deeds by the reiterated choice of good or evil that determines character—George Eliot)

Often character means such an aggregate of qualities brought to a high state of moral excellence by right principles and right choices and by the rejection of anything that weakens or debases . . . when we say of such and such a man he has . . . character, we generally mean that he has disciplined his temperament, his disposition, into strict obedience to the behests of duty—Brownell)

Personality also applies to the aggregate of qualities which distinguish an individual, but the term differs from character in that it implies his being distinguished as a person rather than as a moral being. In general personality may be said to be revealed in unconscious as well as in conscious acts or movements, in physical and emotional as well as in mental and moral behavior, and especially in a person’s relations to others; thus, one may know very little about the character of an acquaintance, yet have a very definite idea of his personality. Therefore personality is qualified not as good or bad but by an adjective implying the extent to which it pleases, displeases, or otherwise impresses the observer.
( there was a pious and good man, but an utterly negligible personality—Mackenzie)
( the mere presence of personality in a work of art is not sufficient, because the personality revealed may be lacking in charm—Benson)

Hence personality often distinctively means personal magnetism or charm. Personality is not something that can be sought; it is a radiance that is diffused spontaneously—Ellis)

Individuality implies a personality that distinguishes one from all others; often it connotes the power of impressing one’s personality on others.
( a man of marked individuality)
( she is a pleasant person but has no individuality)
( Sophia quietened her by sheer force of individuality—Bennett)
( an individuality, a style of its own—Cather)

disprove, refute, confute, rebut, controvert mean to show or attempt to show by argument that a statement, a claim, a proposition, or a charge is not true. Disprove stresses the success of an argument in showing the falsity, erro- neousness, or invalidity of what is attacked. He could not disprove the major contention of his opponents
( I speak not to disprove what Brutus spoke, but here I am to speak what I do know—Shak)
( the final values of life, the ultimate meanings of experience, are just those that no man can prove, and that no man can disprove either—Hedley.Refute stresses the method more than the effect of argument in disproof; it therefore is preferred to disprove when one wishes to convey implications of the adducing of evidence, of a bringing forward of witnesses, experts, or authorities, and of close reasoning. It connotes an elaboration of arguments not present in disprove (with respect to that other, more weighty accusation, of having injured Mr. Wickham, I can only refute it by laying before you the whole of his connection with my family—Austen) (there is great force in this argument, and the Court is not satisfied that it has been refuted—John Marshall) (one can disagree with his views but one can’t refute them . . . Every particle of him asseverates the truth which is in him—Henry Miller). Confute emphasizes a destruction of arguments or a reducing to silence of opponents by clearly revealing the falsity or the untenableness of the points which have been made; the term usually implies refutation, but it may also suggest such methods as denunciation and sarcasm (Satan stood . . . confuted and convinced of his weak arguing and fallacious drift—Milton) (Elijah . . . confuted the prophets of Baal in precisely that way, with . . . bitter mockery of their god when he failed to send down fire from heaven—Shaw) (hypothesises which may be confuted by experience—Ayer). Rebut differs from refute, its closest synonym, in suggesting greater formality of method (as that used in organized debate or in courts of law). Although its aim is disproof of an opponent’s contents, the term does not necessarily imply the achievement of one’s end, but it does suggest the offering of argument, evidence, or testimony given in support of the other side (at the end of the formal arguments, each member of the debating team was allowed three minutes for rebutting the arguments of his opponents) (the Tractarians were driven to formulate a theory of the Church . . . which should justify the exclusive claim of Anglicanism to be the Church of Christ in these islands, while rebutting the arguments of Rome—Inge) (the author carefully examined and rebutted, point by point, many of the arguments—Ashley Montagu). Controversy usually carries a dual implication of denying or contradicting a statement, proposition, or doctrine, or a set of these, and of refuting or attempting to refute it. It does not necessarily suggest disproof but it does connote a valiant effort to achieve that end (this doctrine has been controverted; it is, however, very ably defended by Mr. Hargrave—Cruise) (I am glad that this year we are assembled not to controvert the opinions of others, nor even to defend ourselves—Inge).

Ana negative, traverse, impugn, contravene (see DENY)

Ant prove, demonstrate disputation debate, forensic, argumentation, dialectic

Ana argument, dispute, controversy dispute vb argue, debate, discuss, agitate

Ana see those at DEBATE

Ant concede —Con grant, allow dispute n argument, controversy

Ana *argumentation, disputation, debate, forensic, dialectic: contention, dissension, strife, *discord, conflict disquiet *discompose, disturb, agitate, perturb, upset, fluster, flurry

Ana *annoy, vex, irk, bother: worry, harass, harry: *trouble, distress

Ant tranquilize, soothe disquisition dissertation, thesis, dispute, treatise, monograph

Ana paper, essay, article: inquiry, investigation

disrate *degrade, demote, reduce, declas dissuade, deter, discourage, divert mean to turn one aside from the fulfillment of a project, it may suggest no more than a changing of purpose for cause rather than from mere caprice (the fear of reprisals deterred them from using poison gas) (he vowed that nothing should deter him from his purpose) (the Judge’s remark about hanging around the stable did not deter Theophilus from playing there all that winter—Deland) (Peter for a time abandoned both smoking and alcohol, and was only deterred from further abstinences by their impracticability—H. G. Wells) (he then hazards the conjecture that Aristotle wrote so obscurely in order that he might deter slow-witted and indolent men from reading him—Babbitt) In deterrence the implication that it is fear which is the cause of holding back is stronger than in the verb. Discourage (see also discourage) implies a deterring by undermining spirit or enthusiasm or by weakening intent or sense of purpose (discouraged him from prosecuting the inquiry) (the incessant hurry and trivial activity of daily life . . . seem to prevent, or at least discourage, quiet and intense thinking—Eliot) (I definitely wished to discourage his intimacy with my family—Rose Macaulay) Divert (see also turn and amuse) implies a turning aside, but here the mind or some of its functions is usually the thing diverted or turned aside, and another object of interest or attention is generally expressed or understood as the alternative; in this sense divert is often used of the very young, or of the preoccupied or the worried (the mind of a. . . a diversion with which you may want to deal) (thank God for colonels, thought Mrs. Miniver; sweet creatures, so easily entertained, so biddably diverted from senseless controversy into comfortable monologue—Jan Struther) Ana advise, counsel (see under advise n): *urge, exhort, prick Ant persuade —Con *induce, prevail, get; influence, touch, *affect distant, far, faraway, far-off, remote, removed mean not near or close but separated by an obvious interval especially in space or in time. Distant carries a stronger reference to the length of the interval (whether long or short) than the other terms; only when it directly qualifies a noun does it necessarily imply that the interval is markedly long (a book held six inches distant from the eyes) (the sun is about 93,000,000 miles distant from the earth) (a distant city) (the other item, on a distant page, was cheerfully headed “Food from Sewage”—Krutch) (at a distant date) (I do not ask to see the distant scene,—one step enough for me—Newman) Far, except for the possible reference to a short distance involved in the question “How far?”, applies (as adverb as well as adjective) only to what is a long way off ([the] took his journey into a far country—Lk 15:13) (to take a far view in planning for future needs of the city) (go back in the far past to a common origin—Kroebel) (across the hills, and far away beyond their utmost purple rim—Tennyson) Faraway and far-off not only mean extremely far but are preferred when distance in time is specifically implied (old, unhappy, far-off things, and battles long ago—Wordsworth) However, both may suggest distance in space (a cheer that started the echo in a faraway hill—Stevenson) (the far-off places in which he had been wandering—Dickens) Remote suggests a far removal, especially from something (as one’s present location, one’s point of view, or one’s time) regarded as a center or vantage ground (some forlorn and naked hermitage, remote from all the pleasures of the world—Shak.) (the sands of a remote and lonely shore—Shelley) (whose nature it was to care more for immediate annoyances than for remote consequences—George Eliot) Removed, which is usually a predicate adjective, carries a stronger implication of separateness and distinction than remote; it therefore usually implies a contrast between two things apart not only in space or in time but in character or quality <an age far removed from the present age in its accomplishments and ideals> <he sought a retreat removed from all centers of population> <with peace as far removed as it had been at the time of his election—Passon> Figuratively, distant implies slightness of connection or aloofness of manner

Remote imputes to the thing so described a foreign or alien character or an inaccessible nature <I told Oliver about your modern monastery; but the thing is too remote from his experience to have any interest for him—Santayana> <the captain of a ship at sea is a remote, inaccessible creature . . . alone of his kind, depending on nobody—Conrad> Removed stresses difference, often a diametrical or antithetical difference <to Queen Scheherazade the dream might have seemed not far removed from commonplace—Hardy> <he was not an oracle removed from the people, but a real human being—Bok> <he accepted the nomination for considerations entirely removed from those influencing the average candidate>

Con near, *close, nigh, nearby

distaste *dislike, aversion, disfavor

Ana repugnance, repulsion, abhorrence (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT): antipathy, hostility (see ENMITY)

*Ant taste —Con relish, zest (see TASTE): *predilection, partiality

distasteful obnoxious, *repugnant, repellant, abhorrent, innoxious

*Ana hateful, odious, detestable, abominable: offensive, loathsome, repulsive, repugnant, revolting

*Ant agreeable: palatable —Con *pleasant, pleasing, gratifying, grateful, welcome: delectable, *delightful, delicious

distemper complaint, syndrome, *disease, malady, ailment, disorder, condition, affection

distend swell, dilate, *expand, inflate, amplify

*Ana enlarge, *increase, augment: *extend, lengthen

*Ant constrict —Con *contract, shrink, compress, condense, deflate distinct 1 Distinct, separate, several, discrete are comparable when used in reference to two or more things (sometimes persons) and in the sense of not being individually the same. Distinct always implies a capacity for being distinguished by the eye or by the mind as apart from the other or others, sometimes in space or in time but more often in character, nature, or identity <I see three distinct objects in the distance, but I cannot identify them> <the novel has two related, but nevertheless distinct, plots>

*there has been endless discussion whether we have a distinct faculty for the knowledge of God—Inge> <for him the work of literature is not distinct or separable from its author—L. P. Smith> Separate (see also SINGLE) is often used interchangeably with distinct and often in combination with it, as if one strengthened the other <the power . . . is given in two separate and distinct sections of the constitution—John Marshall> <these two characteristics were not separate and distinct . . . they were held together in vital tension—Ellis>

But separate stresses, as distinct does not, the lack of a connection between the things considered, usually by reason of the distance in space or time or the difference in identity of the things in question; thus, a drama with two separate plots is not the same as one with two distinct plots, for separate implies no connection (or, often, only a factitious connection) between the plots, while distinct suggests only that they can be distinguished  <the reestablishment of ethics and esthetics as separate and autonomous realms—Krutch> Separate is also often used in preference to distinct when an opposition to common or shared is implied <please give us separate rooms> <the children had separate toys and separate books>

Several (see also MANY) is somewhat formal or old-fashioned in this sense; it implies an existence, a character, a status, or a location separate or distinct from that of similar items. It may modify a singular noun, especially when “each” precedes, as well as a plural noun <conduct these knights unto their several lodgings—Shak> <each individual seeks a sev’ral goal—Pope> <will call the members . . . for their several opinions—New Republic>  Discrete, even more than separate, implies that the individuals are not the same and are not connected; it is often more precise than separate because it stresses numerical distinctness (that is, distinctness as individuals) rather than difference in kind, nature, or goal; thus, discrete things may be exactly the same in appearance, nature, or value, but they are not selfsame and are physically disconnected <the dumb creation lives a life made up of discrete and mutually irrelevant episodes—Huxley> <[the phage] has been identified as existing in discrete units, that is, it is a particle like granulated sugar and not a continuum like molasses—Furnas> <the conclusion that gases are made up of discrete units (molecules)—Hogben>

*Ana individual, distinctive, peculiar (see CHARACTERISTIC): *single, sole, separate: particular, individual, *special, especial: *different, diverse, disparate, divergent

*Con *same, selfsame, identical

2 *evident, manifest, patent, obvious, apparent, palpable, plain, clear

*Ana defined, prescribed (see PRESCRIBE): *explicit, definite, express, specific, categorical: perspicuous, *clear, lucid: clear-cut, *incisive, trenchant

*Ant indistinct: nebulous —Con vague, *obscure, dark, enigmatic, cryptic

difference difference, divergence, divergency, *dissimilarity, unlikeness

*Ant resemblance —Con *likeness, similarity, analogy, simulitude, affinity

distinctive peculiar, individual, *characteristic

*Ana *special, particular, specific, especial: unique, particular, separate, *single: *distinct, separate, several, discrete

*Ant typical —Con *common, ordinary, familiar, popular, vulgar: similar, *like, alike, identical, comparable, parallel, analogous: *same, equivalent, equal: generic, general, *universal distinguish 1 Distinguish, differentiate, discriminate, demarcate are synonymous when they mean to point out or mark the differences between things that are or seem to be much alike or closely related. Distinguish presupposes sources of confusion; the things considered may or may not be alike, but if not alike, they are so closely connected, so indissolubly related, so open to misunderstanding that the differences must be noted or marked out if confusion is to be eradicated; hence, maturity of intellect or of judgment is implicit in the power to distinguish  <the aesthetic and ethical spheres, in fact, were never sharply distinguished by the Greeks—Dickinson>

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
entiate implies either the possession of a distinguishing character or features, or more commonly the capacity to ascertain differences between things susceptible of confusion (we find in Chinese art a strong synthetic power, which differentiates it and lifts it beyond the art of Persia and the art of India—Binyon) (if poetry is art, it must produce its effects through a medium which differentiates it, without divorcing it, from reality—Lowes) (we must have classes small enough to enable the teacher to differentiate the strong and the willing from the slugs—Grandgent) Discriminate involves the idea of perception; it implies the power to perceive or discern differences; often slight differences, between things that are very much alike (discriminate synonyms) (irritated by the wasp's inability to discriminate a house from a tree—E. K. Brown) (whenever you have learned to discriminate the birds, or the plants, or the geographical features of a country, it is as if new and keener eyes were added—Burroughs) (to discriminate between true and false Aristotelianism—Babbit) Demarcate implies the setting of literal limits or the marking of literal boundaries, but it can be freely used to suggest a distinguishing between things as clear as if there were lines between them (how shall we demarcate? Reproduction from Growth?—Lewes) (only in periods when a common idea of style pervades the whole production of a people does . . . the work of the craftsmen merge, with no demarcating difference, in the art which expresses thought and emotion—Binyon) Ana separate, part, divide: *detach, disengage Ant confound—Con confuse, *mistake 2 *characterize, mark, qualify Ana individualize, peculiarize (see corresponding adjectives at characteristic) distort contort, warp, *deform Ana twist, bend, *curve: disfigure, *deface: *injure, damage, mar, impair: misinterpret, misconstrue (see affirmative verbs at explain) distract bewilder, nonplus, confound, dumbfound, mystify, perplex, *puzzle Ana *confuse, muddle, addle, fuddle, befuddle: baffle, balk (see frustrate): agitate, upset, fluster, flurry, perturb, *discompose Ant collect (one's thoughts, one's powers) distraught absentminded, absent, *abstracted, preoccupied Ana distracted, bewildered, nonplused (see puzzle vb): muddled, addled, confused (see confuse): agitated, perturbed, discomposed, flustered (see discompose) Ant collected—Con *cool, composed, unrumpled, im-perturbable, unflappable, nonchalance distress n Distress, suffering, misery, agony, dolor, passion are comparable when denoting the state of one that is in great trouble or in pain of mind or body. Distress commonly implies conditions or circumstances that cause physical or mental stress or strain; usually also it connotes the possibility of relief or the need of assistance (to pity distress is human; to relieve it is Godlike—Mann) The word is applicable to things as well as to persons; thus, a ship in distress is helpless and in peril because of some untoward circumstance (as a breakdown in machinery); a community's distress may be the result of a disaster or of an event imposing extreme hardships on the people. When used to designate a mental state, distress usually implies the stress or strain of fear, anxiety, or shame (the original shock and distress that were caused by the first serious work of scholars on the Bible—Montague) (it had evidently been a great distress to him, to have the days of his imprisonment recalled—Dickens) (she therefore dressed exclusively in black, to her husband's vast amusement and her mother's rumored distress—Wylie) Suffering is used especially in reference to human beings; often it implies conscious awareness of pain or distress and conscious endurance (extreme sensibility to physical suffering . . . characterizes modern civilization—Inge) (the losses and hardships and sufferings entailed by war—Russell) Misery stresses the unhappy or wretched conditions attending distress or suffering; it often connotes sordidness, or dolefulness, or abjectness (for bleak, unadulterated misery that dak bungalow was the worst . . . I had ever set foot in—Kipling) (she had . . . cheated and shamed herself . . . exchanged content for misery and pride for humiliation—Bennett) Agony suggests suffering so intense that both body and mind are involved in a struggle to endure the unbearable (fell with a scream of mortal agony—Mason) (the agony of being found wanting and exposed to the disapproval of others—Mead) Dolor is a somewhat literary word applied chiefly to mental suffering that involves sorrow, somber depression, or grinding anxiety (heaviness is upon them, and dolor thickens the air they walk through—Frank) Passion is now rare in this sense except in reference to the sufferings of Jesus in the garden at Gethsemane and culminating in his crucifixion. Ana afflict, *trial, tribulation: *sorrow, grief, anguish, woe, heartbreak: strain, pass, pinch, exigency (see JUNCTURE): hardship, *difficulty, rigor, vicissitude: *pain, pang, ache Con comforting or comfort, solacing or solace, consolation (see corresponding verbs at comfort): alleviation, assuagement, mitigation, allaying, relieving or relief (see corresponding verbs at relieve) distress vb *trouble, ail Ana *afflict, try, torment, torture, rack: *worry, annoy, harass, harry, plague, pester: *depress, oppress, weigh Con *comfort, console, solace: *help, aid, assist: *relieve, alleviate, lighten, mitigate, assuage, allay distribute, dispense, divide, deal, dole are comparable when they mean to give out, usually in shares, to each member of a group. Distribute implies either an apportioning among many by separation of something into parts, units, or amounts, and by assigning each part, unit, or amount to the proper person or place, or a scattering or spreading more or less evenly over an area (distributed his possessions among his heirs) (distribute fertilizer by spreading or scattering it over a garden) (distribute profits among shareholders in the form of dividends) (distribute type by returning each piece of used type to its proper compartment in a case) (the old habit of centralizing a strain at one point, and then dividing and subdividing it, and distributing it on visible lines of support to a visible foundation—Henry Adams) (all modern societies aim . . . to distribute impartially to all the burdens and advantages of the state—Dickinson) Dispense (see also administer 1) differs from distribute in not usually implying a spreading out that affects a large number or a separation that reduces the size or amount of each part or portion; rather, it suggests the giving of a carefully weighed or measured portion to each of a group as a right or as due, or as accordant to need (dispense aims to the needy) (if every justice that now pines with want had but a moderate and becomingly share . . . nature's full blessings would be well-dispersed—Milton) (let us . . . receive whatever good 'tis given thee to dispense—Wordsworth) (a pulsating, metallic, fluorescent world, in which Olympian judgments are dispensed by worried word fanciers from their thirty-ninth floor cubicles—Hilton) Divide (see also separate) stresses the separation of a whole into parts but it implies as the purpose of that separation a dispensing of those parts to, or a sharing of them by, each of a group; the term usually implies, if the context gives no further information, that the parts are equal \{the three partners divide the profits of the business, the size of each share depending on the size of the partner's investment\} \{claimed that his confederates would not divide the booty fairly\} \{of the rent, a large proportion was divided among the country gentlemen—Macaulay\} \{if, for example, he is an evildoer, it is a great comfort to him to know that others likewise are evildoers. Dividing the blame lightens the load—Overstreet\} Deal (usually followed by out) emphasizes the delivery of something piece by piece, or in suitable portions, especially to those who have a right to expect it \{deal the cards for a game of bridge\} \{deal out equipment and supplies to each soldier\} \{our fellows were very methodical about the death they were dealing out. They dispensed it in the firm, tranquil-seeming way of clerks—Wolfert\} Often, the term carries no suggestion of distribution, and means little more than to give or deliver \{dealt his opponent a blow\} \{should employ one special man whose sole job is to keep inventing fresh phrases of delight to be dealt out in regular doses to authors at work—Dawson & Wilson\} Dole (also frequently followed by out) may imply a dispensing of alms to the needy \{dole out daily one thousand loaves of bread\} \{a prince doling out favors to a servile group of petitioners—Dreiser\} but since in this sense it usually suggests a carefully measured portion, it often suggests scantiness or niggardliness in the amount dispensed and does not necessarily suggest a charitable intent \{this comfort . . . she doled out to him in daily portions—Fielding\} \{I can accept what is given in love and affection to me, but I could not accept what was doled out grudgingly or with conditions—Wilde\} Ana apportion, *allot, allocate, assign: ration, portion, parcel, prorate, *apportion: *administer, dispense Ant collect (supplies): amass (wealth, a fortune) —Con *gather, assemble: *accumulate, hoard district *locality, vicinity, neighborhood Ana *area, tract, region, zone, belt: section, sector, division, parcel (see part n); *field, province, territory, sphere distrust vb Distrust, mistrust are comparable both as verbs meaning to lack trust or confidence in someone or something and as nouns denoting such a lack of trust or confidence. Distrust, however, implies far more certainty that something is wrong than mistrust; often it suggests conviction of another's guilt, treachery, or weakness \{Octavius had imbibed sufficient philosophy to distrust the world as a lair for all ill—Buchan\} \{the same distrust and horror of the unnatural forms into which life for the majority of people is being forced—Day Lewis\} Mistrust suggests domination by suspicion and, usually, fear \{he took me into a place so wild that a man less accustomed to these things might have mistrusted and feared for his life—Cather\} \{something . . . roused in him a suspicion that in the near future he was not going to have matters quite so much his own way. However, he concealed his mistrust as well as he could—Mackenzie\} Con *rely, trust, depend, count, bank, reckon: confide, entrust, *commit, consign distrust n mistrust (see under distrust vb) Ana doubt, *uncertainty, dubiety, dubiousness, suspicion: *apprehension, foreboding, misgiving, presentiment Con confidence, *trust, reliance, dependence, faith disturb 1 unsettle, derange, *disorder, disarray, disorganize divide vb 1 separate, part, sever, Sunder, divorce

Ana cleave, split, rend, rive (see TEAR): cut, carve, chop

Ant unite

2 distribute, dispense, deal, dole

Ana apportion, portion, prorate, ration, parcel: share, participate, partake: allot, assign, allocate divine adj holy, sacred, spiritual, religious, blessed divine vb foresee, foreknow, apprehend, anticipate

Ana discern, perceive, descry (see SEE): predict, prophesy, prognosticate, presage (see FORETELL) division section, segment, sector, part, portion, piece, detail, member, fraction, fragment, parcel divorce vb separate, sever, Sunder, part, divide

Ana alienate, estrange, weaken, disaffect divulge tell, disclose, reveal, betray, discover

Adivine obedient, biddable, tractable, amenable

A naive compliant, acquiescent: pliant, pliable, adaptable (see PLASTIC): yielding, submitting or submissive (see corresponding verbs at YIELD)

Ant indolent: unruly, unapproachable — Con intractable, refractory, recalcitrant, willful, headstrong (see UNRULY): stubborn, obstinate

dizzy giddy, vertiginous, swimming, dazzled

A na reeling, whirling (see REEL): confounded, bewildered, puzzled (see PUZZLE)

docile obedient, biddable, tractable, amenable

A naive compliant, acquiescent: pliant, pliable, adaptable (see PLASTIC): yielding, submitting or submissive (see corresponding verbs at YIELD)

Ant indolent: unruly, unapproachable — Con intractable, refractory, recalcitrant, willful, headstrong (see UNRULY): stubborn, obstinate

dock wharf, pier, quay, slip, berth, jetty, levee

docker vb adulterate, sophisticate, load, weight doctrine dogmatic, magisterial, oracular, dictatorial, authoritarian doctrine, dogma, tenet are synonymous only when they mean a principle (usually one of a series or of a body of principles) accepted as authoritative (as by members of a church, a school of philosophers, or a branch of science).

Doctrine is often used in a much broader sense to denote a formulated theory that is supported by evidence, backed by authority, and proposed for acceptance (the doctrine of evolution, Einstein's doctrine of relativity). In the narrower sense doctrine retains its basic implication of authoritative teaching, but it presupposes acceptance by a body of believers or adherents (a catechism of Christian doctrines) (a... mathematical doctrine of waves which nowadays has almost come to dominate... physics—Darwin) Dogma also stresses authoritative teaching but unlike doctrine it seldom implies proposal for acceptance. A dogma is not advanced as reasoned and worthy of acceptance but laid down as true and beyond dispute (the dogmas of a church are usually stated in a creed or confession) (in 1870 Pope Pius IX defined the dogma of papal infallibility) Dogma (or especially its derivative dogmatic) often connotes insistence, sometimes arrogant insistence, on authority or imposition by authority (the dogma that the king can do no wrong) Tenet emphasizes acceptance and belief rather than teaching. It is therefore thought of as a principle held or adhered to and implies a body of adherents (the tenets of modern Socialism are not in every instance identical with the doctrines of Karl Marx)

A na teaching, instruction (see corresponding verbs at TEACH): principle, fundamental document 1 Document, monument, record, archive denote something preserved and serving as evidence (as of an event, a situation, or the thought of its time). Document commonly designates something written or printed (as a letter, a charter, a deed, a will, or a book) or something carrying an inscription (as a coin, a tombstone, or a medal) that has value as evidence because of its contemporaneity (while the poor little affairs of obscure, industrious men of letters are made the subject of intensive research, the far more romantic, thrilling, and illuminating documents about the seekers and makers of great fortunes, are neither gathered nor cherished—H. G. Wells) The Waste Land seems to me chiefly important as a social document. It gives an authentic impression of the mentality of educated people in the psychological slump that took place immediately after the war—Day Lewis) Monument is applicable to whatever serves as a memorial of the past; it is usually applied to a building, work of art, or other relic of the past, especially one that serves as a reminder (as of a country's greatness, a nation's triumphs in war, or a period's accomplishments in art) (the French government has taken over many of the ancient cathedrals in order to preserve them as public monuments) (the English Church has no literary monument equal to that of Dante, no intellectual monument equal to that of St. Thomas, no devotional monument equal to that of St. John of the Cross—T. S. Eliot) Record implies the intent to preserve evidence of something; it denotes matter recorded (as by writing or taping) so that exact knowledge of what has occurred will be perpetuated (keep a record of a conversation) (the records of the trial were destroyed in a fire) (made six motion-picture records of his underwater expeditions —Current Biol.) (it is not only the right, but it is the judicial duty of the court, to examine the whole case as presented by the record—Taney) Archive (see also MUSEUM) is applicable to a document or record preserved especially throughout a long period (some rotten archive, rummaged out of some seldom-explored press—Lamb) Its more common plural form archives suggests a miscellaneous accumulation, rather than a carefully selected collection, of records and documents (the archives of the Vatican are now accessible to scholars) (the archives of every city—Dryden)

A na evidence, testimony

2 instrument, paper

dodge vb Dodge, parry, sidestep, duck, shirk, fence, malinger are comparable when meaning to avoid or evade by some maneuver or shift. Dodge implies quickness of movement or a sudden evasive shift of position (as in avoiding a blow or pursuit) (they ran to the Abbey, dodged the Baronet, armed themselves—Meredith) (he was able to dodge so that the man's knife went through his sleeve, wounding him only slightly—Heiser) It may imply artfulness, or craft, or clever deceit in evading not only the attack of an enemy but similarly the thrusts of a debater, or an examiner, or the demands of an authoritative power (some dodging casuist with more craft than sincerity—Milton) (the trouble... is always being dodged or minimized by the moralist—Forster) (dodged the issue again and again) Parry does not imply dodging so much as warding off a blow and turning aside the weapon; it suggests skill and adroitness in defending oneself not only from blows with a weapon but from whatever threatens or proves awkward (as a question or demand) (parry an argument by shifting the ground) (parry a demand for the payment of a claim by making a counterclaim) (I parried her questions by the best excuses I could offer—Wilkie Collins) Sidestep comes very close to dodge in its suggestion of a quick maneuver to evade a blow or the facing of an issue; it usually suggests dexterous action in avoiding something imminent but often, on the other hand, suggests not ultimate avoidance but temporary delay or postponement (the boxer neatly sidestepped the blow) (sidestep the decision dogma * doctrine, tenet
doldrums
obstinate, pertinacious, mulish, stubborn, dogged lugubrious, dolorous, *melancholy, plaintive, doleful magisterial, doctrinaire, oracular, *dictatorial, dole sphere, province, *field, territory, bailiwick dolorous or parcel, apportionment, parceling apportioning Ana faltering
dogma *doctrine, tenet
Ana belief, conviction, persuasion, view (see OPINION):
*principle, fundamental dogmatic magisterial, doctrinaire, oracular, *dictatorial, authoritarian Ana peremptory, *masterful, imperative, imperious, domineering doldrums boredom, ennui, *tedium Ana depression, depression, gloom, blues, dumps (see SADNESS)
Ana spirits, high spirits
dole n allowance,ittance, *ration Ana apportioning or apportionment, parceling or parcel, portioning or portion (see corresponding verbs at APPORTION): sharing or share (see corresponding verb SHARE)
dole vb dispense, deal, *distribute, divide Ana *apportion, ration, portion, parcel, prorate: bestow, confer, present, *give doleful lugubrious, dolorous, *melancholy, plaintive, rueful Ana mourning or mournful, sorrowing or sorrowful, grieving (see corresponding verbs at GRIEVE): piteous, *pitiful Ana cheerful, cheerful
dolor agony, suffering, passion, *distress, misery
Ana anguish, woe, *sorrow, grief: tribulation, *trial, affliction, cross, visitation Ana beatitude, blessedness dolorous doleful, *melancholy, plaintive, lugubrious, rueful Ana & Ana see those at DOLEFUL domain sphere, province, *field, territory, bailiwick Ana *area, region, zone: district, *locality: jurisdiction, dominion (see POWER) domicile dwelling, abode, residence, house, home, *habitation dominant, predominant, paramount, preponderant, preponderating, sovereign mean superior to all others in power, influence, position, or rank. Something is dominant which is thought of as ruling, as commanding, or as uppermost (a dominant race) the idea of beauty and of a human nature perfect on all its sides, which is the dominant idea of poetry—Arnold (I will not say that money has ceased to be the dominant force in American life—Lerner) Something is predominant which is for the time being in the ascendant or exerts the most marked influence (the power of... modifying a series of thoughts by some one predominant thought or feeling—Coleridge) (a variety of subjects... in which no particular one is predominant—Cowper) (the painter whose predominant aim is moral instruction—Binyon)
Something is paramount which has preeminence or supremacy in importance, order, rank, or jurisdiction (time is of paramount importance—Roosevelt) (for most American newsmen the ideal of accurate and objective news reports is fundamental and paramount—Mott)
Something is preponderant or preponderating which outweighs or overbalances every other thing of its kind in power, influence, force, or number; these terms are commonly used without clear distinction in meaning, but preponderating sometimes suggests active operation (the preponderating tendency) and preponderant the actual effect (for several years this political party has been the preponderant party in the affairs of the nation) (the preponderant influence of a group of banks) (if the net result was beneficial to the university—and this seems to be the preponderant opinion around Madison—it was detrimental to La Follette—Davis) Something is sovereign (see also FREE) when every other comparable thing is subordinate, inferior, or of lower value; the term therefore imputes unquestioned supremacy to the thing so described (the Sovereign Ruler of the universe) (the sovereign power in the United States of America is vested in the people) (a sovereign remedy) (wearing... an amulet sovereign against all passion—Browning) (promote... the sovereign good of the community—Grote)
Ana *prevailing, prevalent: preeminent, *supreme, transcendent, surpassing: outstanding, salient, signal (see NOTICEABLE): governing, ruling (see GOVERN)
Ana subordinate domineering *masterful, imperious, imperative, pre-emptory
Ana arrogant, overbearing, lordly, insolent (see PROUD): magisterial, *dictatorial Ana subservient —Ana conspicuous, servile (see SUBSERVIENT) dominion control, command, sway, authority, jurisdiction, *power Ana ascendancy, *supremacy: sovereignty (see under FREE adj) donate present, bestow, *give, confer, afford Ana *grant, accord, award donation, benefaction, contribution, alms are comparable when they denote a gift of money or its equivalent for a charitable, philanthropic, or humanitarian object.
Donation is freely used for such a gift (blood donations) (seeking small donations for myriad worthy causes) It may, however, retain in this sense some feeling of its earlier meaning of the act or right (as of a state, a ruler, or a patron) of granting or giving to a subordinate (as a subject or a client) and is, therefore, the normal term to apply to a gift of substantial value, presented more... or less publicly, and usually without reference to other givers or gifts (the endowment funds of the great universities are increased mainly by donations and bequests)
A list of the Rockefeller donations Benefit is often used in place of donation, especially when there is the intent to compliment the donor and to imply his benevolence or the beneficence of his gift. The latter, however, is the basic implication and the word may be appropriately used of any benefit conferred or received whether it has money value or not (her benefactions are remembered by many philanthropic agencies) (the benefactions of the American GI's to the . . . children of Korea—Harford Times) (this benefaction totals almost $5 million—Americana Annual) Contribution implies participation in giving; it is applicable to small as well as large amounts of money; it is the modest term which one may apply to his own gift, though others may rightly call it a donation or benefaction (please accept my contribution to the endowment fund of your institution) (a community chest contribution) (but the Government quickly came to the rescue, and, aided by private contribution, built a cutoff wall—Amer. Guide Series; Minn.) Alms implies the aim of relieving poverty either in former times as the fulfillment of a religious obligation or as a practical manifestation of the virtue of charity (the gift without strings). Who gives himself with his alms feeds three (himself, his hungering neighbor, and me [Christ]—J. R. Lowell) or in more recent times as an indication of casual benevolence displayed chiefly in the giving of petty sums to beggars or paupers (though poor and forced to live on alms—Wordsworth) (a few filthy . . . children, waiting for stray tourists, cried for an alms—Harper's)
Ana grant, subvention, appropriation, subsidy doom n fate, destiny, lot, portion doom vb damn, condemn, sentence, proscribe doors, gate, portal, postern, doorway, gateway are comparable chiefly as meaning an entrance to a place. Door applies chiefly to the movable and usually swinging barrier which is set in the opening which serves as an entrance to a building or to a room or apartment in a building (an oak door) (the front door of a house) Sometimes door is used also of the opening (children coming running through the door) Gate may apply to an opening in a wall, fence, or enclosure but it more commonly denotes a movable and often swinging barrier (especially one made of a grating or open frame or a heavy or rough structure) set in such an opening and closed or opened at will (the north gate to the campus) (opening the garden gate) Portal applies usually to an elaborate and stately door or gate, with its surrounding framework (the portal to the temple) (the knights were admitted through the portal to the palace) Postern denotes a private or retired doors or gate (as at the back of a castle or fortress).

Doorway and gateway apply not to the structure but to the passage when a door (in a doorway) or a gate (in a gateway) is opened for ingress or egress (stand in the doorway awaiting the postman) (automobiles passed through the gateway in constant succession)

In their extended use these words are still more sharply distinguished. Door usually applies to what provides opportunity to enter or withdraw or makes possible an entrance or exit (the love of books, the golden key that opens the enchanted door—Long) (I know death hath ten thousand several doors for men to take their exit—John Webster) Gate differs from door chiefly in its connotations of facility in admission or of entrance into something large, impressive, wide, or even infinite (what sweet content-ments doth the soul enjoy by the senses? They are the gates and windows of its knowledge—William Drummond) (to wade through slaughter to a throne and shut the gates of mercy on mankind—Gray) Portal often carries similar connotations, but it usually applies to a definite place or thing which is itself splendid or magnificent and through which something (as the sun at rising and at setting) is admitted or allowed exit (Heaven, that opened wide her blazing portals—Milton) (since your name will grow with time . . . have I made the name a golden portal to my rhyme—Tennyson) Postern, on the other hand, implies an inconspicuous or even a hidden means of entrance or escape (it finds a readier way to our sympathy through a postern which we cannot help leaving sometimes on the latch, than through the ceremonial portal of classical prescription—J. R. Lowell) Gateway is usually preferred to doorway in figurative use because it more strongly suggests a passage through which entrance is obtained to something desirable or difficult (the city was once more the gateway to half a continent—Harold Sinclair) (the senses were regarded as gateways or avenues of knowledge—Dewey)

Ana entrance, entry, entrance, ingress, access doorway *door, portal, postern, gate, gateway dormant 1 quiescent, latent, abeyant, potential Ana inactive, inert, passive, idle
Ant active, alive
2 couchant, prone, recumbent, supine, prostrate dormer n window, casement, oriel dotage senility, age, senescence Ant infancy
Dote love, relish, enjoy, fancy, like Ant loathe —Con abhor, abominate, detest, hate:
despise, contempt, scorn
doting fond, devoted, loving, affectionate Ana infatuated, enamored: fatuous, foolish, silly, asinine, simple double n understudy, stand-in, substitute, supply, locum tenens, alternate, pinch hitter double-cross delude, betray, beguile, deceive, mislead double-dealing n chicanery, chicane, trickery, deception, fraud
Ana duplicity, dissimulation, deceit, guile, cunning double entendre equivocation, ambiguity, turgi-eration
Doubt n uncertainty, skepticism, suspicion, mistrust, dubiety, dubiosity Ana dubiousness, doubtfulness, questionableness (see corresponding adjectives at DOUBTFUL): incredulity, unbelief, disbelief
Ant certitude: confidence —Con certainty, conviction, assurance: trust, reliance, dependence, faith Doubtful, dubious, problematic, questionable are comparable when they mean not affording assurance of the worth, soundness, success, or certainty of something or someone.
Doubtful and dubious are sometimes used with little distinction. Doubtful, however, is commonly so positive in its implication as almost to impute worthlessness, unsoundness, failure, or uncertainty to the thing in question (it is doubtful whether the captain had ever had so much fun—Steinbeck) Dubious stresses suspicion, mistrust, or hesitation (as in accepting, believing, following, or choosing); thus, a man of doubtful repute is by implication more distrusted than one of dubious repute; one who is doubtful of the outcome of a project has by implication better grounds for fearing its failure than one dubious about it, for the latter may imply mere vague suspicions and fears and little evidence (a doubtful prospect) (a dubious transaction) (a dubious title to an estate) (dubious friends) (whispers and glances were interchanged, accompanied by shrugs and dubious

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
dough, batter, paste are quasi-synonyms often confused in
vb
Dower, endow, endue are comparable when saturnine, glum, gloomy, *sullen, morose, surly, (oysters) are dipped before frying in hot fat. Paste applies
analogous words
ana Batter
quickly cooked.
the pan in which they are baked or for those that are ter休息ically, also, it contains eggs, and often baking powder, and cookies. Batter applies to a thinner mass in which the narily other ingredients (as a leavening agent, fat, and flour, liquid, salt, and supplementary ingredients, but each suggests a difference both in consistency as a result of the in its stiffness and in its admitting dough applies to a mixture with only enough liquid in relation to the flour to the bind ingredients while leaving the mixture sufficiently stiff to knead or to shape before baking. Ordinarily other ingredients (as a leavening agent, fat, and sugar) are included to improve the texture, flavor, and nutritive qualities of the ultimate product which includes such items as bread, biscuit, rolls, and some kinds of cake and cookies. Batter applies to a thinner mass in which the proportion of liquid is much greater than in dough; characteristically, also, it contains eggs, and often baking powder, sugar, and fat. It may be used for cakes that are shaped by the pan in which they are baked or for those that are poured in small amounts on a hot griddle or pan and quickly cooked. Batter also designates a similar mixture of flour, liquid, and eggs into which raw food (as fish or oysters) are dipped before frying in hot fat. Paste applies to a mixture like dough in its stiffness and in its admitting of being rolled and shaped but differs in implying the use of a large proportion of fat and a very small proportion of liquid; it names, therefore, the mixture out of which pastries (as pies and tarts) are made.
doughty *brave, courageous, unafraid, fearless, intrepid, valiant, valorous, dauntless, undaunted, bold, audacious
ana ventureous, *adventurous, daring dour saturnine, glum, gloomy, *sullen, morose, surly, sulky, crabbed
ana
*severe, stern, austere: rigorous, strict, *rigid;
*grim, implacable
dowdy *slatternly, frowzy, blowzy
ana
slowenly, *slipshod, unkempt, disheveled, sloppy ant smart (in dress, appearance) — con fashionable, *stylish, modish, chic: flashy, *gaudy, garish dower vb Dower, endow, endue are comparable when meaning to furnish or provide with a gift. Dower specifically denotes the provision of the dowry which a woman brings to a husband in marriage (a well-dowered bride) It may also imply the bestowal of a gift, talent, or good quality (poets dowered with genius) (nature had so richly dowered him—symonds) Endow in its basic sense implies the bestowing of money or property on a person or institution for its support or maintenance (with all my worldly goods I thee endow—Book of Common Prayer) (erect and endow a hospital) (a large bequest sufficient to endow the new college) Like dower it may be extended to the giving of any good thing, together with a suggestion of enhancing or enriching the recipient (Shakespeare took these words . . . and endowed them with new significance—kilby) (a fascinating woman endowed with every grace) Endue may mean to clothe or invest with something (as a garment, a dignity, a right, or a possession) (a loose gown . . . such as elderly gentlemen loved to endue themselves with—hawthorne) (to make him a citizen of the United States, and endue him with the full rights of citizenship—taney) (a new and penetrating light descends on the spectacle, enduing men and things with a seeming transparency—hardy) Endue has become so confused with endow in its extended sense of to bestow upon one a faculty, power, or other spiritual or mental gift that it is difficult to trace any differences in meaning between the two words. But endow in precise use usually implies a permanent enriching, and endue an investing or clothing (either temporarily or permanently) with a specific quality or character (those who are the most richly endowed by nature, and accomplished by their own industry—spectator) (finer faculties with which the continued process of evolution may yet endow the race—montague) (the revolution awakened it [french democracy] into consciousness . . . and endued it with efficient force—brownell)
ana
*furnish, equip, outfit, appoint, accouter dowcast, dispirited, rejected, depressed, disconsolate, woebegone mean affected by or showing very low spirits.
Dowcast implies a being overcome by shame, mortification, or loss of hope or confidence; it usually suggests an inability to face others or an utter lack of cheerfulness (his abstraction, and dowcast, but not melancholy, air—meredith) (she comes into the room very determinedly: the two men, perplexed and dowcast, following her—shaw) Dispirited implies extreme low-spiritedness occasioned by failure to accomplish or to get what one wants or to achieve what one wishes to attain; it usually implies discouragement or a being disheartened
*he, dispirited, left the talking all to her—meredith *dispirited by their futile efforts—grandgent) (sick and dispirited, he gave up his arabian plan and started on the return voyage to italy—buchan) Depressed implies greater prostration of the spirits than either dowcast or dispirited with sudden but often temporary loss of hope, courage, or vigor (catherine took up her work directly, saying, in a dejected voice, that her head did not run upon bath—much—austen) (i may, as i lie on the sand, be happy, dejected, in vacant or in pensive mood—lowes) Depressed suggests a sinking under a heavy weight or a burden too great to be borne: it may express a temporary or a chronic mood or reaction and may, unlike the other terms of this group, indicate a serious inability to be normally active and happy (depressed by his failures to the point of suicide) (my spirits have been more depressed than is common, even with me —cowper) (when nothing happens they become sad and depressed—anderson) Disconsolate fundamentally implies comfortlessness and carries a strong suggestion of being insonable or exceptionally uncomfortable; it may sometimes suggest no more than a frame of mind in which depression and disappointment are associated with discomfort or grief (the Jews sat disconsolate on the poop; they complained much of the cold they had suffered in their exposed situation—Borrow) (Adrian hurried after Richard in an extremely disconsolate state of mind. Not to be at the breakfast and see the best of the fun, disgusted him—Meredith) Woebegone usually suggests a frame of mind but it emphasizes the impression of dejection and defeat produced on an observer not only by the facial expression and posture of the one observed but also by his surroundings or quarters: it may imply dejection, depression, or merely discouragement in the persons affected or desolation or dilapidation in their surroundings, but the overall impression is that of a defeated, spiritless condition (it was the most woebegone farm I had ever seen) (the woebegone expression on the countenances of the little children) (a poor mendicant approached, old and woebegone—Lockhart) Ana weighed down, oppressed (see DEPRESS); distressed, troubled, *wearied, *dismayed Ant elated —Con cheerful, happy, joyous (see GLAD) downright adj also adv *forthright Ana blunt, *bluff, brusque, curt: candid, plain, open, *frank: *straightforward, aboveboard Con devious, oblique, *crooked doze vb drowse, snooze, *sleep, slumber, nap, catnap draft n outline, diagram, sketch, delineation, tracing, plot, blueprint (see under SKETCH vb)
draft vb outline, diagram, *sketch, delineate, trace, plot, blueprint draw vb draw, *pull, tug, tow, haul, hale Ana *bring, fetch: *attract, allure: *lure, entice: extract, elicit, evoke, *educe Con see those at DRAG dramatic, theatrical, dramaturgic, melodramatic, histrionic are not close synonyms although all imply special appeal of a great orator) (the story telling . . . ) <make a dramatic appeal of incidents which have a sympathetic hero—Cather> The dramatic storytelling . . . of incidents which have a sympathetic hero—Russell> an idyll of Theocritus . . . is today as much alive as the Iliad—Stallyment> an idyll of Homer . . . is today as much alive as the Iliad—Stallyment> an idyll of Homer . . . is today as much alive as the Iliad—Stallyment> <make a dramatic appeal of a great orator> <the dramatic storytelling . . . of incidents which have a sympathetic hero—Russell> <an idyll of Theocritus . . . is today as much alive as the most dramatic passages of the Iliad—stirs the reader's feeling quite as much—Cather> Theatrical denotes relationship to the theater (a theatrical office) (a theatrical agent) It may imply effects appropriate to the theater as the place where plays are produced, and to the demands which its limitations, its convention, and, often, its need of financial success make both upon a play and its performance; the term therefore usually implies a marked degree of artificiality or conventionality, a direct and sometimes a blatant appeal to the senses and emotions, and often an overdoing or exaggeration in gesture, in speech, or in action (the situations are in the most effective sense theatrical, without being in the profounder sense dramatic—T. S. Eliot) (he had already learned that with this people religion was necessarily theatrical—Cather) Dramaturgic, which stresses the technical aspects of the drama and its presentation, may be used in place of theatrical when the more or less derogatory connotations of that word are to be avoided and the emphasis is upon those elements in a play which fit it for repre-
drawback *disadvantage, detriment, handicap

Ana *evil, ill: inconvenience, trouble (see INCONVENIENCE): obstruction, hindrance (see corresponding verbs at HINDER)

dread n *fear, horror, terror, fright, alarm, trepidation, panic, consternation, dismay

Ana *apprehension, foreboding, misgiving, presentiment: timidity, timorousness (see corresponding adjectives at TIMID) dreadful horrible, horrific, appalling, *fearful, awful, frightful, terrible, terrific, shocking

Ana *delusion, illusion, hallucination

dreary 1 *dismal, cheerless, dispiriting, bleak, desolate

Ana discouraging, disheartening (see DISCOURAGE): barren, *bare: forlorn, hopeless (see DESPONDENT)

2 *dull, humdrum, monotonous, pedestrian, stodgy

Ana *irksome, tiresome, wearisome, tedious, boring: fatiguing, exhausting, flagging, tiring (see TIRE vb)

dregs sediment, *deposit, precipitate, lees, grounds

drench vb *soak, saturate, sop, steep, impregnate, waterlog

Ana *permeate, pervade, penetrate, impermeate

dress vb *clothe, attire, apparel, array, robe

Ana undress

dress n *clothes, clothing, attire, apparel, raiment drift n trend, *tendency, tenor

Ana *flow, stream, current: movement, *motion, progression, *progress: *intention, purpose, end, objective, goal, intent, aim

drill vb 1 bore, *perforate, punch, puncture, prick

Ana pierce, penetrate, *enter, probe

2 *practice, exercise

Ana train, discipline, *teach, instruct, school: *habituate, accustom drill n practice, exercise (see under PRACTICE vb)

drive vb 1 impel, *move, actuate

Ana *push, shove, propel: compel, *force, coerce: *incite, instigate

Con *restrain, curb, check, inhibit: lead, *guide, pilot, steer

2 *ride

drive n 1 ride (see under RIDE vb)

2 *vigor, vim, spirit, dash, esprit, verve, punch, élan

Ana *power, force, energy, strength, might: impetus, momentum, *speed, velocity driver n *nonsense, twaddle, bunk, balderdash, poppycock, gobbledygook, trash, rot, bull

Ana *gibberish, mummary, abracadabra

droll vb *laughable, risible, comic, comical, funny, ludicrous, ridiculous, farcical

Ana amusing, diverting, entertaining (see AMUSE): absurd, preposterous (see FOOLISH): humorous, *witty, facetious droop vb *Droop, wilt, flag, sag are comparable when they mean to sink or to lose in vigor, firmness, or freshness. Droop stresses a hanging or bending downward (as through exhaustion, discouragement, or lack of nourishment) <some of the watchers were drooping from weariness—Cather> <he sat down heavily, his shoulders drooping, his arms falling between his outspread legs—Caldwell> In extended use it implies a languishing or a subsiding of something previously thriving or flourishing <oh, ye so fiercely tended, ye little seeds of hate! I bent above your growing early and noon and late, yet are ye drooped and pitiful, —I cannot rear ye straight!—Millay>

Wilt applies especially to plants and suggests a loss of freshness or firmness in flower, leaves, or stems through lack of water or through excessive heat <most cut flowers wilt quickly unless given plenty of fresh water> The term often may be extended to various things that grow flaccid or weak in response to some stress (as fear, exhaustion, boredom, or a physical agent) <collars wilted in the damp heat> <the witness wilted under the cross-examiner’s sarcasm> <nor did I ever see the nation droop and wilt as we saw it wither under the panic of 1907—White> <the romance . . . blossomed for six or seven months and then wilted—Commins> Flag may be used of flexible things that hang loosely and limply and, with reference to plants, may be interchangeable with droop <leaves flagging in the heat>; more often it is used of something that loses in vigor or in force so that it suggests dullness, weariness, or languor <and languor旗—T. S. Eliot> <the bridge sagged under the weight of the truck> In extended uses it implies a loss of firmness, resiliency, or power to stand up against pressure, and a consequent drooping or decline <though it sags in the middle, the novel is readable throughout—Havighurst> <his heart sagged with disappointment—Mason> <prices on the market sagged> Ana sink, subside, subsidence, *fall, drop: languish (see languishing under LANGUID): *wither, shrivel, wizen

drop vb 1 *fall, sink, slump, subside

Ana *descend, dismount: *lapse, relapse, backslide: *descend: *lapse, relapse, backslide:

2 *dismiss, discharge, cashier, sack, fire, bounce drowse vb doze, snooze, *sleep, slumber, nap, catnap

drowsy vb *sleepy, somnolent, slumberous

Ana comatose, *lethargic, sluggish, torpid

Con alert, vigilant, *watchful: *active, live, dynamic: animated, *lively, vivacious drug n Drug, medicinal, pharmaceutical, biologic, simple are comparable when they denote a substance used by itself or in a mixture with other substances for the treatment of or in the diagnosis of disease. Drug is the ordinary comprehensive term in both general and professional use for such a substance, whether of plant, animal, or mineral origin, or produced synthetically, and in its broadest use denotes any substance used as a medicine or in making medicines. Especially in technical use the term also has certain more specific uses; sometimes it may denote a medicinal substance recognized in an official pharmacopoeia or formulary as distinguished from one used in folk medicine or proprietary remedies; even more specifically it may denote a narcotic and especially an addictive narcotic substance. Medicinal is interchangeable with drug in the latter’s comprehensive sense and is often preferred, especially in commerce, in manufacture, and in law where indication of the ultimate use of the substance is for one reason or another desirable

Ana analogous words Ana antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1
Drunk, drunken, intoxicated, inebriated, tipsy, tight

drugist, pharmacist, apothecary, chemist denote one who deals in medicinal drugs. Druggist is the broadest of these terms and may designate a seller of drugs or medicinal preparations at wholesale or retail and as owner, manager, or employee of the sales establishment; it may often replace the more precise pharmacist to denote one who is skilled in compounding drugs and dispensing medicines prescribed by a physician especially when he is thought of primarily as selling these. Pharmacist, however, specifically implies, as druggist does not, special training in pharmacy, professional standing, and usually licensing following a test of qualifications. Apothecary in early use was distinguished from druggist, which then designated one who sold crude drugs (as herbs, roots, and other ingredients of medicines) while apothecary designated one who compounded these ingredients or made them up into medicines and was, therefore, equivalent to pharmacist. The distinction has tended to disappear and apothecary may be interchangeable with either druggist or pharmacist although it is increasingly rare except in historical situations. In England chemist is the preferred term.

drunk, drunken, intoxicated, inebriated, tipsy, tight are comparable when they mean being conspicuously or fancied medicinal value especially in primitive or folk medicine (bonets, tansy, and other homey simples) It may also be used of a plant drug or medicinal preparation containing only one active ingredient. Ana medicine, medicament, medication, *remedy, physic, specific, cure

Drunkard, inebriate, alcoholic, dipsomaniac, soot, soak, toper, tospott, tippler designate one who drinks to excess. Drunkard and inebriate suggest the habit of intoxication but in themselves imply nothing about the causes or effects of such intoxication. Alcoholic and dipsomaniac both denote a person with defective ability to control his use of intoxicants. In technical usage alcoholic is the usual term and often specifically distinguishes the person physically and mentally impaired by compulsive drinking; in more general and often distinctly derogatory use it may approach drunkard and inebriate but normally carries at least some suggestion of loss of control. Dipsomaniac, once nearly coextensive with alcoholic, is now little used except to denote a person subject to periodic bouts of compulsive drinking. Sot and soak are closely comparable in implying excessive and habitual drinking. Sot in addition suggests the dulling of faculties and degradation of habits that accompany such drinking. Soak, on the other hand, may stress a spongelike capacity for intoxicants and even carry a hint of wry admiration; like the next two terms but unlike sot it may be used as a casual or even friendly epithet without connoting any strong disparagement. Toper, tospott, and tippler all imply habitual drinking but carry no inherent implication of intoxication. Toper and tospott commonly stress the conviviality and jovialness of group drinking (as in taverns and bars) and may suggest a capacity for heavy drinking without obvious intoxication. Tippler carries the idea of light but constant and often secret drinking.

Ant teetotaler

Drunken *drunk, intoxicated, inebriated, tipsy, tight

Dry adj 1 Dry, arid mean devoid of moisture. Dry may suggest freedom from noticeable moisture either as a characteristic or as a desirable state (a dry climate) (dry clothing) (dry land) (dry provisions) (dry floors) or it may suggest deficiency of moisture or the lack of normal or necessary moisture (dry soil) (a dry summer) (dry sandy berries) or, again, it may suggest exhaustion or dissipation of water or other liquid (a dry fountain pen) (dry pond) (dry well) (dry bones) Arid implies destitution or deprivation of moisture and therefore extreme rather than relative dryness. In its chief applications to regions or territory, it suggests waste or desert land (arid sections of the southwestern United States) (arid plains) (an arid condition of soil) In extended use, as applied to such matters as subjects, books, or sermons, dry suggests the lack of qualities which compel interest or attention (the course is dry but useful) (in the driest passages of her historical summaries these delightful descriptions come running to the rescue—Payne) Arid, on the other hand, connotes absence of all qualities which mark the thing so qualified as worthwhile, fruitful, or significant (an arid treatment on poetry) <the frank elucidation of such a principle ... might imply only bleak and arid results—Holbrook Jackson> As applied to persons, their manner, or their words and expressions, dry implies a loss of normal or often of youthful human warmth, freshness, responsiveness, or enthusiasm; arid, an absence of these qualities or an incapacity for them (his dry schoolmaster temperament, the hurry-gurdy monotony of him—James) <some arid matron made her rounds at dawn sniffing, peering, causing blue-nosed maids to scour—Woolf> Specifically, dry often suggests the repression of feeling for the sake of outwardly appearing aloof or imperturbed (a dry comic style) <comments which did not seem to be censures because uttered in a dry tone of voice> Arid, on the other hand, often connotes a deadening of feeling, especially as shown by a loss of fervor or hope (if Shakespeare himself ever had that “dark period”... it was at least no darkness like that bleak and arid despair which sometimes settles over modern spirits—Krutky>

Ana barren, *bare, bald: dehydrated, desiccated, dried, parched, baked (see DRY vb): drained, depleted, exhausted, impoverished (see DEPLETE): sapped (see WEAKEN)

Ant wet —Con damp, moist, humid, dank (see WET): *tender, sympathetic, warm, responsive: exuberant, lush, luxuriant, prodigal, *profuse

2 *sour, acid, acidulous, tart

Ana sweet (wine)

dry vb Dry, desiccate, dehydrate, bake, parch are comparable when meaning to treat or to affect so as to deprive of moisture. Dry is the comprehensive word and may be used whenever the process (as evaporation, absorption, or solidification) or method (as heating, draining, or aerating) by which the result is attained <clothes dried in the wind> <dry up a ditch> <dry dishes with a towel> <dry bricks in a kiln>

Desiccate is narrower in its range of reference and implies a complete deprivation of moisture, especially of vital juices, and often therefore, in its common extended use, a withering or shriveling. It is applicable to animal and vegetable products preserved by thorough drying <desiccated fish> or it may be applied to persons or to their attitudes, activities, or expression which have lost all their spiritual or emotional freshness or vitality <analysis is desiccating and takes the bloom off things—Babbitt> <they were all ... living on the edge of their nerves, a harsh, angular, desiccated existence—Brooks>

Dehydrate implies extraction or elimination of water; it is often preferred to desiccate, of which it is a close synonym, when the reference is to foods <dehydrate vegetables> It is the usual word when the removal of water (or hydrogen and oxygen in the proportion to form water) is by chemical rather than physical means <dehyd- rated alums> and in extended use suggests a removal of what strengthens, inspires, or makes meaningful or pleasing <-touches nothing that he does not dehydrate—Economist>

Bake implies not only dehydrating by means of heat, but a hardening or caking of what is dried <sunn- bakes earth> <bake bricks>

Parch stresses the damaging effect of dry intensity or drought; it is preferred to bake, therefore, when the restoration of the proper amount of water is necessary or highly desirable  <record heat waves which have parched mid-America’s usually productive plains—N. Y. Times Mag.>

Ana drain, *deplete, exhaust: wither, shrivel, wizen

Ant moisten, wet

dubiety *uncertainty, dubiosity, doubt, skepticism, suspicion, mistrust

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1

Ana *hesitation, hesitancy: wavering, vacillation, faltering (see corresponding verbs at HESITATE)

Ant decision —Con *certainty, certitude, assurance, conviction: decisiveness, decidedness (see corresponding adjectives at DECIDED)

dubiosity dubiety, *uncertainty, doubt, skepticism, suspicion, mistrust

Ana confusion, muddle, addlement (see corresponding verbs at CONFUSE): wavering, vacillation, faltering, hesitation (see corresponding verbs at HESITATE)

Ant decidedness —Con assurance, certitude, *certainty: cocksureness, positiveness (see corresponding adjectives at SURE)

dubious *doubtful, questionable, problematic

Ana suspicious, skeptical, mistrustful, uncertain (see corresponding nouns at UNCERTAINTY): hesitant, reluctant, *disinclined

Ant cocksure (state of mind, opinion): reliable (of things in general): trustworthy (of persons) —Con dependable, trustworthy, tried (see RELIABLE): *sure, certain, positive duck vb 1 *dip, immerse, submerge, souse, dunk

2 *dodge, parry, shirk, sidestep, fence, malinga

Ana avoid, elude, shun, evade (see ESCAPE): avert, ward, *prevent

Con *face, brave, challenge, dare, defy, beard

duct *channel, canal, conduit, aqueduct

ductile *plastic, pliable, pliant, malleable, adaptable

Ana tractable, amenable (see OBEDIENT): responsive (see TENDER): yielding, submitting (see YIELD): fluid, *liquid: flexible, *elastic, resilient

Con refractory, intractable (see UNRULY): rigid, *stiff, inflexible: obdurrate, *inflexible, adamantine dude *top, dandy, beau, coxcomb, exquisite, buck

dudgeon unbrage, huff, pique, resentment, *offense

Ana *anger, indignation, wrath, rage, fury, ire: temper, humor, *mood due adj *Due, rightful, condign are comparable when they mean being in accordance with what is just and appropriate. Due, which basically means owed or owing as a debt, carries over in the sense here considered a strong implication that the thing so described is grounded upon an obligation, duty, or debt which should not or cannot be ignored; thus, one who takes due precautions uses the care that is required by his obligation to look out for his own or for others’ safety or well-being; one who has a due sense of another person’s rights accords to that person all that belongs to him by natural or moral right; one who has due respect for the law observes the individual laws as the duty of a responsible citizen. Often the term implies little more than an accordance with what is right, reasonable, or necessary (the due relation of one thing with another—Galsworthy) <your due and proper portion—Meredith> <many noncommissioned officers have a firm belief that without a due admixture of curses, an order is inaudible to a private—Montague>

Rightful carries a much stronger and more consistent implication than due of a ground in right and justice, and usually suggests a moral or legal claim <the rightful heir to the estate> <possess the rightful authority> <looked askance, jealous of an encroacher on his rightful domain—Hawthorne> <the disloyal subject who had fought against his rightful sovereign—Macaulay> Con dignifies things which is distinctly deserved or merited and usually something that neither exceeds nor falls below one’s deserts or merits; the term is used chiefly of punishment, often with the implication of severity (he had been brought to condign punishment as a traitor—Macaulay) <the particular troubles which involved Messrs. Buechler and Vahlen in such condign castigation—Housman> due

dull punishments set up for violations of the rules of control—Baruch

Ana appropriate, meet, suitable, *fit, fitting, proper: right, *good: just, *fair, equitable

Con *excessive, inordinate, immoderate, extravagant, exorbitant: *deficient

Due, desert, merit are comparable when they mean what is justly owed to a person (sometimes a thing), especially as a recompense or compensation. Due usually implies a legal or moral right on the part of the person or thing that makes the claim or is in a position to make the claim and suggests a determination of what is owed by strict justice. More is thy due than more than all can pay.—Shak. You have deprived the best years of his life of that independence which was no less his due than his desert—Austen Any federal officer, regardless of his deserts, has much prestige—Heiser

Merit is a somewhat complex term, often shifting in its major implication but (see also excellence) commonly implying a deserving either of reward or punishment on the ground of what has been accomplished or of commendation, esteem, or acceptance on the ground of intrinsic and usually excellent qualities. No tribute can be paid to them which excludes their merit—John Marshall Deal with every case on its merits As a pilgrim to the Holy Places I acquire merit—Kipling

Ana compensation, recompensing or recompense, repayment, satisfaction, payment (see corresponding verbs at PAY): retribution, *reparation, reprisal, vengeance, revenge: reward, meed, guerdon (see premium)

Ant gratifying

Dull, dumb, obtuse are comparable when they mean the reverse of sharp, keen, and acute. As used of things, especially of tools, weapons, and instruments, dull refers to either an edge or a point that has lost its sharpness by use. A dull knife A dull razor A dull pencil Blunt refers to an edge or point that through use, nature, or intention, is not sharp or keen Use the blunt side of the knife in prying An ax is a blunt instrument as compared with a razor But its edge should not be allowed to become dull through use Obtuse applies to the shape of something whose sides converge at an angle that is broader than a right angle or to a thing terminating in a broad blunt point. The obtuse apex of a wing An obtuse leaf

In the extended senses of these words, dull (see also stupid) is the most widely applicable and the richest as well as the most variable in its connotations. It implies, in general, a lack or the loss of what gives keenness, intensity, or activity. A dull pain Dull red A dull market Dull anger Blunt (see bluff for application to manner and utterances) usually implies a lack of edge or point in the figurative senses of these words. Often, it refers to a person's powers of perception or to his sensibilities, which normally should be sharp or keen She is . . . is blunt in perception and feeling, and quite destitute of imagination—Bradley To the age of twelve . . . all my emotions were wholesomely undeveloped and blunt, never at any point exasperated into acute sensibleness—Ellis It may also apply to matters (as contrasts, critical judgments, and analyses) normally requiring sharp distinction or differentiation and then imply exceptional conciseness and corresponding loss of fine detail The function of diplomacy, in the bluntest analysis, is to get what you want—Newsweek Obtuse suggests such bluntness of perception or sensibilities as makes one insensitive to emotions or ideas There was, one vaguely feels, something a little obtuse about Dr. Burney. The eager, kind, busy man, with his head full of music and his desk stuffed with notes, lacked discrimination—Woolf An obtuse insensitivity to the rich and subtle variety of human relations—Cohen

Ant sharp (edge, point): poignant (sensation, feeling, reaction): lively (action or activity)

Dull, humdrum, dreary, monotonous, pedestrian, stodgy mean so unvaried and uninteresting as to provoke boredom or tedious. Dull (see also stupid) implies the lack of all that gives brightness, edge, or point to the person or thing; it need not imply inferiority, but it does suggest, from the point of view of one who judges, a want of interesting character. * Compared with her, other women were . . . dull; even the pretty ones seemed lifeless—Cather* For instance, you draw no inference from your facts. It's dull. Why not round the thing off into a good article?—Rose Macaulay

Humdrum implies a commonplace and routine character; it suggests a lack of variation that persists and colors the life or the people who lead that life A plain, humdrum domestic life, with eight months of winter, and a small house, full of babies—Trollope They regarded their reverses as humdrum people, slaves to routine, enemies to light—Arnold

Dreary (see also dismal) applies to something that from the writer's or speaker's point of view seems uninteresting and dull; the word may imply an absence of enlivening character in the thing itself but more often it reveals an attitude of mind I see that many people find the world dreary—and, indeed, there must be spaces of dreariness in it for us all—some find it interesting—Benson Monotonous implies an irksome sameness (as of what never changes in quality, character, or appearance); it may be widely applied (as to work, to play, to persons, to scenes, or to noises) Incessant recurrence without variety breeds tedium; the over-iterated becomes the monotonous—Lowes We may thus bring a little poetry and romance into the monotonous lives of our handworkers—Inge The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes The sky was as full of life as a newborn lamb's; the ship was as full of life as a newborn lamb's—Lowes *The sky was as full of life as a newborn lam dumb

273

durable

stodgy discussion <the reception was a stodgy affair>

<in England, art must be obvious and stodgy before people think it's respectable—Guy Thorne>

Ana *irksome, tiresome, wearisome, tedious, boring: prosy, *prosaic, matter-of-fact

Ant lively —Con gay, animated, sprightly (see LIVELY):

exciting, stimulating (see PROVOKE) dumb adj 1 Dumb, mute, speechless, inarticulate mean lacking the power to speak. Dumb and mute are often used interchangeably, but when used in distinction from each other, dumb implies an incapacity for speech (as in the case of animals and inanimate objects or of human beings whose organs of speech are defective); mute implies an inability to speak, owing to one's never having heard speech sounds (as in the case of one who is deaf congenitally or has lost his hearing before being old enough to reproduce heard sounds); thus, persons once called deaf and dumb are usually deaf-mutes who have healthy speech organs and can be trained to speak through the senses of sight and touch <dumb stones whereon to vent their rage —Arnold>  When used of persons who are normally able to speak, dumb (see also STUPID) usually suggests <inability to speak: mute stresses a compelling cause for keeping or maintaining silence <deep shame had struck me dumb—Shak.> (how terrible is that dumb grief which has never learned to moan—Galsworthy) <all sat mute, pondering the danger with deep thoughts—Milton> <some mute inglorious Milton—Gray> Speechless commonly implies momentary depriviation of the power of speech <struck speechless with terror> <I can remember, across the years, standing there with that paper in my hand; dumb, speechless, and probably tearful—White> Inarticulate implies either lack of the power to speak at all <the inarticulate people of the dead—Shelley> <the inarticulate hunger of the heart—Sherman> or, especially, inability to speak intelligibly or clearly, usually on account of some powerful emotion but sometimes because of lack of power to express one's feelings <inarticulate with rage> <stood looking down on her in inarticulate despair—Wharton>

2 dull, *stupid, slow, dense, crass

Ana & Con see those at DULL 1

Ant articulate (sense 2)

dumbfound confound, nonplus, bewildere, distract, mystify, perplex, *puzzle

Ana astound, flabbergast, amaze, astonish, *surprise: *confuse, muddle, addle, fuddle: disconcert, rattle, faze, discomfit (see EMBARRASS)

dumps dejection, gloom, blues, depression, melancholy, melancholia, *sadness

Ana despondency, forlornness, hopelessness, despair (see under DESPONDENT): doldrums, ennui, boredom, *tedium dumpy *stocky, thickset, thick, chunky, stubby, squat dunk vb *dip, immerse, souse, submerge, duck

Ana *soak, saturate, sop
dupe vb Dupe, gull, befool, trick, hoax, hoodwink, bamboozle mean to delude a person by underhand means or for one's own ends. Dupe suggests unwarniness or unsuspiciousness on the part of the person or persons deluded and the acceptance of what is false as true, what is counter-felt as genuine, or what is worthless as valuable <the public is easily duped by extravagant claims in advertising> <he was so soothed that he was constantly being duped into helping impostors> <William had too much sense to be duped—Macaulay> Gull implies great credulosity or a disposition that lends itself to one's being easily imposed upon or made a laughstock of <if I do not gull him into a mayword, and make him a common recreation, do not think I have wit enough to lie straight in my bed—Shak.>

<if the world will be gulled, let it be gulled—Burton> <gull who may, they will be gulled! They will not look nor think —Browning> Befool stresses the effect on the victim, that of being made a fool of in his own eyes or in those of others; it does not so strongly suggest a temperamental weakness in the victim as the preceding words, nor so clearly imply an intent to delude on the part of the agent, as most of the words that follow <confess themselves befooled by the candidate, his personable appearance, and his promises> <innocent philosophic critics, too easily befooled by words—Ellis> <pictures supplant one another so swiftly as to befool the eye with the illusion of contin-uiy—S. H. Adams> Trick implies the intent to delude on the part of the agent by means of a stratagem or ruse, by wiles, or by fraud; it suggests the deliberate intent to deceive, but it need not imply a base end. It may, for example, imply illusion as the end   It more often suggests deliberate misleading and the use of cunning or craft <pills are coated with sugar or chocolate in order to trick children into taking them> <he was tricked out of his savings by the promises of large returns on an investment> <the people felt that they had been tricked into approval of the project> <it enables some lawyers to trick us into bringing in the wrong verdict—Reilly> Hoax may imply indulgence in tricking as a sport or for the purpose of proving how gullible a person or persons can be when a skilful imposture or fabrication is presented to them; it more often suggests a fraud intended to deceive even the most skeptical and often, also, to work for one's own profit or personal advantage <after having been hoaxed for the past 40 years, British scientists have discovered that the jaw and teeth of the world-famous "Piltdown man" belong to a modern ape—Farmer's Weekly>  <did Mark Twain intend to hoax people by his Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, published without his name and as the work of one of her contemporaries?> Hoodwink connotes either a deliberate confusing intended to blind the mind of another to the truth, or, less often, self-delusion arising from one's inability to distinguish the false from the true <he will not be hoodwinked by sentimental platitudes into doing things that are against reason> <to hoodwink everybody by pretending to conform—Cabell> <since she'd hooodwinked your uncle, she thought she could pull the wool over my eyes, too—Kenneth Roberts> Bamboozle usually implies the use of such methods as cajolery, humbug, or illusion to dupe or confuse; the word is often used interchangeably with trick, hoax, or hoodwink, but it is less definite or fixed in its implications <bamboozled into a belief that he was a great man> <what Oriental tomfoolery is bamboozling you?—Newman>

Ana *deceive, beguile, delude, mislead, double-cross, betray: *cheat, cozen, defraud, overreach: outwit, baffle, circumvent (see FRUSTRATE)

duplicate n *reproduction, facsimile, copy, carbon copy, transcript, replica

Ana counterpart, *parallel, analogue

duplicity *deceit, dissimulation, cunning, guile

Ana double-dealing, chicanery, chicane, trickery, *deception, fraud: treacherousness or treachery, perfidiousness or perfidy, faithlessness (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHLESS)

Con straightforwardness, forthrightness (see corresponding adjectives at STRAIGHTFORWARD)

durable *lasting, perdurable, permanent, stable, perpetual

Ana enduring, abiding, persisting (see CONTINUE) duress *strong, stout, tenacious Con fragile, frail, feeble, *weak: *transient, transitory, fleeting, ephemeral, fugitive duress constraint, coercion, compulsion, violence, *force, restraint dusky dim, *dark, obscure, murky, gloomy duty 1 *obligation
Ana responsibility, accountability, amenability, answerability, liability (see corresponding adjectives at RESPONSIBLE)
2 office, *function, province
Ana concern, business, *affair
3 *task, assignment, job, stint, chore
Ana *work, business, employment, occupation, calling: *trade, craft, art, profession dwarf n Dwarf, pygmy, midget, manikin, homunculus, runt are comparable when they mean an individual and usually a person of diminutive size. Dwarf is the general term not only for a human being but for any animal or plant that is definitely below the normal size of its kind; often the term suggests stunted development. This [the fool's] value was trebled in the eyes of the king by the fact of his being also a dwarf and a cripple—Poe Pygmy originally was applied to one of a race of fabled dwarfs mentioned by Homer and others; now it is used especially of one of a people of small stature found in central Africa. In general application the term carries a stronger connotation of diminutiveness and a weaker suggestion of arrested development than dwarf; when used in reference to a person, it often implies relative tininess, sometimes in body but more often in intellect. (to him all the men I ever knew were pygmies. He was an intellectual giant—Byron) Midget stresses abnormal diminutiveness but, unlike dwarf, carries little suggestion of malformation or deformity; the term is applied usually to a tiny but otherwise more or less normally shaped person exhibited in a circus or employed in place of a child in theatrical performances (P. T. Barnum's famous midget, Tom Thumb) Manikin is often applied not only to a dwarf but to any human being who for one reason or another seems despicably small or weak (can it be fancied that Deity ever vindictively made in his image a manikin merely to madden it?—Poe) Often it suggests an animated doll (a bright-eyed little manikin, naked like all his people—Forestor) Homunculus usually suggests even greater diminutiveness and often greater perfection in form than midget; it is the specific term for an exceedingly small artificial human being such as was supposedly developed by Paracelsus, a famous Renaissance alchemist. Runt, usually a contemptuous designation, applies to a dwarf or undersized person, especially to one who is conspicuously puny or undeveloped (I always did admire a good, sizable, stout man. I hate a runt—McClure's Mag.) The term is also applied to an animal, especially a domestic animal, small of its kind; and it is used specifically of the undersized one of a litter (as of pigs).
dwell *reside, live, lodge, sojourn, stay, put up, stop dwelling abode, residence, domicile, home, house, *habitation
dwindle diminish, lessen, *decrease, reduce, abate Ana wane, ebb, *abate, subside: attenuate, extenuate, *thin: *moderate: disappear (see affirmative verb at APPEAR 1) dynamic live, *active, operative Ana potent, forceful, forcible, *powerful: *intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent: vitalizing, energizing, activating (see VITALIZE)

each adj every, *all each adv Each, apiece, severally, individually, respectively are comparable when they refer to every one of the many or several persons or things comprising a group. All imply distribution. Each and apiece usually connote equality in the amount or value of what is distributed unless the context indicates otherwise (he gave the five children a dollar apiece) (the students have a bedroom and study each) Severally stresses the apartness of each of the persons and things involved but at the same time often, especially in legal use, implies that each of them is favored, bound, guilty, or responsible in the same degree as the group as a whole; thus, to try a group of conspirators severally is to try them not jointly, or together, but one at a time and usually on the identical charge; to be bound jointly and severally is to be under obligation as a group and singly as individuals, damages being recoverable from all or from any member of the group. Individually, like severally, implies a distinction between each member of the group, but it goes further in not suggesting equality (as in responsibility, favor, or disfavor); thus, to try a group of conspirators individually is to try each one on a specific charge, usually on the assumption that they are not equally guilty; to greet each member of a visiting delegation individually is to greet him separately and personally. Respectively is used only when the persons or things involved in the distribution follow a given order and what is distributed goes to each in the same order (he gave John, James, and Edward ten dollars, five dollars, and three dollars respectively) (the suites of offices 101, 102, 103 are assigned respectively to the president, the treasurer, and the secretary of the company) eager, avid, keen, anxious, agog, athirst mean actuated by a strong and urgent desire or interest. Eager implies ardor and, often, enthusiasm; it frequently also connotes impatience (it is not a life for fiery and dominant natures, eager to conquer—Benson) Avid adds to the implication of greed or of undoubled desire (a too avid thirst for pleasure—E) (cultivated, excitabile, avid of new things—Buchan) (he was convivial, bawdy, robustly avid for pleasure—F. S. Fitzgerald) Keen suggests intensity of interest and quick responsiveness in action (boys in white flannels—all keen as mustard, and each occupied with his own game, and playing it to the best of his powers—Quiller-Couch) (Tories who are as keen on State interference with everything and everybody as the Socialists—Shaw) Anxious emphasizes fear lest one's desires be frustrated or one's hopes not realized; it often additionally connotes insistence or perseverance in making one's desires known (visibly anxious that his wife should be on easy terms with us all—Reppplier) (schoolmasters may be pathetically anxious to guide boys right, and to guard them from evil—Benson) Agog suggests being caught up in the excitement and bustle attending something interesting about to be begun or an event eagerly awaited (six precious souls, and all agog to dash through thick and thin—

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
early

\begin{itemize}
\item \textit{early} \\
\textit{restless, restive} appeared)\textit{the} \textit{or lack of delay} \textit{I called, and he} \textit{impatient, also, even more strongly, that of quickness or promptness} \textit{soon} on the other hand, when he asks a patient to come \textit{soon,} \textit{beginning of his office hours so that the patient may be} \textit{attended to} \textit{or shortly after the office hours begin; the expected or normal time) this year. Soon usually refers} \textit{or noticeably ahead of the others and leaves before the} \textit{Shelleyy} to accomplish the great end—\textit{must you go so} Wordsworthy \textit{expressions, and in the comparative and superlative de-} \textit{perceived very} \textit{betimes—Shak.y to be abed after midnight is to be up} \textit{concerning the subject} \textit{pains to inform himself} \textit{is set to begin or is regarded as beginning} \textit{<crocuses blos-} \textit{beforehandy} \textit{sometimes implies a time in advance of that set or expected} \textit{soone} \textit{early at a meeting and leaves} \textit{early comes slightly before (sometimes just at) the time set} \textit{absconder was apprehended} \textit{early} \textit{comes slightly before (sometimes just at) the time set for} \textit{beforehandy} \textit{always suggests a distinction between the sphere or globe} \textit{early} \textit{tires} \textit{anticipation or anticipatory measures \textit{to the abrupt announcement} . . . left everybody} \textit{... oog—Crf} \textit{A thirst implies yearning or longing more} \textit{vividly than the others; it seldom connotes readiness for} \textit{action \textit{that forever feel athirst for glory—Keats} \textit{one or two great souls athirst for pure aesthetic rapture—} Clive Belly} \textit{Ana} desiring, coveting, craving (see \textit{desire} vb): longing, yearning, hungering, thirsting (see \textit{long} vb): \textit{impatient, restless, restive} \textit{Ant} listless —\textit{Con} \textit{indifferent, unconcerned, incuri-} \\
\textit{Ant} listless —\textit{Con} \textit{indifferent, unconcerned, incuri-} \\
\textit{Ant} listless —\textit{Con} \textit{indifferent, unconcerned, incuri-} \\
\textit{Ant} listless —\textit{Con} \textit{indifferent, unconcerned, incuri-}
\item \textit{early} \textit{Early, soon, beforehand, betimes share the mean-} \\
\item \textit{early} \textit{Early, soon, beforehand, betimes share the mean-} \\
\item \textit{early} \textit{Early, soon, beforehand, betimes share the mean-} \end{itemize}

earth

\begin{itemize}
\item \textit{earth} \textit{Earth, world, universe, cosmos, macrocosm} are comparable when they mean the entire area or extent of space in which man thinks of himself and of his fellow men as living and acting. \textit{Earth} applies, however, only to part of what he knows by sight or by faith to exist; the term usually suggests a distinction between the sphere or globe called astronomically the earth, which he knows to be composed of land and water, and the bodies which he sees in the heavens \textit{this goodly frame, the earth—Shak.} \textit{land is part of Earth's surface which stands at a given time above sea level—Lord} It may imply a distinction from heaven and hell \textit{Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven—Mt 6:10} \textit{the infinite loftiness of Mary's nature, among the things of earth, and above the clamor of kings—Henry Adams} \textit{World is a far less definite term than earth. When applied to a physical entity, it may de-} \\
\item \textit{earth} \textit{Earth, world, universe, cosmos, macrocosm} are comparable when they mean the entire area or extent of space in which man thinks of himself and of his fellow men as living and acting. \textit{Earth} applies, however, only to part of what he knows by sight or by faith to exist; the term usually suggests a distinction between the sphere or globe called astronomically the earth, which he knows to be composed of land and water, and the bodies which he sees in the heavens \textit{this goodly frame, the earth—Shak.} \textit{land is part of Earth's surface which stands at a given time above sea level—Lord} It may imply a distinction from heaven and hell \textit{Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven—Mt 6:10} \textit{the infinite loftiness of Mary's nature, among the things of earth, and above the clamor of kings—Henry Adams} \textit{World is a far less definite term than earth. When applied to a physical entity, it may de-}
\item \textit{earth} \textit{Earth, world, universe, cosmos, macrocosm} are comparable when they mean the entire area or extent of space in which man thinks of himself and of his fellow men as living and acting. \textit{Earth} applies, however, only to part of what he knows by sight or by faith to exist; the term usually suggests a distinction between the sphere or globe called astronomically the earth, which he knows to be composed of land and water, and the bodies which he sees in the heavens \textit{this goodly frame, the earth—Shak.} \textit{land is part of Earth's surface which stands at a given time above sea level—Lord} It may imply a distinction from heaven and hell \textit{Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven—Mt 6:10} \textit{the infinite loftiness of Mary's nature, among the things of earth, and above the clamor of kings—Henry Adams} \textit{World is a far less definite term than earth. When applied to a physical entity, it may de-} verse is finite but that it is constantly expanding. A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

earthly, terrestrial, earthy, mundane, worldly, sublunary: earthly things as that system appears to the limited vision of the typical man or of the individual (from the universe as we see it both the Glory of God and the Glory of Man have departed—Krutich) he inhabited a different universe from that of common men—Huxley Cosmos, because of its opposition to chaos, carries a stronger implication of order and harmony in operation than universe, which it otherwise closely resembles in meaning (were it not for the indwelling reason the world would be a chaos and not a cosmos—Blackie) Macrocosm applies to the universe thought of as a great whole characterized by perfect organic unity exhibited elsewhere only in the small whole, the individual man or microcosm (the microcosm repeats the macrocosm—T. H. Huxley) should these ephemera [flying disks] exist in the macrocosm, it is likely . . . that they would be known to . . . observers of the atmosphere—Mauer.

earthly terrestrial, earthly, mundane, worldly, sublunary: earthly things as that system appears to the limited vision of the typical man or of the individual (from the universe as we see it both the Glory of God and the Glory of Man have departed—Krutich) he inhabited a different universe from that of common men—Huxley Cosmos, because of its opposition to chaos, carries a stronger implication of order and harmony in operation than universe, which it otherwise closely resembles in meaning (were it not for the indwelling reason the world would be a chaos and not a cosmos—Blackie) Macrocosm applies to the universe thought of as a great whole characterized by perfect organic unity exhibited elsewhere only in the small whole, the individual man or microcosm (the microcosm repeats the macrocosm—T. H. Huxley) should these ephemera [flying disks] exist in the macrocosm, it is likely . . . that they would be known to . . . observers of the atmosphere—Mauer.

easy adj 1 *comfortable, restful, cozy, snug

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
chiefly applies to something which comes, or moves, or works, or gains its ends seemingly without effort or at will; it therefore is often used in derogation implying lack of constraint or restraint, undue haste, dexterity rather than meticulousness, or fluency with shallowness (a writer's facile pen) (a woman's facile tears) (I am not concerned with ... offering any facile solution for so complex a problem—T. S. Eliot) (she was a prey to shoddy, facile emotions and moods, none of which had power to impel her to any action—Rose Macaulay) (Chrétién was a facile narrator, with little sense of the significance that might be given to the stories—H. O. Taylor) (Simple stresses ease in apprehending or understanding; it implies freedom from complication, intricacy, elaboration, or other involvements which render a thing difficult to see through (problems in arithmetic too simple to hold the interest of pupils of that age) (true poetry, however simple it may appear on the surface, accumulates meaning every time it is read—Day Lewis) (the English mother or the English nurse has a simpler job. She must teach her charge to start as few fights as possible and that there are rules—Mead) (Light implies an opposition to heavy in nearly all of its senses, but in the one here considered it suggests freedom from burdensomeness or from exactingness that make undue or difficult demands on one (a light task) (his work is very light) (one generation's light reading often becomes another's heavy text—J. D. Hart) (light punishment) Effortless, though it carries many of the connotations characteristic of facile, suggests more the appearance of ease than actual absence of effort; often it implies mastery, skill, or artistry, and the attainment of such perfection that the movements or techniques seem to involve no strain (the effortless dancing of a Pavlova) (that effortless grace with which only a true poet can endow his work—M. O. Smith) (a natural, effortless style) (the swallowsw ... glided in an effortless way through the busy air—Jefferies) Smooth suggests an absence of, or the removal of, all difficulties or obstacles that makes a course or a career easy to follow or to pursue (the car sped along over the smooth road) (floated over the expanse within, which was smooth as a young girl's brow—Melville) (making the lives of the needy a little more smooth—Shields)

Ant hard —Con difficult, arduous (see HARD); exacting, onerous, burdensome, oppressive eat, swallow, ingest, devour, consume mean to take food into the stomach through the mouth and throat. Eat, the common and ordinary term, implies the process of chewing as well as of taking into the stomach and therefore distinguishes itself from swallow, which implies merely the passing from the mouth through the throat to the stomach. Eat is often used, however, without any clear reference to chewing or swallowing (cattle do not eat meat) (the worms have eaten into the timber) and, especially in extended use, without implying anything but a slow, gradual process that is comparable to the biting or gnawing that precedes eating in that it wastes or wears away the substance the waves have eaten a channel through the rocks) (a knife eaten by rust) (the acid eats into the metal) In many idiomatic expressions the literal phrasing recalls the implications of the original meaning but nothing more (eat one's heart out (grieve in silence) (eat one's words (take back what one has said)) Swallow basically implies the second part of the eating process (he has difficulty in swallowing) (the tablets are to be swallowed without chewing) More often it is used of hurried eating without proper mastication of food (he swallowed his breakfast and rushed for the train) In extended use it implies a seizing and taking in or a being seized and taken in (as by engulfment, engrossment, or suppression) (the ship was swallowed up by the sea) (swallow one's resentment) Ingest is a physiological term that implies a taking in through the mouth and throat into the stomach and is commonly opposed to egest (does a man dine well because he ingests the requisite number of calories?—Lippmann) Devour throws the emphasis on greediness; it suggests intense hunger or gluttony in man and voracity in a wild animal (the tramp rapidly devoured the food that was set before him) (they saw the tiger rushing on them as if it would devour them) In extended use devour applies to something (as fire or disease) which destroys or wastes completely (the flames devoured the houses one by one) (he that is in the city, famine and pestilence shall devour him—Ezek 7:15) or to something which preys upon one as insistently as a beast or bird of prey (devoured by fear) Sometimes, however, it approaches swallow in its reference to something which engrosses the mind, but it heightens the implications of avidity and zest in taking in (devoured all the books on aviation that he could get) (devoured the scene before him) Consume (see also WASTE, MONOPOLIZE) usually means little more than eat and drink, for which it serves as a term including both or either (whoever came late had to start with the course which the captain was then ... consuming—Heiser) (after taking a piece of asparagus in her hand, she was deeply mortified at seeing her hostess consume the vegetable with the aid of a knife and fork—Shaw) Very often, however, it adds to eat the implications of using up (my stock of provisions had been so long consumed that I had forgotten the flavor of pulse and maize and pumpkins and purple and sweet potatoes—Hudson)

Analogous words: Ana

Antonyms: Ant

Contrasted words: Con

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
outside writers or of the articles they write, and sometimes by writing editorials or leaders; to edit a work of reference (as a dictionary or encyclopedia) means to plan and execute a new work or one of its later editions, or, more often, to supervise the work of subordinates charged with the execution of those plans. Because the details of editing vary according to the nature of the work edited, the verb is often used narrowly with a stress on one of these implications; thus, to edit often currently implies the cutting out of material for the sake of improvement or to meet limitations of space but often for other reasons that concern the person or the institution involved (edit a classic for high school use) Compile in reference to literary material stresses a gathering together of material, whether written by oneself or obtained from varied sources, to form a collection, an anthology, or a work of reference; often, in addition, it implies the performance of the tasks of an editor, for it suggests need of skill in arrangement, in interpretation, and in dealing with textual problems (Palgrave compiled in the first volume of the Golden Treasury one of the best anthologies of English poetry) (the French Academy . . . took forty years to compile their Dictionary—William Adams Revised (see also correct) implies a review of an earlier draft or edition to see where it can be improved and the actual work of improving (twenty years after Dr. Smith's death his standard work on this subject was revised and brought up-to-date by Dr. Jones) The society finally decided to revise its bylaws Redact is used mostly by literary and historical scholars, especially in its derivative forms redaction and redactor, to imply the presentation of something in form for use or for publication. It may imply careful framing of or giving expression to some material (the redaction of this great work . . . was ultimately confided to Diderot—Jefferies) or even, especially in the form redactor, the giving of a new form to an old work (as by revision, rearrangement, or addition) (the visit of Julius Caesar to Egypt in the Pharsalia is seized upon by its [medieval] redactor to introduce . . . the liaison between Caesar and Cleopatra—Loweis) Whatever delicacy and poignancy the tale has in Ovid's version eludes the Elizabethan redactor—PMLA Rewritten implies a putting into a form suitable for publication of a set of facts or of material gathered by another (as a reporter). The verb often occurs in this sense but is not so common as the noun rewrite designating an article (made a complete rewrite of his earlier draft) (it is this journalist's function to rewrite stories sent in by local representatives in nearby towns) (an old song which Burns has simply rewritten—Kilby) The reporter at the scene of the catastrophe telephoned his story to a rewrite man in his editorial office Adapt (for fuller treatment see adapt) implies a free alteration of the work of someone else to make it suitable for other readers or for another medium (the play was adapted from a French farce) (the book was adapted with success for the stage—J. D. Hart) (the tunes he adapted freely from French vaudeville—Edward Sackville-West & Desmond Shawe-Taylor) Ana *make, fabricate, fashion, form edition, impression, reprinting, printing, reissue are capable of being distinguished when used to designate the total number of copies of the same work printed during a stretch of time. Edition, as now used by publishers and to some extent by printers, applies to all the books and also to all the newspapers printed from the same type or plates made from it. Terms such as special edition, limited edition, and anniversary edition are sometimes used to indicate the particular form or format in which a fixed text is presented; but in United States copyright law a different edition must incorporate some material addition to or revision of the original matter. Hence, when the first edition gives way to the second edition, the second edition to the third edition, and so on, a definite change in content is implied. The work may have been revised in whole or in part, whether by bringing it up-to-date or by varying it (this is especially true of newspapers) to suit a particular clientele, but in all cases there must have been changes involving an entire or partial resetting of type before a work can be said to go into a new edition (the 14th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica) You will find it in the city edition of the New York Times for January 17th Impression applies to all of the books (also prints or engravings) run off by the press at one time. The standing type or plates are then stored until a later impression (often called a reprinting) is needed. It is now the general practice among publishers to speak of the aggregate number of copies of a new book run off from the press in a large number and at one time (or, in technical language, printed in a continuous run from a single makeready) as an impression rather than an edition, thereby respecting the latter word's implication of substantial changes in content (a work which went through several impressions) Printing is often used as practically equivalent to impression or reprinting but it is sometimes preferred as implying some minor corrections (the book is already in its tenth printing) Reissue is used to denote a republication, usually after some time, of a work which is out of print. The reissue may differ in price from the original edition or impression owing to changes in paper or in binding, and it may differ in further ways requiring a resetting of type in whole or in part. Educate train, discipline, school, *teach, instruct educe, evoke, elicit, extract, extort mean to bring or draw out what is hidden, latent, or reserved. Educe usually implies the development and outward manifestation of something potential or latent (get, with rafts of mind and soul of a genuine poet . . . could not fully educe and enjoy them—Arnold) Seem to be able to educe from common sense a more or less clear reply to the questions raised—Sidgwick Evoke basically suggests the voice or the words of a magician compelling spirits to leave the other world or the dead to arise from their graves (evoke a demon) (evoke the ghost of his father) In current use the term ordinarily implies the operation of a powerful agency that produces an effect instantly or that serves as a stimulus in arousing an emotion, a passion, or an interest (the delight which growing flowers and blossoming trees evoke—Binyon) (it is useless to obtrude moral ideas [upon children] at an age at which they can evoke no response—Russell) (all harmonies . . . are latent in the complex mechanism of an organ, but a master's hand is necessary to evoke them—Loweis) Elicit usually implies pains, trouble, or skill in drawing something forth or out; it often implies resistance either in the person or thing that is the object of effort (elicit important information from a witness by cross-examination) (it is the trouble we take over our children that elicits the stronger forms of parental affection—Russell) Extract implies the action of a force (as pressure or suction) (extract the juice of an orange) (extract a tooth) (to extract all the dramatic value possible from the situation—T. S. Eliot) (he had not that faculty of extracting the essence from a heap of statements—Dickens) (to make the comparison at all was . . . to return to it often, to brood upon it, to extract from it the last drags of its interest—Henry James. Extort implies a wringing especially from one who is reluctant or resisting (extract money from one's relatives) (extort a promise) (she did at last extort from her father an acknowledgment that the horses were engaged—Austen) (whose income is ample enough to extort obsequiously from the vulgar of all ranks—Bennett).

Country (a colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.

1 Effect, result, consequence, upshot, aftereffect, aftermath, sequel, issue, outcome, event are comparable in signifying something, usually a condition, situation, or occurrence, ascribable to a cause or combination of causes. Effect is the correlative of the word cause and in general use implies something (as a bodily or social condition or a state of mind) necessarily and directly following upon or occurring by reason of a cause (the effect of the medicine was an intermittent pilory) (tanning is the effect of exposure to sunlight) (low mortality, the effect of excellent social services available in every village—Petersen) Result, close to effect in meaning, implies a direct relationship with an antecedent action or condition, usually suggests an effect that terminates the operation of a cause, and applies more commonly than effect to tangible objects (his limb was the result of an automobile accident) (the subsiding flood or surface waters cause mineral deposits and the result is a mound—Duncan-Kemp) Consequence may suggest a direct but looser or more remote connection with a cause than either effect or result, sometimes implying an adverse or calamitous effect and often suggesting a chain of intermediate causes or a complexity of effect (one of the consequences of his ill-advised conduct was a loss of prestige) (his refined taste is the consequence of education and habit—Rowlands) Upshot often implies a climax or conclusion in a series of consequent occurrences or the most conclusive point of a single complex gradual consequence (we spent the time swimming at Glenelg and dancing at the Palais Royal in the city. The upshot was that, before we left . . . we were engaged—Ingamells) (they won the battle, and the upshot was a short-lived bourgeois republic—Lewis & Maude) (the upshot of the whole matter was that there was no wedding—Colom) Aftereffect and aftermath both usually designate secondary rather than direct or immediate effects. Aftereffect besides designating a secondary effect sometimes suggests a side effect but more generally implies an effect ascribable to a previous effect that has become a cause (the aftereffects of an atomic-bomb explosion—Current Biog.) (although the pioneer effort had reached a dead end, its aftereffects were all too apparent—Kohler) (to the left of the highway the blackened appearance is the aftereffect of a fire that has recently swept across the flat—G. R. Stewart) Aftermath often suggests a more complex effect or generalized condition than aftereffect and usually carries the notion of belated consequences that appear after the effects, especially disastrous effects, seem to have passed (the serious dislocations in the world as an aftermath of war—U. S. Code) (the aftermath of the epidemic in Memphis was worse than the dismal days of ReconSTRUCTION—Amer. Guide Series: Tenn.) Sequel usually signifies a result that follows after an interval (spinal curvature . . . may be a symptom or a sequel to many different diseases—Fishbein) (she lay rigid experiencing the sequel to the pain, an ideal terror—Stafford) Issue adds to result the implication of exit or escape (as from difficulties); it therefore usually designates a result that is a solution or a resolution (a contest to which the issue is still the greatest and gravest of all, life or death—A. C. Ward) (the war was by then obviously proceeding towards a successful issue—F. M. Ford) Outcome, though often interchangeable with result or issue, may put less stress on the notion of finality than does issue (the outcome of the presidential election) (the enduring organisms are now the outcome of evolution—Whitehead) (one outcome of this report was the formation of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare—Current Biog.) Event, which is both uncommon and somewhat archaic in this relation, usually carries the notion of an unpredictable or unforeseeable outcome and comes very close to the related eventuality in its implication of a possible or contingent effect or result (the happiness of Rome appeared to hang on the event of a race—Gibbon) (the employer himself at Edinburgh till the event of the conflict between the court and the Whigs was no longer doubtful—Macaulay) (the calm assumption that I should live long enough to carry out my extensive plan at leisure . . . has in the event been justified—Ellis) Ant cause—Con determinant, antecedent reason, occasion (see cause): basis, ground, *base, foundation, groundwork

2 in plural form effects *possessions, belongings, means, resources, assets effect vb I accomplish, achieve, *perform, execute, discharge, fulfill (Amer) *reach, attain, achieve, compass, gain: finish, complete, conclude, end, terminate, *close: implement, *enforce: *realize, actualize

2 *affect effective, effectual, efficient, efficacious all mean producing or capable of producing a result or results, but they are not freely interchangeable in idiomatic use. Effective emphasizes the actual production of an effect or the power to produce a given effect (effective thinking) (an effective speaker) (an effective rebuke) (the law becomes effective on the 1st of next month) (research chemists . . . are actively investigating to learn why particular materials are effective and to make them more so—Morrison) (persons who will do nothing unless they get something out of it for themselves are often highly effective persons of action—Shaw) Effectual suggests the accomplishment of a desired result or the fulfillment of a purpose or intention, so that the term frequently becomes synonymous with decisive or final and looks backward after the event (an effectual measure) (an effectual refutation) (his recommendation was effectual, and I was . . . chosen—Gibbon) (an appeal to the emotions is little likely to be effectual before lunch—Maugham) Efficient may apply to what is actively operative and producing a result and then comes close to operant in meaning (it should be obvious that it is the conditions producing the end effects which must be regarded as the efficient causes of them—Ashley Montagu) More often it suggests an acting or a capacity or potential for action or use in such a manner as to minimize the loss or waste of energy in effecting, producing, or functioning (an efficient apparatus) (a setup designed for the efficient production of small parts) (a strong tendency to break up cumbersome estates into small, efficient farms—Nevens

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
The document appears to be a page from a dictionary or a glossary, containing definitions and synonyms for various words. It includes entries for words like "effervescent," "volatile," "trouble," "efficient," "womanish," "jolly," and others. The text is structured in a way that explains the meanings and usage of these words, often contrasting them with their antonyms. The page also includes sections for "antonyms" and "contrasted words," indicating a focus on word relationships and synonyms. The layout and formatting suggest it is part of a larger dictionary resource, providing comprehensive information for each term listed.
a student from college} {a curse . . . in his blood . . . which no life of purity could expel—Meredith} {Octavian . . . forbade the practice of certain eastern cults, and expelled from Rome Greek and Asiatic magicians—Buchan} Oust implies a removal or dispossession by the power of the law or, in more general use, by the exercise of force or by the compulsion of necessity {in America . . . a new set of officials oust the old ones whenever the Opposition ousts the Government—Shaw} {insidious attempts to disparage the findings of Reason, or to oust it from its proper province—Inge} Evict means to turn out (as from house or home or one’s place of business) by legal or equally effective process, commonly for non-payment of rent {after not paying their rent for six months, they were evicted by the sheriff} {the revolutionary artists . . . in the first flush of victory . . . literally evicted the members and officers of the Imperial Academy—Read} {he volunteered to become foster father to a 400-pot family [of orchids] temporarily evicted from a nearby greenhouse—JAMA} Dismiss (see also DISMISS) stresses a getting rid of something such as a legal case by rejecting a claim or prayer and refusing it further consideration {this court reversed the judgement given in favor of the defendant, and remanded the case with directions to dismiss it—Taney} or a fear, a grudge, or a hatred by ejecting it from the mind or thoughts {I declare to you . . . that I have long dismissed it from my mind—Dickens} or an unwelcome subject, duty, or prospect by taking adequate measures to ensure its no longer annoying or confronting one {the Judge was sharply angry . . . because he found himself unable to dismiss the whole thing by packing the child off—Deland} AnA *exclude, eliminate, shut out, rule out, disbar: *discard, cast, shed: reject, repudiate, spurn (see DECLINE) Ant admit (sense 1) elaborate vb *unfold, evolve, develop, perfect AnA *expand, amplify, dilate: enlarge, augment (see INCREASE) élan *vigor, vim, spirit, dash, esprit, verve, punch, drive elapse *pass, pass away, expire AnA slip, *slide, glide: end, terminate (see CLOSE) elastic adj 1 Elastic, resilient, springy, flexible, supple are comparable when they mean able to endure strain (as extension, compression, twisting, or bending) without being permanently affected or injured. Elastic and resilient are both general and scientific terms; the scientific senses are later and are in part derived from the earlier meanings. Elastic in nontechnical use is applied chiefly to substances or materials that are easy to stretch or expand and that quickly recover their shape or size when the pressure is removed {a rubber band is elastic} {elastic cord for hats} {a toy balloon is an elastic bag which can be blown up greatly beyond its original size} In scientific use elastic is applicable to a solid that may be changed in volume, when in the course of the deformation of such a solid or fluid forces come into play which tend to make it recover its original volume or shape once the deforming force or forces are removed. The term in such use describes a property (elasticity) which a substance possesses up to the point (the elastic limit) beyond which it cannot be deformed without permanent injury {a body . . . is elastic when, and only when, it tends to recover its initial condition when the distorting force is removed . . . Steel, rubber, air . . . are more or less elastic—Foley} Resilient in nontechnical use is applicable to whatever springs back into place or into shape especially after compression; thus, rising bread dough is said to be resilient because it quickly recovers from a deforming pressure by the hand; a tree’s branch may be described as resilient when it snaps back into its former position once a pull is released. Scientifically, resilient is not the equivalent of elastic, but it may be used as its counterpart; elastic stresses the capacity for deformation without permanent injury, resilient the capacity for recovering shape or position after strain or pressure has been removed; thus, when an elastic substance is stretched or compressed, it shows itself resilient: as arteries gradually become less elastic with age, to the same extent they become less resilient. Springy is a nontechnical term that carries the meanings and suggestions of both elastic and resilient and stresses at once the ease with which a thing yields to pressure or strain and the quickness of its return {walk on springy turf} {firm, springy muscles} {a laughing schoolboy . . . riding the springy branches of an elm—Keats} Flexible is applicable to whatever can be bent or turned without breaking; the term may or may not imply resiliency, or quick recovery of shape {lead pipe is flexible and may be bent into shape} {a flexible young tree often endures a heavy windstorm better than a rigid, fully developed one} {flexible and gracious are the willows—Bingham} {Supple} to things which are, in general, not as solid or firm in structure {I am a suppler person—Dasch} which may be described as flexible: it also implies ease in bending, twisting, or folding or flexing, together with resistance to accompanying injury (as from breaking, cracking, or splitting) {supple joints and muscles} {a supple leather} {mere manual labor stiffens the limbs, gymnastic exercises render them supple—Jefferies} In extended use these words often carry the implications of their literal senses. Elastic stresses ease in stretching or expanding beyond the normal or appointed limits {an elastic conscience} {some principles there must be, however elastic—Buchan} {an elastic term} Resilient implies a tendency to rebound or recover quickly (as in health or spirits) especially after subjection to stress or strain {see ELASTIC 2} {a resilient constitution} Springy, which is less common in extended use, may suggest youth, freshness, or buoyancy {a springy step} Flexible implies an adaptable or accommodating quality or, when applied to persons, pliancy or tractability {a flexible scheme} {a flexible arrangement} {his mind became more flexible with age—Brothers} Supple, in its extended use, is applied chiefly to persons or their utterances. Sometimes it suggests little more than flexibility; at other times it implies obsequiousness or complaisance or a show of these with what is actually astute mastery of a situation {in . . . Bismarck, the supple spirit is hidden under an external directness and rough assertion—Belloc} AnA pliable,pliant, ductile, plastic, malleable: limber, lithe, supple Ant rigid—Con *stiff, inflexible, tense

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
the day is a perpetual morning—Thoreau

Expansive

implies exaltation of spirit that tends to make a person unusually genial, communicative, or sociable. <she had an expansive temperament, a brilliant personality, a widely sympathetic disposition, troops of friends—Ellis> <in an expansive mood and not so very sober moment, she had told Tod about her adventure—Sayers> <while not expansive toward visitors, she received them with courtesy—Raymond Weeds>

Resilient

usually implies a return to normal good spirits, which may or may not be high spirits. <he was as resilient as ever, one day utterly exhausted, and the next day ready for fresh labors> <evidently her resilient strength was going; she could no longer react normally to the refreshment of food—Ellis> <already the shock and horror of it was fading from her resilient mind—Ruth Park>

Buoyant

implies such lightness or vivacity of heart or spirits as is either incapable of depression or that readily shakes it off. <no such material burden could depress that buoyant-hearted young gentleman for many hours to together—George Eliot> <his buoyant spirits were continually breaking out in troublesome frolics—Prescott>

Volatile

implies diametrical opposition to all that is serious, sedate, or settled; it therefore suggests lightness, levity, or excessive buoyancy of spirits and often flightiness or instability. <as giddy and volatile as ever—Swift> <he seemed to them so volatile and unstable. He was an enigma to which they never secured the key—Ellis>

Effervescent

implies liveliness, often boisterousness of spirits; it often suggests the effect of release after restraint and even more than buoyant implies the impossibility of suppression so long as the mood or temper lasts. <an effervescent sort of chap with an enthusiasm that takes off like a rocket—Joseph>

Ana

*sprightly, high-spirited, mettlesome: *lively, vivacious, sprightly, animated, gay

Ant depressed —Con dejected, gloomy, melancholy, sad, blue (see corresponding nouns at SADNESS): flaccid, *limp

efflorescent room, berth, play, leeway, margin, clearance elderly old, *aged, supranunnated

Ant youthful elect adj

picked, *select, exclusive

Ana *choice, exquisite, rare: selected, preferred, chosen, singled out (see CHOOSE): redeemed, saved, delivered (see RESCUE vb)

Ant reprobate —Con rejected, repudiated, spurned, refused (see DECLINE vb): scorned, disdained (see DESPISE): doomed, damned (see SENTENCE vb)

elect vb I select, pick, prefer, single, opt, *choose, cull

Ana *decide, determine, settle: resolve: conclude, judge (see INFER): *receive, accept, admit, take

Ant abjure —Con reject, spurn, repudiate, refuse, *decline: dismiss, *eject, oust, expel

2 *designate, name, nominate, appoint election selection, option, *choice, preference, alternative

Ana deciding or decision, determining or determination, settling or settlement (see corresponding verbs at DECIDE)

electrify *thrill, enthuse

Ana galvanize, excite, stimulate, quicken, *provoke: *stir, rouse, arouse, rally elemmosnary *charitable, benevolent, humane, humanitarian, philanthropic, altruistic elegance, grace, dignity are comparable only when they denote an impressive beauty of form, appearance, or behavior. Elegance is used in reference to persons chiefly when their grooming, their clothes, and the way they wear them are specifically considered; it then often implies fashionableness and good taste, but it stresses perfection of detail and exquisiteness or, sometimes, overexquisiteness (as in materials, lines, and ornamentation) <the elegance in dress of a Beau Brummell>

When used in reference to such things as the furnishings of a home, the details of a dinner, or a literary style, the term also implies the perfection and propriety in detail that indicate excellence of taste, a nice selective instinct, and often a restrained luxury

Grace is more commonly applied to what is inward and native than to what is outward and acquired, especially when used in reference to persons; it always suggests a quality or a harmonious combination of qualities that gives aesthetic pleasure through a natural or simple beauty such as is shown in suppleness or rhythm of movement, in clean-flowing lines or contours, or in spontaneity and felicitousness of manner, mood, expression, or style.  <the effect upon the observer of this exquisite little edifice . . . was of an unparagoned lightness and grace—Mackenzie>

She took the congratulations of her rivals and of the rest of the company with the simplicity that was her crowning grace—Wharton>

Dignity applies to what compels respect and honor. The term often suggests stateliness, majesty, and elevation of character or style as the compelling cause <the qualifications which frequently invest the facade of a prison with far more dignity than is found in the facade of a palace double its size—Hardy> <there was a dignity in his Client, an impressiveness in his speech, that silenced remonstrating Reason—Meredith>

Those who are just beginning to appreciate the idea of lending greater dignity to the worship of Almighty God—Mackenzie>

Very frequently in modern use the term suggests the compulsion of intrinsic worth or merit apart from any superficial characteristics that give it external beauty <the dignity of work> <the dignity of motherhood> <it matters not how trivial the occupation, if the man or woman be wholly given to it, there will be a natural compelling dignity in the figure—Binyon>

Ana beautiful or beauty, handsomeness, comeliness (see corresponding adjectives at BEAUTIFUL): fastidiousness, niceness or nicety, daintiness (see corresponding adjectives at NICE): perfection, *excellence: *taste (sense 2)

elegant adj exquisite, *choice, recherché, rare, dainty, delicate element, component, constituent, ingredient, factor are comparable when they mean one of the parts, substances, or principles which make up a compound or complex thing. Element is, except in its specific sense in science, the most widely applicable of these terms, being referable both to material and immaterial and to tangible and intangible things <the native and foreign elements in English> <words are the elements of a sentence> <the basic element of his character> <his life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world "This was a man!"—Shak.>

Always in its scientific sense, often in its general sense, the term implies irreducible simplicity or, if applied to a substance, incapacity for separation into simpler substances <gold, silver, carbon, lead are among the chemical elements, or...> ultimate building units of matter} <analyze the elements of a situation} <another element common to all novels is characterization—Jacoby} Component and constituent are often used interchangeably for any of the substances (whether elements or compounds) which enter into the makeup of a mixed thing or for any of the principles or qualities which comprise an intangible composite. Component, however, stresses the separate identity or distinguishable character of the substance; constituent stresses its essential and formative character <springs, gears, levers, pivots, and other components of a watch mechanism} <hydrogen and oxygen are the constituents of water} <the components of the typical novel are its plot, its characters, and its setting} <the components of knowledge can never be harmonized until all the relevant facts are in—De Voto} <break a ray of light into the colors which are its constituents} <the constituents of a perfume} Ingredient applies basically to any of the substances or materials which when combined form a particular mixture (as a drink, a medicine, a food, an alloy, or an amalgam} <the ingredients of a cocktail} <iron and carbon are the ingredients of steel} The term, however, may be extended to any component or constituent that can be thought of as added or as left out} <in this transaction every ingredient of a complete and legitimate contract is to be found—John Marshall} <two very necessary ingredients of the scientific process are curiosity and lack of haste—Sears} Factor is somewhat remotely synonymous with the foregoing words. The term is applicable to a constituent, element, or component only when the latter exerts an effectuating force enabling the whole of which it is a part to perform a certain kind of work, to produce a specific and definite result, or to move or trend in a particular direction <God is not one of the factors for which science has to account—Inge} <various factors entered the inception of the American enterprise—Ellis} <the word vitamins was coined to designate these essential food factors—Morison}

elemental

* principle, fundamental: *part, portion, member:
* item, detail, particular

elementary

* ultimate, categorical, absolute: *primary, prime, primordial elementary, elemental are often confused. Something is elementary which pertains to rudiments or beginnings; something is elemental which pertains to the elements, especially to the ultimate and basic constituents or forces <an elementary treatise} <an elementary knowledge of physics} <an elementary virtue} <an elementary school} <the elemental sounds of language} <an elemental substance} <they . . . busied themselves with the elemental, enduring things: sex, fatherhood, work—Rose Macaulay

ant

* advanced

elephantine

* huge, vast, immense, enormous, mammoth, giant, gigantic, gigantean, colossal, gargantuan, Herculean, cyclopean, titanic, Brobdignagian

elate

* lift, raise, rear, hoist, heave, boost

elicit

* evoke, *educes, extract, extort

eliminate

* rule out, *exclude, debar, blacklist, disbar, suspend, shut out

elite

* society, *aristocracy, nobility, gentry, county

ant

* race

ant

* wing, extension, *annex

elongate

* lengthen, *extend, prolong, protract

ant

* abbreviate, shorten —Con abridge, curtail, re-trench (see shorten) shrink, compress, *contract

eloquent

* articulate, voluble, *vocal, fluent, glib

ant

* impassioned, passionate, fervid, perfervid, ardent, fervent: expressing, voicing, venting, uttering (see express vb) forceful, forcible, potent, *powerful

ant

* expressive, significant, meaningful, pregnant, sententious

ant

* reveal, disclosing, telling, betraying (see reveal) impressive, *moving, poignant, touching, affecting

elucidate

* interpret, construe, expound, *explain, explicate

ant

* illustrate, *exemplify: demonstrate, *prove

elude

* escape, evade, avoid, shun, eschew

ant

* thwart, foil, trick, trail, tag, tail

emanate

* issue, proceed, *spring, rise, originate, derive, flow, stem

ant

* emerge, loom, *appear: *begin, commence, start, initiate

emancipate

* manumit, enfranchise, *free, liberate, release, deliver, discharge

emasculate

* sterilize, castrate, spay, alter, mutilate, geld, cauponize

ant

* enervate, unman, *unnerve

embarrass

* touchy, perturbed, chagrined, discomfited, disconcerted, ritual, faze mean to balk by confusing or confusing, but each word is capable of expressing precise and distinctive shades of meaning. Embarrass characteristically implies some influence which impedes freedom of thought, speech, or action and may be used with reference not only to persons but also to the things they plan or desire to do  When said of persons it commonly implies and often stresses resulting uneasiness or constraint <he had, he knew, a sort of charm—it embarrassed him even to admit it—Mary Austin> I was upset . . . and embarrassed by the crude and childish manner in which the townspeople were reduced to caricatures—J. M. Brown> Disconcert in this sense typically retains some of its basic denotation of to put to rout; in such use it implies opposition and the competence with which one opponent routs the other and crushes his self-esteem or self-complacency <an answer that completely disconcerted the brash young man> or throws him into confusion <Bradley's polemical irony and his obvious zest in using it, his habit of disconcerting an opponent with a sudden profession of ignorance, of inability to understand, or of incapacity for abstruse thought—T. S. Eliot> <the Prime Minister began badly. Disconcerted by Labor heckling from the front bench opposite, Eden lost his usual urbanity—Time> or, sometimes, thwarts his wishes, his hopes, or his plans (thieves disconcerted by a wakeful dog) <he practiced the Socratic method . . . and earned among generations of discomfited students the designation Stinker Taussig—Lovett> At times discomfited is used with much weakened force and then loses its suggestion of active opponency and implies no more than to make uncomfortable or embarrass (it is discomfiting to recall the high hopes with which the states that had joined hands to defeat Fascism founded the United Nations—Sat. Review> he drew discomfited chuckles from them in response to his garish laughter—Straight>) (she may heckle the dealer, add a running commentary to the demonstrations, or just assume a discomfiting smugness—Fortune> Abash presupposes self-confidence or self-possession and implies a usually sudden check to that mood by some influence that awakens shyness or a conviction of error or inferiority or, sometimes, of shame (a man whom no denial, no scorn could abash—Fielding> abashed by the base motives she found herself attributing to Charlotte—Wharton> Disconcert, like embarrass, may be used in reference to actions and plans, but it is more frequently referred to persons. In either case it implies an upsetting or derangement; in the latter it suggests temporary loss of equanimity or of assurance (when she saw him there came that flicker of fun into her eyes that was so disconcerting to Mr. Ezra—Deland> Rattle more than disconcert stresses the emotional agitation accompanying the upset and implies a more complete disorganization of one's mental processes (the jeering rattled the team and caused them to play badly) (rattled by hypothetical eyes spying on her—Stafford> Faze is found chiefly in negative expressions, where it comes close to disconcert but sometimes carries the implications of abash and rattle (neither rebuffs nor threatens faze him in the least) (it hit Marciano flush on the right side of the jaw, but it didn't seem to faze him a bit—Liebling>

Ana *discompose, disturb, perturb, fluster, flurry: be-wilder, nonplus, perplex (see PUZZLE): trouble, distress: vex, *annoy, bother, irk: impede, obstruct, block, *hinder: hamper, fetter, shackle, hog-tie Ant relieve: facilitate embellish beautiful, deck, bedeck, garnish, *adorn, decorate, ornament

Ana enhance, heighten, *intensify: apparel, array (see CLOTHE) Con denude, *strip, bare, divest embers *ash, cinders, clinkers emblem attribute, *symbol, type Ana device, motif, design, *figure, pattern: *sign, mark, token, badge embodiment beautiful, deck, bedeck, garnish, *adorn, decorate, ornament

Ana enhance, heighten, *intensify: apparel, array (see CLOTHE)

emphasize, stress, accent, accentuation denote exerted force by which one thing stands out conspicuously among other things; they also often designate the effect produced or the means used in gaining this effect. Emphasis implies effort to bring out what is significant or important (he puts the emphasis on discipline in his teaching) (an effective orator knows how to be sparing in his use of emphasis) Sometimes it also suggests vigor or intensity of feeling (anyone, however ignorant, can feel the sustained dignity of the sculptor's work, which is asserted with all the emphasis he could put into it—Henry Adams> Stress, though often used interchangeably with emphasis, is distinguishable from it both in some of its implications and in its association with particular arts, where it has acquired specific meanings. It rarely loses entirely its original implication of weight that causes pressure or strain, though this is often merely suggested (I wouldn't lay too much stress on what you have been telling me," I observed quietly—Conrad> At times stress strongly implies urgency or insistency (Jane secretly approved his discernment. But all she said was, with her cool lack of stress, "It's not so bad"—Robert Louis Macaulay> In phonetics and prosody stress is the general term referring to the prominence given to certain syllables by force of utterance. It may also be used of the natural emphasis on certain words in a sentence. It may even suggest degree of emphasis (there were volumes of innuendo in the way the “eventually” was spaced, and each syllable given its due stress—Wharton) Accent implies contrast for the sake of effect, very frequently an aesthetic effect. Accent carries no connotation of weight, but it strongly suggests relief in both senses, that of relieving monotony and that of bringing out sharply or into relief (the room was quiet and neutral in coloring, but it was given accent by bowls of bright flowers) (sun and sea, the heady fragrance of the plane trees, the tropical accent of palms—Cassidy) In prosody accent is the form of stress characteristic of English verse, akin to the beat in music and involving force in utterance. In English phonetics accent and stress are commonly used interchangeably. Since force of utterance (stress) is the principal means by which a syllable, a word, or a group of words is accentuated or brought into sharp contrast with the others, one may speak of syllabic accent or stress, or word accent or stress. Accentuation, though close to accent (except in technical senses), often goes beyond it in its emphasis on increased conspicuousness; it also often suggests disagreeableness in the contrast (the essential defect of their polity . . . . its excessive accentuation of the corporate aspect of life—Dickinson)

employ vb use, utilize, apply, avail

Ana practice, exercise, drill; engross, absorb, * monopolize; *choose, select, pick

employment work, occupation, business, calling, pursuit

Ana trade, craft, handicraft, art, profession

empower enable

Ana authorize, commission, accredit, license; train, instruct, discipline, teach; endow, endue (see DOWER)

Con debar, disbar, shut out, rule out, *exclude empty adj 1 Empty, vacant, blank, void, vacuous mean lacking the contents that could or should be present. Something is empty which has nothing in it; something is vacant which is without an occupant, incumbent, tenant, inmate, or the person or thing it appropriately contains (an empty bucket) (his purse was empty) (empty-handed) (a vacant professorship) (a vacant apartment) When qualifying the same nouns the words usually suggest distinctly different ideas; thus, an empty house has neither furniture nor occupants; a vacant house is without inmates and presumably for rent or for sale; an empty chair has no one sitting in it at the time; a vacant chair is one that has lost its usual occupant by death or other cause; an empty space has nothing in it; a vacant space is one left to be filled with what is appropriate (it] enabled him to fill a place which would else have been vacant—Hawthorne) Something, especially a surface, is blank which is free from writing or marks or which has vacant spaces that are left to be filled in (a blank page) (a blank application) Something is void which is absolutely empty so far as the senses can discover (a conscience void of offence) (sandy wilderness, all black and void—Wordsworth) (the void, hollow, universal air—Shelley) Something is vacuous which exhibits the absolute emptiness of a vacuum (the vacuous globe of an incandescent lamp)

In extended use the same distinctions hold: an empty mind is estitute of worthwhile ideas or knowledge; a vacant mind lacks its usual occupant, the soul or intellect; a blank look is without expression; a person is said to be void of learning or of common sense when not the slightest evidence of either one can be detected; a vacuous mind, look, or expression is so deficient in alertness or spirit as to suggest a vacuum in its innacity (the unthinking mind is not necessarily dull, rude, or impervious; it is probably simply empty—Eliot) (the loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind—Goldsmith) (his eyes had that blank fixed gaze . . . that babies’ eyes have—M. E. Freeman) (it is dull and void as a work of art—Montague) (there was nothing to be read in the vacuous face, blank as a school notice board out of term—Greene)

Ana devoid, destitute, void: *bare, barren: exhausted, drained, depleted (see DEPLETE)

Ant full —*Con replete, complete (see FULL)

2 idle, hollow, *vain, nugatory, otiose

Con significant, meaningful, pregnant (see EXPRESSIVE); genuine, *authentic, veritable, bona fide

empyrean, empyreal celestial, heavenly

emulate rival, compete, vie

Ana imitate, *copy, ape: *match, equal, approach, touch

emulous ambitious

Ana aspiring, aiming, panting (see AIM vb); *eager, avid, keen, anxious, athish, agog

enable, empower are comparable when meaning to make one able to do something. In ordinary usage enable implies provision of the means or opportunity, empower, that granting of the power or the delegation of the authority, to do something (an income that enables him to live with dignity) (a letter empowering him to act in his father’s behalf) (to give to the Cathedral fund a sum sufficient to enable Father Latour to carry out his purpose—Cather) (these courts of appeal are also empowered to review and enforce orders of federal administrative bodies—Sayre)

Ana permit, allow, *let

Con forbid, prohibit, inhibit: *prevent, preclude

enamored, infatuated are very frequently used interchangeably, though with a loss in precision, in the sense of being passionately in love. Enamored usually connotes complete absorption in the passion (Elizabeth-Jane . . . did not fail to perceive that her father . . . and Donald Farfrae became more desperately enamored of her friend every day—Hardy) Infatuated, when applied to lovers and their acts, carries much the same implications as enamored but may add the implications of its primary sense (see FOND 1) of blind folly and unreasoning ardor (you, Scythrop Glovery, of Nightmare Abbey . . . infatuated with such a dancing . . . thoughtless, careless . . . thing as Marionetta—Peacock)

Ana bewitched, captivated, fascinated (see ATTRACT): fond, devoted, doting, *loving

enchant charm, captivate, allure, fascinate, bewitch, *attract

Ana delight, rejoice, gladden, gratify, *please

Ant disenchant

enchanting charming, captivating, alluring, fascinating, bewitching, attractive (see under ATTRACT)

Ana *delightful, delectable: *pleasant, pleasing, gratifying, *gratifying

Con repulsive, repugnant, revolting, loathsome, *offensive: distasteful, obnoxious, repellent, abhorrent, *repugnant encircle, enclose vb enclose, envelop, fence, pen, coop, corral, cage, wall mean to surround so as to shut in or confine actually or apparently. Enclose implies a shutting in by barriers (as walls) or in an enveloping cover (as a case); the term may be used without connotations, or it may suggest protection, defense, privacy, or monastic seclusion (a high hedge encloses the garden) (the larger fir copes, when they are enclosed, are the resort of all kinds of birds of prey yet left in the south—Jefferies | you will find enclosed our price list | walked across the enclosed porch, knocked, and opened the inside door—Bradbury | Envelop (see also COVER) implies enclosure in or by something usually yielding or penetrable that surrounds it on all sides and serves to screen it, to protect it, or to separate it from others | each specimen was enveloped in cotton and packed in a box | the heart is enveloped by a serous sac, called the pericardium | clouds envelop the mountaintops | drew off his coat and enveloped him in a white robe—Krey | Fence in this sense is usually followed by in or about and means only to enclose with or as if with a fence (as by a row of palings, a wall, or a hedge); the term usually connotes a means of barring trespassers, of keeping animals from wandering about or intruding, or of securing privacy | the farm was fenced about with a stone wall | we will have to fence in the garden with wire netting to keep out the rabbits | (the chickens were not fenced in) | a tall hedge of hemlocks fenced in the estate | In extended use the term is a synonym of enclose only when that by which a thing is shut in is a man-made barrier | the men themselves were fenced by etiquette—Emerson | (fenced by your careful fathers, ringed by your leaden porches) | you will find enclosed our price list | with narrow limits and suggests irksome restraint <the troops were penned in by conventions> | would scatter, escape, or flee if not securely confined | vitamins are being brought under control—One by one and the proteins are being brought under control | In extended use the term is a synonym of enclose only when that by which a thing is shut in is a man-made barrier | the men themselves were fenced by etiquette—Emerson | (fenced by your careful fathers, ringed by your leaden porches) | you will find enclosed our price list | closure but it carries even a stronger implication of confinement in or as if in an enclosure with narrow limits | by your careful fathers, ringed by your leaden porches (fenced in) | <they are at present cooped up in a very small apartment) | (her illness has kept her cooped in for a week) | Corral implies a shutting up in or as if in a strongly fenced enclosure and is used primarily of animals or persons who would scatter, escape, or flee if not securely confined | (at night they corralled their horses) | (here they corralled us [prisoners] to the number of seven or eight thousand—Century) | In extended use corral may largely lose its basic notion of shutting up and stress, rather, the difficulty of catching or bringing under control (the vitamins are being corralled one by one and the proteins are being brought under control—Furnas) | Cage is often used, especially with in or up, to imply confinement with severe or humiliating restrictions | (I don't stay caged in my shop all day—George Eliot) | (the feeling of caged muscular tightness has provoked a fairly widespread desire to emigrate from Britain—Chamberlain) | Wall means enclosed by a wall which may be material or may be made in or by something usually yielding or penetrable that surrounds it on all sides and serves to screen it, to protect it, or to separate it from others | <you will find enclosed our price list> | <wall circumscribe, confine (see LIMIT)> | encounter vb *meet, face, confront | Ana collide, conflict, clash, *bump: brave, beard, defy, challenge (see FACE) | encounter n Encounter, skirmish, brush. In their military senses (compare BATTLE), an encounter is a sudden hostile meeting that is typically both violent and unexpected; a skirmish, a slight and desultory, often preliminary, encounter, commonly between light detachments of troops; a brush, a short but brisk skirmish. All three words are used of other than military contests | a sharp encounter of wits | (a skirmish preliminary to a political campaign) | (a brush between opposing legal counsel) | Ana battle, engagement: *contest, conflict, fight, fray; clash, collision, *impact, impingement | encourage 1 Encourage, inspire, hearten, embolden, cheer, nerve, steel | mean to fill with courage or strength of purpose especially in preparation for a hard task or purpose. Encourage in its basic and still common sense implies the raising of confidence to such a height that one dares to do or to bear what is difficult; it then usually suggests an external agent or agency stimulating one to action or endurance | (the teacher's praise encouraged him to utter freely even his most shocking thoughts—Russell) | Sometimes it may suggest merely an increase in strength of purpose or in responsiveness to advice or inducement fostered by a person or an influence or event | (there they listened, and retained what they could remember, for they were not encouraged to take notes—Henry Adams) | Encourage is often used with an impersonal object, sometimes as if the object were a person <we wish to encourage no vice> but often as if it were the object not of encourage but of an elisions meaning to encourage a person or persons to act (as by doing, making, forming, or using) <they are donations to education; donations, which any government must be disposed . . . to encourage—John Marshall> (if a state sees fit to encourage steam laundries and discourage hand laundries, that is its own affair—Justice Holmes) Inspire is chiefly literary; it retains its implication of putting spirit into, especially in the sense of life, energy, courage, or vigor, and therefore often comes close to enliven or to animate in meaning (those great men, who, by their writings, inspirited the people to resistance—Buckley) (the early tea which was to inspire them for the dance—George Eliot) how inspiring to escape from here and now and wander wildly in a world of lutes and roses—Woolf (the book is an astonishing and inspiring record of what human ingenuity can accomplish—Basil Davenport) Hearten implies a putting heart into and carries suggestions that are stronger than those carried by either encourage or inspire. It presupposes a state of low courage, depression, despondency, or indifference and therefore implies a building up of mind or spirit that rouses one with fresh courage and zeal (qrs.), which both strengthen our resources and hearten our endeavors—Conant) (people . . . who were merry or wise or comforting or revealing, whose presence either heartened the spirit or kindled the mind—Jan Struther) Embolden implies a giving of boldness to or, more especially, a giving of just enough courage or bravery to do what one wants to do or is expected to do and suggests not brazenness but an overcoming of timidity or reluctance (she was emboldened to descend and meet him under the protection of visitors—Austen) emboldened by the utter stillness pervading the room he addressed himself to Mrs. Fyne—Conrad) Cheer in its basic sense is very close to hearten and implies a renewing of flagging strength of mind, body, or spirit (drink the cup that cheers) (my royal father, cheer these noble lords and hearten those that fight in your defense—Shak.) But cheer (usually with on) may also imply a more vigorous encouraging (as by applause, commendation, or aid) intended not merely to strengthen and refresh but to stimulate to the utmost or sometimes to an ultimate attempt to do, succeed, or conquer (cheering on the home team) (as to some great advent'rous fight this brave cheers these dastards all he can—Daniel) Nerve comes close to embolden in meaning, but it implies a harder task to be performed and the need of summoning all one's powers to accomplish it; the term therefore connotes greater effort or greater impulsion from within than the other words (the open resistance of the northern barons nerved the rest of their order to action—J. R. Green) (nerving myself with the thought that if I got crushed by the fall I should probably escape a lingering and far more painful death, I dropped into the cloud of foliation beneath me—Hudson) Steel, like nerve, may imply a great effort or impulsion from within, but it who also suggests an imparting from without, either of which gives a man the power to endure or to accomplish something by making him insensible to pain, suffering, or insults, and by filling him with resolution or determination (O God of battles, steel my soldiers' hearts, possess them not with fear—Shak.) Ana stimulate, excite, *provoke, quicken, pique, galvanize: *strengthen, fortify, energize, invigorate: rally, *stir Ant discourage —Con dishearten, dispirit, deject (see DISCOURAGE) 2 favor, countenance Ana sanction, endorse, *approve: *incite, instigate, abet: *induce, prevail Ant discourage —Con deter, *dissuade, divert: *restrain, inhibit encroach *trespass, entrench, infringe, invade Ana *enter, penetrate, pierce, probe: *intrude, butt in, obtrude, interloipe: interfere, intervene, *interpose encumber *burden, cumber, weigh, weight, load, lade, tax, charge, saddle Ana commode, incommodate, *inconvenience: clog, fetter, *hamper: impede, obstruct, block (see HINDER) end n 1 *limit, bound, term, confine Ana *extreme, extremity 2 End, termination, ending, terminus are comparable when opposed to beginning or starting point and meaning the point or line beyond which a thing does not or cannot go (as in time or space or magnitude). End is not only the ordinary but also the most inclusive of these terms, and it may be used of almost any final limit and in such varied applications as time (the end of a period) (at the end of his life) or space (the end of the road) or movement or action (the end of his journey) or magnitude (there is no end to his energy) or range of possibility (his statement put an end to speculation) Termination and ending apply especially to the end in time or, less often, in space of something that is brought to a close typically as having a set term or bounds or predetermined limits or as being complete, finished, or futile (the termination of a lease) (the termination of the period agreed upon) (the termination of a search) (a fair beginning but a bad ending) (the maiden sang as if her song could have no ending—Wordsworth) Terminus applies to the end (often in clear opposition to starting point) to which a person or a thing moves or progresses. The term usually suggests spatial relations and often indicates a definite point or place (the terminus of his tour) (New York is the terminus of several important railroads) (an airway terminus) (the object is the starting point, not the terminus, of an act of perception—Jeans) Ana closing or close, concluding or conclusion, finishing or finish, completion (see corresponding verbs at CLOSE): culmination, climax (see SUMMIT): term, bound, *limit Ant beginning —Con inception, *origin, source, root 3 objective, goal, aim, object, *intention, intent, purpose, design Ana destiny, *fate, lot, doom, portion: *function, office, duty end vb *close, conclude, terminate, finish, complete Ant begin —Con commence, start, initiate, inaugurate (see BEGIN): originate, derive, arise, rise, *spring endanger *venture, hazard, risk, chance, jeopardize, imperil Ana encounter, confront, *meet, face: dare, brave (see FACE): *incur, contract, catch endeavor vb *attempt, try, essay, strive, struggle Ana apply, devote, *direct, address: determine, resolve, *decide endeavor n essay, striving, struggle, attempt, try (see under ATTEMPT vb) Ana toil, labor, travail, *work: *effort, exertion, pains, trouble enemic adj indigenous, *native, autochthonous, aboriginal Ant exotic: pandemic —Con foreign, alien, extraneous, *extrinsic ending n *end, termination, terminus

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
endless

Ana, Ant, & Con see those at END n 2

endless
- interminable: everlasting, unceasing
- last, abide, persist: continue
- immortal: immaterial

endure
- transient, fugitive, passing: short-lived
- ephemeral, evanescent: transitory

endorse
- vouch, attest: certify
- promote, advocate: advocate

endow
- bestow, confer: grant
- grant, award, accord: bestow

endow, dower
- clothe, invest, vest: invest

empower, enable
- stir, rally, rouse, arouse: stimulate
- dynamic, live: energetic, vigorous

energize
- vitalize, activate: energize
- vigor, lusty, nervous: vigorously

denote
- individual or body of individuals: enemy, foe

dynamic, activity, operativeness or operation (see corresponding adjectives at ACTIVE): momentum, impetus, speed, velocity

inertia — weakness, feebleness, decrepitude (see corresponding adjectives at WEAK): powerlessness, impotence (see corresponding adjectives at POWERLESS)

enervate
- nerve: vitalize
- 感官: energize

enfeebled, debilitate
- weaken, undermine, sap: disapprove

enfeeble
- weaken, debilitate, sap, undermine: diminish

enfeeble, sicken
- weaken, debilitate: vitalize

enfranchise
- emancipate, manumit: free

enforce
- implement: execute

engage
- pledge, plight: engage

engagement
- promise, covenant, contract: engage

engagement 1
- tryst, assignation, date: promote

---

Ana analogous words
Ant antonyms
Con contrasted words
See also explanatory notes facing page 1
because of the exigencies of his office, his profession, or his position in life must keep a calendar and apportion his time carefully among those who wish to consult him professionally or confer with him (the governor sees visitors only by appointment) (the doctor's secretary said it was impossible to make an appointment before Thursday) Rendezvous may designate a place agreed upon for the meeting of persons, often a group of persons (the old soldiers made the town hall their rendezvous) but it usually connotes a pledge or covenant (often an implicit one) to meet someone or something that cannot be escaped without violation of one's honor (this generation of Americans has a rendezvous with destiny—Roosevelt) Tryst is chiefly poetic; like rendezvous, it may designate the place of meeting (which, however, is more often termed trysting place) as well as the agreement to meet at a certain place, but the latter is the commoner denotation of a tryst (a lover's tryst) (hurrying to keep their tryst in the wood) Assignment usually denotes a lovers' tryst, but it commonly conveys a suggestion of an illicit love or of a clandestine meeting (make assignments for them with ladies of the street—Shaw) Date is used especially of casual engagements between friends or of an agreed meeting between a young man and young woman (remembering suddenly he had a riding date with Major Thompson's wife at 12:30—James Jones) 2 battle, action Ana *encounter, skirmish, brush: *contest, conflict, combat, fight engaging *sweet, winning, winsome, dulcet Ana alluring, attracting, enchanting, captivating (see under ATTRACT vb): *interesting, intriguing Ant loathsome engender *generate, breed, beget, get, sire, procreate, propagate, reproduce Ana produce, *bear, yield: *provoke, excite, stimulate, quicken: rouse, arouse (see STIR) engine *machine, mechanism, machinery, apparatus, motor engineer vb *guide, pilot, lead, steer Ana manage, direct, *conduct, control engrave *incise, *carve, etch, sculpture, sculpt, sculpt, chisel Ana delineate, depict, limn, portray (see REPRESENT): imprint, impress, print (see corresponding nouns at IMPRESSION) engross *monopolize, absorb, consume Ana utilize, employ, *use, apply: control, manage (see CONDUCT) Con distract, bewilder (see PUZZLE): dissipate, *scatter, disperse engrossed absorbed, *intent, rapt Ana monopolized, consumed (see MONOPOLIZE): fixed, set, settled (see set vb): busy, industrious, diligent, sedulous, assiduous Con distracted, bewildered (see PUZZLE vb): distraught (see ABSTRACTED): *indifferent, unconcerned, detached, uninterested, disinterested engrossing *interesting, absorbing, intriguing Ana monopolizing, consuming (see MONOPOLIZE): controlling, managing, directing (see CONDUCT vb): transporting, ravishing, enrapturing, entering (see TRANSPORT) Ant irksome enhance heighten, *intensify, aggravate Ana *lift, elevate, raise: *exalt, magnify, aggravize: augment, *increase: *adorn, embellish, beautify Con diminish, reduce, lessen, *decrease: attenuate, extenuate, *thin: belittle, minimize, depreciate, detract (see DECAY) enigma riddle, puzzle, conundrum, *mystery, problem enigmatic cryptic, *obscure, dark, vague, ambiguous, equivocal Ana puzzling, perplexing, mystifying, bewildering (see PUZZLE vb): abstruse, occult, esoteric, *recondite: dubious, problematic, *doubtful Ant explicit —Con express, specific, definite (see EXPLICIT): *clear, perspicuous, lucid: plain, candid, open, *frank enjoin 1 direct, order, *command, bid, instruct, charge Ana advise, counsel (see under ADVICE): admonish (see REPROVE): *warn, forewarn, caution 2 interdict, prohibit, *forbid, inhibit, ban Ana debar, shut out, rule out (see EXCLUDE): bar, *hinder, impede Con permit, allow, *let, suffer enjoy 1 *like, love, relish, fancy, dote Ana delight, rejoice, gratify, gladden, regale, tickle, *please Ant loathe, abhor, abominate —Con *hate, detest: despirit, contemn, scorn *possess, own, *have, hold enjoyment delight, *pleasure, joy, delectation, fruition Ana delighting, rejoicing, gratifying, regaling, gladdening, pleasing (see PLEASE): *happiness, felicity, bliss, beatitude: zest, relish, gusto, *taste Ant abhorrence —Con aversion, *antipathy: distastefulness or distaste, repugnance, repellency or repulsion (see corresponding adjectives at REPUGNANT) enlarge *increase, augment, multiply Ana *extend, lengthen, elongate, prolong, protract: amplify, *expand, distend, dilate, inflate: magnify, aggrandize (see EXALT) Con *thin, attenuate, extenuate: abridge, abbreviate, *shorten, curtail, retrench: compress, shrink, *contract, condense: *compact, concentrate enlighten illustrate, *illuminate, illumine, light, lighten Ana educate, instruct, train, *teach, school: *inform, apprise, acquaint, advise Ant confuse, muddle —Con mystify, perplex, *puzzle, bewilder: addle, fuddle (see CONFUSE) enliven animate, *quicken, vivify Ana refresh, *renew, restore, rejuvenate: stimulate, excite, quicken, galvanize, *provoke: entertain, recreate, divert, *amuse: inspire, fire, *inform, animate Ant deaden: subdued —Con *depress, oppress, weigh enmesh *entangle, involve Ana ensnare, entrap, snare, trap, capture, *catch: *hamper, clog, hog-tie, fetter Con *extricate, disentangle, untangle, disenthrall: disengage, *detach enmity, hostility, antipathy, antagonism, animosity, rancor, animus mean intense deep-seated dislike or ill will or a manifestation of such a feeling. Enmity implies more than the absence of amity or a friendly spirit: it suggests positive hatred which may or may not be dormant or concealed (I will put enmity between thee and the woman—Gen 3:15) The angriest friendship is sometimes as bad as calm enmity—Burke Hostility suggests strong and usually open enmity manifesting itself actually (as in warfare, in violent attacks, or in ostracism) (the unremitting hostility with which . . . [those poems] have each and all been opposed—Wordsworth) If we could read the secret history of our enemies, we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility —Longfellow Antipathy and antagonism usually imply a temperamental or constitutional basis for one's hatred or dislike. Antipathy suggests aversion or repugnance and often, in consequence, avoidance or repulsion of the person or thing hated (inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachments for others should be excluded—Washington) (find it so hard to conceal his antipathy that he could not understand the way in which Dayrell went out of his way to cultivate his society—Mackenzie) Antagonism stresses the clash of temperaments and the quickness with which hostilities are provoked or the spirit of resistance is aroused (Karl Marx believed that the hostility of one nation to another will come to an end when the antagonism between classes within these nations vanishes) (some note of viceregal authority must have lingered in her voice for the caretaker's antagonism changed to a sort of bedraggled obsequiousness—Sackville-West) Animosities and rancor denote emotions of such intensity or violence that they may, if not given release, provide the ground for active hostility. Animosity usually suggests anger, vindictiveness, and sometimes a desire to destroy or injure one what hates (the Bishop had let the parish alone, giving their animosity plenty of time to cool—Cather) (her hatred of the idea of it was intensified into a violent animosity—Bennett) Rancor stresses bitterness and ill will amounting to malevolence; it often implies the nursing of a grudge or grievance ('tis not my speeches that you do mislike, but 'tis my presence that doth trouble ye. Rancor will out: proud pretale, in thy face, I see thy fury—Shak.) (small wonder at her feeling of an unchristian rancor against the nation which had caused his death—Forester) Animus suggests less emotional violence than animosity, but it implies more definitely a prejudice or ill will that seeks to find expression (there was no mistake of his intentions; he had transferred his animus to me, convinced I was to blame for his rejection—Heiser) Con Ant Ana *exalt, magnify: elevate, raise, *lift: heighten, enchant, captivate, fascinate, attractensign *flag, standard, banner, color, streamer, pennant, flag, pennon, jack enseignes nabre, entrap, trap, bag, *catch, capture ensnare *lure, entice, inveigle, decoy ensure *follow, succeed, supervene ensurance, insuring ensures inure *lure, entice, inveigle, decoy ensurance secure inure secure *deny, protect, greatfy, charm, enchant, captivate, fascinate, attract}enamor *friendship, comity, analogous words grow, increase, multiply, augmentenlarge *transport, ravish, entrance enrapture *lure, entice, inveigle, decoy ensnare strike, attack, assaultenthral *transport, ravish, entrance *secure, protect, defend, defend: shelter, lodge (see harbor)encompass *expose, exhibit, display, showensign flag, standard, banner, color, streamer, pennant, pennon, jackensnare *snare, entrap, trap, bag, catch, captureensure follow, succeed, superveneensurance, insuring *issue, emanate, proceed, stem, *spring, derive, originate, rise, arise; pursue, follow, chaseensurance, assurance, ensure *are comparable because they all carry the underlying meaning to make a person or thing sure. Ensure, insure, and assure all indicate a making of an outcome or event sure, certain, or inevitable as a consequence or concomitant. Ensure in such use may come very close to guarantee (good farming practices that go far toward ensuring good harvests) (concern rules of conduct for the purpose of ensuring the safety and victory of the absent warriors—Frazer) (for the remainder of his life he so constrained the expression of his thoughts as to ensure his safety—H. O. Taylor) Insure is often interchangeable with ensure (shipbuilders, who wished to insure a profitable career for their vessels—Amer. Guide Series: Mich.) (the structural division of the buildings, with no more than four apartments opening on any hallway, insures privacy and quiet—Amer. Guide Series: N. Y. City) but it is also the general word for reference to making certain arrangements for indemnification for loss by contingent events (to insure the car against theft and fire damage) Assure may in its more general use be indistinguishable from ensure and assure (protected by game laws and reared in state hatcheries, this bird is now assured a permanent place among the game birds of the state—Amer. Guide Series: Tenn.) (policies and plans for assuring the necessary labor force for defense and essential civilian production—Current Bio) but distinctively it more definitely expresses the notion of removal of doubt, uncertainty, or worry from a person's mind (I assured him that I was far from advising him to do anything so cruel—Conrad) (assured the inhabitants that France intended to grant autonomy—Current Bio) Secure implies pur- posive action to ensure safety, protection, or certainty entangle

Enter, penetrate, pierce, probe are comparable when meaning to catch or to hold as if in a net from which it is difficult to escape. Entangle usually carries the implications of impeding and of the difficulty or impossibility of escape; although basically the word implies being caught in a net, a snare, or a maze, it may suggest only a condition that is similar in forming a complication of difficulties (the fly became entangled in the spider's web and could not escape) (like a bird entangled in a snare) (entangle themselves in the mazes of sophistry) (the firm is entangled in financial difficulties) (peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none—Jefferson) (had entangled the king in a false marriage with her—Sitwell) Involve (see also INVOLVE 3; compare involved under COMPLEX) implies the addition, often the conscious addition, of ideas, words, or projects which tend to make difficulties (as by confusing or perplexing) for oneself or another (his sentences are involved because he tries to express too many ideas) (the controversies . . . moved on in all their ugliness to involve others—J. M. Brown) (I plead frankly for the theistic hypothesis as involving fewer difficulties than any other—Inge) Enmesh comes very close to entangle in meaning but may be preferred when those involved in or as if in the meshes of a net is strongly felt (declining to haul up the net when the fish were already enmeshed—Grote) (his eye was enmeshed in no tangle of foreground, but was led across great tracts of country to the distant mountains—Binyon) Ana *hamper, trammel, fetter, clog, hog-tie: *embarrass, discomfit: ennourse, snare, entrap, trap, capture, *catch Ant disentangle —Con untangle, *extricate: disengage, *detach

entente treaty, pact, compact, concordat, convention, cartel, *contract, bargain

enter 1 Enter, penetrate, pierce, probe are comparable when meaning to make way into something so as to reach or pass through the interior. Enter (see also ENTER 2) is the most comprehensive of these words and the least explicit in its implications. When the word takes a person for its subject, it often means little more than to go in or to go into (he entered the house) (came riding out of Asia on the very first horses to enter Africa—G. W. Murray) but sometimes it also suggests the beginning of a course of study, a career, or a proceeding (enter college) (enter Parliament) (there are many who are aghast at the type of world which we are now entering, in which a war could cause obliteration—Vannevar Bush) When enter takes a thing for its subject, it implies a making way through some medium and especially a dense or resisting medium (the rain could not enter the frozen earth) (the bullet entered the body near the heart) (such an idea never entered his mind) Penetrate (see also PERMEATE) carries a far stronger implication than enter of an impelling force or of a compelling power that makes for entrance (the salt rain . . . penetrates the thickest coat—Jefferys) and it also more often suggests resistance in the medium (Frémont had tried to penetrate the Colorado Rockies—Cather) (his sight could not penetrate the darkness) It may imply either a reaching the center or a passing through and an issuing on the further side (penetrate the depths of a forest) (armor plate so thick that no cannonball can penetrate it) Penetrate, especially as an intransitive verb, often specifically takes as its subject something that is intangible or at least not objective but that has (in affirmative expressions) the power of making its way through (the influence of Christianity has penetrated to the ends of the earth) (a penetrating odor) (a penetrating voice) Often also, as distinguished from the other terms, penetrate suggests the use of a keen mind or the exercise of powers of intuition or discernment in the understanding of the abstruse or mysterious (we cannot penetrate the mind of the Absolute—Inge) (in seeking to penetrate the essential character of European art—Binyon) (Aunty Rosa could penetrate certain kinds of hypocrisy, but not all—Kipling) Pierce in the earliest of its English senses implies a running through with a sharp-pointed instrument (as a sword, a spear, or a knife) (they pierced both plate and mail—Spenser) In all of its extended senses it carries a far stronger implication than penetrate of something that stabs or runs through or of something that cuts into the very center or through to the further side (feel the piercing cold in every nerve) (a passion like a sword blade that pierced me through and through—Lindsay) (how was one to pierce such hidebound complacency?—Mackenzie) Often the term imparts great poignancy or aesthetic effectiveness beyond what is usual to the thing that pierces (the remembrance of all that made life dear pierced me to the core—Hudso) (whatever is expressed with ant—whether it be a lover's despair or a metaphorical outcry—pierces the mind and compels assent and acceptance—Huxley) Probe derives its implications from the earliest of its senses, to explore (as a wound, a cavity, or the earth) with a long slender instrument especially in order to determine depth, condition, or contents. In its extended senses it implies penetration so far as circumstances allow or so far as one's powers or skills permit, and it usually suggests an exploratory or investigatory aim (the hog or peat was ascertained, on probing it with an instrument, to be at least fifteen feet thick—Lyell) (the only one . . . with whom he cared to probe into things a little deeper than the average level of club and chophouse banter—Wharton) In some cases probe means little more than to investigate thoroughly (as by questioning those in a position to know facts) (a rascally calumnny, which I was determined to probe to the bottom—Scott) Ana invade, entrench, *tresspass, encroach: *intrude, butt in: *begin, commence, start Ant issue from

2 Enter, introduce, admit are comparable when they mean to cause or permit to go in or get in. Enter, in its causative sense, is used chiefly in idiomatic phrases, though occasionally it is employed in the sense to drive or force in (he could not enter the wedge between the layers of rock) In idiomatic use it commonly implies writing down (as in a list, a roll, a catalogue, or a record), but in some of these phrases it also connotes the observance of other formalities; thus, to enter a word in a dictionary is to list it in alphabetical order and define its meaning; to enter one's son at a private school is to send in his name as a candidate for admission: to enter a judgment is to put it upon record in the proper legal form and order (the judge could enter a judgment of conviction and send Woodfall to prison—Chafee) Introduce is often preferred to enter when it implies insertion (the painter who was introducing a tree into his landscape—Ellis) (when a bit of finely fluted platinum is introduced into a chamber containing oxygen and sulphur dioxide—T. S. Eliot) (Aunt Harriet met introduced herself through the doorway . . . into the interior of the vehicle—Bennett) It is the precise word when used of things not native and brought into a country or locality for the first time (plants introduced into America by the

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
enthuse

* thrill, electrify

Enthusiast, fanatic, zealot, bigot

enthusiasm

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

entertainment

entertain 1

n

Ant

analogue words

* dinner, banquet, feast: play, sport, disport (see ADVERTISE)

beguile, *while, wile

enthusiasm

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiast, fanatic, zealot, bigot

denote a person who manifests excessive ardor, fervor, or devotion in his attachment to some cause, idea, party, or church.

Enthusiast commonly denotes a person of keen and ardent interests and may carry either favorable or unfavorable connotations (as of mental or spiritual vitality or of a subordination of judgment to enthusiasm) (increasing number of chess enthusiasts) (folk-singing enthusiasts) (we are a nation of enthusiasts—Meeker). In earlier use and still in historical works the term applies particularly to a preacher, a member of a religious sect, or, sometimes, a poet who claims to be immediately inspired or who outwardly manifests signs (as rapture, madness, or intense emotionalism) associated with divine inspiration or possession by a god. In such context the term has been applied more or less contemptuously to a member of one of the strongly evangelical sects that arose in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (the visions, voices, revelations of the enthusiast—Glanvill) (harmonic twang! . . . such as from lab’ring lungs th’ enthusiast blows—Pope) * Fanatic, even more than enthusiast, carries a hint of madness or irrationality. In contrast to enthusiast, however, the term suggests extreme monomaniac devotion and a concentration of attention, sometimes on the end to be gained but, possibly more often, on the chosen means to one’s end regardless of the real value of that end. * Fanatic, therefore, in distinction from enthusiast, connotes determination, often silent determination, and an uncompromising temper (a virtuous fanatic, narrow, passionate . . . regarding all ways as wrong but his own—Froude) * a fanatic, in Santayana’s famous definition, is a man who redoubles his efforts after he has forgotten his aims—Waters) * this creature Man, who in his own selfish affairs is a coward to the backbone, will fight for an idea like a hero. He may be abject as a citizen; but he is dangerous as a fanatic—Shaw) Zealot often implies fanaticism; it suggests ardent devotion, but it distictively emphasizes vehement activity in the service of one’s cause, party, or church. It may or may not connote blinding partisanshhip, but it usually suggests jealous vigilance in protecting one’s beliefs or institutions <for modes of faith let graceless zealots fight—Pope> * a furious zealot may think he does God service by persecuting one of a different sect—Gilpin) * Bigot implies obstinate, often blind, devotion to one’s own (especially religious) beliefs or opinions; as compared with fanatic and zealot, the term implies dogged intolerance and contempt for those who do not agree, rather than enthusiasm or zeal <the hell that bigots frame to punish those who err—Shelley> * one of the marks of a bigot is that he thinks he does a service to God when he persecutes his fellowmen—Gillis)

Ant

devotee, votary, *addict

entice *lure, inveigle, decoy, tempt, seduce

enthusiasm

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiastic

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiast

fanatic, zealot, bigot

Enthusiast, fanatic, zealot, bigot

denote a person who manifests excessive ardor, fervor, or devotion in his attachment to some cause, idea, party, or church.

Enthusiast commonly denotes a person of keen and ardent interests and may carry either favorable or unfavorable connotations (as of mental or spiritual vitality or of a subordination of judgment to enthusiasm) (increasing number of chess enthusiasts) (folk-singing enthusiasts) (we are a nation of enthusiasts—Meeker). In earlier use and still in historical works the term applies particularly to a preacher, a member of a religious sect, or, sometimes, a poet who claims to be immediately inspired or who outwardly manifests signs (as rapture, madness, or intense emotionalism) associated with divine inspiration or possession by a god. In such context the term has been applied more or less contemptuously to a member of one of the strongly evangelical sects that arose in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (the visions, voices, revelations of the enthusiast—Glanvill) (harmonic twang! . . . such as from lab’ring lungs th’ enthusiast blows—Pope) * Fanatic, even more than enthusiast, carries a hint of madness or irrationality. In contrast to enthusiast, however, the term suggests extreme monomaniac devotion and a concentration of attention, sometimes on the end to be gained but, possibly more often, on the chosen means to one’s end regardless of the real value of that end. * Fanatic, therefore, in distinction from enthusiast, connotes determination, often silent determination, and an uncompromising temper (a virtuous fanatic, narrow, passionate . . . regarding all ways as wrong but his own—Froude) * a fanatic, in Santayana’s famous definition, is a man who redoubles his efforts after he has forgotten his aims—Waters) * this creature Man, who in his own selfish affairs is a coward to the backbone, will fight for an idea like a hero. He may be abject as a citizen; but he is dangerous as a fanatic—Shaw) Zealot often implies fanaticism; it suggests ardent devotion, but it distictively emphasizes vehement activity in the service of one’s cause, party, or church. It may or may not connote blinding partisanshhip, but it usually suggests jealous vigilance in protecting one’s beliefs or institutions <for modes of faith let graceless zealots fight—Pope> * a furious zealot may think he does God service by persecuting one of a different sect—Gilpin) * Bigot implies obstinate, often blind, devotion to one’s own (especially religious) beliefs or opinions; as compared with fanatic and zealot, the term implies dogged intolerance and contempt for those who do not agree, rather than enthusiasm or zeal <the hell that bigots frame to punish those who err—Shelley> * one of the marks of a bigot is that he thinks he does a service to God when he persecutes his fellowmen—Gillis)

Ant

devotee, votary, *addict

entice *lure, inveigle, decoy, tempt, seduce

enthusiasm

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiastic

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiast

fanatic, zealot, bigot

Enthusiast, fanatic, zealot, bigot

denote a person who manifests excessive ardor, fervor, or devotion in his attachment to some cause, idea, party, or church.

Enthusiast commonly denotes a person of keen and ardent interests and may carry either favorable or unfavorable connotations (as of mental or spiritual vitality or of a subordination of judgment to enthusiasm) (increasing number of chess enthusiasts) (folk-singing enthusiasts) (we are a nation of enthusiasts—Meeker). In earlier use and still in historical works the term applies particularly to a preacher, a member of a religious sect, or, sometimes, a poet who claims to be immediately inspired or who outwardly manifests signs (as rapture, madness, or intense emotionalism) associated with divine inspiration or possession by a god. In such context the term has been applied more or less contemptuously to a member of one of the strongly evangelical sects that arose in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (the visions, voices, revelations of the enthusiast—Glanvill) (harmonic twang! . . . such as from lab’ring lungs th’ enthusiast blows—Pope) * Fanatic, even more than enthusiast, carries a hint of madness or irrationality. In contrast to enthusiast, however, the term suggests extreme monomaniac devotion and a concentration of attention, sometimes on the end to be gained but, possibly more often, on the chosen means to one’s end regardless of the real value of that end. * Fanatic, therefore, in distinction from enthusiast, connotes determination, often silent determination, and an uncompromising temper (a virtuous fanatic, narrow, passionate . . . regarding all ways as wrong but his own—Froude) * a fanatic, in Santayana’s famous definition, is a man who redoubles his efforts after he has forgotten his aims—Waters) * this creature Man, who in his own selfish affairs is a coward to the backbone, will fight for an idea like a hero. He may be abject as a citizen; but he is dangerous as a fanatic—Shaw) Zealot often implies fanaticism; it suggests ardent devotion, but it distictively emphasizes vehement activity in the service of one’s cause, party, or church. It may or may not connote blinding partisanshhip, but it usually suggests jealous vigilance in protecting one’s beliefs or institutions <for modes of faith let graceless zealots fight—Pope> * a furious zealot may think he does God service by persecuting one of a different sect—Gilpin) * Bigot implies obstinate, often blind, devotion to one’s own (especially religious) beliefs or opinions; as compared with fanatic and zealot, the term implies dogged intolerance and contempt for those who do not agree, rather than enthusiasm or zeal <the hell that bigots frame to punish those who err—Shelley> * one of the marks of a bigot is that he thinks he does a service to God when he persecutes his fellowmen—Gillis)

Ant

devotee, votary, *addict

entice *lure, inveigle, decoy, tempt, seduce

enthusiasm

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiastic

fervor, ardor, *passion, zeal

enthusiast

fanatic, zealot, bigot

Enthusiast, fanatic, zealot, bigot

denote a person who manifests excessive ardor, fervor, or devotion in his attachment to some cause, idea, party, or church.

Enthusiast commonly denotes a person of keen and ardent interests and may carry either favorable or unfavorable connotations (as of mental or spiritual vitality or of a subordination of judgment to enthusiasm) (increasing number of chess enthusiasts) (folk-singing enthusiasts) (we are a nation of enthusiasts—Meeker). In earlier use and still in historical works the term applies particularly to a preacher, a member of a religious sect, or, sometimes, a poet who claims to be immediately inspired or who outwardly manifests signs (as rapture, madness, or intense emotionalism) associated with divine inspiration or possession by a god. In such context the term has been applied more or less contemptuously to a member of one of the strongly evangelical sects that arose in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (the visions, voices, revelations of the enthusiast—Glanvill) (harmonic twang! . . . such as from lab’ring lungs th’ enthusiast blows—Pope) * Fanatic, even more than enthusiast, carries a hint of madness or irrationality. In contrast to enthusiast, however, the term suggests extreme monomaniac devotion and a concentration of attention, sometimes on the end to be gained but, possibly more often, on the chosen means to one’s end regardless of the real value of that end. * Fanatic, therefore, in distinction from enthusiast, connotes determination, often silent determination, and an uncompromising temper (a virtuous fanatic, narrow, passionate . . . regarding all ways as wrong but his own—Froude) * a fanatic, in Santayana’s famous definition, is a man who redoubles his efforts after he has forgotten his aims—Waters) * this creature Man, who in his own selfish affairs is a coward to the backbone, will fight for an idea like a hero. He may be abject as a citizen; but he is dangerous as a fanatic—Shaw) Zealot often implies fanaticism; it suggests ardent devotion, but it distictively emphasizes vehement activity in the service of one’s cause, party, or church. It may or may not connote blinding partisanshhip, but it usually suggests jealous vigilance in pro-
world is part of that world—and its own creature—Alexander> <imagination is always the creature of desire—Krutch> Individual, in its fundamental sense, refers to whatever may be regarded as an entity or being, but the term stresses rather its incapacity for being divided and its existence as a unit <an individual is that which cannot be divided without ceasing to be what it is—Archbishop Thomson> Individual, therefore, in ordinary language applies to a single member of a conceivable group, especially of human beings, and is often used in contrast with such general or comprehensive terms as society, race, or family <the individual rebelled against restraint; society wanted to do what it pleased—Henry Adams> <art . . . tends to reconcile the individual with the universal, by exciting in him impersonal emotion—Galsworthy> <the equipment of the higher animals . . . is needed less for the good of the individual than for the good of the race—Ellis> Concretely, individual is often used of a person who strikes one as rich in nature and as standing strongly alone or independently <Donne would have been an individual at any time and place—T. S. Eliot> but occasionally it is used contemptuously to designate a self-unconsciously conspicuous (as by undue familiarity, blatancy, or general obnoxiousness) <the individual who had sat himself down by me produced a little box and offered me a lozenge—Jefferies> Person in its most common modern use denotes an individual human being without reference to sex, age, or identity <there were five thousand persons at the meeting> <he knew but one person in the throng>  Person is often found in other and richer senses, most of which involve the idea of the manifestation or the sustaining of a clearly defined character; sometimes it implies an entity distinguished from one's body yet somehow associated with it <we observe . . . to begin with, that our bodies are not we,—not our proper persons—Mozley> <never needing to assert the dignity of his person> and sometimes it implies this character as manifest to others <the boy is becoming a real person> everybody recognized him as a person Sometimes (as in law) person may refer not only to a man  but to a corporate body <can artificial, or juristic, person> either of which has rights and duties that are recognized  Again (as in Christian theology), person denotes one of the distinct modes of being in which the Supreme Being manifests Himself to men <one God in three divine Persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost> Sometimes, also, person may refer to the body of a human being or to his appearance, but even in these uses it usually suggests a body informed by a spirit or personality <he suffered injury to his person and damage to his property> <Mr. Wickham was . . . far beyond them all in person, countenance, air, and walk—Austen> <appear in person> <England . . . had stolen a kingdom . . . in Africa, and seized the person of its king—Shaw> entrance n Entrance, entry, entrée, ingress, access are comparable when meaning the act, fact, or privilege of going in or coming in. All but entrée also carry the denotation of a way or means of entering. Their differences are largely in their applications and in their connotations. Entrance is the widest in its range of application and the thinnest in its specific implications; it fits in with nearly every context <await the entrance of the king>  <the entrance is through a gate south of the stadium> <gained their entrance to the game through a hole in the fence> Entry, by comparison, typically imputes a formal or ceremonial character to the act of entering <the trumpet will announce the Nuncio's entry—Browning> When used with reference to a place where one enters, it usually signifies a door, a gate, a portico, or more commonly a vestibule or entrance hall <the postman throws the letters in the entry> <I hear a knocking at the south entry—Shak> It has largely yielded its meaning of the privilege or right of entrance to entrée. The latter word, however, is usually restricted in its application and suggests exclusiveness in those admitting or distinction or social gifts in those admitted <my mother's introductions had procured me the entrée of the best French houses—Lytton> <commented on the entrée which his son had with the president—New Republic> Ingress, because of legal use, carries more than any of the others the implication either of permission to enter or of encroachment <his deed gives him use of the path with free ingress and egress> <we pardon it; and for your ingress here upon the skirt and fringe of our fair land—Tennison> it puts a great strain on an armadillo to open his mouth wide enough to permit the ingress of a copper cent edge-wise—G. S. Perry> When used concretely it more often suggests a natural passageway than an architectural structure  Access, like ingress, implies admission where barriers are imposed, but they may be of many kinds: social, legal, or personal, as well as natural <he is here at the door and importunes access to you—Shak> Access is distinguished from the other words of this group by its emphasis on approach rather than on entrance <explorers still find the North Pole difficult of access, in spite of their use of airplanes> <the access to the harbor was through a long narrow channel> Ant exit entrance vb *transport, ravish, enrapture Ana delight, gladden, rejoice, *please: enchant, captivate, bewitch, charm (see ATTRACT) entrap trap, snare, ensnare, bag, *catch, capture Ana seize, *take, clutch: *lure, inveigle, decoy, entice entreat *beg, beseech, implore, supplicate, importune, adjure Ana *ask, request, solicit: pray, appeal, plead, petition, sue (see under PRAYER) Con withstand, *resist, oppose: dare, *face, brave, challenge entreé *entrance, entry, ingress, access Ana admission, *admittance entrench encroach, *trespass, infringe, invade Ana *monopolize, engross, consume, absorb: *interpose, interfere, intervene entrust confide, *commit, consign, delegate Ana *allot, assign, allocate: *rely, trust, depend, count, bank, reckon Con suspect, doubt (see corresponding nouns at UN-CERTAINTY): mistrust, *distrust entry *entrance, entrée, ingress, access Ana *door, doorway, gate, gateway, portal, postern entwine *wind, coil, curl, twist, twine, wreathe Ana *curve, bend: interweave, interplait (see base words at WEAVE): *entangle, enmesh enumerate *count, tell, number Ana compute, *calculate, reckon: *add, sum, total, figure: rehearse, recount, recite (see RELATE) enunciate pronounce, *articulate envelop vb 1 *cover, overspread, wrap, shroud, veil Ana *surround, environ, encompass: cloak, mask (see DISGUISE) 2 *enclose, fence, pen, coop, corral, cage, wall Envious, jealous, though not close synonyms, are comparable because both carry as their basic meaning that of grudging another’s possession of something desirable. Envious stresses a coveting of something (as riches, possessions, or attainments) which belongs to another or of something (as success or good fortune) which has come to another. It may imply either a gnawing, often a malicious, desire to deprive one of what gives him gratification, or a spiteful delight in his dispossession or loss of it (still in thy right hand carry gentle peace, to silence envious tongues—Shak.) Some envious hands have sprinkled ashes just to spoil our slide—Field. Frequently, however, the stress is on coveting rather than on a desire to injure (we are all envious of your good fortune) (tried to look disappointed and angry but . . . only succeeded in looking envious—Hervey Allen). Jealous often stresses intolerance of a rival for the possession of a thing which one regards as peculiarly one’s own or on the winning of which one has set one’s heart, but sometimes it merely implies intensely jealous efforts to keep or maintain what one possesses. The term often is used without derogation (thou shalt have no other gods before me, for the Lord thy God am a jealous God—Exod. 20:3-5). (pride of their calling, conscious of their duty, and jealous of their honor—Galsworthy). However, the term usually carries a strong implication of distrust, suspicion, enviousness, or sometimes anger (a jealous wife). He was jealous of Carlson’s fame as an Indian fighter—Cather. (stabbed by a jealous lover)

Ana *covetous, grasping, greedy: grudging, coveting, envying (see covet): malign, malignant, spiteful, malicious, malevolent

Con generous, *liberal, bountiful, openhanded: kindly, *kind, benign, benignant

Environ vb *surround, encircle, circle, encompass, compass, hem, gird, girdle, ring
Ana *enclose, envelop, fence: confine, confine (see LIMIT)

Environment *background, setting, milieu, backdrop, mise-en-scène

Envisage, Envision conceive, imagine, *think, realize, fancy
Ana view, behold, survey, contemplate (see view): objectify, externalize, materialize, *realize

Envoy *ambassador, legate, minister, nuncio, internuncio, chargé d’affaires

Envvy vb *covet, grudge, begrudge
Ana *long, pine, hanker, yearn

Ephemeral *transient, transitory, passing, fugitive, fleeting, evanescent, momentary, short-lived Ana *brief, short

Epicene hermaphroditic, hermaphrodite, *bisexual, androgynous
Ana effeminate, womanish (see Female adj)

Epicure, gourmet, gourmand, gluton, bon vivant, gastronome mean one who takes pleasure in eating and drinking. An epicure is one who is choice and fastidious while at the same time voluptuous in enjoyment of food and drink; the term is also applied to a connoisseur in an art involving both feasting and delicacy of taste. I am become a perfect epicure in reading; plain beef or solid mutton will never do—Goldsmith (an epicure in many of the delights of the senses—Canby). A gourmet is a connoisseur in delicate or exotic dishes, liquors, and wines; the term carries as its distinctive connotation the savoring as of each morsel of food or sip of wine, and the power to distinguish delicate differences in flavor or quality (the most finished gourmet of my acquaintance—Thackeray) (eating habits . . . of a determined gourmet, verging at times on those of a gourmand—Kahn). Gourmand implies less fastidiousness and less discernment than gourmet, but it suggests a hearty interest in and enjoyment of good food and drink rather than, as gluton does, greedy and voracious eating and drinking (I dare say, their table is always good, for the Landgrave is a gourmand—Chesterfield). Youth is a gourmand when it cannot be a gourmet—McClure’s Mag. (it would be difficult to determine whether they were most to be distinguished as glutons or epicures; for they were, at once, dainty and voracious, understood the right and the wrong of every dish, and alike emptied the one and the other—Burney). Bon vivant differs little from gourmand except in its stronger connotation of a lively or spirited enjoyment of the pleasures of the table, especially in the company of others (the Major was somewhat of a bon vivant, and his wine was excellent—Scott) (he was also a bon vivant, a dinner-out, and a storyteller—Fraser’s Mag.). Gastronome is equivalent to epicure, with perhaps greater stress on expert knowledge and appreciation of fine food and wine and of the ritual of preparation and serving of them (a conversation on the mysteries of the table, which . . . a modern gastronome might have listened to with pleasure—Scott)

Ana connoisseur, *aesthete, dilettante

Epicurean sybaritic, luxurious, *sensuous, sensual, voluptuous Ana fastidious, dainty, *nice, particular

Ant gross

Epigram aphorism, apothegm, *saying, saw, maxim, adage, proverb, motto

Episode 1 *digression, divagation, excursus
Ana *deviation, divergence, deflection: departing or departure (see corresponding verb at Swerve)

Epocb era, age, *period, aeon

Equable regular, *orderly, methodical, systematic: invariable, immutable, unchangeable (see affirmative adjectives at changeable): *same, equal, equivalent

Ant variable, changeable—Con fluctuating, wavering (see Waving)—fitful, spasmodic

Equal adj equivalent, *same, very, identical, identical, tantamount Ana equal, even, uniform (see Steady): *like, alike: proportionate, commensurate (see Proportional)

Ant unequal—Con *different, diverse, disparate, various, divergent

Equal vb *match, rival, approach, touch
Ana *compare: square, accord, tally, correspond, *agree

Equanimitity, composure, sangfroid, phlegm mean the mental temper of one who is self-possessed or not easily disturbed or perturbed. Equanimitity suggests either a proper mental balance or a constitutionally equable temper; it therefore may imply either a deliberate adjustment of one’s emotional and mental powers that is liable to disturbance only under great strain or a settled attitude of mind which repels all that disturbs (his placidity of demeanor ... arose from . . . the equanimitity of a cold disposition rather than of one well ordered by discipline—Trollope). It was some time before Wildeve recovered his equanimitity—Hardy. Stoicism teaches men . . . to accept with proud equanimity the misfortunes of life—Inge

Composure commonly implies the conquest of mental agitation or disturbance by an effort of will, though it may imply a temperamental freedom from agitation (his passions tamed and all at his control, how perfect the composure of his soul!—Cowper) (we have to call upon our whole people—men, women, and children alike—to stand up with composure and fortitude to the fire of the enemy—Sir Winston Churchill) Sangfroid implies great coolness and steadiness especially under strain (no being ever stood in a pedagogue's presence with more perfect sangfroid—Disraeli) (at all these [gambling games] she won and lost, with the same equable sangfroid—Rose Macaulay) Phlegm suggests an apathy of mind or sluggishness of temperament that results from a physical condition rather than from discipline or self-control; it therefore suggests even greater imper turbability and insensitiveness than any of the preceding terms (he chose the eldest daughter whose numb com posure he mistook for phlegm—Patton) (there was a busy, bustling, disputatious tone about it, instead of the accustomed phlegm and drowsy tranquillity—Irving)

Ana poised, equipose, balance, equilibrium: self-pos session, self-assurance, aplomb (see CONFIDENCE): tranquil lity, serenity, placidity, calmness (see corresponding adjectives at CALM)

Con discomposure, agitation, disquieting or disquiet, perturbing or perturbation, disturbance (see corresponding verbs at DISCOMPOSE)

equilibrium equipoise, poise, balance, tension

Ana stableness or stability (see corresponding adjective at LASTING): stabilization, steadying (see corresponding verbs at STABILIZE): counterbalancing or counterbalance, counterpoising or counterpoise (see corresponding verbs at COMPENSATE)

equip furnish, outfit, appoint, accouter, arm Con divest, dismantle, denude, strip: despoil, spoli ate, ravage

equipment, apparatus, machinery, paraphernalia, outfit, tackle, gear, matériel are comparable when they mean all the things that are used in a given work or are useful in effecting a given end. Equipment usually covers every thing needed for efficient operation or efficient service except the personnel; thus, the equipment for a polar expedition would include not only the vessels, instruments, and implements required but also the sleds, dogs, and supplies (as clothing, food, and medicines) the equipment of furnishings, utensils, and supplies required for setting up housekeeping) Sometimes equipment is more limited in its application; thus, in railroading it covers only the rolling stock and not the roadbed and stations. Ex tended use equipment is also employed in reference to persons and covers the qualities and skills necessary to their efficiency or competency in a given kind of work knowledge, penetration, seriousness, sentiment, humor, Gray had them all; he had the equipment and endowment for the office of poet—Arnold (a health officer needed more than technical training . . . It appeared that diplomacy should constitute a major part of his equipment—Heiser)

Apparatus usually covers the instruments, tools, machines, and appliances used in a given craft or profession or in a specific operation or the equipment used in a recreation or sport; thus, the apparatus of a dentist includes all the mechanical and electrical devices he uses in his professional work; the apparatus of a laboratory, as distinguished from its equipment, consists of all the mechanical requisites for carrying on operations or experiments. When used in reference to persons or employments not requiring mechanical devices, apparatus denotes all the external aids useful in prosecuting a particular kind of work; thus, the apparatus of a scholar in Old English includes the reference books (as texts, glossaries, and bibliographies) that he finds essential to or helpful in his investigations (formal lectures, with an appalling apparatus of specimens, charts, and wall pictures—Grandgent)

Machinery covers all the devices, means, or agencies which permit a thing (as an organism, a government, an institution, or a law) to function or which enable it to accomplish its ends (as a movement, a political party, or propaganda) (the physiological machinery of the body is so adjusted that great variations of atmospheric temperature can be supported without detriment—Heiser) (public meetings, harangues, resolutions, and the rest of the modern machinery of agitation had not yet come into fashion—Macaulay) (if the peoples wanted war, no machinery could prevent them from having it—Inge)

Paraphernalia usually suggests a collection of the miscellaneous articles or belongings that constitute the usual accompaniments (often the necessary equipment) of a person or group of persons in a particular employ ment or activity (the paraphernalia of a circus) (the paraphernalia of a tourist) (little piles of wheels, strips of unworked iron and steel, blocks of wood, the paraphernalia of the inventor's trade—Anderson) The word may be slightly contemptuous and imply a trivial or worthless character to the items included (clear a boy's room of all its paraphernalia)

Outfit is sometimes interchangeable with equipment, but it has a slightly less formal flavor and is preferred when the latter term might seem pretentious (a camper's outfit) (a beginner's beekeeping outfit, consisting of a bee veil, a pair of bee gloves, and the makings of a first-rate beehive—New Yorker) It often specifically suggests wearing apparel and other necessities for a journey, a school year, or a new employment (a bride's outfit) (a college girl's outfit) (beside this neat, black figure the American business man's outfit is as garish as a clown's—Barbara Beecher) Tackle is also less formal than apparatus, which otherwise it closely resembles (fishing tackle) (the girl sprucely habited, with her pretty tackle on the shining blood [horse] was a glad sight—Miles Franklin) Gear is variously used, sometimes approaching equipment (you've got a good six hours to get your gear together—Conrad) or sometimes apparatus (sportsman's gear) or again outfit, or wearing apparel (servants . . . ready in waiting at Pathankote with a change of gear—Kipling) It is also occasionally the most general of these terms and equivalent to one's belongings collectively (they are all, as far as worldly gear is concerned, much poorer than I—Shaw) Matériel is used in industry and in military affairs as a comprehensive and unambiguous term that covers everything but the personnel (a heavy drain on both the manpower and matériel resources—N. Y. Times)

equipoise equilibrium, poise, balance, tension

equitable fair, just, impartial, unbiased, dispassionate, uncolored, objective

Ana proportional, proportionate, commensurate, commensurable; equal, equivalent, same, identical

Ant inequitable, unfair—Con unreasonable, *irrational

equity Justice

equivalent adj equal, same, identical, selfsame, very, tantamount

Ana like, alike, comparable, parallel, uniform (see SIMILAR): proportionate, commensurate (see PROPORTIONAL): reciprocal, corresponding, convertible

Ant different—Con disparate, diverse, divergent, various (see DIFFERENT); discrepant, discordant, incon sonant, incompatible equivocal  ambiguous, *obscure, dark, vague, enigmatic, cryptic

Ana  dubious, *doubtful
Ant  unequivocal —Con  *explicit, express, definite, specific, categorical; perspicuous, lucid, *clear

equivocate  prevaricate, *lie, palter, fib

Ana  *deceive, mislead, delude: evade, elude, *escape
Ant  equivocation *ambiguity, tergiversation, double entendre

Ana  prevarication, lying or lie, paltering, fibbing or fib (see corresponding verbs at LIE): duplicity, dissimulation, *deceit

era  age, epoch, *period, aeon

eradicate  uproot, deracinate, extirpate, *exterminate

Ana  age, epoch, *period, aeon eradiacate  °abolish, annihilate, extinguish, abate: °destroy, demolish, raze: obliterate, efface, °erase, blot out

Con  °set, fix, establish, settle: °implant, inculcate, Con

erasure  mean to strike out something so that it no longer has effect

Ana  °abolish, annihilate, extinguish, abate: °destroy, demolish, raze: obliterate, efface, °erase, blot out

Con  °set, fix, establish, settle: °implant, inculcate, Con

erased  mean to strike out written material (originally with lines crossed latitudinally, but it also may apply to an invalidating or nullifying by other means; thus, a postage stamp is canceled to prevent reuse, usually with a hand device or a machine that stamps an indelible mark or device on its face; a transportation ticket is similarly canceled with a punch that removes a part of it; a will is canceled by physically destroying it (the worn or soiled currency declared unfit for further circulation is transferred to our custodians of unfit currency for cancellation on a canceling machine which is designed to punch the symbol "L" in each corner of each package of 100 bills, and to simultaneously cut each package in half lengthwise—George Parker) In extended use cancel implies an action that completely negates something, whether by a legal annulling (cancellation consists of any act, such as the surrender or intentional destruction of the instrument, that indicates the intention to cancel or renounce the obligation—Fisk & Snapp) or by a revoking or rescinding (cancel a meeting) (the laboratory door does not lock behind him and bar his return any more than it swung shut to imprison Darwin and forever cancel his status as a naturalist—Amer. Naturalist) or often by a neutralization of one thing by its opposite (the qualities that in the end nullified his great strength of character and remarkable gifts, just as his irritability canceled out his natural kindness—Osbet Siwell) (ironies breed before our eyes, cancel each other out—Kristol) Efface, more strongly than erase, implies the complete removal of something impressed or imprinted on a surface (constant use gradually effaces the figures and letters on a coin) (efface the offensive murals in a public building) As a result, in its extended use, efface often implies destruction of every visible or sensible sign of a thing's existence (while nations have effaced nations, and death has gathered to his fold long lines of mighty kings—Wordsworth) (the attempt to efface the boundaries between prose and verse—Lowes) Often, especially in reflexive use, it implies an attempt to make inconspicuous or vague (efface oneself in the company of others) Obliterate and blot out both imply rendering a thing undecipherable by smearing it with something which hides its existence (a smear of decisive lead-colored paint had been laid on to obliterate Henchard's name—Hardy) (blot out with ink a passage in a manuscript) Both terms are more often used, however, with the implication of the removal of every trace of a thing's existence (the falling snow rapidly obliterated all signs of approaching spring) (a successful love . . . obliterated all other failures—Krich) (then rose the seed of chaos, and of night, to blot out order, and extinguish light—Pope) Delete implies marking something in a manuscript or proof for omission from a text that is to be published or distributed (whenever you feel an impulse to perpetrate a piece of exceptionally fine writing, obey it—wholeheartedly—and delete it before sending your manuscript to press—Quiller-Couch) But delete also often suggests eradication or elimination by the exercise of arbitrary power (the censor deleted all the interesting parts of the letter) (a compulsion to make plays out of books, musicals out of plays, . . . to insert scenes, delete characters, include commentators—Krenkenberger)

Ana  annul, *nullify, negate: °abolish, extinguish

Con  imprint, impress, print, stamp (see corresponding nouns at IMPRESSION)

erect vb  °build, construct, frame, raise, rear

Ana  fabricate, fashion, form (see MAKE): °lift, raise, elevate

Ant  raze

eremite  hermit, anchorite, °recluse, cénobite erotic  °amatory, amorous, amative, aphrodisiac all involve the idea of love for the opposite sex, but they are not freely interchangeable because of differences in denotation as well as in implications. Erotic, though the strongest in its suggestions of love as a violent passion or as a physical appetite, is rarely applied to persons as distinct from their behavior, reactions, or emotions, and it is especially used in characterizing or classifying emotions, motives, or themes in art °erotic tendencies °erotic music (an erotic poet) °erotic poetry (it was the persuasion that the deprivation was final that obsessed him with erotic imaginations . . . almost to the verge of madness—H. G. Wells) describes his erotic adventures with prostitutes—Sat. Review) Amatory is a synonym of erotic but weaker in its suggestion of sexual desire; it sometimes connotes little more than ardent admiration; thus, one might more correctly describe the youthful love poems of Tennyson as amatory than as erotic poetry (Sir Lucius . . . has been deluded into thinking that some amatory letters received by him from Mrs. Malaprop are from Lydia—Harvey) Amorous is applied chiefly to persons, their words, or their acts especially when they are falling in love or making love (came many a tiptoe, amorous cavalier, and back retired . . . her heart was otherwise—Keats) (yielded, with coy submission, modest pride, and sweet, reluctant, amorous delay—Milton) (the shady lawns and thickets along the river give nightly sanctuary to amorous couples—Green Peyton) The word often suggests ripeness or eagerness for love (the English . . . are not an amorous race. Love with them is more sentimental than passionate—Maughan) In this sense it is also applied, chiefly in poetry, to animals <the amorous dove—Gilbert> Amative implies merely a disposition to fall in love or a propensity for loving; it is chiefly used in describing temperaments or in analyzing character <that crudely amative public to which our modern best sellers appeal—N. Y. Times> <he is not normally amative> Aphrodisiac is applied to things (as drugs or writings) that arouse or tend to arouse sexual desire <the labored unreserve of aphrodisiac novels and plays—Montague>

Anna passionante, *impassioned, fervid, fervent, fervent: *fervent, *carnal, fleshly, sensual erratic eccentric, odd, queer, *strange, singular, peculiar, unique, quaint, outlandish, curious Ana aberrant, *abnormal, atypical: *irregular, unnatural, anomalous: capricious, fickle, mercurial, *inconstant Con normal, *regular, typical, natural: *usual, customary, wonted, habitual: *common, ordinary, familiar: conventional, formal (see CEREMONIAL): *decorous, decent, seemly, proper error, mistake, blunder, slip, lapse, faux pas, bull, howler, boner are comparable when they denote something (as an act, statement, or belief) that involves a departure from what is, or what is generally held to be, true, right, or proper. Error implies a straying from a proper course and suggests such guilt as may lie in failure to take proper advantage of a guide (as a record or manuscript, a rule or set of rules, or a principle, law, or code); thus, a typographical error results when a compositor misreads a manuscript; an error in addition involves some failure to follow the rules for addition; an error in conduct is an infraction of an accepted code of manners or morals <those who, with sincerity and generosity, fight and fall in an evil cause, posterity can only compassionate as victims of a generous but fatal error—Scott> <without understanding grievous and irrepairable errors can be made—Donald Harrrington> Mistake implies misconception, misunderstanding, a wrong but not always blameworthy judgment, or inadvertence; it expresses less severe criticism than error <he made a serious mistake when he chose the law as his profession>  <there is a medium between truth and falsehood, and (I believe) the word mistake expresses it exactly. I will therefore say that you were mistaken—Cowper> Blunder is harsher than mistake or error; it commonly implies ignorance or stupidity, sometimes blameworthiness <we usually call our blunders mistakes, and our friends style our mistakes blunders—Wheatley> <one's translation is sure to be full of gross blunders, but the supreme blunder is that of translating at all when one is trying to catch not a fact but a feeling—Henry Adams> Slip carries a stronger implication of inadvertence or accident than mistake and often, in addition, connotes triviality <the wrong date on the check was a slip of the pen>  Often, especially when it implies a transgression against morality, the word is used euphemistically or ironically <let Christian's slips before he came hither . . . be a warning to those that come after—Bunyan> <the minister . . . comes when people are in extremis, but they don't send for him every time they make a slight moral slip—tell a lie, for instance, or smuggle a silk dress through the customhouse—Holmes> Lapse, though sometimes used interchangeably with slip, stresses forgetfulness, weakness, or inattention more than accident; thus, one says a lapse of memory or a slip of the pen, but not vice versa <writes well, despite occasional lapses into polysyllabic humor—Geographical Jour.> When used in reference to a moral transgression, it carries a weaker implication of triviality than slip and a stronger one of a fall from grace or from one's own standards <for all his . . . lapses, there was in him a real nobility, an even ascetic firmness and purity of character—Ellis> Faux pas is most frequently applied to a mistake in etiquette <she was carefully instructed so that there was no danger of her making a faux pas when she was presented at the Court of St. James's> <John and I, horrified, hustled him out before he could commit any further faux pas—S. H. Adams> Bull, howler, and boner all three are rather informal terms applicable to blunders (and especially to blunders in speech or writing) that typically have an amusing aspect. A bull may be a grotesque blunder in language typically characterized by some risible incongruity <the well-known bull stating that "one man is just as good as another—and sometimes more so"> or it may be a mere stupid or gauche blunder <he really committed a bull when he solemnly introduced his new friend to the latter's ex-wife> A howler is a gross or ludicrous error based on ignorance or confusion of ideas; the term is used especially of laughable errors in scholastic recitations or examinations   A boner may be a grammatical,logical, or factual blunder in a piece of writing that is usually so extreme as to be funny  or it may be a ridiculous or embarrassing slip of the kind that results from a sudden lapse (as of attention or from tact or decorum) <is the proprietor of a large and varied selection of diplomatic boners—Rosenthal> escape vb 1 Escape, flee, fly, decamp, abscond mean to run away especially from something which limits one's freedom or threatens one's well-being. Escape so stresses the idea of flight from confinement or restraint that it very often conveys no suggestion of wrongdoing or of danger <one of the most powerful motives that attract people to science and art is the longing to escape from everyday life—Ellis> <eager to escape from the army and go back to his hometown—Wecter> Flee implies haste and often abruptness in departure <there was evidence that the burglars had been frightened and had fled> It often connotes disappearance, especially when extended to things <the mists fled before the rising sun> Fly is interchangeable with flee but its use is restricted in idiomatic English to the present tense <fly, father, fly! for all your friends are fled—Shak.> Decamp usually suggests a sudden departure to elude discovery or arrest; it commonly carries a disparaging or belittling connotation <having imparted my situation to my companion, she determined to be a poet at any price, he absconded from college with his clothes and took refuge in a lonely farm-house—Brooks> Con *follow, chase, pursue, trail, tag 2 Escape, avoid, evade, elude, shun, escape are comparable when meaning to get away or to keep away from something which one does not wish to incur, endure, or encounter.

Escape when referred to persons (sometimes to animals) usually implies a threat to their liberty or well-being; in this sense it may not imply running away from or even an effort to miss what threatens, but it does suggest the latter's imminence or likelihood. escape suspicion escape discovery escape family tendency to tuberculosis escape annoyance escape a blow by dodging it few fish can escape this net When extended to things and especially to inanimate or intangible things escape connotes something comparable to a net which holds and confines yet permits passage through it (details which escape the mind

Avoid in contrast with escape, suggests a keeping clear of what one does not wish to risk or knows to be a source of danger, rather than a getting away from what actually threatens; thus, one may escape suspicion by avoiding persons or places that are being watched; one may avoid all seeking sources of sentient yet not escape infection he kept himself somewhat aloof, seeming to avoid notice rather than to court it—Arnold

Avoid, however, is often used interchangeably with escape; it may be preferred when a danger is averted by forethought, prudence, or caution mother and son avoided an open rupture by never referring to their differences—Santayana by pooling our difficulties, we may at least avoid the failures which come from conceiving the problems of government to be simpler than they are—Frankfurter

Evade implies escape or the intent to escape, but it also commonly suggests avoidance by the use of adroit, ingenious, or, sometimes, underhand means; thus, one evades suspicion who escapes it by spreading rumors that throw others under.

Authorize avoid its claims are simple and cannot be evaded Con deny

Comes closer to escape than to avoid but stresses a slippery or baffling quality in the thing which gets away or cannot be captured whose secret presence, through creation's veins running quicksilverlike, eludes your pains—FitzGerald for are we not all fated to pursue ideals which seem eternally to elude us—L. P. Smith

Elude however, is sometimes used in place of * evade* when there is a strong suggestion of shiftness or unreliability or of the use of stratagems she is adept in eluding her obligations in the game of hide-and-seek the players try to elude discovery by the one seeking their hiding places

Shun differs from avoid chiefly in its added implication of an abhorrence or aversion that is sometimes temperamental in its origin but oftentimes rational and dictated by conscience, experience, or sense of prudence llepens shunned and rebuffed by the world—Heiser to shun for his health the pleasures of the table—Quiller-Couch thus have I shunned the fire for fear of burning—Shak I used to live entirely for pleasure. I shunned suffering and sorrow of every kind—Wilde

Eschew comes very close to shun in meaning but tends to stress practical, moral, or prudential rather than temperamental reasons for the avoidance trained to eschew private passions and pursuits—Mower what cannot be eschewed must be embraced—Shak observers . . . thought that capitalists would eschew all connection with what must necessarily be a losing concern—Macaulay in their use, except that theme is more often employed in colleges and high schools and composition in the lower schools, there can be a real difference in the implications of the words. Theme may imply the development and elaboration of a definite subject; its tests are chiefly adequacy, as evidenced by its completeness of treatment within limitations, and readability, as evidenced by its power to interest those who read it and impress its points on their minds. Composition, on the other hand, implies organization of details, facts, and ideas or sometimes of sentences and paragraphs so that the result is a unified and clear piece of writing.

essential adj 1 inherent, intrinsic, constitutional, ingrained

Ana innate, inborn, inbred, congenital: inner, inward: elemental (see ELEMENTARY): characteristic, individual, peculiar, distinctive

Ant accidental —Con adventitious, fortuitous, incidental (see ACCIDENTAL): contingent, dependent, conditional

2 Essential, fundamental, vital, cardinal mean so important as to be indispensable. Something is essential which belongs to the very nature or essence of a thing and which therefore cannot be removed without destroying the thing itself or its distinguishing character (the essential doctrines of Christianity) (the essential ingredient in a medicine) (the most essential characteristic of mind is memory—Russell) Something is fundamental upon which everything else in a system, institution, or construction is built up, by which the whole is supported, or from which each addition is derived and without which, therefore, the whole construction would topple down (certainly all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and paramount law of the nation—John Marshall) (the power of concentrated attention as the cardinal source of the prodigious productiveness of great workers—Eliot)

Somthing is vital which is as necessary to a thing’s existence, continued vigor, or efficiency as food, drink, and health are to living things (a question the solution of which is vital to human happiness) (the vital interests of a people) (the capture of the fortified town was vital to the invaders) (Germany is extremely important to Russia, but Poland, the gateway of invasion, is vital—Hartmann)* Something is cardinal upon which something else turns or hinges or actively depends; thus, the cardinal virtues (prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice, and sometimes, patience and humility) are not, in Christian theology, the highest virtues (which are the Christian virtues faith, hope, and charity), but they are fundamental and without them moral progress would be impossible (cardinal arguments in a brief) (the cardinal defects in a character) (cardinal events are not to be forgotten—De Quincey) (I repeat this sentence, with emphasis on its cardinal words—Darrow)*

Ana basic, basal, underlying, *fundamental: principal, foremost, capital, *chief, main, leading: prime, primary, primal

Con subordinate, secondary, dependent: auxiliary, subsidiary, accessory, contributory, subservient

3 *indispensable, requisite, necessary, needful

Ana required, needed, wanted (see LACK vb)

Ant nonessential

establish 1 set, settle, fix

Ana implant, inculcate, instill: secure, rivet, anchor, moor

Ant uproot (a tree, a habit, a practice): abrogate (a right, a privilege, a quality)—Con eradicate, extirpate, wipe, exterminate

2 found, institute, organize

Ana start, inaugurate, begin, commence, initiate

Ant abolish (a society, an institution)

estimate n respect, admiration, regard

Ana honor, homage, reverence, deference, obeisance: veneration, reverence, worship, adoration (see under REVERE)

Ant abomination: contempt —Con despite, scorn, disdain (see under DESPISE): abhorrence, loathing, hatred, *hate, detestation (see under HATE vb)

esteem vb respect, admire, regard (see under REGARD n)

Ana prize, value, *appreciate, treasure, cherish: revere, reverence, venerate

Ant abominate —Con abhor, loathe, *hate, detest: contempt, *despise, scorn, disdain

estimate vb 1 *Estimate, appraise, evaluate, value, rate, assess, assay are comparable when meaning to judge a thing with respect to its worth. Estimate usually implies a personal and sometimes a reasoned judgment which, whether considered or casual, is by the nature of the case neither thoroughly objective nor definitive (we have first to estimate their effects upon complicated social conditions (largely a matter of guesswork)—Dewey) (small and manageable numbers of birds must be counted precisely; huge flocks can only be estimated—Time) (to estimate the Frenchwoman’s moral nature with any approach to adequacy it is necessary to avoid viewing her from an Anglo-Saxon standpoint—Brownell)*

Appraise implies the intent to fix definitely and in the capacity of an expert the monetary worth of the thing in question usually in terms of the price it ought to bring in the market if sold, or in case of its loss (as by fire or theft) the monetary compensation due its owner from an insuring company (appraise the decedent’s real estate) (appraise a fire loss) In extended use appraise, in contrast to estimate, implies an intent to give a final, an accurate, or an expert judgment of a thing’s worth; estimate, therefore, is often preferred by persons speaking of their own judgments because appraise seems presumptuous or pretentious (it is not my business to appraise. Appraisements imply censures and it is not one writer’s business to censure others—F. M. Ford) (this difficulty of appraising literature absolutely inheres in your study of it from the beginning—Quiller-Couch)*

The participial adjective appraising is often used to qualify eye, glance, look; it then suggests close, critical inspection or scrutiny (addressing him with a watchful appraising stare of his prominent black eyes—Conrad) (the monumental and encyclopedic critic is to be regarded with a carefully appraising eye—T. S. Eliot)*

Evaluate, like appraise, suggests an intent to arrive at a mathematically correct judgment; it seldom suggests, however, an attempt to determine a thing’s monetary worth, but rather to find its equivalent in other and more familiar terms (a teacher evaluates a student’s work by marks in numbers or in letters) (many persons find it impossible to evaluate a work of art except in terms of morals) (conventional ethical codes are assumed to be invalid or at least impractical for evaluating life as it is—Walzer)*

Value (see also APPRECIATE) 2 comes very close to appraise in that it also implies an intent to determine or fix the market price but differs from appraise in that it carries no implication of an authoritative or expert judgment and must depend on the context to make that point if it is essential (the appraiser valued at $10,000 condemned property which had already been valued by the owner at $15,000 and by the city at $8000) (experts were called in to appraise the gems which the alleged smuggler had valued at $1000) In extended use and in estimate reference to things not marketable, value is often found with a negative or with a restrictive word such as only; he values success only as a stepping-stone (who values his own honor not a straw—Browning) (valued himself on his tolerance of heresy in great thinkers—Frost) Rate often adds to estimate the implication of fixing in a scale of values (rate one profession above another in usefulness) (rate one person’s qualifications as superior to another’s) (we English are capable of rating him far more correctly if we knew him better—Arnold) Assess implies valuing for the sake of determining the tax to be levied; in extended use it implies a determining of the exact value or extent of a thing prior to judging it or to using it as the ground for a decision (the task of defining that influence or of exactly assessing its amount is one of extraordinary difficulty—Huxley) (striving to assess the many elements upon which Rome’s future depended—Buchan) Assay basically implies chemical analysis for the sake of determining a substance’s (usually a metal’s) quantity, quality, or value; in extended use it implies a critical analysis for the sake of measuring, weighing, and appraising (to assay... changes which the great reformers within and without the Catholic Church accomplished—Randall)

estimate vb guess, surmise (see under CONJECTURE) valuation, evaluation, appraisal, assessment (see corresponding verbs at ESTIMATE)

cost, expense, *price

evaluate vb appraise, value, rate, assess, assay, *estimate ethic *moral, righteous, virtuous, noble etymology *anthropology, archaeology

etiolate vb etiolate the plant (see FRUITLESS)

eschar vb eschar, scab (see under CONJECTURE)

estrange, alienate, disassociate, estrange are comparable when meaning to cause one to break a bond or tie of affection or loyalty. Estrange implies separation with consequent indifference or hostility; alienate may or may not suggest actual separation, but it does imply loss of affection or interest or withdrawal of support and often connotes a diversion of that affection or interest to another object (a little knowledge often estranges men from religion, a deeper knowledge brings them back to it—Inge) (the colossal impudence of his comment on his former and now alienated associate—Lucas) Estrange is preferable when the indifference or hostility is mutual, alienate when the blame can be fixed on one person or on a third person (Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been estranged for a year) (she alienated him by her extravagance) (his affections were alienated by another woman) Disassociate is more often used with reference to groups from whom loyalty is expected or demanded; it stresses such effects of alienation without separation as unrest, discontent, or rebellion (the workers were disassociated by paid agitators) (the disloyalists tried to disassociate the militia, preening their noses—Bowers) Wean implies separation from something which has a strong hold on one or on which one depends in the manner of a nursing on its mother. Unlike the other words, it often suggests merit rather than fault in the person who breaks the bond (wean a person from a bad habit) (to wean your minds from hankering after false Germanic standards—Quiller-Couch) (low prices of movies may have weaned large sections of the public away from the legitimate theater—Messenger)

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ant reconcile —con congregate, propitate, appease, *pacify: unite, *join, link erth *atmosphere, *air, ozone ethereal *airy, aerial

ana *celestial, heavenly, empyreal: tenuous, uncecumcribed ana everlasting, endless, unceasing, interminable: *lasting, perdurable, perpetual, permanent: *immortal, deathless, undying

ana mortal

euth air, atmosphere, *air, ozone euthereal *airy, aerial

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sever, divorce

ana *separate, part, divide, sunder, sev... even adj 1 smooth, *level, flat, plane, plain, flush Ant uneven —Con curving, bending, twisting (see CURVE vb): *crooked, devious: rugged, *rough, scabrous, harsh 2 uniform, equable, *steady, constant Ana *same, equal, identical: continuous, constant, incessant, *continual Con *irregular: varying, changing (see CHANGE vb): fluctuating, wavering, undulating (see SWING vb)
event 1 incident, *occurrence, episode, circumstance Ana *action, act, deed: exploit, *feat, achievement:
*chance, accident, fortune: happening, befalning, transpiring (see Happen) 2 *effect, result, consequence, upshot, aftereffect, aftermath, sequel, issue, outcome eventual ultimate, concluding, terminal, final, *last, latest Ana ensuing, succeeding (see Follow): terminating, closing, ending (see Close vb)

everlasting adj everlasting, endless, interminable, unceasing are comparable when they mean continuing on and on without end. Unlike infinite, eternal, and similar words (see INFINITE), these terms do not presuppose the absence of a beginning, and therefore usually have reference only to continued extent or duration. However, everlasting is often used interchangeably with eternal, differing from it only in placing more stress on the fact of enduring throughout time than on the quality of being independent of time or of all similar human limitations <the eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms—Deut 33:27> <and these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal—Mt 25:46> Therefore, in serious use, everlasting, rather than eternal, is applied to material things or earthly conditions which endure, or seem to endure, forever <see Cromwell damned to everlasting fame—Pope> <these mighty gates of everlasting rock—De Quincey> <each man dreamed of a square meal, new boots, a full powder horn, an end to the everlasting shortages—Mason> In lighter use the word is little more than a hyperbolic term expressing loss of patience or extreme boredom and more often applying to recurrence than to duration or extent <these everlasting headaches> <his everlasting stupidity> Endless is applicable not only to things which continue in time but also in extent; the word is used especially when a circular form or construction is implied <endless belt> or it may imply no known or apparent or determinable end <an endless chain of letters> <an endless road through the mountains> <there has been endless discussion whether we have a distinct faculty for the knowledge of God—Inge> <endless masses of hills on three sides, endless weald or valley on the fourth—Jeffries> Interminable is somewhat uncommon in its sense of having no end or incapable of being brought to an end or termination <the forest trees above were wild with the wind, but the interminable thickets below were never subdued—Thoreau> More often it applies to something so extended or prolonged or protracted that it is exceedingly wearisome or exhausting one's patience <the weeks were interminable, and papa and mamma were clean forgotten—Kipling> <spleen, chagrin, . . . discontent, misanthropy, and all their interminable train of fretfulness, querulousness, suspicions, jealousies—Peacock> Unceasing, like interminable, suggests undue prolonging or protracting, but it emphasizes the extraordinary capacity for going on and on rather than the psychological effect produced (usually on others) by long-continuing activity or continual recurrence <unceasing effort> <Jules de Goncourt . . . died from the mental exhaustion of his unceasing struggle to attain an objective style adequate to express the subtle texture of the world as he saw it—Ellis> Ana eternal, boundless, *infinite: *lasting, perdurable, perpetual: *immortal, deathless, undying Ant transitory —Con *transient, passing, fleeting, fugitive, ephemeral, evanescent, momentary, short-lived every each, *all evict * eject, oust, expel, dismiss Ana *exclude, eliminate, shut out: reject, repudiate, spurn (see DECLINE): *dismiss, fire, cashier, discharge evidence n Evidence, testimony, deposition, affidavit are, in their legal senses, closely related but not synonymous terms. The last three designate forms of evidence, or material submitted to a competent legal tribunal as a means of ascertaining where the truth lies in a question of fact. Evidence also implies the intention of the side offering the material to use it as a basis for inference and argument and as a medium of proof. Testimony is evidence offered by persons (as eyewitnesses or experts) who are in a position to provide pertinent information. It implies declaration under oath or affirmation, usually on the stand in open court. Testimony does not necessarily constitute favorable evidence for the side that calls the witness, for its effect may vary with such matters as inferences that may be drawn from it or its favorable or unfavorable aspects and emphases elicited by cross-examination. Deposition, though occasionally used interchangeably with testimony, is more usually used to designate a form of testimony that replaces testimony in open court or, more often, provides information for pretrial procedures and is given orally in response to questioning by competent officers, taken down in writing, and sworn to or properly affirmed. Affidavit designates a written declaration made upon solemn oath before a recognized magistrate or officer. An affidavit may sometimes be used as testimony, but when so used it is as a rule because a witness cannot take the stand. An affidavit submitted as testimony may be distinguished from a deposition; when used specifically and in contrast with deposition, affidavit always implies that the declaration has been obtained by one side to the dispute and that there has been no cross-examination.
evidence vb evince, manifest, demonstrate, *show Ana *reveal, disclose, betray, divulge: display, exhibit, expose, *show: prove, *indicate, betoken, attest, bespeak evident, manifest, patent, distinct, obvious, apparent, palpable, plain, clear are comparable when they mean readily perceived or apprehended. Evident implies the existence of visible signs, all of which point to the one conclusion; it may be applied to something (as another person's state of mind, a hidden condition, or an imminent event) which is beyond the range of the senses but can be inferred from the outward indications <her evident delight in the gift> <even in his vices the contradiction was evident. His conscience was severe—Carlos Baker> <the sustained impartiality and evident learning of his work—Cheney> Manifest implies an outward revelation or expression or an open exhibition; it is applied as a rule to something which is displayed so clearly that its recognition seemingly involves no inference <this joy in the prospect of departure from the Five Towns, from her . . . was more manifest than she could bear—Bennett> <where the work of such a master [as Milton] is at its best, the greatness of his spirit is most greatly manifest—L. P. Smith> Patent implies an opposition to what is imperceptible or obscure but existent; it therefore is applied to things (as a cause, an effect, a mistake, or an imperfection) which are not invariably or as a class evident or manifest <the seller is required by law to disclose to the buyer latent as well as patent defects in the article sold> <a man is . . . in jeopardy even when the error is patent on the face of the record, as when he is tried on a defective indictment—Justice Holmes) (three very patent reasons for the comparatively slow advance of our children—Grandgent) Distinct (see also DISTINCT) implies such sharpness of outline or of definition that the thing requires no effort of the eyes to see or discern (distinct features) (his handwriting is unusually distinct) or of the ears to hear or interpret (distinct utterance) (distinct enunciation) or of the mind to apprehend or comprehend without confusion (the course of his reasoning is not only evident, it is distinct) (he gave a distinct account of everything that occurred) Obvious stresses ease in discovery or, sometimes, in accounting for and often conceives conspicuousness in what is discovered or little need of perspicacity in the discoverer; it is therefore often applied to something not successfully concealed or something crudely manifest (obvious heirs he had none, any more than he had obvious progenitors—Sackville-West) (the avidity with which he surrendered himself to his perfectly obvious methods—Mary Austin) (acting on the conviction of Mr. Justice Holmes that “at this time we need education in the obvious more than investigation of the obscure”—Frankfurter) Apparent (see also APPARENT 2) is often so close to evident in meaning that the two words are difficult to distinguish. But evident usually implies inference directly from visible signs or effects, and apparent from evidence plus more or less elaborate reasoning; therefore apparent is especially applicable to something which is apprehended through an induction, a deduction, or a similar course of reasoning (the absurdity of their contention is apparent to one who knows the effects produced by the same causes in the past) (as experience accumulated it gradually became apparent that the oils of any of the trees . . . were equally efficacious—Heiser) (deposits of transported material . . . are perhaps the most widely apparent results of the glaciation—Amer. Guide Series: N. H.) Palpable (see also PERCEPTIBLE) basically implies perceptibility through the sense of touch; it is often extended to perception by the other senses, excluding sight, or by the mind and typically suggests ease of perception or readiness of interpretation (tis probable that thou hast never lived, and palpable that thou hast never loved—Garnett) (yet, despite these precautions, a palpable un easiness persists—Moorehead) (beneath it all was a hush, almost palpable—Mailer) Plain and clear are less formal and literal than the preceding terms. Both are applied to something that is immediately apprehended or unmistakable understanding, but plain implies familiarity or distinctness or a lack of intricacy or complexity, while clear suggests an absence of whatever confuses or muddles the mind or obscures the issues (a plain answer to a direct question—Crothers) (yes, that makes much which was dark quite clear to me—Galsworthy) (proof as sharp and clear as anything which is known—Darrow) Ana * perceptible, sensible, palpable, tangible, appreciable, ponderable; conspicuous, prominent, noticeable evil adj * bad, ill, wicked, naughty Ana * base, low, vile: iniquitous, nefarious, flagitious, vicious, villainous, infamous: pernicious, baneful: execrable, damnable Ant exemplary: salutary Vil Evil, ill are comparable when they mean whatever is harmful or disastrous to morals or well-being. Evil is the ordinary term capable of use in all contexts and referable not only to deeds and practices actually indulged in or to conditions actually suffered (leads a life of evil) (the evils of war) (correct the evils in a system of government) but also to motivating desires or acting causes of such deeds, practices, or conditions (think no evil) (shun evil) and to their harmful effects or consequences (the evil that men do lives after them—Shak) (evils which our own misdeeds have wrought—Milton) Evil is also the term in general use for the abstract conception of whatever is the reverse of good, especially of the morally good, or as a designation of whatever is thought of as the reverse of a blessing (able to distinguish good from evil) (the origin of evil) (St. Francis of Assisi accounted poverty a blessing rather than an evil) (evil no nature hath; the loss of good is that which gives to sin a livelihood—Herrick) (evil is not a quality of things as such. It is a quality of our relation to them—Lippmann) Although ill, like evil, may imply an antithesis to good, it is seldom used to designate the abstraction except in a poetic context and in direct contrast to good (O, yet we trust that somehow good will be the final goal of ill—Tennyson) Also, it is now rare in the sense of moral evil. In present use, as in the past, ill is applied chiefly to whatever is distressing, painful, or injurious and is more often used in reference to what is actually suffered or endured than to what may be inflicted or imposed on one (and makes us rather bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of—Shak) (they could never in such a Utopian State feel any other ills than those which arise from bodily sickness—Hume) (there mark what ills the scholar’s life assail—toil, envy, want, the patron, and the jail—Johnson) (servitude, the worst of ills—Cowper) Ant good evince manifest, evidence, demonstrate, *show Ana betoken, *indicate, attest, prove, argue, bespeak: display, exhibit, expose. *show: disclose, *reveal, discover, betray Con * suppress, repress: * hide, conceal evoke elicit, * educate, extract, extort Ana * provoke, excite, stimulate: arouse, rouse, rally, awaken, waken, * stir evolution * development evolve * unfold, develop, elaborate, perfect Ana progress, * advance: mature, develop, ripen exact vb require, * demand, claim Ana * ask, request, solicit: compel, * force, constrain, coerce, oblige exact adj accurate, * correct, right, precise, nice Ana * careful, meticulous, scrupulous, punctilious: agreeing, squaring, tallying, jibing, conforming (see AGREE) exacting adj * onerous, burdensome, oppressive Ana * severe, stern: rigid, rigorous, strict, stringent: arduous, difficult, * hard Ant easy: lenient exaggeration, overstatement, hyperbole all mean an over stepping of the bounds of truth, especially in describing the goodness or badness or the greatness or the smallness of something. Exaggeration does not always or even often imply dishonesty or an intent to deceive on the part of one making a statement, a representation, or a claim; it may merely imply an often temperamental unwillingness to be held down by the facts or a bias, whether favorable or unfavorable, so great that one cannot clearly see or accurately estimate the exact state of affairs depicted (men of great conversational powers almost universally practise a sort of lively sophistry and exaggeration which deceives for the moment both themselves and their auditors—Macaulay) (to say that Mrs. Ralston’s son and daughter were pleased with the idea of Tina’s adoption would be an exaggeration—Wharton) Unlike exaggeration, overstatement rarely carries any hint of depreciation; it is therefore often the term chosen by one desiring to stress the fact of exceeding the truth without any additional implications (this . . . is one of those overstatements of a true principle, often met with in Adam Smith—J. S. Mill) *(if all costs applicable to revenue are charged thereto, overstatement of net income . . . is avoided—Paton & Littleton) *(he invariably avoids overstatement; not for him is the heavy underlining of a musical phrase—N. Y. Times) Hyperbole implies the use of exaggeration as a literary device. Though such use may arise from overpowering emotion, it more often suggests a desire to create a planned impression or particular effect; in either case hyperbole implies obvious extravagance in statement often producing a rhetorical effect that could not be gained otherwise *(the speaking in a perpetual hyperbole is comely in nothing but in love—Bacon) *(an Arabic interpreter expatiated, in florid hyperbole, on the magnanimity and princely qualities of the Spanish king—Prescott) *(that rather startling "terrible" is not hyperbole; it is precisely what Mr. Blackmur means —Mizener) Hyperbole is often used as the name of a figure of speech that produces its effect by overstatement as its opposite, litotes, does by understatement. Ana misrepresentation, untruth (see LIE): *fallacy, sophistry exalt, magnify, aggrandize are comparable when meaning to increase in importance or in prestige. Exalt and magnify always go into comparison in their older sense of to exalt or to glorify *(O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together—Ps 34:3) In modern general use exalt retains its implication of lifting up but emphasizes a raising in a scale of values without necessarily affecting the quality of the thing raised. Therefore one exalts something above another or at the expense of another *(Rousseau's readiness to exalt spontaneity even at the expense of rationality—Babbit) *(there is a valid reason for not preventing games, but . . . not . . . for exalting them into a leading position in the school curriculum—Russell) Magnify stresses increase in size; it commonly suggests an agency (as an optical device) which affects the vision and causes enlargement of apparent size or one (as a vivid imagination) which affects the judgment and leads to exaggeration *(kind, quiet, nearsighted eyes, which his round moons—De land) *(the public opinion which . . . magnifies patriotism into a religion—Browell) Aggrandize emphasizes increase in greatness or mightiness; it implies efforts, usually selfish efforts, directed to the attainment of power, or worldly eminence *(if we aggrandize ourselves at the expense of the Mahrattas—Wellington) *(have we a satisfaction in aggrandizing our families . . . ?—Fielding) *(to those of us who are engaged in constructive research and in invention, there is serious moral risk of aggrandizing what we have accomplished—Wiener) Ana elevate, raise, *lift: heighten, enhance, *intensify: extol, laud, *praise Ant abase —Con demean, debase, degrade, humble, humiliate *(see ABASE): disparage, depreciate, detract, derogate, *decry, belittle, minimize examination inspection, scrutiny, scanning, audit (see under SCRUTINIZE vb) Ana questioning, interrogation, inquiry, catechism, quizzing *or quiz (see corresponding verbs at ASK) examine 1 inspect, *scrutinize, scan, audit Ana *analyze, dissect, resolve: contemplate, observe, survey, *view, notice, note (see SEE) 2 question, interrogate, quiz, catechize, *ask, query, inquire Ana penetrate, probe *(see ENTER): test, try *(see PROVE) example 1 sample, specimen, *instance, case, illustration Con anomaly, *paradox 2 *model, exemplar, pattern, ideal, standard, beau ideal, mirror

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
exceptionable, exceptionable, although not synonyms, are

Excess, superfluity, surplus, surplusage, overplus denote something which goes beyond a limit or bound. Excess applies to whatever exceeds a limit, measure, bound, or accosted degree in measure rein thy joy; scant this excess—Shak. > (the proper point between sufficiency and excess—Henry James) > (I think poetry should surprise by a fine excess—Keats) > Often it specifically implies intemperance or immoderation > (early excesses the frame will recover from—Meredith) > (restrain the excesses of the possessive instinct—Ellis)

Superfluity applies to an excess (as of money, clothes, or possessions) that is above or beyond what is needed or desired (the inventory of thy shirts, as, one for superfluity, and another for use!—Shak) > (I succumb easily to anyone who asks me to buy superfluities and luxuries—Huxley)

Surplus applies to the amount or quantity of something that remains when all that has been needed has been disposed of (as by using, spending, or selling) > (his salary was so small that there was no surplus for investment) > (the problem is how to dispose of the large surplus in this year’s cotton crop) > (huge unused surpluses pile up beyond the reach of consumers—La Barre)

Surplusage may be used in place of surplus but may especially imply wasteful or useless excess > (the subsequent part of the section is mere surplusage, is entirely without meaning, if such is to be the construction—John Marshall) > (say what you have to say . . . with no surplusage—Pater)

Overplus is often used in place of surplus, but it less often implies a remainder than an addition to what is needed > (the overplus of a great fortune—Adams) > (there was no surplus in the field this year) > (the wild overplus of vegetation which was certainly not that of a normal garden—Wyndham Lewis) excessive, immoderate, inordinate, extravagant, exorbitant, extreme are comparable when meaning characterized by going beyond or above its proper, just, or right limit.

Excessive implies an amount, quantity, or extent too great to be just, reasonable, or endurable > (the excessive heat of a midsummer afternoon) > (excessive lenity and indulgence are ultimately excessive rigor—John Knox) > (an excessive penchant for intellectual and verbal hairsplitting—Beach)

Immoderate is often used interchangeably with excessive (immoderate heat) but, distinctively, it may imply lack of restraint especially in the feelings or their expression > (immoderate zeal) > (immoderate laughter)

Mass gave him extreme, I may even say immoderate, satisfaction. It was almost orgiastic—T. S. Eliot

Inordinate implies an exceeding of the bounds or limits prescribed by authority or dictated by good judgment > (the great difficulty of living content is the cherishing of inordinate and unreasonable expectations—T. E. Brown)

I am always staggered . . . by the inordinate snobbery of the English press—Huxley

Extravagant often adds specifically implies intemperance or immoderation > (early excesses the frame will recover from—Meredith) > (there was no surplus for investment) > (the problem is how to dispose of the large surplus in this year’s cotton crop) > (huge unused surpluses pile up beyond the reach of consumers—La Barre)

Surplusage may be used in place of surplus but may especially imply wasteful or useless excess > (the subsequent part of the section is mere surplusage, is entirely without meaning, if such is to be the construction—John Marshall) > (say what you have to say . . . with no surplusage—Pater)

Overplus is often used in place of surplus, but it less often implies a remainder than an addition to what is needed > (the overplus of a great fortune—Adams) > (there was no surplus in the field this year) > (the wild overplus of vegetation which was certainly not that of a normal garden—Wyndham Lewis)

excessive, immoderate, inordinate, extravagant, exorbitant, extreme are comparable when meaning characterized by going beyond or above its proper, just, or right limit.

Excessive implies an amount, quantity, or extent too great to be just, reasonable, or endurable > (the excessive heat of a midsummer afternoon) > (excessive lenity and indulgence are ultimately excessive rigor—John Knox) > (an excessive penchant for intellectual and verbal hairsplitting—Beach)

Immoderate is often used interchangeably with excessive (immoderate heat) but, distinctively, it may imply lack of restraint especially in the feelings or their expression > (immoderate zeal) > (immoderate laughter)

Mass gave him extreme, I may even say immoderate, satisfaction. It was almost orgiastic—T. S. Eliot

Inordinate implies an exceeding of the bounds or limits prescribed by authority or dictated by good judgment > (the great difficulty of living content is the cherishing of inordinate and unreasonable expectations—T. E. Brown)

I am always staggered . . . by the inordinate snobbery of the English press—Huxley

Extravagant often adds specifically implies intemperance or immoderation > (early excesses the frame will recover from—Meredith) > (there was no surplus for investment) > (the problem is how to dispose of the large surplus in this year’s cotton crop) > (huge unused surpluses pile up beyond the reach of consumers—La Barre)

Surplusage may be used in place of surplus but may especially imply wasteful or useless excess > (the subsequent part of the section is mere surplusage, is entirely without meaning, if such is to be the construction—John Marshall) > (say what you have to say . . . with no surplusage—Pater)

Overplus is often used in place of surplus, but it less often implies a remainder than an addition to what is needed > (the overplus of a great fortune—Adams) > (there was no surplus in the field this year) > (the wild overplus of vegetation which was certainly not that of a normal garden—Wyndham Lewis)

excessive, immoderate, inordinate, extravagant, exorbitant, extreme are comparable when meaning characterized by going beyond or above its proper, just, or right limit.

Excessive implies an amount, quantity, or extent too great to be just, reasonable, or endurable > (the excessive heat of a midsummer afternoon) > (excessive lenity and indulgence are ultimately excessive rigor—John Knox) > (an excessive penchant for intellectual and verbal hairsplitting—Beach)

Immoderate is often used interchangeably with excessive (immoderate heat) but, distinctively, it may imply lack of restraint especially in the feelings or their expression > (immoderate zeal) > (immoderate laughter)

Mass gave him extreme, I may even say immoderate, satisfaction. It was almost orgiastic—T. S. Eliot

Inordinate implies an exceeding of the bounds or limits prescribed by authority or dictated by good judgment > (the great difficulty of living content is the cherishing of inordinate and unreasonable expectations—T. E. Brown)

I am always staggered . . . by the inordinate snobbery of the English press—Huxley

Extravagant often adds specifically implies intemperance or immoderation > (early excesses the frame will recover from—Meredith) > (there was no surplus for investment) > (the problem is how to dispose of the large surplus in this year’s cotton crop) > (huge unused surpluses pile up beyond the reach of consumers—La Barre)

Surplusage may be used in place of surplus but may especially imply wasteful or useless excess > (the subsequent part of the section is mere surplusage, is entirely without meaning, if such is to be the construction—John Marshall) > (say what you have to say . . . with no surplusage—Pater)

Overplus is often used in place of surplus, but it less often implies a remainder than an addition to what is needed > (the overplus of a great fortune—Adams) > (there was no surplus in the field this year) > (the wild overplus of vegetation which was certainly not that of a normal garden—Wyndham Lewis)
tract none of the exorbitant desires by which others are enslaved—Spectator (the men who worked in the brick- kilns lived in this settlement, and paid an exorbitant rent to the Judge—Deland) (the law for the renegotiation of war contracts—which will prevent exorbitant profits and assure fair prices to the government—Roosevelt) Extreme implies an excessiveness or extra- gance that seems to reach the end of what is possible; it is often hyperbolic in actual use (the result gave him extreme satisfaction) (the extreme oddness of existence is what reconciles me to it—L. P. Smith) (the most extreme . . . statement of such an attitude would be: nothing is poetry which can be formulated in prose—Day Lewis) (the fascination of crime is perpetual, especially in its extreme form as murder—A. C. Ward) Ana *superfluous, surplus, supernumerary, extra, spare: *intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent: redundant (see WORDY) Ant deficient —Con *meager, scanty, scant, skimpy, Ana *superfluous, surplus, supernumerary, extra, spare: *intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent: redundant (see WORDY)

Excitement may imply a disposing of one thing for another by or as if by the methods of bartering or trading (exchange horses) (the hostile forces exchanged prisoners of war) (exchange farm products for manufactured goods) Sometimes the term specifically implies a substitution of one thing for another without any definite suggestion of bartering or trading (wedding presents are often exchanged by the bride for things of which she has greater need) (well satisfied to exchange the stratified suburb of Hyde Park for the amorphous neighborhood of Halsted Street—Lovett) or an alternation of things by two, sometimes more, persons (exchange letters) (exchange a few words with each other) Interchange is rarely used in place of exchange except when alternation (as in reciprocal giving and receiving) is implied, often with the connotation of a continuous succession (the townspeople and the summer residents interchanged courtesies with each other) (there were repeated cheernings and salutations interchanged between the shore and the ship—Irving) Bandy may imply a careless or casual tossing back and forth or from one to another (a firearm is no toy to be bandied about) and it is often used in place of interchange when vigorous, rapid, and more or less prolonged action is implied (bandy hasty words) (bandy compliments) The term also may imply heated or active discussion or a passing of information from one to another (your name is . . . frequently bandied at table among us—Irving) (the stories they invent . . . and bandy from mouth to mouth!—Dickens)

Excitement *stimulus, stimulant, incitement, impetus Excite *provoke, stimulate, pique, quicken, galvanize Ana *stir, rouse, arouse, rally, waken, awaken: agitation, disturb, perturb, *discompose, disquiet: animate, inspire, fire (see INFORM) Ant soothe, quiet (persons); allay (fears, anxiety) Exclude, debar, blackmail, eliminate, rule out, shut out, disbar are comparable when meaning to prevent someone or something from forming part of something else as a member, a constituent, or a factor. Exclude implies a keeping out of what is already outside: it therefore suggests a prevention of entrance or admission (exclude light from a room by closing the shutters) (exclude a subject from consideration) (exclude a class from certain privileges) Debar implies the existence of a barrier which is effectual in excluding someone or something on the outside from entering into a group, body, or system, from enjoying certain privileges, powers, or prerogatives, or from doing what those not so restrained do naturally or easily (a high wall debarred boys from entering) (the qualifications demanded . . . would be likely to debar 99 percent of the secondary school instructors in America—Grandgent) (the Japanese designer was debarred by instinct and tradition from using the resources of texture and of light and shade—Binyon) Blackball basically implies exclusion from a club or society by vote of its members (originally by putting a black ball into a ballot box) (he was very nearly blackballed at a West End club of which his birth and social position fully entitled him to become a member—Wilde) The term has some extended use, but it usually implies a deliberate decision or effort to exclude a person from social, professional, or economic intercourse. Eliminate differs from the preceding words in implying a getting rid of, or a removal of what is already in, especially as a constituent element or part (eliminate a quantity from an equation) (eliminate a subject from a curriculum) (eliminate a poison from the system) (it is always wise to eliminate the personal equation from our judgments of literature—J. R. Lowell) (in most poets there is an intermittent conflict between the poetic self and the rest of the thing) and it is by reconciling the two, not by eliminating the one, that they can reach their full stature—Day Lewis) Rule out may imply either exclusion or elimination, but it usually suggests a formal or authoritative decision (rule a horse out of a race) (rule out certain candidates for a position) (rule such subjective and moral judgments out of our biology—Kroeker) Shut out may imply exclusion of something by preventing its entrance or admission (close the windows to shut out the rain) or, in sports use, to prevent from scoring (the home team was shut out in the second game) Disbar (often confused with debar) implies the elimination by a legal process of a lawyer from the group of those already admitted to practice, thereby depriving him for cause of his status and privileges. Suspend implies the elimination of a person who is a member of an organization or a student at a school or college, often for a definite period of time and, usually, because of some offense or serious infraction of the rules; the term seldom if ever implies that the case is closed or that readmission is impossible (suspend ten members of a club for nonpayment of dues) (there was but one course: to suspend the man from the exercise of all priestly functions—Cather) Ana *hinder, bar, block: preclude, obviate, ward, *prevent: *banish, exile, ostracize, deport Ant admit (persons): include (things) —Con comprehend, embrace, involve (see INCLUDE) Exclusive *select, elect, picked Ana excluding, eliminating, debaring, shutting out, ruling out (see EXCLUDE): aristocratic, patrician (see corresponding nouns at GENTLEMAN) Ant inclusive —Con cosmopolitan, cosmopolitan, *universal: *common, ordinary, familiar, popular, vulgar Exscogitate weigh, *consider, study, contemplate Ana *ponder, meditate, ruminate, muse: cogitate, reflect, deliberate, speculate, *think Excorticlate *abrade, chafe, fret, gall Ana *strip, divest, denude, bare: flay, *skin: torture, torment, rack (see AFFLICT): tongue-lash, revile, berate (see SCOLD) Excruciating, agonizing, racking mean intensely and, usually, unbearable pain. All are commonly used as strong intensives and applied to pain, suffering, and torture. When used to qualify other things, they mean causing intense pain or suffering. Excruciating carries strong suggestions of acute physical torture or of exquisitely painless sensation <suffered excruciating pain from an abscessed tooth> <excruciating noises> <the heart rending torments of a narrow-minded folk—Amer. Guide Series: Md.>

Agonizing stresses anguish of mind even when it strongly implies physical suffering <an agonizing spasm of pain—a memento mori—shot through me and passed away—W. J. Locke> <lives there a man so firm, who, while his heart feels all the bitter horror of his crime, can reason down its agonizing throb—Burns>

Racking suggests sensations of pulling and straining and tearing comparable to those suffered by a person on the rack <racking pains in the chest>  <racking doubts>

Ana torturing, tormenting, racking (see AFFLICT):

- intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent

exculpate, absolve, exonerate, acquit, vindicate mean to free from a charge or burden. Exculpate implies simply a clearing from blame, often in a matter of small importance <exculpate oneself from a charge of inconsistency> <directly Harding was blameless for what was going on. Indirectly he cannot be wholly exculpated—S. H. Adams>

Absolve implies a release, often a formal release, either from obligations or responsibilities that bind the conscience or from the consequences or penalties of their violation <absolve a person from a promise> <society cannot be absolved of responsibility for its slums> Exculpate implies relief, often in a moral sense, from what is regarded as a load or burden <no reason for exonerating him [a judge] from the ordinary duties of a citizen—Justice Holmes> In general exonerate more frequently suggests such relief from a definite charge that not even the suspicion of wrongdoing remains <exonerate a person charged with theft> Acquit implies a decision in one's favor with reference to a specific charge <acquit a suspect of all participation in a crime> <you do acquit me then of anything wrong? You are convinced that I never meant...>

Vindicate un-<like the preceding words, may have reference to things as well as to persons that have been subjected to attack, suspicion, censure, or ridicule. As here compared (see also MAINTAIN) it implies a clearing through proof of the injustice or the unfairness of such criticism or blame and the exoneration of the person or the justification of the thing <both his knowledge and his honesty were vindicated when the river was discovered—G. R. Stewart> <the... politicians were vindicated on all counts—Rover>

Ana justify, *explain, account, rationalize: acquit, vindicate, *exculpate, absolve, exonerate: *palliate, extenuate, gloze, gloss, whitewash

Ant punish —Con censure, reprove, reprehend, blame, *criticize: chastise, castigate, discipline, chasten, correct (see PUNISH)

excuse n. plea, pretext, *apology, apologia, alibi

Ana explanation, justification, rationalization (see corresponding verbs at EXPLAIN): palliation, extenuation, whitewashing, glossing (see corresponding verbs at PALLIATE)

execrable, damnable, accursed, cursed mean so odious as to deserve cursing or condemning. In actual use they vary little if any in force and only slightly in implications, although usage to a certain extent limits their applications. Execrable is applied chiefly to what is bad beyond description execrable poetry <an execrable performance of Hamlet> <the concurrent possession of great wealth and execrable taste—Wylie> Dammable and accursed are applied most often either to persons, their acts, and their vices or to things that excite righteous indignation and strong condemnation <unless that man in there is to be given a chance of expiation in another life, then capital punishment is a damnable horror—Mackenzie> <accursed tower! accursed fatal hand that hath contrived this woeful tragedy!—Shak.> Cursed varies in dignity, sometimes being applied to what merely excites profanity and sometimes to what is intrinsically worthy of imprecation <merciful powers, restrain in me the cursed thoughts that nature gives way to in repose!—Shak.>

Ana *outrageous, atrocious, heinous, monstrous: *base, low, vile: loathsome, revolting, repulsive, *offensive, repugnant

execute, curse, damn, anathematize, objurgate are comparable when meaning to exact punishment or redress for (an offense) or from (an offender). In polite use execute, pardon, and forgive usually suggest a hope that one is not annoyed. Both execute and condone imply an overlooking or passing over either without censure or without adequate punishment; distinctively, one may execute specific acts (as faults, omissions, or neglects) especially in social or conventional obligations or the person committing them <please execute my interruption> <the injustice with which he had been treated would have excused him if he had resorted to violent methods of redress—Macaulay> but one more often condone either a kind of behavior (as dishonesty, folly, or violence) or a course of conduct or an institution especially when constituting a grave breach of the moral code or a violation of law <we condone everything in this country—private treason, falsehood, flattery, cruelty at home, roguery, and double-dealing—Thackeray> <slavery struck no deep roots in New England soil, perhaps because the nobler half of the New England conscience never condoned it—Replier>

Pardon (opposed to punish) and forgive (opposed to condemn) are often employed interchangeably, but their implications may be distinct. One pardons when one frees from the penalty due for an offense or refrains from exacting punishment for it <pardon ten prisoners at Christmas> <will you pardon my intrusion?> <it became necessary... to fly for our lives...>. We could not look to be pardoned—Hudson> and one forgives when one gives up not only all claim to requital or retribution but also all resentment or desire for revenge <to err is human, to forgive, divine—POPE> <the wrath... is past... and I, lo, I forgive thee, as Eternal God forgives!—Tennyson> Remit is a synonym only in the idiomatic phrase to remit sins, in which it means to free from the punishment due for one's sins.

Ana justify, *explain, account, rationalize: acquit, vindicate, *exculpate, absolve, exonerate: *palliate, extenuate, gloze, gloss, whitewash

Ant punish —Con censure, reprove, reprehend, blame, *criticize: chastise, castigate, discipline, chasten, correct (see PUNISH)

excuse n. plea, pretext, *apology, apologia, alibi

Ana explanation, justification, rationalization (see corresponding verbs at EXPLAIN): palliation, extenuation, whitewashing, glossing (see corresponding verbs at PALLIATE)

execrable, damnable, accursed, cursed mean so odious as to deserve cursing or condemning. In actual use they vary little if any in force and only slightly in implications, although usage to a certain extent limits their applications. Execrable is applied chiefly to what is bad beyond description execrable poetry <an execrable performance of Hamlet> <the concurrent possession of great wealth and execrable taste—Wylie> Dammable and accursed are applied most often either to persons, their acts, and their vices or to things that excite righteous indignation and strong condemnation (unless that man in there is to be given a chance of expiation in another life, then capital punishment is a damnable horror—Mackenzie> <accursed tower! accursed fatal hand that hath contrived this woeful tragedy!—Shak.> Cursed varies in dignity, sometimes being applied to what merely excites profanity and sometimes to what is intrinsically worthy of imprecation <merciful powers, restrain in me the cursed thoughts that nature gives way to in repose!—Shak.>

Ana *outrageous, atrocious, heinous, monstrous: *base, low, vile: loathsome, revolting, repulsive, *offensive, repugnant

execute, curse, damn, anathematize, objurgate are comparable when meaning to denounce violently and indignantly. Execute implies intense loathing or hatred and, usually, a fury of passion <they execute... their lot—Cowper> <execrated the men who were responsible for their misery> It often suggests acts as well as words which give an outlet to these emotions <for a little while he was executed in Rome; his statues were overthrown, and his name was blotted from the records—Buchan>

Curse in reference to earlier custom may imply an invocation to the Supreme Being to visit deserved punish-execute 308

exemption to a person or to afflict him for his sins (the that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him: but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it—Prov 11:26)

In more general use curse and damn (see also sentence) do not markedly differ in meaning. Both usually imply angry denunciation by blasphemous oaths or profane imprecations (I heard my brother damn the coachman, and curse the maids—Defoe) Anathematize implies solemn denunciation (as of an evil, a heresy, or an injustice). It is used chiefly in reference to the impassioned denunciations of preachers or moralists (anathematize the violation of a treaty) (anathematize graff in politics)

A quasi realism which has been anathematized by the empirical foundations and purposes of realistic philosophy—Nemetz

Objureate implies a vehement decrinal or criticism (objurated the custom of garnishing poems with archaism—T. R. Weiss) and often suggests the use of harsh or violent language in the expression of one's views so that it may approach curse or damn in some of its uses (command all to do their duty. Command, but not objurigate—Taylor) (violently had he objurigated that wretch of a groom—Vaughan)

Ana denounce, condemn, reprobate, censure, reprehend (see criticize); revile, berate, rate (see scold)

Cure *commend, appraise, compliment, recommend: *praise, laud, eulogize, eulogize evaluate 1 effect, fulfill, complete, finish, conclude, *realize, actuate, *execute, effect, fulfill, discharge, *perform, accom-

effect, fulfill, complete, finish, conclude, *realize, actuate, execute, perform, accomplish, achieve

Ana complete, finish, conclude, *close: *realize, actuate, externalize, objectify

2 *kill, dispatch, slay, murder, assassinate exemplar pattern, ideal, beau ideal, example, *model, mirror, standard

Ana apotheosis, *paragon, nonpareil, nonsuch: type, symbol exemplify, illustrate are comparable when they mean to use in speaking or writing concrete instances or cases to make clear something which is difficult, abstract, general, or remote from experience or to serve as an instance, case, or demonstration of a point or matter under examination. Exemplify implies the use of examples for clarification of a general or abstract statement or as aid in revealing the truth of a proposition or assertion (a good preacher usually exemplifies each point that he seeks to impress upon his congregation) (the notes of Coleridge exemplify Coleridge's fragmentary and fine perceptions—T. S. Eliot) (each, in his way, exemplifies the peril that besets a highly gifted poetic nature—Lowes)

Illustrate implies the use not only of concrete examples but also sometimes of pictures or sketches and the intent not only to clarify but to make vivid or real what is being explained or to drive home most effectively a point that is being made (the textbook is adequately illustrated with photographs and diagrams) (I will illustrate the word a little further—J. R. Lowell) (the assertion...lean... support... truth conveyed in those words of Cicero, and wonderfully illustrates and confirms them—Arnold) (the world was no more made to serve us by illustrating our philosophy than we were made to serve the world by licking its boots—Santayana)

exemption, immunity are comparable when meaning the act or fact of freeing or the state of being free or freed from something burdensome, disagreeable, or painful. Exemption is more restricted in its meaning, for it applies usually to a release from some legal or similarly imposed obligation or burden to which others in the same circumstances and not similarly freed are liable (married men with families may apply for exemption from military service) (they have no vices, but they buy that exemption at a price, for one is inclined to ask whether...they really have any virtues—Ellis) Immunity covers all cases for which an exemption may be given or obtained, but the term carries so strong an implication of privilege and of freedom from certain common restrictions that it is often used in reference to persons or classes of persons especially favored by the law or by nature (entitled to the rights of a citizen, and clothed with all the rights and immunities which the Constitution and laws of the State attached to that character—Tanner) (the question of the immunities of the clergy had been publicly raised—Froude) (the man of creative imagination pays a ghastly price for all his superiorities and immunities—Mencken)

exercise n practice, drill (see under practice vb)

Ana *act, action, deed: using or use, employment, utilization, application (see corresponding verbs at use): operation, functioning, behavior (see corresponding verbs at act)

exercise vb *practice, drill

Ana *use, employ, utilize: display, exhibit, *show: wield, ply, manipulate, *handle exertion *effort, pains, trouble

Ana labor, toil, travail, *work, grind, drudgery: struggle, striving, endeavor (see under attempt vb)

Con relaxation, *rest, repose, leisure, ease: inactivity, inertness or inertia, idleness (see corresponding adjectives at inactive)

exhaust vb 1 drain, *deplete, impoverish, bankrupt

Ana sap, undermine, *weaken: consume, absorb, engross, *monopolize: dissipate, disperse, dispel, *scatter

Con conserve, preserve, *save: restore (see renew)

2 fatigue, jade, weary, *tire, fag, tucker

Ana *unnervre, enervate,emasculate: disable, cripple, debilitate, enfeeble, *weaken

Con refresh, restore, rejuvenate, *renew: vivify, *quicken, animate, enliven exhibit vb display, expose, *show, parade, flaunt

Ana *reveal, disclose, discover, divulge: *show, manifest, evidence, evince, demonstrate

Con *suppress, repress: *hide, conceal, secrete, bury exhibit n *exhibition, show, exposition, fair exhibition, show, exhibit, exposition, fair are comparable when meaning a public display of objects of interest. Exhibition and, less often in strictly formal use except in art circles, show are applicable to any such display of objects of art, manufacture, commerce, or agriculture or to a display (as by pupils, members, or associates) of prowess or skill (as in gymnastics, oratory, or music) (the annual exhibition of the Academy of Fine Arts) (an exhibition of Navaho blankets) (a one-man show of paintings) (a gymnastic exhibition) (a cattle show) (an industrial exhibition) Exhibit typically denotes an object or collection displayed by a single person, group, or organization in an exhibition (our club had a fine exhibit in the school fair) but in some uses it is not clearly distinct from exhibition or show, since the scope of an exhibit may vary from a single object to a collection co-extensive with an exhibition; thus, an artist might present a one-man show which would be at once an exhibition and an exhibit of his work. Exposition is the usual term for a very large exhibition, especially one involving the participation of many states and countries (the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893) (the annual Eastern States Exposition at West Springfield, Massachu-

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
exhort

*urge, egg, goad, spur, prod, prick, sic

Anna: plead, appeal (see under PRAYER); entreat, implore, beseech (see Beg): stimulate, excite, *provoke: advise, counsel (see under ADVICE n)

exigency

1 pass, emergency, pinch, strait, crisis, contingency, *juncture

Anna: *difficulty, vicissitude, rigor, hardship: *predication, plight, fix, quandary, dilemma, jam, pickle, scrape 2 necessity, *need

Anna: demanding or demand, requirement, exacting or exactation, claiming or claim (see corresponding verbs at DEMAND): compulsion, coercion, constraint, duress (see FORCE n)

exigent

*pressing, urgent, imperative, crying, imperative, *need

Anna: *state, condition, situation, status: subsisting or existent

exigent

6 onerous, burdensome, oppressive, exacting: greedy, grasping, *covetous: extorting or extortionate

Anna: *onerous, burdensome, oppressive, exacting: greedy, grasping, *covetous: extorting or extortionate

Anna: *state, condition, situation, status: subsisting or existent

exigent

*state, condition, situation, status: subsisting or existent

Anna: *state, condition, situation, status: subsisting or existent

Anna: nonexistence

Anna: *state, condition, situation, status: subsisting or existent, living or life (see corresponding verbs at BE)

Anna: nonexistence

exonerate

acquit, vindicate, absolve, *exculpate

Anna: *relieve, lighten, alleviate: *excuse, remit

Anna: charge (a person with a task, a duty, a crime)

exorbitant

inordinate, extravagant, *excessive, immoderate, extreme

Anna: *onerous, burdensome, oppressive, exacting: greedy, grasping, *covetous: extorting or extortionate

Anna: *onerous, burdensome, oppressive, exacting: greedy, grasping, *covetous: extorting or extortionate

Anna: just (price, charge) —Con *fair, equitable: reasonableness: preambles, preface, *introduction, foreword, prologue, prelude expand, amplify, swell, distend, inflate, dilate mean to increase or to cause to increase in size, bulk, or volume.

Expand is the most inclusive term in this group and may often be used interchangeably with any of the others. It distinctively implies enlargement by opening out, unfolding, or spreading and may be used when the enlarging force is either internal or external (tulips expand in the sun) (the flag expanded in the breeze) (expand a sponge by soaking it in water) (expand one's chest by breathing deeply) (their business is expanding) Amplify implies extension of something which is inadequate or obscure (as by filling out with details or by magnifying the volume) (amplify a statement by adding details) (devices for amplifying sounds) (the author follows the Vulgate narrative closely . . . but amplifies and embroiders—Saintsbury) Swell implies expansion beyond a thing's original circumference or normal limits (warm spring rains cause the leaf buds to swell) (the river is swelling) (his hand is swollen) (gifts to swell the endowment fund) Often it implies increase in intensity, force, or volume (the laughter swelled to hooting—Galsworthy) (Caesar's ambition, which swelled so much that it did almost stretch the sides of the world—Shak.) or it may imply puffing up or puffing out to the point of bursting (swollen veins) (his heart swollen with pride) Distend implies swelling caused by pressure from within forcing extension outward in all directions. It may presuppose a previous void or flaccid state (a rubber bag distends when filled with water) (sails distended by the wind) or it may imply an exceeding of normal bounds (a stomach distended by gas) (like the flesh of animals distended by fear—Cather) (the bat's body was so distended that it appeared spherical—Dimmick & Greenhall) Inflate usually implies distention by artificial means (as by the introduction of gas or by puffing up with something as insubstantial or as easily dissipated as gas) (inflate a balloon) (inflate values) (an inflated idea of one's own importance) (poems . . . so inflated with metaphor, that they may be compared to the gaudy bubbles blown up from a solution of soap—Goldsmith) (the psychological problems of inflated national ego, heroic delusions of grandeur, and theories of historical inevitability—Newhall) Dilate implies expansion in diameter; it therefore suggests a widening out of something circular rather than a puffing up of something globular or spherical (as round a pebble into water thrown dilates a ring of light—Longfellow) (half-frightened, with dilated eyes—Tennyson) (some stirring experience . . . may swiftly dilate your field of consciousness—Montague)

Anna: enlarge, *increase, augment: *extend, protract, prolong

Anna: contract: abridge (a book, article): circumscribe (a range, a scope, a power) expanse, amplitude, spread, stretch are comparable when they denote an area or range of considerable or conspicuous extent. Expanse is applied chiefly to vast areas open to view and usually uniform in character (pure as the expanse of Heaven—Milton) (thy mariners explore the wide expanse—Cowper) (great expanse of country spread around and below—D. H. Lawrence) Amplitude implies in general use an amplenness in what it describes and suggests relative largeness (as in size or range) (with a face dark and proud as a Borgia's, though not cruel; with a figure of noble amplitude—Donn Byrne) (the amplitude of his vision found supreme expression in a style that is meticulous, colorful, and luminous—Millett) or greatness (as in character or quality) ⟨he displayed a Miltonic amplitude of ambition and style—Bush⟩ (a red-curtained English inn . . . stood sideways in the road, as if standing aside in the amplitude of hospitality—Chesterston⟩ but in technical contexts in which the word is specifically applied to the range of a variable (as wavelength or a statistical array) the notion of amleness has given way to that of magnitude, and amplitude means no more than size or extent ⟨the size or extent of the swing is given as the amplitude of the pendulum—Taffel⟩ ⟨the maximum distance the curve rises above or falls below the horizontal axis . . . is known as its amplitude—F. E. Seymour & P. J. Smith⟩ Spread is applied to an expanse drawn out in all directions ⟨the water . . . a ripply spread of sun and sea—Browning⟩ ⟨a trackless spread of moor—Blackmore⟩ ⟨under the immense spread of the starry heavens—Stevenson⟩ Stretch is applied to an expanse in one of its two dimensions ⟨the beach was a narrow stretch of sand⟩ ⟨a stretch of farmland extending as far as the distant mountains⟩ ⟨the great stretches of fields that lay beside the road—Anderson⟩

expansive *elastic, resilient, buoyant, volatile, effervescent

Ana exuberant, luxuriant, lavish, prodigal (see PROFUSE): generous, *liberal, bountiful, bounteous, open-handed: exalted, magnified, aggrandized (see EXALT) Ant tense: reserved —Con *stiff, inflexible, rigid: stern, austere, *severe: taciturn, *silent, reticent

expatiate *discourse, descant, dilate

Ana *speak, talk, converse: *expand, amplify: *dissuade, argue, dispute: expand, *explain: *relate, narrate, recount, recite, rehearse

expatiate vb exile, *banish, ostracize, deport, transport, extradite

Ant repatriate

expect, hope, look, await are comparable when they mean to have something in mind as more or less certain to happen or come about. They vary, however, so greatly in their implications and in their constructions that they are seldom interchangeable. Expect usually implies a high degree of certainty, but it also involves the idea of anticipation (as by making preparations or by envisioning what will happen, one will find, or what emotions one will feel) ⟨he told his mother not to expect him for dinner⟩ ⟨she had reason to expect that the trip would be exciting⟩ ⟨he seems to require and expect goodness in one will feel) ⟨he was told it was not advisable ⟨purely for expedient reasons he let the Iroquois alone—Hervey Allen⟩ Consequently expedient is often opposed to right, the former suggesting a choice determined by temporal ends, the latter one determined by ethical principles (too fond of the right to pursue the expedient—Goldsmith) Something is political which is the judicious course, action, or method from the practical point of view. Though often used interchangeably with expedient, political may be applied discriminately to choices involving tactics or the effective handling of persons, and expedient to choices involving strategy, or the gaining of definite and usually immediate advantages accrue. Originally and still occasionally the word carries no derogatory implication ⟨it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you—Jn 16:7⟩ In its sense development expedient came to imply determination by immediate conditions and to mean necessary or suitable under present circumstances ⟨there shall be appointed . . . such number of . . . justices of the peace as the president of the United States shall, from time to time, think expedient—John Marshall⟩ As a result expedient now commonly implies opportuneness (sometimes with a strong hint of timeserving) as well as advantageousness ⟨they decided that it was not expedient (that is, neither opportune nor of advantage) to interfere now⟩ Very frequently also it connotes such an ulterior motive as self-interest ⟨purely for expedient reasons he let the Iroquois alone—Hervey Allen⟩ Consequently expedient is often opposed to right, the former suggesting a choice determined by temporal ends, the latter one determined by ethical principles (too fond of the right to pursue the expedient—Goldsmith) Something is political which is the judicious course, action, or method from the practical point of view. Though often used interchangeably with expedient, political may be applied discriminately to choices involving tactics or the effective handling of persons, and expedient to choices involving strategy, or the gaining of objectives ⟨the move was a political one, for it served to win friends to the cause and to placate its enemies⟩ ⟨Community of race . . . is mainly a political fiction, at least in countries of European civilization, in which the races are inextricably mixed up—Encyc. Brit.⟩ Like expedient, however, political often implies material motives ⟨whether it is not your interest to make them happy . . . ⟩ Is a political act the worse for being a generous one?—Burke Something is advisable which is expedient in the original, undergraduous sense of that word. Advisable has now nearly lost its original derivative sense and is preferred by writers or speakers who wish to avoid any of the unpleasant implications of expedient or of political ⟨I don't think that it's altogether advisable to mention Dickens in a sermon. . . . Some people might be offended at mentioning a novelist in church—Mackenzie⟩ (he was told it was not advisable to drive on through the mountains because of the night fogs—Sylvester) Ana advantageous, *beneficial, profitable: useful, utilitarian (see corresponding nouns at USE): *seasonal, opportune, timely, well-timed: feasible, practicable,

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
expedient

*possible

\textbf{Ant} inexpedient — \textbf{Con} detrimental, deleterious (see \textit{pernicious}); harming or harmful, hurting or hurtful, injuring or injurious (see corresponding verbs at \textit{injure}); *futile, vain, fruitless

\textbf{expedient} \textit{n} *resource, resort, shift, makeshift, stopgap, substitute, surrogate

\textit{Ana} *device, contrivance, contraption: *mean, agency, instrument, instrumentality, medium

\textbf{expedition} 1 dispatch, speed, *haste, hurry

\textit{Ana} *celerity, legerity, alacrity: agility, nimbleness, briskness (see corresponding adjectives at \textit{agile})

\textbf{Ant} procrastination — \textbf{Con} delaying or delay, retarding or retardation, slowing, slackening (see corresponding verbs at \textit{delay})

2 *journey, voyage, tour, trip, jaunt, excursion, cruise, pilgrimage

\textbf{expeditious} speedy, swift, *fast, rapid, fleet, quick, hasty

\textit{Ana} efficient, *effective, efficacious, effectual: brisk, *agile, nimble: *quick, ready, prompt

\textbf{Ant} sluggish — \textbf{Con} inefficient, *ineffective, inefficacious, inefficacious: *slow, dilatory, leisurely, laggard, deliberate

\textbf{expel} *eject, oust, dismiss, evict

\textit{Ana} *banish, exile, ostracize: *dismiss, discharge, cashier, fire: *discard, cast: *exclude, shut out, eliminate

\textbf{Ant} admit (sense 1)

\textbf{expend} *spend, disburse

\textit{Ana} *pay, repay, compensate, reimburse, remunerate: *distribute, dispense

\textbf{expense} cost, *price, charge

\textbf{expensive} *costly, dear, valuable, precious, invaluable, priceless

\textit{Ana} exorbitant, extravagant, *excessive, immoderate

\textbf{Ant} inexpensive

\textbf{experience} \textit{vb} Experience, undergo, sustain, suffer are comparable when they mean to pass through the process of actually coming to know or to feel. \textit{Experience} means little more than this. It implies that something (as a sensation, an emotion, or an occasion) is known not from hearsay but from an actual living through it or going through it \textit{the disgust he had inspired in me before . . . was a weak and transient feeling to what I now experience—Hudson} \textit{we cannot experience the sweetness of a single molecule of sugar, nor the smell of a single molecule of musk—Jeans} \textit{Undergo} carries a strong implication of bearing or enduring or of being subjected to that is almost lacking in \textit{experience}; it frequently takes as an object a distressing experience (as pain, suffering, or hardships) when the subject names a person \textit{undergo great disappointment} \textit{undergo a serious operation} \textit{his fine spirit was broken by the anxieties he had undergone—Martinneau} \textit{the search for truth . . . makes men and women content to undergo hardships—Eliot} But when it is used with objects which represent a process which covers years or ages of time, it comes closer to \textit{experience} in meaning, though it seldom takes an individual as its subject \textit{a man experiences a change of heart, but a race undergoes changes which are not apparent for many generations} Very occasionally, when the idea of submission to or imposition upon is stressed, the subject of \textit{undergo} in the active voice may be impersonal \textit{the bridge must undergo inspection before it is accepted by the government} \textit{Sustain} suggests undergoing infliction or imposition without implying as a necessary concomitant courage in resisting or enduring \textit{sustain a great loss through fire} \textit{sustain an injury} \textit{the two dropped supine into chairs at opposite corners of the ring as if they had sustained excessive fatigue—Shaw} \textit{must be prepared to sustain heavy losses—Bliven b. 1889} \textit{Suffer}, which is frequently used interchangeably with \textit{sustain} in this sense, carries a more marked implication of the harm done or injury wrought and is preferable when what is affected is a thing; moreover, \textit{suffer} may also be used intransitively \textit{all suffered the same fate} \textit{the very language of France has suffered considerable alterations since you were conversant in French books—Burke} \textit{a great author necessarily suffers by translation—Inge} Sometimes \textit{suffer} loses its distinctive quality and is then nearly equal to \textit{experience} \textit{Gard suffered an odd impulse to get up and kick his chair over—Mary Austin} \textit{most or all genes suffer mutational changes from time to time—Dobzhansky}

\textit{Ana} *see, perceive, behold, view, survey

\textbf{expert} \textit{adj} *proficient, adept, skilled, skillful, masterly

\textit{Ana} practiced, drilled (see \textit{practice vb}): trained, schooled (see \textit{teach}): *dexterous, deft, adroit

\textbf{Ant} amateurish — \textbf{Con} inept, maladroit, *awkward, clumsy

\textbf{expert} \textit{n} Expert, adept, artist, artiste, virtuoso, wizard are comparable when they designate a person who shows mastery in a subject, an art, or a profession or who reveals extraordinary skill in execution, performance, or technique. \textit{Expert} implies successful experience, broad knowledge of one’s subject, and distinguished achievements; it is applied specifically to one who is recognized as an authority in his field \textit{an expert in city planning} \textit{a handwriting expert} \textit{this problem in triangulation was extremely difficult, and an expert in geodesy was brought from the United States—Heiser} \textit{in philosophy he naturally looks for guidance to the experts and professionals—James} \textit{Adept} connotes understanding of the mysteries of some art or craft or penetration into secrets beyond the reach of exact science \textit{thou art an adept in the difficult lore of Greek and Frank philosophy—Shelley} \textit{it tends to imply sublyte or ingenuity \textit{he is an adept in intrigue} \textit{he is an adept at evasion} \textit{an adept at understatement—Buchan} \textit{Artist} stresses creative imagination and extraordinary skill in execution or in giving outward form to what the mind conceives. More than any other word in this group it stresses skill in performance and the factors (as perfection in workmanship, loving attention to detail, and a feeling for material) that are pertinent thereto \textit{the good craftsman . . . becomes an artist in so far as he treats his materials also for themselves . . . and is perpetually besieged by dreams of beauty in his work—Alexander} \textit{it came to pass that after a time the artist was forgotten, but the work lived—Schreiner} \textit{Artist} applies especially to public performers (as actors, singers, and dancers) but may occasionally be applied to workers in crafts where aptness and taste are indispensable to distinguished achievement \textit{that manner is an artiste} \textit{groups of artistes rehearsing every kind of act—Bambrick} \textit{Virtuso}, though often close to \textit{artist} in meaning, stresses the outward display of great technical skill or brilliance in execution rather than the inner passion for perfection or beauty. It is applied chiefly to performers on musical instruments and especially to pianists, violinists, and cellists \textit{the compositions of Liszt are the delight of virtuosos} \textit{this precise evocation of forms and colors by the great virtuosos of description—Babbit} \textit{Wizard} implies such skill and knowledge or such excellence in performance as seems to border on the magical \textit{a wizard with a billiard cue} \textit{that Sauerbruch, as thoracic surgeon, was a genius and something of a wizard seems to have been generally accepted—Brit. Book News}

\textit{Ant} amateur — \textit{Con} tyro, dabbler, dilettante (see \textit{amateur}): *novice, apprentice, probationer
expiate vb Expiate, atone mean to make amends or give satisfaction for an offense, a sin, a crime, or a wrong. The same distinctions in implications and connotations are observable in their derivative nouns expiation and atonement. Expiate and expiation imply an attempt to undo the wrong one has done by suffering a penalty, by doing penance, or by making reparation or redress (let me here, as I deserve, pay on my punishment, and expiate, if possible, my crime—Milton) (unless that man in there is to be given a chance of expiation in another life, then capital punishment is a damnable horror—Mackenzie) Atoné and atonement have been greatly colored in their meanings by theological controversies. The basic implication of reconciliation became mixed with and sometimes subordinated to other implications (as appeasement, propitiation, or reparation). In general use atone (usually with for) and atonement emphasize a restoration through some compensation of a balance that has been lost. When the reference is to an offense, sin, or crime the words usually imply expiation, but they stress the rendering of satisfaction for the evil that has been done by acts that are good or heroic. Thus, one expiates a sin by doing penance for it, but one atones for it by leading a good life afterwards (she hated herself for this movement of envy . . . and tried to atone for it by a softened manner and a more anxious regard for Charlotte's feelings—Wharton) Sometimes a deficiency or a default rather than an offense may be atoned for (as by an excess of something else that is equally desirable) (for those who kneel beside us at altars not Thine own, who lack the lights that guide us, Lord, let their faith atone!—Kipling) Ana redress, remedy, rectify, *correct, amend: redeem, deliver, save (see Rescue) expiation atonement (see under expiate vb) Ana *penitence, repentance, contrition: *trial, tribulation, cross, visitation expire *pass, pass away, elapse Ana end, terminate, *close: cease, discontinue (see stop) Con *begin, commence, start explain 1 Explain, expound, explicate, elucidate, interpret, construe are comparable when they mean to make oneself or another understand the meaning of something. Explain, the most general term, implies a making of something plain or intelligible to someone by whom it was previously not known or clearly understood (explain to a boy the mechanism of an engine) (the teacher explained the meanings of the new words in the poem) (a poet whose words intimate rather than define, suggest rather than . . . explain—Edman) Expound implies careful, elaborate, often learned setting forth of a subject in order to explain it (as in a lecture, a book, or a treatise) (a clergyman expounding a biblical text) (expound a point of law) (Sir A. Eddington in two masterly chapters . . . expounds the law of gravitation—Alexander) (expound the duties of the citizen) Explicate, a somewhat learned term, adds to expound the idea of development or detailed analysis (the mind of a doctor of the Church who could . . . explicate the meaning of a dogma—T. S. Eliot) Elucidate implies a throwing light upon something obscure (as a subject, a work, or a passage) especially by clear or luminous exposition or illustration (elucidate an obscure passage in the text) (the simplicity of the case can be added . . . when the object is to addle and not to elucidate—Shaw) (the author's linguistic erudition has allowed him to consult the original sources and to elucidate and interpret them authentically—Reinhardt) Interpret implies the making clear to oneself or to another the meaning of something (as a poem, a dream, an abstraction, or a work in a foreign language) which presents more than intellectual difficulties and requires special knowledge, imagination, or sympathy in the person who would understand it or make it understood (I have tried in this all too hasty sketch to interpret . . . the indwelling spirit and ideal of the art of the Far East—Binyon) (it is a sophistry to interpret experience in terms of illusion—Sullivan) (an inscription which no one could understand or rightly interpret—Hudson) Construe is preferred to interpret when the difficulties are textual either because of the strangeness of the language (as by being foreign, ancient, dialectal, or technical) or because of ambiguities or equivocations in it. It therefore may suggest either translation involving careful analysis of grammatical structure (construe ten lines of Vergil) or a highly individual or particular interpretation (the phrase "every common carrier engaged in trade or commerce" may be construed to mean "while engaged in trade or commerce" without violence to the habits of English speech—Justice Holmes) (had construed the ordinarily polite terms of his letter of engagement into a belief that the Directors had chosen him on account of his special and brilliant talents—Kipling) explicate vb explain, expound, elucidate, interpret, A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk () indicates place of treatment of each group.
explicit, express, specific, definite, categorical are comparable when applied to statements, utterances, and language and when meaning perfectly clear in significance or reference. Something is explicit which is stated so plainly and distinctly that nothing is left to be inferred or to cause difficulty by being vague, equivocal, or ambiguous. To give an explicit and determinate account of what is meant—Bentham. Something is explicit which is both explicit and is uttered or expressed with directness, pointedness, or force. An express prohibition (express testimony) (the defendant should be enjoined from publishing news obtained from the Associated Press for—hours after publication by the plaintiff unless it gives express credit to the Associated Press; the number of hours . . . to be settled by the District Court—Justice Holmes) (she sent me the now famous drawings, with the express injunction that I was to show them to no one—Pollitzer). Something is specific which is perfectly precise in its reference to a particular thing or in its statement of the details covered or comprehended. He made two specific criticisms of the school, one dealing with its lack of a playground, the other with the defective ventilation of certain rooms. Government workers, by specific law, must be fired if they resort to the Fifth Amendment—Time. Something is definite which leaves no doubt as to its reference or to its details or as to what is excluded; definite, far more than specific, suggests precise and determinate limitations. He was asked to make a definite statement concerning the young man’s prospects with the company. It was a simple, clear, definite question—Sinclair Lewis. In practice specific and definite are often used interchangeably without loss; but specific may be preferred when the intent is to stress particularization of reference or specification of details, and definite when it is to emphasize clear limitations; thus, a worker may be given specific instructions about the sequence in which his tasks are to be performed but a definite order not to smoke on the job. Categorical (see also ultimate 2) implies explicitness without the least suggestion of a qualification or condition; thus, a categorical answer is demanded of a person testifying in court when he is compelled to answer yes or no; a categorical denial is a denial that is complete and contains not the slightest reservations. It is perilous to make categorical assertions—Lowe’s. Ana precise, exact, accurate (see correct): clear, lucid, perspicuous. Ant ambiguous—Con equivocal, vague, enigmatic, cryptic, dark; obscure: implicit, virtual, constructive. Exploit *feat, achievement. Ana act, deed, *action: *adventure, enterprise, quest. Expose display, exhibit, *show, parade, flaunt. Ana *reveal, disclose, discover, divulge: demonstrate, evince, manifest, evidence, *show: air, ventilate, vent, voice, utter. *express: publish, advertise, proclaim, broadcast, *declare. Exposure *expose, *exposition. Ana cover: covering—Con shelter, refuge, asylum, retreat. Expound *explain, explicate, elucidate, interpret, construe. Ana dissect, break down, *analyze, resolve: illustrate, *exemplify. Express adj *explicit, definite, specific, categorical. Ana expressed, voiced, uttered (see express vb): lucid, clear, perspicuous: distinct, plain (see evident); precise, exact, accurate (see correct). Con *implicit, constructive, virtual: vague, obscure, cryptic, enigmatic, ambiguous, equivocal. Express vb Express, vent, utter, voice, broach, air, ventilate. Ana comparable when they mean to let out what one feels or thinks. Express, the most comprehensive of these words, implies an impulse to reveal not only thoughts or feelings but also experiences, imaginative conceptions, and personality; it implies revelation not only in words but also in gestures, in action, in dress, or in what one makes or produces, especially as works of art. Once again I have to express surprise and satisfaction—Lucas (in speaking or writing we have an obligation to put ourselves into the hearer’s or reader’s place . . . . To express ourselves is a very small part of the business—Quiller-Couch). There were so many different moods and impressions that he wished to express in verse—Joyce. Vent stresses such an inner compulsion to expression as a pent-up emotion that seeks an outlet or a powerful passion that cannot be controlled. He vented his spleen in libelous caricatures: his heart’s his mouth: what his breast forges, that his tongue must vent—Shak. By means of ferocious jokes . . . he could vent his hatred of pioneer life and all its conditions—Brooks. Utter stresses the use of voice; it does not, however, always imply speak. Utter a yell! utter one’s relief by sobbing. When speech is implied, it is typically both short and significant (utter a command) his tongue and pen uttered heavenly mysteries—Walton and the context may suggest a reason for secrecy as well as for revelation. He was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter—2 Cor 12:4. Begin by encouraging him to utter. Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1.
freely even his most shocking thoughts—Russell—Voice does not necessarily imply vocal utterance, but it invariably suggests expression in words (I revealed in being able to voice my opinions without being regarded as a dangerous lunatic—MacKenzie) Very often voice suggests that the writer or speaker serves as a spokesman expressing a shared view (the editorial voices the universal longing for peace) (one, bolder than the rest, voiced their disapproval of the proposal) (Webster contributed a pamphlet . . . which effectively voiced the Federalist opposition—Cole)

Broach stresses mention for the first time, especially of something long thought over and awaiting an opportune moment for disclosure (the mayor did not broach the project until he felt that public opinion was in its favor) (the idea of religious radio broadcasts was first broached in 1923—Current Biog.) Air implies exposure, often in the desire to parade one's views, sometimes in the hope of attracting attention or sympathy (air one's opinions of the government) (air a grievance) (he did not air his politics in the pulpit—Murdock) Ventilate implies exposure also but usually suggests a desire to get at the truth by discovering the real causes or by weighing the evidence pro and con; it often means to investigate freely, openly, and thoroughly (the question [the future of literature] has thus been ventilated from every point of view—Times Lit. Sup.)

Ann. *speak, talk: pronounce, *articulate, enunciate: *reveal, disclose, divulge, tell: *declare, proclaim, announce Ant imply —Con hint, intimate, *suggest, insinuate

expression *phrase, locution, idiom expresswise, eloquent, significant, meaningful, pregnant, sententious mean clearly conveying or manifesting a thought, idea, or feeling or a combination of these. Something is expresswise which vividly or strikingly represents the thoughts, feelings, or ideas in which it intends to convey or which it informs or animates; the term is applicable not only to language but to works of art, to performances (as of music or drama), and to looks, features, or inarticulate sounds (a forcible and expressive word) (an expressive face) (he laid great stress on the painting of the eyes, as the most expressive and dominating feature—Binyon) (a growing emphasis on the element [in beauty] that is described by such epithets as vital, characteristic, picturesque, individual—in short, on the element that may be summed up by the epithet expressive—Babbitt) Something is eloquent (see also VOCAL 2) which reveals with great or impressive force one's thoughts, ideas, or feelings (there was a burst of applause, and a deep silence which was even more eloquent than the applause—Hardy) (I could scarcely remove my eyes from her eloquent countenance: I seemed to read in it relief and gladness mingled with surprise and something like vexation—Hudson) or which gives a definite and clear suggestion of a condition, situation, or character (a tremulous little man, in greenish-black broadcloth, eloquent of continued depression in some village retail trade—Quiller-Couch) (a sidewalk eloquent of official neglect—Brownell) Eloquent is also applicable to words, style, and speech when a power to arouse deep feeling or to evoke images or ideas charged with emotion is implied (words eloquent of feeling) (a simple but deeply eloquent style) Something is significant which is not empty of ideas, thoughts, or purpose but conveys a meaning to the auditor, observer, or reader. The term sometimes is applied to words that express a clearly ascertainable idea as distinguished from those words (as prepositions and conjunctions) that merely express a relation or connexion. This honored client had a meaning and so deep it was, so subtle, that no wonder he experienced a difficulty in giving it fitly significant words—Meredith (those who lay down that every sentence must end on a significant word, never on a preposition—Ellis) or to works of art or literature that similarly express a clearly ascertainable idea (as a moral, a lesson, or a thesis) as distinguished from works that exist purely for their beauty or perfection of form and have no obvious purpose or import (art-for-art's-sake men deny that any work of art is necessarily significant) More often, significant applies to something (as a look, gesture, or act) that suggests a covert or hidden meaning or intention (by many significant looks and silent entreaties, did she endeavor to prevent such a proof of complaisance—Austen) (she could not feel that there was anything significant in his attentions—Deland) Something is meaningful which is significant in the sense just defined; the term is often preferred when nothing more than the presence of meaning or intention is implied and any hint of the importance or momentousness sometimes associated with significant would be confusing (of two close synonyms one word may be more meaningful because of its greater richness in connotations than the other) (it was a . . . meaningful smile—Macdonald) (I suppose the most meaningful thing that can be said of her is that she has restored delight (repeat, delight) to poetry—Charles Jackson) Something is pregnant which conveys its meaning with richness or with weightiness and often with extreme conciseness or power (it is pretty and graceful, but how different from the grave and pregnant strokes of Maurice's pencil—Arnold) (the pregnant maxim of Bacon that the right question is the half of knowledge—Ellis) (he had no talent for revealing a character or resuming the significance of an episode in a single pregnant phrase—Maughan) Something is sententious which is full of significance: when applied, as is usual, to expressions, the word basically connotes the force and the pithiness of an aphorism (sententious and oracular brevity—Gibbon) (sententious maxims) But even as an aphorism may become hackneyed, so has sententious come to often connote platitudinousness or triteness ("Contentment breeds happiness" . . . a proposition . . . sententious, sedate, obviously true—Quiller-Couch)

Ana revealing or revelatory, disclosing, divulging (see corresponding verbs at REVEAL): *graphic, vivid, picturesque, pictorial: suggesting or suggestive, adumbrating, shadowing (see corresponding verbs at SUGGEST) Con *stiff, wooden, rigid, tense, stark: stern, austere, *severe: inane, jejune, flat, banal, vivid, *insipid: vacuous, empty expunge *erase, cancel, efface, obliterate, blot out, delete Ant wipe, eradicate, extirpate (see EXTERMINATE)

exquisitive adj 1 *choice, recherché, rare, dainty, delicate, elegant

Ant precious, valuable, priceless, *costly: *consummate, finished: flawless, *impeccable, faultless: *perfect, intact, whole, entire 2 *intense, vehement, fierce, violent

Ant *consummate: *perfect: *supreme, superlative: heightened, aggravated, intensified, enhanced (see INTENSIFY): exalted, magnified (see EXALT)

exquisite n *fop, coxcomb, beau, dandy, dude, buck temporaraneous, extempore, extemporary, improvised, impromptu, offhand, unpremeditated mean composed, concocted, devised, or done at the moment rather than beforehand. Extemporaneous, extempore, and extemporary in their more general applications stress something made necessary by the occasion or situation and may suggest swiftness or crudity in the thing modified (extemporaneous cover during the snowstorm) (the old woman who had erected a clothesline as a sort of extempore tent—Powyss)

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
<there was enthusiasm over the extemporary throwing together and dispatching of the United Nations Emergency Force—Punter-Downes> The terms may retain this value when applied to modes of expression or to persons as sources of expression (a detective who has had to resort to extemporaneous prevarications on numerous occasions to crash police lines—Gardner) (the aesthetic horror of extempore prayer—Laski) but more usually, and in technical context routinely, they imply a well thought-out plan or outline that is given spontaneity in presentation by fresh, unstudied choice of words (extemporize speaking is a form of prepared speaking on a selected topic in which everything is ready for delivery except the exact words to be used . . . Extemporize speaking is neither impromptu speech, manuscript reading, nor memorized speech—it is different from all other types and in many ways superior to them—Holley) (guided by notes rather than by a regular script, her own comment is largely extemporaneous in style—Current Biography) Impromptu stresses the absence of foreknowledge of what is to be accomplished and therefore the composing, concocting, devising, or constructing of something without advance thought or preparation and often without the necessary tools, instruments, or other equipment (an improvised musical accompaniment) (an improvised pantomime) (an improvised bed for the night in the open) (when an emergency came an army had to be improvised—Buchan) Impromptu stresses the immediate response to a need or suggestion and the spontaneous character of what is composed or concocted on the spur of the moment: thus, an impromptu speech is one prepared at a moment's notice and delivered without notes or a preconceived plan; an impromptu meal is one prepared from what is available usually at an unusual time or for an unexpected number of people (postponements or changes of plan were always impromptu—Davenport) Offhand, both as adjectival and adverb, carries so much stronger an implication of casualness, carelessness, or indifference than any of the preceding terms that at times it loses its suggestion of an impromptu character and means little more than curt or brusque (an offhand comment) (an offhand salute) (a father can't make offhand remarks to a 4-year-old and have them gently slip into oblivion—McNulty) (an offhand manner of dealing with strangers) Unpremeditated emphasizes less strongly than extemporaneous and impromptu the immediate stimulus of an occasion, but it usually suggests some strong, often suddenly provoked emotion which drives one to action (skyllark) that from heaven, or near it, pourest thy full heart in profuse strains of unpremeditated art—Shelley (unpremeditated murder) Ana *spontaneous, impulsive: ready, prompt, apt, *quick (planned, designed, projected, schemed (see corresponding verbs under PLAN n)): *deliberate, considered, studied, advised, premeditated: formal, ceremonial, *ceremonial, conventional extemporary, extemore *extemporaneous, improvised, impromptu, offhand, unpremeditated Ana & Con see those at extemporaneous extend, lengthen, elongate, prolong, protract all mean to draw out or add to so as to increase in length. Both extend and lengthen (opposed to shorten) connote an increase of length either in space or in time, but extend is also used to connote increase in range (as of kinds of influence, or of applicability); thus, a road may be extended or lengthened; one may extend or lengthen his stay: the power of a monarch, however, may be extended but not lengthened (words with extended meanings) (delays lengthened their trip) Elongate (usually opposed to abbreviate) denotes to increase in spatial length and has wider technical than general use (fibers elongated by stretching) Prolong (opposed to cut short, arrest) means to extend in duration beyond usual or normal limits (prolong one's childhood) (prolong the process of digestion) (exercise prolongs life) Protract (opposed to curtail) adds to the denotation of prolong the connotations of indefiniteness, needlessness, or boredom (protracted debate) (an unduly protracted visit) Ana *increase, enlarge, augment; *expand, amplify, dispense, dilate Ant abridge, shorten —Con abbreviate, curtail, refrain (see shorten): *contract, shrink, condense extension wing, ell, *annex extent *size, dimensions, area, magnitude, volume Ana *range, scope, compass, sweep, reach, radius: stretch, spread, amplitude, *expansion extenuate vb 1 attenuate, *thin, dilute, rarely Ana diminish, lessen, reduce, *decrease: *weaken, enfeeble, debilitate: *moderate, temper, qualify Ant intensify —Con aggravate, heighten, enhance (see intensify) 2 *palliate, glaze, gloss, whitewash, whiten Ana condone, *excuse: rationalize, *explain, justify exterior adj *outer, external, outward, outside Ana *extrinsic, extraneous, foreign, alien Ant interior —Con *inner, inward, internal, inside, intestine: intrinsic: *inherent, ingrained exterminate, extirpate, eradicate, uproot, deracinate, wipe are comparable when they mean to effect the destruction or abolition of something. Exterminate implies utter extinction: it therefore usually implies a killing off (efforts to exterminate such pests as mosquitoes, rats, and ragweed have been only partly successful) (the tribe had been exterminated, not here in their stronghold, but in their summer camp . . . across the river—Cather) Extirpate implies extinction of a group, kind, or growth, but it may carry less an implication of killing off, as exterminate carries, than one of the destruction or removal of the things essential to survival and reproduction; thus, wolves might be exterminated by hunting in a particular area, but large carnivores in general are extirpated by changed conditions in thickly settled regions; a heresy is often exterminated, rather than extirpated, by the removal of the leaders from a position of influence; a vice cannot easily be extirpated so long as the conditions which promote it remain in existence (the ancient Athenians had been extirpated by repeated wars and massacres—Graves) Eradicate stresses the driving out or elimination of something that has taken root or has established itself (diphtheria has been nearly eradicated from the United States) (it is difficult to eradicate popular superstitions) (he must gradually eradicate his settled conviction that the Italians and the French are wrong—Grandgent) Uproot differs from eradicate chiefly in being more definitely figuraiive and in suggesting forcible and violent methods similar to those of a tempest that tears trees out by their roots (hands . . . red with guiltless blood . . . uprooting every germ of truth—Shelley) (end forthwith the ruin of a life—Browning) (refugees from the peoples uprooted by war) Deracinate basically is very close to uproot (disemboweling mountains and deracinating pines—Steven- son) (he fascinated the young Anderson's intellect and deracinate certain convictions—Bennett) but in much recent use it denotes specifically to separate (as oneself or one's work) from a natural or traditional racial, social, or intellectual group (although the author is himself a Negro, his book is . . . deracinated, without any of the lively qualities of the imagination peculiar to his people—Commentary) Wipe (in this sense used with out) Ana analogical words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1 extradite, deport, transport, expatriate, *banish, exile.

Extract, excerpt denote a passage transcribed.

Extreme, extremity

extreme adj *outer, exterior, outward outside external adj *outer, exterior, foreign, alien

Ant internal — Con interior, intestine, *inner, inward, inside: intrinsic, ingrained, *inherent externalize materialize, actualize, *realize, embody, incarnate, objectify, hypostatize, reify extinction see under extinguish at abolish extinguish 1 *crush, quell, suppress, quench, quash extirpate, exterminate, eradicate, uproot, wipe: Obliterate, efface, blot out, erase: *destroy, demolish, raze extricate *extricate, disentangle, untangle, disencumber, *extreme extremity extricate, disentangle, untangle, disencumber, disembarrass are comparable when meaning to free or release from what binds or holds back. Extricate, the most widely useful of these words, implies a situation in which someone or something is so entangled (as in difficulties or perplexities) or so restrained (as from freedom of action or movement) that great force or ingenuity is required to bring about a release (the fly was not able to extricate itself from the spider's web) extricate himself from financial difficulties extricate his car from the mud into which its wheels had sunk my success in having extricated myself from an awkward predicament Heiser Disentangle adheres far more closely than extricate to its basic sense of to free from what entangles; also, it is used typically of things rather than of persons and therefore seldom involves the ideas of difficulty or perplexity except for the person who seeks to free the thing entangled or to unravel what is intrinsically complicated disembarrass a strand from a twisted skein Seneca is a dramatist whom the whole of Europe in the Renaissance delighted to honor. It is obviously a task of some difficulty to disembarrass him from his reputation T. S. Eliot I could not then so far analyze all that is roughly lumped together as "religion" as to disembarrass the essential from the accidental Ellis Untangle is sometimes used in place of disembangle with much the same implications leaned down to untangle his foot from a vine in which it was caught drank, set down his glass, and untangled his legs Basso Disembarrass implies a freeing from what weighs down, clogs, or imposes a very heavy burden he can call a spade a spade, and knows how to disembarrass ideas of their wordy frappiness George Eliot the trees, laden heavily with their new and humid leaves, were now suffering more damage than during the highest winds of winter, when the bouquets are specially disembarrassed to do battle with the storm Hardy Disembarrass implies a release from what embarrasses by or as if by impeding, hampering, or hindering disembarrass himself of his companion Scott disembarrass ourselves of the curse of ignorance and learn to work together Alvin Johnson Chamberlain, at several critical junctures, preferred to disembarrass himself of trained, expert advisers—Na-

extrinsic

mier

Ana disengage, *detach, abstract: liberate, release, *free: *rescue, deliver

Con *hammer, fetter, trammel, shackles, clog, hog-tie, manacle: impede, obstruct, *hinder, block

extrinsic, exogeneous, foreign, alien are comparable when they mean external to something or someone or to the true nature or original character of such thing or person. Extrinsic applies to something which is distinctly outside the thing in question or is derived from something apart from it; thus, a ring may have extrinsic value because of sentimental or historical associations; such extrinsic influences as chance or the assistance of friends may help a man to succeed (those who would persuade us ...) that style is something extrinsic to the subject, a kind of ornamentation laid on—Quiller-Couch (even life itself might arise from lifeless matter through the influence of favorable extrinsic conditions—Conklin) Extraneous, though often used interchangeably with extrinsic, applies more specifically to something which is introduced from outside and may or may not be capable of becoming an integral part of the thing (advance arguments extraneous to the real issue) (water is rarely pure and free from extraneous matter) (style ... is not—can never be—extraneous ornament—Quiller-Couch) (whatever we gain comprehension of, we seize upon and assimilate into our own being ...) that which had been extraneous is become a part of ourselves—H. B. Alexander

Foreign applies to something which is so different from the thing under consideration that it is either inadmissible because repellent or, if admitted, incapable of becoming identified with it, assimilated by it, or related to it (much coal contains foreign matter) (inflammation caused by a foreign body in the eye) (the mysticism so foreign to the French mind and temper—Brownell) (look round our world ...) (nothing is foreign: parts relate to whole ...); all served, all serving: nothing stands alone—Pope

Alien applies to something which is so foreign that it can never be made an inherent or an integral part of a thing. The word often suggests repugnance or at least incompatibility or irreconcilability (a voluptuous devotionality ... totally alien to the austerity and penetrating sincerity of the Gospel—Inge) (he would often adopt certain modes of thought that he knew to be really alien to his nature—Wilde)

Ana external, outer, outside, exterior, outward: acquired, gained (see GET)

Ant intrinsic —Con internal, *inner, inside, inward, interior, intestine

exuberant lavish, *profuse, prodigal, luxuriant, lush

Ana prolific, *fertile, fruitful, fecund: vigoros, lusty, energetic, nervous: rampant, *rank: copious (see PLENTIFUL)

Ant austere: sterile

eyewitness witness, onlooker, looker-on, *spectator, observer, beholder, bystander, kibitzer

face

Fable 1 *fiction, fabrication, figment

2 myth, parable, *allegory

Fabricate *make, fashion, forge, form, shape, manufacture

Fabrication *fiction, figment, fable

Ana invention, creation (see corresponding verbs at INVENT): art, craft, handicraft (see TRADE): *work, product, production, opus, artifact

Fabulous *fictitious, mythical, legendary, apocryphal

Ana astonishing, astounding (see SURPRISE vb): extravagant, inordinate (see EXCESSIVE): *monstrous, prodigious, stupendous

Con credible, believable, colorable (see PLAUSIBLE): veritable, genuine, *authentic

Face 1 *countenance, visage, physiognomy, mug

2 part of the human body including the mouth, nose, eyes, forehead, and cheeks. Face is the simple and direct word (your face was dirty) (she struck him in the face) (to feel the fog in my throat, the mist in my face—Browning) (was this the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topless towers of Ilium?—Marlowe) Countenance applies especially to the face as it reveals mood, character, or changing emotions (a benign countenance) (his face was not the cheerful countenance of yesterday—Cather) (his countenance changed when he heard the news) (something feminine—not effeminate, mind—is discoverable in the countenances of all men of genius—Coleridge) (especially in the phrases “to keep in countenance” (maintain one’s composure) and “to put out of countenance” (cause one to lose one’s composure)

Ana analogous words Ant antonyms Con contrasted words See also explanatory notes facing page 1

---

F

1 face
then a face made after the divine pattern—L. P. Smith Puss sometimes denotes a facial expression (as of anger or pouting) (she put on a very sour puss when she saw the priest along with me—Frank O'Connor) but it more often denotes the physiognomy (it had the head of a bear, the very head and puss of a bear—Gregory)

face vb 1 *meet, encounter, confront
Ana look, watch (see see): *gaze, stare, glare: await, look, *expect

2 Face, brave, challenge, dare, defy, beard are comparable because all carry the meaning to confront with courage or boldness. Face carries no more than this general sense; basically it suggests the confrontation of an enemy or adversary (here we are together facing a group of mighty foes—Sir Winston Churchill) but in its extended use it implies a recognition of the power of a force, a fact, or a situation which cannot be escaped to harm as well as to help and a willingness to accept the consequences (must face the consequences of your own wrong-doing) (strict justice, either on earth or in heaven, was the last thing that society cared to face—Henry Adams) (like . . . a tailor's bill, something that has to be faced as it stands and got rid of—Montague) Brave may imply a show of courage or bravado in facing or encountering (must hence to brave the Pope. King Louis, and this turbulent priest—Tennyson) More often, however, it implies fortitude in facing and in enduring forces which ordinarily would strike the spirit with terror (firemen braving danger and death to rescue persons trapped in the blazing hotel) (women . . . for his sake had braved all social censure—Wilde) (the search for truth . . . makes men and women content to undergo hardships and to brave perils—Eliot) (if you find yourself in trouble before then, call on your courage and resolution: brave out every difficulty—Kenneth Roberts) Challenge generally implies a confrontation of a person or thing opposed in such a way that one seems an accuser imputing weakness or fault in the one confronted. Often it may lose the feeling of accusation and then may mean no more than to dispute or question (our thoughts and beliefs "pass," so long as nothing challenges them—James) (that "Testament" the authenticity of which, foolishly challenged by Voltaire, is sufficiently established—Bellloc) or, on the other hand, it may go farther and suggest a bold invitation to a contest (as a duel or other test of rightness or skill) which the one challenged cannot refuse (the degree of courage displayed by Malakai, the best medical practitioner turned out by the School, who once dared to challenge the power of the chief of the witch doctors—Heiser) or it may suggest bold measures inviting a response or retaliation (challenge criticism) (challenge attention) Dare also usually emphasizes boldness rather than fortitude, but it rarely suggests the critical or censorious attitude so frequently evident in challenge. Rather, it implies venturesomeness, love of danger, or moral courage and may connote great or especial merit or mere rashness in the action (dare the perils of mountain climbing) (dare to be true: nothing can need a lie—Herbert) (and what they dare to dream of, dare to do—J. R. Lowell) (to wrest it from barbarism, to dare its solitudes—Century) (among the newspapers only the Irish Times dared to discuss the issue frankly—Blanchard) (no American dared to be seen reaching for a sandwich by the side of a known Communist—Sulzberger) Defy, like the others, usually implies a personal agent, but it may be said of things as well. When the idea of challenging is uppermost, the connotation of daring one to test a power which the challenger believes undefeatable or to do what the challenger believes impossible is usually its accomplishment. In either case there is a stronger implication of certainty in one's belief than there is in challenge, and often a clearer suggestion of mockery (from my walls I defy the poor's of Spain—Dryden) (and I defy thee! . . . foul tyrant both of gods and humankind, one only being shalt thou not subdue—Shelley) (I defy the enemies of our constitution to show the contrary—Burke) (I defy him to find the gate, however well he may think he knows the city—Kipling) When the idea of resistance is uppermost there is a suggestion in defy of a power to withstand efforts, opposition, or rules. It is in this sense that a personal agent is most often not implied, for resistance does not always suggest an exercise of will (scenes that defy description) (words that defy definition) (a wooden seat put together with nails—a flimsy contrivance, which defies all rules of gravity and adhesion—Jeffries) (the tall erect figure, defy ing age, and the perfectly bald scalp defying the weather—Upton Sinclair) Beard, although it implies defiance, often differs from defy in suggesting resolution rather than daring or mockery as its motive; in that way it comes somewhat closer to face and to brave (what! am I dared and bearded to my face?—Shak.) (a bold heart yours to beard that raging mob!—Tennyson) (for years she led the life of a religious tramp, bearding bishops and allowing herself many eccentricities—Coulton)

Ana confront, encounter, *meet: oppose, withstand, *resist: *contend, fight

Ant avoid—Con evade, elude, shun, *escape facet aspect, side, angle, *phase

facetious humorous, jocose, jocular, *witty

Ana joking, jesting, quipping, wisecracking (see corresponding nouns at joke): jolly, jovial, jocund, *merry, blithe: comical, comic, droll, funny, ludicrous, *laughable

Ant lugubrious—Con grave, solemn, somber, *serious, sober, sedate, staid crude easy, smooth, light, simple, effortless

Ana adroit, deft, *dexterous: fluent, volatile, glib (see vocal): *superficial, shallow, uncritical, cursory

Ant arduous (with reference to the thing accomplished): constrained, clumsy (with reference to the agent or his method)

facility ease, dexterity, *readiness

Ana spontaneity, *unconstraint, abandon: address, poise, *tact: lightness, effortlessness, smoothness (see corresponding adjectives at easy)

Con ineptness, clumsiness, awkwardness, maladroitness (see corresponding adjectives at awkward): stiffness, rigidity, woodenness (see corresponding adjectives at stiff): *effort, exertion, pains: *difficulty, hardship facsimile copy, carbon copy, *reproduction, duplicate, replica, transcript

faction bloc, party, *combination, combine, ring

Ana clique, set, coterie, circle

factious contumacious, seditious, mutinous, rebellious, *insubordinate

Ana contending, fighting, warring (see contend): contentious, quarrelsome (see belligerent): defaced, estranged, alienated (see estrange)

Ant cooperative—Con companionable, gregarious, *social: *compliant, acquiescent: loyal, true, *faithful

factitious *artificial, synthetic, ersatz

Ana manufactured, fabricated (see make vb): forced, compelled, constrained (see force vb): simulated, feigned, counterfeited, shammed, pretended, affected, assumed (see assume)

Ant bona fide, veritable—Con *authentic, genuine: *natural, simple, artless, naive, unsophisticated factor 1 *agent, attorney, deputy, proxy

2 constituent, *element, component, ingredient

Ana determinant, *cause, antecedent: *influence:

agency, agent, instrument,instrumental, *mean

facultv 1 *power, function

2 *gift, aptitude, knack, bent, turn, genius, talent

Ana *ability, capacity, capability: property, *quality:

punctual, flair, propensity, proclivity, *leaning: *predilection

fag vague, *fashion, style, rage, craze, mode, dernier cry, cry

Ana fancy, whim, whimsy, *caprice, conceit, vagary

fafe *vanish, evanesce, evaporate, disappear

Ana deliquesce, melt (see LIQUEFY): *thin, rarely, attenuate: reduce, lessen (see DECREASE)

faded *nubbly, dilapidated, dingy, seedy, threadbare

Ana worn, wasted; *haggard: dim, murky, gloomy (see DARK): *colorless, achronic: *pale, pallid, ashen, wan fag vb exhaust, jade, fatigue, *tire, weary, tucker failing a frailty, foible, *fault, vice Ana *blemish, flaw, defect: weakness, infirmity (see corresponding adjectives at WALK

Ant perfection (in concrete sense) —Con *excellence, merit, virtue

failure, neglect, default, miscarriage, dereliction are comparable when they mean an omission on the part of someone for something of what is expected or required of him or of it. Failure basically implies a being found wanting; it implies a lack or absence of something that might have been expected to occur or to be accomplished, performed, or effected (there was a general failure of crops that year) (a distressing confusion in discussions of the human-interest story has been caused by a common failure performed, or effected (there was a general exemption of all these terms, ill fortune—>Grenfell failing to define the term—>Mott) (you will hear a great talk about the failure of Christianity; but where in the Holy Gospels . . . do you find any suggestion that Christianity is to be an easy triumph?—>Mackenzie)

Neglect (see also NEGLIGENCE) implies carelessness and inattentiveness on the part of a person, so that what is expected or required of him is either left unattended to or is not adequately performed (in wartime a charge of neglect of duty is a very serious one) (his neglect of his health is a source of much worry to his friends)

(the property has become dilapidated through the owner's neglect) (we made a nice tidy cleanup . . . If I hadn't done it I ought . . . to have been shot for neglect—H. G.

Wells) Default is now chiefly found in legal use, where it implies a failure to perform something required by law (as a failure of a plaintiff or of a defendant to appear at the appointed time to prosecute or defend an action or a proceeding) (in case of default on the part of the plaintiff, he may be nonsuited) (in case of default on the part of the defendant, he may have a judgment rendered against him, this being called a judgment by default)

Default may also imply a failure to pay one's debts at the appointed time (convicted of default in the payment of a fine) or in extended use a failure to perform something required, usually by total omission of pertinent action (betraying by default the privileges of citizenship in a democratic society—Dean) (lose a tennis match

by default) Miscarriage does not so definitely point the blame for a failure of someone or something to live up to expectations or to accomplish certain ends as do the preceding words; it is often used when there are no definite persons or things to which culpability can be assigned or when for some reason or other there is a desire to avoid casting of blame (there was a serious miscarriage of justice in that trial) (the causes of the miscarriage of the project were not clear) (we fear . . .

some miscarriage in the details of our plan—Krutch)

(these various miscarriages cannot all be ascribed to ill fortune—Grenfell) Dereliction, of all these terms, carries the strongest implication of a neglect that amounts to an abandonment of, or a departure from, the thing and especially the duty, the principle, or the law that should have been uppermost in a person's mind; ordinarily it implies a morally reprehensible failure rather than one resulting from carelessness and inattention or from mishap (they would be answerable with their lives for any further dereliction of duty—Ainsworth) (it revealed in him . . . the indisputable signs of a certain dereliction

from some path of development his nature had commanded him to follow—Brooks)

Ana *fault, failing: shortcoming, deficiency, *imperfection: *lack, want, absence, privation, dearth: negligence, laxness, slackness, remissness (see corresponding adjectives at NEGLIGENT): indifference, unconcernedness or unconcern (see corresponding adjectives at INDIFFERENT)

fairness adj indolent, slothful, *lazy

Ana supine, passive, *inactive, inert, idle: apathetic,

*impassive, philogematic: *lethargic, sluggish: languorous, lackadaisical, *languid

fair adj 1 comely, lovely, *beautiful, pretty, bonny, handsome, beauteous, pulchritudinous, good-looking

Ana delicate, dainty, exquisite (see CHOICE): charming, attractive, enchanting (see under ATTRACT): pure, *chaste

Ant foul: ill-favored

2 Fair, just, equitable, impartial, unbiased, dispassionate, uncolored, objective are comparable when they are applied to judgments or to judges or to acts resulting from or involving a judgment and mean free from undue or improper influence. Fair, the most general term, implies the disposition or the intention to regard other persons or things without reference to one's own interests, feelings, or prejudices, often even to the point of conceding every reasonable claim of the weaker side or of giving oneself or the stronger side no undue advantage (a fair distribution of one's estate) (a fair decision by a judge)

(a fair play) (when we consider how helpless a partridge is . . . it does seem fairer that the gunner should have but one chance at the bird—Jefferyes) (I believe you will find them a fair solution of this complicated and difficult problem—Roosevelt) Just implies no divergence from the standard or measure of what has been determined or is accepted as right, true, or lawful and dealings that are exactly in accordance with those determinations, no matter what one's personal inclinations or interests may be or what considerations in favor of the person or thing judged may be added (a just judge)

(some juster prince perhaps had . . . safe restored me to my native land—Pope) (how much easier it is to be generous than just—Junius) (to divert interest from the poet to the poetry . . . would conduce to a juster estimation of actual poetry, good and bad—T. S. Eliot) Equitable implies a freer and less rigid standard than just,

often the one which guides a court of equity as distinguished from a court of law and which provides relief

where rigid adherence to the law would make for unfairness (he has an equitable claim to the property) More often the word implies fair and equal treatment of all concerned (a form of society which will provide for an equitable distribution of . . . riches—Krutch) (it depended wholly on their individual characters whether their terms of office were equitable or oppressive—

Buchan) Impartial implies absence of favor for or absence of prejudice against one person, party, or side more than the other (an impartial tribunal) (impartial summing up of evidence) (the law provides for the examination by neutral, impartial psychiatric experts of all persons indicted for a capital offense—Current Biog.) Unbiased expresses even more strongly the absence of all prejudice or prepossession and a disposition to be fair to all (an unbiased history) (give an unbiased opinion) (presents an able, fair, and singularly unbiased picture of the Russian scene—Marquand) Dispassionate implies freedom from the influence of passion or strong feeling, often also implying great temperateness or even coldness in judgment (a dispassionate judgment of the young actor's abilities) (dispassionate men, precise in laboratories, with nothing to consider but the facts—Ciardi) Uncolored (see also colorless) implies freedom from influences (as personal feeling or a desire to embellish) that would affect the truth or accuracy of an account, a statement, or a judgment (an uncolored story of a battle) (an uncolored record of one's experiences) (a statement of facts, uncolored by personal prejudice) Objective implies a tendency to view events or phenomena as apart from oneself and therefore to be judged on purely factual bases and without reference to one's personal feelings, prejudices, opinions, or interests (nor must we be content with a lazy skepticism, which regards objective truth as unattainable—Russell) (we shall be like ice when relating passions and adventures . . . we shall be . . . objective and impersonal—Troy) Ana disinterested, detached (see indifferent) reasonable, *rational Ant unfair —Con partial, prepossessed, biased, prejudiced (see corresponding nouns at predilection) 3 average, *medium, middling, mediocre, second-rate, moderate, indifferent Ana ordinary, *common Con *good, right: *bad, poor, wrong fair n exposition, *exhibition, show, exhibit faith 1 *belief, credence, credit Ana assurance, conviction, *certainty, certitude: assenting or assent, acquiescence, agreement (see corresponding verbs at assent) Ant doubt —Con *uncertainty, skepticism, dubiety, dubiosities: *unbelief, disbelief, incredulity 2 dependence, reliance, confidence, *trust Ana assurance, certitude (see certainty) Con incredulity, *unbelief, disbelief: mistrust, suspicion, *uncertainty, doubt: misgiving, *apprehension 3 creed, *religion, persuasion, church, denomination, sect, cult, communion Anatent, dogmas, doctrines (see singular nouns at doctrine) faithful adj Faithful, loyal, true, constant, staunch, steadfast, resolute are comparable when meaning firm adherence to the person, the country, or the cause to whom or to which one is bound by duty or promise. Faithful in its most common sense implies firm and unswerving adherence to a person or thing to whom or to which one is united by some tie (as marriage, friendship, political allegiance, gratitude, or honor) or to the oath, pledge, or promise made when one has accepted a position, an office, or an obligation (a faithful husband is faithful to his marriage vows) (a faithful public servant is faithful to his oath of office) (Cleopatra was faithful to the main policy of her life, the restoration of Egypt to the position which it had held under the first Ptolemies—Buchan) The term is also used when only firm adherence to actuality or reality (as in representation or portrayal) is implied; it then comes close to accurate or exact in meaning (the photograph is a faithful likeness) (the faithful rendering of the observed facts—Encounter) (a faithful description of village life) Loyal implies faithfulness to one's pledged word or continued allegiance to the leader, the country, the institution, or the principles to which one feels oneself morally bound; the term suggests not only adherence but resistance to being lured or persuaded away from that adherence (most of the subjects remained loyal to their sovereign) (your wife, my lord; your true and loyal wife—Shak.) ('I've been loyal to Arch Gunnard for a long time now,' Lonnie said, "I'd hate to haul off and leave him like that")—Caldwell True (see also real) is somewhat stronger than loyal and faithful in stressing a personal or emotional quality as well as steadiness in one's allegiance, devotion, or fidelity (a true friend) (he is a New England poet, perhaps the New England poet, and reaps all the advantage there is in being true to a particular piece of earth—Mark Van Doren) Constant also stresses firmness or steadfastness in attachment, devotion, or allegiance, but it carries a weaker implication of strict adherence to one's vows, pledges, or obligations. Consequently it often implies a state of mind that is the opposite of fickleness rather than a course of action that is the opposite of unfaithfulness and disloyalty (even Rochester, utterly bad and ignoble, was not only a poet and a wit but a loyal husband (constant if not faithful)—Reppplier) (1 have never knew a pair of lovers more constant than those two—Milly) Stauch carries far more strongly than loyal an implication of one's unwillingness to be turned aside from those to whom one owes allegiance or to whom one has pledged one's troth or from an institution (as a church or political party) to which by conviction one belongs. From its earliest and still current nautical sense of being watertight and sound it retains a suggestion of an inherent imperviousness to all influences that would weaken one's loyalty or steadiness in faith (a stauch believer) (a stauch Republican) (stauch fidelity to law and order—Montague) (you, who from a girl have had a strong mind and a stauch heart—Dickens) Steadfast so stresses unwavering or unswerving adherence that the term is applicable not only to persons but to things that maintain a steady course or an unchanging quality or character (which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast—Heb 6:19) (the blue, the steadfast, the blazing summer sky—Woolf) However its most usual application is to persons or their attachments (therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable—1 Cor 15:58) (if love . . . survives through all sorrow, and remains steadfast with us through all changes—Thackeray) (manifest of vision but steadfast in principles—Replinner) Resolute implies steadfastness and, often, staunchness, but it throws the emphasis upon a determination which cannot be broken down as a quality of character and may suggest firm adherence to one's own purposes or ends rather than to those of others (not . . . resolute and firm, but perverse and obstinate—Burke) (she sat there resolute and ready for responsibility—Conrad) (an earthquake in the midst of the proceedings terrified every prelate but the resolute Primate—J. R. Green) Ana devoted, *loving, affectionate: tried, trustworthy, *reliable, dependable Ant faithless —Con disloyal, false, perfidious, traitorous, treacherous (see faithless): fickle, *inconstant, unstable faithless, false, disloyal, traitorous, perfidious mean untrue to a person, an institution, or a cause that has a right to expect one's fidelity or allegiance. Faithless applies to a person, utterance, or act that implies a breach of a vow, a pledge, a sworn obligation, or allegiance. Although often used interchangeably with the strongest of the terms here discriminated, then implying a betrayal of a person or cause, it is also capable of implying untrustworthiness, unreliability, or loss or neglect of an opportunity to prove one's devotion or faith. And hopeless, comfortless, I'll mourn a faithless woman's broken vow—Burns (the remnant...have been abandoned by their faithless allies—Shelley) (he abandoned one wife and was faithless to another—J. R. Green)

False differs from faithless in its greater emphasis upon a failure to be true or constant in one's devotion or adherence than upon an actual breach of a vow, pledge, sworn promise, or obligation; however it may, like faithless, carry varying connotations with respect to the gravity or heinousness of that failure (betrayed by a false friend) (never was Plantagenet false of his word—Marlowe) (we hope that we can give a reason for the faith that is in us without being false to the strictest obligations of intellectual honesty—Inge) (the conception of a lordly splendid destiny for the human race, to which we are false when we revert to wars and other atavistic follies—Russell) Disloyal implies lack of faithfulness in thought, in words, or in actions to one (as a friend, superior, sovereign, party, or country) whom loyalty is owed (a disloyal subject) (good party people think such open-mindedness disloyal; but in politics there should be no loyalty except to the public good—Shaw) (assumed a tone in their correspondence which must have seemed often disloyal, and sometimes positively insulting, to the governor—Motley) Traitorous implies either actual treason or a serious betrayal of trust or confidence (a traitorous general) (a traitorous act) (traitorous breach of confidence) (by the traitorous connivance of the Bulgarian King and Government, advance parties of the German Air Force...were gradually admitted to Bulgaria—Sir Winston Churchill) Treacherous is of wider application than traitorous; as used of persons or it implies readiness, or a disposition, to betray trust or confidence (a treacherous ally) and as used of things it suggests aptness to lead on to peril or disaster by false or delusive appearances (treacherous sands) (the treacherous ocean—Shelley) (up steep crags, and over treacherous morasses, he moved...easily—Macaulay) Perfidious is a more contemptuous term than treacherous; it implies baseness or vileness as well as an incapacity for faithfulness in the person concerned (perfidious violation of a treaty) (perfidious dealings) (Spain...to lavish her resources and her blood in furtherance of the designs of a perfidious ally—Southey) Ana *inconstant, unstable, fickle, capricious: wavering, fluctuating is seen (see SWING vb): *changeable, changeful Ant faithful—Can...true, staunch, steadfast, resolute, constant (see FAITHFUL)

fake adj  *counterfeit, spurious, bogus, sham, pseudo, pinchbeck, phony Ana fabricated, forged (see MAKE) framed, invented, concocted (see CONTRIVE) Con *authentic, bona fide, genuine, veritable: true, *real, actual faker *impostor, mountebank, charlatan, quack Ana defrauder, cheat or cheat, swindler, cozen (see corresponding verbs at CHEAT) fall, drop, sink, slump, subside are comparable when they mean to go or to let go downward freely. They are seldom close synonyms, however, because of various specific and essential implications that tend to separate and distinguish them. Fall, which in the relevant sense is intransitive, suggests a descent by the force of gravity and implies a loss of support opposing gravity; in extended use fall may apply to whatever extends downward or gives an effect of going in a downward direction (let a glass fall to the ground and shatter) (the supports gone, the structure fell in a heap) (the roof had fallen in on another speaker—Cerf) (chair falling over a woman's shoulders) (the birthrate fell over a 6-month period, then rose) (let fall a remark about the weather) Drop may suggest a falling drop by drop or bit by bit, but usually it stresses a speed, directness, unexpectedness, or casualness in falling or allowing to fall (dropped a coin into a pond) (dropped seeds into holes) (dropping to the ground at the sound of an air-raid warning) (dropping a hint of coming trouble) (income dropped during the slow winter season) Sink fundamentally implies a gradual descending motion, especially into something, often to the point of total submersion (the ship sank gradually into the placid sea) (the float on the fish line sank a moment, then bobbed furiously) (the thermometer sank far below zero—Carruthers) but in frequent somewhat extended use the stress is so strongly on a slow or gradual falling or descent that the notion of submergence is largely or wholly lost (sinking to her knees from exhaustion) (the sun is sinking in the west) (his voice sank to a whisper) Slump usually implies a sudden falling or collapsing (as of someone suddenly powerless or suddenly totally enervated) (slumping to the ground unconscious) (slumped in his seat) (prices slumped badly in the winter) (when a bird falls asleep, it relaxes and slumps down until its body rests against the perch—J. H. Baker) Subside suggests a gradual descent or return to a normal or usual position, action, or condition after an undue rising, expanding, or boiling up; often it can suggest a sinking below a normal or usual level (a wind rising, then subsiding) (he lost a quarter of an hour waiting for the flood to subside—Mary Austin) (the bustle subsides and relative calm is resumed—Amer. Guide Series; N. C.) (the child's quick temper subsided into listlessness—Reppier) (after the boom prices subsided to a level far below normal) (their voices subsided to a whisper)

Ana *descend, dismount, alight: *droop, sag, flag, wilt; ebb; *abate, wane: *recede Ant rise—Con *lift, raise, elevate, hoist: ascend, arise, mount, soar, tower (see RISE)

fallacious sophistical, casuistical (see under FALLACY) Ana *irrational, unreasonable: *misleading, deceptive, delusive, delusory: equivocal, ambiguous (see OBSCURE) Ant sound, valid fallacy, sophism, sophistry, casuistry are comparable when meaning unsound and misleading reasoning or line of argument. The same distinctions in implications and connotations are distinguishable in the corresponding adjectives fallacious, sophistical, casuistical. Fallacy and fallacious in specific logical use imply an error or flaw in reasoning that vitiates an entire argument; thus, a syllogism in which one argues from some accidental character as though it were essential and necessary (as, The food you buy, you eat; you buy raw meat; therefore you eat raw meat) contains a fallacy or is fallacious (the many fallacies that lurk in the general and equivocal nature of the terms "inadequate representation"—Burke) In more general use fallacy and fallacious apply to a conception, belief, or theory that is erroneous and logically untenable, whether it has been arrived at by reasoning or by conjecture or has been taken over from others (the arguments of the Federalist are intended to prove the fallacy of these apprehensions—John Marshall) (the separatist fallacy, the belief that false adj 1 False, wrong mean not in conformity with what is true or right. False in all of its senses is colored by its original implication of deceit; the implication of deceiving or of being deceived is strong when the term implies a contrariety between what is said, thought, or concluded and the facts or reality false statements (you shall not bear false witness against thy neighbor—Exod 20:16) whether it is a genuine insight into the workings of his own mind or only a false explanation of them—Day Lewis you can take a chessboard as black squares on a white ground, or as white squares on a black ground, and neither conception is a false one—James an intent to deceive or a deceptive appearance is implied when the term connotes an opposition to what is real or genuine or authentic false tears false pearls a box with a false bottom a false arch is an architectural member which simulates an arch in appearance but does not have the structure or serve the function of a true arch the term is applied in vernacular names of plants to a kind related to, resembling, or having properties similar to another kind that commonly bears the unqualified vernacular the pinkster flower is sometimes called false honeysuckle even when the word stresses faithlessness (see faithless) there is usually a hint of a deceptive appearance of faithfulness or loyalty or of self-deception in one's failure to be true so far as outward appearances went, one could not believe him to be a false friend only in the sense of incorrect or erroneous a false note a false policy is this implication obscured, though there is often a suggestion of being deceived into believing that the thing so described is true or right wrong, on the other hand, is colored in all of its senses by its original implication of wryness or crookedness; in general it implies a turning from the standard of what is true, right (especially morally right), or correct to its reverse. In comparison with false, wrong is simple and forthright in its meaning; thus, a wrong conception is one that is the reverse of the truth, but a false conception is not only wrong but the result of one's being deceived or of one's intent to deceive; a wrong answer to a question is merely an erroneous answer, but a false answer to a question is one that is both erroneous and lying; wrong principles of conduct are the reverse of ethically right principles, but false principles of conduct are not only wrong but are bound to lead astray; those who accept them give a person wrong advice through bad judgment believed that a lie is always wrong there is something wrong about his appearance there is something false in his courtesy he may be wrong in his opinions, but he is not false to his country in trying to impress them upon others the book is a chic little piece often amusing, always arch and clever, and usually wrong—Farrell he the man, having out of sheer ignorance eaten the wrong end of his asparagus, was thencefore compelled to declare that he preferred that end Ellis any sophistry that the cleverest landlord can devise shaw Rousseau does not often indulge in such an unblushing sophism Babbitt view by a great deal of casuistry more extended senses. In their basic senses both have reference to the science that deals with cases of conscience, or the determination of what is right and wrong in particular cases where there is justifiable uncertainty we now have to lay the foundation of a new casuistry, no longer theological and Christian, but naturalistic and scientific Ellis In their extended use both terms usually imply sophistical and often tortuous reasoning in reference to moral, theological, and legal problems those who hold that a lie is always wrong have to supplement this view by a great deal of casuistry Russell hairsplitting mechanical triumph that won him wide renown—Anderson

Honor (see also honor 2, honesty) implies a measure of fame (as in a section, a country, a continent, or the civilized world), but it also implies that the knowledge of one's achievements has earned for one esteem or reverence. The length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor—Prov 3:16. One must learn to give honor where honor is due, to bow down... before all spirits that are noble—Benson

Glory usually suggests renown, but more especially it implies a position where attention is fixed on one's brilliance of achievement and the accompaniment of enthusiastic praise or of high honor. The paths of glory lead but to the grave—Gray. To be recognized... as a master... in one's own line of intellectual or spiritual activity, is indeed glory—Arnold. No keener hunter after glory breathes. He loves it in his knihgts more than himself; they prove to him his work—Tennyson

Celebrity is often used in place of fame when the widespread laudation of one's name and accomplishments in one's own time is implied; the term usually carries a stronger implication of famouness and of popularity than it does of deep-seated or long-lived admiration and esteem. The lonely precursor of German philosophy, he still shines when the light of his successors is fading away; they had celebrity. Spinoza has fame—Arnold. Made a sensational debut as a pianist at the age of six... but... by adolescence her celebrity was finished—Tunley

Reputation often denotes nothing more than the character of a person or place, not necessarily as it really is but as it is conceived to be by those who know of him or of it. He has a good reputation in the community. It is a shame to injure a man's reputation but in the sense in which it is here particularly considered, the term implies a measure of fame, typically for creditable reasons. His reputation for wit was countrywide. A man of doubtful reputation. A painter of growing reputation. The purest treasure mortality affords is spotless reputation—Shak.

The fame (reputation is too chilly a word) of Arnold J. Toynbee is a phenomenon in itself worth noting—Brogan. Repute is sometimes used interchangeably with reputation in either sense. Only a general of repute could get recruits—Buchan. More often, however, repute suggests a relation that is closer to honor than to fame, and denotes rather the degree of esteem accorded to a person or thing than the measure of fame it acquires. The book has no little repute among the best critics. His work is held in high repute. He won a great deal of repute for his bravery—Conan

Notoriety implies public knowledge of a person or deed; it usually suggests a meretricious fame and imputes sensationalism to the person or thing that wins such repute. He achieved notoriety as the author of a most salacious novel. That brilliant, extravagant, careless Reverend Doctor Dodd who acquired some fame and much notoriety as an eloquent preacher—Ellis

Éclat may be used in place of renown or of notoriety. To either idea is added the connotation of great brilliancy or display, but when the basic meaning is renown, illustriousness is especially suggested. Consider what luster and éclat it will give you... to be the best scholar, of a gentleman, in England—Chesterfield. And when it is notoriety, flashiness or ostentation is usually implied. His success in such a pursuit would give a ridiculous éclat to the whole affair—Scott

Ana acclaim, acclamation, *applause: recognizing or recognition, acknowledgment (see corresponding verbs at ACKNOWLEDGE): eminence, illustriousness (see corresponding adjectives at FAMOUS)

Ant infamy: obscurity —Con ignominy, obloquy, *disgrace, dishonor, odium, opprobrium, disrepute, shame famed *famous, renowned, celebrated, eminent, illustrious Ant obscure familiar 1 Familiar, intimate, close, confidential, chummy, thick are comparable when meaning near to one another because of constant or frequent association, shared interests and activities, or common sympathies, or, when applied to words or acts, indicative of such nearness. Familiar suggests relations or manifestations characteristic of or similar to those of a family, where long-continued intercourse makes for freedom, informality, ease of address, and the taking of liberties; consequently familiar may apply to the relations, words, and acts of persons actually in such a situation and to the attitude or the style of speaking or writing of persons who assume the freedom and ease of address of those who are familiar essays. Time and intercourse have made us familiar—Johnson

(a simpler and more familiar speech, able to express subtleties or audacities that before seemed inexpressible—Ellis. The familiar, if not rude, tone in which people addressed her—Hawthorne. She was a fearless and familiar little thing, who asked disconcerting questions—Wharton

Intimate suggests relations characteristic of those who are in close contact with one another (as through ties of blood, of friendship, or of common interests or aspirations) and who have opened their hearts or their minds to such a degree that they deeply know and understand one another. The intimate political relation subsisting between the president of the United States and the heads of departments, necessarily renders any legal investigation of the acts of one of those high officers peculiarly... delicate—John Marshall. They establish and maintain... more intimate and confiding relations with us—J. R. Lowell. Though Farfrae must have so far forgiven him to have no objection to... him as a father-in-law, intimate they could never be—Hardy

Intimate may also apply to a connection between a person and a thing, especially something he says, does, wears, or uses; it then implies a very close relation between that thing and his inmost thoughts or feelings or his life in the privacy of his home. (Official receptions were few but small, intimate teas were frequent in the governor's home). The inedecy of publishing intimate letters which were never written to be published—Ellis. Her eyes, lively, laughing, intimate, nearly always a little mocking—Cather. A shirt-sleeved populace moved... with the intimate abandonment of boarders going down the passage to the bathroom—Wharton

As applied directly or indirectly to knowledge, intimate differs from familiar not only in idiom but also in implying not merely acquaintance but close or deep study. He has an intimate knowledge of the situation. He is familiar with the facts pertaining to the situation. He is familiar with the poem in question. He has gained, through long study, an intimate knowledge of the poem. Close is often used in place of intimate when one wishes to imply an acquaintance between persons together. In such a way as to suggest the exclusion of others or a very strong degree of affection between them. Close friends. A close friendship. Seeing them so tender and so close—Tennyson

Too close to Theodore Roosevelt ever to receive the confidence of Woodrow Wilson—Paxson. Confidential implies a relationship based upon mutual trust or confidence or upon a willingness to confide intimate matters (as one's hopes, thoughts, or feelings. The growing harmony and confidential friendship which daily manifest themselves between their Majesties—Chatham. He slipped his arm through his father's with a confidential pressure—Wharton. Chummy and thick are less formal terms and usually convey some degree of contempt, derision, or envy of a close association. Chummy suggests an easy informal

See also explanatory notes facing page 1
macy (it is an unprecedented thing, I take it, for a captain to be chimney with the cook—London) Thick stresses constant association more than the strength of the attachment (the two former enemies are now as thick as thieves) but often it carries a sinister suggestion (a friend of gangsters and runrumpers, very thick with people like Jake the Barber—Bellow)

An friendly, neighborly, amicable: sociable, cordial, genial, affable, gracious: easy, comfortable, cozy, snug: intrusive, obtrusive, officious, impertinent

Ant aloof —Con indifferent, detached, unconcerned, incurious: formal, conventional, ceremonious, ceremonial 2 ordinary, common, popular, vulgar

Ana usual, wonted, accustomed, customary, habitual

Ant unfamiliar: strange —Con novel, newfangled, new-fashioned, rare, uncommon, infrequent: fantastic, chimerical (see imaginary)

famous

famed, renowned, celebrated, eminent, illustrious are comparable when meaning known far and wide among men. Famous and famed apply chiefly to men, events, and things that are much talked of or are widely or popularly known throughout a section, a country, a continent, or a cultural tradition; they also imply good repute or a favorable reputation. Normally these terms are applied without qualification only to those persons or things that are still so known or that were so known in the time under consideration (the once famous poems of Owen Meredith) (a famous American aviator) (some of our most famous physicians have had to struggle pitifully against insufficient means until they were forty or fifty—Shaw) (time has spiraled them from rebellion to eminence. They are respectively famous, and the poet Edith even fashionable—W. T. Scott) (a corpulent, jolly fellow, famed for humor—Hawthorne) Renowned implies more glory or honor and more widespread acclamation than either famous or famed; it is, however, often employed as a stronger or more emphatic term than famous with little actual difference in meaning except for a suggestion of greater longevity of fame (royal kings . . . renowned for their deeds . . . for Christian service and true chivalry—Shak.) (those far-renowned brides of ancient song—Tennyson) Celebrated stresses reception of popular or public notice or attention and frequent mention, especially in print; it may also suggest public admiration or popular honor (the celebrated kidnapping of Charley Ross) (the most celebrated of the cases pending before the Supreme Court) (Benjamin Franklin's celebrated kite) (the greatest, but the least celebrated, general in the war) (it is characteristic that in this whole "Notebook" Maugham seldom mentions any of his celebrated friends—Behrman) Eminent implies conspicuousness for outstanding qualities; it is applicable chiefly to persons or things that are recognized as topping others of their kind (the age produced no eminent writers (many eminent men of science have been bad mathematicians—Russell) (eminent manifestations of this magical power of poetry are very rare and very precious—Arnold)

Illustrious carries a stronger implication of renown than eminent; it also imputes to the thing so described a gloriousness or splendor that increases its prestige or influence (illustrious deeds of great heroes) (his right noble mind, illustrious virtue—Shak.) (boast the pure blood of an illustrious race—Pope)

Ant obscure

fanatic n bigot, enthusiastic, zealot

fanciful imaginative, visionary, fantastic, chimerical, quixotic

Ana fictitious, fabulous, mythical, apocryphal, legendary: bizarre, grotesque, fantastic: preposterous, absurd (see foolish): false, wrong

fancy vb 1 dote, like, love, enjoy, relish

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
fantastic

Ana  *approve, endorse, sanction
Con  *disapprove, deprecate
2 imagine, conceive, envisage, envision, realize, *think Ana  *conjecture, surmise, guess fantastic 1 chimerical, visionary, fanciful, *imaginary, quixotic Ana  extravagant, extreme (see EXCESSIVE): incredible, unbelievable, implausible (see affirmative adjectives at PLAUSIBLE): preposterous, absurd (see FOOLISH): *irrational, unreasonable: delusory, delusive, deceptive, *misleading Con  familiar, ordinary, *common: *usual, customary

2 Fantastic, bizarre, grotesque, antic are comparable when they describe works of art, effects produced by nature or art, ideas, or behavior and mean conceived or made, or seemingly conceived or made, without reference to reality, truth, or common sense. Fantastic stresses the exercise of unrestrained imagination or unlicensed fancy. It therefore variously connotes absurd extravagance in conception, remoteness from reality, or merely ingenuity in devising fantastical figures, with bulbous heads, the circumference of a bushel, grimeatenously in his face—Hawthorne (one need not have a very fantastic imagination to imagine spirits there—Gray) he wove fantastic stories of the hunting bridle—Kipling Bizarre is applied to what is unduly, often sensationally, strange or queer; it suggests the use of violent contrasts (as in color, in sound, or in emotional effects) or of strikingly incongruous combinations (as of the tragic and the comic or of the horrible and the tender) it was bizarre in the extreme. It was as if a judge, wearing the black cap, had suddenly put out his tongue at the condemned—Poweys temple sculpture became bizarre—rearing monsters, fiery horses, great pilared halls teeming with sculptures—Atlantic Grotesque emphasizes distortion of the natural to the point either of comic absurdity or of aesthetically effective ugliness. Technically the word is applied to a type of painting or sculpture of ancient Roman origin which serves a decorative rather than a pictorial purpose and which employs natural details (as animals, men, flowers, and foliage) and conventional designs and figures (as scrolls, garlands, and satyrs) in unnatural combinations or to the comic exaggerations or distortions of human and animal figures in the sculptured decorations and especially the gargoyles of Gothic architecture. It is from the latter association that the adjective in general use derives its leading implications of ridiculous ugliness or ludicrous caricature the camel was crouching ... with his grotesque head waving about in dumb protest to the blows—Hoffman she differed from other comedians. There was nothing about her of the grotesque; none of her comic appeal was due to exaggeration—T. S. Eliot Sometimes the word suggests an absurdly irrational combination of incompatibles (the attempts ... to dress up the Labour movement as a return to Greek and Roman virtues are little short of grotesque—Inge) Antic, chiefly in literary use, though once indistinguishable from grotesque, has come to stress ludicrousness or buffoonery more than unnaturalness or irrationality he came running to me ... making a many antic gesture—Defoe an outrageously funny novel ... basically the product of an antic imagination—Gibbs irresponsibly antic and unabashedly outspoken, he affects a brassy impudence that many of his staid associates appear to find refreshing—Kahn Ana  imagined, fancied, conceived (see THINK): externalized, objectified (see REALIZE): ingenious, adroit, *clever: eccentric, erratic, singular, *strange, odd, queer fantasy 1 fancy, *imagination
Ana  imagining, fancying, conceiving, envisioning (see THINK) externalizing, objectifying (see REALIZE)
2 *fancy, phantasy, phantasm, vision, dream, daydream, nightmare Ana  *delusion, hallucination: vagary, *caprice, whimsy, whim, freak, fancy: grotesquerie, bizarrerie (see corresponding adjectives at FANTASTIC) far, faraway, far-off *distant, remote, removed Ant  near, nigh, nearly farcical comical, comic, ludicrous, *laughable, ridiculous, risible, droll, funny farfetched *forced, labored, strained
Ana  *fantastic, grotesque, bizarre: eccentric, erratic, strange, queer Con  natural, normal (see REGULAR): *spontaneous, impulsive: *usual, wonted, accustomed farming *agriculture, husbandry farther, further are often used without distinction though originally different words, farther being the comparative of far and further, in its adverbial form (as an adjective, it is without a positive), being the comparative of fore or forth. At any rate farther basically implies a greater distance from a given point in space or sometimes in time; the latter implies oneness or an advance or an addition (as in movement or progression) not only in space but in time, quantity, or degree the farther tree is blocking my view Germany is farther from the United States than England move farther away from the city no further steps are necessary the incident happened farther back than I can remember circumstances such as the present . . . render further reserve unnecessary—Shaw In spite of this fundamental distinction in meaning, there are many occasions where it is difficult to make a choice, since the ideas of distance from a given point and of advance in movement may both be implied. In such cases either word may be used to go further and fare worse—Old Proverb my ponies are tired, and I have farther to go—Hardy as we climb higher, we can see farther—Inge What! . . . was Pat ever in France? Indeed he was, cries mine host; and Pat adds, Ay, and farther—Lover fascination charm, bewitch, enchant, captivate, allure, *attract Ana  influence, impress, *affect, sway, strike, touch: delight, rejoice, gladden, *please Con  repugnant, repellent, distasteful, obnoxious, abhorrent fashion n 1 manner, way, *method, mode, system
Ana  practice, *habit, custom, usage, wont 2 Fashion, style, mode, vogue,fad, rage, craze, dernier cri, cerry are comparable when denoting a way of dressing, of furnishing and decorating rooms, of dancing, or of behaving that is generally accepted at a given time by those who wish to follow the trend or to be regarded as up-to-date. Fashion is thought of in general as the current conventional usage or custom which is determined by polite society or by those who are regarded as leaders especially in the social, the intellectual, the literary, or the artistic world the dictates of fashion follow the fashion nowhere is fashion so exacting, not only in dress and demeanor, but in plastic art itself—Brownell took the view that externals count for much, since they sway opinion, and opinion sways fashion, and fashion is reflected in conduct—Buchan Fashion is also applicable to the particular thing (as costume, furniture, behavior, or subject in literature or art) which is dictated by fashion (this poem . . . provided . . . the fake-progressive with a new fashion—Day Lewis

Style, in this as in its other senses (see LANGUAGE 2, NAME) implies a manner or way that is distinctive; though often interchangeable with fashion (a dress in the latest style) it particularly suggests the elegant or distinguished way of dressing, furnishing, and living characteristic of those who have wealth and taste (live in style) (judging from the style they keep, they are both wealthy and cultivated) (their clothes, their homes, their tables, their cars have that somewhat elusive quality called style) (an authentic opera queen, temperamental, colorful, obstreperous, who considered traveling in style as important as singing in tune—Kupferberg) Mode, especially in the phrase "the mode," suggests the peak of fashion or the fashion of the moment among those who cultivate elegance in dress, behavior, and interests (the easy, apathetic graces of the man of the mode—Macleay) (that summer Russian refugees were greatly the mode—Rose Macleay) (sleeping on top of television sets is the mode of the day for cats—New Yorker) Vogue stresses the prevalence or wide acceptance of the fashion and its obvious popularity (the slender, undeveloped figure then very much in vogue—Cather) (the word morale, in italics, had a great vogue at the time of the War—Montague) (yet I am told that the vogue of the sermon is passing—Quiller-Couch) Fad, rage, craze, dernier cri all apply to an extremely short-lived fashion.

Fad stresses caprice in taking up and in dropping (many people are inclined to see in the popularity of this new subject a mere university fad—Babbitt) (a fashion is not in France the mere "fad" it is in England and with us—Brownell) Rage and craze imply short-lived and often markedly senseless enthusiasm (Mr. Prufrock fitted in very well with his wife's social circle, and was quite the rage—Day Lewis) (dog racing had begun as an enthusiasm, worked through to being a craze, and ended as being a habit—Westerby) Dernier cri or its equivalent cory (especially in "all the cry") applies to whatever is the very latest thing in fashion (a woman whose clothes are always the dernier cri) (open-toed shoes were all the cry that summer)

Ana trend, drift, *tendency: convention, *form, usage

fashion vb form, shape, *make, fabricate, manufacture, forge

Ana devise, contrive (see corresponding nouns at DEVICE): design, plan, plot (see under PLAN n): produce, turn out (see BEAR)

fashionable *stylish, modish, smart, chic, dashing

Ant unfinished: old-fashioned fast, rapid, swift, fleet, quick, speedy, hasty, expeditious mean moving, proceeding, or acting with great celerity. Fast and rapid are often used without distinction; but fast frequently applies to the moving object and emphasizes its way in which it covers ground, whereas rapid is apt to characterize the movement itself and often to suggest its astonishing rate of speed (a fast horse) (a fast train) (a fast boat) (a rapid current) (a rapid gait) (rapid progress) (a fast worker) (rapid work)

Swift suggests great rapidity, frequently coupled with ease or facility of movement (fleeter than arrows, bullets, wind, thought, swifter things—Shak) (more swift than swallow shears the liquid sky—Spenser) (the flight of his imagination is very swift: the following of it often a breathless business—Day Lewis) Fleet, which is chiefly in poetic or journalistic use, connotes lightness or nimbleness as well as extreme fastness or rapidity (antelope are fleet of foot) (how the fleet creature would fly before the wind—Melville) Quick (see also QUICK 2) applies especially to something that happens promptly or occupies but little time; it suggests alacrity or celerity, especially in action, rather than velocity of motion (quick thinking saved him from the trap) (thy drugs are quick. Thus with a kiss I die—Shak) (slow to resolve, but in performance quick—Dryden) Speedy, when applied to persons or their motions or activities, implies extreme quickness and often hurry or haste; when applied to things and their motion or movement, it also often suggests great velocity; in general, it is opposed to dilatory (no mode sufficiently speedy of obtaining money had ever occurred to me—De Quincey) (hope for their speedy return) (be speedy, darkness—Keats) (make speediest preparation for the journey!—Shelley) Hasty suggests hurry or precipitance rather than speed and often connotes the resulting confusion, disorder, or inattention (gobbled down a hasty meal) (we must, this time, have plans ready—instead of waiting to do a hasty, inefficient, and ill-considered job at the last moment—Roosevelt) Expeditious adds to quick or speedy the implication of efficiency; it therefore implies the absence of waste, bungling, and undue haste (an expeditious movement of troops) (there is no expeditious road to pack and label men for God, and save them by the barrel load—Thompson)

Ant slow

fasten, fix, attach, affix mean to make something stay firmly in place or in an assigned place. All but fix (and that sometimes) imply a uniting or joining of one thing to another or of two things together. Fasten implies an attempt to keep a thing from moving by uniting it (as by tying, binding, nailing, or cementing) to something else or by restraining it by means of some mechanical device (as a lock, a screw, or a hook and eye) (fasten a horse to a post) (fasten down the lid of a box) (fasten a calendar to a wall) (fasten a door) (fasten a dress in the back)

Fix implies an attempt to keep something from falling down or from losing hold; it suggests such operations as driving in or implanting deeply, usually with care and accuracy (fix a stake in the ground) (unless their roots are deeply fixed, plants will not be strong). It is more common in its extended than in its basic sense, but the implications remain the same (fix a face in one's memory) (fix facts in one's mind) (fix a color in a fabric by use of a mordant)

In some phrases where fasten and fix are used interchangeably there may be a distinction in meaning which is subtle but justified; thus, to fix one's affections on someone one connotes concentration and fidelity while to fasten one's affections on someone may, and often does, suggest covetousness or an attempt to hold or control; to fix the blame upon a person implies solid grounds for the accusation, but to fasten the blame upon someone often suggests factitious grounds or selfish motives (his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord—Ps 112:7) (society wanted to do what it pleased; all disliked the laws which Church and State were trying to fasten on them—Henry Adams)

Attach stresses connection or union in order to keep things together or to prevent their separation; it usually implies a bond, link, or tie (the lid is attached to the box by hinges) (attach loose sheets by means of a staple) (the collarbone is attached to the shoulder blade at one end and to the breastbone at the other) (he attached himself to the cause in his youth) (in some countries little odium is attached to drunkenness) (attach a condition to a promise) (she undertakes to attach him to her by strong ties: a child, or marriage—Parshley)

Affix usually implies imposition of one thing upon another; it may convey no further information (affix a seal to a document) (Felton affixed this bull to the gates of the bishop of London's palace—Hallam) but it more often than not suggests

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
either attachment by an adhesive (as paste, gum, or mucilage) (affix a stamp to an envelope) or subscription (as of a name to a document) (he's old enough to affix his signature to an instrument—Meredith)

Ana secure, rivet, moor, anchor: join, connect, link, unite: adhere, cleave, cling, stick, cohere: bind, tie

Ant unfasten: loosen, lose — Con separate, part, sever, Sunder, divorce, divide

fastidious finicky, finicking, finical, particular, fussy, *nice, dainty, squeamish, persnickety, picky

Ana exacting, demanding (see demand vb): critical, hypercritical, captious: careful, meticulous, punctilious, scrupulous

Con negligent, remiss, neglectful, slack, lax: uncritical, cursory (see superfluous)

fastness stronghold, *fort, fortress, citadel

fat adj: fleshy, stout, portly, plump, corpulent, obese, rotund, ruddy

Ant lean — Con spare, lank, lanky, skinny, gaunt, scrawny, rawboned, angular (see lean): thin, slender, slim, slight

fatal mortal, *deadly, lethal

Ana killing, slaying (see kill vb): destroying or destructive (see corresponding verb destroy): baneful, *pernicious

fate, destiny, lot, portion, doom are comparable when fate, destiny, lot, portion, doom are comparable when

Analogous words

fastidious 327 fault

faultful *ominous, portentous, inauspicious, unpropitious

Ana momentous, significant, important (see corresponding nouns at importance): decisive, determinative, *conclusive: crucial, critical, *acute

fathom vb Fathom, sound, plumb all mean to measure the depth (as of a body of water) typically with a weighted line. Fathom implies a measuring in fathoms (units of six feet). Sound typically suggests the use of a sounding line in measuring, but it may come close to probe (see under enter 1) when it deals with the investigation of a body of water to ascertain not only its depth but the character of its bottom or floor men went overboard with poles in their hands, sounding . . . for deeper water—Defoe Plumb implies the use of a plumb line, a wire or cord to which is attached a plummet that keeps the line in a vertical position as it falls. These differences are seldom apparent, because such measurements are usually taken by similar means, but in extended usage they take on importance and usually determine the specific implications of the words. Fathom implies an attempt to get through or beneath the obscuring layers of something mysterious or incomprehensible so as to reveal or comprehend its true nature (the aims of the artist must first be fathomed—Charles Johnson) (if we can fathom the mystery of the structure of the Milky Way, we shall have learned much about the arrangement of the universe—B. J. Bok) (it involved a speculative fathoming of the uncertainties of the human mind—Davis) Sound implies particularly the use of such indirect methods as cautious questioning or examination to elicit information as to someone's views or feelings, as to the real state of affairs in a particular case, or as to the worth, status, or possibility of something (sound out the attitude of the candidate towards Medicare) (sent commissioners . . . to sound for peace—Jefferson) (when Delia sounded her cousin, the girl's evasive answer and burning brow seemed to imply that her suitor had changed his mind—Wharton) (told Tiberius that Castor was sounding various senators as to their willingness to support him—Graves) Plumb suggests the ascertaining of something hidden usually by minute and critical examination (she succeeded in plumbing his motives) (there were depths . . . beneath the story that he had never plumbed—Brooks) Sometimes, however it comes pretty close to fathom (who can plumb what the future holds in store?)

fatigue vb exhaust, jade, *tire, weary, fag, tucker

Ana *deplete, drain: debilitate, disable, weaken

Ant rest — Con refresh, restore, rejuvenate, *renew: relieve, assuage

fatuous asinine, silly, foolish, *simple

Ana idiotic, imbecile, moronic (see corresponding nouns at fool): *fond, infatuated, besotted, insensate

Ant sensible — Con sane, prudent, judicious, *wise, sage, sapient

fault n 1 *imperfection, deficiency, shortcoming

Ana flaw, defect, *blemish: weakness, infirmity (see corresponding adjectives at weak)

Ant excellence

2 *Fault, failing, frailty, foible, vice are comparable when they mean an imperfection in character or an ingrained moral weakness. Fault implies failure, but not necessarily serious or even culpable failure, to attain a standard of moral perfection in disposition, deed, or habit (have many virtues and few faults) (he is all fault who hath no fault at all—Tennyson) (our modern appreciation is often only the amiable aspect of a fault—an undue tolerance for indeterminate enthusiasms and rapid emotionalism—Babbitt) Failing is even less censorious than fault, for it usually implies a shortcoming, often a faultfinding 328

favorable, benign, auspicious, propitious mean being of good omen or presaging a happy or successful outcome. Favorable implies that the persons or circumstances involved tend to assist in attaining one’s ends—persons by being kindly disposed or actually helpful and circumstances by being distinctly advantageous or encouraging. A favorable breeze (a hot dry summer, favorable to contemplative life out of doors—Conrad) (they won’t take a chance of battle unless they can feel sure of most favorable conditions—Alexander Forbes) Benign (see also kind) is applicable chiefly to someone or to something that has power to make or mar one’s fortunes by his or its aspect and is thought of as looking down with favor on one or of presenting a favorable countenance to one (so shall the World go on, to good malignant, to bad men benign—Milton) (on whose birth benign planets have certainly smiled—Broni) (a benign rather than a malevolent phenomenon—Margaret Halsey) Auspicious, like the related augur (see under Foretell), suggests the presence of signs or omens and is applicable to something that is marked by favorable signs or is in itself regarded as a good omen (an auspicious beginning of what proved to be a great career) (for sure the milder planets did combine on thy auspicious horizon to shine—Dryden) (they won’t contemplate life out of doors—Conrad) (to pay the boy . . . he brought auspicious news—Kipling) Propitious suggests an allusion to favoring gods or powers to a great career) (for sure the milder planets did combine on thy auspicious horizon to shine—Dryden) (they won’t contemplate life out of doors—Conrad) (to pay the boy . . . he brought auspicious news—Kipling) Propitious suggests an allusion to favoring gods or powers to be a great career) (for sure the milder planets did combine on thy auspicious horizon to shine—Dryden) (they won’t contemplate life out of doors—Conrad) (to pay the boy . . . he brought auspicious news—Kipling) Propitious suggests an allusion to favoring gods or powers to be a great career) (for sure the milder planets did combine on thy auspicious horizon to shine—Dryden) (they won’t contemplate life out of doors—Conrad) (to pay the boy . . . he brought auspicious news—Kipling) Propitious suggests an allusion to favoring gods or powers to be a great career) (for sure the milder planets did combine on thy auspicious horizon to shine—Dryden) (they won’t contemplate life out of doors—Conrad) (to pay the boy . . . he brought auspicious news—Kipling) implication of a menial as well as of a fawning attitude in an attempt to ingratiate oneself; often also it suggests the close following of a hanger-on or parasite or the vulgarly imitative behavior of a social climber <toady/ing to the rich boys in his school> <her generosity encouraged toady/ing among her neighbors> <he toadied and worshipped and worried: he became timid and obsequious, feeling himself to be a thing, a little scratching cinder among immen-sities—Enright> <in proportion as he submits and toadies, he also will dominate and bully—Mead>

Truckle implies subordination of self or submission of one’s de-sires, judgments, or opinions to those of a superior <everybody must defer. A nation must wait upon her decision, a dean and chapter truckle to her wishes—Sackville-West> <there are people who will always truckle to those who have money—Archibald Marshall>

Cringe implies obsequious bowing or crouching as if in awe or fear; it usually connotes abject abasement <we are sneaking and bowing and cringing on the one hand, or bullying and scorning on the other—Thackeray> <she is very humble and careless of self. “My poor, humble self” . . . is often on her lips; but she never cringes or loses dignity—Symonds>

Cower always implies abject fear, often cowardly fear, especially in the presence of those who tyrannize or dominate <the whole family cowered under Lady Kew’s eyes and nose, and she ruled by force of them—Thackeray> <having found . . . every incentive to cower and cringe and hedge, and no incentive . . . to stand upright as a man—Brooks>

Ant domineer

faze disconcert, discomfit, rattle, *embarrass, abash

Ana nonplus, confound, dumbfound, perplex, mystify, *puzzle: *confuse, muddle: fluster, flurry, perturb, *dis-compose

fealty *fidelity, loyalty, devotion, allegiance, piety

Ana faithfulness or faith, trueness or truth, constancy, staunchness, steadfastness (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHFUL): *obligation, duty

Ant perfidy —Con perfidiousness, treacherousness or treachery, traitorishness, faithlessness, disloyalty, falsehood (see corresponding adjectives at FAITHLESS) fear n 1 Fear, dread, fright, alarm, dismay, consternation, panic, terror, horror, trepidation denote the distressing or disordering agitation which overcomes one in the anticipa-tion or in the presence of danger. Fear is the most general term: like dread, it implies apprehension and anxiety, but it also frequently suggests a loss of courage amounting to cowardice <fear came upon me, and trembling—Job 4:14> <he had, indeed, an awful dread of death, or rather “of something after death”—Bowsew> <do you know what fear is? Not ordinary fear of insult, injury or death, but abject, quavering dread of something that you cannot see—Kipling> <the only thing we have to fear is fear itself—Roosevelt>

Fright implies the shock of sudden, startling, and usually short-lived fear; alarm suggests the fright which is awakened by sudden awareness of imminent danger <she had taken fright at our behavior and turned to the captain pitifully—Conrad> <she stared at her husband in alarm; her golden-hazel eyes were black with apprehension—Wylie> <thou wast born amid the din of arms, and sucked a breast that panted with alarms—Cowper>

Dismay implies deprivation of spirit, courage, or initiative, especially by an alarming or disconcerting prospect <the storm prevails, the rampart yields a way, bursts the wild cry of horror and dismay!—Campbell>

Consternation heightens the implication of prostration or confusion of the faculties <‘tis easy to believe, though not to describe, the consternation they were all in—Defoe>

Panic is over-mastering and unreasoning, often groundless, fear or fright

Terror suggests the extremity of consternation or dread <the terror by night—Ps 91:5> <frozen with terror—Beckford>

(soul-chilling terror—Shelley)

Horror adds the implication of shuddering abhorrence or aversion, for it usually connotes a sight, activity, or demand rather than a premo-nition as a cause of fear <the horror of supernatural darkness—Pater> <shrink from the task with all the horror of a well-bred English gentleman—Woolf>

Trepidation adds to dread the implication of timidity, especially as mani-fested by trembling or by marked hesitation <the Stubland aunts were not the ladies to receive a solicitor’s letter calmly. They were thrown into a state of extreme trepidation—H. G. Wells>

It is often used for a polite pretense of fear or timidity <I take up with some trepidation the subject of program music—Babbit>

Ana *approbation, foreboding, misgiving, presentiment: anxiety, worry, concern (see CARE)

Ant fearlessness —Con boldness, bravery, intrepidity, valiancy (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE): *courage, mettle, spirit, resolution: *confidence, assurance, aplomb

2 awe, *reverence

Ana veneration, worship, adoration (see under REVERE): admiration, *wonder, amazement: respect, esteem (see REGARD n)

Ant contempt

fearful 1 Fearful, apprehensive, afraid are comparable when they mean inspired or moved by fear. In such use they are normally followed by of, that, or lest, afraid being never and fearful and apprehensive infrequently used attributively in this sense. Fearful carries no suggestion of a formidable cause of fear; it often connotes timorousness, a predisposition to worry, or an active imagination <the child is fearful of loud noises> <they were fearful that a storm would prevent their excursion> <fearful lest his prize should escape him—J. R. Green>

Apprehensive suggests a state of mind rather than a temperament and grounds for fear that at least seem reasonable. It always implies a presentiment or anticipation of evil or danger (<in July 1914 all civilized peoples were apprehensive of war> <had driven before them into Italy whole troops of . . . provincials, less apprehensive of servitude than of famine—Gibbon>)

Fearful, afraid may or may not imply sufficient mo-tivation of fears, but it typically connotes weakness or cowardice and regularly implies inhibition of action or utterance <the trained reason is disinterested and fearless. It always implies a presentiment or anticipation of evil or danger (in July 1914 all civilized peoples were apprehensive of war) had driven before them into Italy whole troops of . . . provincials, less apprehensive of servitude than of famine—Gibbon>

Fearful, afraid may or may not imply sufficient mo-tivation of fears, but it typically connotes weakness or cowardice and regularly implies inhibition of action or utterance (<the trained reason is disinterested and fearless. It always implies a presentiment or anticipation of evil or danger in July 1914 all civilized peoples were apprehensive of war>)

Ant: *timid, timorous: anxious, worried, concerned (see under CARE)

Ant fearlessness —Con boldness, bravery, intrepidity, valiancy (see corresponding adjectives at BRAVE): *courage, mettle, spirit, resolution: *confidence, assurance, aplomb

2 awe, *reverence

Ana veneration, worship, adoration (see under REVERE): admiration, *wonder, amazement: respect, esteem (see REGARD n)

Ant contempt
fearful country!—Shak.} {a sight too fearful for the feel of fear—Keats} {our fearful trip is done, the ship has weathered every rack—Whitman} In less formal English fearful may not imply apprehension of danger, but it may at least imply that the thing so qualified is a cause of disquiet {the fearful tenacity of a memory} {a fearfully distressing situation} Something is awful which impresses one so profoundly that one acts or feels as if under a spell or in the grip of its influence; the word often implies an emotion such as reverential fear or an overpowering awareness of might, majesty, or sublimity {and wring the awful specter from his fist—Shak.} {God of our fathers . . . beneath whose awful Hand we hold dominion over palm and pine—Kipling} {men living among the glooms and broken lights of the primeval forest, hearing strange noises in the treetops when the thunder crashed, and awful voices in the wind—Buchan} With somewhat weakened force awful may be applied to qualities or conditions which are unduly weighted with significance or which strike one forcibly as far above or beyond the normal {no tribunal can approach such a question without a deep sense . . . of the awful responsibility involved in its decision—John Marshall} {a moment of awful silence before the questions became—Dawes} Suddenly, the awful singleness of purpose of the innocent and intelligent, she believed in Captain Remson—{McFee} Something is dreadful from which one shrinks in shuddering fear or in loathing {the dreadful prospect of another world war} {cancer is a dreadful disease} {she felt her two hands taken, and heard a kind voice. Could it be possible it belonged to the dreadful father of her husband?—Meredith} {dreadful things should not be known to young people until they are old enough to face them with a certain poise—Russell} In weakened use dreadful is applicable to something from which one shrinks as disagreeable or as unpleasant to contemplate or endure {a dreadful necessity} {wouldn’t it be dreadful to produce that effect on people—L. P. Smith} Something is frightful which, for the moment at least, paralyzes one with fear or throws one into great alarm or consternation {a frightful sound broke the quiet of the night} {a frightful tornado} {the Ghost of a Lady . . . a scar on her forehead, and a bloody handkerchief at her breast, frightful to behold—Meredith} Frightful is also often employed without direct implication of fright, but in such use it imputes to the thing so qualified a capacity for startling the observer {as by its enormity, outrageousness, or its shocking quality} {a frightful disregard of decency} {a frightful scandal} {this frightful condition of internal strain and instability—Shaw} {the labor of sifting, combining, constructing, expunging, correcting, testing: this frightful toil is as much critical as creative—T. S. Eliot} Something is terrible which causes or is capable of causing extreme and agitating fear or which both induces fright or alarm and prolongs and intensifies it {many—voices arose. The clamor became} {all the clamor} The clamor became terrible, and confused the minds of all the men—{Andersen} One of those terrible women produced now and then by the Roman stock, unsexed, implacable, filled with an insane lust of power—Buchan} {I have never read a more terrible exposure of human weakness—of universal human weakness—than the last great speech of Othello—T. S. Eliot} {a human being devoid of hope is the most terrible object in the world—Heiser} When the word carries no implication of terrifying or of capacity for terrifying, it usually suggests that the thing so described is almost unendurable in its excess {as of force or power} or too painful to be borne without alleviation or mitigation {knowledge . . . is no longer thought to be a secret, precious, rather terrible possession—Benson} {an evil passion may give great physical and intellectual powers a terrible efficiency—Eliot} {Saint-Beuve believed that the truth is always terrible—L. P. Smith} Something is terrific which is fitted or intended to inspire terror {as by its size, appearance, or potency} {eyes and hairy mane terrific—Milton} {assumes a terrific expression} {one little tool . . . transforms the spark [of electricity] from a form too brief and bright and terrific to be intelligible into one of the most tractable and lucid of the phenomena . . . of Nature—Darrow} Terrific may be preferred to terrible when there is an implication of release of stored-up energy, physical, emotional, or intellectual, and of its stunning effect {a terrific explosion} {a terrific outbreak of rage} {the most admired single phrase that Shakespeare ever wrote—Ripeness is all . . . derives a terrific and pure dramatic impact from its context—Day Lewis} Something is horrible the sight of which induces not only fear or terror but also loathing and aversion; thus, a fearful precipice may not be horrible; in the practice of the ancient Greek dramatists, murder on the stage was avoided as horrible {now that wars are between nations, no longer between governments or armies, they have become far more horrible—Inge} Horrible, like the other words, may be used in a weaker sense; in such cases it seldom suggests horror, but it does suggest hatefulness or hideousness {a horrible suspicion arose in his mind} {a horribly shrill voice} {a horrible taste} Horrible emphasizes the effect produced on a person, horrific the possession of qualities or properties fitted or intended to produce that effect {that horrific yarn [Stevenson's] “The Body-Snatcher”—Montague} {his yearning for the horrific, the revolting, the transcendent mystery of whatever is not “nice”—Times Lit. Sup.} Something is shocking which startles or is capable of startling because it is contrary to one's expectations, one's standards of good taste, or one's moral sense {likes to tell shocking stories} {find a shocking change in a friend's appearance} {the treatment should begin by encouraging him to utter freely even his most shocking thoughts—Russell} Often in extended use shocking does not imply a capacity for startling so much as a blamable or reprehensible character {it is shocking of me, but I have to laugh when people are pompous and absurd—Rose Macaulay} {a solemnism of this kind . . . would have seemed a shocking thing to . . . so accurate a scholar—L. P. Smith} Something is appalling which strikes one with dismay as well as with terror or horror {her overthrow would have been the most appalling disaster the Western world had ever known—Henry Adams} {the defects are appallingly prolific—Shaw} Sometimes appalling comes close to amazing but then retains the notion of dismaying and carries a stronger suggestion of dumbfounding than of surprising {his appalling quickness of mind} {he was squatting in some sepulchral Indian village talking to unwashed old men, and eating the most appalling food—La Farge} Ana frightening, terrifying, alarming (see FRIGHTEN): ghastly, gruesome, grisly, grim, macabre, lurid: *sinister, baleful, malignant: sublime (see SPLENDID) fearless unafraid, dauntless, undaunted, bold, intrepid, audacious, *brave, courageous, valiant, valorous, doughty Ana daring, venturesome, *adventurous: heroic, gallant (see corresponding nouns at HEROISM): plucky, gritty (see corresponding nouns at FORTITUDE) Ant fearful — Con timid, timorous feasible *possible, practicable Ana practical, *practicable: advisable, *expeditious, pol- tic: advantageous, *beneficial, profitable: suitable, appropriate, fitting, *fit Ant unbelievable, infeasible: chimerical (schemes, projects, suggestions) — Con fantastic, visionary, quixotic (see
feast imaginary); utopian, *ambitious, pretentious

feast dinner, banquet

feast n Feat, exploit, achievement denote a remarkable deed or performance. Feat applies particularly to an act involving physical strength, dexterity, and often courage; an exploit is an adventurous, heroic, or brilliant deed; achievement emphasizes the idea of distinguished endeavor especially in the face of difficulty or opposition; all are used frequently with some degree of irony (sights of art and feats of strength went round—Goldsmith) (feats of daring) (I must retreat into the invalided corps and tell them of my former exploits, which may very likely pass for lies—Scott) (great is the rumor of this dreadful knight, and his achievements of no less account—Shak) (achievements of science).

feature n *characteristic, trait

ana detail, particular, *item: specialty, particularity (see corresponding adjectives at SPECIAL): *quality, character, property

fecund fruitful, prolific, *fertile

ana bearing, producing, yielding (see BEAR): breeding, propagating, reproducing, generating (see GENERATE)

ant barren—Con *sterile, unfruitful, infertile, impotent

fecundity fruitfulness, prolificacy, fertility (see under FERTILE)

ana producing or productiveness (see corresponding verb at BEAR): profuseness or profusion, luxuriance, lavishness, prodigality, lushness, exuberance (see corresponding adjectives at PROFUSE)

ant barrenness

federation confederacy, confederation, coalition, fusion, *alliance

ana remuneration, compensation (see corresponding verbs at PAY): charge, *price, cost, expense

feebly *weak, infirm, decrepit, frail, fragile

ana unnerved, enervated, emasculated, unmanned (see UNNERVE): debilitated, weakened, enfeebled, disabled, crippled (see WEAKEN): powerless, impotent

ant robust—Con *strong, sturdy, stout, stalwart: *vigorous, lusty, energetic: hale, *healthy feed vb Feed, nourish, pasture, graze are comparable when they mean to provide the food that one needs or desires.

Feed is the comprehensive term applicable not only to persons and animals but also to plants and, by extension, to whatever consumes something or requires something external for its sustenance (feed the baby) (feed a family of ten on fifty dollars a week) (use bone meal to feed the chrysanthemums) (feed a furnace with coal) (Hugh’s growing vanity was fed by the thought that Clara was interested in him—Anderson) (the press exploits for its benefit human silliness and ignorance and vulgarity and sensationalism, and, in exploiting it, feeds it—Rose Macalvay) (In American but not in British use feed sometimes takes for its object the thing that is fed (feed oats to the horses) (feed coal to the furnace) (he has been feeding bread and butter to the dog—Wiggin) Nourish implies feeding with food that is essential to growth, health, well-being, or continuing existence. Nourish more often takes as its subject the thing that serves as a sustaining or a building-up food than the person who provides such food (milk, eggs, and meat nourish the bodies of growing boys and girls) (the humid prairie heat, so nourishing to wheat and corn, so exhausting to human beings—Cather) (freedom nourishes self-respect—Channing d. 1842) (his zeal seemed nourished by failure and by fall—Whitier)

Pasture is applied chiefly to animals and especially to domestic animals (as cattle, sheep, or horses) fed on grass (cattle are pastured on the ridges and mounds that rise . . . above the swamps—Amer. Guide Series: La.) Graze is often preferred specifically to pasture when the emphasis is on the use of growing herbage for food (a field or two to graze his cows—Swift) (graze sheep on the common)

ana *nurse, nurture, foster, cherish: support, sustain, maintain (see corresponding nouns at LIVING)

ant starve

feed n fodder, forage, provender, *food, victuals, viands, provisions, comestibles

feeling vb *touch, palpate, handle, paw

ana *apprehend, comprehend: perceive, observe, notice (see SEE)

feel n feeling, *atmosphere, aura

ana see those at FEELING 3

feeling n 1 *sensibility, *sensation, sense

ana reacting or reaction, behaving or behavior (see corresponding verbs at ACT): responsiveness (see corresponding adjective at TENDER): sensitiveness, susceptibility (see corresponding adjectives at LIABLE)

2 Feel, affection, emotion, sentiment, passion, Feeling, the general term, denotes a partly mental and partly physical, but not primarily sensory, reaction or state that is characterized by an emotional response (as pleasure, pain, attraction, or repulsion). Unless it is qualified or a clue is given in the context, feeling gives no indication of the nature, the quality, or the intensity of the response (whatever feelings were in Sophia’s heart, tenderness was not among them—Bennett) (a feeling of sadness and longing—Longfellow) Often feeling implies a contrast with judgment and connotes lack of thought (her humanity was a feeling, not a principle—Henry Mackenzie) (she had a feeling that all would be well—Parker) Affection is applied mainly to such feelings as are also inclinations or likings; the word therefore sometimes suggests desire or striving (the heart . . . we are, by foolish custom . . . impelled to call the seat of the affections—Rose Macaulay) (that serene and blessed mood, in which the affections gently lead us on—Wordsworth) (music played with affection and understanding—Kodolín) Emotion usually suggests a condition that involves more of the total mental and physical response than does feeling or implies feelings marked by excitement or agitation (eagerness for emotion and adventure—Sydney Smith) (means of exciting religious emotion—Ruskin) (a sensation of strength, inspired by mighty emotion—George Eliot)

Sentiment connotes a larger intellectual element in the feeling than any of the others; it often is applied specifically to an emotion inspired by an idea (his own anti-slavery sentiments were sincere—Boatfield) Commonly the word suggests refined, sometimes romantic, occasionally affected or artificial, feeling (that moral sentiment which exists in every human breast—Bancroft) (his opinions are more the result of conviction than of sentiment—J. R. Lowell) (Sterne has been called a man over-flowing with sentiment on paper but devoid of real feeling)

Passion suggests powerful or controlling emotion; more than affection, it implies urgency of desire (as for possession or revenge) (hark! how the sacred calm, that breathes about, bids every fierce tumultuous passion cease—Gray) (the ruling passion, be it what it will, the ruling passion conquers reason still—Pope) (give me that man that is not passion’s slave—Shak)

ana impressing or impression, touching, affecting or affection (see corresponding verbs at ACT 1): *mood, humor, temper, vein

See also explanatory notes facing page 1 female

Feign simulate, counterfeit, sham, pretend, affect, *assume

Feint n artifice, ruse, ruse, gambit, ploy, stratagem, maneuver, *trick

Felicitation, congratulate mean to express one's pleasure in the joy, success, elevation, or prospects of another.

Felicitation is the more formal term and carries perhaps a stronger implication that the person who felicitates regards the other as very happy or wishes him happiness (felicitate parents upon the birth of a child) (felicitated His Majesty upon his coronation) (a young pianist came backstage to felicitate Milstein—Current Biol) Congratulate is the more common and often more intimate term; it usually implies that the congratulator regards the other as a person to whom good fortune has come or on whom fortune smiles (it is good manners to congratulate a bridegroom and to felicitate a bride) (congratulate a friend on his promotion) (congratulated himself that he had escaped a trying situation)

Felicitous happy, apt, fitting, appropriate, *suit, suitable, meet, proper

Ana telling, convincing (see VALID) pat, timely, opportunity, *seasonable, well-timed: apposite, pertinent, *relevant

Ant infelicitous: inept, maladroit —Con *awkward, clumsy, gauche: unfortunate, unhappy, unlucky (see affirmative adjectives at LUCKY)

Felicity happiness, bliss, beatitude, blessedness

Ana rapture, transport, *ecstasy: joy, delight, delectation, *pleasure, fruitation

Ant misery

Fell adj cruel, inhuman, savage, barbarous, ferocious, *fierce, turbulent

Ana baleful, malign, malefic, maleficient, *sinister: pitiless, ruthless (see corresponding nouns at SYMPATHY): relentless, unrelenting, merciless, *grim, implacable

Felon n *criminal, convict, malefactor, culprit, delinquent

Female n Female, woman, lady are comparable when meaning a person and especially an adult who belongs to the sex that is the counterpart of the male sex. Female (the correlative of male) emphasizes the idea of sex; it applies not only to human beings but also to animals and plants. Its ordinary use as a synonym for woman was once frequent (three smart-looking females—Austen (to please the females of our modest age—Byron) but this use is now felt as derogatory or contemptuous except in strictly scientific or statistical application, where the term may be employed to designate a person of the female sex whether infant, child, adolescent, or adult (the city's population included 12,115 males and 15,386 females) As compared with woman (the correlative of man), which emphasizes the essential qualities of the adult female, lady (the correlative of gentleman) connotes basically the added qualities implicit in gentle breeding, gracious nature, and cultivated background. Woman is preferred by many whenever the reference is to the person merely as a person (the country expects the help of its women) (the following women assisted in receiving the guests) (a woman of culture) (a saleswoman) (workingwomen) (society women) Lady, on the other hand, is preferred when exalted social position or refinement and delicacy are definitely implied (Alfonso XI at his death left one legitimate son . . . and five bastards by a lady of Seville, Doña Leonor de Guzmán—Altamira y Crevea) (Miss Nancy . . . had the essential attributes of a lady—high veracity, delicate honor in her dealings, deference to others, and refined personal habits—George Eliot) but lady may also be used informally as a mere courteous synonym for woman (please allow these ladies to pass) (the ladies were the decisive factor in rolling up the Republican landslide—Priest) (may I speak to the lady of the house?) though its indiscriminate substitution for woman (as in wash lady, saleslady) carries courtesy into travesty (from that hour to this, the Gazette has referred to all females as women except that police-court characters were always to be designated as ladies—White)

Female adj Female, feminine, womanly, womanlike, womanish, effeminate, ladylike are comparable when meaning of, characteristic of, or like a female especially of the human species. Female (opposed to male) applies to animals and plants as well as to human beings and stresses the fact of sex (the female bee—Milton) (female children were excluded from inheritance) Feminine (opposed to masculine) alone of these words may imply grammatical gender (feminine nouns and pronouns) but it characteristically applies to features, attributes, or qualities which belong to women rather than to men; it has practically displaced all except the more strictly physiological senses of female (her heavenly form angelic, but more soft and feminine—Milton) (the domestic virtues, which are especially feminine—Lecky) (the strangely feminine jealously and religiousness—Steinbeck) Womanly (often opposed to girlish or, from another point of view, to manly) is used to qualify whatever evidences the qualities of a fully developed woman (womanly virtues) It often specifically suggests qualities (as tenderness, sympathy, moral strength, and fortitude) which especially befit a woman and make her attractive especially in her functions as a wife and mother, or it may merely suggest the absence of such mannish qualities as aggressiveness (twas just a womanly presence, an influence unexpressed—J. R. Lowell) (all will spy in thy face a blushing, womanly, discovering grace—Donne) Womanlike (opposed to manlike) is more apt to suggest characteristically feminine faults or foibles (womanlike, taking revenge too deep for a transient wrong done but in thought to your beauty—Tennyson) Womanish (compare mannish, childish) is a term of contempt, especially when applied to what should be virile or masculine (Art thou a man? Thy form cries out thou art; thy tears are womanish—Shak) (womanish or wailing grief—Cowper) Effeminate emphasizes the idea of unmanly delicacy, luxuriosity, or enervation (a woman impudent and mannish growth is not more loathed than an effeminate man in time of action—Shak) (an effeminate and unmanly foppery—Hurd) (something feminine—not effeminate, mind—is discoverable in the countenances of all men of genius—Coleridge) Ladylike is sometimes used sarcastically, especially of men, to imply a dainty and finical affectation of the proprieties (tops at all corners, ladylike in men—Cowper) (that ladylike quality which is the curse of Southern literature—Leech) As applied to girls and women or to their conduct, habits, or manners, ladylike implies conformity to a standard appropriate to a lady (Your daughter may be better paid, better dressed, more gently spoken, more ladylike than you were in the old mill—Shaw)

Ant male —Con masculine, manly, manlike, manful, manish, virile (see MALE)

Feminine *female, womanly, womanish, ladylike, woman—

A colon (:) separates groups of words discriminated. An asterisk (*) indicates place of treatment of each group.
like, effeminate
Ant masculine —Con *male, manly, mannish, virile, manlike, manful

fence vb 1 enclose, envelop, pen, coop, corral, cage, wall

Ana confine, circumscribe, *limit: *surround, gird, environ

2 dodge, parry, sidestep, duck, shirk, malinger

Ana evade, avoid, shun, elude (see ESCAPE): maneuver, feint (see corresponding nouns at TRICK): baffle, foil, outwit (see FRUSTRATE)

feral brutal, brute, brutish, bestial, beastly

Ana fierce, ferocious

ferocious fierce, truculent, savage, inhuman, feral

vb ferret out
seek, search, scour, hunt, comb, ransack, (see EVADE)

Inge

<the enormously fruitful idea—John Morley>
<the enormously fruitful discovery that pitch of sound depends upon the length of the vibrating chord—Ellis>
<Darwinism ... is a fruitful theory of the means by which nature works—Inge>

<the poet ... is apt to lack the detachment which alone makes fruitful criticism possible—Lowes>

Prolific is often interchangeable with fecund, but it often suggests even greater rapidity in reproduction and is therefore more frequently used than the latter term in disparagement or derogation especially when applied to types or kinds of things or beings (the starling is so prolific that the flocks become immense—Jeffreys) (uncultivated, defective people . . . are appallingy prolific—Shaw) (the flabby pseudoreligions in which the modern world is so prolific—Krutch)

Ana producing, bearing, yielding (see BEAR): inventing or inventive, creating or creative (see corresponding verbs at INVENT): quickening, stimulating, provoking, exciting, galvanizing (see PROVOKE)

Ant infertile, sterile —Con barren, impotent, unfruitful (see STERILE)

fertility fruitfulness, fecundity, prolificacy (see under FERTILE)

Ant infertility, sterility —Con impotence or impotency, barrenness, unfruitfulness (see corresponding adjectives at STERILE)

fervent ardent, fervid, perfervid, impassioned, passionate

Ana *devout, pious, religious; warm, warmhearted, *tender, responsive: *sincere, wholehearted, heartfelt, hearty, whole-souled, unfeigned: intense, vehement, fierce, exquisite, violent

Con tame, subdued, submissive

ferret out vb seek, search, scour, hunt, comb, ransack, (see ENTER)

Ana extract, elicit (see EDUCE): penetrate, pierce, probe

